SHAMROCK — A typographical error subsequently picked up by media representatives won't affect the validity of a legal document filed which attempts to remove an area sheriff from office.

One of 19 Wheeler County residents who signed the petition to remove Sheriff Jimmy Adams is Anna Gibson. On the final page of the document is a list of signers where Anna George is listed instead of the correct Anna Gibson, said Shamrock attorney Jim Fling, who drew the document.

He said Thursday that the error was typographical and the document is still valid because Gibson's notarized signature was filed with the petition.

The Pampa News used the list of names on page three of the document and picked up the incorrect name.

The petition was filed Wednesday and calls for the ouster of Adams following a mid-April prank he played on Shamrock Police Chief Bruce Burrell in which scattered bones were used to trick the chief into believing he had discovered an old murder.

The next step in the suit awaits the action of District Judge Kent Sims, who must decide whether to allow Adams to be served with the petition.

PAMPA — The Southside Senior Citizens Center will have its annual Volunteer Awards Luncheon on Thursday, May 19.

The luncheon will begin at 11:45 a.m. in the Pampa Community Building, 200 N. Ballard. The meal will be catered by Charles King.

The Center will honor those who have volunteered service to the Saturday meals program and other activities.

Those wanting to attend are asked to call 665-4765 for reservations.

CANADIAN — The board of directors of Canadian Production Credit Association has announced the resignation of Larry E. Albin, chief executive officer and president, effective immediately.

Terry Schafer, vice president, will be serving as the interim CEO while the board seeks to fill this position.

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an emotional Oval Office meeting, President Clinton told relatives of soldiers killed in Somalia he was surprised and angry that subordinates had ordered the ill-fated raid in downtown Mogadishu that left 18 Americans dead.

The family members said they felt the statements showed Clinton was out of touch with his own military chain of command.

White House Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers said Clinton's remarks Thursday in the closed-door meeting conformed with his earlier statements on the Oct. 3-4 raid in the Somali capital. But they came as news to the fathers of three Army rangers killed in the raid.

In identical accounts of Clinton's remarks, the fathers said Clinton told them that by September 1993 his focus had shifted from capturing Somali warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid to finding a diplomatic solution to the fighting in Somalia.

FORT WORTH (AP) — A lawsuit has been filed against the Housing and Urban Development Department by an equal employment opportunity specialist who claims she was the victim of reverse discrimination.

In the lawsuit, Jamie Jamison alleges that she was treated unfairly by HUD, Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros and his senior adviser, Frank Wing Jr., because she is a white woman and because she fired a Hispanic man who had worked for her.

Ms. Jamison, who was an equal employment opportunity supervisor for HUD's regional headquarters in Fort Worth, is asking for at least $300,000 in compensatory damages and an unspecified amount in punitive damages. In the suit, Jamison said Wing's "willful and malicious actions" against her were due, in part, to past complaints that she was passed over for promotions because she is white.

In the suit, she accuses former HUD Regional Director Sam Moseley and his administration of promoting "only black males or Hispanic males" to high positions. The lawsuit accuses Wing of transferring Jamison partly because he was angered over her participation in the firing of the Hispanic man.

BEAUMONT (AP) — Four people have been questioned in connection with the 1993 shooting death of a black man who was killed after he fled a Vidor housing complex because of racial threats, a newspaper reported.

Police plan to announce the arrests today of the four suspects, the Beaumont Enterprise Journal reported Thursday.

New president: Don't push Haiti around

By MICHAEL NORTON
Associated Press Writer

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Haiti's new army-backed president defended the 1991 coup that ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide as a bid to prevent more violence, and said the world has no right to demand the military step aside.

"We are in an exceptional situation," 81-year-old Emile Jonassaint said in an interview with The Associated Press late Thursday. "The very life of the nation is in danger."

Jonassaint, the Supreme Court chief justice, was sworn in as provisional president Wednesday by a minority group of army-backed lawmakers and the military commander, Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras. The United States and the United Nations refuse to recognize him. The United Nations plans to tighten trade sanctions May 21 in an effort to force the military to allow Aristide, Haiti's first freely elected president, to return. President Clinton also has not ruled out an invasion.

But Jonassaint defended his investiture, which was done without the required legislative majority.

The tall, dignified judge said in normal times he might have refused the call to the presidency, but felt it was his "destiny."

Although he was president of the assembly that wrote the 1987 constitution, Jonassaint defended the 1991 coup, asserting Aristide's government often violated the legal framework for its rule.

"There are times when people must be decisive, even if violence is necessary," he said.

"Before we came, the constitution was violated 1,000 times."

Hundreds of Aristide supporters were killed in the weeks following the ouster of the popular leftist president, who is despised by much of Haiti's tiny elite and the army.

Jonassaint also said the international community doesn't have the right to demand the army relinquish power, declaring, "Haiti is a free and sovereign nation."

He expressed optimism the existing U.N. fuel embargo and the upcoming sanctions, which will ban nearly all trade with Haiti, will be suspended.

"I firmly believe that the international community will change its mind," he explained.

"It has been very ill-informed about what is happening in Haiti. ... Things were exaggerated in a terrible way. In what countries in the world are rights not violated?"

As for the threat of invasion, he said: "We are weak. They will do what they wish with us. We don't have the atom bomb. ... Suffering is necessary so that man can uplift himself."

Jonassaint, wearing a gray cardigan, sat for the interview in the simple front room of his sparsely furnished, two-story concrete home, surrounded by a handful of staff members.

They included lawyer Rigaud DuPlan and his newly appointed chief of staff, ultranationalist lawyer Mireille Durocher Bertin, who advises coup leader Cedras. Nearby, a half-dozen security guards played cards.

On the morning of the inauguration, U.S. Ambassador William Swing sent Jonassaint a letter appealing to him not to participate in the formation of an illegal government.

When Jonassaint read the letter, according to Bertin, he exclaimed, "What impertinence!" and tore up the document.

"We had to paste it together later to reread it," Bertin recounted.

Born in the north coast town of Port-de-Paix in February 1913, Jonassaint was a senator in the northwest district from 1950-1956. He was president of the 1986-1987 Constituent Assembly and became chief justice after Aristide's ouster.

He is the father of five children, separated from his wife. He said he hasn't traveled abroad for 42 years, and was unperturbed by U.S. threats to revoke the visas of those involved in the new government.

It's Friday the 13th — so who's superstitious?

Today is one of those dreaded Friday the 13th days, with thoughts of black cats, broken mirrors and ladders to avoid walking under.

But those are just superstitions, right? Still, many of us, while scoffing at the superstitions of others, find ourselves having to face our own superstitions.

At the Coronado Hospital medical center, two employees were willing to admit to their superstitions today, though perhaps a bit reluctantly.

Joan Sutterfield, a data processor for the Regional Eye Center, says she doesn't think she is very superstitious, although she did know it was Friday the 13th when she got up this morning.

But her fellow staff workers say Sutterfield may be more superstitious than she thinks, especially when she makes remarks like: If your ear itches, you're going to have company. Or, if you find a penny, pick it up and all day long it will bring good luck. If the tail side is up, however, leave it.

Other remarks attributed to Sutterfield are: If you dream of death, there will be a wedding. Don't let a black cat cross in front of you. If you spill salt, pick it up and throw it over your shoulder. If a dove flies into your house, there will be a death.

Sutterfield admits she will not walk under a ladder. She also says if your foot itches, you will travel on strange ground. If your hand itches, you will win money. She says she picks her Lotto ticket numbers by using her Social Security number and birthday dates.

And if she breaks a mirror, she cries it will mean seven years of bad luck.

Amelia Gutierrez, who works in pre-admitting and admitting at Coronado Hospital, also says she doesn't think she is superstitious, but adds that she never walks under a ladder.

She also says she will not talk about important plans because then they won't come true.

Other superstitions she admits to include: Go out the same door you came in. Knock on wood to keep things from happening. Don't light a cigarette with one match. Don't let the cat in, where there is a young baby. And don't even open an umbrella in the house.

So, you don't think you're superstitious either? Ask your friends. They might think differently.

Clinton: Still no decision on court

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton still has not made a decision on a Supreme Court nominee. White House officials said they hoped, but could not guarantee, that he would make his selection by day's end.

"He'll have an announcement when he's ready," White House Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers said today.

Other officials, speaking at the condition of anonymity, said that there was a real chance that Clinton would put the decision off for yet another day.

Officials said there are still three finalists on Clinton's list — Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt and federal judges Richard Arnold of Arkansas and Stephen Breyer of Massachusetts.

Babbitt earlier in the week appeared to be the favorite. But Babbitt's chances seemed more clouded the more Clinton hesitates. Arnold is an old friend of Clinton's. But of the three, Breyer is the one who seems to be the safest bet for easy confirmation.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole said today that Babbitt would encounter the most Republican opposition among the three.

"To some on our side, it would be seen as an effort to politicize the court," Dole said. "He'd be the most controversial."

However, Dole said he believed the Senate would confirm any of the three candidates. The Kansas Republican said he spoke today with administration Chief of Staff Mack McLarty about the three possible appointees.

Basically, all three contenders were also finalists a year ago when Clinton filled his first Supreme Court vacancy.

On Thursday, Clinton said he still had questions to resolve.

"On these matters," Clinton said, "I tend to keep my own counsel more than on other things. ... It is one of the few things that the president just does on his own, of course ultimately with the advice and consent of the Senate."

Aides said today that things hadn't advanced much beyond that point.

"As far as we know, he still has not made a decision," Myers told reporters early today.

"There's been no change," she said.

Aides said Clinton continues to be the only one who really knew which way he was leaning.

Clinton planned a number of private meetings today and had only one public appearance scheduled, an early afternoon address at Gallaudet University, a college for the deaf.

Myers suggested it was unlikely an announcement would come before that speech.

Speculation continued to surge, both at the White House and on Capitol Hill.

In the halls of Congress, talk mostly centered about Babbitt, the Interior secretary and former two-term Arizona governor who has riled Republicans and Western ranchers with his environmental policies and attempts to raise grazing fees.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said today he would "vigorously" oppose a Babbitt nomination, saying it would be a "grave error ... Any transparent attempt by President Clinton to affect the outcome of future Supreme Court decisions by adding a professional politician instead of a legal scholar to the court will shake America's confidence in our system of justice."

But Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, on Thursday defended Babbitt's credentials as a political moderate.

"If you look at his record, he's right up Clinton's alley," said Biden, noting that Babbitt supports the death penalty and is a moderate on economic policy.

Pre-dawn drug bust leads to two arrests

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS

A pre-dawn drug bust today landed two Pampans in jail and recovered nearly $1,000 worth of dope.

Gussie Cox, 31, and Donald Buckley, 41, were arrested about 3:40 a.m. today by a member of the Panhandle Regional Narcotics Trafficking Task Force and officers of the Pampa Police Department. The pair were picked up in Buckley's Maple Street home when officers executed a search warrant alleging drug possession.

Officers gathered up 19 rocks of what is believed to be crack cocaine, said David Lee, a Pampa police officer assigned to the task force. He estimated the weight at about three grams with a street value of $760 to $950.

Cox was booked in to the city of Pampa holding facility, where she remained at press time today. Buckley was transported from the scene of the arrest by American Medical Transport to Coronado Hospital when he complained of chest pain, police officials said.

Buckley was released from the hospital early this morning and booked into Gray County jail, where facilities for his oxygen machine could be provided, officers explained.

Lee declined to describe the circumstances of the arrest, except to say the warrant was based on information received during drug investigations.

Possession of a controlled substance is a second degree felony with a range of punishment from two to 20 years in prison and/or a fine not to exceed $10,000.

Loose gorilla

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Call it a case of spring fever. Casey, a 400-pound gorilla, escaped the first day he was returned to his outdoor zoo exhibit and wandered about for 45 minutes.

Somehow, he scaled the 15-foot-high concrete wall that surrounds the sunken enclosure at the Como Zoo. Then he walked across the grass and stepped over a 4-foot fence to freedom.

Lisa Sherman snapped a photo of Casey. But she realized seconds later that the gorilla wasn't supposed to be quite that close.

Sherman, who was at the zoo with her daughter's kindergarten class, said she didn't feel threatened at the time.

"He just was real complacent and looking at us like we were looking at him," she said. "We didn't realize anything was wrong until the zookeeper told us to leave."

Police say woman was killed, identity stolen

By AMY YUHN
 Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Annie Lee Cole had another bad-check charge hanging over her head and risked going back to jail. So, police say, she cooked up a deadly plot to escape her criminal past.

Cole had 28-year-old Stella Sproule kidnapped and killed, then assumed Sproule's hard-working, squeaky-clean identity, police said.

"I've been at homicide for the better part of 20 years and I've never seen a homicide incident that was more calculating or more devilish than this," Lt. Thomas Peterson told WDIV-TV.

Cole, 32, was in custody in Indianapolis, Miss., where police said she had fled to relatives. Her nephew, Leander Foster, 16, and Stewart McCoy, 17, were arraigned Thursday on murder and armed robbery charges.

Police believe Cole — who had a long record of fraud convictions and risked going back to jail for violating her parole — hired the Detroit teenagers to carry out the slaying for $5,000 each.

"She knew that she was probably going to go back to prison. That was the motive behind the plan to kidnap Stella Sproule," Peterson said. After Sproule's slaying, Cole went to a JC Penney store, using Sproule's credit card to make a purchase that was captured on a security camera, investigators said.

"I don't know what to say. We're just in shock," Sproule's sister, Ramona Wright, told the Detroit Free Press.

The plot began unraveling earlier this week, when police realized that a bullet-riddled body found in an abandoned house had been mistakenly identified as that of Annie Lee Cole.

"The body was taken to the funeral home and was ready for cremation, but our guys decided something was not right," Deputy Chief George Clarkson said.

This is what police believe happened:

Cole and Sproule once worked together at Transpak, a Sterling Heights auto supply company where Sproule still worked.

Cole arranged to meet Sproule on May 3, during Sproule's lunch break, so that Sproule could give Cole an employment application to a department store.

When Sproule arrived at the store parking lot, she was met by two men who said they were there on Cole's behalf. They forced Sproule into her car at gunpoint and drove to a vacant building in Detroit. There, Foster shot her in the head three times, then fled with McCoy in her car and the $8 in her purse, Clarkson said.

Two days later, Foster phoned police anonymously, saying there was a body in the vacant building. A woman identifying herself as Betty Cole was at the building when investigators arrived and said she was looking for her missing sister.

Officers showed the woman the body. She said it was Annie Lee Cole's.

The body was taken to the morgue. It was to have been cremated Tuesday.

But during a follow-up investigation, police spoke with a brother of Cole's who told them Annie Cole was still alive.

"There is no Betty Cole," Clarkson said. "The woman made up the name of Betty Cole."

By that time, a missing-person report had been filed on Sproule. Her relatives were taken to the funeral home, and identified the body as Sproule's.

"This is just like a Sherlock Holmes movie," funeral home manager Stanley Heath told the Free Press.

G-HISD board OKs plan to send tax money to Pampa

In its meeting earlier this week, Grandview-Hopkins Independent School District's board of education supported a plan to send local tax money to Pampa's school district rather than to the state under a provision of the state's school finance law.

After consulting with their budget, the board members passed a resolution to undertake an agreement with Pampa's school district under Option 4 of Senate Bill 7.

According to information presented to the PISD school board at its last meeting, there are five options a school district can choose between to equalize wealth in the state.

They are: consolidate with another district; detach or annex territory; purchase weighted average daily attendance credits; contract for the education of nonresident students; or agree to consolidate tax bases with another district.

In order to approve the matter, the Grandview-Hopkins school district will hold a special election on June 25.

Prior to the special election, however, a meeting will be held beginning at 9 p.m. on May 17 in the GHISD's cafeteria to discuss the matter.

In other business, the board approved the hiring of Billy Baker of Borger to conduct an audit of the school's finances for the 1993-1994 school year. This is the second year Baker has performed the audit.

The board also approved contracts with Region XVI in Amarillo for services for the upcoming school year and conducted the final reading of local policies governing term contracts, employee complaints, property disposal, contracts with other school districts and academic achievement.

Gary Don Babcock was also sworn as the school district's newest board member while the other winners in the May 7 election, Charles Bowers and Marshall Hopkins, continued their service on the board.

Hopkins was elected president of the school board, Troy Ritter was named vice president and John Bagerman was chosen secretary.

Finally, the board approved next year's school calendar. Students will attend school a total of 179 days and one day will be devoted to teacher in-service.

School in the Grandview-Hopkins school district will begin on Aug. 18, 1994, and finish May 25, 1995.

Report: Safer cigarette patented, then shelved

NEW YORK (AP) — Tobacco companies knew how to make a safer cigarette decades ago but decided not to for fear it would make their other products look bad, The New York Times reported today.

The newspaper said the advances would have cut the cancer-causing substances in cigarette smoke, reduced the amount of second-hand smoke and lessened the fire hazard posed by cigarettes.

Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp.'s prototype Ariel, patented in 1966, heated the tobacco rather than burning it to avoid most of the hazardous substances in tobacco smoke, the Times said, citing internal documents.

Brown & Williamson, a subsidiary of the London-based British-American Tobacco PLC, never marketed the Ariel, fearing safer cigarettes would make its other products look bad, according to documents and interviews with scientists.

The documents also suggest the cigarettes were held back because smokers might have found them less satisfying, the Times said.

Thomas Fitzgerald, a spokesman for Brown & Williamson, told the Times: "From the description given to us, it appears you are basing your article on attorney-client privileged documents that were stolen by a former employee of a law firm that worked for Brown & Williamson."

Dr. Gio Gori, who has worked on the search for a safer cigarette for the past three decades, for the government and for tobacco companies, told the Times that if the industry hadn't been so worried about lawsuits, "they may have solved the problems of a less hazardous cigarette some years ago."

"Because of the hostility and litigation, making a less hazardous cigarette would imply that the company's other products were hazardous," Gori said.

Another early safe cigarette was invented by Dr. Thomas Mold, assistant director of research for Liggett & Myers, and his colleagues, the Times said.

Mold said that his group had created a safer cigarette in research that began in 1955, and that the product was ready for market by 1979. But he said company executives took a vote on the advice of lawyers and decided not to produce a safer cigarette.

Jury awards Hispanic officer $350,000 in bias lawsuit

AUSTIN (AP) — A federal court jury has awarded a Hispanic officer $350,000 in damages in a discrimination lawsuit against the police department.

Jurors on Thursday found that police administrators wrongly fired Senior Sgt. Hector Polanco in September 1992 because of his national origin. He later was rehired.

About a half-dozen officers took the stand on Polanco's behalf during 2 1/2 days of testimony. After the verdict, several patrol cars passed the courthouse, the officers inside flashing thumbs-up signs and honking their horns.

"It's a vindication for Hector and for all the people who have supported him throughout this process," said Phillip Adkins, one of Polanco's lawyers.

City officials insisted they did not discriminate against Polanco. A new police administration has taken over since his troubles began.

Polanco was fired after police investigators determined he committed perjury during a murder trial. He testified he did not take a written statement from a witness, but he did.

His discrimination claim was partly based on the fact that a white officer who gave similar testimony at the trial received only a written reprimand.

An arbitrator later cleared Polanco of intentional wrongdoing, reinstated him with back pay and issued a 30-page opinion critical of how police officials handled the matter.

Coloring contest winners

Anti-abortion groups condemn clinic blockade bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anti-abortion groups say court challenges are likely against congressionally approved legislation forbidding blockades, violence or threats against abortion clinics.

The Senate gave final legislative approval on Thursday to the measure, which abortion rights activists have sought in response to more than 1,000 violent incidents at clinics since 1977. The bill, which President Clinton is expected to sign quickly, would take effect as soon as he signs it.

The legislation approved Thursday makes it a federal crime to block access to an abortion clinic or to use force or threats against people using such facilities or working there.

As the Senate voted, shouting matches erupted in a House subcommittee debating two abortion-related amendments to a modified Clinton health reform bill.

At one point, Rep. Dick Armey, R-Texas, said, "Are we going to be so 'fem-centric' that we're going to condone the self-indulgent conduct of the body of a woman who has already demonstrated in most cases they were damned careless with it in the first place?"

And in a bitter exchange over an amendment that would have banned abortion from a basic benefits package to be guaranteed to all Americans, Rep. Jolene Unsoeld, D-Wash., said to her male colleagues, "I think the women of this country are being tolerant enough to allow you men to vote on this because you obviously don't understand."

The Senate sent Clinton the clinic access measure on a 69-30 vote. Fifty-two Democrats and 17 Republicans voted for it, while three Democrats and 27 Republicans voted no. The House approved the measure last week on a 241-174 roll call.

Judie Brown, president of the anti-abortion American Life League based in Stafford, Va., said Clinton was supporting the bill "in an unabashed campaign to appease the radical abortion-on-demand minority."

She said that the day he signs it, "American Life League will be in court seeking an injunction to prevent the new law from going into effect."

Jay Sekulow, chief counsel for the anti-abortion American Center for Law and Justice in Virginia Beach, Va., also said a legal challenge was likely on the grounds of free speech violations.

"This measure goes beyond the issue of violence," said Sekulow, whose group represents Operation Rescue, which blockades abortion clinics. "This legislation crushes the free speech rights of pro-life demonstrators."

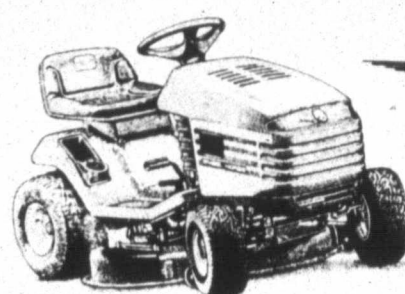

Supporters said the issue had less to do with free speech than with the physical protection of the people who use and work in abortion clinics.

They said that since 1977, there have been at least 36 bombings, 81 cases of arson, 131 death threats, 84 assaults, two kidnappings — and the killing of Dr. David Gunn, who performed abortions in Florida.

Formula One diet supplement banned; lawsuit filed

AUSTIN (AP) — A popular diet supplement, Nature's Nutrition Formula One, has been banned in Texas, and its manufacturer has been sued on grounds that it failed to warn consumers that the product contains the powerful stimulant ephedrine.

"This product is suspected of causing illness in adults, and even children, across Texas," State Attorney General Dan Morales said Thursday. "It is suspected of a death in Austin."

Morales sought court-ordered destruction of all Formula One stock at the manufacturer's expense.

Nature's Nutrition Formula One, commonly called Formula One, is one of the best-known products on the market that contains ephedrine.

Texas Health Commissioner Dr. David Smith banned the product from the market and also prohibited the sale of any other ephedrine-containing products in Texas to persons younger than 18.

The lawsuit was filed in state district court in Dallas.

Officials said the restriction includes all popular over-the-counter ephedrine-containing medications such as Primatene Mist, a bronchial dilator, and diet, or pep, pills with such brand names as Mini-Thins.

These "perhaps unpopular but absolutely necessary actions" are "to protect the health of Texans," Smith said.

Formula One's distributor, Alliance U.S.A. in Richardson, did not respond to calls left by The Associated Press on a recorder. But a spokeswoman said previously that ephedrine's negative effects were removed during the manufacturing process.

The Texas Health Department has been investigating incidents of alleged overdoses of products that contain ephedrine that have occurred in Austin, Longview, Amarillo and other cities.

At least one death, that of an Austin woman last month, may have been associated with the use of ephedrine, the Health Department said.

"Although our investigation is not yet finished, we have found that the unrestricted sale and use of ephedrine and related chemicals pose an immediate and serious threat to human life and health," Smith said.

The investigation into the products followed reports of illness in adolescents, teenagers and adults who have taken the drugs either to lose weight or experience a "speed-like high," Smith said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

El Paso Herald-Post on Kevorkian acquittal:

The recent acquittal of Dr. Jack Kevorkian on charges of violating Michigan's assisted suicide ban was hardly a shining moment for the jury system.

Kevorkian had deliberately broken a law that was specifically passed for the purpose of blocking his public campaign for legal euthanasia.

Yet, despite this fact, the jury of nine women and three men found him "not guilty," for various reasons, some of them confused. ...

There is no doubt that this messy verdict reflects real ambivalence in society about suicide in instances of terrible suffering. ...

Yet even such tragic cases ... do not justify the dangers of authorizing doctors to kill.

Kevorkian himself, with his badly utilitarian view of the doomed or dying, should be warning enough.

At various times in his career, he advocated making death-row prisoners permanently unconscious for use in medical experiments; and setting up suicide clinics, equipped with his "self-execution machines," where doctors could harvest organs for transplant from the newly deceased. ...

In matters little that "Dr. Death" won his latest skirmish in Michigan, but Americans must make very sure he loses his crusade.

Waco Tribune-Herald on assault weapons vote:

The big surprise should not be that the House of Representatives voted to ban 19 semiautomatic assault weapons. The surprise should be that the vote was so close.

After all, polls consistently showed at least 80 percent of Americans favored the assault weapons ban. And practically all of America's police officers and law enforcement organizations supported the ban. President Clinton and Attorney General Janet Reno supported the ban. Former President Ronald Reagan supported the ban. So why did the measure pass by only 216-214?

The answer is money and threats from powerful lobbyists who for decades have been able to control votes in Congress whenever gun issues were considered despite the desires of most Americans. But Thursday's vote represented the second defeat within six months for National Rifle Association lobbyists. In November, Congress finally passed the Brady bill, despite repeated attempts and strong public support.

Heavy-handed tactics by NRA lobbyists actually lost Thursday's vote for the gun lobby. Two House members say threats from NRA lobbyists caused them to switch their votes and support the ban. ...

San Antonio Express-News on crime bills:

A House-Senate conference committee will reconcile differing versions of federal crime bills that are being both panned and praised.

Neither is perfect. That is the nature of legislation. But they are a financial commitment from Washington — probably in excess of $20 billion — to "fight crime."

Both bills extend the death penalty to dozens of crimes, including one of local interest: murder by drive-by shooting. ...

Meanwhile, ordinary citizens shouldn't wait. They must be the eyes and ears for police and prosecutors, reclaiming their kids and their communities street by street, neighborhood by neighborhood. Washington can't do it for them.

What are they arguing about?

The year is 1960, and a mile or two from the center of town in Sumter, S.C., is Andy's Chicken Heaven ("Come on in and Have Yo'self a Celestial Bite!") It is a day-and-night joint, with a beer license. Everybody is welcome. Except Negroes, as we called them in 1960.

A half-dozen young students, back for the summer from Columbia where they are studying at the University of South Carolina, are inflamed by what they have heard in class about inequality and its corrosive implications in a country in which equality of citizenship is a postulate. They are very quickly in touch with the quiet quiet fraternity of older people whose views on Jim Crow are similar, and they decide to take action to give life and blood to their ideals.

They elaborate their offensive. These are law-and-order types, so they won't actually enter Andy's and make a scene on the spot, though they envision the day when young Negroes will do exactly that; but not yet. Instead, they arrange to picket Andy's with signs and placards expressing their objections: "God Made Everbody Equal — Except Negroes. Right?" That was one sign. Another read, "Go to Andy's and Renounce God." They spent an animated and busy night coming up with variations on the theme.

The first night of the picketing was a bruiser. It was cops, all right, though they were off-duty, not a trace of a uniform. They satisfied themselves to knock the wind out of a few of the protesters, leaving them gasping on the ground outside. The picketers vanished from the scene, but reassembled at their meeting place and decided they had better move away a little and approach their mission more discreetly.

One of their number, a student at divinity school, said that he didn't think the situation called for bumper-sticker polemics. Better the reasoned argument. So instead of the placard that read, "You Will Go to Hell if You Deny the Negro Is Made in Man's Image," a thousand-word essay was written, making the point not entirely distinct, that to tolerate the rejection of a brother on the grounds of the color of his skin was tantamount to rejecting the strictures of Christ.

That leaflet, and a half-dozen others, brought together by correspondence with what was gradually becoming a Southern network, armed the protesters with material sufficient to give all patrons of Andy's reading for a day or more. Granted, most of the patrons refused to accept the proffered leaflets. When that happened, the protesters attempted to engage the patrons in conversation. "Do you realize what it is you're doing, ma'am? You're helping to deny somebody, just because he's black, the right to keep himself alive by eating a little chicken."

OK, you get the point. And so has the Supreme Court, having agreed in Madsen v. Women's Health Center, No. 93-880, to review a state's laws that would prohibit the equivalent of everything mentioned above, if directed not at a chicken joint, but at an abortion clinic.

The controversy is of course judicially interesting, but interesting also in what it reveals about the nature of "public" sympathy. In the days of Jim Crow, the sympathy of the press elite was wholeheartedly with the protesters. In the age of abortion-on-demand, the sympathy is with the abortionist and his clients.

Now this is an arresting point because it probes the central philosophical questions. The moral-minded intelligence tends to accept a proposition that is by no means purely anthropological in its pretensions. It is this: A human being is an "equal" before the law irrespective of any other criterion of equality. He may be black, yellow or brown. He may be bright or stupid. That commitment to human equality is essentially religious in character, for the very simple reason that "equality" simply doesn't work, when comparing, say, serial murderer Ted Bundy and people-saver Mother Teresa. In what sense are they equal — except as creatures of God?

Now the judicial point is being argued, and will be written about by the court, on the simple question: Are our First Amendment rights to speak, and to organize to protest, sufficiently guaranteed under the Florida statute?

"When Solicitor General Days described the demonstrators as having tried to intimidate the clinic's patients and staff," reports Linda Greenhouse of The New York Times, "Justice Scalia said: 'Calling names is designed to hurt. Calling President Nixon a murderer during the war in Vietnam was designed to hurt. But it wasn't unlawful.'"

The judicial contest will probably overwhelm the other point, which is, to say it again, arresting, namely that a baby, though not yet born, is a human being, just as a black is a human being.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, May 13, the 133rd day of 1994. There are 232 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On May 13, 1981, Pope John Paul II was shot and seriously wounded in St. Peter's Square by Turkish assailant Mehmet Ali Agca.

On this date:

In 1607, the English colony at Jamestown, Va., was settled.

In 1842, composer Sir Arthur Sullivan, who collaborated with Sir William Gilbert in writing 14 comic operas, was born in London.

In 1846, the United States declared that a state of war already existed against Mexico.

In 1914, boxing champion Joe Louis was born in Lafayette, Ala.

In 1917, three peasant children near Fatima, Portugal, reported seeing a vision of the Virgin Mary.

In 1918, the first U.S. airmail stamps, featuring a picture of an airplane, were introduced. (On some of the stamps, the airplane was printed upside-down, making them collector's items.)

Paul Harvey: In-house dowser

We get so soon old, so late smart. Since my earliest recollections, the "water witch" was a mysteriously gifted person in any community who, with a forked willow branch, could walk about and locate water that's nearest the surface.

The "water witch" with his "diving rod" would detect what he said was an irresistible "pull" on his forked stick.

He would then stop and say, "Drill your well here!"

And sure enough, that was where the water was. The old Foxfire books made much of the "water witch," more properly known as a "dowser."

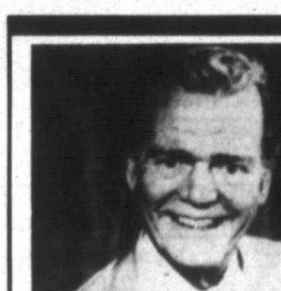

Some said it was just the seventh son of a seventh son who could be a dowser.

More than a few made their living hiring themselves out to locate underground water.

As of last Saturday, we have an in-house "water witch" at Reveille Ranch.

Angel and I are on our Mississippi River farm this week, checking on high water and tending some fencing and other chores.

Roger Bentley, a regional construction contractor who is a dead ringer for Kenny Rogers, wanted to be certain that our fence-post auger did not rupture any sewer or water lines.

Any ancient documents locating sewer and water lines were long gone, so Roger said he'd "witch" them.

Did I have a couple of wire coat hangers? Well, genial but businesslike Roger makes no to-do about this ...

There is no mystery the way he does it.

But with two wire coat hangers straightened and then bent at one end to form a handle, he walks across the pasture, and anytime he passes over a water line, the long ends of the coat hangers reach out parallel to the underground water.

Within minutes, he had me doing it, so it's obvious anybody can!

Two L-shaped wires. Hold the short end in your hands, the longer ends extended in front of you. Walk slowly, and the long ends will move parallel to any underground water.

To a lesser extent, they will detect underground electric wires as well.

So meet the new in-house water witch of Reveille Ranch.

When Paul Junior gets here, Roger and I have conspired to conceal a quarter in the grass near where we know underground water to be.

We'll let young Paul think he's detected and located money that way. That should keep him busy with his coat hangers for a weekend of intensive treasure hunting.

The stud finder you buy at the hardware store is neither more nor less mysterious than this. It locates metal. My coat hanger dowsing rods locate water and/or an underground electrical field.

The water witches and rainmakers of my childhood were such fun that if you still prefer your dowsing done with some hocus-pocus intact, I'm available for that too.

Trying to gauge effect of new rule

WASHINGTON — While President Clinton was defending his policy of sending back Haitian refugees with no questions asked, the White House said it was avoiding an exodus that could have put close to a million people at sea at risk.

Now there's a new rule, and a new estimate.

The administration is playing down the prospect of mass flight by Haitian boat people. Those who do flee by sea will get hearings under the revised policy, aboard U.S. ships or possibly in third countries, but a Clinton security adviser said only a handful will gain political asylum. The rest will be sent home.

Samuel R. Berger, the deputy national security adviser, said about 95 percent of those who flee Haiti do so for economic, not political reasons, and don't qualify for U.S. admission.

Still, the question is not only how many get to come to the United States, but how many try to leave Haiti.

Clinton said the peril to those who tried, in boats that were not fit for the journey, was what led him to continue the immediate return rule he had denounced as cruel and appalling when George Bush adopted it. As a candidate, Clinton had said he'd offer temporary asylum while pressing the military rulers of Haiti to yield to democratic government.

But the military regime reneged on a negotiated deal to step aside, and has withstood U.N. economic sanctions, now due to be toughened. And until last Sunday, Clinton stuck with the Bush refugee return rule.

Changing course, the president said the policy of immediate return was not sustainable because of increasing violence against Haitian civilians by the military regime that seized power there in 1991.

Sustaining it was becoming a political problem at home, too. But so is changing it.

While the return policy was in effect, the White House emphasis was on how many would otherwise be trying to flee. The press secretary, Dee Dee Myers, said April 29 that expert predictions put the number "in the tens of thousands, possibly close to a million people, fleeing Haiti in unseaworthy vessels."

Now the administration says the policy change will not prompt a huge increase in refugees. Nothing overwhelming, Berger says, noting that 1,300 people were picked up on boats so far this year.

Those assurances are suspect in Florida, where Democratic Gov. Lawton Chiles said the revised rule could add to the burden the state already bears in paying for immigrant services.

Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla., has called it a green light for 5,000 to 10,000 refugees a month to seek political asylum. A Republican, Rep. Clay Shaw, wrote Clinton that the new policy was an open invitation to Haitians to flee.

Chiles earlier sued the Democratic administration, seeking federal funds to offset school, welfare, prison and other costs incurred because of illegal immigration. Chiles, running for a second term, says Florida should be reimbursed for any added expenses that stem from the new Haitian policy.

That leads to the broader issue of immigration and the cost of handling illegal aliens. Gov. Pete Wilson of California, a Republican in a difficult re-election contest, has filed suit, too. It also affects states like New York, Texas and New Jersey, crucial in the electoral vote arithmetic of a presidential election.

The Congressional Black Caucus, a constituency that could be vital to Clinton's legislative agenda, was adamantly opposed to the return rule. An activist opponent went on a 27-day hunger strike, ending it when Clinton announced the new policy. But the White House said the policy had been under review for six weeks, and insisted the change was not simply a response to those pressures.

There may soon be demands from the same interests for more forceful steps to oust the military regime and restore the elected president, Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

On Haiti, liberals are the interventionist hawks.

The stiffened sanctions the administration calls the toughest ever imposed in the Western Hemisphere will take effect May 21. Clinton said he doesn't yet know how long he'll wait to see whether they work, and that military intervention is a later option.

But even Democrats who say it should be an option doubt Congress would approve sending American forces into Haiti.

The problem may be on hold while the new policies take effect. But the dilemmas persist.

ROLLING STONES

ON TOUR AGAIN

Latest economic reports calm financial markets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Falling energy and food prices made wholesale inflation disappear altogether last month while two other reports showed the economy's rapid-fire growth moderating. The reports — described as a "dose of economic Valium" — helped calm nervous financial markets.

The Labor Department said Thursday its Producer Price Index, which measures inflation before it reaches consumers, actually fell for the first time this year, edging down 0.1 percent in April after having risen 0.2 percent in March.

The April performance was helped by declines in the cost of fruits and vegetables, home heating oil and tobacco.

In another report, the government said that retail sales fell 0.8 percent in April, helping to relieve fears that consumer spending was growing at such a torrid pace that it would trigger further inflationary pressures.

And in a third report, the government said that the number of newly laid off workers increased by 26,000 last month to the highest weekly level since late January as layoffs in corporate America continued to take a toll.

Wall Street, which had been rattled by unexpectedly strong economic activity that raised fears of inflation, rallied on the reports showing inflation remaining well contained and economic activity slowing from its torrid pace of late last year.

"Inflation and runaway growth are not a problem, at least for the present," said Martin Regalia, chief economist of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. "Today's reports on inflation and retail sales should provide a dose of economic Valium to anxious financial markets."

The Dow Jones industrial average was up more than 18 points in late afternoon trading, fueled by a rally in the bond market that pushed yields on 30-year Treasury bonds down to 7.57 percent.

The rise in long-term interest rates so far this year has already begun to pinch the housing market. The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. reported Thursday that 30-year mortgage rates hit 8.77 percent this week, the highest level in two years.

Analysts said they believed Thursday's good news on wholesale prices would be reflected in a good report on consumer prices Friday, with many predicting a small increase of around 0.2 percent.

But even with good inflation reports, economists said they still believed the Federal Reserve is poised to further increase interest rates when central bank policy makers meet next Tuesday.

Prosecutor to proceed with eye-gouging case

DALLAS (AP) — A prosecutor said Thursday that he will proceed with charges against two Louisiana women accused of gouging out their sister's eyes because they thought she was possessed by demons.

Doretha Crawford and Beverly Johnson, both of Arcadia, La., were at Judge Michael Keasler's 292nd District Court with lawyer Lela Washington to meet with the prosecutor on the case.

Ms. Crawford and Ms. Johnson, who remained free on bond, were scheduled to appear before Keasler on May 26, said George West, chief prosecutor for the Dallas County district attorney's office. He said he would request arraignment for the pair at that time and their pleas would be entered before the court.

Last month, a Dallas grand jury indicted Ms. Crawford, 34, and the 35-year-old Ms. Johnson on charges of aggravated assault with serious bodily injury.

The defendants have said they gouged the eyes of Myra Obasi, 29, during their March 18 trip because they thought she was possessed.

Texas sheriffs say tents aren't practical for housing prisoners

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — As politicians tout the use of tents to house overflow jail inmates, Texas sheriffs quietly are opting for wood or concrete structures because they say tents are expensive and unsafe.

Not one of the 26 counties participating in the $25 million recently approved by the state's leadership for temporary jail space is erecting tents with the money, the San Antonio Express-News reported Thursday.

"I was really for using tents at one time, and I know the public is for it, but we need to explain the serious problems with tents," said Cameron County Sheriff Alex Perez, a member of the State Commission on Jail Standards.

"They're expensive, and they're not safe for the guards or the inmates," Perez said of tents. "Tents do not provide safety in case of sudden storms, like the kind we've been having lately. If you get a hurricane, it'll blow ... we'll never see the prisoners or the tents."

"Fire ... is the favorite pastime of our inmates here. Can you imagine in tents? Fire-resistant isn't fireproof," he said.

In recent weeks, George W. Bush, the Republican candidate for governor, has used tents as a campaign issue, saying the settlement of the Ruiz prison-reform lawsuit prohibits their use to relieve overcrowding in the state prisons.

Bush says tents should be used regardless.

He has advocated violating the settlement's terms so the case will be returned to federal court, where, he believes, the state could negotiate a better deal.

Gov. Ann Richards and Attorney General Dan Morales, both Democrats, immediately fired back, saying tents can be used legally for various housing purposes, albeit not specifically to ease overcrowding at the state level. Tents may be used at the county level for any reason, as long as they meet the necessary standards.

But tents aren't in any county's corrections game plan, the Express-News reported.

Tents have been used in pilot programs in only two counties, Travis and Jefferson. Austin's program has been abandoned altogether because it's too expensive; Beaumont uses tents as boot camps, where 48-60 inmates are housed for just a few weeks at a time for special programs before they're moved indoors.

Dan Richards, assistant chief deputy in charge of Travis County Jail, said the county isn't using tents at all anymore and that its $380,952 share of the $25 million is being used to erect plywood or metal structures.

"We can do the deal cheaper and better by using plywood buildings and by purchasing and constructing a metal building that we have the frame for already on hand," Dan Richards said.

The Travis County tent-housing pilot project didn't work at all, he said. The tents were used for less than six months last year, and no one has been housed there since October.

"Oh, they work out all right for a short time," he said.

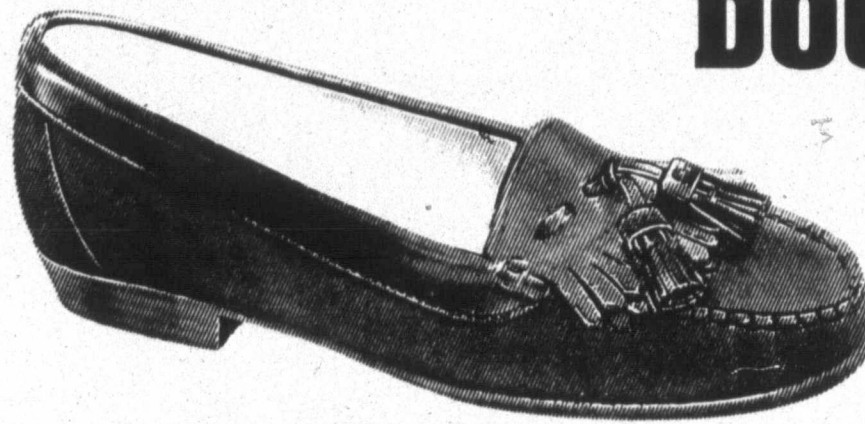

"What's a short time?" "Well, weeks, as a matter of fact," he said. "Operational costs is what hurts you on tents because you have to have so much supervision of inmates. It doesn't take long for that additional staffing to add up."

Gov. Richards said it didn't bother her if the counties erected facilities other than tents.

"We thought that was completely up to the counties to make the decision of what was best for them," she said.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

PROPHECY DOOMED ELI
 ONE OF THE GREAT EARLY PROPHETS WAS ELI BUT IN HIS OLDER AGE HE BECAME MORE OF A DOT-ING FATHER THAN HE WAS A PRIEST. HIS TWO SONS COULD GET AWAY WITH ANYTHING SHORT OF MURDER IN THE EYES OF OLD ELI. THE SONS, AS LESSER PRIESTS IN THE TEMPLE, USED TO CON-FISCATE MEAT THAT WAS FOR SACRIFICES USING IT FOR THEIR OWN MEALS AND WASHING IT DOWN WITH SACRIFICIAL WINE. COMPARED WITH SOME OF THEIR OTHER EVIL DEEDS THIS WAS ONLY A MINOR OFFENSE. ELI, ALTHOUGH HE KNEW OF THESE MISDEEDS, DID NOTHING ABOUT THEM UNTIL IT WAS TOO LATE. FINALLY GOD SENT A PROPHET FROM THE WILDERNESS WHO PROCLAIMED BEFORE ELI THE DOOM THAT HE FACED. (1 SAMUEL 2:27-31)

Sales of religious fiction rise as authors tap Christian market

By DEBRA HALE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Historical romance novelist Francine Rivers' characters used to curse and enjoy more than an occasional romp in the sack. Then, she became a Christian.

"It just didn't feel right," to continue writing such books, says Rivers, author of "Rebel in His Arms" in her pre-Christian days and "Mark of the Lion: Voice in the Wind" in her born-again days.

Today, Rivers' words are less erotic. Rivers, who writes for Tyndale House, is among the modern fiction writers whose works echo Christian values — and capitalistic ones, too: They're helping boost sales of religious fiction.

In the past four years, Tyndale's fiction line has grown from virtually nothing to 20 percent of its book revenue, said Doug Knox, vice president of marketing and associate publisher.

Tyndale's fiction sales account for 500,000 of this year's book sales compared with 432,000 last year. It has sold 2.7 million books, not counting Bibles, so far this fiscal year compared with 2.4 million last year.

Tyndale, based in the Chicago suburb of Carol Stream, and other publishers are convinced there's a huge market for more religious fiction.

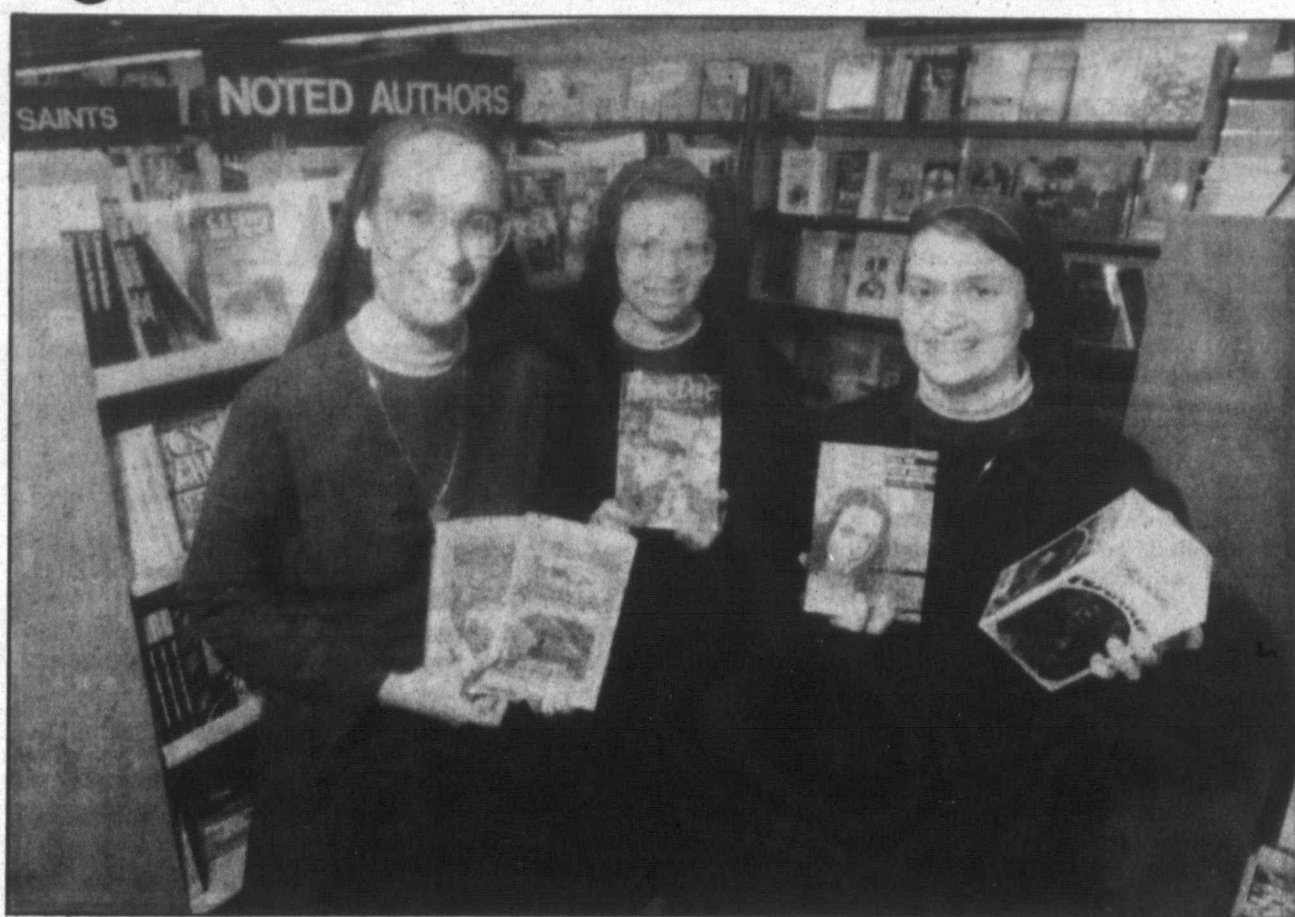

"What many people in the secular market don't think of is that there were more people in church on Super Bowl morning than watched the Super Bowl," said Tyndale spokesman Mark Kemink.

Tyndale's success isn't atypical. At Zondervan Publishing House, the Grand Rapids, Mich., publisher of the New International Version of the Bible, book sales are up 22 percent from the first half of last year, said President Bruce Ryskamp.

"A lot of it is a renewed interest in books and a renewed interest in values and a strong interest in the Christian life," said Ryskamp.

Bill Anderson, president of the Christian Booksellers Association in Colorado Springs, Colo., said retail sales of religious materials nationwide totaled $2.7 billion in 1992 compared with $1.4 billion in 1987.

According to Spring Arbor Dis-

Sisters Mary Margaret Michael, left, Barbara Parimm and Margaret Charles hold Christian fiction books at St. Paul's Book and Media Center in Chicago. The books are void of vulgar language and the sexual trysts must await marriage. While the cowboys still tote guns in Christian Westerns, the violence isn't graphic and law and order ultimately prevail.

tributors in Belleville, Mich., Christian fiction accounted for 9 percent of adult religious book sales in 1993 compared with 8.8 percent in 1991, 8 percent in 1989, 5.3 percent in 1987 and 4.3 percent in 1985.

"There are lots of problems in the world, and people are turning back to faith for answers to questions they have not been able to solve with other means and other world views," said Kathy Jacobs, a spokeswoman for Crossway Books in Wheaton, Ill.

Crossway was among the first to concentrate on religious fiction. Despite rejections by 14 publishers, the company took a chance in 1986 and published Frank E. Peretti's supernatural thriller, "This Present Darkness."

Pitting demons and angels against each other, the book and its sequel have sold 3.2 million copies and helped convince other publishers of the public's immense hunger for religious fiction.

"It kind of opened the market for such fiction," said Jacobs.

Fiction now accounts for about a third of Crossway's sales.

While Christian romance novels were introduced first, religious publishers now offer readers other choices — mysteries and Westerns, for example.

The more successful books are entertaining and, though not didactic, try to instill some Christian values such as forgiveness.

The books are void of vulgar language, and sexual trysts must await marriage. And while the cowboys still tote guns in Christian Westerns, the violence isn't graphic, and law and order ultimately prevail.

Religious fiction isn't as new as some might think.

C.S. Lewis novels, for example, have been around for years but recently got a boost from the Anthony Hopkins-Debra Winger movie, "Shadowlands," a love story based on Lewis' life.

Lewis' novels are selling especially well at St. Paul's Book and Media Center in downtown Chicago, said Sister Margaret Charles, who helps run the store operated by Daughters of St. Paul, an order of nuns.

Anderson said religious fiction provides "the opportunity to learn biblical principles and have your life improved, but the chisel is on the character in the story rather than me the reader. So, I'm able to watch this character go through the stress and duress, and I can learn from that, but I don't quite feel the stress, the chisel on my life."

"There are a lot of hurting people," explained romance writer Rivers. "I think that's why Christian fiction is growing so much. It offers hope."

Excerpts from Christian fiction:

Late into the night, Juleen Langstrat hovered in an inescapable trance, halfway between a tormented life on earth and the licking, searing flames of hell. She lay on her bed, tumbled to the floor, clawed her way up to the wall to stand on her feet, staggered about the room, and fell to the floor again. Threatening voices, monsters, flames, and blood exploded and pounded with unimaginable force in her head; she thought her skull would burst. She could feel claws tearing at her throat, creatures squirming and biting inside her, chains around her arms and legs. She could hear the voices of spirits, see their eyes and fangs, smell their sulfurous breath.

— From "This Present Darkness" by Frank E. Peretti.

He could tell by the sound of her voice that Katrina York felt young again, revived, her wispy voice rising with hope. As they talked, he remembered landing on Omaha Beach and the hell of crawling over the sands of Normandy. "The Captain prayed for us before we went ashore," he said. "We were on board, waiting for the landing craft to lower, to belch us out on the beach, and the captain read something from the Bible, something about the Lord being our Shepherd."

— From "Always in September" by Doris Elaine Fell.

"So, you don't hold much worth in trusting God?" Fletcher continued. "I didn't say that," Brannon hesitated. "I just figure He has more important places to look after than some corner of the wilderness. Look, Fletcher, save your religious talk for Everett Davis. He'll argue the good book with you for a month just to have company."

Brannon laid back down and pulled his hat over his eyes, but he didn't sleep.

There were two subjects Stuart Brannon tried never to talk about — religion and the Civil War. Both topics stirred up pointed opinions and uncompromising zeal. But he wondered, for the first time, why he was afraid to talk about God.

— From "Hard Winter at Broken Arrow Crossing" by Stephen Bly.

CANTERBURY, England (AP) — The Archbishop of Canterbury conducted his first ordination of women priests in a ceremony he said was "tinged with sadness" by lingering dissension within the Church of England.

George Carey welcomed 22 women to the priesthood at Canterbury Cathedral on Sunday, bringing to about 600 the number who have been ordained since March. The church lifted its ban on women priests in 1992.

At the ceremony, Carey expressed regret that some Anglicans still reject the ordination of women. Some have turned to the Roman Catholic Church to protest the change, considered the most momentous since King Henry VIII broke with the Vatican 460 years ago.

"Not everyone, even in your own church, is able to accept you in their hearts and minds as a 'real' priest on a par with men," Carey told the women.

But he urged them to "pray for strength to rise above this hurt and by the exercise of your ministry help people to pass through the imagination barrier to see the possibilities of women, as well as men, showing in the priestly ministry entrusted to God's church."

NEWPORT, N.H. (AP) — The steeple of the South Congregational Church finally has the clock it was built to hold nearly two centuries ago.

Three clock faces, each weighing between 130 and 150 pounds, were raised slowly into place on the tower recently. The black faces with gold lettering complete a project first envisioned 170 years ago.

Quartet to sing at Highland Baptist

The "Saved by Grace" quartet from Dumas will sing at Highland Baptist Church at 6 p.m. Sunday. The Rev. Paul Nachtigall invites the public to attend. For more information call Pat Marchman at 669-7878 or the church at 669-6509 for more information.

Usher board sponsors fish fry at Macedonia

The usher board of the Macedonia Baptist Church, 441 Elm, is hosting a fish fry starting at 11 a.m. Saturday. The menu will include catfish, French fries and salad. The Rev. I.L. Patrick invites the public. Donations accepted. For more information call 665-4926.

Although circles were built into the tower when the church was built, it was not until parishioner Louise Hawkins decided to donate the clock in honor of her mother, Louise Richards Rollins, that the idea became reality.

Three weeks ago, the clock mechanism sans faces was anchored in place in the wooden tower, one flight of rickety stairs below the area for the faces.

A Seth Thomas original, the clock first served the Detroit State Bank in Michigan in 1884.

SOUTHAVEN, Miss. (AP) — A former abortion clinic soon will be home to a Baptist church's Sunday school classes.

Leaders of Colonial Hills Baptist Church officially took over the building earlier this month. The center had been one of two Mississippi clinics operated by Dr. Thomas Tucker of Birmingham, Ala., who surrendered his clinic license last week. Last month, he lost his license to practice medicine in Mississippi for one year.

Money for the building was raised during a Feb. 2 Wednesday night prayer meeting, Bennett said.

"I said, 'By the way, if God can give 24,000 Bibles to (Saddam) Hussein's army, maybe we just ought to buy the abortion clinic,'" he said.

Rev. Steve Bennett stood on the roof and spoke to members and friends who gathered to celebrate.

A church banner reading "Jesus is Lord" obscured most of a sign that formerly told women they had arrived at the Tri-State Women's Medical Center.

Gospel singing hosted by First Pentecostal

An old fashioned gospel singing is planned for 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday at the First Pentecostal Holiness Church, 1700 Alcock.

Singing groups and individuals from numerous area churches will participate. Emphasis is on hymns, revival, convention type songs and Southern gospel music. A popular feature of the program is the congregational singing led by song leaders from the various churches.

Pastor Albert Maggard extends an invitation and welcome to everyone.

Senate tells Clinton to lift arm embargo against Bosnia — with support of others

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Senate voted to require President Clinton to lift the arms embargo against Bosnia Thursday, but muddled the action with a contradictory directive to first seek the support of other nations.

With back-to-back 50-49 votes on competing amendments that made up a Bosnia bill, senators first directed Clinton to seek a U.N. termination of the embargo and then added language ordering him to go it alone.

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., called the outcome farcical.

"It shows you the ineptitude of the United States Senate at times in giving direction on foreign policy.... We sound an uncertain trumpet in the ears of those suffering in Bosnia," said Warner.

Only six other senators joined Warner in voting against both approaches to lifting the embargo, and Bosnia-Herzegovina's ambassador to Washington counted the 92 senators who voted for one or the other approach as a strong endorsement for arming his country against Serb aggression.

"We consider this a big step forward to finally having our rights to defend ourselves," said Ambassador Sven Alaklaj, who witnessed the vote from the Senate gallery.

Senate Democrat and Republican leaders disagreed on the impact of the vote.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, who faced surprising bipartisan opposition to his efforts to save the president from the embarrassment of having to veto a measure he supports, said the vote "makes clear there is not going to be unilateral action by the United States to lift the embargo."

Clinton supports a lifting of the embargo but is against doing it without U.N. and NATO support.

At the White House, Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers reiterated Thursday that "the president does not support unilaterally lifting the arms embargo."

"What it says is that the Senate favors an end to the embargo... but is equally divided on the question of how to do it," Mitchell said after the votes.

He said the bill had virtually no possibility of becoming law. The House would have to approve the bill before sending it to the president.

No Republicans voted for Mitchell's approach, but 13 Democrats voted with Sen. GOP leader Bob Dole of Kansas who backed the unilateral embargo.

"This is a big, giant step towards lifting the embargo, even on a unilateral basis," Dole said after the votes.

He called it "a very strong signal not only to the president but to the British, the French and others that there's a limit on how patient Congress will be, particularly on the right to self-defense."

The contradictory directives remained in the bill as the Senate recessed for lunch and it was not clear when it would be taken up again.

The close votes came a day after a strong appeal from Bosnian Prime Minister Haris Silajdzic for the United States to act on its own in supplying his government with arms.

Silajdzic, in a letter to Dole and

Sen. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., said, "The hopes of the Bosnian people are turned to the United States Senate."

Most of the debate was not on whether to lift the embargo but whether to do it without first making one more effort to seek agreement from U.S. allies.

Dole insisted that his version was "not an effort to undermine the president." He described it as a step to avoid further U.S. military involvement.

"We don't send any ground forces," he said "... All we do is lift the embargo."

"Lifting the arms embargo is the only feasible option that will permit the Bosnian government to defend itself," said Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., who backed Mitchell's alternative.

"It's far too late to try one more thing," said Sen. Russell Feingold, D-Wis., urging an immediate unilateral lifting of the embargo.

Some senators, however, opposed any lifting of the embargo on grounds that it would lead to further bloodshed and U.S. involvement in the conflict.

Warner raised the possibility that Bosnia's government would use new military equipment to escalate the fighting and "regain what they have lost."

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I feel compelled to write regarding the letter from "Zelda D., Hesperia, Calif.," who wrote concerning the death of her cat Princess, who had been killed by an unchained, unfenced dog from the neighborhood.

I have a question for Zelda: Where was her cat when that dog killed her? Obviously, Princess was outdoors — roaming free — neither fenced nor leashed.

Abby, I have owned both cats and dogs all my life, and at no time were any of them allowed out of my house — or yard. A cat will not stay yard-bound. It is therefore obvious to me that a cat should be considered a house pet only.

I have no pets at this time because I work and don't feel I can give an animal the attention it deserves. I am, however, providing a sun deck (without my permission) to at least five neighborhood cats even as we speak. They are not my responsibility, but their love lives — and quarrels — are being played out for me daily.

I sympathize with the death of a pet. I hope when Zelda meets Princess crossing that famous "Rainbow Bridge," her pet confronts her with the death caused by her negligence. Maybe in the future Zelda will be aware that cats require a set of rules for care every bit as tough as those for dogs.
PEGGY IN PORTLAND

DEAR PEGGY: You cite a point that I failed to consider concerning Zelda's cat, who was apparently in her ninth life when she was killed by a dog roaming the neighborhood freely. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Zelda D.'s" letter regarding the loss of her cat, I express my sympathy to her in the loss of her pet.

However, I must ask, Where was your cat to experience such a demise? Was she in your home where she should be? Or was she out loose, prowling the neighborhood, teasing fenced-in dogs, or digging in yards and leaving her excrement for others to clean up?

I have long been in favor of a leash law for cats, and have learned that cats do quite well on a leash. It is the lazy owners who need to be trained.
BONNIE BAUER,
GLENDALE, ARIZ.

DEAR ABBY: You printed my letter about Asta, my female Yorkie. I wrote it after 10 agonizing days of looking for her. I finally found her body lying in the grass near the highway not far from my home. She had been gone 17 days, but it was evident that she had only recently been killed. Her collar and tags were missing.

I brought my beloved Asta home and buried her beside our house. I can forgive the driver who ran over her; I am sure the person did not see her, or could not stop in time. But I cannot forgive the person who might have kept her for the 17 days she was missing.

I now have another female Yorkie, born on the day we buried our precious Asta. She will fill the void in my heart, but can never replace the memory of that very special pet that comes along only once in a lifetime.

I guess I'm just a foolish woman for taking Asta's death as hard as I have. I am still — as I signed myself — "Heartbroken in Garland, Texas." Perhaps this time this hurt will heal, too.
SHARON

DEAR SHARON: Thank you for letting me know the ending to this sad story. My heart goes out to you. I hope that in the future, you and your husband find a way to keep your pets safely confined to your property.

Young gymnasts compete Sunday in mini-Olympics at Graves' center

By MELINDA MARTINEZ
Lifestyles Editor

A rise to the challenge and a chance to show the town what they've got.

That's what the Madeline Graves gymnasts are going to do Sunday, May 15, at 2 p. m. at the Madeline Graves Dance and Gymnastics Center, during their 2nd annual competition.

Madeline Graves, owner of the center, said she hired some judges to come into the studio and judge the children as they competed in a miniature olympics.

Each has been assigned to a team, but they will also compete as individuals.

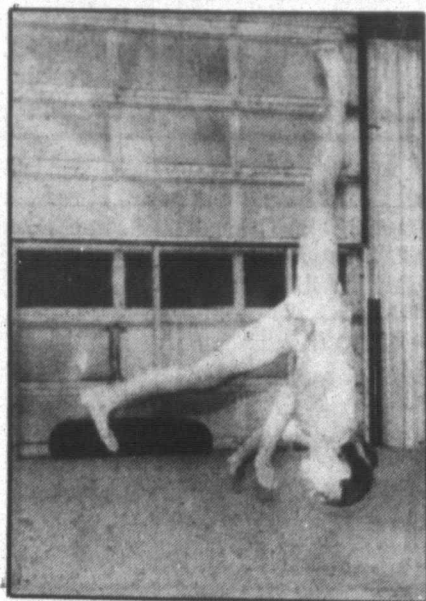

The teams will get the chance to place first, second, and third and each of the competitors will have the chance to win a gold, silver, or bronze medal just as they would in the Olympics.

The age range of the children is from three to 12 years old, but only the older gymnasts will be competing. The younger tumblers, those under five will be exhibiting what they have learned.

Most of these future Olympic hopefuls have been there since September, said Graves.

For most of these girls, this will be their 2nd competition, so they know what to expect and how to do what they have to do.

Kira Chumbley, 11, has been with Madeline Graves for eight years. Since she was quite young when she first started, Chumbley doesn't remember how she got into gymnastics. "I think my mom got me interested." None the less, Chumbley says she really enjoys it.

Chumbley was helping out a few of the youngsters under five who were trying to jump the vault.

One of the little tykes, Bridget Craig, 5, said her mother also brought her to the gymnastics class.

She likes it and said she has learned how to do "cartwheels and handstands" in the two years she's been with the center.

Craig and a few of her fellow teammates did need a little help from Madeline on their attempts to jump over the vault but they did have that determination to get over it even if it took a little lift here and there.

For Ashleigh Patton, 11, going into gymnastics also had its start in the family.

"My cousins took it and I thought I would like to try it," said Patton, a little out of breath after doing a few tumbles on the mat.

When she was starting out in gymnastics, Ashleigh thought the stunts, such as cartwheels and flips were hard to do, but now four years later, those same stunts come easy to her.

Apparently, her sister, Shelby, 7, started showing an interest nearly two years ago because her big sister was tumbling.

For now, the Patton sisters plan on continuing in the sport.

"I like it a lot," said Ashleigh.

Ashleigh and her sister are among the older more experienced tumblers who make their routines look relatively easy. All of them are going to give quite a performance this Sunday.

Madeline Graves and her students invite the public to see this mini-olympics of Pampa. Most are eager to compete.

Who knows, maybe one day one of her pupils will be in the world Olympics.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It might be wiser today to do business with established firms than with new companies who haven't as yet built a formidable reputation. There could be a reason for their anonymity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll have sound ideas today regarding ways to get what you want, but there is a strong possibility you could completely ignore them when the chips are down.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In order to be a good investigator today you must be prepared to probe well beneath the surface of issues and matters. If you don't, your discoveries might be of small worth.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't be impulsive today when making business or financial commitments, especially if there are elements of chance involved. You may be inclined to back the wrong horse.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Success in your affairs is indicated today, provided you are prepared to finish what you start. If you lack staying power, you might quit just when the end is in sight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't be shocked later if someone you like has some unflattering things to say about you. He/she may just be getting even for things you might say today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your earning powers are strong today, provided you operate along traditional lines. In situations where you know you're taking a gamble, your wallet could suffer.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Promises you make to outsiders are likely to be kept today, but commitments you make to family members could conveniently slip your mind.

FOOTBALL

WHEELER — Wheeler athletic director-football coach Ronnie Karcher will not be returning to the sidelines for the fall season. After 15-1/2 years of coaching at Wheeler and six years at the helm of Mustang football, Karcher is putting to rest his 26-year coaching career.

"I kicked it around last year whether I'd go one more year or not," he said. "There will be times I miss it, but there'll be some things I won't miss."

Karcher's career football record at Wheeler is a successful 41-27-1 mark, though he looks back on it saying, "it should have been better."

Wheeler won the 1A State football championship in 1979 and 1987, when Karcher was assistant coach. He cited those wins as the highlight of his career.

"Anytime you can do that, you feel good about it," said Karcher, who also coached track.

Karcher, who coached at Quanah, Breckenridge, Stinnett and Archer City before coming to Wheeler, said his decision to leave was more about coaching itself than anything else.

"It had nothing to do with the kids," he said. "That's the biggest part I'll miss."

The Mustangs advanced to the Class 1A quarter-finals in 1989, 1A area round in 1990, and 1A regional round in 1991 under Karcher.

Wheeler is moving from Class 2A to 1A this upcoming season, but the thought of a season of easy wins isn't enough to lure him into coaching again. Karcher knows that when football season rolls around, he'll be up in the stands simply as a fan and will stay out of the way of his replacement.

"I'm smart enough to do that," he joked.

BASEBALL

PAMPA — The first games of the 1994 Pampa Optimist baseball season are scheduled to be played Tuesday.

FOOTBALL

HOUSTON (AP) — Oilers general manager Floyd Reese increased his offer to Haywood Jeffires as Houston worked on inking a deal with the receiver, but the Rams already may have a stamp on his contract.

After spending another day in negotiations on a contract for receiver Webster Slaughter, Reese boosted his offer to Jeffires by $100,000 Thursday night. Jeffires said he was leaning toward the Oilers.

The Oilers were hoping to agree to contract terms with Jeffires and Slaughter today.

"I'll make my decision in the morning," Jeffires said from his offseason home in Greensboro, N.C. "I love the Oilers. I love Houston and the fans. I haven't given up my dream of helping the Oilers reach the Super Bowl."

But Jay Zygmunt, the Rams' senior vice president who negotiates contracts, said Thursday night the Rams had agreed to a one-year contract with Jeffires.

The Rams were so sure Jeffires had agreed that they sent two assistant coaches — Joe Vitt and Steve Moore — to Greensboro to hand-deliver Jeffires a check for the $400,000 signing bonus.

"He agreed to a deal, a one-year deal," Zygmunt said. "We hope to have it signed tomorrow. Joe Vitt and Steve Moore are on their way to North Carolina with the contract tonight."

The Rams offered a one-year deal for $1 million, including the $400,000 signing bonus and another $100,000 in incentive bonuses. Agent Fred Joseph denied a deal had been struck.

"We haven't made a decision yet," Joseph said late Thursday.

The Oilers offered a one-year deal for $950,000, including a $300,000 signing bonus. The contract, which includes an option year, has another $300,000 in incentives.

"They told us what it would take, and we did what we think it will take, and now we're waiting to hear back from them," Reese said. "We want to keep Haywood because he's an excellent receiver, a Pro Bowl player and a plus in the community."

This is the fourth time the Rams have put the hard sell on Jeffires. He turned down a three-year offer for $3.9 million last month.

"It's great to be wanted, and the Rams have been very impressive in everything they've done," Jeffires said. "I've got a lot of respect for the organization, and I would be proud to play for them."

"I've said all along I want to stay in Houston. I want to go to the Super Bowl with the Oilers, and I believe we can still do it. I've worked hard for the Oilers, and I've done a lot for the organization."

While Jeffires was being wooed by the Rams, Reese and general counsel Steve Underwood were negotiating with Slaughter's agent, Bill Duffy, for the second day in a row. Negotiations continued today.

"It's getting close," Duffy said. "We're definitely on the same page. If everything goes well, I could leave today with an agreement in principle. Webster's in Acapulco today, so he won't sign until I've gone over everything with him, but it looks good right now."

GOLF

DALLAS (AP) — Payne Stewart's comeback attempt from the golfing doldrums is, at this point, one day behind schedule.

It is up to the weather, a traditional problem at the GTE Byron Nelson Classic, as to whether it will be further delayed.

Rain and thunderstorms, just like those that wiped out Thursday's first round, were forecast for this morning, raising the possibility the already shortened tournament format could be further reduced.

In the event that more rain is dumped on the saturated fairways of the TPC at Las Colinas, "we will persevere," Duke Butler, tournament director for the PGA Tour, said Thursday.

After announcing the washout of scheduled first-round play Thursday and the reduction of the tournament to a three-day, 54-hole format, Butler said it is possible, under Tour regulations, to cut a tournament to 36 holes.

Single rounds now are scheduled for today, Saturday and Sunday.

Sandies stand second after first round

AUSTIN (AP) — Paced by Brad Elder's 67, Plano took a nine-stroke lead in Class 5A into today's final round of the University Interscholastic League state golf tournament.

UIL golf

Elder's 67 on Thursday also was good enough for a three-shot lead in the medalist competition over Amarillo's Ryan Palmer (70). San Antonio Clark's Tyler Lunke had a 71 and two others were tied at 72.

Humble Kingwood's Patrick Malone, who took medalist honors last year, was in a seven-way tie for seventh at 74.

Plano shot 289, while Amarillo posted a team total of 298, followed by Round Rock (302) and San Antonio Clark (308).

In the girls competition, Holly Carriker of San Antonio Churchill had a low round of 66, giving her a three-shot lead over Sugar Land Clements' Jennifer Waterhouse in the individual standings.

But San Angelo Central received rounds of 73 and 74 from Amy Marsh and Julie McMahon, respectively, to help shoot a team total of 315. That was good for a first-place lead over Humble and Humble Kingwood, which tied for second at 321. Defending champion Midland Lee (322) and Tyler Lee (325) were close behind.

In Class 4A, Austin Anderson posted a first-place total of 301 after receiving strong performances from Matt Dobyns (73), Mike Fox (74) and Scott Walker (75).

Rockwall was second with 305, while Austin Westlake and defending champion Dallas Highland Park lurked in a third-place tie with 307.

Bay City's Brandt Kieschnick grabbed a two-stroke lead in the medalist competition with a 71.

Amanda Workman shot a 67 to help lead defending champion Bastrop to a commanding, 21-stroke lead in the girls competition. Workman and Dallas Highland Park's Kelli Kuchne each shot 67, giving them an eight-stroke lead over the rest of the field.

In Class 3A, Tulia grabbed an 11-stroke lead with a 313 behind the steady play of Chance Combest (76), Chris Holt (78), Lane Dyer (79) and Chris Mahaney (80).

Sour Lake Hardin-Jefferson (324) was second, followed by Marble Falls (325), Texarkana Pleasant Grove (326) and defending champion Graham (331).

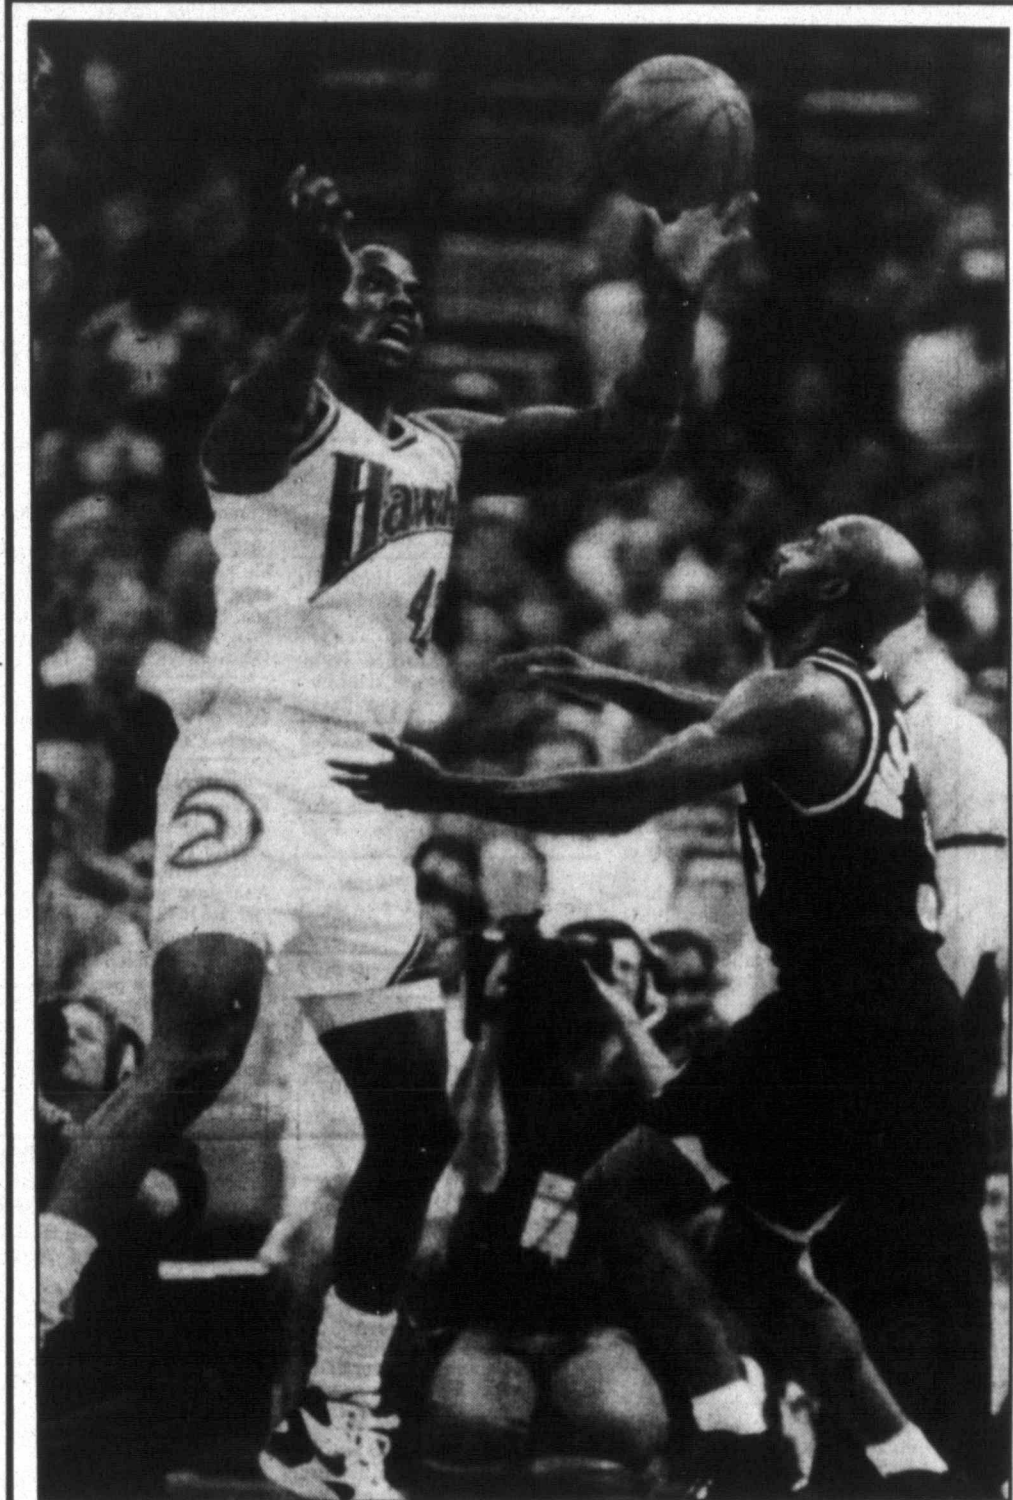

Graham's girls team posted a 345, good for first place over Sonora (358), Pittsburg (364) and defending champion Yoakum (369). Beth Covington of Sonora took a three-stroke lead in the medalist competition with a 76.

In Class A, Shamrock's John Miller posted one of the best scores of the day in all classes with a 66, giving him a 10-shot lead in the medalist competition.

Defending champion Booker posted a 330, which was eight shots better than Baird (338) and 22 shots better than Farwell and Robert Lee, which each had 352.

Robert Lee shot a 401 to take a 13-stroke lead over defending champion Booker (414) in the girls competition. Susie Crawford of Tenaha led the field by three shots after posting an 85.

Hawks shut down Pacers

Series all even in Eastern semifinals

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta held Indiana to the fewest points in NBA playoff history Thursday night as the Hawks, behind 20 points each from Danny Manning and Kevin Willis, tied the Eastern Conference semifinal series 1-1 with a 92-69 victory.

The 69 points by the Pacers broke the league-low mark of 70, shared by Golden State against Los Angeles in 1973 and Seattle against Houston in 1982.

Mookie Blaylock added 11 points, 13 assists and 10 rebounds for the Hawks, the fourth triple double of his career.

Atlanta surged to a 61-42 lead halfway through the third quarter, then withstood a Pacers comeback that closed them to 65-57 on Reggie Miller's 3-point basket with a second left in the period.

Miller scored 12 points and Derrick McKey 11 for Indiana, which plays host to Games 3 and 4 on Saturday and Sunday before returning to Atlanta Tuesday night for Game 5 of the best-of-7 series.

The Hawks never trailed after breaking a 19-19 tie on Willis' basket from the corner with just under nine seconds left in the first quarter. Duane Ferrell followed with a 3-pointer at the buzzer for a 24-19 lead, and Atlanta extended it to 30-21 early in the second on a layup and two free throws by Craig Ehlo and a 16-footer by Manning.

Atlanta stretched the lead to 47-32 at halftime before a 6-0 run by the Pacers at the start of the third chopped into the lead.

Holding a 49-40 lead, Atlanta went on a 12-2 run in which Stacey Augmon scored five points and Blaylock hit a 3-point basket for the 61-42 advantage halfway through the period.

Phillies defeat Pirates

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jim Leyland said the Pittsburgh Pirates "certainly had our chances — and that's an understatement."

In losing 6-4 to the Philadelphia Phillies Thursday night, the Pirates stranded a season-high 17 runners, coming within one of the NL record five teams share for runners left on base in a nine-inning game.

Pittsburgh has now left 89 runners on in its last nine games. "That's all part of the game," Leyland said. "Things like that happen."

Phillies starter Tommy Greene (1-0) said he can live with all the baserunners as long as they're not coming around to score.

"We made the pitches when we had to," he said. "We got some outs when we had to and that's how you win."

Greene, a 16-game winner in 1993, allowed 10 hits but only one run in six innings to gain his first decision this season in four starts. Greene has not lost at Veterans Stadium since Sept. 3, 1991, going 12-0.

Unser has no retirement plans

By HANK LOWENKRON
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Al Unser, a four-time Indianapolis 500 winner, says he's having too much fun to retire.

Rick Mears and A.J. Foyt, the only other four-time winners, already have stepped out of the cockpit. His brother Bobby and Johnny Rutherford, both three-time Indy champions, also retired from racing, and longtime rival Mario Andretti has announced he'll be driving his last Indy 500 on May 29.

That's the date Unser will be 55, and the man who has led more laps (644) at Indy than anyone would like to lead a few more.

"All of us know sometime or another, you have to back down," he said Thursday. "I'm not ready yet. I still feel that I have the desire, and I have the wanting to do it."

"The day that I finally wake up and say it's not fun anymore, or I'm not competitive, then you step down."

But Unser is struggling to find the speed he'll need to make the 33-car starting field. His fastest lap in the Lola-Ford Cosworth was 215.652 mph Thursday — a speed that is likely to be well under what is needed to qualify.

"We're still searching and trying to find the happiness between me and the car," he said. "We kind of think we know which way we want to go now. It's just going to take a few more laps. Once you find which direction to go, then it comes in big stages, usually. ... We're gaining. We need some more time."

Said Neil McNeice, the car's owner: "As far as testing, we're way behind. I was in the hospital for a while and that really shut everything down."

Others appear ready for Saturday's opening of time trials, including Team Penske, which is hoping the new Mercedes-Benz engine will extend owner Roger Penske's record of nine Indy victories.

The Penske driven by defending champion Emerson Fittipaldi had Thursday's fastest lap of 230.438 mph, the quickest since practice began last weekend.

"Today was very important for us. We worked very hard all day on adjusting the chassis," Fittipaldi said, who was joined by teammates Paul Tracy and Al Unser Jr. on the day's speed list. "The engine has been very good. But, we still have more work before qualifying."

Tracy's lap at 228.444 was good enough for second place on the speed list, although it failed to match the 229.961 lap he recorded on Tuesday. The younger Unser had his fastest lap of the month at 227.457.

"Al's very happy. Penske produces. ... When you drive for a guy like this, it's good," the elder Unser said of his son, who this season joined the most successful team in the series and is tied with Fittipaldi for first place in the PPG Cup point standings after three races. "Even though he drove for a good man before (Rick Galles), he found that there just wasn't the right things happening at the right time."

The elder Unser had no doubt that the Mercedes engine will be a force in the battle for the pole Saturday.

"You have to admit that Penske is one that doesn't sit back and relax very long," said the elder Unser, who posted his fourth Indy victory while driving for Penske in 1987. "He got Mercedes-Benz. Whether it's going to last (to the end of the race), or not, none of us know yet. But, I'll bet that it's going to be a very strong motor. I don't think Penske would come here, and attempt something that wasn't foolproof."

Pampa girls go for the gold

The Pampa Lady Harvesters join the chase for the gold today at the Class 4A state track meet in Austin. And no matter what happens, it's been a good run for the Lady Harvesters, who went unbeaten in eight meets this season.

All running events in the 4A girls' division are scheduled to start at 6:15 p.m. in Memorial Stadium.

The Lady Harvesters qualified Mechelle Abbott (100 and 300-meter hurdles), the 1600 and 800-meter relay teams for state.

"I think Mechelle has a real good chance win in the 300," said Pampa coach Mike Lopez. "This season has been a good one for her."

Abbott won the 300 hurdles at regionals with a time of 45.52, the third best regional time among the state qualifiers. Her best time is 44.8, which matches the state's top qualifying time held by Sharon White of Houston Worthing.

"Mechelle's best time came in the regional preliminaries and it looked like she was being pushed. The fastest qualifying time in the 100 hurdles is 14.6 and Mechelle has had a 14.8. There's going to be more competition for Mechelle in the 100 hurdles, but she's got a fighting heart," Lopez said.

Both Pampa relay teams are capable of finishing among the top three.

"Our 800-meter relay team may have the best chance at medaling. When we added Renee Johnson as our third leg, that gave us more speed. I feel like we can drop another second," Lopez said. "Our qualifying time in the 1600 was 4:03, but we have had a 4:01 before and that came when Shelly Young was out. We set our goal at 3:57, which we had at regionals last year."

Groundbreaking psychoanalyst Erik Erikson dies of infection

By MARTIN FINUCANE
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Psychoanalyst Erik Erikson, whose theories of personality development and adolescent "identity crisis" transformed the field of psychology and held particular appeal for the restless youth of the 1960s, has died at 91.

Erikson, a psychoanalyst who wrote a Pulitzer Prize-winning biography of Mohandas Gandhi and books on the lives of Jesus, Martin Luther and Albert Einstein, died of an infection Thursday at a nursing home in Harwich.

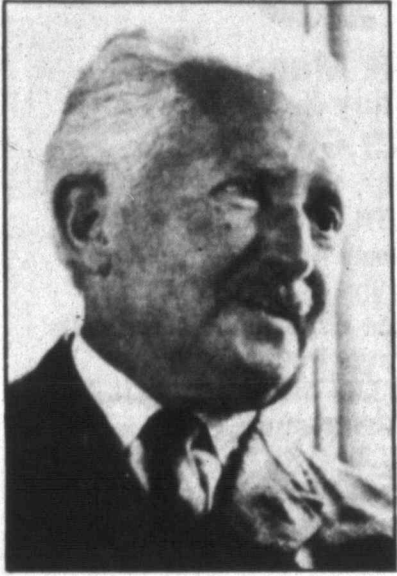

"Of his generation, along with Anna Freud, he was probably, for good reasons, the best-known psychoanalyst in the world. And the one who, in many ways, made the greatest impact on our culture as a whole," said Dr. Robert Wallerstein, retired head of the psychiatry department at the University of California, San Francisco.

The German-born Erikson was a disciple of Sigmund Freud but emphasized social relationships rather than sexual needs as the key to growing up, and developed a theory that life is divided into eight crucial stages.

Each stage, starting from infancy, has its own unique psychological struggles that shape personalities, he said. An "identity crisis" — a phrase he coined — usually occurs in the adolescent stage.

His 1950 book Childhood and Society drew instant recognition as the best and most thorough portrayal of human development at the time, and "fundamentally changed the field," Wallerstein said.

The work had a particular resonance in the 1960s, with its exploration of the adolescent experience and the "moratorium" during which adolescents "find" themselves, Wallerstein said.

Erik Erikson

"He was not identified in any way with the youth protests, but he was a revered figure among all the rebel youth," Wallerstein said.

"What he said to them was your life is important, your relationship to your times is important, you can make a difference in society and you can find yourself in the process. He charted the concept of the adolescent struggling to find his place in the world ... which the hippies carried to a fare-thee-well."

Stephen Schlein, a Boston-area clinical psychologist who edited a collection of Erikson's papers, called him one of the "grandparents" of the field of child psychotherapy. His writings helped show the importance of child's play, the mother-infant relationship and dreams, Schlein said.

Erikson encouraged the psychoanalytic study of historical figures in such works as Young Man Luther (1958) and Gandhi's Truth, which won the Pulitzer and National Book Award in 1970.

He also wrote biographies of Jesus, Einstein, William James and Charles Darwin. Other works included Identity: Youth and Crisis (1968).

"As they used to say of Gandhi, he was a mahatma, a great soul, a very wise, very wide-ranging humanist and someone who really illuminated the stages of the life cycle from birth to death," said Diana Eck, a Harvard University professor and friend. "He walked into old age with a great deal of nobility and beauty."

Born in Frankfurt, Germany, Erikson taught in a Vienna school run by Anna Freud, Sigmund's daughter, for children of people who were in or interested in psychoanalysis.

Sigmund and Anna Freud decided Erikson would make a good psychoanalyst, and he accepted their offer to begin analysis with Anna Freud. He became one of the first child psychoanalysts.

He came to the United States in 1933 and taught at a half-dozen medical schools. He was a professor at the University of California, Berkeley and in 1960 joined the Harvard faculty, where he was a professor of human development and psychiatry.

While Freud studied weakness in humans, Schlein said, Erikson went beyond his one-time mentor and saw "the richness of the human potential."

"It's a very different view of the world," Schlein said.

Survivors include his wife, Joan, also an author; two sons; a daughter; and three grandchildren.

Man convicted of strangling child

By JOSH LEMIEUX
Associated Press Writer

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A 31-year-old man addicted to inhaling paint fumes for half his life has been convicted of molesting a child and strangling him with the elastic from the boy's underwear.

Jurors found Jose Alfredo Rivera guilty Thursday of capital murder in the death of 3-year-old Luis Daniel Blanco last year.

"This man needs to die for what he did," District Attorney Luis Saenz said in closing arguments of the penalty phase.

The same jurors began deliberations to decide whether to sentence Rivera to life in prison or death by lethal injection.

Prosecutors said Rivera and a 19-year-old neighbor, Veronica Patricia Zavala, killed the child together and dumped the body in a Brownsville resaca.

Saenz asked jurors to send a message to other inhalant addicts that the habit is no excuse for committing crimes.

"Look at what he did to a baby," Saenz said. "Tell everybody that we are going to take care of our children."

Rivera's court-appointed attorney, Joe Esquivel, pleaded with jurors to spare his client's life.

"Let him die in prison. Let God take him away whenever his time is up," Esquivel said.

Esquivel had tried to steer the blame to Ms. Zavala, who is scheduled for a capital murder trial next month.

Ms. Zavala, who did not testify at Rivera's trial, has made statements blaming Rivera for the murder.

Rivera testified that he was unemployed and had been sniffing paint for the intoxicating fumes almost daily since his mid-teens. Police portrayed him as a violent addict who often threw beer bottles at passing cars.

Rivera, who had known Ms. Zavala for about five years, was walking around on the afternoon of July 9 when he came across her in Lincoln Park, according to a statement he gave investigators.

Ms. Zavala, who lived next door to Luis and often played with him, had the boy with her in the park that day, Rivera said.

Rivera and Ms. Zavala snorted cocaine and performed sexual acts in front of the child, he told investigators.

In a confession videotaped by detectives at the park, Rivera described how he and Ms. Zavala then sexually assaulted the boy, tore up his underwear with a knife and strangled him with the elastic band.

Rivera's father routinely made him sleep on a mattress outside their house because he wouldn't quit drinking and sniffing paint, Rivera's sisters testified.

A psychiatrist testified that Rivera had an "antisocial personality" and that the inhalants had probably damaged his brain.

Buoyant business leaders foresee economic health

By JAMES H. RUBIN

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — A near-euphoric group of the nation's top business executives says the once-slumbering economy has reawakened and not even rising interest rates will dull its vitality.

Referring to recent boosts in short-term rates by the Federal Reserve, AT&T chairman Robert E. Allen said, "I don't think the current move will make any difference."

That was clearly the consensus at the semi-annual meeting of the Business Council, an elite group that has gathered in this colonial resort community to share views on the economy and mingle with members of Congress and top Clinton administration officials.

The 96 executives also have set aside time for recreation, particularly on the town's lush golf courses.

Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen was among the notables scheduled to chat today behind closed doors with the business leaders. Bentsen was to talk about Asian trade.

Defense Secretary William Perry planned to talk publicly to the gathering about foreign policy and reshaping the military, his aides said. Others expected to meet privately with the executives included Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., to discuss Asian trade, and Sen. Bob Packwood, R-

Ore., to talk about health care and welfare reform.

On Thursday, the council issued a report that said economic growth is slowing after a surprising boom in 1993 and moderate expansion should continue throughout 1994 despite higher interest rates.

Corporate economists also predicted that inflation — while moderate — will move steadily higher before peaking at between 4 percent and 4.5 percent sometime after 1995.

The financial markets, meanwhile, rallied Thursday on good inflation news and government reports that showed growth easing.

Many of the executives here happily acknowledged that when they last met in this forum six months ago they had no inkling the economy would become so robust.

"Generally, the American economy is in a period of resurgence," said John W. Snow, head of CSX Corp., a railroad and shipping company.

Edgar S. Woolard Jr., chairman of DuPont & Co., said the chemical giant is having trouble meeting demand. "We never would have predicted that six months ago," he said.

And John Welch of General Electric Co. said the mood of his colleagues seemed "euphoric."

The council predicted economic growth probably will slow to around 3 percent this year. That would follow a stunning 7 percent annual rate of increase as measured by the gross domestic product in the final three months of 1993. The GDP is the sum of all goods and services produced in the United States.

The council report said increases in interest rates this year "had not yet had a noticeable impact on orders or sales" and consumer demand remains very strong.

"Industries as diverse as motor vehicles, industrial machinery, retailing, communications equipment, steel and freight transportation reported that business was very strong or booming," the report said.

But the business leaders expect slower growth in the housing market than predicted last year because mortgage rates are climbing. Rates on 30-year conventional mortgages, which boomed out at a 25-year low last October of around 6.7 percent, now are averaging 8.77 percent.

The Federal Reserve has raised the federal funds rate, which banks charge each other for overnight loans, from 3 percent to 3.75 percent this year and another boost is expected soon.

"I don't have any quarrel with what they're doing," said Dennis Weatherstone, chairman of J.P. Morgan & Co. Raising the short-term rate to around 4 percent is in line with a policy of "neutrality," he said, one that neither stimulates nor restrains economic growth.

Thursday's report said the rate is likely to be 4.25 percent by the final quarter of this year and 4.75 percent by the end of 1995.

In Maryland, condemned man doesn't know what day he will die

By SANDRA SKOWRON
Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — As Maryland prepares for its first execution in 33 years, only one person knows the precise day and time next week that killer John Frederick Thanos will receive a lethal injection in his arm.

Maryland executions are conducted under a 1922 law that forbids advance public notice. Only Corrections Commissioner Richard Lanham knows the date and time — a secret he hasn't even shared with the governor.

Under the death warrant, Thanos can be executed any time from 12:01 a.m. Monday through May 22.

Other states routinely give the exact day and time of an execution months in advance.

In Maryland, official witnesses, including selected journalists, will be notified of the execution three hours beforehand. But they must agree not to divulge to anyone, including their editors, that they have been contacted.

Thanos, who murdered three teenagers during a weeklong crime spree in 1990, won't get the official word until an hour before he is to die.

But he should get some inkling that his death is imminent when prison officials inventory his belongings the day before the execution.

Families of his victims and the public won't know at all until the execution is over.

"As far as I'm concerned, I don't think it's fair that neither one of us will be told when the execution will be taking place, on what day that it will be taking place and we will not be allowed to be there," said Lois Dennis, whose 18-year-old son, Gregory Taylor Jr., was killed by Thanos.

Before the 72-year-old law was adopted, Maryland executions were public hangings that sometimes became frightful spectacles. During one pre-World War I hanging, spectators broke through a fence and plucked the condemned man's hair and clothing as souvenirs.

"I'm not aware there has been any litigation to test that, but my understanding is that it would withstand challenge, because there are strong governmental reasons to allow for the secrecy," said Mary Ellen Barbera, deputy chief of the Maryland Attorney General's criminal appeals division.

Joe Riener, coordinator for Let Live, an anti-death penalty group planning to protest the Thanos execution, said secrecy is not a significant concern for the organization's 650 members.

"The main thing is the state is going about killing someone. How they do it, when they do it, is not as much of a concern as them doing it," he said.

Thanos, 45, confessed to killing Taylor and two Baltimore County teen-agers but proved to be a hostile defendant, telling a judge he wished he could kill two of his victims again. He publicly berated his lawyers when they brought up claims of childhood abuse by his father.

Thanos has refused to file any appeals, renouncing petitions filed by his mother and sister.

"I did it, I was sentenced, I accept that," Thanos said during a hearing May 7 in which his family tried to prove he is incompetent. A judge rejected the claim Tuesday, and his family dropped further appeals.

As of Thursday, Thanos still occupied his cell in Maryland's Supermax, the state's top-security prison.

At some time before the execution, he will be moved from Supermax into a windowless holding cell in the death house to await his execution. He won't get a special last meal, only the same fare served to other prisoners.
