Mid-East Conflict Renewal Warned

By United Press International
Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said Wednesday Egypt and Syria are threatening to renew fighting in the Middle East and "the war may be resumed at any moment." She said the Soviets had already replaced all the equipment lost by the Egyptians and Syrians in the recent war.

the firing. The war may be resumed at any moment. "They received from Russia all the equipment they lost in the war and they are not as fearful as we are about casualties falling in battle. "Therefore we must recognize that war is liable to be renewed at any time," she said, "and we must be ready for it."

Mrs. Meir spoke after Egypt had said Israel's refusal to pull its troops back to the Oct. 22 cease-fire line had jeopardized chances for peace in the Middle East.

At almost the same time, in Washington, U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger warned the Arab oil-producing states the United States would be forced to consider retaliating if they continued their oil embargo "unreasonably and indefinitely."

Mrs. Meir told a meeting of the Jewish Agency executive in Jerusalem. "The Egyptians and Syrians threaten to resume

Kissinger Issues Warning To Arabs About Embargo

FIRST THANKSGIVING — Students at Travis Elementary School learned of the first Thanksgiving celebration by watching a play yesterday afternoon before the students were dismissed from school for the holiday. WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger warned Arab oil-producing states Wednesday the United States would be forced to consider retaliating if they continue their oil embargo "unreasonably and indefinitely." Five days after his return from a round-the-world tour that included talks with Arab rulers on a Middle East cease-fire, Kissinger suggested it was unreasonable to continue the embargo now that Israel and Egypt have stopped fighting and are moving toward negotiations on a long-range peace settlement.

three days in Peking, sought to discount speculation that a major purpose of his talks with Chinese leaders was to hasten "full normalization of relations." The United States, he said, had always "placed emphasis on substance rather than form (and) it remains to be explored as to the form future relations should take." Kissinger said his more limited aim in Peking was to expand trade, cultural and other contacts between the two countries.

While U.S. military support for Israel was the Arab's justification for cutting off the flow of oil to the United States, Kissinger told a 50-minute news conference that Washington was simply helping bring a "just peace" to the Middle East, without favoring either side.

Astros To Walk In Space

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 3 astronauts Wednesday drilled for their first walk in space—a lengthy Thanksgiving Day jaunt to reload cameras and to repair an almost inaccessible radar antenna.

However, it is clear that if pressures continue unreasonably and indefinitely, then the United States would have to consider what countermeasures it would have to take. Kissinger said.

Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue are scheduled to open the outside hatch at 10:10 a.m. CST 270 miles above the African continent. Mission commander Gerald P. Carr will remain inside the 114-foot space station during the walk—perhaps the longest of the three Skylab missions—to test the repair of the earth studies antenna.

He warned Arab oil producers they should understand that the United States will not bow to their pressures. Despite the complex problems involved in working out a stable cease-fire, Kissinger said, "we can look forward with some confidence to peace negotiations during the month of December." U.S. officials had predicted earlier that they would begin the middle of next month in Geneva under U.N. auspices.

The antenna, which failed during Skylab 2, is out of the normal path the astronauts use during walks. The pilots will have to attach two portable foot restraints resembling oversized snowshoes before attempting the repairs.

So that employees of the Pampa Daily News may spend more time with their families on the Thanksgiving holiday, today's edition of The News was delivered this morning.

Pogue will have to sit on Gibson's shoulders to reach the antenna with Gibson feeding him the tools. "There's no question it's probably the hardest EVA (spacewalk) we've done except for the one where we worked on the solar panel back on Skylab 1," flight director Neil Hutchinson said, referring to the crew's freeing of a stuck solar power generating wing.

President Relaxing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, taking time off from wrestling with energy problems and the Watergate scandal, arranged Wednesday to spend a long Thanksgiving weekend with his family at the Camp David presidential retreat in the Maryland mountains.

The break affords Nixon an opportunity for some rest after a 10-day campaign to restore public confidence in his leadership. Aides said he would be using some of the time to study recommendations for emergency measures to cope with the energy crisis. He was expected to announce his decision sometime next week.

In his annual Thanksgiving Day proclamation, Nixon noted that the day was the 10th anniversary of the assassination of John F. Kennedy and he called on all Americans to observe it as a day of prayer for the dead President.

"As we give thanks for the bounty and the goodness of our land, therefore, let us also pause to reflect on President Kennedy's contributions to the life of this nation we love so dearly," the proclamation said.

Hills was shot once in the left hand. Doctors at Nebitt Hospital said the round passed through the hand and into the upper chest. Dean of Men Weldon Trice emphasized that the student who accidentally shot Hills is in violation of university regulations. West Texas State security regulations require students to keep their weapons in a locked closet in the office of each dormitory.

Court Rules 'Impoundment' Unconstitutional

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge Wednesday ruled that President Nixon's impoundment of some $380 million of federal education funds was unconstitutional. U.S. District Judge Joseph C. Waddy issued the ruling in a summary judgment on a class action suit brought by Pennsylvania.

Waddy ordered Secretary Casper Weinberger of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and other officials to "immediately" allot the impounded sum. The suit involved money impounded by Nixon for fiscal 1973 under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act; the Vocational Education Act; and the Adult Education Act.

Pennsylvania had sought to obtain $18 million which it said the government owed it. In a brief order from the bench, Waddy said he found "no genuine issue as to any material fact," and followed with his summary judgment.

At the same time, he denied a government motion to dismiss the complaint, as well as a government motion for a summary judgment in its favor. "This action is certified as a class action with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania representing the interest of itself and the local educational agencies which are political subdivisions thereof, as well as the interests of all other states which are similarly situated, but are not already party to this action," Waddy added.

Residents Offering Thanks Today

Sunny skies should prevail over Pampa today as families gather together from both near and far for the celebration of Thanksgiving.

While mothers and wives prepare turkey, dressing and other traditional fare for the day's feasting, a great many of the men, both here and across the rest of the country, are settling themselves in for what has in itself become a Thanksgiving tradition—a full day of football on television.

Most businesses in Pampa, excepting some service stations and food stores, are closed for the day. Likewise, city, county, state and federal offices are closed for the holiday. Law enforcement officers, however, will be out in full strength.

Police have urged those who must travel anywhere today to drive cautiously. Although road conditions should be good in the area, holiday traffic is usually heavy, with people hastening to get to their destination.

For most of us the day is one of leisure and, for many others, just the first day of a long weekend. In any case, the occasion provides a good reason for family and friends to meet for a day of togetherness.

Special Thanksgiving services were held by various churches last night and others will be conducted today. Most businesses in Pampa, excepting some service stations and food stores, are closed for the day.

Public and most private schools are closed for the day, allowing students a rest from their usual labors. The rest will end for most when they return to regular school hours on Monday.

Skies were expected to remain partly cloudy throughout the day, bringing welcome relief from the earlier snow and below freezing temperatures of this week.

FOR JFK
Small Crowd Gathers
For Memorial Service

DALLAS (UPI) — About 300 persons gathered in a cold wind at Kennedy Memorial Plaza Wednesday for 30 minutes of music and prayer and to eulogize late President John F. Kennedy one day ahead of the 10th anniversary of his assassination.

Mrs. J.B. Shaw, an elderly lady who brought a nurse with her and sat with bowed head in a folding chair at a corner of the memorial, summed up what a Catholic bishop, a rabbi, a Protestant clergyman and Mayor Wes Wise were to say later.

"I had a special regard for President Kennedy," Mrs. Shaw said shakily. "He was the finest of men—a great leader."

The Rev. Louis Saunders, director of the Greater Dallas Council of Churches, handed the wreath to the mayor. It was Saunders who conducted a funeral service for Lee Harvey Oswald, said by the Warren Commission to have been the lone assassin, on Nov. 25, 1963. Saunders suspected that a minister who had promised to conduct the funeral would back out at the last minute and stepped in.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cabinet-level energy advisers said Wednesday President Nixon is nearing a decision on a wide array of fuel-saving proposals, from electrical "brownouts" to a ban on weekend gasoline sales, as alternatives to gas rationing.

Budget chief Roy L. Ash emerged from a White House meeting with Nixon to tell reporters the President's choices, to be announced "in the relatively near future," would conform with his announcement last weekend that he hoped to avert rationing, using it only as a last resort.

Nixon Nearing Decisions On Fuel-Saving Program

Both Ash and Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton, who met reporters over breakfast, said the problem would be solved if each American saved the equivalent of two quarts of oil a day—or two gallons of gas per week for his car.

Coors Is Self-Sufficient

By C.R. BATTEN
Two companies that are large users of natural gas and other raw materials have recently sought to assure themselves of long-term energy supplies in spite of what appears to be the growing shortage of energy.

One is well on its way to success. The other has failed. The Adolph Coors Co., of Golden, Colo., owns part interest in natural gas wells in the Wattenburg field north of Denver. It is building a pipeline directly from the gas field to its brewery and to the Coors Porcelain Company.

Yet, the pipeline is considered to be only a temporary measure, to be used until other fuel sources are developed. Recognizing that coal is the most abundant fuel, the company is beginning installation of modern pollution-free coal handling and burning facilities, which are expected to furnish about half of the company's power requirements by 1975.

The company believes there is enough coal in Colorado alone to furnish its energy needs for many years. Yet a third possible source of energy is being investigated by Coors. The company is building a pilot plant to convert ordinary city trash into gas that can be used in its boilers. If the system proves to be economically feasible, Coors expects to be able to build a plant large enough to utilize all the trash in the Denver metropolitan area.

The second company was established less than ten years ago in a depressed rural area. It was financed partly by the federal government, partly by investors, with some financial support from the local residents. It manufactures wood products and uses natural gas for heating and drying during certain processes.

All wood manufacturing plants have a certain amount of residual wood such as bark, sawdust, and defective pieces that cannot be used in their final products. In the Rocky Mountain region, most of the residual material is still burned in tepee burners.

The major ambition of every wood products manufacturer that I know is to get rid of his tepee burner — it is a fire hazard, and a continual expense to operate and maintain. This particular company found that a smokeless boiler system could be built that would utilize the residual wood material and replace the natural gas used in its manufacturing processes. The cost would be at least $150,000. The plant is entirely dependent on federal timberlands for its raw material supplies. The company had been assured that plenty of timber was available to keep the plant going at its designed capacity forever.

But in recent years, because of changing political philosophies, opposition to timber harvest, the controversies over land use, the supplies of timber needed by the company have not been offered for sale.

It has less than one year's supply of standing timber under contract.

How can anyone justify a $150,000 investment when he is not assured of raw material supplies one year hence? This particular company did the natural thing. It improved its tepee burner so it would burn with less smoke and meet the state's air pollution standards.

The company is still wasting a valuable resource in a burner that is expensive to operate and maintain. It is still dependent on uncertain supplies of natural gas for much of its energy requirement. In this tale of two companies, we see two kinds of systems at work.

In the case of the wood products company, we see government in control of two essential raw materials. The timber supply is controlled by government ownership; natural gas through price regulations and other controls over the supplier.

Government has responded to political pressures, and shortages of both materials have developed that threaten the existence of the plant, and prevented investments that you would use wasted resources.

In the case of Coors, we see a company that has succeeded, at least in part, in overcoming government controls of natural gas supplies, and in developing still other sources of energy — one of which will help solve our solid waste disposal problem.

Coors has developed self-sufficiency through the market place, while at the same time performing a valuable public service.

On Saturday afternoon they returned home via Pampa and visited with Jeannie's mother and her sister who was visiting here from California.

Deepest sympathy goes out to the relatives of two former Wheeler residents, Mrs. Clyde Johnson, who passed away Saturday in Amarillo, and Mrs. Sue Dyer.

The Johnsons lived in Wheeler for a number of years when he was associated with the Cicero Smith Lumber Co.

First Thanksgiving Was Held In Texas

Most Texans may be surprised to learn that Texas, not Massachusetts, was the scene of America's first Thanksgiving. They'll be equally surprised to hear that the miniskirt was fashionable in Texas 200 years ago and that until 1913, the Governor of Texas had to leave the Executive Mansion in order to take a bath.

These are but some of the 1,001 odd, unusual and little known facts about the Lone Star State contained in a new book, "Talk Of Texas," by Jack Maguire (Shoal Creek Publishers, Inc., P.O. Box 968, Austin, Texas 78767).

Author Maguire, who has been writing a syndicated newspaper column about Texas for a dozen years, says that every story is true: "Not a single name, date or place has been changed to protect the innocent," he writes in the preface.

The book is a distillation of the best of his columns which appear each week in 22 Texas papers and as a monthly feature in Texas Parade Magazine.

"Academic types likely will call this a collection of Texas trivia," Maguire says. "I like to think of it as the kind of stuff from which real history is made — the odd, the unique, the bizarre and the humorous true stories about the people and places of a great state."

R. Henderson Shuffler, director of the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio, says in his introduction, "The story of Texas has been told and retold, but never quite like this."

The reader who glances at any page in "Talk Of Texas" will understand why.

For example, Maguire tells how the Alamo was used as a wholesale grocery and as a liquor store for 69 years before Texas finally got around to making it a shrine of liberty. He also points out that Texans celebrate their Independence Day on the wrong date — it really is March 3, not March 2.

Even the seasoned Texas traveler may be surprised that the state has a drug store that sells nothing but faith cures. For more than 50 years, it had a general merchandise store whose owner was Jesus Christ.

And it's the only state where one can still dive for pearls in an East Texas lake or drive an automobile over a portion of the old Chisholm Trail.

In "Talk Of Texas," Maguire tells how the first surgical operation in North America was performed in Texas, how a Texan built and flew an airplane more than 40 years ahead of the Wright brothers, and how another Texan beat Marconi to the invention of the wireless telegraph.

Women's liberation also got a start in Texas long ago, Maguire says. In 1860, a Texas girl was performing in the nude on a New York stage. And more than 40 years ago, every justice on the State Supreme Court was a woman.

It's true, carefully researched facts like these that have made Maguire's column popular with more than 250,000 readers for more than a decade.

Like Dr. Harry Ransom, chancellor emeritus of The University of Texas System said after reading the book,

"Jack Maguire has kept the unusual from being irrelevant and the incidental from being trivial."

Maguire, who has authored more than 400 articles from national magazines (mostly about Texas) also edited "A President's Country," a warm tribute to the Hill Country that Lyndon Johnson called home, which is soon to be rereleased by Shoal Creek Publishers, Inc.

KNIT KNACKS
Dear Judy: Have just finished working a simple stockinette cardigan to wear with everything. There were no pockets in the directions and I can't live without them. Do you have a simple method for working some plain patch pockets to add to my sweater? Thanks very much.
A.R., Portland, Ore.

Dear A. R.: Pockets are invaluable places to tuck little things away in a favorite sweater you wear all the time. Here's a quick way to whip up some patch pockets for you. Hope you have some of the same wool you worked your sweater in, but if not, your wool shop may have the same dye lot or you could use a complementary color.
Make your first pocket by setting up enough stitches to measure 4 inches wide, (or wider for bigger pockets). Rib 1 inch deep by knitting 1, purling 1, and then knit stockinette until the pocket is 4 1/2 inches deep. Bind off. Now make another the same way and sew both pockets in place. Lots of luck in your knitting.

This three-color stripper is right on target with your family budget since you're the creative artisan. Working with 2 1/4 ounces skeins of Bernat Quicksun yarn, all you'll use are 9 skeins of Color A, 13 of Color B and 18 of Color C to complete a beautiful floor covering that fits perfectly whether your furniture is period or of the present.
Your rug will measure 55 inches from point to point, but, of course, if the floor space calls for a smaller or larger rug, you can work more or less rows before finishing with the chain-stitch border.
Try your hand at decorating with this custom-crochet rug you'll be proud to say you've made yourself. To obtain easy-to-follow directions, just send 50 cents to

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI)—The organization Sheldon Freund helps run has a list of very special musicians.

The 400 men and women, all ages but mostly young, make their music in darkness.

The Louis Braille Foundation for Blind Musicians helps blind musicians who have made it to the performance level. It also aids youngsters with a foot on the first rung of the success ladder.

Freund, executive director of the Foundation, said in an interview that bookings for the blind musicians aren't all that they could be.

"Some feel that there is a large 'pity' element at work when people buy tickets to performances by blind musicians," he said. "People buy the tickets and give them to their maids."

"As a result, in the brochures we send to museums and other places booking musicians we don't make a big point about the blindness. We would rather have the musicians booked for their talent than handicap."

The Foundation came into being 20 years ago when Evelyn C. McKay decided that blind musicians needed help — both on the way up with Braille editions of musical scores and with bookings once they reached the professional scale.

Miss McKay directed the Foundation until she died last May. She had proved that help for blind musicians could be extended successfully if enough energy was put into the effort.

When she started the foundation she spoke of the vocational problems facing the blind.

"We know," she said, "that blind persons can be productive and self-sufficient in numerous fields of endeavor. However, in the field of music, although it is the art in which a blind person can participate most freely in spite of blindness, opportunities for the blind musician have not been fully developed."

Freund says the Foundation has focused on musicians in the many fields: classical, jazz, country western, folk idioms. It also has:

- auditioned and counseled artists; arranged for appropriate training; provided scholarship aid to supplement other resources; provided musical instruments and special equipment needed by the blind.

- offered professional guidance on stage deportment and grooming to make sure the artist is well-dressed and that his or her blindness is not noticeable.

Freund said the blind musicians must memorize scores done in Braille. "Actually, the person who is blind from birth does this more easily than someone who becomes blind later in life," he said.

The blind do best on solo instruments — piano, guitar. They are good as solo vocalists. Freund said they are not so much in demand as players in orchestras. They cannot see the conductor. They miss his special cues.

Sun Power

Sunlight falling on just the city of Los Angeles would supply more energy than is consumed in all the homes on earth, if man could collect and efficiently use it.

Dear Abby

Letters of thanks at this special time

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR READERS: On Thanksgiving Day we thank God for our blessings. My personal blessings are many. Among them are the many letters I receive from those who read my column.

May I share a few letters with you that have made me thankful that I am Dear Abby:

DEAR ABBY: How does a person say, "Thank you, for saving my life?" I will be grateful to you for the rest of my days for recommending Overeaters Anonymous to me.

I have been in this group for five months and have shed 58 pounds! "O. A." is a beautiful fellowship of people who are all hurting for the same reason—compulsive over-eating.

You have helped thousands of people like myself. I was told that one chapter alone received more than 20,000 letters from hurting people. I am able to wear blouses and slacks for the first time in 17 years. I am so grateful to you, Abby. You have given me new hope, happiness, and a feeling of self-worth I never knew possible. Love from all of us "O.A." members. GRACE IN L.A.

DEAR ABBY: I will forever be thankful to you for your column giving the Euthanasia Council address, [250 W. 57th St., New York] so I could send for a Living Will, demanding that I be allowed to die with dignity when my time comes.

When an animal gets old and sick, everyone says: "Aw, put the poor thing out of its misery," but human beings are kept alive in "convalescent homes." (Convalescing from what?)

It is just as natural to die as it is to live, so why deny God's will, and prolong needless suffering with transfusions, tubes, needles and drugs?

I could write about what happened to my mother. What was done to her was brutal. I even felt sorry for the poor doctors who knew all hope for recovery was gone, but who kept that poor 90-year-old alive month after month, not wanting to be accused of "murder." What nonsense!

Until euthanasia—which is not "mercy killing," but simply NOT prolonging life uselessly—is understood, I wish I were a horse with a broken leg. God love you.

DOROTHY L. IN MANCHESTER, CONN.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for telling me to write to Fredericks of Hollywood to order a false fanny. I ordered one and have never been happier. I have a fairly nice shape, but am so flat in back, nothing looked good on me. Also I am so boney, sitting for any length of time without a cushion was sheer misery. Now that I have this padded girdle, I look great and feel wonderful.

GLORIA IN GREAT FALLS, MONT.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69706, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

A New Tribute From Mansfield

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who delivered the eulogy to President John F. Kennedy in the Capitol Rotunda 10 years ago, paid tribute to the late president this week.

Titled "John Fitzgerald Kennedy, A Remembrance," Mansfield's tribute was: "What is ten years remembered: Is it shots of infamy in a Dallas street?"

A clinical report of a murder. Is it a dress dark-spotted with blood? The swollen faces of grief. Is it a rain-filled sky over Washington?

A silent throng under the Capitol's dome. Is it two children and a child's single cry?

A riderless horse. An intonation in a cathedral. The flickering of a flame. What is ten years remembered: How much rain beating on a grave-site?

How much snow falling and filtered sunlight? How many mind-flashes of a man? Of his humor and humanity. Of his sense and sensitivity. Ten years after, it is all remembered and more. An assertion of human decency. A trust of freedom.

A confidence in reason. A love of country. A kindled hope for the nation. This was John Fitzgerald Kennedy. This is John Fitzgerald Kennedy. Ten years after.

Mansfield's eulogy revisited JFK: 'The memory is still there'

By Ira Berkow (First of two related articles)

WASHINGTON, D.C. — (NEA) — Even after 10 years, there are still requests for the eulogy Sen. Mike Mansfield gave before the coffin of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy. It was given Sunday afternoon, November 24, 1963, in the echo-filled rotunda of the Capitol, with the light filtering in dustily from the high dome windows. Jacqueline Kennedy, who knew her husband's admiration for the man, asked Mansfield to give the eulogy.

"Every week we get several requests for it," Peggy DeMichael, administrative assistant to Mansfield, said recently.

The eulogy, nine short paragraphs, began: "There was a sound of laughter, in a moment, it was no more. And she took a ring from her finger and placed it in his hands."

Mansfield says he remembers staying up most of the night writing it and still takes it out and re-reads it often.

"The times have changed tremendously in 10 years," said Mansfield, in his office, "but the memory is still there."

It was mentioned that many young people have very little knowledge of President Kennedy and of the trauma the nation endured when he was assassinated.

"There is a fading with the passage of time," said Mansfield. "And new generations keep coming to crowd out the details of what happened. In a way, it is like asking Germans today about Hitler. It is the past. New events being to obscure the old."

Midway through the eulogy, Mansfield said, "A piece of each of us died at that moment. Yet, in death he gave himself to us. He gave us a good heart from which the laughter came. He gave us a profound wit, from which a great leadership emerged. He gave us a kindness and a strength fused into a human courage to seek peace without fear."

They were stirring words at the time, but they don't seem to hold up 10 years later.

"Well," said Mansfield, "I think Kennedy was on the verge of greatness. Had he had a second term, we would have seen some wonderful things from him."

"But he did lay the groundwork for the Great Society, and President Johnson carried through with some of the plans, like the civil rights legislation."

Mansfield added that President Kennedy's youth and vitality "had inspired great hope in young people throughout most of the world. And I think he began to restore confidence in politics."

"There has been a change, though, in the last decade. There is now a disillusionment, a spirit of apathy. I think the assassination of President Kennedy would be a proper place to pinpoint a changing in attitude in this country from optimism to pessimism."

"Then the Indochina war sunk us even deeper in pessimism."

(In 1962 Mansfield returned from a tour of South Vietnam and reported to President Kennedy that he felt it a mistake to send any more U.S. troops there; he believed then that it would hurt our prestige abroad and not help South Vietnam. In the book, "Johnny, We Hardly Knew Ye," President Kennedy is quoted as saying to his assistant, Ken O'Donnell, "I got angry with Mike for disagreeing with our policy so completely, and I got angry with myself because I found myself agreeing with him.")

Mansfield said that President Kennedy's death was perhaps the moment in which Americans began to take a different view of themselves. "It seemed that Providence withdrew its arm from around our shoulder," he said.

"And for the first time, we were not the world's savior, as we had thought during and after the two world wars. We had to face up to the fact that we had some terrible conditions internally. I think the assassination brought the American people up short."

Mansfield's eulogy concluded, "He gave us of his love that we, too, in turn, might give. He gave that we might give of ourselves, that we might give to one another until there would be no room, no room at all, for the bigotry, the hatred, prejudice and the arrogance which converged in that moment of horror to strike him down."

"In leaving us — these gifts, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, President of the United States, leaves with us. Will we take them, Mr. President? Will we have, now, the sense and the responsibility and the courage to take them?"

"I pray to God that we shall and under God we will."

Have we? Mansfield said, "The dollar has been devalued, we have inflation, there have been race wars, the Watergate thing, and, well, since the assassination, there has never been a period of real peace."

In rereading the eulogy today, would we have changed anything in it? "Not a word," he said, "not a comma."

Groom-Matador Contest Highlights Area Playoffs

By PAUL SIMS
MEMPHIS — Groom is large and Matador is quick and those assets should make for an interesting bi-district confrontation as I-B's Tigers and the Matadors of 2-B square off at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Memphis.

The winner will meet the winner of Friday's Lamesa-Wichita Falls Hirsch game for the regional title in two weeks. Last year Groom won the bi-district championship, although the Tigers faced a different team — Happy. The Tigers went on to down Buena Vista for the regional title, and then lost to Windhorst in the state semifinals. Groom finished the regular season with a 6-3 mark, 3-0 in district competition. Groom belted Lefors, 26-3 in both teams' final district contest, which knocked the previously unbeaten Pirates out of contention. Matador is the surprise team in Class B this season since the Matadors weren't even picked to win their district and are now the third-ranked team in the state (Associated Press). Stan Irvine's Matadors are 10-0 on the year.

Despite Groom's recently-founded winning tradition and Matador's unblemished record, the game can only be declared a tossup. Both teams are as different as night and day and that is what makes the game one of the more interesting clashes in the state Friday.

Both teams have scored well and kept opposition scoring low. Groom has outscored its nine opponents, including six in a higher class, 25-6-15-3, while Matador has won its games by an average of 27-8-4. Don Sessom's Tigers have been successful due to size in all areas. Two offensive tackles,

Jerry Pearce and Wesley Miller, are 235 and 250 pounds, respectively, and the line averages 201 from tackle to tackle. The defensive five-man line averages 195 pounds. Even Groom's backfield is large, although Stan Brittain, the smallest starter on the team, weighs 140. Fullback

Lynn Wilkinson is 180 and one of the best block-run backs in the area. Quarterback Randy Sustaire is 160 and halfback Tim Brittain is 165. Matador, on the other hand, is small, averaging 163 from offensive tackle to tackle and 166 on the defensive line. Both lines are anchored by all-state prospect Thomas Tilson, a 210-pounder.

Groom's fullback, Wilkinson, will be one of the best running backs. Matador will have seen this season. Wilkinson has carried 160 times for 802 yards for a five-yard average.

Harvesters In Tourney

Pampa's undefeated Harvesters can take it easy for the second straight day today, however, Friday its back on the road as Pampa travels to Midland to participate in the Tall City Invitational Basketball Tournament, a two-day affair which begins at 4 p.m. Friday for the Harvesters.

Pampa takes on Ft. Worth Poly in the opening game. Other teams involved are Midland High and Midland Lee, Amarillo Palo Duro, Lubbock Monterey, San Antonio Jefferson and Ft. Worth Arlington Heights.

Pampa is 2-0 for the season, knocking off Hereford, 68-47, and Odessa Ector, 95-74 Tuesday. In the latter contest, Ricky Beesley scored 22 points to lead the Harvesters, who never trailed in the game.

Guard Ray Powell scored 21 for Pampa and was followed by Keith Samples, 16; Billy Wilbon, 15, and Randy Warner, 11. Howie Lewis came in off the bench and scored seven on eight free throw attempts.

Wilbon pulled down 13 rebounds as Pampa outrebounded the Eagles, 30-23.

Rangers Drop Cage Opener To AHS, 60-30

AMARILLO — Perryton, playing without several individuals still participating in football, lost to Amarillo High, 60-30, Tuesday night in the Rangers' season basketball opener in the Sandies gym.

The Sandies snapped a 16-game losing skid in downing Roy Pennington's Rangers, who host Pampa in their next game, Nov. 30.

Doug Greenway led the Rangers' sluggish scoring attack with nine points, and Lester Garner added six. David Cook fired in 18 to pace the Sandies.

Perryton's B-team lost to Amarillo, 62-32. David Allen scored eight points to lead the Rangers, while Amarillo's David Fitzpatrick scored 10.

"I was pretty well pleased with the group that played on varsity, but I thought we would compete better on the B-team. Jim Harman and Greenway played well for us (varsity). Harman scored three points in the losing cause.

Perryton, Lobos Meet In AAA Playoff Action

LUBBOCK — Perryton will try to stop one of the most talented tailbacks in the state, AAA or otherwise, as the Rangers travel to neutral Rowley Field in Lubbock to take on the Monahans Lobos at 2 p.m. Friday.

2-AAA Monahans features its district's leading rusher in 190-pound junior Wayne Tetties, who has rushed for 1,434 yards and 18 touchdowns on 249 carries. Tetties, a 1000-yard gainer last year as a sophomore, has scored 142 points this year, 20 touchdowns, 16 conversions and two field goals. One of his field goals is a district record — 45 yards.

The winner of this bi-district clash will face the winner of the Lamesa-Wichita Falls Hirsch game, also being played Friday, for the regional championship.

Perryton, coached by Don Beck, is 7-3 on the year and 1-AAA champ, while Monahans has an 8-2 mark. The Lobos' only two losses have been to Sweetwater, 14-13, and Ft. Stockton, 14-12 in district play.

Monahans will try to run against the 1-AAA Rangers since the Lobos do not have a proven passing game. Quarterback Marty James has passed fewer than any quarterback in 2-AAA, however, the Lobos are averaging 302 total yards each outing.

Fullback Randy Collins has 541 rushing yards on 112 carries for a 4.8 average and is an outstanding blocker.

Right tackle on both offense and defense, Danny Holcomb (23), anchors both lines.

Absence Related To Firing?

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Billy Tohill, the disposed head football coach at Texas Christian University, now believes his absence from a meeting of former lettermen before last year's homecoming game might have started the chain of events leading to his dismissal.

"I was with the team that night," Tohill said Tuesday. "We went to a movie and I put them to bed and I didn't even know I was supposed to be at the meeting."

Tohill said his missing the dinner was not particularly serious but indicated he felt ill feelings developed from it.

In announcing Tohill's firing Monday, TCU Chancellor

James M. Moudy intimated Tohill was not on the best of terms with the school's alumni.

"At TCU, the head coach must go beyond recruiting and coaching," Moudy said. "He has to have a close relationship with the public, ex-lettermen and alumni."

Tohill said outside of missing that one meeting, he felt his relations with the TCU's backers were good.

"That (statement) kind of surprised me," Tohill said. "I thought I had a good relationship with the alumni."

Cats, Wolves To Vie Friday On PHS Field

Pampa's Harvester Stadium has been named the site of the bi-district playoff game between 1-AA Dalhart and 2-AA Childress, which will be played at 7:30 p.m. Friday. Dalhart, 7-2-1 on the year, is in the playoffs for the first time since 1969. The Wolves, under head coach Doc Rowell, have outscored their opponents, 235-106 this season.

Dalhart was led by quarterback Jack Mullin, who was hurt three weeks ago and is only a possible starter for the Childress game. If he does not play, Wingback Ted Higgins has been a consistent yardage gainer for the Wolves this year.

Childress, 8-2, under Charlie Johnston, have a standout linebacker — fullback in Tim Lewellen, who was first-team all-state at linebacker last year as a junior.

The Bobcats have outscored their 10 opponents, 191-101. Another defensive standout is Marty Martin, a 180-pound senior.

Tickets can be bought at the gate for $2.50 for adults and $1.00 for students.

A HOT HAND — Rick Beesley (34) has his opponent, James Guyton (41), behind him, and the Pampa forward takes a shot in the Harvesters' 95-74 win over Odessa Ector Tuesday night in Harvester Fieldhouse. Randy Warner (52) awaits a possible pass. Beesley, Warner and the rest of the Harvesters will compete in the Tall City Invitational Tournament Friday and Saturday in Midland, a select eight-team tourney. (Photo by Terry Hanna)

New Mexico Racing Group Canceling Future Race Dates

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — The State Racing Commission, claiming it had been ignored in its request for information on the operation of Santa Fe Downs, has canceled future racing dates for the track.

The commissioners voted unanimously Tuesday to suspend the racing dates pending full disclosures on the ownership and operations of the racetrack. "We have been totally ignored," Commission Chairman Drew Cloud said.

Art Johnson, general manager of Santa Fe Downs, said they would comply with any requests for information issued by the commission. Cloud said the commission would send a letter to the track describing the disclosure demands.

The commissioners said they learned of a recent change in ownership and board of directors from newspaper articles. The "Life expectancy" of a U.S. paper dollar is 18 months.

Owen One Reason For Success Of Surprising North Texas State

By DALE DICKEN
Special Correspondent
DENTON — Bobby Owen, a 1972 graduate of Pampa High School, is one of the reasons for the surprising success of the North Texas State University football team. Owen, a defensive back, is a key member of the North Texas defensive unit which is among the best in the Missouri Valley Conference.

The Eagles, under the leadership of new head coach Hayden Fry, are currently only one game behind Tulsa for the Missouri Valley Conference lead. Fry was the head coach at SMU for 10 years until he was fired after a fairly successful (7-4) season last year.

In contrast, the 1971 record of one win and 10 losses under now-departed head coach Rod Rust, was one of the worst in North Texas history. "Fry is a great coach, he knows just what he wants to accomplish and he's doing it," Owen said. "Everything is being changed for the better."

Owen was a wide receiver, defensive back and team captain at Pampa High School in 1971, where he also won second team all-district honors. He ran the anchor leg (48.3) of the mile relay on the Pampa track team that went to the 1972 state meet.

"I had more than 10 scholarship offers for track," Owen said. "But Owen wanted to play football and he received scholarship offers from North Texas, West Texas State, TCU and Texas Tech. "I chose North Texas because of its size and I liked the campus," Owen said.

Owen was recruited as a wide receiver by Rust, but "I've never played a down as a wide receiver since coming to North Texas," Owen said. But he isn't complaining, since he started the last 10 games of the 1971 season for the Eagles. Owen was the first freshman to letter in football at North Texas since World War II. As a freshman, Owen intercepted two passes, recovered five fumbles and made 53 tackles.

This year Owen has intercepted one pass and recovered two fumbles for the Eagles, who finished their MVC schedule at 5-1. "Bobby battles his way into a starting position with all-out effort and he improves with each game," Fry said. Fry also calls Owen intelligent and tough.

Defensive backfield coach Bill Brasher said, "Bobby has been a real surprise to us, he was a good player as a freshman and even better as a sophomore."

When asked about the differences between college and high school football, Owen answered, "The players in college are bigger and better plus there is much more competition." Long Beach State, which he played earlier this year, was the biggest team he's ever seen," Owen said.

Owen feels the main difference between last year's team and this year's team is unity. "Last year we had a negative attitude and lacked unity as a team," Owen said. "I liked Coach Rust as a man but he just couldn't seem to pull the team together," Owen said.

Owen feels that Fry has put together a great coaching staff and it is his goal to make North Texas a major football power. "Coach Fry told us we only have one way to go and that is up," Owen said.

Owen feels Fry has changed the whole attitude of the team members and they are hoping for a tie with Tulsa for the Missouri Valley Conference championship (Tulsa must lose to Wichita State Saturday). "Coach Fry takes a personal interest in his players both on and off the field," Owen said.

Bobby feels that football helps a person to understand his fellow man better. "Life is like a football game, one must defeat his opponents for success," Owen said.

Owen, with a major in biology and a minor in chemistry, will graduate in the spring of 1976. He wants to be a physical therapist and someday hopes to have his own clinic. He is engaged to Ronda Bryant, a North Texas freshman from Seminole, and they plan to marry in June.

"I would like to go back to West Texas after I graduate because I like the wide-open spaces," Owen said. "Once a West Texan, always a West Texan."

BOBBY OWEN

A&M-Texas Play Today

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Emory Bellard knows what the University of Texas is like, of course, since he spent a few Saturdays there, so he sees no reason to make a big thing about how good a football team he thinks the Longhorns are.

"They are just a heck of a team," Bellard said. "That's the best way I know how to appraise them."

That "heck of a football team" shows up here today for its traditional Thanksgiving meeting with Texas A&M and a little bit of history will be riding on the outcome.

Not only would the Longhorns take total possession of the Southwest Conference championship with a win over the Aggies but Texas Coach Darrell Royal would also move within one victory of becoming the winningest coach in league history.

Royal is currently one win short of the 144 victories established by former Rice Coach Jess Neely. It took Neely 27 years to win those 144 games and Royal has been coaching at Texas just short of 17 seasons.

The 11th-ranked Longhorns, who already have a Cotton Bowl berth tucked away, are the heavy favorites even though starting quarterback Marty Akins has been bothered by a sprained ankle.

"We'll have to play against the things they do best," Bellard said. "But you can't say if you stop one man you'll win. They have a balanced offense and do a lot of things well. We'll have to contend with their total offense."

That one man Bellard was talking about is Roosevelt Leaks, who last week broke the single-season conference rushing record and has 1,328 yards on 213 carries.

But the Longhorns had problems testing the center of A&M's line last year in a game that was exciting for a while.

"And is it true that the Pilgrims adopted Communism when they first settled in America?"

THANKSGIVING FACTS

Canada celebrates Thanksgiving Day on Monday in the month of October.
Thursday was decreed by Abraham Lincoln in 1864 to be the proper November date for the United States.
Our Thanksgiving falls on the 4th Thursday in November.
Since Thursday celebrating does not overlap with the Jewish Sabbath, this was a favorable weekday for such a choice.
Gov. Bradford, in 1621, decreed a day for thanksgiving to God when the first corn crop was harvested by the Pilgrims.
Almost half the Pilgrim population had died during the preceding winter when disease, severe cold and near starvation were constant threats.
So the fall harvest of 1621 marked a day of prayer, hymn singing and joyful feasting.
More than 80 friendly Indians came as guests.
But it was a potluck affair, for those Indians also contributed wild turkeys and venison for the main meat course of the prolonged dinner.
Tables were set outdoors so both the pilgrims and Indians could dine together as one big family.
Three days elapsed before that first Thanksgiving ended and the Indians returned to the forest.
But this congenial spirit among the Pilgrims themselves didn't last long. Why?
Because there was no private ownership of land and all the crops were placed in a communal granary.

This was the first communist "cell" in New England!
But it proved a rank failure!
For the young, unmarried men began to grumble.
"We work as hard or even harder than the older married

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Thursday, Nov. 22, the 326th day of 1973 with 39 to follow. This is Thanksgiving Day.
The moon is approaching its new phase.
The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn.
The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.
Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius.
French statesman and military leader Charles de Gaulle was born Nov. 22, 1890.
On this day in history:
In 1950, a wreck on a Long Island Rail Road train as it pulled out of a tunnel from New York City killed 79 persons.
In 1960, the U.S. Navy launched the "Ethan Allen," at that time the most powerful nuclear submarine in the world.
In 1963, President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas by Lee Harvey Oswald.
Vice President Lyndon Johnson was sworn in as chief executive a short time later.
In 1972, a 22-year ban on American travel to communist China was lifted by President Richard Nixon.

A thought for the day: Union Civil War Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman said, "I am tired and sick of war. Its glory is all moonshine. It is those who neither fired a shot nor heard the shrieks and groans of the wounded who cry aloud for blood, more vengeance, more desolation. War is hell."

Little Rhody

Rhode Island celebrates Independence Day twice a year—on May 4 and July 4. The citizens of the smallest state in the Union were the first to declare their independence of Great Britain—on May 4, 1776.

men," they complained.
"Yet we can take only one portion of food while a married man with 3 children gets 5 portions."
"That is obviously unfair!" So what happened?
The unmarried began to stall around and grow lazy in their farming chores.
Gov. Bradford then shifted from communism to our superb capitalist system.
And the next year's crop was a bumper harvest. Why?
Because he furnished each man his own private little farm!
And the owner was then entitled to everything he could grow thereon!
This gave incentive to everybody, which launched bumper yields, a higher standard of living and our present superb industrial and farming leadership of the entire world!
Gov. Bradford thus changed the entire future economic climate of the U.S.A. by pioneering this "free enterprise" system!
We are still envied by all other nations!
So be doubly thankful at Thanksgiving Day, not just for turkey and other gastric delicacies, but for our dynamic Capitalism vs. Russian, Communism and British Socialism!

NOT WORRIED — Floyd Wallace, holding up a small beaker of home brew gasoline, is probably the last man worried about the energy crisis. In the tank behind him, Wallace cooks some wood, leaves, brush, grass and a little garbage: then somehow the distillate made from the cooking garbage turns into gasoline. "Honest," says Wallace, "it really works."

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST/
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A question much in the minds of Americans today is how far President Nixon will go in his current campaign to convince the public he had no part in the Watergate scandals.

The White House has indicated Nixon's series of clear-the-air meetings with members of Congress will be followed by other steps to strengthen his credibility.

At the moment, however, the next move is anybody's guess.

One guess is that Nixon will make a dramatic surprise appearance before the Senate Watergate committee.
At his request, committee members will accompany him to a farm in nearby Maryland. There he will produce a hollowed out pumpkin containing the two Watergate tapes previously reported as nonexistent.

Another Guess

Another guess is that Nixon will take his bid for renewed faith in his stewardship directly to the people. Perhaps in this way.

"Hello."
"Hello Mr. Eiray Limphet please."

"Speaking."

"This is the White House calling. Please hold on for a moment, sir. The President is on the line."

"Mr. Limphet? Dick Nixon here. How are you?"

"I'm fine, Mr. President. But surely you didn't call just to inquire about my health. Is there something I can do for you?"

"No. I was just calling to see if there were any questions you might like to ask me about the Watergate case."

"That's very nice of you, sir. But why me?"

Down to the L's

"I'm going through the phone book alphabetically. Right now I'm down to the L's."

"I see. But how come you picked the Farthing's Gap directory?"

"I'm doing the cities according to their standing in the 1970 census. At the moment I'm in the 1,000 to 1,500 population class."

"I appreciate your giving me this opportunity, Mr. President, but I don't have any questions in mind at this time. Frankly, sir, that all happened so long ago I've gotten kind of hazy about the details."

"I can understand that, Mr. Limphet. A lot of other things have happened in the past four years, but I'm determined to clear-up the Watergate mess before I leave office."

"Is that why you are calling people at 2 o'clock in the morning?"

"Yes. The new president will be inaugurated at noon tomorrow and I've still have five more towns to cover."

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

Public health has many heroes — many of them unsung — and at or near the top of the honor roll are a group of professionals known as epidemiologists.

To the layman, says the State Health Department, an epidemiologist can best be described as a disease detective. Major concerns of epidemiology are discovery of factors essential to or contributing to disease occurrence and the development of methods for disease prevention.

As a discipline, epidemiology evolved in relation to the study of acute infectious diseases. Historically, epidemiology was born in relation to the study of the great epidemic diseases such as cholera, plague, smallpox, yellow fever and typhus.

Until the 20th century, these epidemic diseases were the most important threats to human life and health. Methods developed over the years in studying disease in epidemics are just as applicable to the study of all important infectious disease whether epidemic or not. The same principles are used today in outbreaks of diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles, infant diarrhea, syphilis or tuberculosis.

In the State Health Department, the epidemiologist may be a public health physician, a nurse, a sanitarian or other health professional.

A Departmental seminar on "Principles of Epidemiology" will be presented in San Antonio Nov. 27. Another will be held in Houston in March to further the education of health professionals and others.

In discovering answers to the causes and prevention of disease, epidemiology depends heavily on knowledge and skills drawn as needed from many other sciences. Arriving at answers to an epidemiological puzzle may involve clinical medicine, microbiology, pathology, zoology, demography, anthropology, sociology and statistics. Most often, it becomes a team effort.

While epidemiology at the outset was concerned primarily with the epidemics of killing diseases, it has been expanded into non-infectious diseases. The work of epidemiologists in Texas may focus on any upsurge of infectious disease or life-threatening condition.

The State Health Department and local health departments have had a hand in a variety of investigations which included: — Food poisonings affecting the majority of students in an Austin elementary school.

— Diphtheria outbreaks in Austin, San Antonio and Elgin; — Carbon monoxide poisoning in Fort Worth.

— Typhoid in an East Texas farm atmosphere.

— Venereal disease throughout the state.

— Unhealthy working conditions in industrial plants.

— The spread of Venezuelan Equine Encephalomyelitis from Central America.

A health condition among members of one family in a Baytown trailer park during the summer of 1971 produced some unusual results.

The first illness occurred in an 18-month-old child on July 4. Subsequent cases occurred between Aug. 12 and Aug. 15 in children between the ages of four and 15. They had similar symptoms, and leptospirosis was discovered as the cause.

Leptospirosis is an acute infectious disease that is naturally transmitted between animals and man by either direct or indirect contact with contaminated animals. Leptospirosis can mimic a wide variety of human diseases including aseptic meningitis, infectious hepatitis, fevers of unknown origin, influenza and poliomyelitis.

The first clinical impression of the 18-month-old child's case in Baytown was infectious hepatitis.

In the Baytown outbreak, the disease was traced to the family's pet dogs, which also were infected. The infected children and the dogs played in pools of water caused by heavy rains. Infection apparently stemmed from water contaminated by the dogs' urine.

Prior to this investigation, no cases of leptospirosis in children under 10 years of age had ever been reported in Texas, and only 18 per cent of reported cases were in individuals 19 years of age and under. National evidence suggests that reported cases in children are becoming more common.

In this country since 1939, 13 common-source outbreaks have been reported. They have been attributed previously to swimming in ponds or slow-moving creeks contaminated by urine from infected animals. In contrast, the Baytown outbreak was not related to swimming and underlines the changing age distribution of reported cases.

As noted in their wide range of activities, says the State Health Department, epidemiologists are constantly at work to pinpoint the sources of disease and eliminate them to provide better public health for all Texans.

Gov. Briscoe Releases Land Use Research

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Gov. Dolph Briscoe has released a controversial land use study, but disclaimed its recommendations and suggested the document be used as a starting point for further discussions on problems the state faces in balancing limited resources with increasing demands for land, water and energy.

John Muir, a college dropout doing research on the subject, filed suit against Briscoe last week seeking to force the governor to release the report.

The eight volume study was commissioned under former Gov. Preston Smith, but Briscoe held up release of the report for the past eight months.

Among other things, the report says Texas needs to set up a state agency for land management to set standards and regulate areas and types of development of critical state concern.

It also calls for giving county governments full zoning subdivision powers in unincorporated areas "to eliminate the creation of incentives for substandard development" in such locations.

Other recommendations include:

— Steps to balance the population and irrigated acreage of West Texas against the annual ability to recharge aquifers that supply water to the region.

— Similar limits on urban and agricultural development in other areas to prevent overextraction of groundwater resources and pollution of water supplies essential to support existing populations.

— Policies to limit incompatible real estate development in flood plains.

— Steps to insure the location of new power plants is consistent with desired population concentrations and to prevent obstruction of the construction of such facilities by individual localities.

— Realignment of institutional arrangements among various levels of government to make decisions that now require voluntary agreement of many parties.

Briscoe said "the report is not intended to be a statement of policy, nor are any proposals contained in the study intended to reflect advocacy of any specific solutions to problems associated with land use."

Heartaches Bothering Patrolman's Widow, Children

DALLAS (UPI)—The years since patrolman J. D. Tippit was killed trying to question Lee Harvey Oswald on a Dallas street about the assassination of President John F. Kennedy have brought more than a normal share of heartaches to Tippit's widow.

In the decade since her husband's death, Mrs. Tippit—now Mrs. Harry Dean Thomas—has seen reporters twice. Both

All-Out Oil Production Gets Okay

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—The Texas Railroad Commission has authorized another month of all-out Texas oil production in December. Exxon Corp., meanwhile, announced it is increasing its demand for Texas crude to replace diminishing imports from the Middle East.

Railroad Commission Chairman Jim C. Langdon, speaking at the monthly oil allowable hearing, said the state's crude oil reserve stock stands "dangerously" low at 87.1 million barrels, 14.4 million barrels below the level of a year ago.

Langdon called on the federal government to speed up projects such as the Alaska oil pipeline and the gasification of coal to alleviate the drain on Texas' oil reserves.

"About the only thing the federal government is doing is dealing with the shortages, without any long range planning," Langdon said. "If the United States is to remain strong, all the projects must be initiated immediately."

Frank Sprow, spokesman for Exxon Corp., announced that the giant oil company had increased its demand for Texas crude by 170,000 barrels daily over its 627,000 barrel per day nomination for November.

Sprow said Exxon's additional demand, largest of nearly 80 nominations submitted in the monthly hearings, was due to cutbacks in imports from the Mid East.

The commission set the December allowable at 100 per cent, except on the Kelly-Snyder and East Texas fields where production will continue at 86 per cent, on the Tom O'Connor field at 70 per cent, and on the Big Wells, San Miguel, Lower East, Fort Trinidad, Dexter, Blen Rose and Buda fields at 80 per cent.

The 100 per cent allowable has been in effect statewide since April, 1972.

Field nominations for purchase of Texas crude totaled 3,451,215 barrels daily for December, Langdon said, and additional demand totaled 574,484 barrels daily. The total demand of 4,025,699 barrels daily is an increase of 166,680 barrels daily over November's nominations.

Nominations by major purchasers included Amoco 320,000 barrels daily, Atlantic Richfield 170,000, Chevron 80,600, Cities Service 118,000, Continental 38,000, Crown Central 45,600, Diamond Shamrock 36,000, Exxon Corp. 797,000, Gulf 194,500, Mobil 345,000, Phillips 115,000, Shell 330,300, Sun 193,000, Texaco 223,000 and Union of California 99,000.

times were shortly after the killing of her husband on Nov. 22, 1963, when she was 35. Since then, she has flatly refused to talk to reporters. Her husband, a police lieutenant, helps maintain her privacy.

Thousands of sympathetic Americans sent her and her three children a total of $647,579 — which Congress declared tax free — in the weeks after the assassination.

Scholarships Offered Alumni of Texas A&M University offered scholarships to her two sons, Charles Allen, Nov. 23, and Curtis Glenn, 15. The eldest Tippit child is Brenda Kay, now 25.

Charles Tessmer, a prominent Dallas lawyer who has represented the family, said Mrs. Thomas may have considerably more money than when she started, considering the high interest rates of recent years.

Tessmer said the former Mrs.

Tippit emphasized that under a court order she has no control over the principal, which was divided between her and the three children. The children have no control over their part of the principal, either.

Monthly Allowance Mrs. Thomas receives a monthly living allowance from a bank that handles the trust funds. It is completely within the bank's discretion as to how the money is invested.

Brenda has received a "small portion" of the principal. When Charles Allen is 25, he will get a small portion, as will Curtis Glenn, when he reaches that age.

Tessmer said the monthly allowance Mrs. Thomas receives is not large.

Mrs. Thomas is a small woman, 5 feet, 3 or 4 inches tall. Her hair is slightly gray. She dresses conservatively. She has no children by her second husband.

"She looks like a woman at peace with herself," Tessmer said. "She has a strong religious background. She is getting along fine and frequently sees her two grandchildren (of whom Charles Allen is the father). Money hasn't changed her — not at all."

Held Up Well She apparently has held up well under troubles that have beset her since her husband was killed. Several years after she and Thomas were married, Thomas almost died of a ballooning blood vessel in his brain. An operation saved him.

In December, 1963, Mrs. Thomas was slightly injured in an automobile collision while on her way to Clarksville, Tex., with her children to visit her late husband's family, the Edgar Tippits. She suffered a cut and head bruise. The three children escaped injury.

One reason the former Mrs. Tippit in recent years has been reluctant to see reporters may be because of an incident involving her older son.

In 1969, Charles Allen was accused by a 31-year-old woman of trying to rape her at a New Year's party. A jury acquitted him of the rape charge but convicted him of aggravated assault and fined him $2,000 and put him on probation two years.

Married at Time Charles Allen was married at the time. He was subsequently divorced and his ex-wife accused him of assault.

According to her story, Charles Allen came to visit his children and found their mother in a car, talking with a man; while a babysitter sat with the children and entertained her boyfriend.

The ex-wife claimed that Tippit smashed the windshield of the car with his fist and hit her. The assault charge was dropped. Tessmer, who defended Charles Allen in both cases, doubts that he was spoiled by the money showered on the family by the American people. In the first place, Tessmer noted Charles Allen will not get a share of the money until he is 25.

"So I don't think money hurt him that way," Tessmer said. "But I think it was the reason for the rape charge. She (complainant) admitted she intended to file a million dollar damage suit. So having the trust fund did make trouble for that boy."

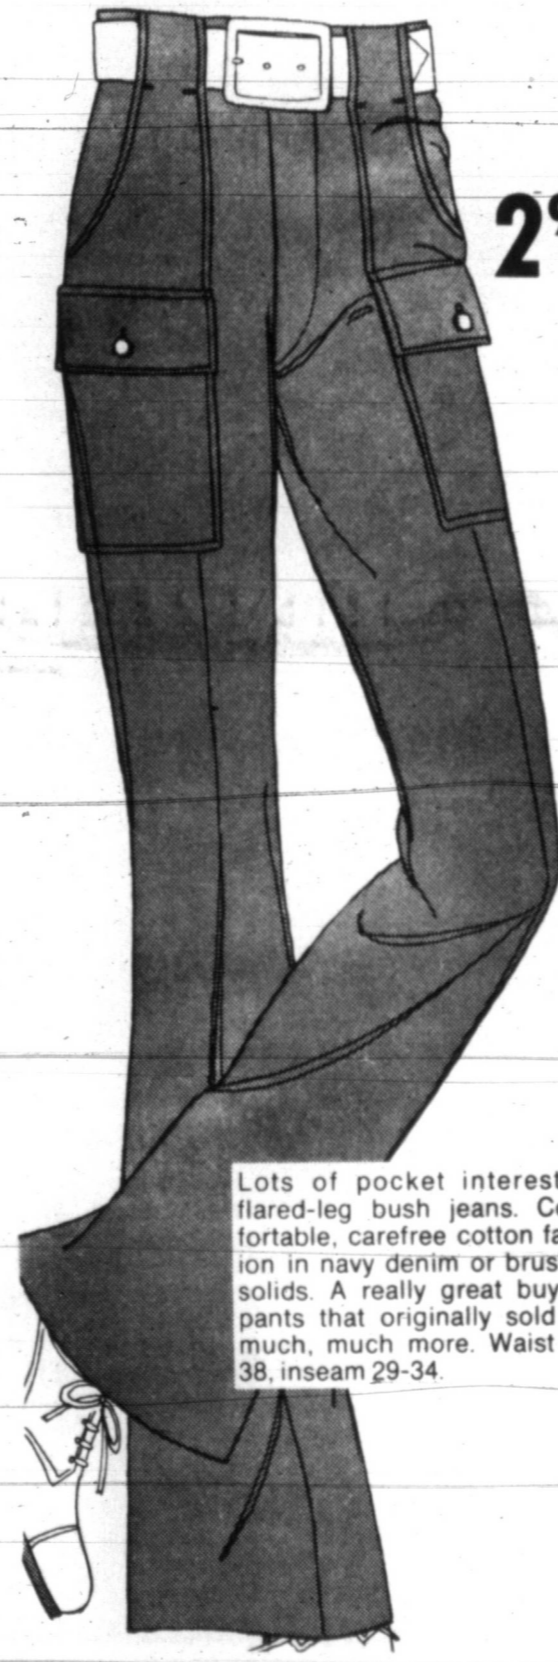

"They were at a party. She let him in (to her apartment) to get an aspirin. He grabbed her. There was no actual testimony of any intercourse. The woman was a divorcee. Her husband had custody of the children. Her ex-husband was a witness for the defense."

"In the other case, the boy hit his ex-wife because of some of the things she said to him. He was charged with assault and, I believe, paid damages for the windshield."

Choose the right tape for the job

By Mr. Fix

Nothing comes in handier for mending jobs around the home than tape, provided it's the right kind of tape. Fortunately most of the pressure sensitive tapes are pretty versatile but having the right kind for the job at hand makes it easier.

Most homes already have some cellophane tape around. Buried in some drawer may be a roll of friction tape, or the newer black plastic electrical tape. And if you have painted recently you may have some odds and ends of masking tape.

With these you have the kinds of tape you will most often need.

Of these tapes masking tape is probably the most useful so plan to keep a roll handy even when there is no painting planned.

Masking tape consists of a strong crepe paper which makes it stretch and tear easily. The color is tan and the tape is reasonably strong. It is most commonly used for painting, marking and covering areas that are to be left unpainted. After painting you remove the tape and leave a clean, sharp line.

The virtue of masking tape is that it pulls off easily which makes it useful when objects are to be held temporarily. Use masking tape in place of a clamp when you must hold small pieces together after gluing. Before you move furniture tape drawers shut. It will not mar the finish providing you don't leave it in place too long — like a couple of months.

Hold patterns in place with it. Fasten several pieces of wood together that you are going to cut at one time. A strip of it on plywood where you intend to saw will prevent splintering.

Seal the backs of picture frames with it to keep out dust and wrap it around rough wooden handles.

Freezer tape is similar but is designed to remain tight at low temperatures.

Probably the most common tape is cellophane tape. Use it for mending paper, for sealing packages, closing. It's clear and a newer type that looks frosty on the roll is almost invisible when applied which makes it ideal for mending torn book pages. In colors it's great for fancy packages.

There are plastic tapes that are stronger than the cellophane tape. Use these for mending shower curtains, plastic table cloths and similar items.

Mending is simple when cloth tapes are used to bind the frayed edges of fabrics, rugs, window shades and book bindings. Cover old tapes on Venetian blinds with fresh cloth adhesive tapes.

Black plastic electrical tape is used in place of both friction and rubber tape together. It can be used to insulate electrical splices and to cover frayed insulation. Use it for emergency repairs on a leaking garden hose.

Tapes with adhesive on both sides are available in either masking tape or cellophane tape. Use these in place of glue for temporary fastening, or use where glue might be harmful to a surface or where you may want to unstick the object — snapshots in albums, shell paper, etc. It pulls off easily, yet holds where needed.

ANIMAL LOVE — Call it love at first sight or whatever you want, but continued affection like this may help keep the Indian rhinoceros population from disappearing. Raja, a 1-year-old rhino, was rescued from poachers in India and then later sent to Gladys Porter Zoo in Brownsville, where officials hope he and Rhonda will, in time, help increase the species population.

New Medal honors Gen. MacArthur

Paul Calle's commemorative medal, honoring Gen. Douglas MacArthur, is probably the most popular of all medals commemorating military heroes. The medal measures 64 millimeters (2 1/2 inches) and is struck in very high relief.

Calle's designs for the U.S. postage stamp commemorating MacArthur were selected as the most outstanding stamp designs of the last decade, and this medal is a deeply sculptured interpretation of Calle's work by Joseph Di Lorenzo, master medalist and member of the National Sculpture Society. It is also one of Di Lorenzo's finest recreations.

MONEY CLIPS by Mort Reed

Minted at Medallic Art Company, the Douglas MacArthur medal was struck in a bronze edition with traditional patina, and in a (.999 fine) silver edition, highlighted as to purity of silver and serially numbered from 1 to 5000. Each medal is accompanied by a Certificate of Registration and display case.

Bronze copies sell for $12.95 and silver copies for $50. This price was fixed prior to the silver market increase and, according to a company spokesman, it will not be affected by future increases.

Interested readers may write International Numismatic Agency, 127 East 59th Street, New York, N.Y. 10022.

SILVER EISENHOWER DOLLARS

Mrs. Mary Brooks, Director of the Mint, has just announced the Mint will no longer accept orders for 1973 uncirculated 40 per cent Eisenhower Silver dollars after October 15th, 1973. The Mint began accepting orders for these coins on August 1, 1973 and to date it has received orders for more than 1,600,000 coins.

Mrs. Brooks also asked that orders for Mint list medals be directed to Bureau of the Mint, 55 Mint Street, San Francisco, Calif. 94175, instead of to the Numismatic Service Division of the U.S. Mint in Philadelphia. This, according to Mrs. Brooks, establishes one mailing address for all orders for special coins and medals.

U. S. BICENTENNIAL COINAGE

Congress is working on legislation providing for coins of a special bicentennial design to be minted for general circulation after July 4, 1975. The Washington quarter, Kennedy half-dollar and Eisenhower dollar will be the only coins affected by this legislation.

Race and IQ: a furor

The man who labeled blacks 'inferior'

(First of Two Parts.)
By MURRAY OLDERMAN

ORINDA, Calif. — (NEA) — The ranch house on Canyon View Drive is tucked away in a pastoral setting where cows once grazed in the east hills of Orinda, beyond the temple of learning and teaching that is Berkeley.

Seven days a week Arthur Jensen retreats into a study, away from the canyon view, and ponders and writes about the relationship of genetics and intelligence quotient, an issue which has made him one of the most controversial figures in American academe.

Four years ago, he published his 123-page paper in the Harvard Educational Review which raised the question of Negro inferiority on an intellectual level, under the rather innocuous title, "How Much Can We Boost IQ and Scholastic Achievement?"

My view, he says now, "is that difference between blacks and whites are real and not caused by cultural bias in the IQ tests and educational inequalities. They involve something more profound."

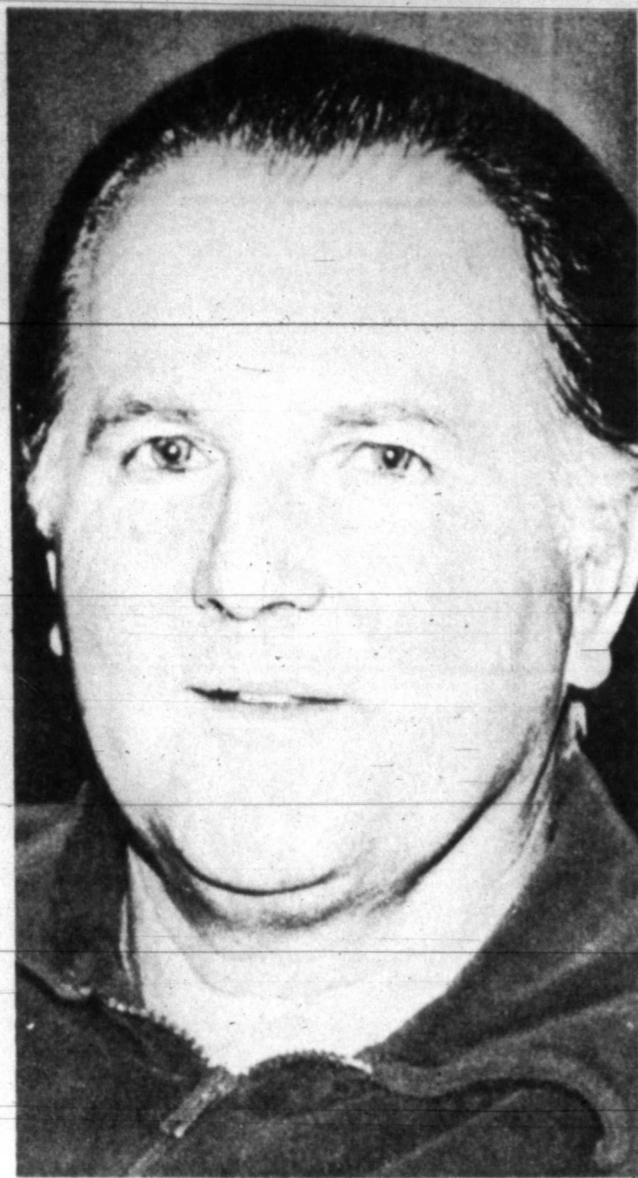

Meaning genetic difference. Which is why all hell has broken loose in his personal life these last four years.

Jensen is now finishing his second sabbatical from the University of California, where he has been a faculty member for 15 years.

"I've got to go back to the university in the fall," he says, aware of his "bad guy" image on campus, where he has had to walk between class buildings in the company of plainclothesmen from the police department.

There is almost a paranoid plait to his claim that most of his harassment is SDS-inspired. Students for a Democratic Society flourished during campus unrest a few years ago but has been quiet recently.

"I gave a talk at a convention in Chicago," he recalls,

There have been police stationed outside my classroom.

"My wife is more apprehensive about this than I am, though. It's the nuts you have to worry about. You read about the mail bombs to Israeli diplomats. Whenever I get a peculiar package, I open it with caution.

"When I was to address a group in a Berkeley synagogue, there were bomb threats. I parked my car right out front. When I came out, all four tires were slashed. Brand new Michelins. And they broke the radio aerial. But my insurance took care of that."

The storm center of these incidents is a round-faced, slightly out-of-shape professor of educational psychology with a ruddy face and straight back dark hair that's getting gray at the temples. He is 49 years old. He doesn't smoke, never has, and likes an occasional book beer.

His only physical exercise is working out on a treadmill. "I hate it," he says, "but it gives me the most exercise in the shortest period of time. I also jog down the hill to the mail box."

Even now, during his sabbatical, he picks up a completely laden cart of letters every day at his campus office. The thesis which he proposed, that blacks are intellectually inferior to whites, stirs continuing passion — mainly because it doesn't come from a hare-brained bigot (although he has been so accused) and because of its implications that current federal programs to raise the educational level of black children are misdirected.

Dr. Arthur Jensen is an accredited educational psychologist who understands the radical nature of his work but can't understand the vituperative reaction to what he considers scholarly research.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Chase Manhattan Bank said there is solid ground for predicting that long-term rates in the bond market will decline next year below current levels.

"The major source of concern over long-term interest rates is the dismal inflation outlook, now worsened further by a sharp rise in petroleum costs," the bank's Municipal Bond Division said in its newsletter on state and municipal bonds.

When interest rates begin to decline as expected next year, prospects for investing in the stock market will improve, the Alexander Hamilton Institute said in its weekly newsletter.

"The stock market ... has already discounted the inevitable slowdown" in business next year, the newsletter said. "Bargain prices, which have been commonplace for most of 1973, will soon be accompanied by a resuscitation of investor confidence," it said.

The nation's economy at present is essentially the same as it was last summer as far as the outlook for investment is concerned, Paine Webber Jackson & Curtis said in a newsletter.

"The key thing for investors to do now is not to panic—not to throw away well bought common stocks," the newsletter said. "Fundamentally, the economy and the nation really are no worse off now than late last summer."

Standard & Poor's Outlook newsletter said the stock market "is now virtually at the mercy of shifts in the tenor of developments bearing on the energy crisis."

"In this climate," it continued, "the average investor is probably best advised to avoid hair-trigger responses to the news, and to await more convincing evidence that the market has indeed established a tenable base."
