VIOLENT BATTLE RAGING

'Dog Baby' Story Called Hoax

TEX'S TOPICS

Today's extraordinary news: Bob Seeds, the real estate and insurance man has a Shepherd pup out at his house, and this pup has a penchant for the Pampa Daily News.

Each night, reports the disturbed Mr. Seeds (no relation to "Mr. Seeds Goes To Town"), this pup beats him to the draw on the evening copy of the paper. That is, as a rule, the dog meets the newspaper and grabs off the paper and chews on it merrily.

But, that isn't all. After chewing the paper, the dog growls and snaps from then until sundown. With the setting of the sun, he really becomes peaceful—howling from then on all through the dark and still night.

Now is where we make the comment. . . The explanation is so easy. It comes second nature for us who have had a taste of Tex's Topics and is merely howling for more. . . If there are some who have other explanations for this phenomenon, we'd appreciate hearing from them.

A former deputy sheriff of Gray county Saturday received a subpoena to appear as a witness before the Wheeler county grand jury today. . . A note at the bottom of the paper said: "WORKS at Texas Company". . . This was to make it easier to get service on him.

Former associates in the sheriff's office here objected to the use of the word "work." We were asked to print this bit of news, but because of the fact the man once saved us 50 cents we are not using his name.

A fellow just popped into the office in an all-out-of-breath fashion and gave us the title of the latest hill-billy song. . . of you who already have heard it, know doggone well that those who have not heard it wouldn't be interested—so we'll skip it.

Saturday we tried to pick the winners of 20 football games and did right well until the NEWS sports editor came along and changed all the selections we had made. On the strength of his jeers we changed several of them and, of course, came out on the short end again. It was his fault that we picked Villanova over Temple, N. Carolina over Duke, and Syracuse over Columbia. Pampa gives you an idea how the Pampa expert's brain was clicking last week-end. Even with that handicap, we out-guessed Red Grange and Grantland Rice.

Jerry Malin, the Amarillo sports editor, heard a writer prove the other day that the depression is over, he says. . . W. W. Simmons, the White Deer editor, still does not understand how the score could have been that big. . . Win or lose, you have to hand it to the White Deer fan for loyalty to their football team.

It may be a little late arriving in Pampa—but, here's another one of those "Maine goes" things. . . "As Maine goes" . . . so goes the hallucination.

A shipment of Literary Digests has been seized in Japan, but, anyway, they are probably welcome to all straw vote issues.

A national Parks report reveals that wild turkeys are becoming less timid. The domestic kind, however, still have trouble keeping their heads.

"Never disengage the clutch until just before the car comes to a stop." Of course, if a cop or the Panhandle phantom is in sight, it is wise to break away from her.

"In suggesting that the Republicans run a Chinese for president, perhaps H. L. Mencken was inferring that Landon didn't have a Chinaman's chance."

"Whisky will age if subjected to several hours of noise." This may

BIGGEST TASK IS STARTED BY UNITED STATES

SOCIAL SECURITY ACT DATA WILL BE COLLECTED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—The federal government began today the most gigantic task of its kind ever undertaken—the job of setting up social security accounts for some 26,000,000 workers.

From 45,000 post offices throughout the country, postmen set out with forms to be delivered to 5,000,000 business establishments.

This began the unprecedented operation of collecting the basic data for the old age pension system applying to workers in factories, shops, mines, mills, offices, stores and other such business establishments.

The time for the creation of the mountainous files of information was growing short, for the old age pension taxes—starting at one cent on each dollar of workers earnings up to $3,000 a year, and one cent for every dollar of the employers' payrolls—will go into effect Jan. 1, 1937.

The taxes will increase gradually until, beginning in 1919, they will be three per cent of wages and three per cent of payrolls. The money is being collected to finance pensions.

WHO'S EXEMPT
WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—The man who is his own boss and persons already over 65 are among those not covered by the contributory old age pension section of the social act.

Other excluded occupation are: Agricultural labor; Domestic service in a private home; Casual labor not included in the employer's trade or business; Officers and crews of ships; Workers in federal, state or local government; and

"Service performed in the employ of a corporation, community chest, fund or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual."

Beginning today, postoffices will distribute to employers a form known as the "employers' application for identification number." This form will ask of the employer only seven simple questions, answers to which will enable the postoffice department to key the many "employers' application forms to deliver to each employer."

The question are: the business name; description of the nature of the business; address; approximate

Several Pampa veterans will accompany the district commander to Amarillo when visitors from all parts in the district will be present. W. D. DeGroot of Amarillo will be the chief speaker.

FASCIST GUNS CAN BE HEARD FOR 25 MILES

MADRID STREWN WITH WRECKAGE AND INJURED

(By The Associated Press)
Violent fighting for control of a crossing of the Manzanares river and "Frenchman's bridge" raged today as insurgent troops struggled to gain a foothold in University City of Madrid.

University City was under the heaviest shell fire of the siege, now in its eleventh day. The main battle lay between the insurgent forces on the other side of the Manzanares and government forces on the Madrid bank.

The civilian population on the fringes of University City was evacuated as shells dripped into the side streets, smashing house-fronts and pavements. Fascist big guns hammered Madrid's defenders with 200-pound shells amid unconfirmed rumors insurgent forces had captured the city.

These reports said the insurgents were about to capture the north station. The area was under heavy shellfire yesterday. The extent of the insurgent penetration, however, was obscured by conflicting reports. An official statement said the Mors and foreign legionnaires had occupied a building in University City, north of the Paseo de Rosales.

Today's bombardment was tremendous. The fascist guns could be heard for 25 miles. Madrid's defenders, however, mobilized labor battalions to construct new redoubts against threats of further drives by fascist forces from the north and west.

Fighting intensified along the city's western outskirts after a week-end of bombardments. More than 100 Madrilenos were killed and 300 injured in air raids while fascist artillery ripped paving blocks in the Gran Via, Madrid's main business thoroughfare.

The government air ministry said 20 insurgent planes were destroyed in retaliatory raids on Fascist hangars at Avila, Toledo, Torrejon and Navalmaria.

BORGER POST OFFICE IS IN NEW BUILDING
BORGER, Nov. 16—Borger's new $65,000 federal building was in use this morning, after a week-end move by the postoffice from its former quarters on Main-st. Business as usual is being conducted today, said Postmaster J. E. Morris.

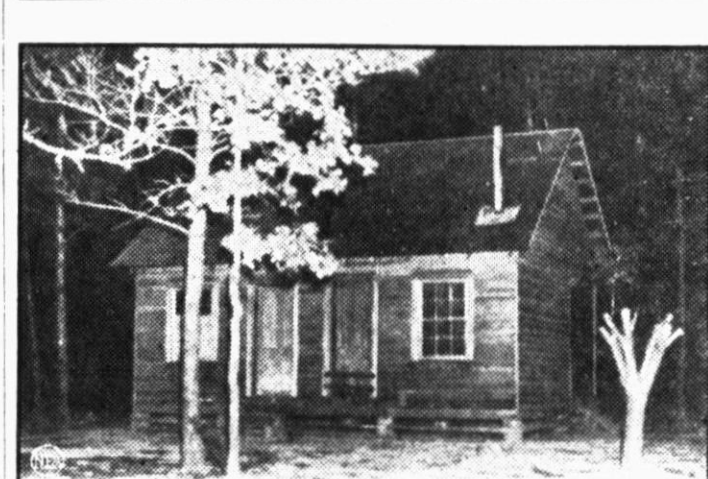

Nov. 21 was the new date set for formal dedication of the building after a postponement from last week due to the illness of Rep. Marvin Jones, principal speaker. Homer Pruett, chamber of commerce secretary, yesterday received a telegram saying that Mr. Jones will be able to appear at that time.

People You Know
By ARCHER FULLINGIM
A man who does not forget the ambitions and joys of his youth and who continues to grow bigger and bigger every year of his life, does not grow old quickly. Thus Judge Hoover of Canadian who today is 73 years old (Tennessee was shuddering in a welter of human blood that year). He was penniless but young when he left and came west but he felt rich when he saw the Panhandle.

And in that hospitable era the poorest was richest. He became a part of that straight-forward pioneering people. He has found it impossible to grow old in a country that was so young when he first saw it. He never tires of prairie the Panhandle for he has made it his home and the things that move and grow on them do much for him.

So here is no flower of any kind as Judge Hoover on his 73rd birthday had a sprig of sagebrush, a stray feather of a prairie chicken, the member of a nicker from a loved horse now dead, the nuzzling of an old dog, the sight of deer thru the trees, a friend at the table, at the hearth, the sight of cottonwood trees bunched on the river—for these are the things that he loved best.

Similar meetings are scheduled for the next two weeks in various clubs of the county.

When she feared a healthy blue-eyed baby boy would be taken from her, Mrs. Louis E. Crawford, wife of a WPA worker, of near Pearl River, La.; change her story that the infant was carried out of the forest by a big, black dog. They are shown with the dog. The baby in the top photo, Mrs. Crawford finally declared that she gave birth to the child, that a relative of hers was the baby's father and that she feared to tell her husband because he knew that he was not the father. She claimed she slipped out of the house at night and that the child was born in the woods. The Crawford's one-room cabin is shown in the lower photo. The above pictures were made while Mrs. Crawford was still contending that a dog brought the baby to the cabin in the clearing.

Sentiment Grows For John Lewis

MORTGAGE TAX DOESN'T APPLY TO U. S. BANKS

Rulings of Attorney General Received By Thut
Rulings of the state attorney general on certain phases of the recently enacted tax on instruments which are filed for record in the county clerk's office were received today by Charlie Thut, Gray county clerk.

The attorney general ruled that national banks receiving mortgages and similar instruments are exempt from the new state tax on such instruments. The levy is 10 cents on each $100 of the instrument in excess of $200.

"The statute," McCraw said, "expressly exempts from its provisions instrumentalities and agencies of the United States. Even the exemption had not been included in the act, such agencies nevertheless would be exempt since the Legislature may only levy taxes upon instrumentalities of the Federal Government in the manner expressly authorized by Congress."

When more than one instrument securing the same indebtedness is registered with the county clerk, the tax must be paid on each instrument, the opinion said.

Interpretations of other provisions of the note tax include: secure past due payments on original loans, and also better to secure the original loan are subject to tax on the full amount of the new mortgage. Mortgages executed prior to effective date of the law, Nov. 1, but recorded after the law became effective, are subject to it.

Renewal of a mortgage is not subject to the levy, although new notes may have been executed in the renewal agreement, provided that no additional advance is made. Mortgages and other liens executed but not recorded are not subject to any tax.

There seems to be no penalty for the evasion of the tax other than that it might affect the validity of

PROBLEMS OF INSURANCE FOR CROPS TALKED

LONG-RANGE PROGRAM IS DISCUSSED IN TEXAS

HOUSTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—Secretary Wallace, discussing a proposed crop insurance program at the 50th annual meeting of the Land Grant College association, predicted today a new era in agriculture.

"A little while back the agricultural problem with which we had to grapple was foremost an emergency problem," said the secretary of agriculture. "I believe that now we must be taking stock of programs addressed to the longer time situation. Now it appears that we may be standing upon the threshold of better times, perhaps of something like a new era."

"In this new era, our permanent policy with respect to agriculture, as I see it, must shape itself to give the farmer his fair charge of prosperity, having due regard to the long-time interests of the national community as a whole."

Secretary Wallace said the question of crop insurance had appeared in the long-range farm program picture.

"The crop insurance idea does not represent a new field of thought," he said. "It has been talked about among farmers and in Congress for a long time. The department of agriculture has been studying it in one way or another 15 years."

"There is no disposition to rush into any half-baked scheme along this line. The committee appointed by the President to report relative to possible legislation on crop insurance has not contemplated action on more than one or two crops at first. We have been exploring the possibilities in the case of wheat, corn, and cotton, but I think it is the feeling of all who are close to the subject that the wise thing is to start slowly with an experimental undertaking in one or two crops."

At least four definite problems arise in this consideration of a system of crop insurance with payments in kind. First, there is the problem of determining loss rates and premium rates. Second, there is the problem of the stored product, should losses be paid directly out of it or should it be sold and the proceeds distributed in dollars equivalent to the produce?"

RED CROSS DRIVE IS $900 SHORT OF GOAL

Pampa's Red Cross roll call was going ahead today still about $900 short of the $2,000 goal set for the 1936 campaign. Allen Hodges, roll call chairman, said today the drive would be pushed in an effort to reach the $2,000 mark which is a minimum of needs which will have to be met here this winter.

Not all workers had made their reports. Red Cross headquarters in the BCD offices. A special gifts committee began work this morning in the hopes of bolstering the fund.

Expulsion Is Opposed By Carpenter's President
TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 16 (AP)—Growing sentiment against expulsion of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and his rebel allies from the American Federation of Labor developed today with the start of the federation's annual convention.

Many delegates cried for expulsion, even if it meant a long and bitter war, but William Hutchinson, hefty president of the powerful carpenters' union, said "they're already out," and asked "what's the use of locking the door if you're not afraid of anyone on the outside?"

Some leaders learned of approving the rebels' suspension, directing the federation's executive council to continue peace efforts and clothing the council with power to expel if these efforts are unsuccessful.

Despite his fiery speeches last week against the Lewis rebellion, William Green, federation president, said the council's peace committee still was ready to meet the rebels.

Smoke From Wood Stove Causes Fire Alarm at Borger
BORGER, Nov. 14—Smoke from wood stove caused a neighbor to turn in an alarm and send the Borger fire department rushing on their second false alarm of the week-end yesterday. They answered a call apparently made as a joke, to an apartment house Saturday.

Small damage was done by a blaze at 4 a. m. Sunday in the home of Jack Katsch. A cigaret left in the living room had smoldered and finally set fire to the furniture. Firemen prevented spread of the blaze to other parts of the house.

Explanation Of Federal Old-Age Benefits

In order to set forth general characteristics of federal old-age benefits under the United States Social Security Act, which goes into effect Jan. 1, 1937, The Pampa NEWS daily for the next week will publish a series of questions and answers, designed to explain fully provisions of the new legislation.

Postal authorities at Pampa today sent out forms which employers are required to fill in and return by next Saturday. On Tuesday, Nov. 24, applications for identification numbers will be mailed to all workers except domestic and farm help. These are to be returned by Dec. 5.

The first 10 questions and answers in this series follow:

Q. 1. What is meant by federal old-age benefits?

A. There are three types of benefits payable directly by the Federal government under the federal old-age benefits provisions of the Social Security Act:

(1) Monthly benefits payable after a person is 65.

(2) Lump-sum benefits payable at 65, and

(3) Payments upon death.

Q. 2. Are these benefits entirely Federal?

A. Yes. Federal old-age benefits are entirely administered by the Federal government. The wages of workers in what might be roughly termed industrial and commercial establishments in the United States, including the District of Columbia, Alaska, and Hawaii, will, beginning with 1937, be counted in the computation of benefits.

Q. 3. What is the purpose of the Federal old-age benefits provisions?

A. The main purpose is to provide a assured retirement income to wage earners when they have reached the age of 65, thus making possible the retirement of these older workers from regular employment and also increasing opportunities for employment and advancement of younger workers.

Q. 4. What are Federal old-age benefits?

A. The act provides for three different types of these benefits. The most important are monthly Federal old-age retirement benefits payable to eligible persons who have reached the age of 65. The amount of these benefits will be based on wages, as defined in the act, from employment after 1936 and before the age of 65.

Q. 5. How are Federal old-age retirement benefits different from old-age assistance?

A. The old-age benefits provided by the Social Security Act differ from old-age assistance in two ways; first, they are to be paid by the Federal government directly to the individual; and, second, payment will not be dependent on the establishment of need. The amount paid to each person will depend on his work and wage record before reaching the age of 65.

Q. 6. When does payment of monthly Federal old-age retirement benefits begin?

A. On and after January 1, 1942, monthly Federal old-age retirement benefits will be paid to individuals who can meet specified requirements.

Q. 7. May an individual buy Federal old-age retirement benefits from the Federal government?

A. No. The Federal old-age retirement benefits are not purchasable.

Q. 8. Will monthly Federal old-age retirement benefits be paid to everyone after the age of 65?

A. No. In order to receive monthly old-age retirement benefits from the Federal government at the age of 65, individuals must have been employed in at least 5 different calendar years after 1936, in which might roughly be termed industry and commerce, and their wages from such employment must be at least a total of $2,000. However, these benefits will not be paid to persons as long as they are regularly employed in such industrial and commercial establishments.

Included Employments.

Q. 9. Are wages from all types of work included as a basis for Federal old-age benefits?

A. No. Wages for certain specified services are not counted in the computation of benefits.

Q. 10. Specifically, what services are excluded?

A. The Social Security Act defines employment, for the purpose of determining old-age benefits, as any service, of whatever nature, performed within the United States by an employee for his employer, (except—

(1) Agricultural labor;

(2) Domestic service in private home;

(3) Service performed as an officer or member of the crew of a vessel documented under the laws of the United States or of any foreign country;

(4) Service performed in the employ of the United States government or of an instrumentality of the United States;

(5) Service performed in the employ of a State, a political subdivision thereof, or an instrumentality of one or more States or political subdivisions;

(6) Service performed in the employ of a religious, community, fraternal, fund, or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual.

The Railroad Retirement Act of 1935 provides that employments included under the Social Security Act "shall not include service performed in the employ of a carrier as defined in subdivision (a) of section 1 of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1935."

1,000 TENANTS WILL BE MADE FARM OWNERS

GOVERNMENT LABORS SECRETLY ON PLAN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—Working secretly, the Resettlement Administration has started a federal program designed to make farm owners out of 1,000 tenants in ten southern states.

M. E. Gilford, assistant to Administrator Rexford G. Tugwell, said the move was kept quiet in order to acquire farm lands at normal values. It was feared the price of land would soar if its project became known in advance.

With about 74,000 acres of farm land acquired in the 10 states, Gilford said 74 tenants already had been established on small farms in North Carolina and 59 in Tennessee.

President Roosevelt said in his campaign speeches that federal action on the farm tenancy problem could be expected.

The acreage acquired and number of prospective tenants by states includes:

State	Acreage	Tenants
Louisiana	5,095	100
Oklahoma	3,737	65
Texas	10,619	200
Arkansas	7,148	100

Hunting Season To Be Best in Years

AUSTIN, Nov. 16 (AP)—The sharp crack of rifles and boom of shot-guns echoed through the hills and valleys of Texas today as the state's multitude of hunters scoured the woodlands for deer and turkey.

"The best season in many years," as Will J. Tucker, secretary to the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission, put it, found thousands of outdoor sportsmen up before sunrise to stalk the wily denizens of forest and field.

Excellent conditions for wild game propagation throughout the year provided fat and well-conditioned turkey and venison for dinner tables in thousands of homes tonight. Gobblers are specially abundant. Tucker estimated more than 30,000 bucks would be killed this season.

The deer and turkey season which opened today will close Dec. 31. Black-tail deer may be shot west of the Pecos until Dec. 1.

2 WIDOWS OF HEROES ENJOY DALLAS FETE

HUSBANDS FOUGHT IN ARMY OF SAM HOUSTON

DALLAS, Nov. 16 (AP)—Two aged, gentle pioneer Texas women today had served their state in linking its glorious past with its future, and prepared to return to their homes after receiving highest honors at the Texas Centennial exposition.

All doors of honor and courtesy were opened wide yesterday to frail little Mrs. Mary Catherine Berry of Baird and her younger cousin, Mrs. Mary Longley of Abilene, distinguished in modern Texas as widows of two soldiers enrolled with the army of General Sam Houston which won independence for the Lone Star State.

Mrs. Berry, 83 and white-haired, and Mrs. Longley, 74 and active as any woman a decade younger, were roundly honored thrice at the ceremonies, and topped off their day with a lengthy tour of all the sights at the world's fair. They rested at their hotel here last night and planned to return home today.

Stalwart soldiers from the Ninth United States Infantry first honored the widows of the fighters with presentation to the colors in the majestic setting of the court of honor before the hall of state. It was an honor usually reserved for the highest military and civil officials.

Major W. W. Carr, commandant of Camp Stephen F. Austin and a staff sergeant of his command stood stiffly erect as a guard of honor during the elaborate military ceremonial honoring Mrs. Berry and Mrs. Longley. After they both had murmured blessings to the flag as it was presented, they stood with their escort while a battalion of infantry, led by the ninth infantry band, passed stiffly in review.

Grouped back of them were relatives: Mrs. S. S. Inman and son, Jerry Jo, 9, granddaughter and great-grandson of Mrs. Longley, from Abilene; Mrs. Maude E. Cole of Abilene, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Cole of Colorado; and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Green.

Before the review, Mrs. Berry and Mrs. Cole had been officially received and greeted on behalf of the Centennial by Harry Olmstead, director-general of the exposition, and R. L. Thornton, chairman of the executive committee.

They were guests of the Centennial, with friends and relatives, for luncheon. They spoke the greetings of the past Texas to present Texas over the radio from the Centennial studios, and were guests of honor at the twilight performance of Cavaliers of Texas, dedicated especially to them.

Mrs. Berry's expressed desire to see real Indians was fulfilled when the chief of the Tejas tribe brought greetings at the performance. After being presented formally to the cast and audience, players who had the roles of Sam Houston, Stephen F. Austin, William B. Travis and David Crockett came to their box to pay special honor.

Not daunted by a heavy schedule of activities, the two pioneer women enlivened their day with a running fire of witty comment on what they saw and did.

Mrs. Berry insisted that she could have driven a new car she saw at one exhibit home to West Texas.

"It would beat a stage coach any day," she told a reporter.

Later in the day, she excused herself and joined others in the party by removing her shoes to rest her feet.

Mrs. Longley's great grandson was much impressed with the military ceremony, but after it was over he inquired the shortest route to the Midway. Mrs. Longley also said she wanted to see everything there was to see on the grounds.

"WON'T HURT YOU"
The oft repeated statement that "What you do not know, will not hurt you" must be the reason that most people are opposed to direct taxation.

NOT DEMOCRATIC

It is reported that King Edward made a present of a necklace to Mrs. Simpson which cost $125,000. We cannot understand how an intelligent people can continue to respect a ruler who is so extravagant while the great mass of his subjects are so much in need of the necessities of life.

Had the king invested this $125,000 in any equipment that would add to the wealth of the country and make it possible to produce more of the comforts of life with less expenditure of human energy, he then would be carrying out what we regard the democratic form of economics or government.

Extravagant living on the part of the few is not democratic.

CANDY VS. BOOKS

It is reported that the United States spends $18.15 yearly per capita for candy, ice cream and soda but only $1.10 for books. Included in the $1.10 for books, a large part undoubtedly would be for books of entertainment and amusement.

Of course, anyone who wants to read can secure practically all the reading matter he wants without any expenditure, due to the wonderful libraries in the country. If the people, however, had spent a great deal more time in reading thought-creating books, instead of so much time and energy in candy and sodas, we probably would not have so many impractical laws on our statute books.

DAILY WASHINGTON LETTER

By Rodney Dutcher

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The 16 members of the Schechter family, their name made famous by the U. S. Supreme Court decision which killed NRA at Joe Schechter's behest, all voted for Roosevelt and announced they wanted a new NRA.

Jacob Maged, the tailor who went briefly to jail for violating a New Jersey state compliance law, and whose mishap was loudly mourned by Republican orators as a horrible example of "New Deal persecution of a little pants-presser," has telegraphed the president that his business is bad and that "only NRA can restore it."

These incidents prove nothing. But they fit in neatly with a fact of which this writer and other observers discovered repeated evidence during the campaign—that NRA was still far more popular than most politicians supposed.

Low income groups which leaped into the landslide for Roosevelt—conspicuously including employes of hotels, stores, restaurants, and other service trades—still had pleasant memories of it. So did some substantial groups of not very big business men.

It is very doubtful whether Governor Landon's various attacks and challenges to Roosevelt as to NRA did him any good.

Roosevelt in his New York speech promised continued effort for higher wages, shorter hours, the end of child labor and sweatshops—all prime NRA objectives.

And organized labor, claiming to have elected him, will vociferously demand the fulfillment of those promises through national legislation, although no one is now suggesting a revival of NRA in its old form.

It's a burning question whether the supreme court, in the face of a Roosevelt popular plurality of more than 10,000,000 and an army of unemployed even larger, would care to invalidate a new law providing maximum hours as an employment spreader.

New Dealers plan to rush a labor issue before the court at once, with test cases of the Wagner labor relations act, which guarantees collective bargaining and freedom to organize. It's planned to put the issue up in such a way that the court must decide definitely whether the act is constitutional or not.

The idea is to get a decision before Congress meets; then, if the decision is unfavorable, to wait for public reaction as a guide to the next step.

There's a growing feeling among many administrationites that a constitutional amendment could quickly be jammed through Congress and the state legislatures, but few could agree on the wording of such an amendment.

On the other hand, despite agreement that Roosevelt is riding high, there's less talk about "packing" the court with extra justices than there was a year ago.

Maximum hour and minimum wage legislation will be introduced, in any event. If that is held unconstitutional, the administration may be expected to try to take care of those problems in a bill licensing corporations, although the time of the drive for such law is now uncertain—as is the case with many other matters in a period during which Roosevelt intends to let things simmer.

WALKING DELEGATE

MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

NEW YORK—The absence of that kindly little man with the sagging jowls and the explosive Russian accent is noticeable on Broadway. The footlights lost one of its best hosts when Nikita Balleff died.

Those sympathetic notes and personal checks of his turned up innumerable times when others less fortunate than himself stood in need of a pat on the back. Balleff was like that. He remembered his own early struggle too well to let "white collar poisoning" mar his later success.

The thought persists that when Balleff died the "Chauve-Souris" passed on, too. Unlike most geniuses of the footlights, his personality was far more important to theatrical success than the wizardry of trick settings and talented group of performers.

But Balleff's inimitable "Chauve-Souris," with its merry "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," and its hilarious mélange of musketeer songs, is gone with the wind and I hope nobody ever tries to bring it back.

With true ingenuity, Nikita brought his inability to master the English language to good account, and it was this paradox that really helped him to fame. He could not say, for instance: "The next number on the program will be songs by Glinka, the great Russian composer."

He would stutter and explode into a guttural, apologetic roar: "Donicks, number-r-r onde phoarr; Sonx by Glinka, gret Russian comser." When he did this his audience roared. Balleff's whole fame was predicated on a defect in speech and his ability to ad lib.

That is the sort of man Balleff was. When his body lay in state in the Russian orthodox church in 121st street, a grand duchess and other notables of the old Russian nobility mingled with the crowd of Broadway celebrities who gathered in respect to his memory.

And so today there are scores who actually grieve for the roly-poly little man and miss his shy, amiable chatter. There is also a dog in a Riverside apartment who noses an old black felt hat and wonders why Nikita doesn't come home.

HOW'S your HEALTH

Most instances of nervous breakdown in soldiers were not due to shell shock and fatigue, but rather to the internal emotional contrast between the instinct of self-preservation and the requirements of duty.

Some could withstand the contest; others broke down.

Since the war we have learned to recognize many cases of "shell shock" in civil life. Here again, inherent predisposition and the precipitating factors of environmental strain effect nervous breakdown.

Not all cases of nervous breakdown, however, express themselves in the classical psychologic ways. Many of them appear behind a mask of functional difficulties, such as chronic headache, indigestion and heart irregularities.

The problem is hard for patient and physician alike, but the answer lies in reducing the environmental strain and in emotional and intellectual education.

Parents are apt to consider themselves grown up when they marry. Their faults and failings by some magic become fixed for all time, their educations are complete. When their one marries at 19 or 30, the growing process stops at once.

But marriage is not a magic charm which crystallizes people as far apart as their children, and if they stop learning and developing when the children are born they will soon be behind the children. Life is a continuous, and should be a conscious process of self-education. One should analyze one's failings and shortcomings and seek to overcome them, even if one has children; one should continue to read and study.

Only by these means can one obtain the maturity and self-control which are essential, if one is to become adjusted to one's environment and to bring up happy and normal children.

Talks to Parents
IMMATURE PARENTS
By Brooke Peters Church
Unadjusted children are largely the result of unadjusted homes. The difficulty is, however, not hereditary but environmental. Unhappy marriages and divorces tend to run in families, so does emotional instability, neuroticism, the inability to get along with others, children growing up tend to repeat the pattern of life with which they are familiar.

AROUND HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD—The Ritz Brothers are translating "Boots and Saddles" into operatic terms. By the time they finish with it they very likely will have run the gamut of emotions, the social scale, the course of human events, the Kentucky derby, and everybody else crazy.

They may ring in Al Jolson's Mammy, the Tournament of Roses, the League of Nations, Jonah's whale, Paris in Spring, next year's Mardi Gras queen, Darryl Zanuck and Vice Versa, including the Scandinavian and the Kitchen Sink.

They are (and am I violating a confidence if you've seen them in "Sing, Baby Sing") completely loco, nuts, and batty.

They probably always have been. At least none of the trio remembers when he wasn't. But they make it pay, which is comfort enough in "loopy" times and days.

Days? . . . DAYS? . . . Ah . . . DAYS-ies won't tell, Boop-boop-a-do!

Now I'm not crazy, or am I? But that's a faint imitation of how these things get started. Once they get started only an adamant director can put a stop to them. Or, as Harry the youngest explained in a rational moment:

"We just get together by ourselves and we talk about something to do for a number. One of us gets an idea and we start on it—take this horror number in 'One in a Million'."

"Now everybody knows about the horror actors, so we've got something to work with. We make up a lyric about Karloff, Laughton, and Loree—Jimmy's Loree, Al's Karloff, and I'm Laughton. So the gags just come. Maybe we have Karloff say he's off to haunt a house and he invites us to come along. So we all sing it: 'A-haunting we will go, a-haunting we will go, hi-do-de-merio, a-haunting we will go.' It gets over because it's nuts, we're nuts, you're nuts. Just be crazy enough and they'll go for it. We don't have to have any sense to what we do. The crazier it is the better it goes."

And so they garble sense with nonsense, hi-de-do with grand opera, take their cues from the air and land on their feet, necks, or noses with joyous abandon—

When President Roosevelt first began his intimate discussion of public affairs with the American people he called them fireside talks. He realized that the fireside is the center of the American home.

With the chill of autumn in the air, with the first snows falling, the fireplace once again becomes the family gathering place, the hearth becomes the symbol of home.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

Chapter 24
TURNING TABLES
"Ye told me his name was Milson, and he sent me down to that house in Jamaica Street to see Mr. Brown about a job," stated Mahony.

Milson, or rather Lake, made a little nervous movement with his hand. He was afraid of Mahony and the big Irishman, and to conceal his fear he tried to bluster.

"Well, and supposing I did?" he said shrilly. "I had my orders and I carried them out. And it's a nice thing you've done to let them in here. I'd like to know who's responsible for that. There's going to be some trouble about that, I can tell you."

"The big Irishman took a pace forward. His battered features were contracted in an ugly scowl.

"So it was you, Mister, that sent this fellow down to that house to-night," he said to Lake. "An' it was your pal Scrubby Redman that gave me the tip that if you went to that house I'd find Mr. Brown there, and advised me I might have difficulty in getting my money and maybe I'd have to batter it out av'im with me two fists. An' it was somebody known to you, maybe, who tipped the police off that they'd find me in that house to-night."

There was another shot of silence after this accusation. Then Milson spoke again.

"Well, what if it was?" he demanded defiantly.

He turned to the fat man. "Ye turned out of this place as quick as you can," he went on. "If the Big Boss wants them out of the way it's not your business to shelter them."

Barney made a slight movement, as if to hurl himself at the speaker, but Mahony arrested him with his arm. For a couple of seconds no one spoke; no one seemed to know what to say. The fat man fidgeted uncomfortably.

"I don't like it," he said. "I dunno as I'm very particular, and if the Big Boss says it's not my place to interfere, but when it comes to squealing on 'em to the cops . . ."

He looked round at the faces of the other men in the room. The little bow-legged man nodded.

"The other men," he said. "Ye stated 'And quarrelling with the Big Boss is a mug's game,' put in Lake sharply. 'You know what happens to people who quarrel with him.'"

"He gets someone to squeal on them and the police arrest them," said Mahony sarcastically.

Lake made an angry gesture. In his anger he said quite the wrong thing.

"Are you going on sheltering these two? Do you want the police to come and find them here in your place?" he asked roughly.

"Because if you, the Big Boss will willingly arrange to have them tipped off that we are here," put in Mahony.

The fat man drew himself up, frowny, greasy, horrible to look at as he was, there was yet a curious air of clarity about him.

"I don't want no trouble with the Big Boss, but I ain't goin' to put no one out to be run in by the cops, not if 'e was me own worst enemy," he stated.

The other men, as Mahony could see by their expressions, were not all of the same opinion; two of them were evidently frightened of what the Big Boss might do. Before they could speak Mahony interposed.

"Thanks very much; that's decent of you," he said to the fat man, and then to the other two, "if you don't agree, you'd better keep quiet about it, because I'm not going to tell it suits me."

He drew his pistol from his pocket, and made a motion to the Irishman.

"Now then, Barney, let's hear some more about Mr. Brown," he said. "He owes you some money, doesn't he?"

"Sure he does," replied Barney. "I was to steal a big book from a safe in the house of a rich fellow named Ambrose Lawson. I got me directions from Redman, who says he owes me money. I was to get fifty for trying the job, and a hundred and fifty if I brought it off."

"And did you bring it off?" asked Mahony.

"Bring it off? Sure, if I'd known what like of a job it was I'd never have taken it on at all. What with burglar alarms and electric wires, 'tis lucky I was to get out with me whole skin. At that I was recognized; the cops was after me the very next morning."

"The way you're talking, Mahony, sympathetically. When did all this happen?"

"It would be five days ago today," answered Barney, "and never a sign or a smell of me fifty quid have I seen, though I wrote in and asked for it. And I got a few pennies note saying there was no money for me. Then, tonight, I got the tip that Mr. Brown would be there, and it was you."

Obviously, if Ross had been Mr. Brown, he had not been at the house when the Irishman first called for his money, because he was in the hospital. As he saw things, Mahony reckoned that Ross, desperate, had employed one of Lawson's own crooks to rob that house and get that book. But why had he wanted the book? The book would be worth getting hold of.

"And you think that Mr. Brown was annoyed with you because you failed to get the book, and so he refused to pay you and then squealed on you," said Mahony.

He shook his head.

"It wasn't Mr. Brown who squealed on you," he said. "It was your chief, the Big Boss himself. He was annoyed with you for trying to rob his house, so he meant to get you put away."

"The Big Boss?"

All the men in the room stared at him. Mahony stood there quite calm and sure of himself.

"Yes, the Big Boss," he repeated. "He and the man you call Mr. Brown had a quarrel, and Mr. Brown sent you to rob his house. The Big Boss is Ambrose Lawson."

"The 'ell 'e is. Are you sure of that, mate?" asked the fat man incredulously.

"Of course I'm sure," answered Mahony. "That's why he is out to get me, because I know who he is. I figure that he had me sent to that house on a fool's errand, and then tipped Barney off that I'd be there, and the police that Barney would be there, hoping that Barney and I would start murdering one another and the police would arrive in the middle of it."

"He wanted them to catch Barney, and find me, apparently quite at home in a room with dope and other things in it. He's already tried to frame me for a murder I didn't commit. He doesn't like people knowing who he is."

"Gawd!" exclaimed one of the men in a frightened voice. "Then 'ell be arter us, now we know who 'e is."

"He certainly will," agreed Mahony cheerfully. "He'll be out to scupper the whole lot of you, except your friend Lake, who may be in his confidence. But I don't suppose he'll be too pleased with Lake after the mess he's made of things this evening."

He paused.

"After all, though, it won't be like fighting against someone you don't know and can't get at," he went on. "Now you know who he is you can fight back at him."

The fat man stared at Mahony.

"I reckon you told us who he is, Mister, so that we should have to fight back at him whether we wanted to or not," he remarked.

"Maybe I did," agreed Mahony coolly. "I'm out to fight Lawson from start to finish, and I mean to beat him; but I can do with a few tough guys like you on my side."

"Who would you rather have as your chief anyway, a dirty squealer like Lawson who plots and plans in a sly way and lets other people do the dirty work, or me?"

"Sure, I'm wid yez," cried the Irishman. "A man that can lay me on the flat of me back with a blow of his fist is the chief for me, and to hell wid Lawson."

Mahony's next move was a piece of clever bluff. He gave nobody the opportunity to argue whether he was going to be the chief or not. He took it completely for granted, and asserted his authority straight away.

"I'll lead you, and help you to fight Lawson, but I want you to understand this—I mean to be obeyed," he said sternly. "You fellows don't have to argue with me; nor, if you have to do what you're told. Or else you'll strike such a heap of trouble you'll wish you were safe in jail. Is that clear?"

The fat man nodded.

Texas Aggies Also Have Chance at Pennant

and feeling that we from then on play the role of host, I have refrained from statements involving any A. A. U. personality, even though an accord already made in good faith by numerous college leaders makes it necessary for me to observe recent developments with open eyes.

1941 will receive thenceforth a monthly check from the government, if they stop working. Or a payment will go to the worker's family if he dies.

The amount of the monthly pension will depend on an employee's earnings from Jan. 1 until the 65th birthday.

Should a person retire at age 65 and then return to work from time to time, the pension check will be held up for each month in which he receives wages from an employment covered by the law.

Among those not provided for in this law is the mailman ringing the doorbell of shops everywhere today, and all others who work for the federal, state or local governments.

Two stipulations must be met before persons can be pensioned: They must have earned at least $2,000 between this December 31 and their 65th birthday; and they must have worked in at least 5 different calendar years from January 1 until that birthday.

The government will keep track of each employer through an "identification number." Workers will receive a little card giving an "account number." He is being asked his mother's maiden name at this time to help further to identify him.
