HOUSTON (AP) — A family friend who stole the life savings of an 88-year-old victim of Alzheimer's disease could be out of prison in about two years, a sentence that relatives and prosecutors find disappointing.

Gary Leach, 61, will be eligible for parole under the five-year sentence imposed Thursday by State District Judge George Godwin. He faced possible life in prison and a $10,000 fine for stealing $390,000 from Margret Wallace.

"I think the sentencing was an absolute joke," said Jean Scarborough, Mrs. Wallace's daughter. "I even wonder if the judge read any of the allegations. I was totally shocked and instantly sick to my stomach because he got away with it."

Leach pleaded guilty in August to first-degree felony theft of more than $200,000. His attorneys argued for probation.

Deer season opening under cloud of confusion over legal hunting spots

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

Deer hunting season opens Saturday in Texas, but in the Texas Panhandle there is concern about where to hunt legally with the recent Texas Supreme Court decision causing confusion among the county prosecutors.

Hunters who have hunted the Canadian River in Hutchinson and Roberts County for decades think they will be able to hunt the area legally Saturday and Sunday.

Roberts County Attorney Rick Roach said his office will take complaints on hunting violations. "It's a no-brainer as far as I'm concerned," said Roach. He said he considered the decision a mandate of the Supreme Court even though he hasn't received an actual copy of the Supreme Court decision in October.

Roach said one his constituents has received a copy of the decision. "This land was previously no-man's land now belongs to the land owners," he said.

He said, "If the landowner catches hunters on land the Supreme Court has said is their land and they want to swear out a complaint, then I have no choice but to uphold the law."

He said his view is the issue is on ownership. "I sympathize with the hunters and recreationists. I understand it is a kick in the teeth," said Roach regarding the decision on the land abating the Canadian river in the two counties. He said he is a hunter and now has no place to hunt either, nor will he be able to take his sons hunting. "I have to live up to the oath I took as county attorney. We have to let the law take its course," said Roach.

Mark McQuary a local officer with the Texas Parks and Wildlife said Roach had told him he will prosecute hunting violations on the land in question. McQuary said the procedure they follow will be no different than before. He said he will take the name and identification information of suspected hunting violators and, taking the information to the land owner, allow the land owner to make the decision whether or not to file the charges. He said it will be up to the land owner to pursue the case.

When land owners decide to file charges the cases are then referred to the county attorney of the county where offense reportedly occurs for prosecution.

Hutchinson County Attorney Mike Milner said he will not prosecute hunters along the Canadian River until after the Nov. 8 deadline. Milner said he has not received a copy of the ruling from the Supreme Court and does not feel he can prosecute until he sees a copy of the ruling.

TP&W personnel in Hutchinson County say hunters will be allowed to hunt on the Canadian River in that county Saturday and Sunday.

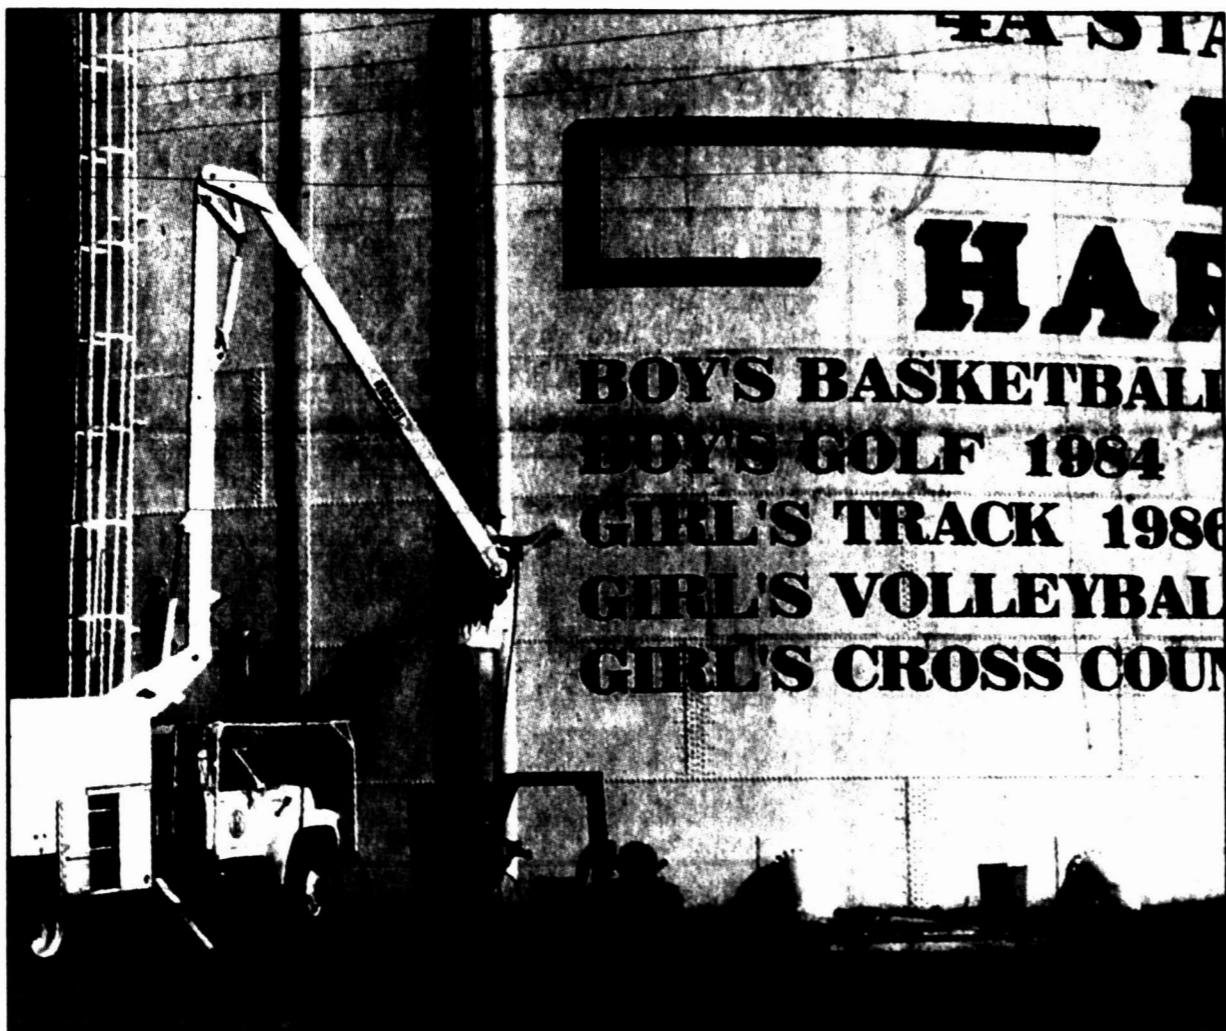

The land is expected to revert to the landowners on Monday, Nov. 8, said Milner.

White-tailed deer season begins Saturday and will continue until Jan. 2. Turkey hunting will be legal during the same time frame. Quail is now in season and will be legal until Feb. 27, 2000.

Mule Deer will not be in season until Nov. 20 when the area around the Lake Meredith Recreation area will hold hunting season.

Win Bishop, TP&W officer in the area, said the hunting in that area coincides with Potter and Moore counties' hunting times as most of the area falls in those two counties.

More bad news on sales tax front as loss continues

By KATE B. DICKSON
Associate Publisher

There's more bad news on the Pampa sales tax front with city receipts dropping for the 15th consecutive month.

The latest figures, for September sales, show receipts down 15.54 percent over the same time last year and down 15.50 from what was projected in the city budget. The dollar amount returned for September was $155,734.

"Nobody has any real answers for this," said City Finance Director John Horst. "I was very surprised with this amount down. I thought we'd budgeted conservatively to begin with then we get brought down even more."

City Manager Bob Eskridge said the continuing loss of revenue is "obviously a major problem" noting the last fiscal year's sales tax collections were down $187,000 from the 1997-98 fiscal year.

Lefors School Board has busy agenda set

The Lefors Independent School District is planning to discuss training, eating and teaching at its next regular meeting.

Among the items on the agenda for the Nov. 9 meeting is to set a date for "Board Training as a Team." School board members are required by state law to attend a certain amount of schooling every year. Some of the training has to be done at various locations around the state but some can be done at the local level using video and such. Board members have to attend training as a group.

The board will also discuss the Thanksgiving Community Dinner scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 20. They will also be discussing

Land commissioner says river use ruling may be 'far reaching'

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

Land along a 35-mile stretch in two Texas Panhandle counties will not be the only land affected in Texas by the Texas Supreme Court's decision to award the 13,000 acres plus to landowners whose land borders the river bed.

An October Supreme Court decision affecting Roberts and Hutchinson counties in the Texas Panhandle could have "far reaching and potentially detrimental effects on not only lands in the Permanent School Fund, but also those lands held by the Permanent University Fund and those maintained by Texas Parks and Wildlife," according to General Land Office Commissioner David Dewhurst.

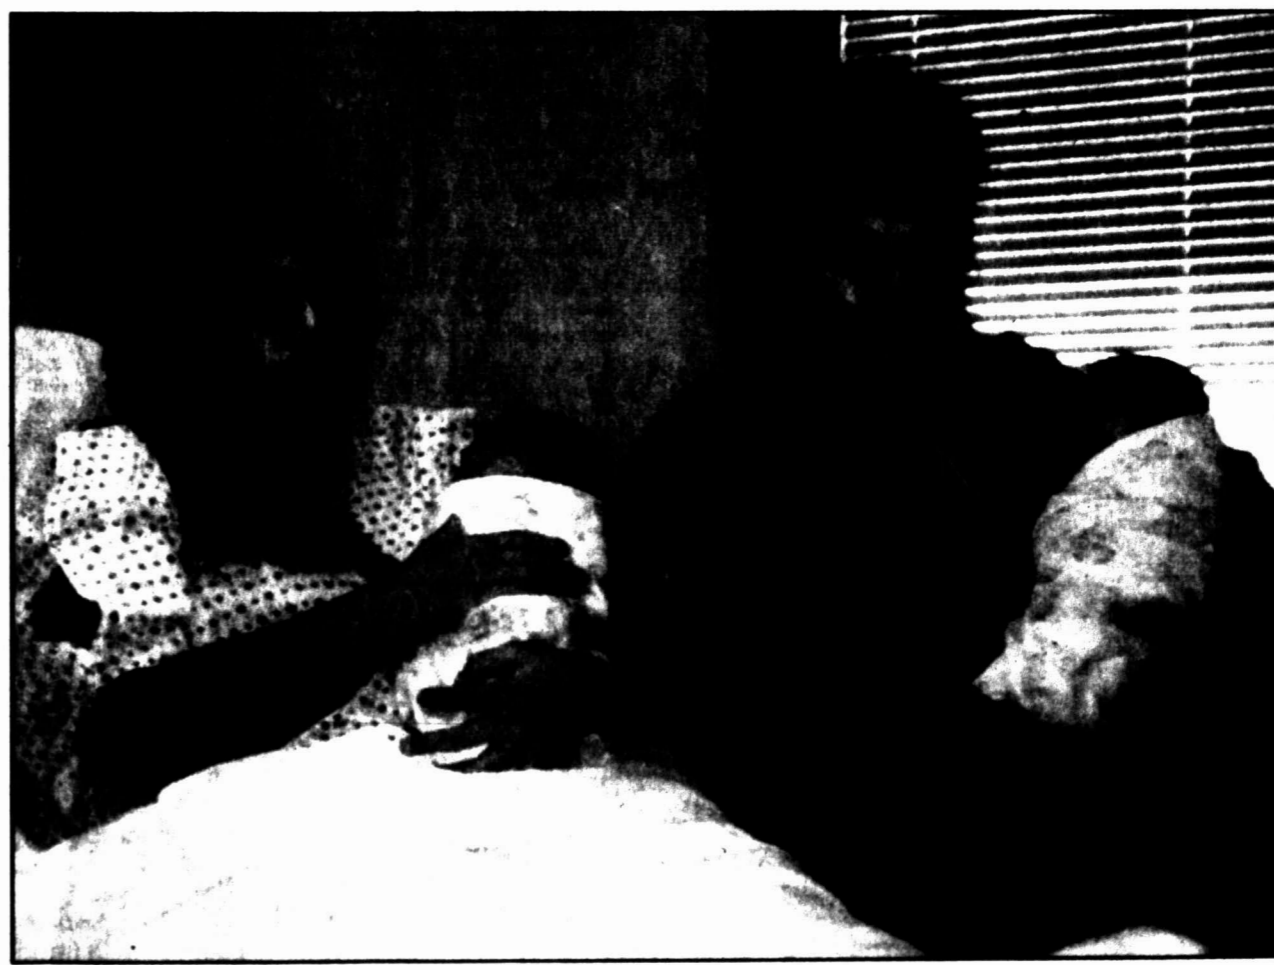

As the deadline rapidly approaches for the state's chief attorney to ask the Texas Supreme Court for a rehearing on the Canadian River issue, Attorney General John Cornyn says he will file a rehearing motion to the Texas Supreme Court regarding their Oct. 9 decision granting the river land to landowners in the river area.

Andrea Horton, a spokeswoman with the Attorney General's Office, told The Pampa News this morning that the request for the rehearing will be granted by Monday.

Dewhurst requested Monday that Cornyn ask the Supreme Court for a clarification of the ruling they made which favored the landowners.

The land agency's general counsel, Eric Sigsbey, said if the Supreme Court doesn't clarify its ruling, the state will be faced with decisions by trial courts and appellate courts attempting to interpret the ruling in other cases.

Matching spiritual life to marriage

A thoroughly modern young woman struggles with the demands of a new marriage, her career and a journey of self discovery which has taken her quite by surprise. Not long after her marriage, an unexpected rub developed. It was agreed before the union, the couple would attend her husband's church. The bride joined and though she wasn't quite sure what she was getting into, she intended to be happy with the spirituality of her groom. Instead of providing spiritual nourishment and peace, the weekly service primarily functions to provide her with a new raft of questions about God, the church and the relationship of God to man. On the other hand, her hubby is a convicted and convinced man. From the pulpit drip pearls of wisdom, capital T truths, the gospel revealed.

Not a child of Sunday school, barely Biblically literate, her husband's affection for the church and its people are strange to her. Oh, the people are all right, they've been very kind to her, she says, but she's not sure what the fuss about.

She loves her practical and kind young man. But together they don't explore the spiritual questions which keep her awake at night or wonder about the human condition. For him, the cosmic questions were nailed down because he learned the answers at church. She only discovers more questions at church.

The woman is not by nature contrary. She is not in rebellion against the God of her husband, but she does not understand his certainty or the sensibility of his childhood theology. She is willing to learn if she could only make sense of it in her mind's framework.

The young woman tells of her difficulties in a voice which skitters between tears and nervous laughter. Marriage is not what she expected. She didn't know the reality of the living-vow of marriage which promises to parallel one's life alongside another. She now knows the shock of discovering a misalignment in a fundamental area. It never occurred to her before the ceremony they wouldn't be a perfect match in every area, including the spiritual.

Retired minister-author explores 'what-ifs' surrounding epistle

AMARILLO, Texas — The Epistle of Paul the Apostle to Philemon is only 25 verses long, and the message is a bit vague. But Jerry McClenagan, armed with such modern-day conveniences as his laptop computer and an ever-present cup of espresso, has brought the ancient characters to life.

"Bondslave: An Epic of One Slave's Struggle for Freedom in the Roman Empire," is McClenagan's first book. He calls it "a biblical historical novel," and the tale is drawn from his 40-year addiction to biblical and historical research.

McClenagan retired 10 years ago from a career in sales and management and decided to learn how to put sentences together. He enrolled in a creative writing course at Amarillo College and joined a writer's group. At first, he produced essays and poetry.

"Three-and-a-half years ago, I woke up one morning and said, 'I'm going to write a novel, and base it on Philemon,'" McClenagan said.

The dictionary in the Thomas Nelson version of the King James Bible describes Philemon as "A Christian of Colosse to whom the New Testament Epistle to Philemon was written by Paul. In the letter, Paul asks Philemon to pardon Onesimus, a runaway slave whom Paul has converted."

The book of Philemon does not tell us how the story turns out. McClenagan supplies an ending that he said "just evolved from the rest of the story."

"There is nothing in history - secular or biblical - no traditions about what happens to Philemon," he said. "The ending I have used leads to a possible sequel, because tradition has it that Onesimus became the bishop of the church at Ephesus."

One reason the Scripture appealed to him was that there wasn't an ending to that story.

"What was the rest of the story here?" he asked. "Where did Philemon go? Was he a good influence in that church, or a bad influence? Paul never mentions him in any of the other letters. Who was this man, and how did he deal with this letter that the Apostle Paul sent him?"

"I built his character out of all the historical data I could find. It's like trying to take sawdust and build a board out of it. One of the expressions that has come to be used is 'faction,' a mix of fiction and fact. You have to have an imagination, but when you build a story on history, you want it to be as accurate as possible."

"Bondslave," McClenagan said, "is about reconciliation and freedom, about a master and his slave being reconciled. The only way they could accomplish it was through their personal reconciliation to God."

His book is about "the real roots of slavery," McClenagan said, and about "the multi-faceted religious maze of the Roman and Greek empire in 51 A.D. through 79 A.D. It parallels man's search today. Man today walks through a religious maze, searching for spiritual answers."

McClenagan spent eight months researching the book. Then he started writing - 20 to 25 hours a week for two years. His wife, Martha, was working as a data-processing manager at Western Merchandisers at the time, so he had the house to himself. But unlike some writers, he did not fare so well in a quiet room.

Seeking a modest amount of human companionship, McClenagan took his lap top to the now-closed Cafe in the Park restaurant, where he often wrote from 7 to 11 a.m., and later to Marshall Coffee.

As the book progressed, McClenagan was cheered on by members of Inspirational Writers Alive! and the Amarillo Senior Citizens Association writing group. Fellow members of the Christian Church of God also were supportive, with the possible exception of his pastor, Jeff Booth, who once said to the congregation, "Jerry is writing a novel; I don't understand why, since he could go down to the bookstore and buy one."

McClenagan, the father of four grown children, is an ordained minister.

He and Martha were married in 1955 and moved from Oklahoma to Roswell, N.M., where he pastored a church. He was a full-time minister for 10 years, and since then has had a part-time ministry as a gospel singer and pulpit guest.

"I consider this book a slice of my ministry," he said. "If I can put this story in fictionalized history, I can perhaps get some points across that I have inside of me."

"Bondslave" is published by Essence Publishing, a Christian house in Ontario, Canada.

Churches rebuild after Floyd

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Like thousands of families who have lost their homes under Hurricane Floyd's floodwaters, houses of worship have suffered, too. Ministers like the Rev. Pat Kilby face uncertainty for their flocks.

The 34-year-old Kilby became pastor of Adamsville Baptist Church earlier this year. Now his church — with no flood insurance — must find a way to complete up to $150,000 in repairs after more than a foot of water damaged Sunday school rooms, the fellowship hall and the pastor's study.

But members of other churches have arrived to help with demolition work and repairs, and Kilby is hopeful of a bright future.

"The God we serve created the world in six days and rested on the seventh," Kilby said. "If he can do that, than I'm sure he'll take care of us. This isn't a problem to him."

Up to 20 inches of rain from Floyd in mid-September forced the 650-member church to rip out what had been newly installed carpet, tear down rotting wallboard and clean up hundreds of chairs and tables. The floodwater receded but rose again when more rain fell.

Members of Bethlehem Baptist Church in Knightdale learned of Kilby's predicament and came to Goldsboro recently with demolition tools to help. Other religious organizations helping houses of worship clean up include the Baptist State Convention, the Council of Churches and the Quakers.

FCC to install senior minister Sunday

A special service installing Rev. Barry A. Loving as senior minister of First Christian Church of Pampa will be Sunday, Nov. 7, during the morning worship service at First Christian Church, 1633 N. Nelson.

Loving, his wife Mary and daughter Lacy, came to Pampa in July 1997 when he assumed the responsibilities of associate pastor and youth minister for the church.

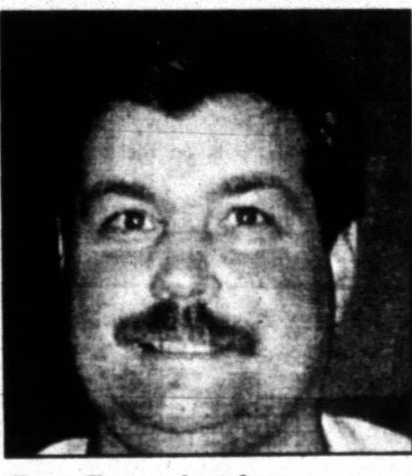

"Let me assure you that Mary and I feel blessed to be in Pampa," said Loving. "We are excited about the ministry God has called us to." Loving said he sees his new role as senior minister as an "awesome challenge," in the same light as the great commission Jesus Christ gave to his disciples.

A native of Dumas, Rev. Loving graduated from West Texas State University with a degree in biology/education. He has served as youth director at First Christian Church of Canyon, Master of the Horses at Boys Ranch, and, along with his wife Mary, ran a group home for boys in Colorado Springs, Colo.

In September 1998, Rev. Loving received the Minister of the Year award for the High Plains Area, encompassing 48 Disciples of Christ churches. He is a member of the High Plains Area Youth Ministry Team, chairman of the children and youth committee for the High Plains Area and serves as assistant spiritual director for the Golden Spread Emmaus Community.

The public is invited to attend Rev. Loving's installation service at 10:45 a.m., Sunday, Nov. 7. For more information, call First Christian Church at 669-3225.

Donkeys headed for Honduras are blessed

PERRYVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Ten Mammoth Jack donkeys bound for Honduras to help in the Central American country's year-old hurricane recovery were blessed before their departure.

The Rev. Richard Davis blessed the animals in a ceremony at a ranch south of Perryville. The donkeys will be sent to Honduras in late October to stand at stud with horses to create work mules.

The Mammoth Jacks, the largest variety of donkeys, were collected by Heifer Project International, a Little Rock-based charity that sends food- or income-producing animals to developing countries. Religious services often are conducted before the animals are shipped.

"St. Francis called the animals, wild and tame, his brothers and sisters," said Davis, from St. Francis Roman Catholic Church. A donkey that had been across the field when Davis began the blessing walked over to the priest during the rite.

The blessing came on the eve of the day the church honors St. Francis, a 13th century monk who renounced his parents' fortune and became the patron saint of animals and nature.

Long-Lasting Marriages Are Built Out of Daily Courtesies

DEAR ABBY: "Still Dating," the woman and her husband who have incorporated good manners into their marriage, have my support. I encourage them to continue, regardless of what their daughters think.

My wife and I have been married almost 42 years. We still hold hands in public and exchange brief smooches. I open doors for her — both to buildings and cars — and I also help her out of the car. I do little things "just because," like bringing her flowers or small pieces of costume jewelry. It gives me great pleasure.

Let their children learn by observation a good lesson in chivalry, gallantry, and just plain good manners. They'll see, in about 10 years, how fortunate they are to have such loving, devoted parents.

Abigail Van Buren

today say, "I can open my own doors. I don't need a man." Well, let me tell you something: When a man opens a door, holds a chair or a coat, he's telling you he feels you are a woman worth the effort. The least you can do is to smile and say "Thank you."

he continued to do those little things for me. And when he grew too ill to do them, I turned the tables and opened doors for him and assisted him up the stairs or from the car.

Nearly five years ago, my darling went to a better place. He's free of pain.

Occasionally I have had the pleasure of having a gentleman hold a door for me. I always accept the courtesy and smile and thank him. Thank heavens some members of the younger generation have learned to value manners and courtesy to and from others.

I am 88 years old and enjoy every courtesy a man pays me. Some time ago, I entered an elevator, and a gentleman took off his hat and asked if I wanted the main floor. I said, "Yes, thank you." When we left the elevator and approached the heavy front door, he hurried to hold it for me. I thanked him again, and then I heard him say, "Well! It's been a long time since a woman thanked me." I said, "How kind of you. These doors are so heavy." He smiled from ear to ear. He felt good and so did I.

STILL MISSING HIM, TARPON SPRINGS, FLA.

DEAR STILL MISSING HIM: I offer my sympathy for the loss of your loving mate. It's clear that yours was a very caring union. Although chivalry may no longer be universally practiced, it isn't dead yet. And it should be nurtured wherever it appears. Read on:

One day at the mall, a boy about 7 was opening a large, heavy door as a woman got there. As he held it, she sailed right through without even looking at him. When he held it for me, I said, "Thank you so much. These doors are heavy." His face lit up and he said, "Yes." I added, "Oh, you are the dear man today." He stretched up about 3 inches with his chest out. Even little guys like to be thanked.

A woman who learns to be gracious will be surprised at the perks.

DEAR ABBY: This is my first letter to you, but I had to write after reading the letter from "Still Dating." Let's hope her daughters eventually learn to accept and value the old-fashioned courtesies. The parents are setting an excellent example for them.

As a 61-year-old widow, I can't begin to tell you how much I miss those "old-fashioned" courtesies from my husband, Richard. For most of a long, debilitating illness,

DEAR ABBY: So many women or child. Laughter proves to be contagious. If single, move carefully. Tonight: Pretend it is Friday night.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 ★★ ★★ Remain direct with others. There will be much to deal with. A family member rebels, weighed down by responsibilities and a domestic situation. You come to the rescue, but be careful. Establish boundaries. Tonight: Make an important personal resolution.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 ★★ ★★ Keep reaching out, even if you feel a bit singled. Feelings are intense; you might be out of sync, tired and dragging. What could be a mild issue when you are in full form now proves to be profoundly upsetting. Talk; don't close down. Tonight: You'll come to an important agreement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
 ★★ ★★ Finances are subject to a partner's whims. You might really wonder what is going on with your wallet. An even, steady approach makes a big difference in dealing with an unpredictable child or loved one. Don't spend what you don't have. Tonight: Quit robbing Peter to pay Paul.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
 ★★ ★★ You will need your insight and charm to deal with a family member. Uproar becomes a byword with another. You find others negative and difficult. Make a decision yourself; don't go around polling opinions. Make that health resolution — the holidays are coming soon! Tonight: Ask for what you want.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
 ★★ ★★ Take some time off; perhaps even think about calling in Monday as well.

You find news disconcerting, to say the very least, though normally you would just shrug your shoulders. Be direct with a friend you can trust. You might opt for a personal resolution. Tonight: Cocoon.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 ★★ ★★ Listen to a friend. Though you might not be asking for advice, you certainly get an earful. A change is called for, but how you handle it is your call. Be direct with others and be willing to clamp down on funds. Remember, you aren't Daddy Warbucks. Tonight: Enjoy yourself with your friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 ★★ ★★ You revolt against present pressures and demands. Others could be dumbfounded, although you feel justified. A family member who seems like a demand machine causes you to lose your temper. Start customizing your life so it is closer to the way you want it. Tonight: Making your imprint on the world.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
 ★★ ★★ Though you could be feeling a bit down and out, stay positive. Take an overview. By having a strong reaction, you might be causing yourself more problems than you need. Always detach when feeling this emotional. Go to the movies! Tonight: Go for Chinese food.

PEP RALLY

PAMPA — The Community Pep Rally for the Pampa football team has been changed from 7:30 to 8:30 tonight in McNeely Fieldhouse. The time change was made because of the regional volleyball match between Pampa and Hereford at 5 p.m. today at the Amarillo High Activity Center.

Some of the volleyball players are also senior cheerleaders. Senior players, cheerleaders and their parent will be recognized at the rally.

Fans are urged to come to the rally and show their support for the Pampa Harvesters, who meet the Borger Bulldogs at 2 p.m. Saturday in Harvester Stadium in the final game of the regular season.

Janice Bellah of the booster club also urged Harvester fans to bring their freon shakers to Saturday's game.

"Borger fans travel to the out-of-town games with their shakers. We need to bring ours," she said.

BASKETBALL

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs like what they're seeing so far from their new players.

Samaki Walker, a reserve forward, is the latest newcomer to shine.

He had 16 points and was the second-highest scorer behind David Robinson as the Spurs beat the Golden State Warriors 104-81 on Thursday night.

Robinson scored 19 points, and Tim Duncan scored 15 points and grabbed 14 rebounds in the San Antonio victory. Robinson and Duncan each had three blocked shots as the Spurs held Golden State to 34-percent shooting.

"I was thrilled with the defense," said Spurs coach Gregg Popovich. "On the offensive end, they were unselfish. I like the way the big guys played, passing the ball and looking for each other."

The Spurs began to dominate in the first two quarters and held a 10-point lead by halftime. San Antonio improved on that advantage as the third quarter got under way.

Walker was one of five Spurs scoring in double figures. Jerome Kersey, also a reserve, had 10 points as did starting guard Mario Elie.

"I'm still looking for my flow," Walker said. "Once I get my flow, I feel I can contribute more, give more of a spark."

Walker spent his first three NBA seasons with the Dallas Mavericks before signing with the Spurs as a free agent in the offseason.

Popovich said his coaching staff has been pressing Walker to work hard, and he's been responding well. Now, with two games complete, he's starting to get accustomed to the Spurs' system.

"He was nervous the first game, and I think he was still a little nervous the first half tonight, but the nerves are starting to disappear," Popovich said. "He's starting to feel confident."

Warriors coach P.J. Carlesimo said his team tried to concentrate on defending Duncan and Robinson, but then other Spurs players stepped in and hurt Golden State.

"They are so deep," Carlesimo said. "They have quite a few guys on their bench with nearly ten years of NBA experience who really understand their roles and fill them nicely."

Terry Porter, a veteran guard who signed on during the summer, made the difference in the Spurs' opening night victory over Philadelphia on Tuesday. Backing up starting point guard Avery Johnson, he scored 15 points.

Aikman still having headaches

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Four days after Indianapolis safety Jeff Burris went helmet to helmet with him, quarterback Troy Aikman took a couple of aspirin and worked out with the Cowboys, getting ready for a Monday night game in Minnesota.

Aikman said after Thursday's practice he's still having headaches, but expects to be OK for the Vikings game.

"I don't know. If I'm still experiencing headaches a week after, then that would be a concern and that would be discussed. I'd hate to say right now that I would not play. But I'd hate to say I definitely would play," Aikman said.

"The only comment I guess I can make is I plan on playing, and I will go out and practice this week, anticipating that the headaches will stop."

Aikman has suffered five concussions as a Cowboy, but none has prevented him from playing the following week.

The Cowboys, who were criticized because Deion Sanders returned to play in the Washington game on Oct. 24 after a concussion, refuse to say that Aikman even suffered a concussion. Trainer Jim Maurer termed what happened as "a hit to the head" and said an MRI didn't reveal any damage.

Maurer said it's not unusual for Aikman to still experience headaches. That the headaches don't last as long and aren't as severe is a good sign, he said.

The Cowboys made no effort Thursday to give backup Jason Garrett any extra snaps.

Aikman missed only one series after Burris buried him on a blindside blitz early in the fourth quarter of Indianapolis' 34-24 victory on Sunday.

Aikman said he felt a constant headache through Monday. The pain has come and gone since then, each time decreasing in duration and intensity.

"It's a concern," Aikman said. "There's no question."

This is only the third of Aikman's many concussions that have left him in pain for so long.

It first happened when he was a rookie in 1989 and again after being knocked out of the January 1994 NFC championship.

He played the following week both times.

But things are different now. Several players have retired in recent years because of the cumulative effect of concussions. San Francisco quarterback Steve Young is being urged by many to join that group.

Like Young, Aikman is a client of agent Leigh Steinberg. Steinberg has done

Pampa cross country team enters Lubbock regionals

PAMPA — The Pampa girls cross country team has put together another successful season, and another state championship is within reach.

Pampa won the state title in 1995 when five current Lady Harvesters were freshmen. Beth Lee, Samantha Hurst, Amanda White, Anna Resendiz and Marci Hansen are now seniors.

"These girls have been running for five years and all five of them have been to the state meet," said Pampa coach Mark Elms. "Nothing should surprise us. We've probably got more veterans than anybody in the state. I don't know if that's a true statement or not, but it's pretty close."

The Lady Harvesters are making their move for another possible state championship berth this season, winning 7 of 8 meets, including the District 3-4A title for the second year in a row. Coach Elms talented crew of athletes head for Lubbock and the regional meet this weekend.

"On paper it looks like we're one of the top three teams in the state. I know we're going to try and make an all-effort effort to win everything," Elms added.

"We've been running at teams the past two or three years. Now we're the team in control."

The Lady Harvesters are currently ranked No. 2 in Class 4A by Texas Track & Field News.

Led by Beth Lee, the Lady Harvesters have dominated every meet they've won. While other schools have claimed individual titles, the Pampa girls are bringing home the team trophies. The district meet at Canyon is a good example. Pampa compiled 25 points while Hereford was far back in second with 44. Lee was second, Samantha Hurst third, Rebecca Fatheree fifth, T'Andra Holmes sixth, Amanda White ninth, Vanessa Orr 10th and Anna Resendiz 12th. Hurst and Fatheree have been running right behind Lee much of the season.

Lee has finished no lower than third and tied a course record at the Liberal, (Kan.) Invitational.

The Lady Harvesters held a light workout Friday at Central Park before getting ready for the Lubbock trip. They compete at 11 a.m. Saturday at Mae Simmons Park.

Competing at 11:30 a.m. in the boys division is Pampa's lone qualifier Javier Solis, who finished seventh in the district meet.

Lady Harvesters meet Herd in regional vb quarterfinals

AMARILLO — Pampa meets Hereford at 5 p.m. today in the regional quarterfinals of the volleyball playoffs at the Amarillo High Activity Center.

The Lady Harvesters advanced to regionals by beating Canyon in bi-district and El Paso in the area round.

Pampa, 15-16 for the season, gained the playoffs by placing third in the District 3-4A race. Hereford the District 3-4A champion has a 26-7 record.

The two teams met last season in the area round with Hereford ending Pampa's season. The Lady Whitefaces haven't lost before the regional round in the 1990s and appear to be the Region 1-4A favorite to reach the 4A state tournament.

Seniors Tandi Morton, Lindsey Earl and Anne Gaddis have played key roles in Pampa's playoff run, but teamwork has been a big part of the Lady Harvesters' success.

Morton had 12 kills while Gaddis and junior Destiny Engel had 11 each to help lead Pampa over El Paso Bowie in the area match.

Earl sparked the Pampa win over Canyon in bi-district play with 23 assists and 4 digs. Engel had 9 kills while Gaddis and Morton added 5 each.

Tradition continues as Pampa hosts Borger

PAMPA — Despite Borger's 30-3 setback to Hereford last weekend, Pampa coach Dennis Cavalier isn't expecting the Bulldogs to be psychologically damaged by the loss coming into Harvester Stadium.

"There's two ways you can look at it. Borger is going to be down or they're going to be mad," Cavalier said. "I'm sure they were disappointed in the way they played against Hereford, maybe even more so than us, because it was for the district championship. I'm sure thoughts of Pampa is foremost in their mind now because of the tradition and excitement of the game, and all that."

Pampa dropped a 38-10 decision to Hereford two weeks ago before bouncing back to tame Palo Duro 21-7 last Friday night.

Pampa and Borger meet at 2 p.m. Saturday in Pampa. Borger has already secured a playoff spot while Pampa is closing in on one.

Actually, the Harvesters can make the playoffs without even playing Borger. District-leading Hereford is expected to beat Caprock tonight, giving Pampa an automatic playoff berth.

Pampa and Caprock are tied for the third-place playoff spot at 2-2, but the Harvesters hold the tiebreaker advantage.

However, a Caprock win would put the Longhorns in the playoffs because they beat Pampa in head-to-head competition.

The Harvesters will be looking to slow down speedy tailback Eron Haynes, who leads Borger and District 3-4A in rushing, but Cavalier said quarterback Kevin McNellis is an important cog in the Bulldogs' offense.

"Borger is very proficient in the passing game," Cavalier said. "They have pretty much of a balanced (rushing & passing) offense, or maybe 50-45. McNellis is a good thrower and Zane Willard is their top receiver. Haynes is definitely their main ballcarrier. Borger has a 1-back deal and they don't hardly hand the ball off to anyone except Haynes."

Pampa linebackers Jason Burklow and Nathan Arnn will be leading the defensive charge against Haynes and company. Burklow leads the Harvesters in tackles with 101 while Arnn is second at 71.

UT to induct 7

AUSTIN (AP) — Steve McMichael, a two-time football All-American tackle, will be among seven athletes inducted Nov. 12 into the Longhorn Hall of Honor.

Storms take City crown

PAMPA - The Pampa third and fourth grade Storms captured the City Championship after a hard-fought battle with the Pampa Packers. The Storms came away with a 12-0 victory.

Ryan Malone scored on a 50-yard run the fourth play of the game behind the blocking of Dakota Gilleland, Taylor Smith and Cameron Klein.

The point after failed as Chris Smith was stopped for no gain. After the kickoff by Shavious Kelly, the Packers were forced to give up the ball on downs after a determined defense led by Mitch Bromlow, Taylor Holt and Derrick Cantu refused to break.

J' Mico Mitchell scored from 20 yards out behind blocking up front by Jacob Wichert and Taylor Busse. Malone failed to convert.

The Packers came storming back, but failed to convert as the first half closed.

The Packers kicked off and then held the Storms on downs after taking over at the Storm 40. They marched the ball to the three-yard line and fumbled into the end zone and the Storms recovered.

Defense of the goal was anchored by Joshua Pryor, Nicholas Day and Jeremy Busse. The Storm struck back from their 20, moving down the field behind Andy Parker, Brodie Peters and Nicholas Riley. Joshua Mooney sprung Shavious Kelly loose to the six-yard line where time expired.

The Broncos defeated the Storms 16-6 in 3rd and 4th grade Optimist football action, Saturday Oct. 23rd at the Pampa Middle School. After a scoreless first quarter, the Broncos jumped on top with a 10-yard tight end reverse to Heath Skinner for a 6-0 lead. Nick Burklow ran up the middle for the extra point making the score 8-0 Broncos.

Hayden Skinner caught a 25 yard pass from Nick Burklow for the Broncos and Ryan Malone had a 30 yard run for the Storms in the first half, but it ended with the score 8-0 Broncos. The second half didn't start very well for the Broncos, as they fumbled the ball 3 times in the first 5 plays they ran. The 3rd fumble allowed the Storms to score and get back in the game. Ryan Malone scored on a quarterback sneak, but the extra point failed, making the score 8-6 Broncos.

The fourth quarter turned out better for the Broncos as Lowry Baggett scampered 40 yards for the second touchdown and again Nick Burklow ran for the extra point, making the score Broncos 16, Storms 6. A great defensive effort by the Broncos team was led by Madison Wilson, John Luke Covalt, Lowry Baggett, Nick Burklow, Jad McGuire, Conrad Munguia, Heath and Hayden Skinner. Others contributing on both offense and defense were Joe Whitley, Kevin Kirkham, Dylan Cain, Tyler Jones, Tyler Rhodes, Casey Trimble, David Gutierrez and Tyler Dodson.

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Football Writer

When the Titans play the Dolphins in Miami, the nation will be watching a microcosm of the 1999 NFL season, a meeting of two 6-1 teams that hardly conjure up visions of the Steelers of the '70s, the 49ers of the '80s or the Cowboys of the '90s.

In other words, two teams that win games by one point, two points, three points or because someone else's kicker misses a makeable field goal in the final seconds.

This is a game the schedule-makers made an afterthought, putting it on Sunday night television instead of its national Monday night showcase.

Miami is favored by three, taking into account the game is in Miami. The Dolphins' quarterback remains Damon Huard instead of Dan Marino, and their two most potent weapons are defense and field goal kicker Olindo Mare.

Then there's Tennessee, which jumped all over previously unbeaten St. Louis last week, running up a quick 21-0 lead. They gave almost all of it back, winning 24-21 only because Jeff Wilkins missed a 38-yard field goal that would have sent the game into overtime.

But that's the norm for the Titans (and the NFL). All but one of their wins has been by three points or less and their loss was by two points.

For the third week in a row... TITANS, 24-21. Dallas (off) at Minnesota (Monday night) The "off" is for Troy Aikman's status. The

"on" is the Vikings, whose two straight wins with Jeff George at QB has raised the confidence level.

"We're very, very close to being a very, very good football team," says Kris Carter. Dallas isn't, even with Aikman. VIKINGS, 27-11.

St. Louis (minus 3) at Detroit Even in losing, the Rams got enough respect to be favored on the road against a winning team. RAMS, 30-21.

Baltimore (minus 3) at Cleveland Art Modell's not going. Good thing. The Browns are on a roll. BROWNS, 8-7.

Buffalo (plus 4) at Washington Dan Snyder note: If Doug Flutie pulls this one out for the Bills, you can't call Brad Johnson and sign Flutie. The NFL doesn't work that way. REDSKINS, 27-20.

Kansas City (plus 3 1/2) at Indianapolis Another unanticipated good matchup. Kansas City D vs. Indy O. COLTS, 24-16.

Denver (plus 1) at San Diego The way the Chargers have been turning over the ball, they might have needed the suspended Ryan Leaf against the banged-up Broncos. But leave it to the defense. CHARGERS, 9-5.

Pittsburgh (plus 3) at San Francisco A marquee matchup that's not. Even Kordell Stewart can throw against the Niners. STEELERS, 20-10.

Jacksonville (minus 6) at Atlanta Is this like college football's Georgia-Florida rivalry? JAGUARS, 30-14.

Chicago (off) at Green Bay Brett Favre takes it out on the sinking Bears. PACKERS, 28-6.

Arizona (plus 7) at New York Jets Rick Mirer vs. Dave Brown in Brown's return to the scene of his early crimes. JETS, 12-6.

Tampa Bay (minus 3 1/2) at New Orleans Eric Zeier's arm isn't strong enough for a third straight "Hail Mary" against the Saints. But the defense is strong enough to win. BUCS, 10-9.

Cincinnati (plus 14) at Seattle The Bengals are one of the truly predictable teams this season. SEAHAWKS, 37-3.

Philadelphia (plus 4 1/2) at Carolina. Call them the spunky little Eagles. EAGLES 13-10.

Last week: 9-4-1 (spread); 10-4 (straight up). Season: 53-56-5 (spread); 70-44 (straight up).

Solich: Cornhuskers still confident

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - Losing a fourth-quarter lead becomes a lot less alarming when your team comes back and wins. Nebraska coach Frank Solich is willing to forget about, or at least push aside, the fact that the Cornhuskers trailed Kansas 9-0 at halftime last week. The Jayhawks' touchdown that tied the score at 17 in the fourth quarter is also history. Nebraska's 24-17 victory is what counts, Solich said, but he doesn't want to see the No. 9 Cornhuskers fall behind again Saturday when No. 21 Texas A&M visits Lincoln. "I think most teams get faced with that as you go through your season. Some of them are able to respond and get it done. Some of them don't respond," Solich said. Nebraska (7-1 overall, 4-1 Big 12) didn't get it done two weeks ago at Texas, when the Longhorns rallied to beat the Huskers for the third straight time. The Huskers got it done last week at Kansas, which Solich said is a sign that the team didn't give up despite being knocked out of national title contention the week before. "Even some of the national championship teams that we've had have had to come up with plays at the end of the game to get it done. It's just not a deal where you run the table - show up, play great football and have the game come easy to you," he said. Solich hopes the slide will be short-lived. He said the team's confidence is high despite the close call at Kansas, which hasn't beaten Nebraska since 1968. Nebraska rallied in the second half and pulled out the game on a 49-yard pass play from Eric Crouch to Bobby Newcombe, but not before letting another fourth-quarter lead slip away. Solich said the Huskers will need a better performance against the No. 21 Aggies (6-2, 3-2). "It's certainly a lesson learned by this football team that regardless of the reputation of a football team, regardless of a team's record, you'd better be able to play four quarters of good football," Solich said. Texas A&M, the defending Big 12 champion, ended Nebraska's 19-game winning streak last year with a 28-21 upset in College Station. It was the first of four losses for Solich, in his first season after taking over the program from Tom Osborne. Nebraska quarterback Bobby Newcombe passed for 204 yards and receiver Matt Davison set a school record with 10 catches, but only because the Aggies forced the Huskers to throw after jumping to a 28-7 lead. "I think last year we were playing in a situation we didn't want to be in. Being down three touchdowns, that's not something we're accustomed to," Davison said. "We had to throw the ball a little bit more and that opened some opportunities up for me. Hopefully we can do some more of that this year without being behind three touchdowns." A&M had lost its last five games against Nebraska, including the 1997 Big 12 championship game. Coach R.C. Slocumb said the Aggies know Nebraska, which trails Kansas State by a game in the Big 12 North Division, hasn't forgotten last year's game.

Reporter asks Bush to name leaders in four current world hot spots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Gov. George W. Bush opposes the overthrow of a democratically elected government, but believes a military coup in Pakistan last month has brought stability to western Asia.

Bush's view of the situation emerged Wednesday during a pop quiz on foreign affairs. It was given by a television reporter who asked him to name the leaders of four current world hot spots: Chechnya, Taiwan, India and Pakistan.

Bush was able to give a partial response to just one: Taiwan.

"Can you name the general who is in charge of Pakistan?" asked Andy Hiller, political reporter for WHDH-TV in Boston. He was inquiring about Gen. Pervez Musharraf, who seized control of the country on Oct. 12.

"Wait, wait, is this 50 questions?" asked Bush.

Hiller replied: "No, it's four questions of four leaders in four hot spots."

Bush said: "The new Pakistani general, he's just been elected — not elected, this guy took over office. It appears this guy is going to bring stability to the country and I think that's good news for the subcontinent."

The answer drew criticism Thursday from the campaign of Democrat Al Gore, which said the vice president could have answered all four questions correctly.

"I guess we know that 'C' at Yale was a gentleman's 'C,'" said Gore spokesman Chris Lehane, referring to Bush's characterization of his college academic record.

The Clinton administration has expressed disappointment that Musharraf has not offered a timetable for restoring democracy in Pakistan, but U.S. officials have not been alarmed at the military coup. They describe Musharraf as reasonable.

A Bush campaign official defended the governor's performance.

"The person who is running for president is seeking to be the leader of the free world, not a Jeopardy contestant," said Karen Hughes, Bush's communications director.

"I would venture to guess that 99.9 percent of most Americans and probably most candidates could not answer who is the president of Chechnya," Hughes added.

She said Bush was not endorsing the coup, but was stating his interpretation of events as they stand.

"Neither he nor the United States government supports a coup — the overthrow of a democratically elected government," Hughes said. "What he was speaking to was what appears to be an encouraging prospect, that what has happened appears to have brought stability and resulted in an easing of tensions between Pakistan and India."

Hughes said Musharraf "has said he's committed to reinstating democratically elected government, and he seems to have brought stability to a country that had been in turmoil, and Governor Bush hopes he is committed to keeping that promise."

Hiller, who interviewed Bush during a break in the governor's visit to New Hampshire, is known locally for asking sassy questions of political leaders.

Meanwhile, Bush said Thursday that he will skip the Louisiana GOP caucuses on Jan. 15 to honor the primacy of the Iowa caucuses nine days later on Jan. 24.

"I've decided not to participate in any way in the Louisiana caucus, and will honor the tradition of Iowa as first in the nation, as well as the tradition of New Hampshire as the first primary," he said.

Bush and his rivals for the Republican presidential nomination also agreed to meet in a televised forum Dec. 13 in Des Moines, Iowa.

Aides to Bush, Steve Forbes, Alan Keyes, Gary Bauer and Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah all announced plans to attend. Aides to Sen. John McCain of Arizona — who has decided to bypass the Iowa contest to focus on New Hampshire — said he likely would show up.

Bush participates in his first debate on Dec. 2 in New Hampshire.

Robot sent down at Flight 990 scene

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The Navy sent a giant robot down to search the ocean floor today for the black boxes and bodies from the crash of EgyptAir Flight 990, after rough seas eased just enough to make the dive possible.

Weather buoys this morning showed waves at 8 feet, Coast Guard officials said. That is the upper limit at which the Navy can lower the Deep Drone robot into the ocean to search for the jet's voice and data recorders. Forecasts indicated that conditions would deteriorate again later today.

The Navy headed into rough seas Thursday to prepare for the brief window of opportunity in which conditions would be quiet enough to safely lower the machine 270 feet.

Those boxes — the flight data recorder and the cockpit voice recorder — are considered keys to figuring out why Flight 990 plummeted to the Atlantic Ocean on Sunday, killing all 217 on board.

Without them, the National Transportation Safety Board was investigating all possibilities, learning what it could from radar data and cargo manifests.

Radar readings show the plane's terrifying last moments — plunging 17,000 feet, then rising 8,000 feet and then diving again as it apparently broke apart over the water.

NTSB Chairman James Hall said nothing hazardous was apparently in the cargo holds. He added that there were not two armed guards on the plane — despite a policy of the airline to sometimes have them aboard — and 33 Egyptian military personnel were required to go through metal detectors before boarding.

The possibility of human error also is being studied, the NTSB said. A special team of investigators is looking into the backgrounds of the flight crew, including how they spent the last days before the flight.

The USS Grapple, with Deep Drone aboard, left the coast Thursday afternoon to take divers on a 10-hour trip through 13-foot waves to the crash site 60 miles from Massachusetts' Nantucket Island.

The Grapple had reached the crash site by this morning, Navy Rear Adm. William G. Sutton said on NBC's "Today" show.

Two other ships were also sent out to sea late Thursday. The Mohawk, a Navy vessel equipped with a remote operated robot, and the Whiting, a NOAA vessel, followed the Grapple out to sea. Both are equipped with side-scan sonar, which produces high-resolution images of the ocean floor.

Clinton to sign bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate on Thursday overwhelmingly approved a sweeping law breaking down Depression-era barriers between banks, insurance companies and investment firms.

The vote was 90-8. All but one of the opponents was a Democrat.

President Clinton is ready to sign the measure, despite warnings by Democratic critics that it could lead to price-gouging of consumers and to financial conglomerates that are simply too big and powerful.

Harvard plans late-night meals for hungry students

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Realizing that the traditional dinner hour isn't cutting it when so many students are burning the midnight oil, Harvard plans to offer its undergraduates a fourth meal late at night.

The nation's oldest college will join the ranks of other colleges nationwide in cooking up a second dinner to fuel late-night studying.

Administrators said they began to realize just how late students were staying up when they saw e-mails dated from 3 a.m. or 4 a.m.

"If Harvard wants to be a diverse school, it has to have diverse meals," said junior Charles Zerner. "Eating late is just a natural response to being up later. It's ridiculous if you're staying up till 2 to eat at 5. That's nine hours without food."

The idea first arose last year, when Harvard cafeterias set out late-night bagels, cereal and coffee cake during final exams. Students said the school should do it all year.

The university must now decide how to expand the meal plan without bumping up the cost of room and board. They also need to decide what time to serve it. Some want it around 11 p.m.; others want it as late as 2 a.m.

"It's just the culture here," student Chiwen Bao said. "If I want to do well, I have to strive, I have to stay up late. I have to sacrifice sleep, or else I'm not maxing out my opportunities."

OSHA proposes $80,500 refinery fine

HOUSTON (AP) — An explosion and fire that critically injured a refinery worker has resulted in $80,500 in penalties against a Houston petrochemical company, the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration announced Thursday.

Regulators accused Lyondell-Citgo Refining of four safety and health violations leading to the May 7 fire at its processing unit, which employs about 1,100 people. The fire was confined to a delayed coking unit, which upgrades hydrocarbons into gasoline.

OSHA inspectors said the company made changes in the coker operating process without updating procedures and failed to train employees on the changes. The company also failed to correct deficiencies in equipment, OSHA said.

One violation was classified as "willful," indicating an intentional disregard for or indifference to OSHA requirements, while two violations were "serious," meaning Lyondell-Citgo knew the hazard presented a probability of death or serious injury.

The fourth violation related to the company's failure to include a contractor representative on the investigation team.

Lyondell-Citgo spokeswoman Anne Knisely declined comment Thursday, saying the company had not seen OSHA's citations or proposed penalties.

MAKING MOVES
 The latest statistics from the U.S. Census Bureau reveal that Americans move to new homes about every five years. While homeowners tend to stay in their residences an average 8.2 years, renters tend to relocate every 2.1 years. Nationally, the median time that people lived at one residence was 5.2 years. These statistics reflect a very mobile population. They also bolster the notion that people tend to coincide their moves with the school year, preferring to move during the summer months when children are out of school. June leads the pack in this regard with 13.1% of all moves, followed by August at 12.6%. And, the farther the move, the more likely people were to make it during the summer.
