Seoul Gives Ford A Colorful Welcome

SEOUL (UPI) — President Ford, welcomed to Seoul in a blizzard of colored confetti, today pledged the United States will reduce neither its troops in South Korea nor—Congress willing—its military aid to maintain that country's independence. An estimated 2 million South Koreans turned out for Ford's arrival. His 12-mile drive into Seoul from the airport was a triumphal entry. Obviously moved, Ford called it "tremendous."

Chung Hee, Ford expressed concern about Park's heavy-handed repression of dissidents. An aide later said Ford was satisfied with Park's response, but refused to elaborate. Ford promised in a joint communique issued after the talks to provide "prompt and effective assistance to repel (any) armed attack against the Republic of (South) Korea in accordance with the mutual defense treaty of 1954." Ford assured Park there would be no reduction in the 38,000-man garrison of U.S. troops now stationed in South Korea. He also pledged American aid in developing South Korean defense industries and, if Congress provides the money, a $400 million to $500 million program to modernize South Korea's armed forces. The communique said Park had accepted an invitation to visit the United States, although no date was set. The South Korean president, who came to power in a 1961 coup, has been in the United States on four previous occasions. Ford flew to Seoul from Japan and was scheduled to depart for snow-covered Vladivostok Saturday (this evening U.S. time) for his first summit meeting with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

of North Korea pressing for termination of the U.N.'s 24-year support of the American role in protecting South Korea. The communique made no mention of Park's stern policies against his domestic political opposition, which have drawn criticism in both South Korea and the United States. Before Ford's arrival in Seoul, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told newsmen that Ford would bring up the subject, and warn Park of its impact in American public opinion.

Terrorist Band Hijacks Airliner

TUNIS (UPI) — A band of Arab terrorists hijacked a British VC10 airliner in the Persian Gulf city of Dubai today and forced it to fly to Tunis where they threatened to kill one of their 43 hostages every two hours unless Egypt releases 13 imprisoned Palestinian guerrillas. Eight of the Palestinians held in Egypt were charged with the murder of two American and one Belgian diplomats in Khartoum but were sent to Cairo where they were reported turned over to the Palestine Liberation Organization. The other five were reported held by the PLO for an attack on a Pan American airliner which killed 32 persons in Rome last year.

Libyan city of Tripoli and then to Tunis. Tunisian government officials said they gave the captive airliner permission to land at the urgent plea of the British government after the pilots radioed that refusal would mean disaster for the plane which had only a minimal supply of fuel. The hijackers threatened to blow up the plane if fuel were not provided. At least two persons were reported wounded in the takeover, an Indian stewardess and an Arab mechanic. Ambulances were summoned to the Tunis airport and it appeared there may have been more casualties on the flight from Tripoli to Tunis.

The exact number of persons aboard the big VC10 was not known and officials said they were not sure whether there were two or three hijackers—or possibly more. There also were 43 other persons aboard the plane—27 passengers, eight crew members, and eight Dubai airport workers. French radio stations said the hijackers told Tunisian authorities they would kill all the European passengers if Dutch Authorities refused to release two Palestinians held on charges of unleashing a mutiny in the Scheveningen Prison in the Hague suburbs.

The Palestine Liberation Organization condemned the hijacking as detrimental to the Palestinian cause, especially because it came at a time of a crucial United Nations vote today on whether to give the PLO permanent representation in the General Assembly. British officials said the hijackers were lying in wait at the Dubai airport when the plane touched down around midnight (5 p.m. EST Thursday) for a routine transit stop on a flight from London to Singapore.

A Dutch government spokesman in The Hague said the Netherlands had received reports the terrorists also were demanding release of two Palestinians held there for hijacking and blowing up a British Airways VC10. They since have been involved in a prison mutiny. A guerrilla organization telephoned the UPI bureau in Beirut and said any delay by Egyptian authorities would mean destruction of the passengers and the plane. It called the five men heroes who "carried out the verdict of the people by killing the CIA officers in Khartoum last year."

The hijackers seized the plane in Dubai and forced the pilot to fly first to the Committee Gives Okay To Rocky's Nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Rules Committee today unanimously approved the nomination of Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president. The committee voted 9-0 to send the nomination to the full Senate as the House Judiciary Committee began its second day of hearings on the former New York governor. The Rules Committee was expected to complete a formal report on the Rockefeller nomination sometime next week, perhaps Wednesday, but a Senate vote was not expected until after Congress returns from the Thanksgiving holiday recess. Rules Committee Chairman Howard Cannon predicted the nomination ultimately will be approved in both chambers, despite a furor over Rockefeller's generous loans and gifts to political friends and a controversial book which his brother financed. Rockefeller told the Judiciary Committee Thursday that he will put most of his vast financial holdings in a blind trust if he is confirmed. He also admitted he has spent $20 million of his own money financing his political career because he cannot find many donors. Weapons Charge Issued By Police Estaban Barela, 44, Pampa, was arrested by city police at 1:10 a.m. today and charged with unlawfully carrying a prohibited weapon and cited for a traffic violation. Reporting officers said Barela was traveling east in the westbound lane of Wilks when a patrol car stopped him. Officers said the gun was lying on the dashboard in front of the driver at that time. Officers indicated they were checking out sounds of gunshots in the area when the man's vehicle was observed in the wrong lane of travel.

Man, Woman Found Dead In Smoldering Car

Two victims of a car fire remained unidentified shortly before noon today. The victims, one man and a woman, were found early today in a smoldering vehicle two miles southwest of Pampa, one-quarter of a mile west of State Highway 70. Officials were notified about 6:15 a.m. The acting coroner, Justice of the Peace G.L. "Nat" Lundsford, said early today he had ordered autopsies to determine the cause of death. The car, DPS officers said, had apparently become stuck in a ditch when the driver attempted a U-turn on the narrow road. Officials theorized the victims had died of carbon monoxide inhalation before the fire consumed the vehicle.

Arabs Expect Victory For 2 Resolutions

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Diplomats predicted an overwhelming Arab victory today at the windup of the General Assembly's historic, 10-day session on Palestine. The assembly was expected to approve Arab resolutions calling for the creation of a Palestinian state and the permanent participation of the leading Middle East guerrilla group at the United Nations. Although the outcome of the voting was considered a foregone conclusion, diplomats doubted the measures would bring about a significant change in the four-war, quarter-century Middle East conflict. The Arab bloc, backed by the so-called non-aligned nations, submitted the resolutions to the assembly Thursday night after a final day of debate on Palestinians uprooted by the birth of Israel in 1948. Assembly President Abdelaziz Boutefflika of Algeria called the delegates into session at 3 p.m. EST today to vote on the twin resolutions. The main Palestinian resolution before the assembly recognizes the right of the refugees to self-determination, national independence and sovereignty. The measure, sponsored by the 20 Arab nations and 17 non-aligned countries, also affirms the right of the refugees to "return to their homes and property from which they have been displaced and uprooted."

UNIDENTIFIED VICTIMS — Law enforcement authorities were checking leads today to determine the identity of two victims — a man and a woman — who were found dead early today in a smoldering vehicle south of the city on the Clarendon highway. The bodies were burned beyond recognition. (Photo by Jim Williams)

PROSECUTION BOMBHELL Missing Memo Shocks Cover-Up Trial Jurors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — E. Howard Hunt laid it out bluntly in a memo written just a week after Richard Nixon's landslide re-election in 1972: The Watergate burglars had kept quiet as promised and now they wanted promised cash and pardons in return. That long-missing memo, described as a "bombshell" by the prosecution when it surfaced under mysterious circumstances early this month, was laid before the jury Thursday at the conspiracy trial of five former Nixon aides accused of covering up the scandal. One of the masterminds of the bugging, Hunt listened impassively from the witness stand. He was to be back for final cross-examination today and, after three wrap-up witnesses, the prosecution was expected to rest its case shortly after noon as the trial ends its eighth week. Normally inscrutable, a number of jurors looked stunned as Assistant Special Prosecutor Richard Ben Veniste slowly read aloud the three-page Hunt memo, accusing the Nixon administration of renegeing on its word. "The defendants have followed all instructions meticulously, keeping their part of the bargain by maintaining silence," wrote Hunt on Nov. 14, 1972. "Having recovered from post-election euphoria, the administration should now attach high priority to keeping its commitments and taking affirmative action in behalf of the defendants."

Though warning there might be trouble ahead if the demands weren't met, the memo ended: "The foregoing should not be misinterpreted as a threat. It is among other things a reminder that loyalty has always been a two-way street." The demands of Hunt and the others—and the efforts that had been made to meet them—obviously were a major worry to Nixon the following spring as the cover-up began collapsing and the White House scrambled to stave off disaster. According to four White House tapes never before made public, Nixon realized that the defection of John W. Dean III to the prosecutors could well mean impeachment unless "adroitly" handled. He began searching for a way out.

In Detroit, General Motors Corp. said it will idle 30,000 workers at nine assembly plants in December, pushing auto industry joblessness in the weeks before Christmas to more than 150,000 workers. GM said nine of its 22 U.S. assembly plants will be shut down for one or two weeks. Chrysler and Ford confirmed plans to cut white collar workers from the payroll. Chrysler would not detail its plans, but Ford said 3,000 white collar workers will be idled throughout the company at the end of November. The effects of the coal strike have spread to related industries, hitting railroads first, and spreading to the steel and coke industries. Government officials have estimated that more than 300,000 nonstriking workers will be jobless by early December.

IN CRMWA CASE Pampa Expecting To Continue Suit

The City of Pampa is expected to continue with Amarello and Borger in litigation involving the method for charging operation and maintenance costs to member cities of the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority. While no final action was taken, city commissioners met for nearly two and a half hours yesterday with Atty. Harlow Sprouse of Amarillo discussing last Monday's reversal of an 84th District Court ruling and plans to seek a rehearing in an effort to take the case to the Texas Supreme Court. The appellate court's Monday decision ruled in favor of eight South Plains CRMWA member cities and against Amarello, Pampa and Borger. Inside Today's News

Judge Boyer held the board's action in making the charge was invalid, but his decision was reversed by the appellate court last Monday. According to law, a petition for rehearing to determine if the case can be taken to the State Supreme Court must be filed by Dec. 5. City Manager Mack Wofford said today the City Commission is expected to discuss the matter further at its regular meeting next Tuesday and the probability exists Pampa will remain a party to the lawsuit.

Economy Troubles Increase

United Press International The rate of inflation which prompted the government to impose wage and price controls in 1971 was half as bad as the current annual rate of 12.2 per cent. Senate Democrats now say a new round of wage and price controls must be considered if everything else fails. More auto industry layoffs were announced Thursday, bringing the jobless total to over 150,000 during the Christmas season. And the effects of the coal strike which have spread to rail, steel and coke industries will idle 300,000 nonstrikers by December, the government estimated. But there was at least one trace of good news in the economy: Ford Motor Co. announced it was lowering the price of its compact Pinto by $150 in an effort to stimulate buying. The 12.2 per cent annual inflation rate during the past 12 months, announced by the Bureau of Labor Statistics Thursday, was the highest rate since 1947, when the bureau began keeping such records. Prices rose 9 per cent that year. The rate of inflation during 1970 was 5.3 per cent, and during 1971, the year wage and price controls were imposed in August, the inflation rate slipped to 4.6 per cent. But it has been rising ever since, and Democrats in the Senate unanimously approved a seven-point economic agenda for the next Congress, including consideration of wage-price controls—something President Ford and labor leaders oppose. The resolution called for consideration of controls only as a last resort and Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said, "The key word is 'consider.'" The resolution also called for a jobs program, reviving the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; allocating credit for home-buyers, rationing gasoline if necessary, curbing excessive profits and cutting personal income taxes, and minimizing deficit spending. In Detroit, General Motors Corp. said it will idle 30,000 workers at nine assembly plants in December, pushing auto industry joblessness in the weeks before Christmas to more than 150,000 workers. GM said nine of its 22 U.S. assembly plants will be shut down for one or two weeks. Chrysler and Ford confirmed plans to cut white collar workers from the payroll. Chrysler would not detail its plans, but Ford said 3,000 white collar workers will be idled throughout the company at the end of November. The effects of the coal strike have spread to related industries, hitting railroads first, and spreading to the steel and coke industries. Government officials have estimated that more than 300,000 nonstriking workers will be jobless by early December. Young Students To See Santa Students of elementary school in Pampa will be released from class at 2 p.m. Monday in order to attend the annual Santa Day parade, according to announcement by Dr. Dan Long, superintendent of schools. All buses will run at regular time. Elementary bus students not picked up by parents will be supervised until buses run. The Middle, Junior High and High School will conduct classes on a regular schedule, Long said.

BROADEN THE BASE

GOP has 'mandate' too

The Republicans took a bath, as the saying goes, in the last election. For the sake of the future of the Grand Old Party we would rather think that this shock at the polls will have the sobering and invigorating effect of a cold shower on a basically sound body.

The fortunes of the Republican Party at this point cannot be separated from the fortunes of the two-party system that is essential to the functioning of our nation's political mechanism. How the Republicans react to their off-year defeat could well determine the fate of third party movements stirring within both parties as 1976 approaches.

The Gallup Poll reported last June that 38 per cent of American voters considered themselves "conservatives" and only 26 per cent would call themselves "liberals." This is the highest percentage of people classifying themselves as conservatives since 1936. At the very same time polls also were reporting that 40 per cent of the people identified themselves as Democrats and only 24 per cent as Republicans. This contradiction gives a clear indication of just how fragile labels can be in politics.

Clearly neither party has been succeeding very well in offering voters a "home" based on their political philosophies, as a healthy two-party system requires.

The Democrats are interpreting their showing in the election as a mandate to assume a more active role in dealing with the problem uppermost in the public mind — our sick economy. This is no mean challenge to a party whose congressional record is poor; a party which must reconcile leaders ranging across the philosophical spectrum from Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace to South Dakota's Sen. George McGovern. It will not be roses all the way for the Democrats in the next two years.

The Republicans can interpret their poor showing as a mandate, too. The voters have as much as told Republican leaders that they must get their party back on a clearly defined track if it is to regain its position as the rallying point for moderate Americans.

The GOP has been wounded by Watergate, but certainly not fatally. Fair-minded citizens recognize that the scandal which spread into the White House from the Committee to Re-Elect the President in 1972 was a failing of individuals, not of a great political party. The important thing is for the GOP to regain its ideological perspective, to broaden its base and thus provide a strong and practical appeal to the "silent majority" that, in other years, has been the party's great strength.

Finally, the Republican party needs to clarify and restate its principles, which are altogether sound ones. It needs to capitalize on its strengths, which are considerable.

If it does all these things the GOP will quickly be reassured that its foundations are firm — quite firm enough to support a strong and effective party for millions of Americans who, in spite of a loud cry of protest at the polls, are still looking for a place to feel at home.

Soviet Speculators

A few months ago the state capitalists of the Soviet Union turned a tidy dollar in wheat speculation, and now are back in the commodity market with heavy sugar purchases.

Since the wheat deal was financed by tax-payer dollars, the Soviet success at speculation was a bit damaging to Yankee pride. After all, if Yanks didn't invent the commodity game, they at least popularized it to the scale of a national pastime. Then the suede-shoe boys from Moscow moved in and walked away with the chips. The American reaction can be reckoned as a mirror image of the same as when Bobby Fischer taught chess to Boris Spassky.

Yet one killing on the market doesn't make a tycoon and, if you buy more than you can eat, not all sugar is sweet. Just suppose, for instance, what would happen if the Food and Drug gang decided that cyclamate sweeteners were not the dastardly terror they were made out to be? Suppose the mythical average American who is reputed to consume 102 pounds of sugar per year were to decide that 90 pounds was sweet enough? We recall it was not five years ago that a very astute American bank very nearly lost the corporate jewels when it tried to beat the cocoa market. Even experts sometimes stub their toes.

On the other hand, we get a kick out of trying to imagine what happens in the Muscovite's mind when he succeeds in the capitalist adventure. Even Marx warned that bourgeois enthusiasm is contagious. The players are as interesting as the game.

Wit & Whimsy

Pity the poor guy who didn't check the Christmas wrappings before he incinerated them — $200 watches are hard to come by.

The patter of feet on the roof isn't Santa's reindeer — it's the roofers who were due last July.

Pity, too, the poor fellow who had three slugs of yule cheer before he realized he poured his wife's L'Amour d'Amour instead of the gift Scotch.

OUTRIDER

Our Electoral Conservatism

By GARRY WILLS

After the recent election, there was talk of massive political dislocation, of a stunning blow to Republicans and a Democratic landslide, of the signs of approaching third-partyism. Cartoonists showed us a beaming donkey and a battered elephant. And, relatively, it was a big electoral turnaround. The Democrats won well over twice the congressional seats normally taken back in presidential off years, plus some big governors' chairs (including the two biggest).

But to say all this is merely to remind ourselves of the basic conservatism of our electoral system. We speak of a major dislocation when we mean that roughly 10 per cent of the congressional seats changed partisan custody — 44 or so out of 435. Three out of 100 Senate seats changed hands — 3 percent. The gubernatorial changeover was about 8 percent. Or, to take one of the major "indicators" in the last election, we were told that the voters punished members of the House Judiciary Committee — a punishment that affected five members, or just over one percent of the House membership.

I repeat this is considered an outside development, because the normal electoral displacement is only half of that, or less. Our politics is incremental with regard to elections.

Many things make it so. Inertia. A presumption in favor of the incumbent — which is in itself a vote for the system as satisfactory, or else as so refractory that no step as slight as casting a vote can do much about it.

That last judgment is by and large a valid one. No drastic alternatives are offered at election time. When drastic steps are taken — the initiating of a war, the tooling up of the New Deal, the imposing of price controls — they occur in the time between elections. Franklin Roosevelt ran for office in 1932 promising a balanced budget and criticizing the wild expenditures of Herbert Hoover. In 1917, 1941, and 1965 it was proved that the way to take this nation into war is, first of all, to get elected by promising there will be no war.

There should be nothing surprising in all of this. Each party begins with its natural constituency more or less assured, and then tries — without losing that first constituency — to woo the uncommitted in the middle. This means they, both end up saying much the same thing, aiming at the same potential voters. Both sides, of course, are tugged back slightly from full consensus by the traditions of their first constituency, but both sides try to blur these differences as the electoral deadline nears.

Thus the vote means practically nothing in policy terms. It reflects mood, and can give a retrospective approval (to FDR's New Deal in 1936) or disapproval (to Nixon's criminalities). But in general it affirms a rather blind faith in the mass of our rulers. We expect most of them to be returned, and talk apocalyptically when the party turnover edges up past five percentage points.

Insofar as people directly affect the choice of policies, they do it more, now, by way of the opinion polls than by way of election. Few candidates risked their campaigns by taking a clear-cut position on wage-price controls this autumn. But when the administration weighs this necessary step, and legislators have to take a stand on it, they will respond to the opinion polls that are swinging drastically in favor of control. A candidate has to satisfy just the configuration of voter preferences that will suit his first constituency and the winnable uncommitted in his district. Oddly enough, he is freer to respond to public opinion across a vast spectrum when he is not facing election.

This exactly reverses most of our political scientists' doctrines on the meaning of elections. But our politics has never been what it pretended to be. And yet, by and large, our politics is not a bad thing. It works in ways it was not supposed to, in ways we rarely recognize or describe well. We have a conservatism no one has identified as such — one that has nothing to do with right wing views at all; or with left wing views, for that matter.

Question Box

Question: Recently it was disclosed that colleges and universities no longer are crowded. In fact, some of the institutions of higher learning are threatened with closing because of lack of sufficient enrollment. Is this because of higher tuition? Is it because of lower salaries for professors? Is there some other reason?

Answer: We do not think the minimal increases in tuition in tax-financed colleges and universities has had an appreciable effect on enrollments. We believe some of the private and church-sponsored colleges have been hard hit by increased costs, with result that they have been forced to raise tuition and have lost some enrollment.

As to lower salaries for professors, we have seen no indication that faculty salaries have been reduced. They may not have risen as sharply as have pay for some other occupations. However, that could be a result of the natural law of supply and demand. If there is a reduced demand for teachers, with an oversupply, it is only natural that salaries have not increased as much.

As to the loss of students, we believe there are several reasons. There appears to be a decrease in the pressure on young people to have a college degree in order obtain employment. For a while it seemed that a certificate of completion of a certain number of hours in college was being required of most job applicants, regardless of whether the position actually justified that requirement.

Perhaps the greatest reason for reduction in the number of college enrollees is the end of the military draft. There is no question that more than a few young men were attending college only because it was ground for deferment from service in an unpopular war. Now that the war — and compulsory military service — have ended, young men are able to engage in other activities without the threat that they will be yanked up and sent overseas. This is not a criticism of these young men. We believe they had a perfect right to make that choice.

We also believe that many young people have had a change in attitude. Many of them have decided that they do not want to engage in the "rat race." They see schooling as preparation for taking part in economic struggle, and they are choosing not to engage in that struggle. Perhaps the ease of obtaining help in the way of welfare payments and food stamps has encouraged them to believe that they do not need to earn their own way. They may someday wake up to the fact that there is no such thing as a free lunch; that someone has to pay for it; until that day, however, they will blithely go on their way.

We doubt whether there is any one answer. However, we believe that a great many young people are changing their priorities, and that the big builders of institutions of so-called higher learning have not caught up with the more realistic members of the younger generation.

Candidate for "heel of the year"

By Abigail Van Buren
 © 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to nominate my ex-husband for "Heel of the Year." I divorced him 15 years ago, so he could marry another woman. At the time we had a five-year-old son and a three-year-old daughter.

After the first year he forgot all about child support. I had a good job, so I never hounded him.

Last year, our son enlisted in the Air Force. Five months later he was killed in a training accident.

Abby, that boy saw his father maybe a dozen times in the last 15 years. His father never remembered his son on his birthday or Christmas either.

Guess who showed up at our son's funeral? His father! Now for the unbelievable part: my ex-husband told me at the funeral that he was "entitled" to half our son's G.I. insurance. (The insurance was made out to me.) I told him where to go, and he said he plans to sue me. And he probably will.

Have you ever heard anything to equal that?

SHOCKED IN CHICAGO

DEAR SHOCKED: No. But if any of my readers have, they'll probably let me know. Does anyone else care to nominate a candidate for "Heel of the Year?"

DEAR ABBY: My brother and his wife are secretly married. My husband and I stood up for them. Brother is 31, and Ellen (made up name) is 27.

Brother and Ellen do not live together. She lives with her parents and he has his own apartment.

Ellen has not yet told her parents that she is married, and she has given my brother orders not to give away the secret. I think she's ashamed of him, which really upsets me because he is a super guy.

They finally told my parents. Abby, they've been married a year. Last week my parents had a little anniversary celebration party for them. Her folks weren't invited because they still haven't been told about the marriage. It was all so one-sided and weird.

I cannot understand why Ellen won't tell her folks. Neither she nor brother has been married before, there is no racial or religious conflict and my brother doesn't have two heads. In fact, he is very handsome. What do you make of this?

"B" IN SAN MATEO

DEAR "B": I don't know Ellen's reason for keeping her marriage a secret, but whatever it is, it's not your problem. It's hers and your brother's.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you because although I am on good terms with my doctor and have known him for years I am ashamed to ask him this question.

Ten years ago my husband died. Last year I fell in love again, and the gentlemen is five years younger than I am. I am 83.

For the last 30 years I have had no menstruation, having had my menopause completed at age 53. Can you please tell me if there is any possibility of my becoming pregnant now? I am in good health and do not look anywhere near my age. (I'm told I look about 60.) Do not use my name or location please.

WANTS TO KNOW

DEAR WANTS: No danger.

DEAR ABBY: What can you do for a guy whose new wife suddenly gets hung up on country and western music to the point where she won't listen to any other kind? She knows I hate it. Every radio in the house is tuned to those hillbilly singers. I've been going down to the corner tavern to hear some decent music on the jukebox.

Great potential seen for solar energy

Terrence Caster, president of Energy System, Inc., says solar energy should be used in all new homes and 20 million existing homes a year should be converted to solar energy.

He said it costs an estimated $3,500 to convert a home to solar energy. Multiplied this by 22 million homes and the potential of the industry is $77 billion annually.

IN GRAVITT SUIT

Bell Says Charges 'Ridiculous'

DALLAS (UPI) — Southwestern Bell's president said Thursday the company would take whatever action necessary to defend itself in a suit alleging it participates in illegal political activity and unethical business practices.

"I know the charges outlined in this San Antonio lawsuit make exciting reading," Zane E. Barnes said. "But I have faith that anyone who thinks about what he or she reads will conclude that the suit and resultant publicity are aimed at embarrassing the company, its employees and shareholders."

"We are committed to defend ourselves vigorously and intend to take whatever appropriate action is necessary to protect our customers, our employees and our business."

Barnes also said the charges filed by fired company executive James Ashley and the family of deceased executive T.O. Gravit were "wild and ridiculous."

The Gravit family

attorney, Pat Maloney, said the $26 million suit stemmed from two letters, two memos and a suicide note left by Gravit. The note said Watergate was a gnat compared to the Bell system and the other documents outlined political slush funds, the use of separate bookkeeping and other illegal activity.

Gravit died Oct. 17 of carbon monoxide poisoning. Officials ruled he committed suicide by locking himself in his garage with the car running.

Monday a hearing will be held on Maloney's request certain documents be preserved by Bell. He said he would not introduce the suicide note or the other documents but he would have testimony on the validity of all the subpoenaed materials.

Both San Antonio newspapers reported Thursday Ashley made tape recordings to backup his kickback allegations. The newspapers he made the recordings of conversations with two officials of Southwestern Bell.

The newspapers sources said Ashley made the recordings for self protection and one Bell official knew his conversation was being taped. The official in the second conversation apparently was not aware of the recording.

IN BIRMINGHAM, ENGLAND

Explosion Kills 19 In Crowded Pubs

BIRMINGHAM, England (UPI) — Scotland Yard ordered a nationwide search today for a getaway car seen speeding from the worst bomb blasts since the start of the Irish Republican Army's two-year-old terror campaign in England.

The bombs demolished a pair of crowded pubs in the heart of Birmingham Thursday night, killing at least 19 persons and wounding 202. Police said more victims might be buried in the rubble.

"There was a massive explosion with bodies everywhere," Michael Wills, one of the bloodied survivors, said. "The screaming and groaning of the injured was terrible."

The bombs exploded within two minutes of each other at the Mulberry Bush and the Tavern in the Town, downtown bars 50 yards apart, ripping into hundreds of payday patrons.

A third bomb was found unexploded near a pub two miles away.

Scotland Yard ordered police around the country to check roads, airports, train stations and bus depots in hopes of catching the bombers.

Police appealed to the public to watch out for a car with the license plate 123WW. Detectives said a group of men ran from the scene, scrambled into the car and sped away. One of the men was spread-eagled on the hood.

Dazed victims and weary rescuers shouted "Irish bastards" as firemen dug through the shattered concrete, wooden beams and glass to search for more missing.

IN GRANDMOTHER'S HOUSE FBI Agents Find Burglary Money

CHICAGO (UPI) — Some $2.2 million of the $4.3 million in cash taken in the Armored Express vault burglary was found Thursday night under a five-inch layer of concrete in the basement of a home owned by the grandmother of one of the suspects.

U.S. Attorney James R. Thompson said the money, taken in the biggest cash heist in American history, was recovered by agents of the FBI, the Illinois Bureau of Investigation and local police.

The cash, in an assortment of $10, $20, $50 and $100 bills, filled five Army duffel bags.

It was found in a seven-foot-deep hole in the basement of a home owned by Dorothy Marrera, the grandmother of Ralph Marrera, an Armored Express security guard accused of being the inside man in the Oct. 20 heist.

The grandmother was not suspected of complicity in the crime, Thompson said.

Thompson said the hole was covered over by a layer of concrete reinforced with chicken wire.

He said agents, armed with a warrant from a U.S. magistrate, went to the unoccupied house Thursday night and tore up the floor in search of the missing cash.

Thompson refused to say what led police to the money.

The recovery, Thompson said, was "far beyond what I thought we would be able to recover."

Thompson noted that the recovery was "one of the largest cash recoveries in the history of the United States."

Six men have been arrested and charged in the burglary of the security company's vault, where about $25 million had been stored for the weekend.

Only about $39,000 of the money had been recovered before Thursday night.

about $29,000 of it coming from two suspects, Pasquale Chares Marzano and Luigi DiFonzo — the alleged mastermind of the heist — when the two were arrested by British authorities on Grand Cayman Island in the British West Indies Oct. 30.

The pair flew to the island a few days after the burglary, reportedly carrying cash-ladened suitcases past custom officials.

The FBI has said it believes that about $1.5 million of the loot is stored in the island's stronghold banks, but an judge on the island's high court has ruled that American authorities could not look into five bank accounts where the money was believed to be stashed.

The four others indicted in the crime have been identified as Marzano's cousin, William Anthony Marzano, Peter Gushi, a self-styled master criminal, Ralph Marrera and James Maniatis.

Marrera was the guard on duty at the time of the burglary and Maniatis allegedly supplied the van in which the loot was hauled away.

The six are charged with burglarizing the vault and replacing the stolen 800 pounds of cash with plastic bags containing gasoline and equipped with time fuses. The fire bombs went off, but fizzled because of lack of oxygen in the vault.

Police Issue DWI Charge

Bobby Jean Paulson, 43, Pampa, was charged with driving while intoxicated and cited for failure to yield right of way at a stop sign as a result of a car-motorcycle accident Thursday.

Paulson was arraigned on the DWI charge early today. Justice of the Peace E.L. Anderson set bond at $500.

Police reports said Kevin Dewain McCain, 16, Pampa, was eastbound on Francis when his motorcycle was in collision with Paulson's car, southbound on Gray at 10:06 p.m. yesterday.

McCain was slightly injured in the mishap, reports said.

HERMAN VAN SICKLE

Funeral services for Herman R. Van Sickle, 70, 530 N. Dwight, who died at 8:55 p.m. Thursday at Worley Hospital, will be at 10:30 a.m. Saturday in Carmichael-Whitley Colonial Chapel.

Officiating will be Dr. Floyd V. Hamilton, pastor of First United Methodist Church. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

Born Feb. 11, 1904 at Royce City, Mr. Van Sickle was married to Sue Merriman, June 18, 1934 at Sayre, Okla.

Before retirement in 1966, he was a partner in the Longhorn Trucking Co., and had previously worked for C.M. Jeffries Trucking Co.

Mr. Van Sickle was a member of the First United Methodist Church.

Mondale Drops Presidency Aim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Walter F. Mondale's withdrawal leaves the liberal wing of the Democratic party without a potential presidential candidate of national stature.

The 46-year-old Minnesotan, a hand in his pocket, stood before 15 microphones Thursday afternoon and gave up the idea of seeking the nomination.

"I think the presidency is very important," he said, "and I admire those who want it so bad that they will do what must be done to get it."

But, he said, after spending $100,000 and traveling thousands of miles to test the waters, "basically I found I did not have the overwhelming desire to be president, which is essential for the kind of campaign that is required."

That narrowed the list of active potential candidates to Sens. Henry M. Jackson, Wash., and Lloyd M. Bentsen, Tex.; Rep. Morris Udall, Ariz., and Gov. George Wallace, Ala.

Of the four, only Udall is the sort of dovish liberal who might appeal to the Kennedy wing of the party. But he is not well known, and his candidacy is only taken half seriously.

The Nov. 5 election may have promoted some Democrats into position to stake a claim. Among them are Hugh Carey, governor-elect of New York, and Sen. Birch Bayh, Ind., who was an announced candidate for a short time in 1968.

PHS Choir To Present 'Brigadoon'

By ALETHA DAVIS
Drama, romance, superb choreography and timely musical score, it will all be there when "Brigadoon" is presented to the public today at 8 p.m. in M.K. Brown Auditorium by the Pampa High School Choral Department.

Directed by John Woicikowski, assisted by Louise Richardson, the show opens in the Highlands of Scotland where two weary hunters are lost, dejected, and disillusioned with the hum-drum of their lives.

Then, "Brigadoon" — a mythical village, appears as the mists clear, and the two journey through a day entwined with the lives of the 18th century citizens of the village.

The misty mood of this Highland setting is strikingly complemented by gay 18th century costuming and excellent band orchestration by Philip J. Lang. The pit band will feature members of Pampa High School band, directed by Jeff Doughton.

"Brigadoon" will again be staged at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Tickets are available at Hi-Land Pharmacy, Tarpley's and A & W Root Beer.

Eddy Roby, Bill Dingus, Kayla Waterbury and Sandra Vance will portray lead characters in the musical.

Choreography is under direction of Jeanne Willingham. Stage managers are George Henrick and Kayla Waterbury. Pam Thomas and Tonya Organ are in charge of properties; and rehearsal accompanists were Wanda Gill and Elbert Hensley.

Dana Rogers was publicity chairman, and lighting design and technical usage, is directed by Tony Scroggin.

OVERIDES VETOES

Congress Okays Transit Measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A balky Congress finally gave President Ford the mass transit bill he wanted but also forced him to accept two other measures he had vetoed.

By a surprisingly large margin, 288-109, the House approved and sent to the White House a $11.8 billion, six-year program to help urban mass transit systems.

In a telegram from Japan, the traveling President informed Congress he would sign the bill.

But the Senate dealt Ford two blows, overriding his vetoes on an expansion of the Freedom of Information Act, 65-27, and a vocational rehabilitation bill, 90-1.

Ford has now vetoed 13 bills, and three of the vetoes have been overridden.

Only five times in history and not since 1921, has one senator backed the president on a veto. The lone vote against the vocational rehabilitation veto was cast by Sen. William L. Scott, R-Va.

On five other occasions — the last in 1908 — Congress has unanimously rejected a veto.

Although the Freedom of Information Act expansion now goes into effect, the $851 million rehabilitation program remains in dispute.

Ford contends he used a pocket veto on the bill, refusing to sign it while Congress was in a 30-day recess. A pocket veto cannot be overridden.

Congress argues that a 30-day break for the elections does not constitute adjournment for the purposes of a pocket veto. The Supreme Court may have to rule.

After a hectic first post-recess week, the House took the day off and the Senate scheduled routine legislation today.

The House Judiciary

Committee continued confirmation hearings of Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president.

The Senate Rules Committee planned to unanimously approve the Rockefeller nomination, but chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., said there was "no chance" of Senate action before Thanksgiving.

Texas Baptist Set Record In Sunday School

A record 614,000 Texas Southern Baptists attended Sunday School last Sunday.

A first High Attendance Day Goal of 600,000 had been set by the Sunday School Division of the Baptist General Convention of Texas for 4,200 Sunday Schools around the state.

"This record high is perhaps the greatest single achievement in the history of the Sunday School program," said Dr. John Sisemore, director of the Texas Baptist Sunday School Division.

He alluded to many larger denominations who are experiencing plummeting attendance in their Sunday morning programs.

This was the first statewide attempt at a large scale attendance promotion, says Dr. Sisemore.

The weekly average attendance for the two-million-member state convention was 518,000 during 1973.

"This is more significant than just numbers," says Dr. James H. Landes, Texas Baptist executive secretary. "In a day when our nation's problems are ever mounting, people are feeling a need to reclaim the basics of faith, God and Church. We can't do less than to reach out as never before."

OPEN HOUSE at Genesis House

321 N. Starkweather
Sun. Nov. 24, 2 to 4 p.m.

The Board of Directors, probably more so than anyone else, realizes that this local program of care and Christian action could not exist without the many friends who support Genesis House with their gifts of money and services. We wish to dedicate this Open House to those listed below who have been so much help during this fiscal year.

The Board of Directors cordially invites the area public to visit the Genesis House, Sunday, November 24. We are extremely proud of the services being provided and the quality of the job being done in providing a beginning place for young women in need of Christian care and love.

Employee's Death Ruled Accident

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — The death of a Kerr-McGee Nuclear Corp. employee was due solely to injuries from an automobile accident and was not connected to plutonium contamination from her work, the state medical examiner's report reaffirmed Thursday.

The final report substantiated a preliminary report issued Monday in which Dr. A. Jay Chapman said Karen Silkwood, 21, died as the result of injuries suffered in a single-car automobile accident.

Chapman said an autopsy showed no signs of radioactivity in the victim's body, but that traces of alcohol and a hypnotic drug were found.

Toxicological examination of blood and other specimens reveals the deceased was under the influence of a sedative-hypnotic drug, methaqualone, associated with a trace of ethyl alcohol, the medical report said.

It said there was no evidence to imply that any other vehicle was involved and that damage to the rear bumper of her car apparently occurred while the vehicle was being towed by a wrecker.

A union official had quoted a special investigator as saying there were indications Miss Silkwood's car was forced off the road.

Steve Wodka, legislative assistant for the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, expressed concern that the Kerr-McGee Corp. might make Miss Silkwood and her roommate, Sherri Ellis, scapegoats for the plutonium contamination accident Nov. 5 at its Crescent plant.

Miss Silkwood was killed in a traffic accident Nov. 13 while en route to a meeting with a union official and a New York Times reporter to discuss her allegations of safety hazards at the plant.

The Atomic Energy Commission is investigating the contamination accident.

The FBI entered the investigation late Wednesday. A Justice Department spokesman said the FBI was checking to see whether any federal laws had been violated.

Wodka also said Thursday he was puzzled that no documents were found in Miss Silkwood's car.

"She knew what that meeting was about that night," Wodka said, "and she knew this was a meeting where she would have to document to us her allegations of quality control data. She would have come prepared."

New Subatomic Particles Found

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Scientists collided matter with anti-matter at 3.7 billion electron volts Thursday to find the second member of what could be a new family of subatomic particles.

A group of 41 physicists from two California laboratories participated in the experiments leading to the second discovery within two weeks of a particle with the unusual combination of large mass and long nuclear life.

One experimenter, Prof. Sidney Drell, a theoretical physicist at the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center, said the find "could fit several theories, and could even be the elusive

"quark," a fundamental particle believed to exist but never found.

A Stanford team was joined by physicists of UC's Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory to search for possible "brothers or sisters" of a similar particle discovered 13 days ago when electrons were collided with positrons at 3.105 billion volts at Stanford's colliding beam facility.

"The exciting question is, is it an isolated set of two particles or an entire series?" asked UC physicist G. Goldhaber. "We're going to look further into this right away."

The new particle, named psi (3700), had a half-life, or decaying time, of less than a hundred billionth of a second, a relatively long time in high energy physics. Its exact half-life may take days to determine.

Thursday's discovery occurred at 4:30 a.m. and confirmed the earlier discovery that was announced simultaneously over the weekend by Stanford researchers and a scientific team at the Brookhaven National Laboratory at Upton, N.Y. That particle was named psi (3105).

Both particles found at Stanford resulted from the collision of negatively charged electrons, which are matter, with positively charged positrons, which are anti-matter. The Brookhaven team discovered the first particle by bombarding protons with protons at 30 billion electron volts.

Prof. Burton Richter, who heads the Stanford team, said physicists in Hamburg, Germany, Geneva, Switzerland, and the Soviet Union are beginning experiments to duplicate the findings, which could result in changes in the fundamental concepts of the structure of matter.

Your Horoscope

SATURDAY, NOV. 23
Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Be agreeable to the new conditions of your group or community. Getting acquainted includes finding fresh qualities and resources in people who are familiar to you.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Whatever is needed today requires an extra push from you alone. Wait for results, which eventually arrive in several stages.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Resolve or leave behind situations that no longer interest you, but keep notes for future reference. Attend to problems that are bothering people and dependents.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: It's a great day for mending fences. Make peace and celebrate the quality and depth of ongoing friendships. New contacts made today are exceptionally promising.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Your intuition comes alive and leads the way. This is a highly successful, good-humored day. Younger people are unusually receptive to an appeal for cooperation.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Gather your possessions from wherever you've scattered them. Ask expert advice on matters outside of your expertise. You can earn something extra today.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Get organized! Pursue a balanced program and give specific attention to neglected personal projects and career advancement moves. Share favorite hobbies during any leisure time.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Your striving to build stronger relationships and social ties brings with it self-improvement. Matters concerning children demand study and special consideration.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Put in your best efforts at home building or similar enterprises. Gather your family for a general conference; try to locate and correct problems cheerfully.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Push yourself to attend neglected errands. Renew acquaintances through brief visits, although it may necessitate some travel.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Make sure you're in on decision-making, since you'll be held responsible. A personal touch is important even if it's only in a minor correction.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Pitch in to work for the best interests of your own people and yourself. Catch up on correspondence; compare notes with people who are competent in your field.

Check processing a costly business
 Banks are working to simplify personal money management to clear a path through the more than 26 billion paper checks written per year.

The annual cost, nationwide, of the 20 or more steps required to process checks was $1.16 billion or about 1 percent of the gross national product of the United States in 1973. — CNS.

HEALTH'S-A-POPPIN'

Many injuries caused by toys

By MARION WELLS
Copley News Service

Unsafe toys are nothing to "play around with," yet many children do every year.

The consequences are no child's play. The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) "... estimates that approximately 143,000 toy-related injuries were treated in emergency rooms alone in fiscal year 1973."

More than half of the actual injuries on which this estimate was based involved roller skates, tricycles and toy boats, trucks, airplanes and cars. However, safety and health are important considerations in the selection and use of any toy. According to the CPSC, the peak purchase period for playthings is October through December. Concerned authorities urge you to keep the following toy safety tips in mind.

First, know what makes a toy hazardous. A toy can cause trouble if it has unsafe features, if it's given to a child who lacks the size, skill or maturity to handle it properly, if it is not used as intended, or if breakage or damage creates a hazard.

When picking out a plaything, examine an unwrapped sample carefully. Here are some hints concerning what to look for and look out for.

The CPSC warns that "the insertion of a toy or toy part into the mouth, nose, and ears is a common problem associated with toys and can result in serious injury and even death. Small parts that the child has disengaged from the toy, or parts of games and toys such as marbles and pegs, are usually involved. The victims in most cases are four years old or younger." Check playthings for buttons, knobs, dolls' eyes or other small items your child would be capable of pulling off.

Don't let your child "get stuck" with a toy which has sharp points of edges. Have parts been attached with sharp pins, wires or nails that could be exposed? Could the wear and tear of a "child's play" expose any internal sharp areas (such as the axle of a toy truck)? Are there sections which could catch, pinch, squeeze or "scissor" flesh?

Bypass brittle plastic playthings which could shatter into jagged bits if they fell. Be sure wooden toys are properly finished so they're less apt to splinter. Do toy vehicles have breakable glass windows?

How about the "strings attached?" Could cords ending in rings or other devices be formed or tangled into a noose or loop? Pay particular attention to possible strangling hazards, including the length of strings, when selecting toys for babies.

Help protect your child's hearing and lower noise levels by bypassing needlessly noisy playthings. Do you have any projectile type "toys" around the house? They can constitute an eye risk not only to your child, but to others nearby.

Are you considering kits containing chemicals? Make certain each substance is clearly labeled. On electrical toys, be sure both cord and toy carry the Underwriters' Laboratories Seal indicating that electrical features have met specified standards. See that heat producing playthings have hot sections clearly marked, and test the heat level first yourself to make certain it won't burn the child. Check frequently for breakage or malfunction and insist on prompt repair by qualified personnel. Does your youngster know how to pull plugs out safely?

Just a quick word about costumes. Avoid those which might hinder breathing or vision. Beware of plastic bags. Authorities advise making or buying all costume parts of "flameproof" (fire resistant) materials. Check labels. (Incidentally, look for labels on dolls indicating that stuffing, clothing and hair are non-flammable.)

Accidents and injuries are no fun, so play safe with your child's health.

Magnavox Videomatic Color TV adjusts its own picture to changing room light - automatically:

There's an "electric eye" which watches for changes in room light. When the room is bright, the picture should be brighter or it would be washed out. The Videomatic "eye" automatically turns up the brightness, color and contrast. In a darkened room the "eye" senses that too bright a picture would glare or lose contrast, so it automatically turns down the brightness, contrast and color.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) - Hey there, young song-writers, wherever you are. Here's a challenge for you.

The Bambino Music Co., of which I have the honor to be president and sole proprietor, is conducting a contest guaranteed to tax your skill and ingenuity to the utmost.

Its purpose is to determine whether it is possible for any composer under 30 to write a song without using the word "baby" in the lyrics.

In launching a new music company, it is important to get off to a socko start. So my company rented a computer to help us decide what type of song would make the biggest splash.

Two of its findings were especially significant:

1. Most of the big song hits of the past 10 years were written by composers in the 20-30 age bracket.

2. All of the big song hits of the past 10 years had the word "baby" in the lyrics.

Many of the big song hits, in fact, had nothing but the word "baby" in the lyrics.

Any song in which the word "baby" is repeated 133 times is dead certain to make the charts.

And when you consider that the word is pronounced with four syllables, as in "bay-eh-bee-e," you actually are hearing it 266 times.

Why, you ask, is Bambino bucking this trend in our contest?

Well, my board of directors, musical advisers and I decided the country is ready for a big novelty hit. And what could be more novel than a song without the word "baby" in the lyrics?

We realize we're running a risk. It could be the country isn't ready for a song that novel.

Riskier yet is the possibility that we have made the contest too tough.

Originally, we tried commissioning a babyless song. But none of the composers we contacted could do it.

"It's a mental block, I guess," one frustrated songwriter told me. "I've got a couple of great tunes here, but there's no way I can come up with words to fit them unless I throw in a baby or two."

I suggested he try substituting "sweetie," or "dearie," or "tootsie" or some other term of endearment.

"A lot of lyricists used to use those words," I pointed out.

But he said it was too hard to stretch them out to four syllables.

We at Bambino are hoping the contest will produce a breakthrough. The incentive should be terrific.

Eileen Fulton Sings The Blues

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Eileen Fulton who, for the past 14 years has played Lisa Shea in "As the World Turns," will have a record album out before Christmas, entitled "Eileen Fulton for All Times."

Yes, she's a singer as well as an actress and not only appeared in the off-Broadway musical, "The Fantasticks," but stars as a vocalist in major nightclubs across the country.

Eileen's earliest ambition was to be an opera star.

But she's given that up, and her new album features more blues than anything else.

Like the followers of most daytime television drama stars, Eileen's fans are utterly devoted.

"My fans send me the most exquisite gifts in the world," she claims. "One woman in Newport News who was married to a silversmith gives me gorgeous silver. She's sent me several silver bowls."

"And once, when I was appearing in Chicago, a woman jumped up on stage and gave me a huge box of Sarah Coventry jewelry. This box was something the company gave its representatives in recognition of outstanding work, and the woman gave me her award."

Eileen's fans are not only generous, they are also gullible, since they are inclined to accept the goings-on in "As the World Turns" as a portrayal of fact.

"Once in the show," Eileen recalls, "Lisa, the character I play, thought she was pregnant and was considering an abortion."

"I got an irate letter from a woman who wrote, 'How dare you consider an abortion. Don't you know that's wicked? If you want to get rid of the baby, get involved in an automobile accident or fall down the stairs.'"

Another time, after the character Lisa had made a train trip between two cities and, during its progress, had thrown her wedding band into a trash can, Eileen received a letter from a woman who wrote:

"My husband and I have taken that same train several times and looked in every trash can on it hoping to find your ring. Because, if you could find it and return it to you, we are sure you and Bob could work out your problems."

...gave up opera

Though her father was a Methodist minister, Eileen says her parents never discouraged her theatrical ambition. Rather, they encouraged her desire to act and sing.

"My father was the kind of preacher who wanted a bright red ceiling in his study," Eileen tells. "He couldn't have it, because his congregation wouldn't stand for it."

"So he installed a bright red carpet. But then he accidentally dropped his pipe and burned a hole in it."

"He was heartbroken."

Is the world ready for another Smothers Brothers show? And are the Smothers Brothers ready?

NBC at least thinks so and will give the brothers prime time for a new series to begin airing Jan. 13 as a replacement for "Born Free."

Let's hope the boys (who really are very talented) will handle their break better than they did at CBS where their extreme behavior on camera and off brought down the ax. The fact that Joe Hamilton will be their producer should help keep the action steady.

Mac Davis will go in as substitute for another cancelled NBC series, "Sierra," beginning Dec. 19.

Phi Epsilon Beta Has Turkey Dinner

Members of Phi Epsilon Beta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi entertained their husbands and new pledges at the November social, a Progressive Dinner Sunday, Nov. 17.

The group first met at the home of Cecil and Kay Newman for hors d'oeuvres, then on to the home of Bill and Karen Skaggs for a turkey dinner with all the trimmings.

After dinner the group met in the Flame of Pioneer Natural Gas Building for pumpkin pie and coffee. "Bunko" proved to be quite entertaining for the group.

Guests were Harry and Karen Keyes of Littlefield, Karen being a former member of Phi Epsilon Beta.

Pledges and their husbands who attended were Arnie and Brenda Little, Bryan and Darla Pulse, Mark and Kathy Topper, and Harry and Starla Tracey, and John and Debbie Michi.

Members and their husbands attending were Doyle and Lynda Newman, Billy and Cathy Scribner, Phil and Sandy Altman, Phil and Nelda Savage, Alan and Susan Buchanan, Bill and Linda Forman, Danny and Debbie Stokes, Randy and Debbie Stubblefield, Wayne and Jan Trusty, Susan Richardson, Joyce Pulse, and sponsor Mary Baten.

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Pale and weak from loss of blood, Paulo da Silva Arantes told of what he said was a ruin with a knife-wielding voodoo spirit that "chopped my right hand off."

Arantes, who is still hospitalized, said he makes a living by stealing candles used as offerings to voodoo entities.

As he was about to grab a candle in a cemetery recently, he said, a large figure appeared.

"He said he was an Exu Caveira (a demon-like spirit that inhabits cemeteries), and before I could apologize, he took out a large knife and chopped my right hand off."

"Now you will always remember not to fool around with things that don't belong to you—especially things that are mine," Arantes quoted the demon as saying. Skeptical police said they were searching for the man rather than a voodoo spirit as the assailant.

BRECHT ON AGENDA
STRATFORD, Ont. (UPI) — The Stratford Festival Theater will open its season next summer with Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan" on June 9. Shakespeare's works to be presented are "Twelfth Night" and "Measure for Measure." Also, Bertolt Brecht's "Trumpets and Drums" is on the agenda.

America's first native reindeer was a jet black calf born on May 31, 1929, on a private estate in North Beverly, Mass.

Overpopulation Of Animals Eyed

By JAN JENNINGS
Copley News Service

A little girl walks into a humane society with her father in hand.

She surveys the dog population, then finally exclaims: "That one. I want that one." The family already has three other dogs.

"But why do you want another? Why do you want that one?" she is asked.

"Because it's white. We don't have a white one." Or a boy comes in looking for a dog.

"Well, I had one, but it ran away." Or maybe, "I had one, but it got run over."

Those naive statements all serve to heighten the pet overpopulation problem and are just appetizers for far deeper and more complex problems.

Such problems were discussed, debated and argued recently into the wee hours of the morning at a conference held in Chicago under the sponsorship of the American Humane Association, the American Kennel Club, the American Veterinary Medical Association, the American Society of the U.S., and Pet Food Institute.

Representatives from all over the United States and Canada were in attendance. Invitations went out to all organizations interested in the study and solution of overpopulation.

Studied in lectures, workshops and seminars were pet ecology, regulations and enforcement, euthanasia and adoption (that's right, adoption is the term), surgical sterility and the alternatives, animal control and public education.

The goal was to define the problem and come up with suggestions on how to deal with it and the possible elimination of the problem.

And findings, according to Mrs. Neal, executive secretary of the San Diego (Calif.) County Veterinary Medical Association, were startling to all.

"In defining the problem," said Mrs. Neal, "we found that surplus or pet explosion are no longer appropriate terms. The supply and demand of kittens and puppies are pretty well balancing out.

"The problems are two: the unwanted animal and the uncontrolled animal.

"The uncontrolled animal most affects humans causing both financial and emotional drain.

"They pollute the environment, damage property, disturb the peace, disrupt traffic. They are a health problem. Brought up, too, was the problem of dog bites.

"The unwanted dog is a continuing problem, too. A family may decide they want a dog, then in a few months the novelty wears off and they ignore him, or give him to a neighbor who follows the same pattern or simply just abandons him.

"There should be a screening process for adoption of dogs and a determining criteria for what dogs are adoptable, according to the feeling of the group," said Mrs. Neal.

important nutrient unless supplements are made," she warned.

She also pointed out that the strict vegetarian diet may be deficient in calcium, riboflavin and iodine.

— Ovo-lacto vegetarian: excludes meat, fish and poultry, but includes eggs and dairy products.

— Lacto-vegetarian: excludes meat, poultry, fish and eggs, but includes dairy products.

Those interested in planning a vegetarian diet have three kinds to consider, according to his nutritionist.

— Pure, or strict, vegetarian: excludes all food of animal origin, such as meat, eggs and dairy products.

This diet severely limits the nutrients found in the meat and milk groups. Vitamin B12 is found only in meat, fish, eggs and dairy products, and the strict vegetarian will miss this

Central Sets Harvest Time

The Music Ministry of the Central Baptist Church will conduct the first annual Harvest Time Celebration Nov. 26, 7:30 p.m. The church will host one of the outstanding sopranos in the state, Mrs. Martha Branham, in a concert of Praise and Thanksgiving. The service will be held in the sanctuary in Central Baptist Church.

Mrs. Branham's credits include a real and personal experience with Jesus Christ, a BME from Oklahoma Baptist University, and study at Southern Methodist University. She has sung for seven consecutive Southern Baptist Conventions. In the Billy Graham Crusade in Miami, in the Japanese New Life Crusade, as well as many evangelistic meetings and opera and oratorio rolls.

There will be provision for nursery age children. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

1st Assembly Plans Final Revival Meet

According to an announcement by the pastor, R.L. Courtney, the Fall Revival with Evangelist David Wiggins of Morrilton, Ark., will conclude with the service Sunday evening at 6:30.

The services have been in progress since Wed. Nov. 13, and have been very well attended and many have been blessed as they have shared in the services from night to night.

Sunday morning at 9:45 starts the day's activities with a great Sunday School Hour and at First Assembly of God here is a class for every age group and for every member of the family. The Church features a nursery for the infants as well as accommodations for the toddlers.

At the Worship Service at 11 a.m., Frank Anderson conducts the congregational singing as well as directs the Sanctuary Choir in a special presentation of worship. The morning message will be given by the guest Evangelist.

During the Worship Hour at 11 a.m., Mrs. R.L. Courtney, wife and Mrs. Virginia Bookout, lead a service for the children of the church. This is not a baby sitting activity, but it provides a time of Bible teaching and worship for the children. Numbers of children are led to know Jesus as their Saviour during this activity, said the pastor.

The evening, and concluding, service of this Crusade will feature congregational singing led by Art Rohde, followed by special singing by the guest evangelist.

The evening message will center upon Bible Truth. The evening will begin at 6:30 and people from all churches are invited to come and share in the refreshing time of fellowship and worship.

The Church is located at the corner of Cuyler and Brown Streets and if further information is desired this can be acquired by calling the Church office at 665-4511.

Civil Religion Debate Unfolds

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

Some seven years ago, sociologist Robert N. Bellah sent shock waves through the religious and academic circles with the publication in Daedalus magazine of his article "Civil Religion in America."

It wasn't so much that Bellah had come up with a startling new insight as that his phrase — "civil religion" — and his somewhat approving assessment of the phenomenon excited the response of both the academic and theological communities.

Since the publication of Bellah's original essay, countless books, magazine articles, scholarly and lay symposia have all struggled with the question of the relationship between nation and religion noted by Bellah.

One of the best of these, including Bellah's original essay and a recently written reassessment of the debate, including an answer to his critics, has just been published under the title "American Civil Religion," edited by Russell E. Richey and Donald G. Jones (Harper).

In his original essay, Bellah argued that "there actually exists alongside of and rather clearly differentiated from the churches an elaborate and well institutionalized civil religion in America."

What Bellah calls "civil religion," critics have also labeled "the religion of the Republic," and the generalized "religion of the American Way of Life."

Bellah saw the civil religion as it emerged in America having several parallels or analogies with Biblical religion — the use of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution as sacred documents, the founding of the nation as the exodus event, and, in Presidents like Lincoln and Kennedy, a tradition of saintly martyrs. Critics who dislike the idea of a civil religion usually make two kinds of arguments against it — that it bowdlerizes Biblical religion and that it results in national self-worship, the transcendence of the nation-state over all else.

In his reassessment of the civil religion concept, Bellah continues to argue for its usefulness for the nation.

At the same time, however, he acknowledges that the late 1960s and early 1970s had a major impact on the national self-understanding and the civil religion.

"A profound undermining of authority, of respect for our inherited values and beliefs, has taken place that will not be easily reversed, even though what has been offered instead is often shoddy and distasteful," Bellah notes.

He suggests that the twin crises of Watergate and Vietnam that have so shaken the nation mean there is a need to re-examine American traditions and broaden our understanding of the American ethic.

As just one example, he cites the way in which American individualism has come to be a major component of the American civil religion. But in looking at history, he sees in John Winthrop's famous sermon — preached to the colonists before they left the ship that had brought them to Massachusetts Bay in 1630 — "in the very beginning and core of the Protestant tradition in this country so vivid an expression of a communal ethic."

Bellah's re-assessment is not the last word in the debate over civil religion. The arguments over the relations and various influences of religion, morality and politics on each other and on the national life will go on.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

Church Of Jesus Christ Of Latter-day Saints

By LARRY HOLLIS

Elder's Quorum President David O. McKay, 10th president and prophet of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, once said, "No other success can compensate for failure in the home."

Today we see many families torn apart by dissension and distrust between the parents and their children. This is caused in part by drugs, by politics, by a difference in morality, but most of all by a lack of understanding.

The father and often the mother spend much of their time at work, with friends, in social pursuits, often ignoring the development of their children. They feel that as long as their children have the latest fads in clothes, the latest style in transistor radios, the privilege of using the family car or even owning one of their own — that as long as the children have the proper material care, they (the parents) are doing their part.

God said, "It is not good that man should be alone." (Gen. 2:18)

This applies to more than just the husband-wife relationship. Man and woman were joined together to raise families, to aid each other in becoming members of the Lord's family.

The prediction of Malachi concerning Elijah, "He shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to the fathers," (Mal. 4:6) has particular significance today when there is a need to return to and strengthen the familial system that has been the basis of civilization since Adam and Eve.

President McKay noted, "Never before was there such need of revitalizing the teaching of faith and repentance on the part of parents. Never before in the history of our country was the state in greater need of young men and women who cherish the higher life in preference to the sordid, the selfish, and the obscene."

The Lord Jesus Christ has instructed us, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." (Mark 12:31)

Who are our closest neighbors if not the members of our family? Yet we tend to treat business associates and even strangers with more politeness and kindness and respect than we do those closest to us.

Part of the reason for the formation of the family is to provide instruction for the children so they can learn to take their place in the world and gain the wisdom they need to live as the Lord would have them to live. Today, however, the general philosophy seems to be, "Let them grow up and make up their own minds without any kind of training from us."

Yet Solomon, given wisdom of the Lord, said, "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it." (Prov. 22:6)

Art Linkletter has observed there are many families living together and staying in the same house seven nights a week, but each member is living in his own separate world, with no true communication or interaction occurring.

President McKay said, "In the well-ordered home we may experience on earth a taste of heaven."

The family was instituted by God as an eternal unit. Do we by our actions or our inactions aid that end, or do we instead try to see that the family remains for as short a duration as possible?

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

The old system of Jewish laws gave only a dim foretaste of the good things Christ would do for us. The sacrifices under the old system were repeated again, year after year, but even so they could never save those who lived under their rules. If they could have, one offering would have been enough; the worshippers would have been cleansed once for all, and their feeling of guilt would be gone. But those yearly sacrifices reminded them of their disobedience.

Buckeyes Host Wolves

United Press International
The definition of a "big game" can't always be determined by what transpires on the field.

In some cases, the setting can be even bigger than the reality of combat.

Such a scene will take place at Columbus, Ohio, Saturday when Ohio State hosts Michigan in what may be the Game of the Year—both on the field and off. It is being preceded by such a frantic scramble for tickets that one hopeful Ohio State entrepreneur placed a price of $10,000 on a pair of seats and another coed actually sold three tickets for $600.

At whatever price they pay, there will be a noisy, holiday-high crowd of 86,000 fans in attendance, plus untold millions of freeloaders who will watch on television. In addition to a highly-prized victory, at stake for Michigan and Ohio State will be the Big Ten Conference championship and a Rose Bowl berth.

The Wolverines, still steaming over last year's decision by the Big 10 to bypass them in favor of Ohio State as the conference representative to the Rose Bowl, carry a 10-0 record into their season finale and the No. 2 position in the national rankings.

The Buckeyes are ranked third with a 9-1 record, the loss coming in a highly controversial 19-13 decision to Michigan State two weeks ago. Ohio State, with the home field advantage, has been listed as an eight-point favorite, but the two rival coaches discount the spread.

"There's no such thing as an underdog in this game," said Michigan Coach Bo

Schembechler, and Woody Hayes of Ohio State responded, "You and I both know that it's going to be a tossup out there."

Top-ranked Alabama is idle this week in preparation for next Friday's donnybrook with sixth-ranked Auburn, but several other traditional rivalries and bowl berths will be decided on the final big weekend of the 1974 college football season.

At Los Angeles, seventh-ranked Southern California is a 15-point favorite over UCLA, with the Pacific Eight crown and the host role in the Rose Bowl at stake. This game also will be televised nationally.

The Big Eight Conference title will be decided at Lincoln, Neb., with fifth-ranked Nebraska hosting unbeaten Oklahoma. The Sooners, who are unranked and unable to go to a post-season bowl because of their probationary status, are favored by 14 points.

Elsewhere, unbeaten Yale is a 5½-point favorite at Harvard in a battle for the Ivy League crown. Tennessee is a 1½-point pick at home over Kentucky in their Liberty Bowl duel. Purdue is 4½ points at home over Indiana. Illinois is 13½ points at home over Northwestern. Mississippi State is 7½ at home over Mississippi. Oregon State is 11 at home over Oregon. Washington is picked by 1½ points at Washington State, and California is 3½ at home over Stanford.

Cowboys Tangle For Lives Sunday

HOUSTON (UPI) — Veteran cornerback Zeke Moore, the only Oiler around when Houston had its last winning season, knows better than most what it means to play the upstate Dallas Cowboys.

Moore recalled when many pro football teams formed basketball squads during the 1970 off-season. "Good way to stay in shape all year," Moore said, "but it was always different when we played the Cowboys. It was serious. I mean, real serious."

That year Oiler Willie Frazier and Cowboy Jethro Pugh dribbled each other with their fists and the hardcourt series for something called the Challenge Cup dried up.

remaining standing room tickets early this week for the next installment in the heated rivalry to be played Sunday.

It will be the first time Houston hosts Dallas for a regular season game. Last year, in pre-season, the Oilers nipped the Cowboys 27-24 as at least six fights erupted in the Astrodome seats. Security will be tight Sunday, Oiler officials said.

This summer, Gillmans revamped club featuring some of the rookies who have since come into their own, led Dallas until a blocked punt, fourth-down pass and overtime scramble by Roger Staubach nipped the upset bid.

The Oilers have improved every week and right now they're playing as well as anyone," Staubach said Thursday. "They've got a lot of things going for them now and that makes for a great attitude. They believe they can win."

Lynx, 'Cats Here Today

An exceptional passing game, a virtually immovable defense and Donnie Davis a super-quick halfback with 1,087 yards rushing, make Spearman a slight favorite against Henrietta when the two teams meet in a Class AA bi-district confrontation at 7:30 p.m. today in Pampa's

Harvester Stadium. Spearman (lynx) of 1-AA is 9-1 for the season, while Henrietta of 2-AA is 9-0-1, which gives local fans an opportunity to see area double-A football at its best. The Bearcats are run-oriented with all-state tailback James Marlow

(185) doing most of the ball-handling. Marlow, fullback Dean Fulkner and wingback Daryl Corley, all seniors, make up what has been an explosive backfield this season. Quarterback Kevin Persick also runs well and is a better-than-average punter. Henrietta owns a 26-13 win over Childress, previously state-ranked and the 2-AA champion for four years prior to this season. Davis, who has 1,087 yards on 131 carries is, according to coach Gre Sherwood, "pretty shifty." Along with Davis in the potent Lynx backfield are fullback Mark Fox, halfback Mike Tucker and quarterback Tim Hapre who are also talented runners.

Harper's favorite pass receivers are ends Jeff Beatty and Steve Switzer and Tuck. Beatty has over 350 yards in pass catches and has scored three touchdowns as a junior this season. Harper's favorite pass receivers are ends Jeff Beatty and Steve Switzer and Tuck. Beatty has over 350 yards in pass catches and has scored three touchdowns as a junior this season.

Spearman's best linemen are tackle Dwan Brown (155) and Ned Dvis (160) and center Terrill Evans (160). Linebacker Rober Jones, a 175-pound junior, anchors the defense, which led 1-AA during the year. Jones averaged 21 tackles a game and was all-district a year ago. "I sure am pleased," said Sherwood who coached at Dalhart for eight seasons and made the playoffs four times. "This team's as good as any I've had."

"We're going to have to get after them. I think it'll be a game of whoever plays their game and eliminates mistakes will win. It's real evenly matched. I guess they're a little bigger than we are and we might have a little quickness on them." Spearman will be home team tonight, and Sherwood is pleased the game is being played in Pampa. "Pampa's a good sit, they've been good to us. Coach Lehnich has."

Royal, Switzer Advocate Tests

DALLAS (UPI) — Texas coach Darrell Royal and Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer have talked privately about taking lie detector tests to see if the schools are involved in illegal football recruiting activities and each coach has presented such a proposal to its respective conference officials.

Royal, however, is trying to get Switzer to take a polygraph test immediately and submit to questions about past recruiting. Royal says he would be glad to take the same test at the same time.

Switzer wants all college coaches to take the test under the jurisdiction of the NCAA. "Darrell Royal and I discussed the possibility of a proposal to the NCAA for polygraphs examinations," Switzer said Thursday. "Since my submission to a polygraphic examination last year, I have made a proposal to the Big Eight Conference, as Darrell has told me he had made one to the Southwest Conference about the possibility of polygraphic examinations as a deterrent to illegal recruiting."

Switzer said he also spoke with an NCAA Council member and wrote the NCAA with the suggestion. He said he had been told the test would have to be voluntary and therefore would not be effective since only a few coaches would volunteer.

"This then serves no purpose because it should be administered on a broad scope of the NCAA schools, not just a few," Switzer said. "The NCAA Council member suggested that the Big Eight and Southwest Conferences get together so I suggest that (commissioners) Chuck Neinas of the Big Eight and Cliff Speegle of the Southwest Conference get together to see if both conferences can be leaders in the possibility of this proposal. This is not just for two individual schools like Oklahoma and Texas." Oklahoma is on a two-year probation because of recruiting violations that occurred before Switzer became head coach. Switzer has recommended coaches and assistant coaches submit to lie detector tests at the end of each recruiting season to see if any NCAA regulations have been broken.

"To speed up Coach Switzer's proposal and get it into action, I recommend that the coaches of Oklahoma and Texas submit to a lie detector test based on the recruiting season just passed," Royal said.

Royal's comments were published Thursday by Dallas Times Herald executive sports editor Blackie Sherrod. Royal himself was unavailable for comment Thursday night. "Coach Switzer and I could submit five questions each, which would compile a test of 10 questions to be given to each member of the staffs who is involved in recruiting," Royal said. "It would be okay with me for the test to be given in Oklahoma City by an operator mutually agreed upon."

Hawaiians Burn Sun In Playoff

United Press International
Two-thirds of the Southern California Sun's standout college trio disappeared Thursday night and so did the Sun—from the World Football League playoffs. The Sun signed three of the nation's top collegians last year—running backs James McAlister and Kermit Johnson of UCLA and guard Booker Brown of Southern California. But Thursday night McAlister was out with an injury and Johnson and Brown simply did not show up and the Western Division champion Sun wound up on the short end of a 32-14 decision to the Hawaiians.

The victory sends the Hawaiians against the Birmingham Americans in semifinal playoff action next week. The Florida Blazers, who whipped the Philadelphia Bell, 18-3, Wednesday night, will be at Memphis in the other semifinal. The winners will meet Dec. 5 in the World Bowl for the WFL title.

Randy Johnson passed for two touchdowns and Al Davis ran for two scores to spark the Hawaiians' upset. Sun Coach Tom Fears felt the absence of his three young stars was the difference though some Southern California players felt it was management's fault.

"It sure as hell didn't help any not having Kermit and Booker," Fears said. "But defensive tackle Dave Roller blamed owner Larry Hatfield for the club's demise. The Sun lost three of its last four regular season games after clinching the Western title."

"If management had done their part," said Roller, "we would have gone all the way. You can't win if you can't concentrate and you can't concentrate if you don't get paid." The Blazers haven't been paid in three months but a potential new owner showed up with a check for $1.5 million to pay the team's debts and the players went out and ripped Philadelphia. Ricky Harris returned a fumble 30 yards for one score and Bob Davis threw 54 yards to Greg Latta for another and the Florida defense shut down Bell quarterback King Corcoran.

United Press International
The Baylor Bears will take part in a reconnaissance mission on the Cotton Bowl Saturday and they hope it will turn out a lot better than the one Texas A&M conducted a few weeks ago.

Baylor has its alumni all agog, of course, because the Bears have a good chance of making their first trip ever to the Cotton Bowl Classic and of at least grabbing a share of their first Southwest Conference title in 50 years.

Those aims would be helped along Saturday with a victory over Southern Methodist in Dallas, a game that will take place in the stadium that Baylor wants to revisit New Year's Day.

Texas A&M, currently eighth ranked with a 5-1 conference record, made the same trip two weeks ago and saw its postseason hopes dimmed somewhat by an 18-14 loss to the Mustangs.

The Aggies still can be the conference's Cotton Bowl representative if they whip Texas a week from today, but that subject will not come up for discussion until this weekend's round of contests are over.

Other than the Baylor-SMU game, the conference activity finds Arkansas traveling to Texas Tech (which has a Peach Bowl bid wrapped up), and the forlorn TCU Horned Frogs visiting Rice. Texas and Texas A&M each take the weekend off to rest up for their bout next week.

Even if Baylor, rated 16th with a 4-1 league mark, should lose to the Mustangs in Dallas, the Bears could still share in the conference title and go to the Cotton Bowl if Texas whips Texas A&M and Baylor downs Rice Nov. 30. But Bears coach Grant Teaff is not talking about losing to SMU.

"Our goal is to win the next two games," Teaff said. "Because that is the only way we can assure ourselves the conference championship. The worse we can do if we win the next two is to have the crown, or a piece of it."

"And if we win a piece of it I'm going to put up a fight for the whole thing. They are going to have to make duplicate copies or something. It's staggering to think we can do it, but we can."

Teaff is very big on goals and before the season he and his team set their goal to be a winning season. That has now been accomplished since the Bears are 6-3.

"When you have a goal and you attain it, you have to reevaluate," Teaff said. "We sat down and decided that the championship was now a very realistic goal."

If the Bears do not make the Cotton Bowl, however, they likely be going nowhere since the myriad of bowls are already locked up.

"There would be no bitterness on our part if we didn't get to go to a bowl," Teaff said. "Before the season I told our team that if we had a winning season we would get to go to a bowl. We had so many leading teams on our schedule that I thought if we beat a majority of them someone would want us."

"I would feel badly for the team. But I emphasize I understand the bowl situation. I'm not so naive enough to think it's a fairy tale deal where they pick the little teams that do well."

Eagles Leaving MVC?

DENTON, Tex. (UPI) — The North Texas State Board of Regents said it would decide today if the school, a 16-year member of the Missouri Valley Conference, will remove itself from the league.

The faculty athletic committee voted unanimously Thursday to withdraw. Hayden Fry, athletic director and head football coach who started the withdrawal movement, said the athletic program would benefit if the school was out of the MVC but said he would not comment further until the regents' meeting.

Dr. William Miller, chairman of the faculty athletic committee, said Fry had been authorized to look into future conference affiliation, saying the school was not wedded to independent status for an indefinite length of time.

Moscow gives Peking anniversary blast

By EDWARD NEILAN
Copley News Service

Commentators in the Soviet Union have taken some pretty tough shots at the Peking leadership on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the People's Republic of China (PRC).

The twists and turns of the currently strained relationship between the two Communist powers are of immense importance to world security. It is hard to imagine which would have the most impact around the globe: an all-out war between the Peking dragon and the Moscow bear or the sudden announcement that their feud was over and that they were steadfast allies once again.

Neither one of those possibilities, though remote, is completely out of the question.

The gist of a flurry of recent articles on China in Soviet newspapers, periodicals and journals is that the progress made in the first 10 years of the PRC (when Soviet assistance played a large role in Chinese development) was much greater than it has been in the last 15 years (during which, according to Moscow, the policies of Chairman Mao Tse-tung have turned China away from the Socialist path).

An article by G. Kochin for Novosti Press Agency stated that China marked its 25th anniversary Oct. 1 in a situation where Maoist leaders "are actually siding with imperialism (U.S.) reaction in the struggle against world socialism, are acting as apologists of war and violence."

This sort of behavior and China's policy of rabid anti-Sovietism, Russian leader Leonid I. Brezhnev said in a speech quoted in Pravda Sept. 25, "adds nothing to China's international prestige or to confidence in it on the part of other countries, and from the viewpoint of the common interests of peace, socialism, and the liberation struggles of the peoples, it is regretful and harmful."

Several main themes are repeated in the Soviet analyses of today's China:

1. China's current problems are due to Maoist mistakes and Maoist leaders are propped up by the military.
2. These policies have taken China away from the "correct" Socialist road and Peking has joined with the imperialists (U.S.) whom writer Kochin described as "the bitterest foes of the Chinese people."

3. China's economy and the well-being of individual citizens have not improved since China opened its gate to the West.

4. Moscow wants a resumption of close Sino-Soviet ties, which can only be accomplished on Soviet terms, i.e., removal of Maoists. Several articles recalled the "warm experiences" of Soviet technicians in China.

5. The Soviet Union, though opposed to Maoists, has "profound respect for the great Chinese people and speaks up for their interests too."

What all this implies very strongly is that the Soviet Union is casting itself as the great friend and benefactor of the Chinese people, that the economic and social problems should be blamed on Maoists, and that Moscow wants to be friends again.

Inflation Producing Poachers

By STEWART POWELL
CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The struggle to make ends meet has spread from the supermarket into the forests of northern New England.

Officials report an increasing number of after-dark deer slayers are stalking their game equipped with bright lights, rifles and the fresh advantage of law enforcement agencies weakened by inflation.

Hunting pressure on the deer herds across Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont has increased, with all states reporting increases in the legal deer kill this season. In New Hampshire, illegal night hunting is on the rise. Yet for the sake of economy, the annual mileage allocation for the state's 48 conservation officers has been reduced by the financially troubled Fish and Game Department.

Each man works a 400-square-mile area with 18,000 miles allocated annually instead of the 23,000 needed, officials say.

In Vermont, Chief Game Warden Walter Cabell says there have been no reported increases in poaching, but it's too early to tell whether law enforcement has been impaired by manpower reductions brought by inflation.

The battle to keep meat on the table has resurrected many an ex-hunter. New Hampshire Fish and Game Training Officer James Jones said Wednesday.

"I think maybe we're drawing back hunters who haven't hunted for a few years," he said.

Along with the rise in hunters has come an increase in illegal activity. "There's been an increase in illegal kill," Jones says.

"We attribute that to the fact that the cost of meat is high and that people are having trouble making ends meet. They're turning back to the natural resources to supplement the meat on the table," he said.

He estimates up to 500 deer have been killed illegally or left mortally wounded in the forest. A total of 6,797 deer were taken legally.

Jones says the men are being asked to do more in the face of increased hunting activity, but are being given less resources.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dean Witter & Co. recommends a "selective investment strategy" for common stocks while the market remains in the 600-700 area of the Dow Jones industrial average. The brokerage says it hasn't tried to pick a precise market bottom and recognizes that the Dow could possibly break through the 580 mark. Still, the firm adds, "We would not be overly anxious to invest meaningfully above the 700 area over the next few months."

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith offers the opinion that life insurance issues will continue to build strength and outperform the stock market indicators during the next year. To back up this belief, the company feels life insurance firm profits will advance next year despite generally lower corporate profits and points out that lower interest rates will make life insurance equities competitive once more with other investments.

Argus Research Corp. says downside risk in most cement industry issues is "modest" compared to their longer-term capital appreciation potential. It points out that the stocks are selling at or near their lowest price levels and price-earnings ratios in 20 years, and that most companies are paying dividends providing above-average current yields.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN — Traditionally, the season from Thanksgiving through New Year is busy air travel time. Many people fly to be with relatives or friends for the holidays, students fly home over the winter break, some folks fly off for a skiing vacation or for a vacation in the sun.

Few air travelers will be aware when they purchase their plane tickets that they are taking part in a consumer transaction, however. In fact, though, they are contracting to purchase a product or service from the airline, and as a party to such a contract they have certain rights and responsibilities.

The Civil Aeronautics Board is the federal regulatory agency for all U.S. certificated airlines providing interstate domestic, overseas, or international service, and for foreign airline service within the U.S.

The Texas Aeronautics Commission is the agency dealing with air travel in this State. It certifies all intrastate carriers, in addition to providing airport construction grants and conducting flight safety training programs. The Attorney General's Transportation Division represents the Aeronautics Commission in legal matters.

Both the CAB and TAC, along with our transportation and Consumer Protection Divisions, point out these rights for the air traveler: knowing in advance what service to expect, what the cheapest available fare is, what services are covered by a more expensive fare, what restrictions or conditions apply to a fare, and what extra charges may have to be paid to get certain in-flight services.

Additionally, and very importantly, the consumer has a right to know what the airline's liability is for lost or damaged baggage and for compensation if the airline has oversold its capacity.

The passenger's own responsibilities include making reservations only for those flights he plans to take, abiding by airline regulations, and reporting promptly and accurately any problems.

Possible areas of consumer confusion about air travel include extra charges and "bumping" of passengers.

— Extra Charges. You must pay the fare that's in effect on the day you fly, so if you bought a ticket in advance and fares increased in the time after you purchase, you would have to pay an additional charge before boarding. If prices dropped, however, you would get a refund.

— Bumping. Some airlines oversell their flights, assuming there will be cancellations. If there are none, some passengers with confirmed reservations may be "bumped".

If you have a confirmed reserved seat, if you are denied boarding, and if the airline cannot book you on another flight that will arrive at your destination within two hours of your original flight on domestic trips or four hours for international trips, you may be eligible for denied boarding compensation.

To be eligible, you must have a properly confirmed reservation and you must comply with airline check-in time requirements. If you are bumped, you should stay in the check-in area until you receive a mandatory written explanation of CAB provisions regarding your rights and your compensation (usually in the form of a coupon) equal to the cost of your fare.

The CAB rule requiring such payment does not apply to foreign, intrastate, or Alaska carriers, or to air taxis, however.

The airline must compensate you within 24 hours.

If it does not, you have 90 days to file claim. Don't delay if this happens, since the airline keeps ticket records for only three months.

Of course, it is far better not to get bumped at all. To avoid the problem, get to the airport early to have plenty of time for check in and finding your gate. Be sure to determine the length of time it takes to get to the airport if you are in a strange city.

If you need help or information with a consumer problem involving air travel, consult the Texas Aeronautics Commission or the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division. Future columns will explore other aspects of the airline-consumer relationship.

FATHERS BANNED

ROENNE, Denmark (UPI) — Chief surgeon Gunnar Hey has refused to allow expectant fathers to watch births in his hospital ward.

"We haven't got enough staff to take care of fainting fathers," he told staff members of the Central Hospital.

$58 FOR FIGHT

ROTTERDAM, Holland (UPI) — The city budget for 1975 includes $58 for the purchase of sex magazines. The money is allocated to "the fight against pornography."

"Our officers should be able to see what they are supposed to fight," a city spokesman said.

REPRIEVE GRANTED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army has granted 10 million blackbirds at least a two-week reprieve in its plan to spray them with a chemical that will cause them to freeze to death.

The project has been scheduled since early this month for forest lands near Fort Campbell, Ky., and the Milan Army Ammunition plant in Tennessee. The Pentagon contends huge winter concentrations of the birds there pose a threat to health and to aviation.

But environmentalists have been fighting the project. The Environmental Defense Fund threatened to take the Army to court unless it files an environmental impact statement on the project, addressing among other things the other types of birds which might die in the spraying.

WHITE CUB BORN

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A rare white lion cub has been born at Florida's Lion Country Safari — the third, according to officials, to be born in captivity and the second born here.

Lion Country officials said the cub, named "Sukari" — Swahili for sugar — was reportedly born sometime after the 640-acre wildlife preserve closed on Sunday, Nov. 10, but they withheld announcing its birth while they observed the animal during "the first critical days of its life."

NATIVE MUSIC

Buenos Aires (UPI) — The Argentine government has ordered all of the country's radio stations to devote at least 25 per cent of their music programming to Argentine works.

The Argentine music must include 25 per cent folk music, 25 per cent tangos and 25 per cent works by Argentine composers in any style.

"NEW SHOW"

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A popular "new show" in town is the $2.5 million Benihani Village in the Las Vegas Hilton Hotel. The newest in the Benihani of Tokyo restaurant chain, the village includes five restaurants and four cocktail lounges on three different levels and can accommodate up to 5,000 guests daily.
