DEFENSE ATTORNEY FOR DEMO CONVENTION RIOTERS SAYS:

Court Looks Like 'Armed Camp'

Six U.S. Marshals Stand Guard At Trial

CHICAGO (UPI) — A defense attorney in the trial of eight men charged with inciting violence at the Democratic National Convention told the court it looks like an "armed camp" and said he expects his clients to be convicted.

William Kunstler made the comment Thursday after a former reporter said he infiltrated the leadership of the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam for Chicago's American now Chicago Today during the August, 1968, convention.

Dwayne Oklepek testified he heard one of the defendants, Tom Hayden, say on the eve of the convention that antiwar demonstrators need "an army and guns" and that another, Rennie Davis, told demonstrators, "Go down to the Loop and bust it up—the up traffic and so forth. If the police battle us, just riot."

Under cross-examination, Oklepek said he heard leaders of the mobilization committee say repeatedly they wished to avoid violence but that they expected violence from Chicago police.

Oklepek quoted Hayden as saying on Aug. 24, 1968, the day before the convention opened: "Let's not mess around with this. Let's go and get them. What we need is an army and guns."

Kunstler predicted convictions of his clients after three black people were asked to leave the spectators section, and objected to the fact that six marshals were standing guard over the trial.

"This gives it the appearance of an armed camp and the Supreme Court has ruled a court should not have an appearance of an armed camp," he said. "It could be a basis of possible appeal."

"Are you anticipating a conviction?" U.S. Judge Julius J. Hoffman asked.

"Yes, I am," Kunstler said. "We have our own source on what is going to happen."

U.S. Attorney Thomas Foran said, "Let the record show that half the marshals here are black." Foran charged Kunstler's comments were "part of the daily routine for exciting experts (one-sided) articles in the newspaper." A marshal said the three Negroes were removed because they were talking.

Black Panther party leader Bobby Seale, one of the defendants, said, "There's a bit of racism involved in this, I think." The rest of the defendants chimed in, "right-o." The judge admonished them.

Fire Destroys Agri Workshop At STSC

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (UPI)—The entire San Marcos fire department, plus 200 student volunteers, battled a fire that gutted the Agriculture Workshop Building Thursday at Southwest Texas State College.

One person, a professor, was slightly burned and the fire caused $100,000 in damage to the L-shaped workshop. The firemen and students prevented the blaze from spreading up hill to the main campus, but the fire did reach a nearby maintenance building, causing slight damage to the outside of the frame structure.

A student was cutting metal with an acetylene torch in the agriculture building's workshop room when sparks from the torch ignited a gas motor. The flames spread quickly throughout the large classroom.

A tank of gasoline inside the workshop building did not explode, although almost everything else was destroyed.

Dr. James Elliott, the only person injured in the fire, was burned slightly on the arm, but required no hospitalization.

As firemen sought to contain the fire, students fanned out along the hillside leading to the main campus to guard against the possibility of stray sparks igniting other buildings.

Personnel from the Army Job Corps Training Center and firemen from nearby New Braunfels also fought the fire in a high, chilly north wind.

Planned Suicide Done Out Of Love For Man

CHEWS LANDING, N.J. (UPI) — "Why? — Because we love our fellow men enough to sacrifice our lives so that they will try to find the ecstasy in just being alive."

That—in their own words—was why two high school students martyred themselves by running carbon monoxide into a parked car on moratorium day.

Officials say it was planned at least a day in advance. The two—Craig Bdaiali and Joan Fox, both 17—left 24 neatly hand-printed letters addressed to parents, friends, and officials of Highland Regional High School, where they were both seniors.

Both sets of parents have maintained a calm and dignified silence about the double suicide. Close friends are too choked up to try to explain it. Casual acquaintances cannot understand it.

The two were found Thursday morning in a car packed on a dirt road about 10 miles from Glassboro, N.J., where President Lyndon B. Johnson met Russian Premier Alexei Kosygin two years ago and where Wednesday Bdaiali and Miss Fox attended a moratorium rally at Glassboro State College.

A friend of Miss Fox who saw the couple after the rally—the last person known to have seen them alive—said Joan told her she had been disappointed by the protest meeting because the participants were acting too much in the spirit of fun.

The friend talked to Miss Fox at about 4 p.m. Wednesday. Camden County Medical Investigator Thomas R. Daley said the two were asphyxiated between 6 and 9 p.m. Wednesday by fumes from the car's exhaust, carried into the vehicle by a vacuum-cleaner hose run through a hole in the floor.

"Why?" asked the suicide note made public by Daley early today.

"Because we see that people just won't do and say what they feel..."

"If just one person is touched enough to do something constructive and peaceful with his life then maybe our death was worth it."

Dissident Priests Disband Protest To Change Church

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The leaders of the protest. Dissident priests disbanded their weeklong protest for change in the Roman Catholic Church today amid signs they had more sympathizers than expected in the World Synod of Bishops.

The 200 European priests had conducted what they called a "shadow synod" demanding such liberal reforms as more policy-making power for the clergy and permission for priests to marry and take part in politics.

Spanish, French, Dutch and Austrian priests reported they got sympathetic hearings from their cardinals in the synod. Pope Paul VI refused to meet

Church sources reported liberal pressure within the synod building, with Pope Paul's agenda for discussion on strong papal power all but dead despite what had been expected to be strong conservative support.

Cardinal Julius Dopfner of Munich, Germany, told his synod Thursday that the Pope's agenda should be put aside and discussion should be based instead on a more liberal statement of doctrine.

The Pope told the first session of the synod Monday that he was willing to give the clergy a stronger voice but would not allow his power to be eroded.

Soviets Bring Second Ship Back

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union brought the second of three spaceships back from earth orbit today. The three men of Soyuz 7 made an easy pinpoint landing amid a group of scientists, sports commissioners, friends and journalists.

The craft, launched Sunday, was the second to return from space in two days and left only Soyuz 8 with its two-man crew still in orbit. Soyuz 6 and its two cosmonauts made a soft landing in the same recovery area on Thursday.

The official Tass announcement said today's touchdown came at 12:26 p.m. Moscow time (5:26 a.m. EDT) about 193 miles northwest of Karaganda. The crewmen "felt excellent." Tass said, and a preliminary medical checkup showed they had endured their flight in good condition.

"At the landing site, the cosmonauts were given a warm welcome by members of the search group, sports commissioners, friends and journalists," Tass said. Their mission was designed to pave the way for a manned orbital station.

The agency said the crew fired retrorockets at a planned time, the descent and "soft landing" engines ensured a smooth landing.

control in Baikonur, Soviet television showed a row of military controllers breaking into applause, shouting and waving as the successful return announcement was made.

The spacecraft came down close to its present target, and helicopters spotted its huge parachute canopy as it drifted down on a barren plain flecked with early winter snow. By the time the heat-sealed capsule was lowered the last few feet, greeters were already there awaiting the crewmen.

Tass said the crew carried out "an extensive program of scientific-technological and medico-biological investigations."

PAMPA FINE ARTS ASS'N

Arts-Crafts Fair To Feature The Beautiful

At 10 a.m. Saturday, the Pampa Fine Arts Association will open the doors at 214 N. Cuyler and the annual two-day Arts and Crafts Fair will be underway.

The Fair will be in progress from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The admission is free. The public is invited to stop by at their leisure to view the exhibits and to attend any or all of the craft demonstrations.

The Fair is attracting exhibits from some of Pampa's and the Panhandle's top artists and craftsmen, according to PFA president Jimmy Thompson.

There will be artisans here from Amarillo, Borger, Dodge City, Kan., Tucumcari, N.M., Hereford, Miami, Canyon, Perryton, as well as Pampa.

Mrs. Bill Fraser is general chairman in charge of arrangements for the event, which has been staged for the past two years.

Hall; Sculptures of Spheres in Stone, 2 p.m. to 3 p.m., by C.W. Stowell; Jewel Making, 3 p.m. to 4 p.m., by Mrs. C.W. Stowell; Sponge Painting, 4 p.m. to 5 p.m., by Mrs. Olive Hills.

Hours for Sunday demonstrations are 1 p.m. to 2 p.m., Gold Leafing, by Pat Howell and Lil Hall; 2 p.m. to 3 p.m., Wood Carving by Marion George; 3 p.m. to 4 p.m., China Painting by Mrs. Olive Hills; 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. Metal Sculpture by Phil Hall, Texas Tech student.

Also featured at the Fair will be the Gourmet Food Booth featuring fine foods made by some of Pampa's finest cooks.

There are two divisions of this section, according to Mrs. Fraser: one of baked goods and the other of preserves, relishes and other delicacies.

Mrs. Fraser said, "The Gourmet Foods Booth is a vital part of the Arts and Crafts Fair as it is the Association's greatest source of income from the Fair."

Mrs. Fraser added, "There will be plenty of free parking on the Pampa Junior High School campus."

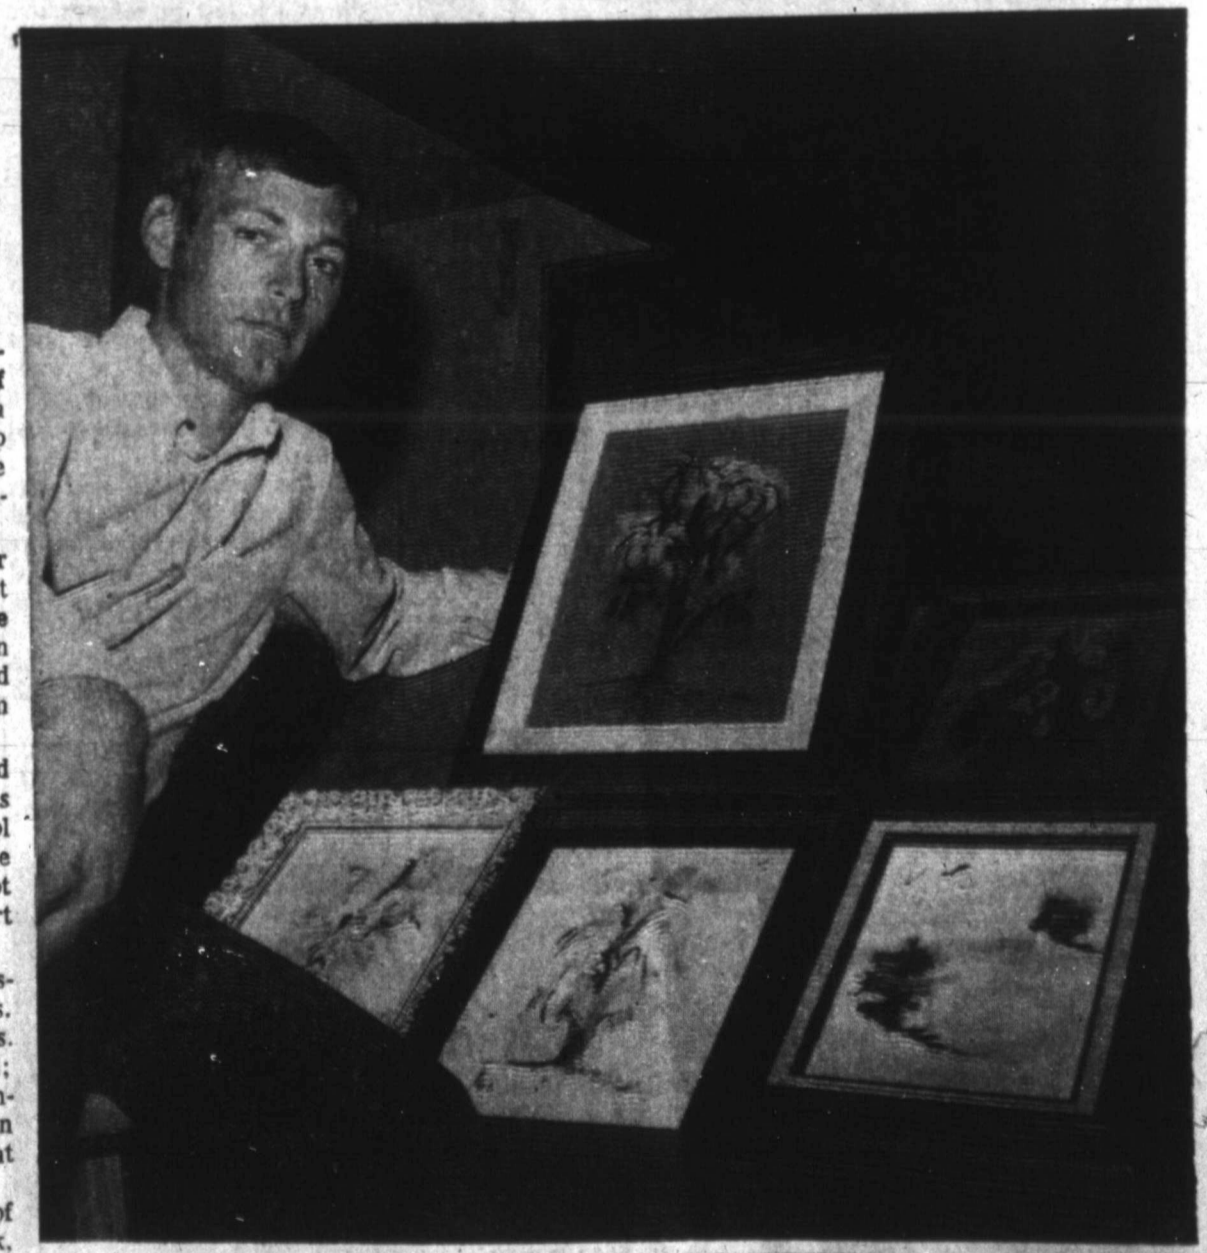

arts and crafts sold will be reinvested in future activities of the Association, since it is a non-profit organization, set up solely for the enjoyment and the benefit of community participation.

Special exhibits at the Fair will include the Foreign Student Art exhibit, sponsored by the Pampa Rotary Club and an exhibit from Mrs. Floyd Sackett's art students from Pampa High School.

Participating artists and craftsmen will include students from Alva Satterwhite's School of Art; members of the Amateur Arts Club; Paint Pot and Piddle Club; Pampa Art Club.

Individual artists and craftsmen participating include Mrs. L.R. Barnes of Perryton; Mrs. Herbert Friemal of Hereford; Mrs. J.V. Gallegos of Tucumcari, N.M.; Mrs. Marion George, Lil Hall and Pat Howell, Phil Hall of Lubbock;

Also, Mrs. Howard Johnson of Hereford, Mrs. Don Minnick, Mrs. Mildred Prince; Eura Saul of Miami; Mr. and Mrs. C.W. (See FAIR, Page 2)

AMONG THE exhibitors at the Pampa Fine Arts Association's Arts and Crafts Fair will be Texas Tech art major Phil Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Hall, Jr., east of city who will be showing wet on wet water color painting and medal sculptures. The Fair located at 214 N. Cuyler; will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. (Staff Photo)

10 IN-SERVICE SESSIONS

Law Officers Will Be Tutored Here

Law enforcement officers from all over the Panhandle area will convene in Pampa for a two-week in-service training session Oct. 27 to Oct. 31—and Nov. 3 to Nov. 7, conducted by top-flight instructors from various law agencies throughout the state of Texas.

All sessions will be held in the Palm Room of city hall under the auspices of the Gray County Sheriff's Department and the Pampa Police Department.

Sheriff Rufe Jordan said the purpose of the training is to upgrade the law enforcement profession and to assist officers in acquiring 48 hours of the 140 hours now required for certification as decreed by the state legislature.

"The new requirement becomes effective after Sept. 1, 1970," Jordan said.

Class session will cover every phase of law enforcement including arrest techniques, handling of prisoners to moot court and testifying.

Invitations have been sent out to 32 agencies in the Panhandle area inviting department heads or their representatives, Jordan said.

Jordan said there is a "grandfather's clause" in the new law that makes law men and women employed prior to September 1970 exempt from certification.

The county sheriff said he was in complete agreement with the new requirement. "Law enforcement should be on a professional basis and new officers should be certified to insure continued efficient crime detection and prevention."

Jordan said the school has been endorsed by Wallace Beasley of Austin, director of Commission on Law Enforcement, Standards and Education.

Sessions will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday Oct. 27-31. The second week's session will get underway Nov. 3 and continue through Nov. 7 for the same hours.

Instructors will be from Amarillo, Lubbock, Houston and Austin.

Egypt To Accuse U.S. Of Direct Aggression

By United Press International The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahran said today Egypt will deliver an immediate protest to the U.N. Security Council accusing the United States of direct aggression against the Arab world. The newspaper said Egypt interpreted a recent U.S. Embassy spokesman's statement in Tel Aviv to mean that American military personnel are serving in Israeli forces and possibly flying Israeli warplanes. The spokesman was reported to have said that Americans who become Israeli citizens can retain their U.S. citizenship even if they serve in the Israeli armed forces. Al Ahran said the Cairo government had instructed U.N. ambassador Mohamed Hassan el Zayyat to immediately tell Lord Caradon, this month's Security Council president, that Egypt regarded the statement as revealing "direct American aggression against Egypt and other Arab countries." According to reports from Tel Aviv, the U.S. spokesman made the statement while confirming a report in an Israeli newspaper which said Americans no longer lose their citizenship if they serve in the armed forces of another country. In Washington, administration sources said the United States does not look with favor upon the idea of American citizens serving in the armed forces of a foreign country, but, because of recent Supreme Court rulings, apparently cannot prevent it. It was emphasized that the laws concerning loss of retention of citizenship are general and there is no specific application to Israel or any other country.

Al Ahran said the Cairo government had instructed U.N. ambassador Mohamed Hassan el Zayyat to immediately tell Lord Caradon, this month's Security Council president, that Egypt regarded the statement as revealing "direct American aggression against Egypt and other Arab countries."

Colorado Springs Club Files $112,500 Suit Against Hope

DENVER (UPI)—The Pikes Peak Turf Club of Colorado Springs Thursday filed a $112,500 lawsuit against comedian Bob Hope in U.S. District court here. The club accused Hope of breach of contract as a result of three shows it had scheduled in the Colorado Springs area last June. The club said it paid $37,500 in advance to Hope and stopped payment on a check for an equal amount after he cancelled his performance. Hope did one of three scheduled shows before leaving Colorado because of the death of his brother, George, in California. Television star Danny Thomas flew to Colorado Springs to substitute for Hope in the remaining two shows. The money sought includes $100,000 in damages which the club said it lost in refunds and for having to cancel its entire summer showcase program.

Park's Future Rests On Voting Outcome

SEOUL (UPI) — President Park Chung-hee voted early in the day today in a national referendum that will decide the fate of his pro-American administration as well as his own political future. An estimated 10 million South Koreans were going to the polls to vote on a constitutional amendment that would permit the 52-year-old Park to seek a third four-year term as president in 1971. Park, who came to power in a 1960 coup, has promised to resign if the voters reject the amendment. He has left his campaigning to members of his ruling Democratic Republican party. They say his continued leadership is necessary to maintain political and economic stability and to cope with the threat of continued aggression from Communist North Korea. Voting at a polling station near his official residence two hours after the polls opened at 7 a.m. Park appeared confident of victory but declined to make any comment on the referendum. If voters make a mark under a circle on the ballot, it means they are in favor of the amendment. If they place a mark under an X, it means they are opposed. Those opposed to Park say the voting procedure gives the government a psychological advantage. "Every school child knows a circle on an examination paper means the answer is correct and an X means it is wrong," one said. The opposition, led by the New Democratic party, says threats that the government would lapse into economic chaos if Park is not president is a form of political blackmail.

Nixon Schedules Radio Report To Nation Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon reports to the nation by radio today on the rising cost of living and his appeals to government, business and labor to help curb inflation. His radio address was scheduled for 4 p.m. EDT. It follows a mixed bag of economic indicators showing that while there are some signs the administration's anti-inflation drive is beginning to cool the economy, inflation still gnaws away at Americans' purchasing power. There are indications the President will make a strong appeal to business and labor to follow the government's lead of fiscal restraint and voluntarily keep rein on price increases and wage demands. The White House's leading economic advisers predicted Thursday that the cost of living and high interest rates would go down sometime soon. Government spokesmen for some time have been pointing to signs the administration's anti-inflation moves were beginning to take effect. Reports from the Commerce Department Thursday showed that the rate of growth of the Gross National Product in the third quarter of the year and the annual rate of housing starts in September were both up, indicating no cooling of the economy. However, signs showing a cooling came from the Federal Reserve Thursday, showing industrial production down slightly in September, from the Commerce Department Wednesday saying the rate of growth of personal income was down; and from the Labor Department last week, showing unemployment up. Nixon's decision to report directly to the people came after high level White House discussions during the past several days on the state of the economy and how to curb inflation. The President called in Democratic appropriators and finance chairmen from Congress Thursday and told them he must have their cooperation in keeping down federal spending. He cited bills passed by one house or the other which he said would undermine his budget surplus.

Aubrey Jones To Attend Conference Of TAAO In Dallas

Aubrey Jones, city tax assessor-collector and a past president of the Texas Association of Assessing Officers, was to leave this afternoon to attend the 30th annual conference of the TAAO in Dallas. Past presidents are being honored this year at the conference which opens Saturday night and runs through Tuesday at the Hotel Adolphus. Jones was president of the statewide association in 1952. The closing banquet Tuesday night will mark the 30th anniversary of TAAO with past presidents as special guests. In 1959 Russia claimed to have taken pictures of the far side of the moon for the first time.

Marshall Eldredge Joins Police Force

Pampa Police Chief Jim Conner announced today the hiring of a new patrolman, Marshall Glenn Eldredge, 25, of 1030 Fisher. Eldredge, who began his duties Thursday night, will work the 11 p.m.-7 a.m. shift. A thought for the day: Thomas Aquinas said, "Three things are necessary for the salvation of man: to know what he ought to believe, to know what he ought to desire and to know what he ought to do."

Henry Kuykendall

Funeral services for Henry Clay Kuykendall, 65, will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday in Duengel Funeral Home Chapel. The Rev. Floyd Burdett, of the Skellytown Community Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery. Mr. Kuykendall died Thursday in Highland General Hospital, after undergoing surgery a few days ago. He was born Dec. 5, 1903, at Texola, Okla., and had operated a farm near Pampa since 1923. He was a member of Central Baptist Church. His wife died in June, 1968. Survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Phyllis Looper, Skellytown, and Mrs. Jean Allison, Pampa and four grandchildren.

'Unpoliced Goldmine'

Widely overlooked in media coverage of the recent Medicare-Medicaid hearings of the Senate Finance Committee was a telling indictment—not only of unscrupulous doctors—but of federal medicine in general.

While heralded by liberal proponents as a foolproof plan for inexpensive medical care for the needy before its passage in 1965, the current federal health care programs drawn up by a Democratic Congress and federal bureaucrats were characterized by witnesses as being in effect an unpoliced goldmine for the unscrupulous and that its outrageous costs to the taxpayers greatly outweigh any marginal benefits to the poor and the aged.

Medicare-Medicaid costs, the committee found, have skyrocketed totally out of proportion to the number of people served under the program.

Michael Stern, a staff member of the committee, stated that although Medicaid costs are estimated to rise from $3.3 billion to $5.5 billion in the period 1968-1970, the number of people served under the program will only rise from 8.6 million to 10.2 million. Thus, Stern noted, the cost increase of 57 per cent is about three times the increase of the number of people served during the period.

According to Sen. John Williams (R-De), ranking minority member of the committee, this fantastic mushrooming of Medicare-Medicaid costs which has exploded the federal health care budget from $1.3 billion in 1965 to an estimated 15.5 billion in the current fiscal year, is due to extremely lax rules and administration of the program. Williams noted that the fees set under federal Medicare average as much as two to four times the maximums of the non-governmental Blue Shield program.

John Venemen, under secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, revealed starting evidence of administrative lack of control of the sprawling programs. "In '66, he told the committee, "we had 32 people to supervise the entire Medicaid program in the nation. Today we have 100." Furthermore, Venemen said there is no authority under the present laws to deny reimbursement to a licensed practitioner, even one who has demonstrated a clear pattern of fraudulent activity. (HEW Secretary Robert Finch is known to be extremely unhappy with the four-year performance of the entire Medicare-Medicaid program; and, according to informed Capitol Hill sources, he is said to be considering proposing a major overhaul of the entire federal health care system).

Jane Constantine—another member of the committee staff—confirmed Venemen's analysis of the situation. "The administrative laxity which we found on Medicaid is just omnipresent; it is all over the place. There is very little control of the program at either federal state or local levels with respect to cost control and utilization." The conclusion: "Medicare is both victim and cause of inflation." The result of this hastily drafted legislation and ultra-lax administration the committee found is an unprecedented opportunity for greedy medical operators to indulge themselves at taxpayers' expense.

Sen. Russell Long catalogued several cases of flagrant abuse including that of one general practitioner who billed Medicare for $38,000 in 1968 for house calls to only 49 patients. At $9 a call this works out to a visit every third day for every one of his patients for an entire year. The senator noted: "Who says you can't get a doctor to make a house call any more?"

In short, Congress—and the President—should think twice before pushing any extravagant new federal health programs.

H. L. Hunt Writes

UNFORTUNATE SITUATION

The record of United States foreign policy during the period since World War II casts considerable doubt as to whether the State Department can be relied upon to protect the real interests of Republic USA. State Department personnel, in their contacts with representatives of nations opposing U.S. interests, have failed repeatedly to enhance the position of our nation.

Such has been the case under four administrations before the present one; which indicates that the respective Secretaries of State under these administrations may have had less to do with our disastrous policies than some of the "professional" career subordinates. The upper echelon career men in the State Department, those just under the levels of political appointees, are thoroughly entrenched in the pyramidal bureaucracy of the Department, and their subordinates compose the massive base of the structure. It's easy to see how loyalty to a temporary Secretary or to the policies of an elected administration would be tempered by the desire to "get along" with the career men whose authority continues beyond elections.

Given this situation, any Secretary of State bent on reform of the disastrous policies in the Department would find tough sledding in trying to surmount the opposition of the entrenched clique who are wedded to the curious policies of the past.

Those policies enslaved Eastern Europe, China and half of Korea. They let Cuba fall to a demagogue known to be a Communist. The Monroe Doctrine has been suspended, imperiling the rest of Latin America. A coalition government was established, which, predictably, moved Laos into the Red orbit. Serious consideration should be given to making drastic changes in the make-up of the State Department if improvement is to be expected.

With Some Reservation

By INJUN WOODY

Now news has come out that will revolutionize the whole reply-tore of alibi lugs who have been out on the hog-wrestle the night before and got illuminated.

Nearly everybody knows that wine will give you a headache if you stay with it long enough, but now this scientist has come up with the thought that you can get the same effects from eating chocolates, cheese or herring! Now ain't that the goat's whistle!

To put it simply, Dr. Michael Anthony states that the substance in blood which prevents the vessels from dilating or constricting too much lowers and brings about body changes which cause migraine. When this substance drops it causes painful pressure on the blood vessels nerve ends.

Also, Anthony has discovered, carriers of this substance include chocolates, cheese, wine and herring.

What a great discovery for the ham-hangers in the office who might have a head from too much caper juice! All they have to say is, "I was down at this sea-food place, see, and, boy! did I get too much herring!"

Or it might be better to emote in tones distressful, "My dear old aunt from Wisconsin sent me this big box of cheses and just might I ate the whole thing. My head is banging with a ci ee-se-hangover!"

If the boss seems to put the chill on you when you offer either of these two outs you can revert to the heavy head caused by "too many chocolates." After all, every household has chocolates and it is not the least difficult to develop a piercing migraine from them. Why, only a handful will do it.

Here's Footnote On Chappaquiddick

(Wall Street Journal)

The Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court is trying to decide what might be done with the legal residue of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's accident on Chappaquiddick Island. Mishandling of the case so far may preclude any good resolution on this late date, but one persistent overtone particularly disturbs us.

These columns have not heretofore commented on any aspect of the affair, and we have not the least intention of sitting in judgment on Sen. Kennedy's personal conduct. Our argument, rather, is with the principles personified by Justice Paul C. Reardon, the member of the court who has been a long-standing critic of press handling of judicial proceedings, and who cited the "gathering crescendo" of publicity in delaying the proposed inquest into the death on Chappaquiddick.

The real problem has not been a crescendo of publicity in the press but a crescendo of bungling in the legal process. The current problem would have been prevented if an autopsy and inquest had been held before any charges were filed, if local law enforcement officials had interrogated the senator as they would have anyone else, if the authorities had not been quite so willing to absolve the senator of anything beyond leaving the scene of the accident.

Prompt action could have disposed of the legal questions in a definitive way. This, not so incidentally, would have opened the way for the no-holds-barred press conference needed to satisfy the public's entirely legitimate curiosity about one of its most prominent national leaders. Sen. Kennedy's intimates report him eager to tell the whole story—certainly he must regret glossing over parts of it in his too clever national television speech. But the pending legal proceedings make such a confrontation difficult if not impossible.

Since the obvious legal steps were not taken promptly, some sort of extraordinary proceeding became almost inevitable. Justice had not taken its normal course, so some other course must be found, at least, if the public is to believe that the Massachusetts legal system has the same standards for Edward Moore as for Edward Moore Kennedy. Naturally, complications and argument quickly arose over what precise form an extraordinary proceeding ought to take.

If the Massachusetts justices squarely face the fact that this is an extraordinary case, they might be able to redeem the mistakes so far. It really ought not to be beyond their ingenuity to devise rules that would let the Senator tell his story, let the story be adequately probed, tested and defended, and above all let the public know an honest attempt at justice is being made.

The danger is that the justices will convince themselves the problem is "prejudicial publicity," that the villain of the piece is the press, which in fact has only exposed and dramatized the bungling that is the real problem. If they so decide they will accordingly "solve" the problem by dropping a curtain of secrecy around the proceedings. Then—for all the world will know—the bungling can continue safe from prying eyes.

The case of Sen. Kennedy, in fact, underlines some of the problems in restricting information on judicial proceedings as an antidote to prejudicial publicity, which is the approach recently adopted by the American Bar Association on the recommendation of a committee headed by Justice Reardon. Almost by definition, the problem arises in extraordinary cases. So often these cases—the ones involving a powerful person, a suspect confession, a political crime—are precisely the ones in which the clearest breathing of information is advisable in the interest of public confidence in the judicial system itself.

Precisely because such cases are extraordinary, also it becomes almost impossible to lay down advance rules on what information should be public and what withheld. When the bar claims its rules can handle the problem, we think immediately of New Orleans Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison. His statements incident to the prosecution of businessman Clay Shaw certainly were the most egregious font of pre-trial prejudice in this decade. Yet while the case was going on, the smear came from the press, not from the bar. And even after it was over, nothing seems to have come of suggestions to discipline Mr. Garrison within the bar.

On the record so far, the strictures against prejudicial publicity by the courts and bar afford no protection to someone like Clay Shaw, a particularly vulnerable man. Now will the courts rush to shield from publicity a man not only wealthy and famous, but one who has already commanded national television time to tell his side of the case?

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANSTADT

Injuries to the Eye Are Serious Problem

Accidental injuries to the eye are still a serious problem. A large proportion of them result from the careless handling of BB guns, sling shots, arrows, sharp sticks, scissors and other pointed objects. Teach your child never to point a weapon at another person and never to run while carrying sharp objects.

For a burn of the eye, whether caused by a flame or a chemical, immediate flooding with cool tap water will minimize the damage. This can be done by lowering the eye into water held in a dish or the cupped hands. It should be continued for 15 minutes, then the eye should be seen by a doctor.

If your child must wear glasses, you should ask for safety lenses. They are tough and shatterproof and have saved the sight of many persons who were wise enough to use them.

If a speck of foreign matter gets in the eye it can often be removed by lifting the upper lid and pulling it gently down over the lower lid. If this maneuver and the tears do not wash it out, flush the eye gently with a few drops of lukewarm water. If this fails, bandage the eye to keep the child from rubbing it and let your doctor see it.

Often when a child complains that he has something in his eye and the eye is inflamed, he is suffering from conjunctivitis. The doctor should determine what treatment is best. Most of the above is applicable to persons of all ages.

Q — I am concerned about our granddaughters, 4 and 5. They are allowed to sit close to their color TV set. Is there any danger to their eyes from this?

A — Pediatricians have reported that TV viewing for several hours a day may cause what has been called the tired-child syndrome—lack of pep, poor appetite, fitful sleep and, in some cases, vague pains. A series of 30 such children were denied access to TV and all their symptoms cleared up in two or three weeks.

Most children may be allowed TV viewing in moderation—30 to 60 minutes five or six days a week. At best, excessive viewing has a damaging effect on a child's creative ability. Damage to his eyes is harder to prove but most authorities, to be on the safe side, recommend sitting at least eight feet from the screen.

Congressional Logjam Slows Navy Buildup

ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON — The Navy, caught in the Congressional appropriations logjam, has been given a go-ahead for only two of its six proposed conversions of Polaris nuclear submarines to carry the more sophisticated Poseidon missile.

Additional conversions may be funded later. For the present, however, the cut-back and confusion will serve to illustrate the serious administrative problems which arise in government departments when Congress defaults on its appropriation deadlines.

The request for six Polaris conversions was included in the original defense budget submitted in January. The Senate has voted to authorize six conversions and so has the House, but that authorization is just clearing Congress.

More importantly, no funds have been specifically appropriated for any of the conversions, and no such congressional action is imminent.

In that difficult position, and with one Polaris submarine already sailing toward a scheduled Poseidon overhaul, the Navy began asking questions at the Capitol a couple of weeks ago. The informal word, from the Committee chairmen involved, was to go ahead with two of the projects for now.

Unfunded government departments are being tied over under a continuing resolution which carries forward most federal programs at last year's level. The Navy was given money for only two of the conversions last year. Thus two more.

Some senators and congressmen, headed by Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., of the Senate Appropriations Committee, have been dragging their feet on the conversion program until the Poseidon is tested and fully proven. The Pentagon, however, wants to complete the conversion of 31 of the Polaris submarines by mid-1976.

A STRIKE OUT — In theory, Congress is required to approve all of the regular money bills each year by July 1—the start of a new fiscal year. In practice, Congress has not met, or even approached, that deadline in recent years.

This year it was a complete strike out. Not a one of the 13 regular Appropriations bills had cleared Congress by July 1. (Only one of them, funding the Department of Interior, had been sent to the White House by October 1.)

For a vital government program, this sort of budget uncertainty creates problems, even if carry-on funds are available under a continuing resolution. In the Polaris program, for example, the Navy's problem is not simply whether to overhaul four submarines or not to overhaul them.

The missile-firing Polaris subs must be scheduled for periodic overhauls which involve, among other things, replacement of their reactor cores—their nuclear fuel elements. The Poseidon refits have been planned so that both jobs can be accomplished concurrently.

So the Navy must decide, as the uncertainty continues, whether to give certain submarines a regular overhaul and put them at the end of the line for their Poseidon refit. Otherwise it would be necessary, at some point, to deplete temporarily the number of patrolling submarines which provide the nation's most effective nuclear deterrent.

REVISION "DESIRABLE" — The House is now expected to consider the defense appropriation bill (including the Polaris conversions) early in November. Senate action will follow at once, but Senate consideration is expected to involve a replay of some of the controversies which delayed the authorization measure for eight weeks.

It is therefore unlikely that the actual appropriation for a specific number of Polaris conversions will have been approved much before December 1. Five months will have elapsed; the fiscal year will be almost half over before any detailed schedule or the conversions can finally be issued by the Navy Department.

All this adds up to a pretty good argument for the proposal, previously discussed here, to make the government's fiscal, or business, year coincide with the calendar. That plan is making some progress, but there is not yet any groundswell of support.

Phillip S. Hughes, deputy director of the budget bureau, is the latest official to express support for the plan. Congressional Leaders and the important Senate and House Appropriations Chairmen are also understood to favor some such change in the appropriations timetable.

In a letter to Rep. William L. Dawson, D-Ill., chairman of the House government operations Committee, Hughes lists "merits" of a calendar year budget, including "less hurried" Congressional action and decisions more easily comprehended by the public. He commented that the plan would have some disadvantages, including a greater likelihood of budget actions by political "lame ducks."

"In summary," said Hughes, "we conclude that changing the fiscal year to coincide with the calendar year, particularly if the change were accompanied by a provision for a later budget submission date, might well be desirable."

He said the Budget Bureau will look into the timing for such a change and study the lawbook changes which would be necessary, for example, for annual programs which now expire on July 1.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION: — Isn't there enough money taken in from Social Security taxes to give the ones who reach the age of 65 a living wage. If it were used for that cause? What part of the Social Security taxes are paid back to those who live to be 65?

ANSWER: — In the first place, it is difficult to determine what is a "living wage." One person might find a small sum sufficient. Others might not feel they can live on two or three times as much.

In the second place, receipts from the Social Security taxes are only slightly higher than expenditures. For instance, in fiscal 1969, receipts in the old-age and survivors' insurance trust fund were estimated at $27,188,000,000, compared with expenditures of $24,567,000,000, so that the total gain was approximately $2½ billion, which is supposed to be accumulating for future payments to beneficiaries. This amount of "excess" collection, however, has been spent already and replaced with federal government obligations, which can be redeemed only by taxing the people to raise the money. Dr. Paul L. Polrot in the October issue of the Freeman points out that, "over the years from 1936 through mid-1968 the federal government collected some $219 billion in the name of social security from those younger persons who had found jobs in covered occupations. Most of that money has gone in benefit payments to those who had retired. The balance, perhaps an eighth of the total (which is unrealistically referred to as the OASDI Trust Fund) has been spent for other purposes of government. In other words, not a penny of the amount any worker pays as social security taxes is saved or invested to yield a return to him when and if he retires. Such payment, if he ever gets it, still must come from those younger workers currently employed and subject to taxation."

"The only way the federal government could increase payments to recipients would be to increase taxes, either directly or indirectly.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Fred Astaire joins the cast of ABC-TV's "It Takes a Thief" tonight, making the first of a number of appearances as the father-of-the-series weekly headliner, Robert Wagner.

The series casts Wagner as a master thief paroled to practice his trade for a secret agency of the government. And Fred loves this type of lighthearted caper stuff. It fits his personality like a casual blue blazer, and, unlike many stars, he is not at all patronizing or pretentious about appearing in a video series.

"I'm always flattered to be asked," he said over a drink at his home. "This is an out-and-out ball to do, I love to work with Bob. He's a heck of a nice guy, dedicated, and I've known him since he's a kid."

Sheer Entertainment
"This is a show that is sheer entertainment, which there's too little of, and I'm simply doing it because I like it. I don't have to think about any musical side of it, and there's no dancing."

The all-time dancing master added: "It's a decent kind of role. I will have no part of any of this permissive stuff going around in films today."

Along these lines, Fred discussed a recent movie he made, "Midas Run." He said: "I enjoyed doing the picture, and the association with everybody. But the producer felt it was necessary to get in a nude love scene. Not only did this do the picture no good—it killed it. The movie had to sacrifice other values to make room for the scene. And it couldn't get a family rating."

Got letters
"I got letters from people saying, 'How can you be in a picture like that?' But I didn't even know the thing they complained about was going to be in the picture."

Fred decided to go into "It Takes a Thief" after Wagner called him last year, asked him to join and then persisted.

"I said, 'All right, let's see a script.' It looked okay, and I said 'I'll do it.' I only do what's fun to do, or I won't do anything," said the dancer-actor.

And quite obviously, much of what is in movies today does not bear the stamp of fun for him. He recalls, for example: "There was a picture I was asked to be in that had an 11-year-old junkie. I said, 'That's it. I won't read any more of the script.'"

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—In the absence of any constructive news, the market's broad rally must be regarded at this point as technical in nature, Diamond, Turk & Co. says. But if the next few months bring "a breakthrough in the clouds overhanging the 820-840 area in the Dow industrial average, October might see the last of the bear market, in a "repeat performance of 1962 and 1966," the firm adds.

The "most likely preliminary prognosis for the U.S. economy next year," according to Paime, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, is a combination of inflation and recession. Inflationary tendencies would reflect the administration's lack of success in preventing further wage and price increases and a tendency toward recession would result from the administration's success in curtailing real economic growth, leading to a decline in both production and profits, the firm adds. The time to invest is now, the firm observes, because it is impossible to time the Federal Reserve Board's move to ease restraint and because once institutional investors enter the market it will be extremely difficult for individual investors to "get aboard."

Once each year Britain's two largest political parties gather at the seaside resort of Brighton for conferences which, if not the greatest show on earth, are just about Britain's closest thing to it.

The Conservatives led by Edward Heath, have just completed theirs. The Laborites under Prime Minister Harold Wilson met earlier.

Particular significance was attached to this year's conference because the smell of elections is in the air and both Heath and Wilson were off and running.

Wilson happily discussed Britain's first balance of payments surplus since the Laborites took over the government in 1964 and declared that millions of tourists were coming to Britain each year to see a socialist government at work.

The Manchester Guardian called Wilson a "dance hall comedian," and at the Conservative conference, Heath declared "they (the Labor government) have worn out their knees crawling around the treasuries of the world with a begging-bowl."

These were among the pleasantries in preparation for elections whose only certainty is that they must be held by April, 1971, but probably will be held sometime in 1970.

Labor party conferences usually are tumultuous affairs, with lines drawn between the intellectuals and the unions which give them their financial support.

This year the Conservative conference also was marked by unusual discord.

Delegates embarrassed the party leadership by passing a resolution calling for restoration of hanging as the penalty for murder over the leaders' opposition, and barely failed to pass resolutions calling for a tougher party stand against immigration by blacks and Asians from commonwealth countries.

Discomforting also to the leadership was a public opinion poll showing that in the last month Labor had cut the Conservative lead among voters from 18 to 11 per cent.

In its own conference, the Labor party leadership also had taken its lumps.

The delegates cheered Chancellor of the Exchequer Roy Jenkins when he declared there must be no relaxation of British austerity and then promptly passed a resolution calling for an end to restraints.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The 25-cent tour of the Capitol soon may be free. A House subcommittee on congressional reform recommended this Wednesday as well as other changes including opening House committee hearings to coverage by cameramen and the broadcasting industry. Subcommittee Chairman B. F. Sisk, D-Calif., said hearings would begin Wednesday on a bill embodying the proposals.

FIRST THINGS FIRST
SALEM, Ore. (UPI)—Police blocked a Salem intersection Wednesday to allow the Vietnam moratorium parade to pass.

A woman motorist got out of her car and, with panic in her voice, told the motorcycle officer on duty, "My little boy has to go to the bathroom. Can't you let me through?"

The policeman did.

A thought for the day: Euripides said, "In case of dissension, never dare to judge till you've heard the other side."

DEAR ABBY: Every time a letter appears in your column from someone who hates cigarettes, and puts down cigarette smokers, my husband accuses me of writing it. You had such a letter in your column recently and since I got the "credit" for writing it, even though I didn't, I am now putting in my two cents-worth.

I'll put it in the form of a DEAR ABBY letter:

Dear Abby: If all your lovely new furniture already has cigarette burns in it, and your husband always smells like he's been fighting a fire in a tobacco warehouse, and the smell of stale tobacco on his breath kills all inspiration for romance, are those sufficient grounds for divorce?

My husband's kisses taste terrible. He is a very affectionate man, and he knows how I feel about his smoking because I have told him that that is the reason for my holding out in the romance department, so why in Heaven's name does he continue to smoke?

HOLDING OUT: DEAR HOLDING OUT: Because your husband, poor slave, is "hooked" and thus far has been unable to kick the habit. But I don't recommend the "hold out" technique. He might turn to something (or someone) else.

DEAR ABBY: Last week my 20-year-old daughter came back from a two-week beach vacation. She went with two other girls from the office where she works. I happened to notice when she was drying herself after a shower that she was tan all over!

I commented on this, asking where she could get a sun-tan without a bathing suit. She said an overnight "quick tan" lotion was responsible.

I accepted her explanation until this week. While cleaning her room, I knocked a book over, and when I picked it up some snapshots fell out. I was shocked beyond belief when I saw several pictures of my daughter and her girl friends (all of them!) completely naked!

When I asked her about the pictures, she said they had found a deserted section of the beach where they were able to get an all-over tan, and another girl took the pictures.

I told her I would have to tell her father. She said if I did, she would leave home. Please tell me how to handle this.

SHOCKED AND DISAPPOINTED

DEAR SHOCKED: Your daughter is obviously not telling you the whole truth. Don't tell her father. What is needed now is a closer relationship between you and your daughter. Don't be critical of her, don't "punish" her and don't drive her away with threats and admonitions. A mother is helpless to help her daughter unless they remain good friends. And your daughter needs help.

B&PW Club Plans Anniversary Week

Charles McIntosh, with the Gray County Tuberculosis Association, was guest speaker for the Business and Professional Women's Club meeting Tuesday evening in the City Club room.

McIntosh was introduced by Mrs. Finis Jordan, member of the Board of Directors of Gray County Tuberculosis Association.

"Three-fourths of the new cases are not diagnosed because of education failure. There are 30,000,000 Americans infected with tuberculosis germs, and it is not known how many cases are not reported. Pampa is not in the State Tubercular Testing program, but it is important for every person to have the T.B. Test.

Mrs. Earl Eaton, president, presided as members repeated the Pledge of Allegiance, led by Mrs. H. E. Crocker. After Mrs. H. F. McDonald read the minutes, Mrs. L. B. Cornelius gave the treasurer's report.

Council of Clubs report was given by Mrs. H.F. McDonald, Mrs. Lora Dunn, introduced the October "Girl of the Month," Miss Connie Oeen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Owen.

Plans for National Business Women's Week were completed for a kick-off breakfast at 8 a.m. Sunday, at the Black Gold Restaurant, at which time the "Woman of the Year" will be announced. The "Woman of the Year" award is designed to honor business and professional women who have distinguished themselves in their careers and communities.

The breakfast speaker will be Mrs. Finis Jordan. Following the breakfast, the club will attend the First Christian Church as a group.

United Methodist Strikes Blow For Less Spending

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The program council of the United Methodist Church has struck a blow for economy in an area where churches are notoriously prodigal spenders. It has formally recommended that America's second largest Protestant denomination suspend all national conferences, convocations and consultations for a period of 31 months beginning next May 1.

The proposal will be brought before the 1970 Methodist General Conference. Recommendations of the program council carry a lot of weight, since it is the denomination's top coordinating unit.

The idea of a moratorium on church meetings—other than those required to transact the official business of the denomination—was advanced two years ago by Methodist Bishop Gerald Kennedy of Los Angeles.

He pointed out that heavy expenses are involved in bringing together delegates from all parts of the country to spend from three days to a week talking about some issue of current concern.

Various agencies and boards of the United Methodist Church sponsor about 10 such meetings a year, on the average.

Bishop Kennedy calculated that the church could save nearly $2.5 million annually by curbing the ecclesiastical propensity for meeting, making speeches and passing resolutions.

"There are those who will say that some of these meetings do accomplish something and that the church will suffer without them," Bishop Kennedy told a reporter.

"But I am convinced that more than half the money we spend for meetings is wasted. So I think we should eliminate the whole business for a while and see where the slowdown of Christ's business occurs. Then we can proceed cautiously and restore any meetings that really seem to be essential."

Methodists have no monopoly on meetings. A rough survey recently indicated that major U.S. religious bodies sponsor more than 100 national conferences or consultations each year. The drain on church treasuries is conservatively estimated at $30 million annually.

Proponents say these meetings help to stimulate public interest in various matters of Christian concern from Evangelism to the needs of migrant farm workers.

However, the sheer number of such meetings has tended in recent years to reduce the amount of attention that any of them receive for their pronouncements. As a result, there is growing support for Bishop Kennedy's view that churches can find better uses for their money than bringing a lot of people together to pass resolutions.

Anniversary To Be Noted By Baptists

WACO — A luncheon in observance of Baylor University's 125th anniversary will be held during the annual meeting of the Baptist General Convention of Texas Nov. 4-6 in San Antonio.

The luncheon will be at 12:30 p.m. Nov. 6 in the Missions Hall of the San Antonio Convention Center.

Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell, president of Furman University in Greenville, S.C., and a distinguished educator, administrator, author and social scientist, will be the featured speaker.

A Furman graduate, Blackwell became the university's eighth president on Feb. 1, 1965. Prior to his appointment he was president of Florida State University and chancellor of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina.

The title of his address will be "Peculiar Problems and Opportunities Facing Church-Related Universities in the Future."

When ixis are used for a slat screen, they should be nailed to supports spaced no more than three feet apart, applied vertically for a six-foot screen, add a middle rail between top and bottom rails. For a horizontal slat application, use upright 2x4s between 4x4-inch fence posts.

Heartwood western red cedar or pressure treated wood in any other western lumber species assure long-lasting fence posts. Fence boards can be "Commons" for a knotty appearance or "Selects" if only occasional knots or clear stock is desired.

Houston Minister To Preach Here

Rev. Joe Murray, Houston's Market Square Night Life evangelist, will preach revival services Sunday night through Oct. 26 at Barrett Baptist Church, 903 E. Beryl. Rev. Murray is a former associate evangelist to the Reverend Bob Harrington, chaplain of Bourbon Street.

Sunday services are at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Weekday services will be at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. A special city-wide Revival Music Rally is also being sponsored by the church from 2:30 to 4 p.m. Sunday at the Pampa Junior High School parking lot. The public is invited and encouraged to attend.

Directing the music for the revival will be Danny Oliver, music director of the First Baptist Church in Hamlin.

Thirty-two year old Murray operates evangelism headquarters right in the middle of Houston's famed Market Square

Night Club District. His prayer room is on the second floor over the Audition and Bastille Night Clubs. Included in his ministry there is a 24-hour counseling service with emphasis on winning the lost to Christ. A dial-a-devotion and a radio ministry are also in operation.

The Joe Murray Evangelistic Foundation opened in Houston on July 1 of this year.

In his messages preached from God's Word, Rev. Murray will be giving personal illustrations of his dealings with prostitute strippers, homosexuals, narcotics addicts, and lost people from all sections of life.

Before becoming a successful businessman in the pipeline industry, Rev. Murray graduated from Jacksonville High School and attended Texas A&M and Stephen F. Austin State College.

Then the challenge comes to prepare for fresh starts, new advantages. For the young, marriage or development of existing marital relations become feasible.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Better your prospects through social activities. Make the rounds where ever it might prove helpful; spend only a short time on any one contact. Accept an invitation or give a small party in the evening.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Have patience with delays during the weekend. Cooperate with co-workers, friends. Group projects thrive more than expected.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your search for information and new skills is the most important action that can be developed today. Start early and stay with it all day.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Cooperative group efforts, particularly financial ventures should be successful Saturday. Do your share and be sure you get complete receipts for all transactions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Line up your correspondence, phone contacts early. An exploratory journey can bring surprising benefits. Romantic interests advance in the evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Expand and enjoy what you have been working to achieve, with the promise of more to come. Older people cause concern, but the matter is not yet critical. Pursue your studies.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your reading should bring you welcome news on more effective ways of attending your chores. Matters dropped as pertaining to the public ministry work and to further Christian love through association while gaining understanding of Bible prophecies.

Richard Fetter, presiding minister of the Pampa congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, announced this week the Watchtower Society, governing body for the Witnesses, has released plans for their "Right Kind of Ministers" circuit convention to be held in Amarillo.

The gathering will draw about 800 persons from 15 congregations here in the Texas and Oklahoma panhandle area. The dates for the convention are Nov. 21-23. Upon receiving the announcement, members of the Pampa congregation began making plans to attend the convention.

The convention program has been arranged so the delegates can share in the field ministry by making personal calls on the residents of Amarillo while at the assembly. "Our goal," Fetter said, "is to visit, briefly, every home in the Amarillo area during the periods scheduled for this activity. The purpose of the calls will be to prompt and encourage increased Bible reading and offer free home Bible studies, as well, as to extend a personal invitation to share with us in the assembly."

According to Fetter, "the purpose of the convention is to provide the latest instruction

Governor Slates Texas Crop Week

Gov. Preston Smith has designated the week of Oct. 26 to Nov. 1 as Texas CROP Week. The designation has been made by official memorandum recognizing CROP as "the only statewide community food appeal in our state for the overseas programs of our churches." CROP is the Community Hunger Appeal of Church World Service but also handles designations to overseas relief agencies other than Church World Service such as American Friends Service Committee, Catholic Relief Services, Lutheran World Relief, Mennonite Central Committee, and others.

Church World Service, a relief agency of 31 national church bodies, has served in compliance with the Food for Peace Act, and has carried on programs in 50 countries through programs of the churches. It has responsibly handled over 4 billion pounds of material aid during its 23 years including both Food for Peace commodities and those contributed by the people of the United States through CROP and other church appeals.

Here For Revival

A week of special revival services begins Sunday night, Oct. 19 at the First Pentecostal Holiness Church, 1700 Alcock in Pampa. The services will begin nightly at 7:30 p.m.

Guest speaker for this series of meetings is the Rev. George Wasson of Bixby, Okla. A well-known minister of the Pentecostal Holiness Church, Rev. Wasson has served as professor of Religious Education at Southwestern College in Oklahoma City. He's served for many years as a member of the Board of Education for his denomination. He has also served a four-year term as the national secretary of the Sunday School department of the church.

Other positions he has held include a term as Supt. of the Ozarks Conference, and membership on the official board of the East Oklahoma Conference of the denomination; a position which he still holds. A church-building pastor, he's also distinguished as a revivalist and campmeeting speaker.

Special music for the revival will be furnished by local talent, visiting groups from neighboring churches, and on Saturday night, by The Songmen, an outstanding men's quartette from Amarillo.

REVIVAL OR REVOLT

(John 3:1-6)

These are perilous times in which we live. I'm not a pessimist, or alarmist, but rather an optimist. We must also be realists, however, and look with honest eyes at the conditions which now exist.

There is no discipline in the homes or in the schools. Many leave Christ out of 20th century religion. We're modernist, so smart and intellectual that we have almost worked ourselves into nothingness.

But, as I said, I'm an optimist and anyone who is a Christian, should be. The outlook through Jesus Christ is bright. The reason Christ is not bright to many people who claim to be Christians is that they have never received The Lord Jesus as their Savior. When you become a Christian by God's plan, you have a new nature. The Bible calls this change the new birth.

The big question today with almost everyone I have the privilege of talking to is, "how do you get this new birth?" You see, this is really what people are seeking today through alcohol, narcotics, the new morality, etc. Happiness can't be found in any of these Satanic counterfeits for Gods real thing. If you're really looking for peace, joy and real happiness, there has to be a change in your nature.

The first thing you must do is realize that you're lost, separated from God and His righteousness. Then, you must believe that the Son of God is the bridge in that gap. Jesus Christ, who came, lived and died on the cross to take our place in Hell, literally took our sins on His body and suffered for us. You must believe this same Jesus was raised from the grave and that He lives today. A dead Savior can save no one. Christ arose.

Now up to this point, many people believe. But Jesus said you must be born again. You must be born the first time physically and the second time spiritually in order to enter God's Kingdom.

How does this happen? By repenting of your sins and asking Christ to come into your life and save you. You ask Him by Faith. Faith that He is the one that God sent for your salvation.

I deal with all types of people in the night club district of Houston. Show people, prostitutes, hippies, bikers, alcoholics, addicts, etc. Without fail, when any of these people go before God, repent of sin and ask Christ to come into their life, there is a change in their nature. This is the New Birth. Have you ever had that change? If not, right now, go to God in prayer and ask Christ to save you. You will never be sorry that you did.

Backstairs At The Whitehouse

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Backstairs at the White House: Friends of and-or experts on the former first lady tell conflicting versions of the recent encounter between a New York Daily News photographer and Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis as she emerged from a Manhattan movie house where "I Am Curious (Yellow)" was showing.

The more dramatic version, of course, is that the undisputed queen of the beautiful people used judo on the photographer and flipped him over her thigh and onto the sidewalk.

The newspaper must have suspected something of an unusual nature about the former first lady and sent along a second photographer in case the first man missed a dramatic shot. If, indeed, Mrs. Onassis did throw photographer No. 1 over her leg, photographer No. 2 must have been so absorbed by the sight of his colleague in orbit that he was able to capture only the landing on film.

Shows One Thing

The picture, however, did show one thing—an apparent feeling of self-satisfaction and accomplishment on the part of Mrs. Onassis as she entered a waiting automobile.

What is clearly establishable, gymnastics entirely apart, is that Jackie and her husband, Aristotle, did attend a regular showing of "I Am Curious (Yellow)" and that about halfway through the film, Jackie decided she was not that curious and headed for home. Aristotle, however, remained to see more of the film. Although the imported movie has a so-called "X" rating which means for adults only, Mr. Onassis was entirely within his legal rights. He is somewhat over 21 years of age, he obviously had paid good money for his ticket and he wanted to see more of it. While the evidence must be circumstantial, it would seem fairly assumptive that Mrs. Onassis was not as curious as her husband about the film which is controversial, even banned in some areas, because of several sexual scenes.

In any event, the incident does raise several interesting questions, even weeks later:—Why didn't someone rush into the theater and tell Mr. Onassis that his wife was having a physical dust-up with the photos on the sidewalk in front of the theater? Or was he told and he decided that since she apparently had handled the situation and was on her way back to their Fifth Avenue apartment, that he might as well see a few more scenes?—Also, what did Jackie have to say to Aristotle when he eventually showed up at home? The Washington cocktail circuit is having a lot of fun with this one, supplying imagined dialogue.

Washington Window

WASHINGTON (UPI)—High in the air, rushing by jet to three testimonial dinners in California, Sen. George Murphy soared to new heights in legislative wizardry.

In fact, the old song and dance man did as well as, or better, than if he had stayed in the Senate chamber instead of winging West.

That is not to say that Murphy did not do well enough when firmly planted on the ground.

He engineered a surprise proposal (it was so surprising, he admitted he was not familiar with all its details) that would revoke the power of the Office of Economic Opportunity to override a governor's veto over legal services projects.

As an amendment to the two-year extension of the Office of Economic Opportunity projects, the far-reaching proposal carried 45-40, to the dismay of the staunch supporters of the anti-poverty program.

Mission accomplished, Murphy left the floor and rushed for the airport.

Hoping for a reprieve, Sen. Gaylor Nelson, D-Wis., the manager of the bill, sought to top Murphy by offering an amendment that would allow the President to override a governor's veto.

He was backed by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., who conceded that he was a "little embarrassed" because Murphy was probably already airborne.

But Sen. Spessard L. Holland, D-Fla., the white-haired veteran, was not the least embarrassed. He asked, "Has the senator from California been advised that this emasculating amendment is being offered?"

"I have no way to advise him," Javits replied. "I think he is on a plane—I am embarrassed about it."

Holland then offered a novel suggestion. Would Nelson, Holland asked, give assurances that the presidential veto would be removed in conference with the House if Murphy doesn't like it.

"I, speaking for myself, do not think that I could," Nelson said. "I do not know if anyone else would do that."

But Holland, sensing that he had the votes to kill the amendment if it came to a rollcall vote, remained staunch. Calling the Nelson-Javits maneuver "not fair play," Holland said he could not support that amendment without the assurance that Nelson, at that point, would not give him.

Nelson himself was riled. Rejecting the unfair charge, Nelson said pointedly, "everyone has a right, when we are in business in this chamber, to be here and participate...and if he has a commitment elsewhere in his state, and he goes out to it, he cannot complain..."

But, despite the courageous words, Nelson and Javits buckled and assured Holland that they would back Murphy in whatever he wanted to do about their amendment in conference.

In the end, the Senate had given Murphy the power to veto the presidential veto of a governor's veto. A veteran observer of the Senate in action said he had never seen the likes of it before.

Experts To Discuss Sunken Treasure

LUBBOCK (UPI)—Gov. Preston Smith called on 71 experts today to discuss one of the most controversial issues in state government this year—treasure in the Gulf of Mexico.

"This conference will bring together professionals and amateurs from throughout the state and top names from other states who are working in these fields," Smith said. "We hope it will help coordinate the efforts through the new Antiquities Committee and thereby promote the proper utilization of our archeological and historical resources."

The two-day affair, is being held at Texas Tech University in Smith's hometown.

Truett Latimer, executive director of the Texas State Historical Committee, was to chair the opening session which was to include addresses by Harold Kennedy, assistant attorney general of Texas; Dr. E. Mott Davif, professor of anthropology at the University of Texas at Austin; and John Corbett, chief archeologist in the office of archeology and historic preservation in Washington, D.C.

Six persons are scheduled to speak at the afternoon's session, headed by Dr. W. W. Newcomb Jr., director of the Texas Memorial Museum in Austin. Dr. Fred Wendorf, head of the department of anthropology at Southern Methodist University, will chair Saturday morning's session at which nine speakers are scheduled.

Smith said he would address the conference Saturday afternoon.

Buenos Aires' La Prensa To Celebrate 100th Anniversary

Buenos Aires (UPI)—One of the world's most distinguished newspapers, La Prensa of Buenos Aires, celebrates its 100th anniversary Saturday still owned, administered and edited by the descendants of its founder.

La Prensa (The Press) was founded by Jose Clemente Paz in 1845. His son, Ezequiel Pedro Paz, followed as director in 1898 and served for 45 years. Their grandson and nephew, Alberto Gainza Paz, has been its director since 1943. His eldest son, Maximo, is business manager of the newspaper and two other sons, Jose and Jorge, are general superintendent of the printing plant and photo editor, respectively.

Several governments of Argentina have tried to still La Prensa's voice, but it survived, and its creed of journalism has been adopted by the Inter-American Press Association (IAPA).

It is one of the triumphant ironies of history that the celebration of its centenary on Oct. 18 is on a day once called "Saint Peron" day by the followers of Juan D. Peron during his dictatorship in Argentina. Peron closed and confiscated La Prensa for five years between 1951 and 1956. He is living in exile today while La Prensa continues its criticisms of governments as it sees them, and as one of the great newspapers of the world.

La Prensa is housed on the Avenida de Mayo in a magnificent five-story building of white limestone with balconies, carved balustrades, wrought iron fixtures and great summed up best by Ezequiel P. Paz on the occasion of the newspaper's 56th anniversary in 1925. It has been adopted as the creed of the Inter-American Press Association and adorns the walls of newspapers throughout the hemisphere:

"To give information with exactness and truth, not to omit anything that the public has a right to know, to use always an impersonal and correct form without prejudice to rigorous and forceful thought, to exclude rumors, those statements that take refuge behind such phrases as 'it is said,' or 'we are assured,' and to affirm only that which has become a conviction based on proofs and documents, to consider that the lack of an item of news is preferable to its erroneous or unjustified publication, to take care that the personal opinion of the writer be not expressed because that would be equivalent to commenting on the news, and the reporter must not invade the field reserved to other sections of the newspaper, to remember before writing how powerful is the instrument that the writer is using, and that the harm caused to an official or private person can never be completely repaired by an explanation or rectification, in however gentlemanly spirit this may be given, to keep serene and elevated ground in debate and not to affirm anything today that we may have to modify tomorrow, and finally, to inscribe in letters of gold in permanent place, always in sight of your work tables, the words of Walter Williams, that outstanding North American servant of the press: 'No one should write as a journalist that which he cannot say as a gentleman. Ezequiel P. Paz, publisher, La Prensa, Buenos Aires, Argentina, October 18, 1925.'"

Hollywood In Review

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—"There is no such time as 1968," Doris Day said.

It was the year her producer-husband Marty Melcher died, leaving Doris with a contract to begin a new television show a brief six weeks after his death.

Only now are the numbing effects disappearing.

"Death is cold," Doris said in her dressing room the other day.

"After it happened I couldn't get warm. My son, Terry, insisted I go to Palm Springs and lie in the sun. The swimming pool was heated to 90 degrees. And gradually the chill began to leave me."

Heat Was Healthy

"The heat of the desert was like a pair of arms encircling me. It was healthy, enabling me to go to work when I didn't want to see anyone or do anything."

Melcher was to produce the show and had been Doris' guiding hand for more than a decade in motion pictures.

"The television series saved my life," she said of the situation comedy "The Doris Day Show" that drew mixed reviews and so-so ratings in its first year.

"Without the show I'd have been lost. When you lose one half of yourself, you face the slow death of sitting in a corner someplace. But Terry insisted I fulfill the contract. I'd lost 18 pounds but I disciplined myself to go back to work."

This year Doris is a different girl. She has regained her sunny disposition and enthusiasm.

The show has undergone changes at CBS, too. There are new producers and most of the action has been switched from a bucolic background to San Francisco where Doris portrays a working girl.

HEADSTART.

In high school, you should include business arithmetic and any business training courses, art (for attractive arrangements of food), cooking, and chemistry (so you'll understand the composition of food). Cook at home, plan meals, read all about food, develop your own recipes. Try for part-time jobs at restaurants as a kitchen helper or bus boy.

WANT MORE INFO? For several names and address of where to write for additional material, ask for my free "Chef" resource sheet. Send me a stamped, self-addressed long white envelope in care of this newspaper.

EARNINGS. Depends on skill, type of eating place, geographical location and union contracts. At the top, head cooks and chefs can earn over $15,000, and some with national names make more than $25,000. Free meals, uniforms and other fringe benefits are thrown in too. The shortage of skilled chefs and cooks is acute, the outlook good, opportunities are plentiful.

HIGH HAT? Many cooking hobbyists wonder why chefs wear such high white hats. The great Louis Diat of the Ritz once explained: "White is the symbol of cleanliness and the height merely gives more air around the had in hot kitchens." A well-run kitchen can be a soicable, pleasant place to work but loafers will find it's no picnic.

DETECTION SYSTEM
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Eastern Airlines, one of the major victims of airplane hijackings, has started to use a detection system at key U.S. airports to stop air pirates before they get on the plane. The system involves use of a device to detect weapons hidden on the person of passengers. It also employs a psychological profile on the behavioral traits of hijackers that police may apply to passengers to screen out potential hijackers.

Quirks In The News

SATURATION POINT
HAYWARD, Calif. (UPI)—Nearly 100 persons piled aboard a huge plastic inner tube in a parking lot last week, dubbed it "Liferaft Earth," and vowed to fast from food and drink only water for a week to dramatize the dangers of overpopulation. The 82 persons still left Wednesday abandoned the project because of too much water—heavy rain.

WALKS FOR CHARITY

She will use a pedometer to measure the number of miles she walks in serving drinks and collecting glasses. Regulars at the inn will sponsor her—at six cents a mile. The proceeds will go to charity.

UFO IDENTIFIED
WANSTEAD, England (UPI)—Arthur Muge was a bit disconcerted when an unidentified flying object hit his house. Plates and crockery fell to the floor. Muge rushed outside—and stopped. The thing was there, with what looked like several antenna. It took a while for the police to convince him the object was a device for helping forecast weather.

TROUSERS AS EVIDENCE
NEWPORT, Isle of Wight (UPI)—A lawyer offered a policeman's torn pair of trousers as evidence Thursday in the trial of a farmer accused of not keeping his old English sheepdogs under proper control. The court ruled the dogs had nipped the policeman three times and fined the farmer $30.

The Crazy World That Is Washington.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Odds and ends from the nation's capital—mostly odd:

Wayward Words
From the newsletter of Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y.: "We have lost the first round in our fight to preserve the last remaining visible portion of the U.S. Capitol."

A high administration official, at a background briefing: "We will find an answer in these discussions when conclusions can be made."

Two ladies watched and listened as the House rather hotly debated a bill. Suddenly the quorum bells rang, summoning members to the floor to determine whether enough were on hand to do business.

"What's happened?" inquired one of the ladies, started.

"I think one of 'em escaped," the other replied.

After a colleague accused House members supporting moratorium day activities of playing into the hands of Hanoi, Rep. Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind., declined to reply, invoking the advice of his father: "He told me that it was like wrestling with a hog. You both get dirty, but he's more used to it."

"An electronic peeping-tom named Rufas," the Interior Department release said, "now offers fishery scientists an unprecedented opportunity to pry into the lives of marine creatures."

Yep, Rufas is another one of those acronyms—remote underwater fisheries assessment system.

There's also another new one: Soup, or Students Opposing Unfair Practices.

Thank you, National Institute of Governmental Purchasing, I.C., for the 25 copies of the announcement of that meeting coming up in Philadelphia.

Harvesters Tackle Amarillo Here Tonight

By RON CROSS
Sports Editor
Pampa will try to make the near impossible dream come true, here tonight, when they host Amarillo in a District 4-AAAA north game and shoot for what would have to be the upset of the season in Texas High School football.
Gone from the Pampa team is senior halfback Don Willis with a serious neck injury and almost gone is senior halfback Scotty King with a serious shoulder bruise.

Willis and King are the Harvesters No. 1 and No. 2 rushers; King may see parttime action tonight but will not be near full strength.
But senior quarterback John Jenkins will rally his hurt and bruised forces and try to break Pampa's two game losing streak and almost as important try to get a Harvester across an opponent's goal line for the first time in two games.
Last week Monterey blanked

Pampa, 39-0, and the week before that Palnview blanked Pampa, 26-0.
Pampa will carry a 1-4 season record and 0-1 north zone mark into the contest against the heavier Amarillo team, who currently is 4-1, season-wise and 1-0 in zone competition.
Pampa will start three juniors in its offensive lineup and eight seniors, only five of them lettermen, and will be at a great weight disadvantage against the more experienced Sandies.

SPORTS The Pampa Daily News

Senior Burt Tollison will be at tight end and Steve Scott, also a senior, will start at split end. Seniors Larry Kotara and Mike Albus, both lettermen will start at tackles.
Senior letterman Moss Hampton will go at center and letterman, and two juniors, in its lineup and all nine starting seniors are returning lettermen.

At ends are Tracy Duncan, 170 and junior David Krill, a 170 pounder; tackles are 200 pound Bobby Giles and 195 pound Jim Minor. The center is 220 pounder Glenn Spiller; guards are 180 pound Eddie Risley and 185 pound Jim VanPelt.
Tommy Walters, a 175 pounder is the quarterback, having moved there from a halfback spot; fullback is 185 pounder Larry Linger and at wingback is 155 pound Bobby Brown with 185 pound Bob Pickard at tailback.

Pickard is the north zone's leading rusher with 275 yards last week against Borger. He also has 10 touchdowns this season, including two last week.
The Sandies average 190 pounds per man in the line and 177 pounds per man in the backfield. Pampa will average only 180 pounds, a man in the line and 165 per man average in the backfield.

This will mark the 48th time Amarillo and Pampa have battled on the football field. The first game was played in 1922 and Amarillo won, 2-0. The series stands with Amarillo winning 33, losing 11 and three games have ended in ties.

Area Football Teams Open League Action

What's happened in the past will have little or no bearing tonight when Panhandle area football teams open conference action in District 1-A and District 2-A.

In District 1-A ever improving Canadian plays host to another team that has shown improvement. The Wildcats host Stratford (2-1-2) and just one season ago Stratford made off with a 23-6 victory. But Canadian (1-4) has displayed a lot of grit in two straight losing efforts, to Wheeler and Clarendon, who is unbeaten.

White Deer (3-2) and winners of two in a row, plays host to the district's most surprising team. Sunray (5-0) and the only unbeaten team in the league was swamped by the Bucks (35-6) last year. But as their record indicates the 'Cats may not be as hard to push around.

The Bucks have finally begun playing as a team and coach Sherill Bottoms has come up with quite a catch in halfback David Duke.

In the other 1-A contest Gruber (3-2) the pre-season favorite to win the district, will try to snap a two-game losing streak by playing host to Sanford-Fritch, currently standing at 2-3.

In district 2-A Wheeler (3-2) will try to stretch its win streak to a couple of games by playing host to Silvertown (1-4) and a 16-3 victim of the Mustangs last season.

Roy Don Chick, the area's second leading scorer, and David Britt have been providing the offensive fireworks for the Mustangs.

McLean (1-3-1) has had trouble getting started and the Tigers will again be without the services of No. 1 quarterback Tommy Duquiven. Happy will host the Tigers and the Cowboys (2-2-1) are much improved over a season ago when McLean edged them, 16-8.

Clarendon (5-0) and Claude (0-5) will hook up in the other league encounter and the Bronchos should have little trouble getting off to a good start in conference action.

Lefors and Booker will get conference action underway in District 5-B and the two will play at Booker.

Booker, the pre-season favorite with Groom, has lost two in a row and stands, 2-3, for the season while Lefors, shocked last week, 62-0, by Erick, Okla. has won one of five outings. Last year Booker took a 21-8 decision.

Groom (5-0) and the only unbeaten in the district, plays a non-league game at Turkey and last year the Tigers rolled to an easy, 42-6 victory. They may score more than that tonight.

Follett (3-2) plays at Darouzzette in a non-league outing and Texline (1-4) plays at Keyes.

Face Decision

SEATTLE (UPI)—Big league baseball here faced a 3-2 count today with the final pitch due at a meeting of American League owners Tuesday in Chicago.

Repeated rumors have the franchise of the Seattle Pilots, who drew 680,000 in their inaugural season, on the block. Dallas-Fort Worth and Milwaukee both are prominently mentioned.

Next Stop For Mets May Be The Moon

NEW YORK (UPI)—"The only thing left for us to do," said champagne-soaked Ron Swoboda, "is go to the moon."

The Mets haven't quite taken it into their heads yet to become rivals to NASA in shooting rockets into outer space, but the crack by Swoboda, who led all other series hitters with six hits, summed up the feelings of baseball's new world champions.

"We weren't supposed to do anything at all this year, and we did it all," Swoboda pointed out. "Nothing else will ever be as good as this."

Donn Clendenon, who won an automobile as the selection of a magazine for top player in the series, put it this way: "How do you explain a miracle? It was just a miracle. There is no explanation."

As miraculous as anything the Mets did this season was the fact that Clendenon was a part of it. When the first pitch of the 1969 season was thrown, and the Mets still were laughable 100-1 shots to win the National League pennant, Clendenon was an executive for an Atlanta pen company.

But he came out of retirement to play for the Mets and the 6-3 210-pound slugger hit three home runs in the series, including the two-run shot that got New York going against Baltimore in the sixth inning.

New York was trailing 3-0 in the sixth when Cleon Jones reached first on the long-to-be-remembered shoeshine incident. Clendenon's homer narrowed the margin to 3-2 and little Al Weis tied the score with his first-ever homer in Shea Stadium in the seventh inning.

Orioles To Ask Probe Of Umpire

BALTIMORE (UPI)—The Baltimore Orioles have decided to ask Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to take formal action against National League umpire Shag Crawford for ejecting Earl Weaver from Wednesday's game.

Weaver said Wednesday that when Crawford walked towards the Oriole dugout in the third inning and pointed at Weaver "I couldn't hear what he said. So I walked up to the plate and said 'Shag', and I never got a chance to say another word because he turned around and said 'You're outta the game.'" began in 1962 with the selection of obscure Hobie Landrith as the first Met, staggered through years of bad baseball and worse jokes, and then came to a happy ending that even Hollywood would reject as pure corn.

"It's A Fact
"A-mazing," croaked Casey Stengel, who managed the Mets in their comic early days and was on hand to see the windup of the story. He's called the Mets that many times, but now it's a fact and not a joke.

"The Mets are not just a lucky team," said Manager Earl Weaver of the defeated Baltimore Orioles amid the disappointment of a season in which they won the American League's Eastern Division by 19

CLEON JONES selects a bat as he prepares to hit Thursday in the last game of the World Series against the Baltimore Orioles. Jones was one of the heroes in the series won by the Mets, four games to one.

Smudge Of Shoe Polish, Guy Named Jones -- Winner

NEW YORK (UPI)—A smudge of shoe polish and a guy named Jones—World Series, good luck omen.

The New York Mets, who beat the Baltimore Orioles, 3-2, Thursday to win their first World Series, became the second team in the history of the series to turn that rare combination into a decisive triumph.

Here's how it happened! In the sixth inning with Cleon Jones at bat and the Mets trailing, 3-0, a pitch by Baltimore's Dave McNally hit Jones on the foot and bounced into the Mets' dugout. That is, Jones said it hit him.

Plate umpire Lou DiMuro, who in the top of the inning had ruled against a pitch that allegedly hit Frank Robinson, did not see the ball hit Jones and was not going to award him first base. But, manager Gil Hodges of the Mets brought the ball out to DiMuro and showed him a smudge of shoe polish on the ball, and DiMuro reversed his decision.

Donn Clendenon, the next batter, then homered to cut the games, swept the AL playoffs in three straight games, won the opening game from the Mets—and then collapsed in four straight defeats.

"They are a very good team," insisted Weaver. "You sports writers have been downplaying them all season. They have great pitching and they make all the plays. The one thing that surprised me was I didn't think they would make more runs than us."

Spot Of Shoe Polish
...A spot of shoe polish.

Shoe polish? Well, the Mets couldn't win a world championship without something bizarre, could they?
It happened in the sixth inning Thursday with the Mets on the short end of a 3-0 count, thanks to a two-run homer by Orioles' pitcher Dave McNally and a solo homer by Frank Robinson. McNally was throttling the Mets until one of his pitches hit Cleon Jones on the foot.

At least, Jones said it hit him on the foot. Plate umpire Lou DiMuro said it didn't; only a half-inning earlier DiMuro had refused to listen to Robinson when he had claimed a pitch struck him.

At this point in history, Hodges marched to the plate bearing, he said, the very ball that had struck Jones' toe. See, said Hodges to DiMuro, right there where there's shoe polish? That's where it hit him. DiMuro reversed himself and awarded Jones first base.

Standing behind a chain link fence the fans chanted "we're number one...we're number one..." and carried signs that read: "You may have lost but you didn't cheat...the Orioles are still the class of both leagues...you're still number one with us."

Players and club officials were moved by the reception, larger than the one they received when they returned from Minnesota victors in the playoffs and larger than some crowds at Memorial Stadium during the season.

"This is the nicest thing they've done all year," said Boog Powell.
"Anybody who could come out here tonight is great," said Oriole owner Jerold C. Hoffberger. "I thought we were going to come home to an empty airport."

Although Oriole fans were stunned by the World Series loss by the team considered by many to be one of the best ever, they were able to praise the Mets.
"They could have played any team there ever was and still won, the way they were playing," said one fan.

SMU, Hixson Test
Young Owls Saturday
By United Press International
Southern Methodist's Chuck Hixson, who goes against Rice in the Southwest Conference grid feature of the week, is operating behind his normal pace but he still is closing in.

He isn't about to reach those goals against the Owls Saturday night in Houston, when SMU tries to keep its conference record unblemished after four straight outside setbacks, but the game should provide a clue as to the pace of Hixson's future in the air.

SMU uncorked a 316-yard running attack—its first noticeable ground assault of the season—against TCU in last week's 19-17 conference opening victory and Hixson's passing output fell off sharply. He completed only 14 passes in 23 attempts for 145 yards.

If the SMU running game continues to work on the prancing feet of Daryl Doggett and Gordon Gilder, then Hixson may again limit his aerial efforts.

Shocks Lose Second, Lee Eighth Wins

Pampa football teams struggled through a bad day Thursday with only Lee eighth grade managing to keep local teams from being winless.

Plainview scored a touchdown in the final period to nip the Pampa Shockers, 14-7, in a hard fought battle. Plainview led, 6-0, at halftime.

The Shockers, now 4-2, get their offense moving in the first half and had several drives stalled.

Borger Austin dropped Lee ninth, 28-18; Lee eighth downed Austin, 18-6; Dumas whipped Pampa ninth, 36-0; and Pampa eighth lost to Dumas eighth, 18-0.

Lee eighth led 2-0 in the first quarter, then scored both its touchdowns in the second quarter.

Jack King scored first on a 30 yard run and Chuck Reeves scored from 15 yards away. King ran over both conversions for Lee.

Austin jumped to a 20-0 lead over Lee ninth in the first period before Ricky McGuire, Stan White and Paul Sadder could score for Lee. McGuire went in from 15 yards out, White scored on a 10 yard run and Sadder caught a 40 yard pass from Rick Musgrave.

Neither Pampa eighth or ninth could get its offensive units moving against the heavier Dumas team.

TV Saved AFL

HOUSTON (UPI)—Bud Adams, owner of the Houston Oilers, said Thursday the $40 million television contract with the National Broadcasting Co. in 1965 saved the American Football League.

He said that even with the $600,000 the Oilers, and each other team, got that year from television revenue, the team still lost $700,000 and would not have been able to continue the franchise without television revenue.

The SMU-Rice game is one of only two league contests and one of only three games on this week's conference schedule as Texas, Arkansas and Baylor take the week off.
