DALLAS (AP) — A former funeral home accountant was sentenced Friday to 35 years in prison after admitting embezzling nearly $2 million from the company.

Ivory Williams, 41, pleaded guilty to theft of more than $200,000, saying he was living above his $33,000 annual salary and feared losing his home. The thefts occurred from 1992 to 1996.

Williams said he tried to justify the thefts by giving money to his church, elderly people he knew and paying for more than a dozen full scholarships.

But prosecutors asked state District Judge Harold Entz to impose a long sentence.

"We all know that Ivory Williams never will be able to repay that money," said assistant Dallas district attorney Dan Guess.

Safe housing code clears initial hurdle

By KATE B. DICKSON
Associate Publisher

There's help on the horizon for Pampa's renters living in substandard housing now that City Commissioners have passed a safe housing code on first reading and appear ready to soon give the measure final approval.

The code will regulate housing standards on a number of levels including structural strength, stability, sanitation, adequate light and ventilation, occupancy numbers, fire safety and more.

City Manager Bob Eskridge said the city does not plan to use the code in a "proactive" way but said it will give officials a tool to use when complaints of substandard and dangerous housing conditions are received.

During last week's work session before the measure passed unanimously on first reading, Building Official Danny Winborne said he receives up to 10 calls a year from people who say their landlords are not keeping up dwellings.

"This will be a tool we can use on a case-by-case basis," Winborne said. "It will give us some power and teeth to be able to help someone in need."

The code spells out an appeals process as well as particulars for how violations and penalties will be handled.

School's out so that can mean only one thing. It's time for the Texas Reading Club to start at Lovett Memorial Library.

Sign-ups start Tuesday for children of any age who want to participate in the program themed "Open a Book, On With the Show!" After signing up, each participant will receive a reading log. There's no requirement as to type of book read only that they keep track of the minutes they read.

June activities for children will include story hours every Tuesday at 10 a.m. when children's librarian Shanla Brookshire will present stories and other free activities that will last about an hour.

Groups who would like to schedule special story times and visits may contact Brookshire to arrange dates and times. The library's number is 669-5780.

Meth, cocaine charges filed against two women

By JEFF WEST
Staff Writer

After a sheriff's deputy had to swerve to miss three women walking abreast in the middle of the street a further check culminated in drug charges for two of them.

Pampa Police Officer Corey Powell saw Michelle Andrea Burnley, 18, 1105 Neal, walking shortly before noon Friday with Cassandra Morris, 23 and Jelani Rashod McNeal, 21 both of Borger.

He said they were three abreast in the middle of the street at Crawford and Huff right before noon. Powell said Gray County Sheriff's Deputy Cory Crawford, who was driving along the street, had to swerve in order to avoid the trio.

Powell then turned on his lights and stopped the three after they had turned onto Huff. Deputy Crawford stopped to help Powell and Officer Keith Morris also arrived to provide back up.

Powell decided to arrest the trio on the charge of being pedestrians in the roadway. Powell said that when he asked Burnley for identification she said it was in her back pocket. Powell asked he could retrieve it and she agreed. Powell said when he reached for the license he also felt something else, which turned out to be 13 "rocks" of crack cocaine.

While McNeal and Cassandra Morris were taken to municipal court on the traffic charges, Officer

Boy credits dog and determination for helping him survive crash

HOUSTON (AP) — Neil Stortz was just 9 and on his way to a swimming party when a car driven by his mother went out of control and was struck broadside by another vehicle.

Neil's 5-year-old sister was killed, and he suffered a brain stem injury. Doc" Neil's father, A.J. Stortz, a purchasing manager for an industrial company, told the Houston Chronicle.

About three months after the accident, as Neil lay in a coma at The Institute for Rehabilitation and Research, he was visited by a German shepherd named Rex and said to be descended from the famous television dog Rin Tin Tin. The dog was part of a therapy team.

When an interviewer later asked Neil what he first remembered after coming out of the coma, the boy whispered, "Big dog."

Rex's owner gave Neil a puppy fathered by Rex, which the family named Tekz — pronounced Tex.

"He became a family member," said Neil's mother, Amelia Stortz. "He sat on Neil's lap in the wheelchair. He would get up on Neil's bed, which he thought was his bed. Sometimes he slept with Neil if Neil could stand it."

After using a wheelchair for two years, Neil began walking with a cane and would take Tekz for walks.

Although the dog died in 1995, Neil's progress has continued to surprise his parents. "He has such determination," said his mother.

Neil has played softball in a league for youngsters with handicaps and played softball and basketball in the Special Olympics.

Neil's plans to attend Houston Community College in the fall and eventually study hotel management at the University of Houston.

Although mentally impaired from his accident, Neil can converse and is graduating with a 2.54 grade-point average. During his first years at Milby, Neil constantly had a teacher's aide. But in the last year, he was on his own.

"Everybody at the school is kind of crazy about him," said the aide, James Barriere.

Pampa Police Officers Keith Morris and Corey Powell check over some of the paperwork on their drug bust Friday.

Morris transported Burnley to Gray County Jail. After she was booked into the jail Morris found a package that contained about a half gram of methamphetamine worth about $40 in the back of his cruiser.

He said he had checked to make sure nothing was there before the woman was placed in the vehicle. She was charged with the possession of the methamphetamine, a state jail felony. The cocaine weighed nearly four grams with a street value of about $370, according to police. Morris said because of the amount and the way the cocaine was packaged Burnley will be charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver a Class B felony.

involvement with the group at the age of 9.

Showing animals at 4-H competitions and later competing with the Future Farmers of America was just what Nonnie enjoyed. She has raised and shown both steers and pigs through the years. The young lady has placed at most county shows with her animals and also achieved the accomplishment of selling her animals at both the Houston and San Antonio Livestock Show.

The young woman credits 4-H with getting her into college. She said the many projects such as speaking, method demonstrations, foods and nutrition, and consumer decision making helped her to develop skills to communicate with people. She said that the experience of getting in front of people at 4-H events has helped her in many situations she has incurred since leaving home for college.

She was also a member of the Livestock Judging Team, coming in second at district which qualified her to compete at the State Round-Up. In many competitions she reached the top ten. She was also a recipient of both the Gold Star award and the I Dare You award while in 4-H.

Over the Memorial Day week-end Nonnie will be assisting 4-Hers who are volunteering to distribute flags to be displayed at the cemetery. The 4-H members participate annually in the project by erecting the flags and taking the flags back down on Memorial Day.

Being familiar with the many local projects will be beneficial to the young woman as she completes her summer interning with the local office. She will leave in the fall to go to Texas Tech to either become an agriculture education major or a county agent. Interneing during the summer will help her to decide which interests to pursue in the future.

Graduation party ends in teen's death

HOUSTON (AP) — At a party marking the end of the school year, a high school student was killed Friday when he was struck by a car driven by a friend.

Jared Jamail, 16, of Crosby, was struck by a car driven by another 16-year-old, said Department of Public Safety investigators, who declined to identify the juvenile driver.

A trooper said six students gathered for a party at a grass farm in Liberty County and there was evidence of alcohol.

The teens took turns doing driving maneuvers on the farm's driveway, the trooper said. The driver told DPS he did not see Jamail standing in the driveway until his headlights shined on him, then he slammed on his brakes and swerved left but Jamail jumped in the same direction.

Investigators said they were awaiting blood tests on the driver.

Valedictorian, salutatorian address graduating class

Valedictorian Thann Scoggin gave the following address at commencement ceremonies for Pampa High School Class of 1999:

Good evening ladies and gentlemen. I would like to begin by telling you, seniors, the class of 1999, something that I'm sure you've all heard many times by now. However, it is a phrase that we could all stand to hear at least once more. That is, I want to extend a strong "Congratulations" to you all. You've made it through. I know that every time someone tells me this, I just have to let out a big sigh of relief. But we are not the only ones who should be congratulated. Without our families and teachers molding us along the way, none of us could ever have made it this far. So, seniors, make sure you let these people know how much you appreciate their love and guidance.

What I would like to talk about tonight is something that I value a lot in my life. The relationships that I share with my family and friends are probably more important to me than anything else in the world.

What I would like to talk about tonight is something that I value a lot in my life. The relationships that I share with my family and friends are probably more important to me than anything else in the world. The people close to me have helped me through so many difficult times and have made my life rewarding in so many different ways. I know that all of you have people in your lives that have done the same for you. After tonight, though, the world you live in will begin to change drastically. Many of us will go to college. All of us will, in some way or another, be distanced from our families and friends. Because of this, the first thing we will be forced to do is become more comfortable with ourselves. One of the hardest feelings to cope with is loneliness. Unfortunately, most of us are in for a stronger dosage of this than we've ever received, especially those of us who are going to college. That is why it is necessary for all of you to begin discovering going to college. That is why it is necessary for all of you to begin discovering who you really are, because after high school, you might be forced to become your own best friend.

But don't worry, if you have friends now, and I know that you all do, those best friends you are about part with will always be your friends, they just won't be as easy to be around. In fact, one of the best things about leaving home is that you will get more opportunities to make new friends, who will quite possibly introduce you to more new friends and experiences.

What I really want to stress, though, is the importance of maintaining that delicate equilibrium between new and old

Thann Scoggin

As I have just said, it is very important to form new strong relationships. However, I think it is of the utmost importance for you to keep those bonds strong that were formed long ago, especially when it comes to your family. Your family cares more about you than any friends you could ever make, and also expects less in return. After you leave home, each one of you will face trials that you will not be able to handle by yourself. Your family will always be willing to help you make the right decisions. Now, I know that you have all gotten into arguments with your parents and come away thinking that they don't care about your opinions. But, I am sure you've heard it before and I'll reiterate it — your parents would not restrict your actions if they weren't concerned with the consequences. So, that is why you must always trust that they will always be there for you during your hardest times.

In closing, I would like to speak briefly about a relationship that I often overlook because it is such an embedded and integral part of my life. That is my relationship with God. This gives me a lot of hope because God is so easy to turn to when I feel no one else can help me. I know many of you feel the same way, but I would just like you to remember that if you ever lose your relationship with God, it is never too late for you to let him back into your life.

Now I would like to sing a song for you that I feel conveys my message in a way I could never express only in words. It is called "You'll Never Walk Alone."

The following address was delivered by Salutatorian Mandy Wells at commencement ceremonies:

Faculty, fellow classmates, and guests:

The time has come for our senior class to part from the company of friends we have grown up with and go our separate ways. We have been a group to remember at Pampa High. The seniors of this year have played a key role in the success and achievements of the academic and athletic organizations and clubs in existence. Our accomplishments have been mainly due to our God-given talents and abilities and our work ethic that makes us see projects through to the end. Philippians 4:13, "I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me," is a fantastic reminder of how far we can actually go in life.

We have had many good times and have shared big and exciting moments with each other. Even though we will not be together to celebrate the coming of the new millennium, right now we can relish in the fact that we are the last class of the one-thousands. Our class motto: "Best of the century, last of the line, we're the class of '99" is not only a statement for the century but should be expanded to include the millennium also.

The past era has seen inventions and discoveries that have developed not just the nation but the world. It is our generation's job to further that technology and advance it as our civilization demands. We must use those God-given talents and abilities to the best of our knowledge. Each of us has a calling in life that the Lord has specifically designed for us. If we follow His path, we will be blessed beyond our wildest dreams. As Psalm 121:7,8 says, "The Lord will keep you from all harm — he will watch over your life; the Lord will keep your going out and your coming in from this time on and forevermore."

We are the future — the leaders of tomorrow's world therefore the passion and immaturity of our youth has to develop into the wisdom of adulthood. The Lord will be our guide but we must carefully examine our hearts, souls, and minds to find His will for us.

We must use the virtues and morals instilled in us since childhood to make our world a better place for our children to live in. Since we are not perfect, we will make mistakes. Our choices may not always be right or wise, but let us pray that we learn from them.

To live successful lives we must keep our eyes forward. Success lies in only one direction — straight ahead. If we back-track, we get sidetracked. Whether we succeed or fail from the world's point of view, God uses every circumstance to further His plans for our lives.

So when we are old and gray, rocking on our front porches and reminiscing about times past, we want to be able to say the words of Timothy 4:7, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith." May all of your lives be filled with peace, love, joy, and happiness, and may you all be richly blessed by the Lord. Thank you.

I'm all for same speed limit

I don't know where the bill stands in the legislative process, but I am for it. The one that will make the speed limit the same for cars and trucks. Seems like a safer deal to me with everybody running about the same.

I would be double-dog for it if the bill made the speed limit the same during daylight and dark hours. What's up with that?

If it had been the same for day/night a few weeks ago I would have escaped a speeding ticket. My first in a long, long time. Since '89, in fact, when one of those North Carolina troopers in a Mustang got me on my way to a Hornet's game. Then it was '77 before that in South Arkansas on my way to deer hunt.

My recent Texas experience was on Highway 287 almost to I-35 at Fort Worth when I saw the flashing lights in my rear view. My first thought was the officer wanted by me and I was holding up his progress in pursuit of some bad guy. But when he didn't go around I figured I was the bad guy, gal, actually, of the money ... I mean, the moment.

Kate B. Dickson

Associate publisher/editor

I was speeding. I would have still been speeding if the day/night thing was the same only not as badly. I probably would have been within the "acceptable" speeding range had it not been for that minus 5 mph for dark.

Frankly, I never thought about the day/night difference. No where else I have lived has such a difference. It just wasn't on the brain. But maybe all that says is I just need to get out more at night.

The trooper was unbelievably nice. But there was no way he was going to let me get by without a ticket. He was so nice, in fact, I should have taken his name off the ticket and written his supervisor. We chatted about troopers he knows in the Pampa area, my boxer, Jasmine, who was riding the back seat, etc.

... But I still got the ticket. He was just doing his job, after all. Kinda like when we do the police news.

Everybody gets the same treatment ... but that doesn't make it any more fun!

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, May 30, the 150th day of 1999. There are 215 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On May 30, 1431, Joan of Arc, condemned as a heretic, was burned at the stake in Rouen, France.

On this date:

In 1539, Spanish explorer Hernando de Soto landed in Florida.

In 1854, the territories of Nebraska and Kansas were established.

In 1883, 12 people were trampled to death when a rumor that the recently opened Brooklyn Bridge was in imminent danger of collapsing triggered a stampede.

In 1899, legendary MGM production executive Irving G. Thalberg was born in Brooklyn, N.Y.

In 1922, the Lincoln Memorial was dedicated in Washington by Chief Justice William Howard Taft.

In 1943, American forces secured the Aleutian island of Attu from the Japanese during World War II.

In 1958, unidentified soldiers killed in World War II and the Korean conflict were buried at Arlington National Cemetery.

Opinion

Chronic DWI drivers will not be hampered by new regulation

While we have no real gripe with last week's lowering (effective Sept. 1) of the state's legal blood alcohol limit on Texans from 0.10 to 0.08 it may be a move that in reality is more hype than substance.

Obviously no one should be behind the wheel of an auto when he or she has had anything to drink but more emphasis needs to be placed on the chronic, alcoholic do-or-die drunk driver.

Certainly while no one wants to meet even a .08 driver on the road, it is those who register in the teens and even .20s who pose the most danger to us and who need the most help from government sources in order to recover from their illness.

Frankly, this type of drinker/driver isn't concerned whether he or she is drunk or not as evidenced by the many who continue to drive drunk day after day even though their licenses have been pulled due to DWI convictions.

For these alcoholic drivers, a DWI conviction isn't going to stop them from driving and having an accident that can hurt or kill one of our loved ones. That's a fact. Ask any policeman or court officer.

So when our legislature meets next, we hope they'll consider putting more money behind programs to help alcoholic drivers get off and stay off the bottle.

This will do more in the long run to protect us against drunk drivers than will lowering the legal blood alcohol limit by a tiny amount.

'Experts' love to blame the past

People love the past. It provides convenient excuses for all manner of individual or group shortcomings. Academic "experts," politicians and race hustlers use history as a cover-up. They point to the ugly facts of slavery, Jim Crow and discrimination as explanations for the high rates of black illegitimacy, crime and family breakdown. The connection between slavery and discrimination, and what we see today, is hardly ever challenged. But challenge it we must.

Only 40 percent of black children live in two-parent households. The illegitimacy rate among blacks stands close to 70 percent. The "legacy of slavery" explanation for today's weak black family structure loses all manner of credibility when one examines evidence from the past.

Even during slavery, most black children lived in biological two-parent families. One study of 19th-century slave families (Herbert Gutman, "The Black Family in Slavery and Freedom: 1750-1925") found that in up to three-fourths of the families, all the children had the same mother and father. In New York City in 1925, 85 percent of kin-related black households were double-headed. In fact, "Five in six children under the age of six lived with both parents."

Both during slavery and as late as 1920, a black teenage girl raising a child without a man was rare among blacks. Gutman, also found in analyzing data on black families in Harlem between 1905 and 1925 that only 3 percent of all families "were headed by a woman under 30."

Walter Williams

Syndicated columnist

Scholar and columnist Thomas Sowell found: "Going back a hundred years, when blacks were just one generation out of slavery, we find that census data of that era showed that a slightly higher percentage of black adults had married than white adults. This fact remained true in every census from 1890 to 1940."

In absolute numbers, blacks commit most of the crime in the United States. Blacks account for half of all the arrests for assault and rape, and two-thirds of arrests for robbery. Blacks are disproportionately more represented in all categories of felonies, except those requiring access to large sums of money such as embezzlement and stock fraud. Criminologist Marvin Wolfgang says, "For four violent offenses — homicide, rape, robbery and aggravated assault — the crime rates for blacks are at least 10 times as high as they are for whites." Close to 90 percent of the victims of black criminals are black.

Crime turns neighborhoods into economic wastelands, forcing poor people to bear the cost of traveling to suburban malls to do routine shopping or pay the high prices at local "Ma & Pa" shops. If they manage to buy a home, that home is worth less because of crime and wanton property destruction. Poor people are most dependent on law and order for safety and welfare. Wealthier people have the financial resources to protect themselves, by taking such steps as purchasing alarms or hiring private guards.

An often-overlooked crime cost is that people who are the most upwardly mobile people are the first to leave. Their replacements are not as mobile or they care less about neighborhood amenities. The people who leave take with them the social leavening that contributes to vital and stable communities.

The "politically correct" theory is that poverty and discrimination is the cause of high crime rates. During my youth in the 1930s and 1940s, black neighborhoods were far safer than today. It would be preposterous to suggest back then there was less poverty and discrimination.

The level of social pathology seen in many black communities is unprecedented and has nothing to do with a so-called legacy of slavery, unless we're willing to say that slavery has a delayed reaction of four or five generations.

A princess doth not a diplomat make

It's a big-time New York City dinner party. The sights of the city are on display for diners through the windows of the penthouse. The Great White Way, the Empire State and Chrysler buildings, and, in the far distance, the Statue of Liberty.

The talk of the table is the war, what is happening in the Balkans.

The woman to my right has a place card on the table in front of her saying she is a princess, royalty from a southeastern European country.

She introduces herself, smiles and says, "So, how soon does the United States lose THIS war?"

"I beg your pardon," says your reporter, "but I don't know what you mean."

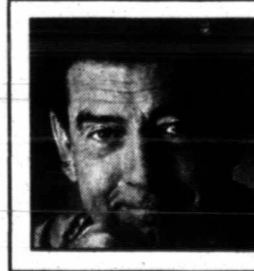

She's still smiling.

"Well, you lost the Vietnam War. You lost the Gulf War. And THIS war, against Slobodan Milosevic, you are losing. It's only a matter of time. I just wonder how long."

I looked at her a long time as she spoke. The princess and I were not off to what you would call a good start.

Finally, I answered, as evenly as I could: "Yes, although I prefer to think we withdrew before the war was lost, it is fair to say we lost a BATTLE called the Vietnam War. But in any case, we WON the Cold War of which it was a part.

"We won the Gulf War outright. And as for

Dan Rather

Syndicated columnist

the war in Yugoslavia, the conclusion is not yet certain. But I wouldn't say Milosevic is winning."

Princess Charming was still smiling, her teeth sparkling as brightly as the diamonds around her neck.

"Oh, I would say he's winning," she retorted quickly. "I can't imagine how one could say anything else. His goal is to remain in power and to keep Kosovo as part of Yugoslavia. He's in the process of achieving his goal. In the meantime, you Americans are punishing his people, but you are not beating him. You even seem to be strengthening him."

We stared at each other for a moment. "As for the Gulf War," she then went on, "same thing. Saddam Hussein is still in power. Losing Kuwait meant nothing to him so long as he held onto Baghdad. And he has. He's outlasted you."

Pause.

"Just like the Vietnamese."

She raised her glass to me as if to toast my defeat before her rhetorical onslaught.

My hackles couldn't rise any higher. It was time to argue or disengage. I chose the latter by saying: "I don't agree with you. And frankly, I don't even like the way you've said what you said. But let's leave it where it is and talk about something else. Something comparatively safe. Like religion."

"All right," said the princess. "But remember what I've said. Milosevic has won."

"And think over my main point. Since World War II, militarily your country has failed to be a finisher. You've shown time and again that you will fight. But time and again, you have not fought to the finish, to total, complete victory."

Helluva way to change the subject. Infuriating, this woman.

"So, how about your country?" I replied. "How many times have you fought to the finish?"

"Oh, never!" she said brightly.

"We never fight anymore."

"And why is that?"

"Because you Americans fight for us!"

No wonder monarchies are fading and are almost finished. Not a moment too soon.

Not a pleasant talk. But talk of war never is.

Casket that carried JFK was sunk in 9,000 feet of water

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bronze casket used to carry President Kennedy's body from Dallas to Washington is in a watery grave — 9,000 feet down in the Atlantic Ocean, according to assassination documents.

Materials to be released Tuesday at the National Archives will show that in early 1965 the casket was dropped from a military plane into an area where unstable and outdated weapons and ammunition are dumped, Kermit Hall, a member of the now-defunct Assassination Records Review Board, told The Associated Press.

"The documents that will be released show it was dropped off the Maryland-Delaware border in 9,000 feet of water," Hall said Friday night. "There's actually a map in the documents that pinpoints the coordinates where it was dropped."

The revelation — on the eve of what would have been President Kennedy's 82nd birthday today — that the casket was sunk resolves a lingering mystery about its whereabouts. But it also fuels speculation among assassination researchers that it was discarded to hide foul play.

"The coffin is evidence just like the body is evidence," said David Lifton, who wrote a book about medical evidence in the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination. "You don't destroy evidence."

What happened to the bronze casket has been a lingering question over the past three decades. Last year a document released by the archives showed that a General Services Administration truck picked up the coffin on March 19, 1964.

In its effort to ferret assassination-related documents and information from various government agencies, the review panel asked the GSA where the casket was. The agency said in the summer of 1998 that it didn't know.

The documents from GSA and the Justice and Defense departments being released next week, however, describe the disposition in detail, Hall said.

"Essentially what was going on was an effort to make sure the casket didn't turn into a historic relic for the marketplace," he said.

Kennedy was buried at Arlington National Cemetery in a mahogany coffin that had been purchased in Washington to replace the bronze one, which was missing a handle and had been damaged.

In September 1965, former Texas Rep. Earle Cabell wrote to then-Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach recommending that the bronze casket be discarded so it could never become a relic.

"It is an extremely handsome, expensive, all-bronze, silk-lined casket, and fortunately, and properly, was paid for by the General Services Administration, and presently is in the possession of GSA," Cabell wrote.

"This item has ... value for the morbidly curious. And I believe that I am correct in stating that this morbid curiosity is that which we all seek to stop."

Katzenbach said in an interview Friday that he doesn't recall details about the disposition of the casket. If anyone had asked him if it should be disposed of, "I'd have said that's a good idea," he said.

Lifton thinks there might have been a darker motive.

In conducting his research, Lifton talked with witnesses who said Kennedy's body arrived at Bethesda Naval Hospital in a gray metal shipping casket, not the bronze one obtained in Dallas. That the bronze casket was dumped in the ocean — after the Warren Commission issued its report in 1964 — makes him wonder what clues it might have yielded to investigators.

"If it had been an ongoing murder investigation, this would be obstruction of justice," Lifton said.

Douglas Horne, who was the chief analyst for military records at the congressionally created review board, speculated that the bronze casket was destroyed to end the two-coffin controversy.

"I think the way to get rid of the problem is you get rid of the casket. You throw it out of an airplane," said Horne.

HOUSING

While admitting such a code can "hurt" if landlords opt to remove tenants and stop renting particular structures, Winborne said it can work the other way, too. He said enforcement of the code can spur landlords to repair the property in order to keep renting the home or apartment.

Commissioner Jeff Andrews expressed a belief that in most cases landlords will make the repairs in order to keep their property generating rent.

Fire Chief Kim Powell, who was in the work session, said her department sometimes gets requests for help from people in substandard housing. She said firefighters most often encounter them when answering calls such as gas leaks and smoke scares.

Because there is no code, she said the fire department is very limited in what it can do in response.

Speaking in support of the code, Commissioner Faustina Curry said Pampa "... has a shortage of HUD housing here because we have all this rental property that doesn't meet any (including HUD) standards.

"We (commissioners) are sitting here pretty comfortable (in our own homes) and there are people who live in houses that don't meet minimum standards," she said.

Mayor Bob Neslage echoed her comments adding, "It's the people who have the least who are taken advantage of the most."

Letters to the editor

Ride your high horse to Amarillo

To the editor,
My mom is writing too but she doesn't say things the way I do, so hear us both out.

In regard to a recent letter to the editor from a RN, my family are all good Christian people and very dignified people. My mom needed surgery and we were in the middle of changing insurance — we could have paid the doctor but we felt what he had said was wrong so she chose to go to Amarillo.

For Ms. RN to say such things about someone she doesn't know is a disgrace.

You asked if we got free food. How dumb are you? Do you get free food?

Also my mom doesn't have to work. You told her to get a job. We are not poor people and she stays at home with her 4-year-old child. That is where she should be!

By the way, why don't you ride your high horse to Amarillo? If my mom gets ready to move over there, she will! You certainly don't have to tell her!

Thanks for hearing me out and God bless each one, even the RN and the MD (retired) who wrote the letter a couple of weeks ago.

I do hope this will end the letter writing about this case, it is nonsense and a waste of time. Also Mom has already paid the doctor in Amarillo since you were so worried about it!

About the two letters about my letter ...

To the editor,
In regard to the two letters about the letter I put in recently — I wanted to respond and explain a little better about something.

About the insurance: You see, I had just changed insurance at the time my surgery came up so neither would pay at the time. You know anyone can be between insurances.

Also, about me needing to go to work: I chose to stay at home and take care of my small child. And I thank God I can do that. As I know, these days that's a rarity. As for telling me where I needed to live — well, I choose to live in Pampa as I was born and raised here. I really don't think another person should tell another person where to live.

As for you telling me to get off my high horse, I don't think calling people names or making these childish comments are of any good to any of us. Especially when you don't know all the facts.

If you noticed, I didn't give anyone's name in my letters. That way only God, me and the surgeon knew who I was talking about. If you're going to put someone's name in print you should say nice things.

As for me getting free food, I go to the grocery store and pay for my groceries just like everyone else. I also pay for my home and car like everyone else, too. I'm not on any kind of free services. Don't get me wrong, I thank God that all those free services are there for people who need them. And, who knows, there may be a day that all of us may need them.

Also, as to the comments as to why I didn't go to the emergency room, well, I was told by my family doctor to go to the surgeon's office so I did what my family doctor told me to do. I guess I thought all Pampa doctors still had the old-fashioned qualities as my family doctor. As my doctor has treated me all my life, I think he's the greatest.

Also about the nurse that wrote the letter — I realized my family knows you. You might not remember but six or seven years ago you took care of my grandma. And she really thought a lot of you. And for the good care you gave her, I still thank you. You were still taking care of her when she passed away at one of our homes.

You know we all make mistakes. I know I sure make plenty. And if I hurt anyone by writing my other letter, I'm sorry. And if I did, I ask them to forgive me. I was hurt myself at the time.

Well, thanks for hearing me out. I hope and pray this will settle this issue.

BASEBALL

HOUSTON (AP) - Bruce Rios and Kris Wilken walked with the bases loaded in a three-run seventh inning that helped Houston defeat Southwest Texas 6-4 Friday night in the first round of the NCAA Regionals.

With Houston trailing 4-3, Aaron Melebeck led off the seventh with a single off Southwest Texas State starter and loser Reagan George (1-4).

Brandon Caraway's infield hit advanced Melebeck to second and when Southwest Texas State first baseman John Tompkins threw wildly to first on Eric Lee's single, Melebeck scored the tying run and Caraway advanced to third.

Garrett Sherrill, in relief of George, walked Jarrod Bitter to load the bases. Sherrill fanned J.P. Woodward and Tyson Schweitzer to bring Rios to the plate. Rios walked on six pitches and Wilken on five.

Bryan Moore (7-2) earned the victory in relief of Kyle Crowell. Moore held the Bobcats scoreless over the final 2 1/3 innings.

GOLF

PAMPA — Hidden Hills Seniors held a long-short scramble earlier this week.

Results are as follows:

First place: Travis Johnston, Ralph Ridgway, Darrell Phillips and Howard Buckingham, 138.

Second place: Earl Tarbet, Bill Washington, Irvin Williams, Rex Courter and Paul Buchanan, 139.

Third place: Bob Swope, Bill Harwood, Fred Epperly and Joe Wheeley, 140.

Fourth place: John Haynes, Morris Driver, Everette Butler and Wayne Jones, 141.

Closest to the hole: Howard Wells, third shot on No. 18.

TENNIS

PARIS (AP) — Monica Seles and Steffi Graf, who have eight French Open titles between them, both advanced to the round of 16 on Saturday with straight-set victories and were headed for a possible semifinal meeting.

For the players to meet in the semis, Graf would first have to get by No. 2-seeded Lindsay Davenport — who also won Saturday.

Seles, who reached the finals last year only three weeks after her father's death but lost to Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario, has an easier path to the semis, with no seeded players in her way.

She defeated Maria Antonia Sanchez-Lorenzo of Spain, 6-1, 6-4, closing out the match with an overhead. Graf, seeded sixth here, beat Asa Carlsson of Sweden by exactly the same score, winning the last game at love.

Graf next faces Anna Kournikova, who looked in top form in a 6-1, 3-6, 6-0 victory over 11th-seeded Patty Schnyder.

Davenport, who was stopped last year in the semifinals by Sanchez-Vicario, beat Fabiola Zuluaga of Colombia, 7-6, (7-5), 6-3.

On Friday, Andre Agassi advanced to the fourth round and made the shot of the tournament as well.

Trying to close off a rally, Agassi's opponent, Chris Woodruff, sent a near-perfect lob sailing over Agassi's head into the corner.

Agassi sprinted back to the baseline, caught up with the lob, and, his back to the net, whacked the ball through his legs. He turned around just in time to see it zing past Woodruff for a clean winner.

The crowd stood and cheered. Agassi took his cap off and bowed deeply.

He later advised his fans: "Don't try this at home."

The moment showed just how grateful the Roland Garros crowd was to have someone to laugh with. Agassi might not reach the final weekend at Roland Garros. But his presence highlights how the men's tour has lost much of its charisma and appeal.

Sammy 1, McGwire 0

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

What a wonderful afternoon at Wrigley Field for Sammy Sosa.

He got to hug Mark McGwire before the game, then took a home-run trot past his friend and rival Friday as the Chicago Cubs beat the St. Louis Cardinals 6-3.

"I had a great day up there. I'm not going to lie to you, and it's great we won," Sosa said.

Slammin' Sammy and Big Mac faced each other for the first time since their great race in 1998, and exchanged warm greetings. Sosa made his two-finger salute toward McGwire, and they shook hands and embraced.

"He's a great human being. I like him a lot," McGwire said. "He loves the game the same way I do."

Sosa singled in the second inning and chatted with McGwire at first base. In the eighth, Sosa gave the 39,287 fans what they wanted — a line drive into the left-field seats for his 17th home run.

In other NL games, Atlanta beat Los Angeles 4-2, Florida defeated Cincinnati 8-1, Arizona held off New York 2-1, Pittsburgh downed Houston 6-5, Montreal stopped San Francisco 4-2, Colorado beat Philadelphia 5-3 and San Diego defeated Milwaukee 10-8.

Sosa finished 3-for-4 and hit his 13th homer in 22 games. McGwire, who has 14 home runs, was 0-for-4 and struck out twice.

"Mark had some good swings, but he missed his pitch," Sosa said.

The Cubs used four outfielders against McGwire, moving shortstop Jose Hernandez to right-center and shifting second baseman Jeff Blauser into the shortstop spot. McGwire said the defense had nothing to do with his performance.

"Why would I look out?" McGwire said. "I'm concentrating on the pitcher."

Oh, by the way: Henry Rodriguez hit two home runs for the Cubs. But on this afternoon, all the attention went to Sosa vs. McGwire.

"Anybody who likes to play this game, especially on a day like this with Mark and myself, it is motivation," Sosa said.

City schedules post season tournaments

SOFTBALL

PAMPA — The City of Pampa's Spring Softball League Post-Season Tournaments will begin on Wednesday, June 9 and Thursday, June 10 at the Recreation Park Softball Complex.

All divisions of the Men's Open League will begin on Wednesday and all divisions of Mixed Open, Women's Open and Men's Church will begin on Thursday.

Team start times and tournament brackets will be posted at the softball complex and at the Recreation Office at 816 S. Hobart.

Cal Farley's Boys Ranch will host a slow-pitch softball tournament on Saturday, June 12 and Sunday, June 13. The free tournament is being held to celebrate Boys Ranch's 60th anniversary.

"We want to open up the Ranch to surrounding community members," said Darren Janssen, tournament director and recreation specialist for Boys Ranch. "If we have good response, we'll probably make it an annual event."

Men's Class C teams are invited to sign up for the tournament. USSSA rules will be followed. Each team is guaranteed two games on Saturday. After the first round, the tournament will continue as single elimination, with the top three teams receiving a trophy. All entries must be received by June 4.

Saturday's games will be played from 7 a.m. until dark and Sunday's games will be played from 7 a.m. until the championship game is completed. No alcoholic beverages will be allowed.

"This is an opportunity for teams to compete against teams they might not otherwise meet," Janssen said.

There is an extra incentive to hit home runs during tournament play. Batters who hit the well house (360 feet) with a home run ball will win a special prize, Janssen said.

Indians' Wright has the wrong stuff against Sox

By JOSH DUBOW
AP Sports Writer

Jaret Wright didn't start a bench-clearing brawl or beanball war this time. But he sure struggled to get anyone out.

Perhaps spooked by a warning from the league office about pitching inside, Wright allowed three of Boston's five homers as the Cleveland Indians lost 12-5 to the Red Sox on Friday night.

"Jaret needs to be aggressive to pitch," Indians manager Mike Hargrove said. "I hope he doesn't let people take that away from him."

Wright (4-3) allowed nine hits and eight runs in 3 2-3 innings. It was his first start since AL president Gene Budig said he wanted to meet with Wright next week to discuss the pitcher's "deportment on the mound."

Wright was fined after hitting Detroit's Tony Clark in the helmet with a pitch last Saturday. He faced Boston for the first time since hitting Darren Lewis with a high pitch that precipitated a fight April 29 in Fenway Park, which resulted in Wright being suspended five games.

None of Wright's 72 pitches came close to a batter this time, but several were hit hard and two landed in the bleachers.

In other AL games, it was the Yankees 10, Toronto 6; Texas 6, Minnesota 4; Chicago 9, Detroit 1; Kansas City 11, Anaheim 4; Seattle 6, Tampa Bay 1; and Oakland 2, Baltimore 1.

In Cleveland, Nomar Garciaparra hit two homers and Boston won despite five passed balls by Jason Varitek, one short of the major league record. Varitek struggled to catch knuckleballer Tim Wakefield (3-4), with three runs scoring on passed balls.

"I was struggling to see the ball in the first couple of innings," said Varitek, who overcame his miscues with three hits, including a home run. "Actually, I think Tim enjoys it when there are some passed balls because it means his ball is moving."

Manny Ramirez, playing as he appeals a three-game suspension for charging the mound last Saturday at Detroit, drove in his major league-leading 60th run for Cleveland.

Yankees 10, Blue Jays 6
Derek Jeter hit three doubles and Scott Brosius drove in three runs as New York won at Toronto.

The Blue Jays lost outfielder Shawn Green, whose left wrist was broken when he was hit by a pitch from Andy Pettitte (3-2) in the fourth inning. Green's status was day-to-day because of the break in a small bone.

Jeter, who drove in two runs, has reached base safely in all 46 games this season.

Chris Carpenter (3-5) took the loss.

Rangers 6, Twins 4
Juan Gonzalez, Rafael Palmeiro and Ivan Rodriguez hit consecutive homers in a five-run first inning off Brad Radke (4-4).

Texas won its fourth in a row, matching its longest winning streak of the season. Minnesota opened a six-game road trip with its third straight defeat.

Aaron Sele (4-4) improved to 11-2 lifetime against the Twins.

Dutchman to fly one last time

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Like Michael Jordan, John Elway and Wayne Gretzky before him, Arie Luyendyk is leaving on his own terms.

The Flying Dutchman is hardly some washed-up athlete, hanging on beyond his prime and clinging to his former glory. He just realized it was time to leave — after one more ride in the Indianapolis 500 on Sunday.

"To me, the risks and the rewards just don't pay off anymore," Luyendyk said Friday.

Though a notch below the big three in this Year of the Retirement, Luyendyk has a chance to end his racing career epitomizing the passion of Elway, the grace of Jordan and the class of Gretzky.

The two-time Indy winner will be on the pole when the green flag falls, once again showing a group of cocky kids — one is half his age — how to get around the 2.5-mile speedway.

No one knows how things will unfold for those next three-plus hours, but Luyendyk has a vision of how it ends.

He'll take one last lap around the track, wiping away tears while the memories wash over him. Then, he'll turn left into Victory Lane, gulp down some milk and say goodbye to it all.

"It would be unbelievable to finish my career off like that," Luyendyk said. "It's almost too much to ask for."

Luyendyk, who won at Indy in 1990 and '97, announced his retirement before the Indy Racing League season, with the caveat of racing the 500 one last time. Last weekend, he claimed the pole with a speed of 225.179 mph.

Though his wavy, brown locks are tinged with gray and a few wrinkles have crept onto his face, Luyendyk still seems suited for life in the fast lane.

He was trim, tanned and dapper for his final news conference before his final Indy, adorned in a white shirt, black pants and shoes, with a checkered-flag ring on his left hand — the one all Indy champions wear.

Softball winners

Pampa Special Olympians Linda Lou Pierce placed first and Debbie Ellis placed second in the softball throw at the Regional Area 16 Track Meet held recently in Canyon.

Senator says private school participation bill dead

AUSTIN (AP) — Efforts to allow private schools to join the University Interscholastic League of public schools are dead this session, Senate supporters said Friday.

"I think many of the public schools will be pleased," said Charles Breithaupt, UIL athletic director. "I think a lot of the public schools were surprised it got as far as it did."

Approved by the Senate earlier this month, the measure could not win favor in the House, where the bill was never heard in committee.

House and Senate deadlines will prevent the bill from coming back up prior to the end of the session on Monday, said Sen. Ken Armbrister, D-Victoria.

Armbrister's bill would have allowed single-sex private schools with at least 500 students to enroll in the UIL and meet certain accreditation and academic standards.

The UIL had identified up to nine schools that would have been eligible, six of which had expressed interest. They included Dallas Jesuit, Providence in San Antonio, St. Agnes Academy, Strake Jesuit College Prep and St. Thomas in Houston and Cathedral in El Paso.

Some private and public schools already schedule regular season games, but those contests do not count toward public school district standings.

"Has it's time come? Sure," Armbrister said. "On any given Friday night, you will see public schools competing against private and parochial schools. They just don't compete for count in the district. It's hypocritical to say they don't want them."

Players added

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — All-Americans Elton Brand and Richard Hamilton, who led their teams to the NCAA championship game last season, were added to the U.S. Olympic qualifying team. Filling the final of three open spots on the roster was Wally Szczerbiak, of Miami (Ohio).

Brand, AP's college basketball player of the year, led Duke to a 37-2 record with 17.7 points and 9.8 rebounds a game last season. Hamilton, the NCAA tournament's outstanding player, helped Connecticut win its first national men's title.

In 1993 employees at Celanese's Pampa Plant chose to make a difference.

They devised a long term strategy called Pampa 99 to insure the local plant would continue as a safe and viable operation into the 21st century.

As the very successful Pampa 99 drew to a close, another five-year strategic plan, Vision Direction Setting Process, was developed. In the spirit of its predecessor, VDSP also aims to insure the long term value of Pampa Plant. One goal of VDSP targets improvement of Pampa Plant's cost position and profitability through an initiative called LCP or Low Cost Producer.

"Our goal is to keep this plant as a profitable, safe manufacturing plant indefinitely," said John Forister, production manager for solvents and acrylates.

Focus teams comprised of local employees will spend the summer examining Pampa Plant operations to determine inefficiencies and wasteful practices.

"We're trying to position ourselves with this process to make our chemicals the lowest cost production in North America," said Anne will continue environmental, safety and production excellence at Pampa Plant, said Zumsteg.

Anyone, including Celanese retirees and vendors, may offer suggestions for plant improvement. Ideas may be submitted via in-plant postcards, e-mail or voice mail.

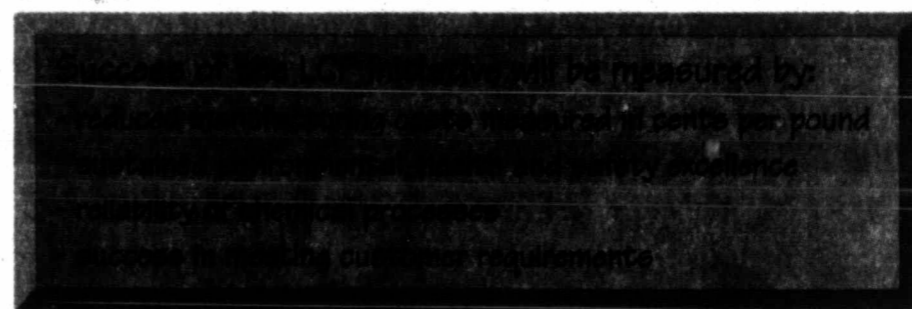

"We will accept any and all ideas," said Zumsteg.

Evaluation will be made by experts in the applicable field.

Following the evaluation stage, implementation will begin this fall and be complete in 2001.

The LCP process has been used successfully at three other Celanese manufacturing facilities in Texas plus Celanese sites in Europe and Canada.

"Our employees look forward to this opportunity to choose to make a difference in the long term viability of Pampa Plant," said Zumsteg.

"This is an opportunity to do a concentrated effort to look at our plant and see what it takes to be low cost producer," said Forister.

LCP analysis focuses on increased plant efficiencies in terms of chemical processes and work processes.

Zumsteg, production services manager.

About 50 people representing all plant departments will serve on the focus teams.

While these employees concentrate on the LCP initiative, others

AGRICULTURE

The Market Forecaster

By George Kleinman

Wheat (Bear)

Outlook: There is a perception that this year's winter wheat crop, while lower in planted acres, is much higher in terms of yield per acre. In talking with farmers in Kansas and other winter wheat areas, I get the feeling this perception is correct. It is very possible the final winter wheat yields will exceed the USDA's May estimates. As I have repeated numerous times in this column, in years of normal weather, there is a negative price tendency for wheat prices from mid-April until the wheat harvest is about half over nationally. This is approximately early July. This year the negative tendency is quite evident, yet, with prices as low as they are, it is hard to envision a price collapse. It is possible prices could fall another 10 percent or so, perhaps 20 cents per bushel, if everything else remains equal. Since low prices cure low prices, and extreme lows are extreme, it is also possible this season's low price could be a major low for a long time to come.

Strategy: Hedgers: We previously recommended pre-selling 25 percent of anticipated new crop production from above $3 basis the July Chicago futures. We should have sold more up there (there was only one chance in March.) We will advise an alternate strategy for the remaining 75 percent if prices remain weak at harvest time.

Traders: No new recommendation again this week.

Corn (Bear)

Outlook: The planting delays due to severe wet conditions earlier this month, particularly in the Western belt, barely budged the market. There was a weak 5- to 6-cent rally. As of this writing, the market has just about given it all back. Mid-June on is not a time to be short corn due to weather scares because the pollination period begins. However, for the next two or three weeks, there is not very much I can see which will rally prices. A potentially bearish factor is a large amount of old crop corn still in farmer's bins. As their planting chores wind down, and their planting chores wind down, and they have more time for other issues, a good share of this corn may find its way to market thus further depressing prices. The bear remains in the box until there is some sign, either real or imagined, of weather stress for the newly planted crop.

Strategy: Hedgers: Look to sell 25 percent of new crop production using the December futures on rallies above 250. It may pay to have the order sitting in the market, even if it looks ambitious, since there could be a weather rally at any time in the coming months.

Traders: Traders, look to go short rallies above 225 in the July contract. Risk 5 cents for a profit objective of 216 prior to mid-June.

Soybeans (Bull/Bear)

Outlook: At this writing, the market has tested the contract lows of last February. These are the lowest prices seen in many years, and adjusted for inflation perhaps the lowest soybean prices ever. They certainly are the lowest I have seen soybean prices before the crop is even half planted. In one way, this is quite disturbing to the market (the fact it can slice down so easy this early in the season). It is probably true that if demand from Asia does not pick up, and the crop conditions are perfect this season, prices are headed lower. However, can we be assured these two fundamental outcomes are assured? At times, it appears demand has bottomed and Asia may wake up again. Plus, as I mentioned before, it is a La Nina year (which favors dry, hot Midwestern summers) so it is way too early to bet on a record large crop. Do not be fooled by a wet spring, we saw one in '88 which led to a drought. Not that I am predicting a drought, I just do not think we can rule out potential weather adversity just because the futures already have.

Strategy: Hedgers: Selective hedgers are out of all long futures at a break-even level. Of course, you sold all your old crop cash beans a long time ago, right? No new recommendations at this time.

Traders: Traders are out. Look to buy the first close in November above 490 (shows upside momentum). If filled, risk a close under 480.

Cattle (Bull)

Outlook: This has been a quiet bull market. The market is climbing a wall of worry and is now about $2/cwt. off the April lows. This is despite the fact all of the Cattle on Feed Reports tell us there are very large placements of cattle in the feedlots, indicating hefty supplies beginning soon and lasting all through the summer. The cash prices consistently remain above futures, which also indicates a pessimism about the future price direction. Perhaps this is one of the reasons the market refuses to crash despite predictions to the contrary. Pessimism keeps feedlots current as feeders move their cattle to market as fast as possible. This is what could eliminate this future glut of supply all the bears are certain is coming. Remember what I said in my last column, "common wisdom is not necessarily wisdom which will enrich you."

Strategy: Feeders: Feeders still own at the money put options from higher levels in the June through August time periods. Puts protect your downside but never limit your upside potential. Sell them as you market your cattle.

Cow/calf operators: Cattle feeders remain buy-hedged at an average price in the 68-69 range basis the May Roll these into August now. Hold until you buy your replacement feeders.

Traders: Based on a previous recommendation, you are long August futures from 6195. Risk to 6045 for an objective of 6450.

Insects are appearing in crops around Texas

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Insects are appearing in crops across the state, but producers are not letting that bug them, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

Dr. Stormy Sparks, Extension entomologist in Weslaco, said the primary concern in cotton is the boll weevil, which began appearing about two weeks ago.

"We have had the type of weather that is favorable for their survival," Sparks said.

The boll weevil, which feeds on and develops only in cotton, likes cool weather and moist soil. When the weather is not and dry, the heat will kill the weevils.

"Right now we have got to keep an eye on the next generation and make sure they do not get well-established," he said.

He added that once the boll weevils are established, they are very difficult to control.

Cotton bollworms also tend to cause problems for producers in some parts of Texas.

"Bollworms feed on the squares and bolls," he said, "and tend to feed on the fruit, which is the part of the cotton we harvest."

Sparks said caterpillars have been a problem and treatment began earlier this year.

"We had to treat a lot in cabbage for diamondback moth," he said. "It was a severe problem."

Sparks also said there have been many problems with aphids, which are small, sluggish, soft-bodied insects, very early in the season.

"We have had aphid problems on all kinds of plants," he said, "from home ornamentals to row crops and cotton."

Everyone is keeping an eye out for infestations of the beet armyworm, a major pest in 1995, Sparks said.

"Right now the populations are very low," he said, "but it does have a tremendous reproductive capability."

Sparks said the recent rains have alleviated some of the concerns because the beet armyworm had better survival rates in a drought situation.

"Part of that is related to the plant and part of it is due to the biology of the pest," he said, "but they just do better under dry conditions."

Sparks said there are a few ways to treat these pests.

"As far as caterpillars are concerned," he said, "you scout and if the population gets too heavy, you may have to resort to a pesticide."

The scouting is done to allow the beneficial organisms to work, but if the population is too high, the beneficial organisms cannot control the pest, Sparks added.

"An insecticide is the last resort because there is a pretty thorough understanding among cotton producers that insecticides can aggravate problems as well as solve them," he said, "so you don't use them unless you have to."

Dr. Roy Parker, Extension entomologist in Corpus Christi, said producers in his area are waiting in anticipation for the first major insect problems.

"We've been watching for headworms in sorghum," Parker said, "but it has not happened yet."

He said there have not been many insect problems in cotton.

"We just wonder when we are going to see our first big bollworm egg lay," he said. "It could occur any day now."

The biggest problem in his area is an emergence of the Mexican corn rootworm.

"Adults are emerging from fields that have been planted for a number of years in a row," he said.

Parker said the rootworm feeds on the silk of the plant and sometimes prevents pollination, but the main damage is to the root.

"They are laying eggs now and those eggs won't hatch until next April," he said.

In the South Plains, district Extension director Jett Major in Lubbock, said pasture conditions continue to improve with recent moisture.

"Wheat is in good condition," he said, "and some wheat fields are being baled."

Peanuts are in good condition and are growing well, Major said. "Planting of cotton and sorghum continues," he said, "and some irrigated and dryland cotton is up and growing well."

Major said onions are being irrigated and are progressing well. Peppers and tomatoes are being transplanted.

"1999 has provided growers with one of the best starts in recent years on all crops," he said.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: soil moisture is short to adequate. Corn planting is almost complete. Sorghum planting under way. Wheat is completely headed; some haying continues. Cotton planting continues; little emergence. Range conditions fair to excellent. Cattle doing well.

Boll weevil program may mean jobs

The state's new boll weevil eradication program will mean more jobs in rural Texas, including Gray County.

According to Sterling Brook with the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation, Inc., new jobs will be available soon in connection with the program in each of the newly delineating boll weevil eradication zones across the state.

"These positions will require knowledge of cotton production, agricultural pest control, computer literacy and excellent public relations experience," said Jean Wagner, foundation human resources director. "In the current three active zones to date, we've been very fortunate to hire quality individuals who are carrying-out this important farmer-run program, and we anticipate the same good fortune in the new zones."

The recently established zones include the El Paso/Trans Pecos, Northwest Plains, Western High Plains and Northern Rolling Plains. The Northern Rolling Plains Eradication Zone consists of about 340,000 acres in 14 counties. The counties included in the zone are Gray, Wheeler, Donley, Collingsworth, Hall, Childress, Cottle, King, Hardeman, Wilbarger, Wichita, Clay, Foard and portions of Archer.

When driving with a wireless phone, subscribers should use their phone responsibly and make safety their first priority.

10 Big Tips for safely using your wireless phone while driving.

1. Get to know your wireless phone and its features such as speed dial and redial.
2. When available, use a hands free device.
3. Position your wireless phone within easy reach.
4. Let the person you are speaking with know you are driving; if necessary, suspend the call in heavy traffic or hazardous weather conditions.
5. Do not take notes or look up phone numbers while driving.
6. Dial sensibly and assess the traffic; if possible, place calls when you are not moving or before pulling into traffic.
7. Do not engage in stressful or emotional conversations that may divert your attention from the road.

Church Was Place of Comfort When Tragedy Struck Littleton

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing from Littleton, Colo. Just the other day there was a shooting near my house in Columbine. Fortunately, I do not attend Columbine High because I attend school farther north. Still, many of my friends went there.

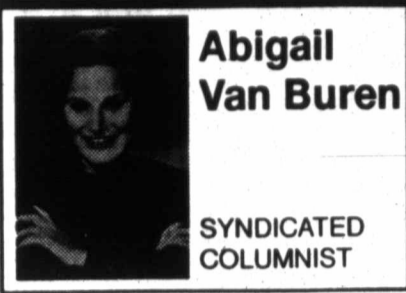

Almost immediately after the shooting, my school was on lockdown — but as soon as I was let out, I went straight to my church. I was amazed at all of the people I found there. People who used to despise each other were hugging. People who never knew each other were talking. Although I was in a Catholic church, religion did not matter. There were rabbis, pastors and reverends. Buddhism and other religions were represented. Even atheists were there. It didn't matter who you were; we were all there as a community.

I spoke with people I never knew before and was deeply touched by their experiences. I ended up staying there for most of the night, and then returned and stayed there throughout the next day. I eventually learned that some of my friends were shot, which drew me even closer to the people I was with.

I just want to say a heartfelt thank-you to everyone who set aside their differences and helped us here in Littleton.

VERY THANKFUL IN LITTLETON

DEAR THANKFUL: To you and to the other citizens of Littleton, I offer sympathy and prayers for recovery. The media brought your tragedy into millions of homes worldwide, and no one who witnessed the violence you experienced will remain untouched by it.

It's encouraging that your place of worship was where you sought refuge and comfort after leaving school, and that when you arrived you discovered the gathering to be ecumenical. Religion should bring people together, not divide them. As I have said in the past, a church is not a museum for saints — it's a hospital for sinners. And I can think of no better place for wounded souls to begin healing.

DEAR ABBY: I am disturbed at your advice to "Wondering in Superior, Wis." concerning the baby shower for a second child. I have never heard that showers are only for the first child. Both of my children received showers — and both of them were greatly needed, considering my children are of different sexes. Tomorrow I am attending a shower for a fourth daughter.

I have always considered a shower to be a celebration of a child's birth, each equally valued. Perhaps we should change the way we view this, and adopt a more generous, loving attitude. Every new mother can use the support of her friends, and a shower is simply a symbol of that.

I hope "Wondering" will reconsider and offer her friend her support.

SHERREE IN OREGON

DEAR SHERREE: I didn't take into account the fact that the new baby might be a different sex from its older sibling. Although Emily Post and Amy Vanderbilt do not agree, your argument is convincing. You're right, the birth of a child is an event to celebrate. I, too, hope "Wondering" will reconsider and decide to support her friend.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 Playfulness marks your day. Unexpected developments occur as high energy comes to the forefront. Listen to others who are at a distance. Take a drive to meet a friend. You are prone to extremes. Don't let others interfere with your fun. Tonight: Mosey on home.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

 Whether you're coaxing a partner, or he's enticing you, makes little difference. You happily join in. Spend the day with someone very special and close to you. Sharing is heartfelt and mutual. Indulgence, laughter and happiness all flow together. Tonight: Stay this way as long as you can!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

 Though you see joy and humor more easily than most, you still need to let go. Join friends; make a point of catching up on news. You don't always have to be in constant contact to maintain closeness. Good will and overindulgence flow. Tonight: Where the gang is.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

 Others come to you. They find you most attractive and alluring. You can write your own ticket. Make must appearances; they're your pleasure. Allow greater humor and joy into your life. A family member does everything he can to get your attention. Tonight: Get a head start on the work week!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

 You sparkle; others are excited to be around you. A partner is quite taken by you. You love it! Be careful about a flirtation that is heating up; another might not be all he seems. Be direct with a friend. Discuss travel plans. Tonight: Wind down from the holiday weekend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

 Family provides rich rewards. Getting together with others brings much happiness. Others grin as you indulge friends and loved ones. Invite friends over to share in the good feelings of the day. Spending could get out of hand. Tonight: Let naughtiness reign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

 Your energy brightens the day and inspires others. A parent or someone you put on a pedestal is delighted by your sense of humor. You radiate happiness. No one can (or wants to) stay away from you. Hook up with neighbors and friends. Tonight: Settle in early if you can.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

 You might be pressured to spend more than you want to. Be reasonable and open. Halt what doesn't feel comfortable. Use caution while working out frustrations; the damages could be major. Reach out to another at a distance. Tonight: Take time for an important talk.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

 Maintain the weekend spirit. Others lighten up from just being near you. A loved one has an amorous attack, which delights you. Get-togethers with friends, celebrations and intense encounters blend to make you quite content. Let laughter happen. Tonight: We spell it out!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

 Opt for a low-key role at a barbecue or a celebration. You need time to recharge. A friend or loved one goes out of his way to lift you out of the doldrums. Make a must appearance, use your instincts with a family member. Don't push yourself. Tonight: Feeling a sense of relief.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

 Nothing pleases you as much as being with friends. Let happiness and celebrations mix. Enjoy what is happening. Humor helps others who might not feel as buoyant as you do. A long-distance calls reminds you how loved you are. Tonight: Get a good night's sleep.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

 Others look to you for advice and feedback, but you're more in the mood to let go and enjoy. Bring others together for a celebration, but don't forget that special person! He needs your caring and attention. A friendship could be developing into a lot more. Tonight: Let the good times continue!

Giving gives hope and love to those in need

To the editor,
I had the pleasure of helping for the third year with the Food Drive that the Letter Carriers of this city were kind enough to participate. This is a National Food Drive in coordination with the United Way in each city and the National Association of Letter Carriers. They were kind enough to take extra time during their mail delivery to pick up the food put out by virtually everyone in this city.

We had four non-profit agencies — Tralee Crisis Center, Genesis House, The Salvation Army and Good Samaritan Christian Services — participate and send volunteers to help box, weigh and distribute. We also had four hard working prisoners' help. Everyone did an exceptional job.

There was an amazing amount of food brought in. I am proud to report we received 7,000 pounds of food from this drive. Because of the generous people you are, we were able to send 40 boxes of food with each agency. Through the next week, we continued to receive food and were able to give several more boxes to these agencies.

I always feel privileged to tell people I'm from Pampa because this town is known as a generous town that takes care of its own. I salute you and want to say, "You did a great job!" Thank you, Pampa, for your caring and your sharing. Isn't that what life is all about? When we give to others, we are the recipient of something greater than we gave, knowing we have given hope and love to someone in need.

Katrina Bigham, executive administrator
Pampa United Way

Teacher salaries in Texas are a national disgrace

To the editor,
Gov. Bush and Texas legislators, there are no excuses for not improving teacher salaries this year. Teacher salaries are a national disgrace and you know it. We rank 38th in the nation — or 51st — behind every state and the District of Columbia — when our lack of health insurance benefits also are included. Yet, this time you can do something about it.

For the first time in years, we actually have a budget surplus. Better yet, that pot just got bigger, by $807 million. But instead of using the extra funds to bring teacher salaries up — merely to the national average — we are hearing more and more about tax cuts. Governor, you say you want to provide a tax cut that people will feel. The latest figures show your plan will give the average homeowner a savings of about $100 per year. This equates to simply being able to afford one more Big Mac each week.

Instead, I challenge you to put all the extra money into education and give teachers a raise they will "feel." Even the public wants this. Given the choice, nearly 68 percent of people say they would rather see teacher raises than tax cuts, according to a recent survey.

Boost teacher salaries by $6,000 and the benefits will be seen by more than just teachers. It will affect children, who will have the benefit of an experienced teacher who does not leave his or her profession for a higher paying job. It will benefit the workforce because our schools will graduate students who perform better because experienced, certified educators will have taught them.

So, Gov. Bush and Texas legislators, give teachers the raise they deserve, and we will all "feel" it.

Doug Rogers, executive director
Association of Texas Professional Educators

Gun 'control': Brady Bill has plenty of 'teeth' to it

To the editor,
Gun "control"? Control being the key word. A gun is a tool or in this case an instrument. People kill people, not guns. Removing guns from our society is not the answer, it simply won't work. We have to change our society.

If we try to remove guns, then we must also ban every product that could make a bomb — remove all books from the library and information from the Internet on bombs. Removing handguns simply removes a symptom and those who really want a gun will find one or 10 and there's nothing we can do about it.

My husband is a deputy and we live on a farm. I have rattlers, skunks and badgers to deal with. We're the generation raised around guns and gun safety. Your heart races when you have to pick it up, not from excitement but a fear of having to use it.

A while back two young men walked into my garage. There were two women (myself included) and a 2-year-old baby girl here alone. It was pouring rain and they had left the garage. Armed with a .243, I caught up with them enough to yell and see if they needed help.

As it turned out, they did but there had been an escape recently and with their hoods up and six feet tall, they looked like grown men. I couldn't turn away someone in need but also couldn't take any chances.

Guns are not the problem. It's all in the minds of those doing the killing. That is what society has to correct. No matter what regulations are imposed, they will get their weapons, they'll simply change weapons. To them it might create a greater challenge which could make them even more determined. People have to stop the criminal activity, guns can't.

Before the Littleton shooting, the regulations Clinton was trying to get imposed were and are:

—A requirement for hunters to store their firearms in so-called "sporting clubs";

—Allowing only smooth-bore firearms, or shotguns, for personal protection;

—Requiring firearm owners to establish a need for possessing their guns;

—Allowing firearm collectors to possess only those firearms that have been altered so they can no longer be fired;

—Requiring hunters to obtain insurance before hunting;

—Generally discourage the private ownership of firearms.

The United Nations is promoting this resolution, and Clinton is in support of it. The Brady Bill "has teeth" as my husband puts it, after the tragedy at Littleton there is no telling what Clinton will try to enact.

"Education" about guns doesn't mean telling your children never touch guns. In the 1800s, parents taught their children (mostly boys) how to handle a gun so they could hunt. Their reaction in that society was so much different than that of today. They heard the animal squeal, saw the damage done while cleaning. Today's society has put a new spin on what guns mean. The government can't legislate or ban a person's feelings. Eventually our firearms could be banned but it won't stop the killing, only our personal defense.

Nominees sought for annual Veterans Hall of Fame Banquet

To the editor,
This letter is to all Texas Panhandle residents, Once again, it is springtime in the Texas Panhandle, and plans are already being made for the Annual Panhandle Veterans Hall of Fame Banquet. This project was started in 1990, and was initiated to recognize and honor those outstanding Panhandle veterans who have distinguished themselves in the service of their country.

Over the years, we have inducted individuals from Pampa, Amarillo, Canyon, Claude and other area towns. These honored inductees have been recipients of such awards as the Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross and even the Congressional Medal of Honor.

We can never completely show our appreciation to these individuals for their bravery, love of country and unselfish sacrifices; however, in this small gesture, we hope to let the living and deceased know they are not forgotten and their sacrifices were not in vain. Unfortunately, some of those we honor have gone on to their final resting places; however, we feel confident where ever they are, they will hear their names called and know they have not been forgotten.

To nominate an individual, we need a short narrative on their life, what branch of the service they were in, the awards they received and if possible a copy of the citations plus any copies of newspaper clippings pertaining to the nominee.

In the narrative, we are encouraging the writer to tell about the nominee's contributions to his community following his years of service in the military. This will give our selection committee a better idea as to the overall merit of the individual.

We need to have all the nominations no later than July 16. After the selection committee has made its selection, the new inductees will be notified as to the time and place of the banquet which will be held at 7 p.m. Aug. 20 at the Pampa VFW Post Home located at 105 S. Cuyler in Pampa.

Please address all nominations to me: Panhandle Veterans Hall of Fame, 600 N. Hobart, Pampa TX, 79066, ATTN: John L. Tripplehorn.

I will look forward to receiving all nominations, and it is truly an honor for me to be associated with such outstanding veterans.

John L. Tripplehorn, president
