

Flag Waving Japanese Welcome President Ford

TOKYO (UPI) — President Ford, protected by the tightest security seen here since World War II, arrived in Japan today on the first leg of his historic Far East tour.

Within 20 minutes after the presidential jetliner Air Force One touched down at 3:27 p.m. (1:27 a.m. EST) at Haneda airport, Ford and his party had been whisked by American helicopter to the official state guest house in central Tokyo.

A 21-gun salute boomed over across Tokyo Bay to welcome the first American President to visit Japan, and hundreds of carefully selected airport guests waved tiny rising sun flags as the smiling, waving Ford walked to his helicopter.

But because of the security, there were no welcoming speeches.

Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger walked along a red carpet through an official receiving line headed by U.S. Ambassador to Japan James D. Hodgson and Japanese Ambassador to the U.S. Takeshi Yasukawa.

Ford, in a dark blue business suit and blue shirt, stayed at the Geihinkan, the recently renovated $33 million guest house.

He appeared somewhat tired after the long flight across the Pacific from Alaska.

The airport was sealed off to air traffic from 30 minutes before the President's arrival until 30 minutes after he had left for the guest house.

At least 25,000 police were mobilized in Tokyo, including 8,500 at the airport, to protect Ford and his party.

The massive security was ordered because of the fear of anti-American and anti-government demonstrations by leftists and extremists.

Rioting here in 1960 caused the cancellation of a visit to Japan by the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Ford, who described his journey as "a quest for peace" prior to leaving the continental United States, wore no overcoat as he stepped off his plane under sunny, partially cloudy skies with temperatures in the high 60s.

Neither Emperor Hirohito nor Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka was at the airport and Ford had no official functions scheduled for Monday night after the nearly 20-hour flight which began Sunday in Washington.

On Tuesday, the President meets the Emperor, 124th Japanese sovereign in a line founded 2,634 years ago, and also will confer with Tanaka, who is fighting a battle for his political life because of allegations of corruption.

Tanaka ordered his cabinet Monday to ensure "perfect security" for Ford and his party. The national police were mobilizing a force of 160,000 security men across the country for the five-day visit.

Ford's journey will take him to the central Japanese cities of Kyoto and Osaka before he departs Friday for an overnight visit to Seoul.

Then the President travels to the Soviet Siberian port of Vladivostok for a summit conference with Soviet Communist party Chief Leonid Brezhnev.

Hours before Ford's plane touched down, police closed the airport to all but authorized visitors.

Battleship-grey riot vehicles with water cannon and other police trucks and cars were positioned along a 10-mile expressway leading to Haneda.

The Japanese Government at midday issued a statement welcoming Ford and called the trip "an epoch-making event in more than a century of friendly relations between the United States and Japan."

"The President's visit is part of a deepening dialogue between the two nations and is an event we should welcome," the statement said.

"Together with the (Japanese) people we heartily welcome the visit of President Ford as it is a major milestone in further strengthening relations between Japan and the United States."

"I would rather travel thousands of miles for peace than take a single step toward war," Ford told 200 well-wishers who gathered on the White House lawn in a cold drizzle Sunday morning to say goodbye.

They included ambassadors from the countries he will visit, cabinet members, congressional leaders and two Boy Scout troops.

IRS Compiled Nixon Enemies List

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Previously secret documents show the Internal Revenue Service compiled dossiers on 11,000 potential Nixon White House enemies, according to a Ralph Nader-sponsored research group.

It was not known whether the government has destroyed the documents.

The Public Citizens' Tax Research Reform Group disclosed Sunday it had obtained 41 IRS files on the subject after a year of trying, including the threat of a lawsuit against the federal tax agency.

The Ralph Nader-affiliated group circulated copies of some of the documents to support its conclusion that there were 3,000 groups and 8,000 organizations targeted for top-secret investigations by the IRS under a plan instigated in 1969 by the Nixon White House.

It released a partial list of organizations targeted for special investigation by the IRS between 1969 and 1973, including the National Council of Churches, Americans for Democratic Action, the John Birch Society, the Congress of Racial Equality, the United Klans of America, Inc., the Founding Church of Scientology and the Urban League.

Former White House counsel John W. Dean III first disclosed the existence of a politically motivated IRS investigative effort when he testified before the Senate Watergate committee in 1973.

IRS Commissioner Donald Alexander subsequently abolished the "Special Services Staff" that conducted the controversial investigations, and one of the IRS documents said the questionable files would be destroyed.

The research group said the IRS' own audits determined that all but 22 per cent of the 11,458 intelligence files should be destroyed, and the group tried to find out whether they had been.

In a Nov. 8, 1974, response to a recent tax group inquiry as to the disposition of the old Special Services Staff files, the Justice Department's chief litigation attorney stated that "it would be inappropriate to reply to this request in the context of the present action," the tax group said in a statement.

Quoting from the IRS memos, it said "the task force was to be an 'intelligence gathering' operation that extended beyond tax information."

A memo to IRS regional commissioners, dated July 14, 1969, and signed by Assistant Commissioner D.W. Bacon, instructed field points to submit "information which will give us an overall picture of the organization, its motives, its activities, its attitude, its size and its impact on the general public."

This memo, a copy of which was circulated to the press, transmitted a list of 55 organizations to be targeted for such reporting.

Israelis Bombard More Targets

United Press International Israeli gunboats bombarded Palestinian targets along the Lebanese coast today, but diplomatic intervention by the superpowers eased tensions on the Golan Heights.

Israel vowed to keep its mobilized troops on war alert until Syria agrees to let U.N. truce observers keep patrolling the buffer zone between the opposing armies on the Golan Heights.

The Israeli command said it had also foiled a plan by Arab guerrilla frogmen to infiltrate Israel with rafts laden with explosives.

The command said one guerrilla was killed and another captured Sunday when an Israeli patrol intercepted the guerrillas on the beach near the Rosh Hanikra checkpoint on the Israeli-Lebanese frontier. It said there were no Israeli casualties in the ensuing battle.

A guerrilla spokesman in Beirut said eight Israeli gunboats fired cannon and machine guns for two hours early today against Al Rashidey, one of the largest Palestinian refugee camps in Lebanon.

He said Arab guerrillas and Lebanese soldiers fired back, but gave no estimate of losses. The coastal camp, 47 miles south of Beirut.

houses about 30,000 refugees.

A military spokesman in Tel Aviv said Israeli gunboats raided a Palestinian guerrilla sea base just south of the camp.

The spokesman said all vessels returned safely after what he called "good hits." Israel has attacked Palestinian targets in Lebanon on a daily basis for the past week.

The weekend tension along the Golan front followed reports of a partial Israeli mobilization and a Syrian military alert.

Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam promised Saturday to abide by the cease-fire, but threatened to retaliate "firmly and strongly" against any Israeli attack.

Syrian President Hafez Assad conferred over the weekend with Soviet Ambassador Nouredin Mohieddinov who delivered an urgent message from Soviet Communist leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Government sources in Damascus said the message was the outcome of diplomatic consultations between the Soviet Union and the United States.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat also exchanged messages with Brezhnev and President Ford. Cairo government sources said, and communicated with Assad.

Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi Sunday told the U.S. ambassador that Egypt "takes a very serious view of Israeli troop movements on the frontlines with Syria."

Police Check Burglary Of Drug Store

Pampa Police are looking for three persons wanted for questioning in connection with a $500 drug robbery of Heard and Jones Sunday morning.

Pampa Police detective J.J. Ryzman said early today workmen in the area of the store heard glass breaking between 10:30 and 11 a.m. Sunday.

Shortly afterward, two teenage white males were seen walking south in the alley behind the business and a white male, 30-35 years of age, wearing a suit and tie and driving a faded yellow station wagon was observed pulling from the alley, northbound.

Workmen said one of the youths wore a short sleeve pullover shirt with writing or figures across the back.

Police said today persons in the area may have seen the three. Anyone with information concerning the trio should contact Detective Ryzman at the police department.

The burglary was discovered by a Pampa resident shortly after 3 p.m. Sunday. Police arrived at the building and conducted a search of the area. No one was inside the building during investigation.

Officers said a panel had been broken from a back door and the burglar or burglars apparently went directly to a cabinet containing hard drugs. A lock was pried from the cabinet and drugs including Amytal, Mebutol, Seconal and Dexedrine were taken.

UMW Official's Death Halts Talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United Mine Workers bargaining council resumes further consideration of a proposed new contract later this week following a break to attend funeral services for a slain union leader.

Officials of the striking miners suspended deliberations on the tentative three-year coal industry contract Saturday after Samuel Littlefield, president of UMW District 20, was fatally shot during a robbery attempt at his motel.

UMW officials said the murder was not related to the contract talks.

Littlefield, 54, was shot to death Friday evening just minutes after discussions on the proposed pact adjourned. Memorial services will be held today in his home town of Bessemer, Ala.

The remaining 37 council members and other top mine union officials were expected to attend before returning to Washington to resume deliberations Tuesday.

The council began consideration of the proposed contract, the first step in the union's lengthy ratification process, Thursday. But their review had been going slower than expected even before the shooting. The unexpected

Pythians, Sisters Conduct Annual Roll Call Meeting

Pampa Lodge No. 480 and Pythian Temple No. 41 held their annual roll call Saturday evening at the Pythian Hall.

Roy E. Avery, administrator of the Texas Pythian Children Home at Weatherford, was the guest speaker.

Avery, who came to the Pythian Home in August, 1973, was administrator for the Christian Education for the Blind at Fort Worth.

He reported on several changes at the Home. He has set up a craft shop for the girls, has installed an amateur radio station for the students, and has installed a 3-night week study hall for the students who need help in their school work.

He also plans for a bigger garden next year. With about 30 head of beef cattle, he hopes to increase it to 75. The home also has a herd of about 75 hogs, a good producing dairy herd, and with the donation of two Arabian mares and with help from a nearby rancher, the children hope to start a herd of Arabian horses.

Plans are on the agenda to change the home from a dormitory type of home to the cottage style.

City Sending Notices About Blind Corners

City Manager Mack Wofford said today the city has begun sending notices to property owners asking for cooperation in removal of obstacles obstructing the view of motorists at blind corners.

In a recent proclamation designating November as Traffic Safety Month in Pampa, Mayor R.D. Wilkerson asked citizens to help make the city streets safe.

A field crew of city workers has listed more than 120 street intersections as "blind corners" and the campaign to have them cleared now is in progress.

City Manager Wofford said a majority of the blind corners are caused by movable objects such as parked trucks and passenger cars.

Trees and shrubs listed as blocking view of approaching motorists, the city manager stated, will be removed free of charge by the city if property owners will call City Hall and make the request.

Wofford said the city will try all means to have citizen cooperation before taking any action under a city ordinance that covers "blind corner" violations.

Court Appointed Doctors To Study Nixon's Health

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Richard Nixon is ready to be examined by three court-appointed physicians to determine whether he is physically able to testify in the Watergate cover-up trial, a spokesman says.

A Nixon spokesman said this weekend the former president has no objection to undergoing an examination by a team of doctors appointed by U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica.

"There's never been any question about that," the spokesman said. "Of course, they (the doctors) are welcome to examine him."

Nixon's attorney, Herbert J. Miller, told Sirica Friday he would fly to Nixon's oceanside villa during the weekend to confer with his client about the exam, and would try to have a response by Tuesday.

The spokesman said Miller talked with Nixon by telephone.

Watergate defendants in Washington contend Nixon's testimony is indispensable to their cases. The three-doctor team was appointed last week at the request of attorneys for former presidential aide John D. Ehrlichman.

Dr. Charles A. Hufnagel, one of the court-appointed doctors, told Sirica he would not proceed with examination until there is assurance that Nixon consented to it.

Doctors who treated the former president during a 23-day stay at Long Beach Memorial hospital said last week that the exam could prove stressful and raise Nixon's blood pressure.

Nixon entered the hospital Oct. 23 for treatment of a painful phlebitis condition. He underwent surgery several days later, and lapsed into shock, which placed him on the critical list for a week.

In the operation a clip was placed on a vein above a blood clot in Nixon's left thigh to prevent it from traveling to the heart or lungs.

Nixon then suffered from post-operative complications, including a touch of pneumonia and the initial collapse of some tissue cells in the right lung.

Dr. John Lungren, Nixon's personal physician, said the former chief executive also suffered from "labile hypertension," or fluctuating blood pressure which could shoot up in stressful situations.

Lungren said Nixon would spend most of his time in a hospital bed at his estate and will wear a support stocking on his left leg.

He added that the former president would remain under "watchful observation" during his recuperation.

Lungren said it would be several months before Nixon would be well enough to give testimony, either in person or by deposition, at the trial, which is expected to be over by Christmas.

'Rocky' And The Mural He Effaced

By GARRY WILLS
Nelson Rockefeller's return to the national scene prompts me to take a look back - on the first controversy that made him a public figure. The episode is worth recalling, if for no other reason, than because it inspired one of the better satiric poems of our time, E. B. White's "I Paint What I See."

In 1932 young Rockefeller took over the building of Rockefeller Center. It was depression item, and the rising towers represented a great risk and show of confidence on his part. To add to the swashbuckling air of it all, he indulged his love for modern art and commissioned a bright mural from Diego Rivera. Young Nelson corresponded in detail on the brilliance in the colors that would be allowed.

Rivera went to work on the mural in the spring of 1933. Nelson gave the project a great deal of publicity, and dispensed tickets for artist and critics to enter a viewing area and watch the great man at work. Nelson even came himself, and got a good look at a new face in the design, one never mentioned in the early correspondence.

White's poem makes Nelson ask innocently: "Is it anyone's head who we know at all? A Rensselaer of a Saltonstall?" The head, it turned out, was that of Lenin - which should have come as no great surprise. Rivera was an outspoken Marxist. Rockefeller had presumed he could buy talent on any market. Businessmen may not like Bolsheviks, but they like to trade with anyone, even the devil.

Rockefeller wrote a very tactful letter to Rivera, praising his "trilling mural," and saying he did not want to interfere with an artist's work, but politely demanding that he "substitute the face of some unknown man where Lenin's face now appears." This became in White's poem: "And though you art I dislike to hamper, I owe a little to God and Gramper."

Rivera offered to make some concessions, but not to remove Lenin: "I'll take out a couple of people drinking - and put in a picture of Abraham Lincoln."

So, since Rivera would not remove Lenin, Nelson removed the whole mural, having it chipped off the wall by his workmen. This was not an act like book burning since there are other copies of most books that get burned. This was the destruction of a unique work by the artist's own hand, and the gravity of the act is increased by the fact that Nelson sincerely does love art and tries, in most cases to foster and preserve it, not destroy.

The episode was used, later on, by Rockefeller's critics on the right because he dealt with a Marxist in the first place, and by those on the left to show that he repressed free thought. But what it really shows is the presumption of wealth on a scale known that whatever it cannot buy it can at least destroy.

Looking around New York, a Rockefeller even that young could almost paraphrase Lyndon Johnson's later comment and say: "Son, they're all my walls." It would be nice to think there are some walls Mr. Rockefeller can neither buy nor rent, to decorate or deface - the walls of the White House, for instance.

ON NIXON TAX RETURNS IRS Has New Fraud Evidence

By CLARK MOLLENHOFF
WASHINGTON, D. C. - The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) is considering formal demands on Richard Nixon for more than $350,000 in back taxes and civil fraud penalties for the years 1969 through 1973.

The new demands are a result of new evidence that fraud was involved in the preparation of the former president's federal income tax returns in connection with the backdating of a deed for Nixon's vice-presidential papers which were given to the National Archives. Nixon claimed tax deductions totaling $576,000 on this gift.

Although the gift was disallowed by the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Service Taxation and the IRS last April, the firm evidence of fraud was not available until a few days ago when Edward L. Morgan entered a plea of guilty to a charge of criminal conspiracy to backdate the deed and to conceal the fraud.

Morgan, a former deputy counsel to President Nixon, entered the plea of guilty and has agreed to testify against his co-conspirators in the more than four-year conspiracy of concealment.

Now that Morgan has admitted the fraud and is ready to implicate unnamed co-conspirators in the fraud, the civil fraud penalties can be assessed by IRS.

The civil fraud penalties can be applied even though there may be no direct evidence that Nixon new of the frauds which Morgan admits were perpetrated in connection with Mr. Nixon's tax returns.

Since the law requires that Nixon sign the returns as the taxpayer, he is responsible for the accuracy on those returns and is likewise responsible for any civil frauds that may have been committed by Morgan or any other agents in the preparation for the return. According to Treasury Department sources, Nixon has not yet paid a deficiency of about $148,000 for 1969. This deficiency is beyond the three-year statute of limitations which applies unless fraud is involved, and fraud had not been firmly established last April when Nixon started to make his settlement with the IRS on the basis of "negligence" penalties of 5 percent.

In addition to formalizing the demand for the $148,000 for 1969, the IRS is considering imposing 50 percent fraud penalties on tax deficiencies of about $440,000 for the years 1969 through 1972. These penalties would total approximately $220,000.

These payments are in addition to the amounts Mr. Nixon has paid since last April in taxes, interest and negligence penalties for the years 1970, 1971, and 1972.

President Ford's full and unconditional pardon relieves the former president from any criminal liabilities in connection with the filing of fraudulent federal income tax returns during the period he was in office, but it does not relieve him of the responsibility to pay civil fraud penalties.

Once the IRS makes a formal judgment that Nixon has the obligation to pay taxes for 1969 as well as the civil fraud penalties on the basis of admissions of fraud by Morgan, Nixon and his lawyers will be faced with a dilemma.

If he decides to contest the claims of back taxes and civil fraud penalties, he must make affidavits or give depositions, or otherwise testify under oath that he had no knowledge of the frauds committed by Morgan and other co-conspirators.

If he testifies inaccurately under oath, the former president will be risking prosecution for perjury or giving false information to IRS agents, which would not be covered by the pardon covering only the period up to Aug. 9, 1974.

If he chooses not to take that risk, Nixon will undoubtedly have to sell his Key Biscayne home or his San Clemente home. At the time he paid his tax bill last June, a White House spokesman said that it almost wiped out Nixon's personal savings and indicated that it had required that the former president obtain a loan.

The plea of guilty by Morgan, the 36-year-old former White House lawyer, has created a whole new crisis for the crisis-prone former president and for many of those who were involved in the pattern of false statements and misrepresentations that constituted the Nixon White House defense against federal tax fraud.

Morgan, according to the information filed in district court, says his unnamed fellow conspirators "well knew" the Nixon vice-presidential papers were not given to the archives until April, 1970, and engaged in a backdating of the deed to make it appear that the gift had taken place in April, 1969 - prior to the July, 1969, deadline permitting such deductions.

Special prosecutor Henry S. Ruth Jr. has not indicated whether he intends to use Morgan's testimony in connection with prosecution of others for criminal fraud or whether he will use it only in connection with the civil tax frauds involving Nixon's taxes.

In either case, it creates a new crisis for Nixon that could extend far beyond United States District Judge John Sirica's court.

BATTIN' AROUND EPA Should Allow Us Freedom In Compliance

By C.R. BATTEN

"It is heartening indeed that the Environmental Protection Agency has ruled the technology known as 'scrubbing' makes possible the use of high-sulphur coal in generating electricity without harm to the environment," said the editorial in the evening newspaper.

A few minutes later, in Forbes magazine, I read, "Flue gas desulfurization has not been demonstrated to be a method of sulfur dioxide control presently available for implementation by Electric Utilities." The words were on a tombstone pictured in a full-page advertisement.

In Business Week, the man responsible for that advertisement, said, "...the government tells us that the high sulfur coal that we can mine in the East we can't burn, and low-sulfur coal that we can burn from the West we can't mine. We have the means in our own country to take care of the energy crisis if we only wake up." He is Donald C. Cook, chairman, American Electric Power Company (AEP).

AEP owns seven major utilities that operate in Appalachia and in the Midwest - all connected in one computer-controlled system. It generates more electricity than any other private utility, most of it from coal-fired plants. It burns an average of only 9,256 Btu of coal to generate one kilowatt-hour of electricity, compared with the national average of 10,429 Btu. AEP has never had a power shortage, and has among the lowest rates of any private utility.

"Business Week" (Oct. 26) reports that AEP's record of strip mine reclamation in Ohio goes back 30 years, and that the company built cooling towers years ago to avoid thermal pollution. One fifth of the company's total assets are invested in environmental controls. The most advanced electronic precipitators are being installed in all its major plants at a cost of $500 million.

But electronic precipitators remove only the particulates from the smokestacks, and do nothing to remove the sulfur oxides. For that, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has prescribed "stack gas scrubbers."

Cook and his AEP do not believe that scrubbers will work, and has decided to stand up and fight back. He has launched an advertising campaign to tell his story, and has filed several lawsuits challenging EPA's enforcement of the Clean Air Act. According to "Business Week", he calls the scrubbers "monstrous contraptions", and insists they do not work and are not needed.

The words quoted in his ad in "Forbes" are from a 417-page report by the hearing examiners for the Environmental Protection Agency of Ohio, which "covered every major scrubber test the Environmental Protection Agency has ever bragged about," and shows they "failed to demonstrate the degree of reliability necessary for electric utility use." Cook believes that EPA rules are needlessly discouraging the use of coal and are raising electricity rates. He believes it is his duty to protest.

I am not prepared to say who is right - Cook or the EPA. But the EPA has no more divine power to foresee the future than the engineers of AEP.

If Cook is right, and his company is able to develop some other method of eliminating the sulfur dioxides, then he will have saved his company and its stockholders the expense of installing the gas scrubbers.

DEAR ABBY: I work in the kitchen of a restaurant and the law says all WOMEN have to wear hairnets.

Well, we have some men working in the kitchen whose hair is a lot longer than some of the women's and there's no law that makes THEM wear hairnets. I don't think that's fair. I mentioned this to the boss and he just laughed, but I don't think it is any laughing matter. What do you think? MADDIE

DEAR MADDIE: I think the hairnet law should apply to all professional food handlers with long hair.

DEAR ABBY: Thank God for you. You're the only one I can turn to for help.

My wife and I are separated and will be divorced as soon as we can get the money together. We are still friends. She thinks she is pregnant. She's been seeing my brother, and she says the odds are that it's his baby. There is a slim chance, however, that it's mine. No one knows she's pregnant but she and I. If the baby is mine, I will accept the responsibility and support it as I do our other children. But if it's my brother's, I intend to disown it.

Is there any way to tell whose baby it is after it's born? If there is no way to tell for sure, I want to do what's best for the baby. What do you suggest? IN DOUBT

DEAR IN: Blood tests after the baby is born will not determine who the baby's father IS - only who the baby's father ISN'T. Since you and your wife are still married, in the case of doubtful paternity, it would be wise to accept the child as your own.

DEAR ABBY: I need your help to get my wife back. I never realized how much I loved her until I lost her.

Maybe you heard about the anthrax epidemic that hit the cattle in Texas this summer, Abby. I was right in the middle of it. I was near broke and desperate to sell a herd before my section of the state was quarantined. My wife told me it was wrong to sell cattle without waiting to find out if they had anthrax.

I knew she was right, but I needed the money. I told her I was going to sell anyway, and she stood right up to me and said she'd call the authorities if I moved one steer off my land.

That's when I hit her, Abby. I knocked her down on the kitchen floor. I could have cut off my hand the minute it happened, but like a stubborn fool I walked out of the house and left her laying there. I guess I must have walked around for an hour talking to myself. When I came back I was ready to get down on my knees, beg her to forgive me, and promise not to deal the steers, but she was gone. I called her relatives. Nobody knew where she was, or else they wouldn't tell me.

Abby, I can't live without that woman. I've loved her since she was 16. That was the only time I ever raised my hand to her in the 27 years we've been married. She reads your column every day, so maybe she'll read this, wherever she is. Ask her to come back home, Abby?

DUNAGIN'S PEOPLE

"WE CAN BEGIN OUR THRIFT PROGRAM BY RECYCLING THESE REPORTS FROM MY ECONOMIC ADVISORS."

A GROWING PROBLEM

Vandalism Hiking Schools' Operation Costs

A recent fire destroyed the John J. Williams school in Boston. Though official reports are as yet incomplete, authorities believe vandals were responsible for the blaze.

Last spring, three youths, wielding fire axes, broke into Rex Putnam High School in the Portland, Ore. suburbs, broke up desks and other materials, pushed a piano through a soundproof glass partition and destroyed numerous musical instruments, including the piano, which fell through the floor of the school. The tab for the night's vandalism was $25,000.

When apprehended later, the youths told police they had gone on the destructive rampage "because we didn't have anything else to do."

Each year, millions of taxpayers' dollars which should be spent to educate taxpayers' children have been used by reluctant and financially strapped school districts to pay for damage caused by vandalism and for security programs aimed at curbing vandalism.

Nationally, authorities say, school crime costs $10.87 per pupil—about as much as books. While the figure includes other crimes, a substantial portion represents vandalism.

"Every night, somewhere within the city, vandalism occurs," said Richard Green, chief of security for the Los Angeles Unified School District.

The district has an annual budget of $3.9 million for security and its security department is the third largest law enforcement agency in the county, trailing only the Los Angeles city police and county sheriff's department in manpower.

"Vandalism causes a tremendous loss," Green said. "It's a growing problem. It does something to the atmosphere around schools that is not conducive to education."

The district presently is spending millions of dollars to equip schools with alarm systems to ward off vandals.

Thus far, 175 schools have been equipped with alarms and Green says they have cut vandalism by 95 percent.

The district also uses a dog patrol, with five agents and five dogs patrolling vandalism hot spots, and there is a "parent patrol," mainly for reporting vandalism.

In Houston, Tex., where vandalism cost more than $351,000 last year, alarms and a large security force also are the prime tools of fighting vandalism.

The district this year has allocated $697,000 for security services for the present school year and is installing a new computer system for their central alarm system. The computer hookup will cost $65,000.

The Houston security service presently has 49 officers, all unarmed, and intends to hire 12 more to man a six-car night patrol and supplement the present night force of three security officers and a supervisor.

The security service is urging the state legislature to amend the penal code to allow school security officers to carry firearms.

Larry Burton, assistant superintendent for security services, said the capture rate of vandals is not very good and that when they are caught, they usually are juveniles, who get a lecture and are turned over to their parents.

"Restitution for damages is very poor," Burton said. Burton said that in addition to present security measures, he is recommending that the school board put small apartments in schools with high vandalism rates and allow security officers and their wives—or custodial workers and their wives—to live there.

The Elk Grove, Calif., school system already has live-in help. The district in 1969 started allowing one family to live in a house trailer at each school. The family provides the trailer and agrees "to exercise a watchful eye," says Merle Custer, a district spokesman.

In exchange, the school district provides a sewer, plus water and a utilities hook-up. The program costs $4,000 per site, but has cut vandalism by 87 percent.

While most school systems—including those in Chicago, Boston and Atlanta, rely on alarms and security systems and a few have people on the grounds virtually around the clock, some districts take a different approach.

Associate San Francisco School Supt. Milton Reiterman calls a city program to fight vandalism through improved community relations "the greening of the school yards."

Previously, Reiterman said, schoolyard gates were locked at night and during weekends. Now they are left open and people are allowed to use the facilities when classes are not in session.

"If people are invited to use the facilities, less damage occurs than when they are locked out," Reiterman said.

He said vandalism has decreased by 30 percent.

"The big thing is attitude. It's not done with dogs, electronic devices, locks or barbed wire. There's not a lock or an alarm that a kid with an exploring mind can't deactivate," he said.

Salt Lake City also has a somewhat unorthodox approach toward curbing vandalism.

The district has decentralized vandalism replacement funds and has a program under which money normally earmarked to pay for vandal-inflicted damage is given directly to each school's student body.

"If vandalism decreases, the students can spend the money any way they like," said Salt Lake School Supt. Don Thomas.

"We've found that people surveillance is much more effective than electronic surveillance. Having the money give the students an incentive for cutting down on vandalism by observing their own school."

Kissinger Sees Chances For New Missile Treaty

ABOARD AIR FORCE ONE (UPI)—Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger believes chances are better than even that a 10-year treaty limiting offensive and defensive missiles will be signed by the United States and Soviet Union next year.

Kissinger said President Ford's meeting with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev in Vladivostok next weekend could make progress "maybe on numbers, maybe on the approach" of a new strategic arms agreement.

"I think there is a slightly better than even chance of an agreement in 1975," Kissinger told reporters aboard Air Force One on the first leg of Ford's trip to Japan, South Korea and the Soviet summit meeting.

The new strategic arms limitation treaty, SALT II, would be more comprehensive than the SALT I interim agreement signed in Moscow in 1972.

U.S. officials hope it will head off new and costly escalations of the nuclear arms race and to continue the era of detente.

Besides the SALT negotiations, Kissinger said, Ford and Brezhnev will discuss the Middle East situation and Soviet desires for a European Security Conference.

Kissinger is known to believe chances for a U.S.-Soviet arms agreement are improved by the fact that the Watergate scandal is now largely a thing of the past.

Soviet officials are believed to have been leery about reaching any new SALT agreement with Richard M. Nixon in Moscow last summer.

The Russians are thought to view Ford now as a potential six-year man in the White House, whereas they had rightly feared that Nixon was serving his last weeks as President when they saw him last summer.

Kissinger said Ford is well prepared for his first meeting with Brezhnev.

"I have spent many hours with President Ford," Kissinger said. "I think he's tough. I think he's steady and totally unflappable on foreign policy. And he's really interested in it."

"The President and Brezhnev between them have the capacity to annihilate humanity. They may be confronting each other on a (future) crisis, so it is important they understand each other. They have the opportunity to prevent crisis and to promote peace."

Kissinger said U.S. relationships with Japan are now excellent and "what we are trying to create is a basis for elaboration of the existing relationship."

He said to the Japanese the important thing is the symbolism of the first visit by an American chief executive and the meeting between Ford and Emperor Hirohito.

The important thing to the United States, he said, is the continued stability in the Pacific and in the world that can result from good U.S. relations with Japan.

The overnight stop in South Korea, officials say, was almost mandatory because the South Koreans would have felt snubbed if the President failed to visit their country while in that part of the world.

Today's natives are successful—and philosophically-oriented.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Your community needs all the help it can get. Volunteer! You meet people outside of your circle. Bring friends to share the fun—and the expenses.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: It's a good time to organize your job and set up systems for more productivity. Improvements and added earning power are indicated.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Get professional guidance when you need it. You've heard the same advice from family and friends so many times that you've lost track of what it really means.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: You can persuade all concerned to accept any reasonable plan that builds future security. That little extra energy at work pays dividends.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Keep your eyes and mind open for opportunity. There's even more going on all around that you had noticed or can promote into action. Romantic appeal is high.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Consolidate current schemes; come to terms with close associates to begin new projects. Leave nothing important open for doubt. Celebrate tonight.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: A touch of fantasy does wonders to your handling of ordinary and creative experiments. Brief journeys let you see others in their own environment.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Cooperation in business deals depends upon your experience and presentation. Search for even deeper meanings; routines contain a chance for growth and wisdom.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Check signals with those you must work with in coming days or weeks. Seek expert evaluations of possessions and problems. Complete change of scene for evening is desirable.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Whatever has been overlooked or delayed should be given priority. Pursue uncomplicated matters that do not cause squawks. Take care of health.

GILBERT N. AMELIO K&F To Hear Famed Artist

Gilbert Neil Amelio, a noted sculptor and former Air Force officer, will be the speaker for Top O' Texas Knife and Fork Club when a meeting is conducted Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Starlight Room of Coronado Inn.

Sculpturing the head of Christ while he speaks, Amelio shares with the audience his philosophy of life, his exciting adventures beginning the day he took clay in hand, his skill in sculpturing and speaking, and his belief that only through a strong sense of beauty can one find happiness.

He touches upon all these facets while he speaks and models in clay.

Amelio has been acclaimed by more than 800 audiences from coast to coast and border to border. One critic reported it was a "gripping experience." Another called it "deeply moving."

Cadets at the Air Force Academy, West Point and Annapolis reported an increase in personal strength as a result of Amelio's presentation.

The presentation of "Brigadoon" is an expensive undertaking. Almost $3,000 in expenditures will be necessary to complete the finished product.
The auditorium rental alone amounts to $650; royalties on the script and music, another $700; drops, sets and props, $400; costume rentals for main characters only, $375, and pit band and professionals' service, $450.
Five drops, approximately 21 feet by 50 feet, will be manipulated by the technical crew as well as sets constructed by choir students supervised by Austin Ruddick, vocational education instructor.
"We're having a professional help us build the sets the FIRST time this year," said John Wolcikowski, choir director, producer, and designer for the dramatic musical.
The work goes on. The cast, crew and sets will be moving into M.K. Brown for final rehearsals and set-up early this week. Without a setting, the characters have lost their charisma.
The working crew is the backbone of the production; the icing on the cake, and foundation of the show.
Technical staff in charge of special effects include those in charge of props: Tonya Organ, head; Pam Thomas, assistant; Dicky McGahen, Irene Haesle, Felecia Lemons, Ronald Chisum, Nancy New-Ronnie Boyd and Kathy Anderson.
Set crew is headed by George Hendrick, with Rody Spoonemore, Karl Collier, Adam Akst, Rodgers Hoskins, Becky Snell, Deborah Kyle, Selena Scoggin, Michele Savage and Charla Poik assisting.
Special lighting will be under direction of Tony Scoggin and Kenneth Hopson.
State managers are George Hendrick and Kayla Waterbury.

WHITE DEER — Curtain time for "Noah," a three-act comedy-drama, is 8 p.m. today at White Deer High School auditorium.
Thespians of the school have undertaken the presentation, labeled suitable for college or little theater actors in what James Hinkley, director and advisor, calls a tremendous challenge for high school players.
"Noah" is a comedy contrast between antique costumes and modern slang. The informality and humorous script describes what might have happened on the famous voyage.
"Noah," during its run on Broadway, was called "priceless and courageous" production.
Written by Andre Obey.

The English script was composed by Arthur Wilmurt.
The leading roll in the White Deer presentation will be created by Ted Powers as Noah. His wife, called Mama, will be portrayed by Jan Davis. Caramanlis Elected President Of Greece

ATHENS (UPI) — A spokesman for Premier Constantine Caramanlis, runaway victor in Greece's first free elections in a decade, said today a new Greek cabinet will be sworn in Wednesday.

Caramanlis, most pro-American of the candidates, won the biggest popular vote in any elections in modern Greek history. The spokesman said he would start consultations, for forming a new cabinet later today.

The Interior Ministry announced that with 95 per cent of the vote counted, Caramanlis' New Democracy party polled 54.2 of the popular vote and will control 213 seats in the 300-member parliament.

The ministry said the Center Union, with 20.2 per cent of the vote, was getting 65 seats. The Panhellenic Socialists Movement of U.S.-educated politician, Andrea Papandreou received 13.2 per cent of the vote and was expected to take 12 seats. The Communist coalition, United Left, polled 9 per cent and won 10 seats.

Caramanlis' sweeping victory, even in the large urban centers of Athens, Piraeus and Salonica, prevented such popular artists as Melina Mercouri and Mikis Theodorakis from winning seats.

Both artists were running in the working class neighborhoods of the port of Piraeus. Composer Theodorakis was a candidate for the United Left while the actress of "Never on Sunday" fame ran on the PASOK ticket.

"This was a national election. The people ignored partisan considerations and gave their votes a national character," Theodorakis said.

Former Foreign Minister George Mavros, leader of the Center Union, said his party "will continue the struggle for the completion of democracy."

PASOK said in an announcement to newsmen, "the results did not meet our expectations but they show that a considerable portion of the people has decided to go forward to a Socialist transformation of the country."

Harilaos Florakis, first secretary of the Greek Communist party, said, "the elections proved that the left was able to withstand the test and to win its first post-junta victory."

Caramanlis appealed for the support of every Greek in dealing with the nation's problems.

"Because the problems of the nation are many and crucial, victors and vanquished alike, respecting the people's decision and the rules of democracy, must assist in the calm development of our national life," he said.

The final vote count was expected to be released later today, but advance official estimates indicated Caramanlis' party received 55 per cent of the ballots in the general election.

The Center Union-New Forces party, which has ruled in coalition with the New Democrats since Caramanlis returned from self-imposed exile four months ago, was expected to receive about 20 per cent.

The anti-American Panhellenic Socialist Movement, led by Andreas Papandreou, a former Berkeley economics professor, was expected to pick up 13 per cent of the ballots.

The other major election participant, the United Left, a left-wing coalition including the Communists, was likely to wind up with 8 per cent of the vote.

As the Caramanlis landslide became certain, supporters gathered outside his party headquarters in downtown Athens, singing and carrying lighted candles.

The four-time premier took over the government last August, returning to Greece from 11 years of exile when the military junta collapsed during the Cyprus crisis.

In another key issue, Caramanlis has promised to hold a referendum Dec. 8 on the possible return of exiled King Constantine.

Eva's Body Returned Home

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Thousands of Argentina's "shirtless ones" turned out to welcome her home, tossing flowers at the flag-draped coffin and shouting the old cry, "Evita, Evita."

The body of Eva Peron, shipped secretly overseas more than 19 years ago by Argentina's generals, returned home Sunday to a land deeply divided by political strife.

The body of the fiery blonde idol of Argentina's masses joined her late husband, Juan Domingo Peron, in a shrine for out-standing historical figures.

Peron, who returned from 18 years of exile last year to win an overwhelming third term as president, died on July 1 at the age of 78.

President Maria Estela Peron, the late leader's 43-yearold widow and political heir, choked back tears as she presided at a brief, solemn airport ceremony welcoming Eva's body from Spain.

A leftist guerrilla group, the Montoneros, marked the arrival by returning the stolen body of former President Pedro Aramburu. The Montoneros killed Aramburu in 1970, accusing him of hiding Eva's remains.

The guerrillas stole Aramburu's body from a crypt in Buenos Aires last month in a move to keep authorities from burying it in the national shrine with the remains of Peron.

The Montoneros, who venerate Juan and Eva Peron but oppose Maria Estela, have joined in an upsurge of political violence that has taken 183 lives this year.

The General Labor Confederation, Argentina's AFL-CIO, called a "day of national reflection" Sunday, canceling all entertainment events in memory of Eva.

Several thousand persons lined the highway between Ezeiza airport and the presidential residence in suburban Olivos to throw flowers at the closed wooden casket and shout her nickname, "Evita, Evita!"

Tens of thousands of Argentines had lined up in the rain to view Eva's body when she died of cancer in 1952 at the age of 33.

Her carefully preserved body remained on display at labor headquarters in Buenos Aires until Peron was overthrown in a 1955 military coup.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN — Older citizens often face special consumer problems.

Recently, attorneys from our Consumer Protection Division participated in a statewide seminar that looked into the types of consumer problems that such senior citizens experience and analyzed methods of getting information about these problems to older citizens.

We found that retired persons sometimes find themselves caught in a double bind. Their income from Social Security, pension or retirement plans, savings, or investments may not be enough to maintain the same standard of living they previously enjoyed, yet it may be enough to tempt unscrupulous merchants into using various means to relieve them of it.

A national consumer center maintained by two organizations of retired persons reports that mail order offers are a major source of complaints from older persons, although mail-order purchases can be a great convenience for them.

Persons who may be housebound because of health problems or lack of transportation often find it easier to shop by mail for their own needs and for gifts. But it is true that millions of dollars are lost each year in fraudulent mail order offers.

Federal officials say that some mail order swindles are specially aimed at senior citizens. Unscrupulous merchants may try to sell them health cures, investment deals in land, stock, or franchises; retirement homes; extra income plans; or other things by mail.

Our Consumer Protection attorneys advise persons who want to purchase through the mails to deal with a reputable, established mail order house that provides written guarantees on items.

Check any claims for health cures or medical devices with a doctor before purchase. Check any investment offer first through a banker, attorney, broker, or other knowledgeable person.

Always go to see any land or retirement home before purchasing, and have an attorney handle the details of the sales transaction for you to be sure papers are in order and that you will get the type of deed you expect. Any extra income plans offered through the mail should be examined carefully. Never send money before receiving detailed information about such a plan. Many such offers require a sizeable investment of cash before you will be sent materials or instructions, and offer no assurance that you will make any money on your investment.

A better alternative might be to investigate local chapters of senior citizens groups to see if part-time employment bureaus are maintained for senior citizens who want to supplement their income. Typical positions are for family aides, seamstresses, home repairmen or carpenters, typists, bookkeepers, gardeners, and landscaping experts.

Home improvement is another area in which older citizens are often gypped. We have found that many consumer complaints about home improvements or repairs result from not getting IN WRITING a description of the work to be performed.

Our attorneys urge senior citizens not to pay money in advance for such work. Most reputable individuals or firms require payment only after the job is completed according to specifications.

It's also very important to deal with established firms or persons with a good local reputation, since itinerant home improvement salesmen may not be around to make good on guarantees. We advise checking with the Better Business Bureau before agreeing to any home improvement project.

Our Consumer Protection Division has also received complaints from some older citizens alleging that some dance studios engage in various deceptive or misleading sales practices. Recently, we got a court injunction against dance studios which practiced "relay salesmanship," in which a team of salesmen pressured persons to buy dance lessons. The studios also engaged in several other deceptive practices.

In the Attorney General's "Practical Primer for the Texas Consumer," we urge that persons be careful about high fees for dance clubs, and suggest talking it over with a friend or relative before signing a contract.

Older persons with these or other consumer problems should contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division or their district or county attorney to report complaints.

Skippy — a hero of mixed ancestry

By FRANK MACOMBER
Copley News Service

Skippy is no thoroughbred. He's a mixed breed, probably a lot of collie with a tinge of shepherd. Whatever Skippy is, he's a hero who put his own life on the line to save a 6-year-old youngster from a rattlesnake's bite.

Skippy belongs to the family of Marine M. Sgt. and Mrs. Gary D. Essig, of Santa Ana, Calif. When he got in the way of the rattler's fangs, the dog had to take a few days off in the animal hospital at nearby El Toro Marine Corps Air Station to recuperate.

Skippy was in the right place at the right time when the Essig family was camping out recently in a park near Santa Ana.

Young Donald Essig, playing in high grass, cried out: "A rattlesnake!"

Skippy reacted quickly, bounding between the boy and the snake. He grabbed the snake between his jaws, but it turned and bit him.

Back home with the Essigs again, Skippy is the neighborhood hero. He was awarded a Dog Hero Gold Medal, a gold-plated leash and collar and a year's supply of dog food from Ken-L Ration. The family received a $1,000 U.S. savings bond.

But Skippy doesn't stand alone as a hero. Honored, too, was Rex, owned by Angela Jones, of Davenport, Iowa, who found a 2-year-old boy trapped in a garbage can and scratched against the metal until help came.

And don't forget Joe, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Duane Sumpter, of Saratoga Springs, N.Y. He grabbed the arm of the couple's 7-year-old son after he fell through lake ice, then held him above water for 10 minutes until rescuers were able to reach the boy.

For these three canine heroes a dog's life is likely to be more like the life of Riley, at least for awhile.

For the "squares" or "straight" Americans, here is some encouraging news:

A nationwide study shows that today's college students have little in common with the anti-Establishment, unkempt stereotype of the 1960s.

The survey reflected students' concern with good grooming and personal hygiene.

Nearly all the respondents on 30 campuses across the country—male and female—used shampoo, toothpaste, deodorants and just plain old soap. A high percentage also used mouthwash and breath fresheners, the survey indicated.

In the hard-to-swallow column, the study found that 85 per cent of female respondents used razor blades but only 77 per cent of the men students shaved. Foot care products were used by 46 per cent of males and only 38 per cent of girl students.

The survey was conducted by a private firm for the Student Value Pack program sponsored by Publishers Clearing House and the National Association of College Stores.

Science Today

By PRESTON MCGRAW
DALLAS (UPI)

Physicists at the University of Texas at Dallas are testing the world's first nitrogen-ion laser which they hope will turn out to be the "match" that ends the energy shortage forever.

Dr. Carl B. Collins Jr., 34, who heads the team, said their laser also is the world's most efficient visible laser.

"That augurs well for making it the most wonderful," Collins said. "But the question is, is it going to get better or worse when we make it bigger?"

Collins' team and other scientists throughout the world are looking for a laser system that will ignite hydrogen in controlled fusion and provide a power source like the sun on a small scale.

To succeed, they must produce a laser that will provide for a billionth of a second, a temperature that approximates the 100 million degrees of the sun.

The 20-foot electrobeam gun of the system has a peak power of 100 billion watts, or 100,000 amperes at one million volts, over 10 billionths of a second.

At the instant of discharge, this is 10 per cent of the U.S. instantaneous power usage. It sounds as if it would make lights blink over several states, but it doesn't. Electrical line power is taken out very slowly and accumulated in the electrobeam gun before the charge is unleashed into the laser.

The unique principle of the laser being tested by Collins, Dr. Austin Cunningham and Dr. Steve Curry, is the "pumping" mechanism. When scientists talk about "pumping" in relation to lasers, what they mean is transferring an electrical charge from one gas to another.

The laser now being tested is a second generation model. When it is raised to top efficiency, the team will build a bigger, third generation model.

That process will continue until they can determine whether they have something that will do the job or whether they are on the wrong track.

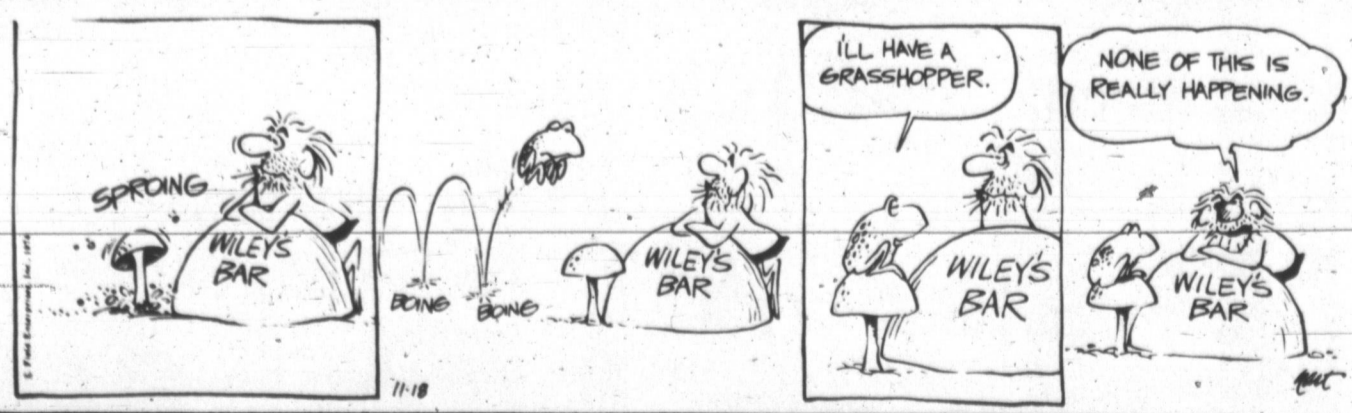

Scientists worldwide are working on two controlled fusion approaches. The one the Dallas physicists are involved in was publicly described by Dr. Edward Teller, so-called father of the hydrogen bomb, for the first time two years ago at the international quantum electronics conference in Montreal.

Philadelphia hosted the centennial celebration of the formation of the Constitution Sept. 15, 16, and 17, 1887.

ANDY CAPP

It Sims To Me...

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Palo Duro was sluggish, getting outplayed and outgained throughout the day, against Caprock, but Doug James' undefeated Dons deserve the District 3-AAA title. Their 7-3 win over Caprock might not have been as impressive as their previous nine victories, including a 12-9 win over Pampa. But the Dons, or any team for that matter, couldn't have gone undefeated without the best material in the district.

Congratulations go to the team from northside Amarillo, even though I don't like you.

Also, praise should go to the Harvesters, who are one of the best teams in Pampa history. Nobody expected them to win more than three games, and the Harvesters wound up as the 10th team since 1930 in Pampa to win eight games. The 8-2 record was only the second time in 20 years Pampa has won that many games.

Make plans now to attend the Pampa Harvester football banquet Dec. 20. Jim Carlen, head coach at Texas Tech, will speak.

Lefors will travel to Hale Center Friday to play Sundown, District 2-B champion, for the bi-district title. Lefors surprised fourth-ranked Groom, 13-7, for the 1-B championship.

Sundown belted Motley County for the 2-B crown Friday. Motley County was 2-B north zone champ with a 9-1 record. Sundown of the south zone won its 10th game against only one setback. Sundown has outscored opponents, 387-93.

The Pirates will face two outstanding runners — halfback Mike Waygood and fullback Glen Faught. Sundown will play against a trio of talented running backs and an exceptional quarterback in Greg Beck. Fullback Barney Sawyer and halfbacks Jim Hix and Rick Jennings are explosive.

The district championship is Coach Leonard Tolbert's first as a football coach. "The trouble is," says Tolbert, "you can't enjoy it very long. You have to start working for the next game."

"We played pretty good ball. Our record (5-5) isn't indicative of the way we've been playing lately. We stayed basic offensively (against Groom). We moved the ball occasionally and then we'd mess it up with a fumble. I wouldn't say our offense was super."

"Groom had as good a football team as we've played all year."

Jazz Looking For New Boss

United Press International
Elgin Baylor took over the coaching duties of the New Orleans Jazz for one game Sunday and picked up right where fired Coach Scotty Robertson left off: explaining why the Jazz lost again.

Jazz President Fred Rosenfeld, disappointed over his team's 1-15 record, will name a permanent replacement today for Robertson, whom he fired Sunday. A successful coach at Louisiana Tech, Robertson seemed to have difficulty adjusting to the pro game and relating to his players.

Baylor, a superstar for the Lakers for many years, apparently does not want the responsibility of a head coaching assignment yet and Rosenfeld said he will name a coach "not presently in the Jazz organization and someone who has coached professional basketball."

Several names fit that description such as Alex Hannum, Butch van Breda Kolff, Jack McCloskey and Roy Rubin—all fired from head coaching positions last year. Rod Thorn, an excellent assistant coach for the New York Nets of the ABA, has also been looking for a head coaching job.

Meanwhile, Baylor was left in the New Orleans locker room following Sunday's 99-85 loss to the Detroit Pistons, trying to explain why the team lost again.

"We ran our offense well in the first half," Baylor said, "but couldn't hit the open shots. In the second half, our offense broke down completely."

If nothing else, Baylor is succinct.

Bob Lanier contributed 26 points and 17 rebounds for Detroit while Pete Maravich led the Jazz with 24 points.

WEDGED IN — Groom halfback Thomas Reed is stopped by Bobby Cain (24) and Rick Jennings, who are about to get assistance from Keith Baker (84) in Lefors' 13-7 district championship win Friday night in Groom. Lefors will play Sundown at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Hale Center for the bi-district title.

Dallas Comeback Falls 7 Points Short

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Allen admitted his Washington Redskins turned too conservative in the second half of their 26-21 win over the Dallas Cowboys Sunday and nearly squandered a four touchdown lead.

But he's perfectly happy about the two-game advantage the Redskins possess today in their bid for at least a wild card Super Bowl playoff spot.

Of the second half when the Cowboys scored three times and fell only six yards, short of a tying touchdown with two minutes left, Allen commented: "I talked to the team at halftime and warned them, but when you're 28 points ahead, it's pretty hard to get through to anybody that you still have 30 minutes to play."

In building a 28-0 lead at halftime, two Redskin third stringers — Joe Theismann and Charlie Evans — chalked up touchdown runs. Ken Houston returned a punt 58 yards for another and Bill Kilmer threw 31 yards to Roy Jefferson for a fourth TD.

However, the Redskins tried to play it cautious in the final two quarters and the Cowboys rallied behind Roger Staubach to make a battle of it. Showing a net passing total of minus 14 yards in the first half, Staubach hit Billy Joe DuPree for a pair of touchdowns and Bob Newhouse ran for another to cut the Washington lead to seven points with five minutes left.

One Dallas touchdown bid was halted by a Mike Bass interception on the Redskin three, but the Cowboy drove back for a first down on the Washington seven yard line with 2:20 remaining. The threat ended when Newhouse could gain only a yard on two carries. Bass broke up a Staubach pass and Cowboy receiver Drew Pearson missed a 40-yard throw in the end zone.

"That final pass was low, but it should have been caught," Dallas coach Tom Landry said after the game which left the Cowboys with a 5-5 record. But he refused to concede that Dallas is out of the playoffs for the first time in nine seasons.

"I'm hopeful as long as there's a slim chance," he commented. "If someone sneaks up on the Redskins and beats them, we're back in the running when we play 11 days from now in Dallas."

DETROIT (UPI) — No 400-hitter in modern baseball history has played for a pennant winner in the season he batted .400.

Dolphins Stop Bills To Capture Lead

United Press International
It took 10 weeks but the Miami Dolphins are back on top.

The World Champions moved into first place for the first time this season Sunday and they did it with a mixture of old stars and new faces as they erupted in the final minute for a thrilling 35-28 victory over the Buffalo Bills. Miami and Buffalo entered the game tied for first in the American Conference East and now the Dolphins lead by one game with four to go.

The old heroes were quarterback Bob Griese, wide receiver Paul Warfield and fullback Larry Csonka and the new star was reserve fullback Don Nottingham.

Griese completed 11-of-18 passes for 237 yards, four of them going to Warfield for 139 yards, including a 49-yard touchdown pass. Csonka, playing on a painful swollen ankle, blasted for TD runs of two and six yards and Nottingham, the "Human Bowling Ball" ran for two last period scores to win the game for Miami.

Nottingham, a squat 5-foot-10, 210-pounder called on when Csonka couldn't continue, ran 11 yards for one TD to give Miami a 28-21 lead and after Buffalo tied the score on Gary Marangi's five-yard TD pass to Bob Chandler, he ripped 23 yards up the middle with 19 seconds left for the winning score.

"It's the makings of the men involved," said Miami Coach Don Shula, who has held his club together this season despite numerous injuries. "Griese's tremendous poise, Warfield's skill, the tenacity of the offensive line."

Griese took over at the Miami 19 with 51 seconds left and marched the Dolphins to the winning touchdown in just four plays. He threw 31 yards to Warfield and Jim Kick put together runs of 12 and 15 yards to the Bills' 23. Nottingham roared up the middle on a draw play and scored untouched.

"I don't get surprised by holes like that any more," Nottingham said. "You get used to seeing that kind of daylight with the offensive line we have."

Miami surged to a 14-0 lead on Csonka's touchdown and Griese's pass to Warfield and Csonka's second TD after Joe Ferguson scored for Buffalo left Miami ahead 21-7 after three periods. But they combined for five touchdowns in a wild fourth quarter that saw the Dolphins boost their record to 8-2 and drop Buffalo to 7-3.

Dave Washington returned Mercury Morris' fumble 42 yards for a Bills TD and Marangi, replacing the injured Ferguson, threw a 44-yard pass to J.D. Hill, who made a diving catch in the end zone to tie the score at 21-21. Nottingham put Miami ahead, Marangi tied it and then Nottingham won it.

This has been the year of the upset and it continued Sunday. Houston upended Cincinnati for the second time this year 20-3, the New York Jets toppled New England 21-16, New Orleans stopped Los Angeles 20-7, Green Bay tripped up Minnesota 19-7 and Baltimore beat Atlanta 17-7. In other games, Pittsburgh beat Cleveland 26-16, Washington held on to beat Dallas 28-21, Oakland defeated San Diego 17-10 and St. Louis dumped Philadelphia 13-3. Detroit edged the New York Giants 20-19 and San Francisco bombed Chicago 34-0. Kansas City is at Denver tonight.

Oilers 20, Bengals 3
Willie Rodgers scored twice on one-yard runs and the Oiler defense stymied Cincinnati to carry Houston to its fourth straight victory. Dan Pastorini also threw a 22-yard TD pass to Ken Burrough for Houston, now 5-5 after winning only one game in each of the last two seasons.

Jets 21, Patriots 16
Joe Namath threw an 11-yard TD pass to Bob Burns and a 34-yarder to David Knight for the deciding score and the Jet defense intercepted Jim Plunkett four times to pace New York's victory. Rookie Roscoe Word's interception in the end zone with two minutes left preserved the win.

Packers 19, Vikings 7
Chester Marcol kicked four field goals and John Hadl threw a 68-yard TD pass to MacArthur Lane to carry Green Bay over Minnesota. Marcol connected for 28, 32, 19 and 18 yards and Hadl hit Lane after Chuck Foreman scored for the Vikings on a 24-yard pass from Fran Tarkenton.

Saints 20, Rams 7
Archie Manning threw two TD passes and Bill McClard had a pair of field goals as New Orleans ended Los Angeles' four-game winning streak and kept the Rams from clinching the NFC West title. Manning threw 79 yards to Bob Newland and 17 to Joel Parker and McClard had field goals on 28 and 51 yards. James Harris passed 15 yards to Bob Klein for the Ram score.

Steelers 26, Browns 16
Roy Gerela kicked four field goals and J.T. Thomas scored on a 14-yard fumble return as Pittsburgh beat the Browns in Cleveland for the first time in 10 years. Defensive tackle Joe Greene, who also had his first career interception, picked up the fumble and flipped to Thomas. Surprise starter Terry Hanratty had a 28-yard TD pass to Ron Shanklin for Pittsburgh.

Redskins 28, Cowboys 21
Washington surged to a 28-0 halftime lead but had to stop Dallas on the five in the final minute to win. Joe Theismann ran three yards and Charlie Evans six. Ken Houston returned a punt 58 yards and Bill Kilmer threw 31 yards to Roy Jefferson for Redskins TDs. Roger Staubach threw two TD passes to Billy Joe Dupree and Robert Newhouse ran three yards for another score before the rally failed.

Cardinals 13, Eagles 3
Jim Hart scored from the one and Jim Bakken added field goals of 28 and 30 yards as St. Louis stayed in front of the NFC East by beating Philadelphia. The Cardinal defense dumped Eagle quarterback Roman Gabriel nine times.

Colts 17, Falcons 7
Quarterback Marty Domres ran 12 yards for one score and Bill Olds blasted a yard for another as the Colts sent Atlanta to their eighth loss in 10 games.

Lions 20, Giants 19
Errol Mann's 37-yard field goal with two seconds left lifted Detroit over New York. The Giants led 19-10 when Bill Munson threw a seven-yard TD pass to Bob Pickard and Mann connected on his winning kick. Pete Gogolak had four field goals for the Giants.

49ers 34, Bears 0
Rookie Tom Owen threw two TD passes and ran for another as San Francisco snapped a seven-game losing streak by beating Chicago.

Houston Is For Real, Just Ask Cincinnati!

HOUSTON (UPI) — Coach Paul Brwn, surveying a depressing injury situation in a losing locker room, said his Cincinnati Bengals ran into more than the Houston Oilers.

"We were ready, but they got that old super-duper coming back home after three straight," he said. "And when a team hasn't won for so many years, this is when you've really got it going."

Starved Oiler fans Sunday gave their heroes a standing ovation—before the game. And the delirium did not diminish all afternoon as Houston's defense brought Bengals' quarter back Ken Anderson back down to earth and whipped Cincinnati for the second time this year, 20-3.

For Anderson, the hottest passing hand in the NFL, the letdown hurt. He was dumped six times by the Oiler rush led by tackles Tody Smith and Elvin Bethea and middle guard Curly Culp. He was intercepted twice.

It was Smith, the 6-5, fourth-year pro, who spoke for the Oilers after their fourth straight win.

"We realized that we've got a chance at a wild card," he said.

With a 5-5 record, 2½ games behind AFC Central leader Pittsburgh, the Oilers certainly could consider making the playoffs. The thought put unusual words in the aching head of Bengal linebacker Ron Pritchard.

The likeable former Oiler was banged around so much during the game he collapsed once and came out twice dazed.

"I'm happy for them, I'll tell you that. Of course it hurt — boy did it hurt — that we lost," he said.

Pritchard said before the game if the Oilers won he would retire from football.

"Please don't hold me to that," he said. "I also said if the Oilers beat us they are a good football team. And they are."

Pritchard seemed okay physically, but coach Brown was worried that center Bob Johnson broke his ankle. X-rays were taken late Sunday.

Also painful to Brown was the way the Oiler defense, which now has kept opponents from its end zone 10 straight quarters, shut down the Bengals.

"If you stop Isaac Curtis you stop Cincy," Oiler safety Zeke Moore said. "He's the guy they like to go to."

Anderson completed 21 of 36 passes, three to Curtis for only 30 yards.

Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini was more accurate, hitting 11 of 13 tosses, one a 22-yard touchdown to Ken Burrough in the fourth quarter.

Bowl Bids Getting Hosts Embarrassed

A few of those premature bowl invitations are beginning to look awfully embarrassing to the hosts.

The Sugar Bowl committee, for example, was ecstatic a couple of weeks ago when it announced it had invited Florida and Nebraska to compete in the New Year's Eve classic at New Orleans.

At the time it looked like a sweet matchup as both teams were ranked high in the top 10, but now the committee is a bit red-faced.

The reason is the sudden demise of eighth-ranked Florida, which has lost two games in a row—the latest a 41-24 whipping by Kentucky Saturday.

The Fiesta Bowl is another which may have acted a bit hastily in setting its pairings. The committee invited Oklahoma State two weeks ago and the Cowboys might be lucky to escape the season with a winning record. Colorado dealt Oklahoma State a 37-20 beating Saturday and the Liberty Bowl.

Tulsa, which has clinched the Missouri Valley Conference, looks to be the logical choice to oppose Miami (Ohio) in the Tangerine Bowl and the winner of Saturday's game between Tennessee and Kentucky will oppose Maryland in the Liberty Bowl.

4 with games against Iowa State and unbeaten Oklahoma remaining.

Another bowl invitee, Texas Tech, also was beaten Saturday as Baylor handed the Red Raiders a 17-10 loss. Texas Tech, now 6-4, will be meeting Vanderbilt in the Peach Bowl at Atlanta on Dec. 28.

There are still seven spots open in the 11 major post-season bowl games and all but two berths should be filled by next weekend.

Next Saturday, Michigan meets Ohio State and Southern California takes on UCLA to decide the Rose Bowl pairings and Brigham Young only has to beat lowly Utah to clinch the Western Athletic Conference and a spot in the Fiesta Bowl.

tips for consumers from your BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

Impaired hearing is one of the most common health handicaps in the U.S. It affects millions of people. Some hearing problems can be corrected medically or surgically. For other types of impairments, a hearing aid can help.

If you suspect you have a hearing loss, the Better Business Bureau suggests you first go to your family physician or an ear specialist (otologist), not to a hearing aid dealer. A dealer is not equipped or licensed to evaluate your hearing as well as a doctor can.

The dealer cannot prescribe any medical treatment or remedies. Some disreputable dealers have been known to prescribe hearing aids for people who didn't need them.

If your doctor thinks a hearing aid would help you, you may then be referred to a hearing aid dealer.

When you select a hearing aid, do not be overly influenced by the appearance of the aid or the price (although it is wise to shop around — prices can vary from dealer to dealer).

An inexpensive aid of poor quality is of no use if it constantly needs to be repaired.

Also, a tiny hearing aid that is inconspicuous will have little value if it doesn't amplify sound adequately to suit your needs. The main goal is to select an aid that will provide you with maximum help.

Evaluate The Aid
There are some questions you should ask before you buy:

—How is the quality of the sound? — Does it help you understand speech in noisy places?

—Does it help you understand speech in noisy places?

—Are the controls (tone control, volume control, telephone switch) easy to operate?

—Can the aid be handled easily, especially by an infirm or elderly person?

—If it is to be worn by a child, is the aid sturdy?

—Does the price include the ear mold?
—What are the costs of upkeep?

You can get some of the answers by arranging either a trial or rental period with the dealer, ranging from two weeks to several months. Within a few weeks you should know whether the aid is working adequately for you.

Even though you may have to pay a rental fee, a trial period is the best way for you to make an intelligent decision about the aid.

Unless you are immobilized or live in a very remote area, avoid purchasing a hearing aid through the mail or from itinerant salespersons. You require expert assistance in selecting an aid, which rarely can be provided by a traveling salesperson and can't be provided at all through the mail.

Furthermore, the sale of hearing aids by mail is prohibited in some states.

The Dealer
Remember that when you buy a hearing aid, you also are selecting a dealer. Beware of dealers who make extravagant claims that their aids "operate on a new scientific principle" or that they can cure your hearing loss.

A good dealer should:
—Have an established office.
—Have a license if your state requires it.

—Clearly spell out a warranty or guarantee.
—Provide rapid and efficient repairs if your hearing aid needs to be serviced.

If you are in doubt about a dealer's reputation, ask the Better Business Bureau how long the firm has been in business and what its service records are.

If you need financial assistance to obtain a hearing aid, contact your local United Fund or other social service organization, your state vocational rehabilitation or public health department, welfare office (ask about Medicare), or the Veterans Administration.

Prostrate Gland Enlargement Often Painful

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes the enlargement of the prostate gland as a man gets older, apart from the natural aging process?

Do you have a booklet on the subject?
C.H.L.
Prostate enlargement occurs to one degree or another in about half of all men over 50. The cause is not really known, although chronic inflammation may be a factor, as can cancer. The way of life seems to have no bearing on enlargement or the degree of enlargement.

In milder cases, cases of only moderate enlargement, men may simply have to tolerate some of the symptoms, as bothersome as they are. These include urgency to urinate, night urination, lessening of the stream force and dribbling after voiding.

Degree of enlargement can be determined by actually feeling the gland through the rectum, but this must be done by your doctor.

In some cases, as a matter of fact, the enlargement is primarily on the bladder side and can be detected only through cystoscopic examination or by a dye test. The dye is administered by vein and eventually excreted through the kidneys. After urination, the dye material left in the bladder can be measured by removal with a catheter.

There are reports that enlargement of the prostate can be halted or reduced by treatment with hormones such as progesterone.

However, if symptoms are marked and the obstruction or urine flow seriously threatened, then surgical removal is preferred.

If you want a fuller, more detailed discussion of the prostate, read my booklet.

"The Pesky Prostate," for which send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a relative who has a flesh-colored growth on his ear which first appeared as a crusty scab a year or so ago. He seems unconcerned about the need for medical treatment and attempts to treat it with mercuriochrome. Will you comment?

H.T.
I can't see where mercuriochrome could possibly do any good at all. It may be an innocent growth. But then again, cancer can develop in that fashion on the ear, and if it is cancer, the sooner it is removed, the better. It must not be given time to spread. Obviously he should have tests to find out for sure what the growth is.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If a person's hands are burned, will the same fingerprint pattern grow back with the new skin or do you have a completely different fingerprint?

Does your footprint taken at birth remain the same throughout life, as fingerprints do, or does it change along with normal skin growth back again. Of course it is possible for fingers to be so badly scarred that all is smooth scar tissue.

Yes, fingerprints, like fingerprints, keep the same pattern for life.

You can lose weight if you really want to! Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to him in care of Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois, 60120, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents. Copyright 1974 Field Enterprises, Inc.

LONG-TERM LEASE
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Twentieth Century-Fox has acquired a long-term lease to operate and option to purchase Marineland of the Pacific.

United Press International
There are quite a number of figures in rock today who are full-fledged students of the mystique of "stardom." They have, most of these folks, watched and analyzed the stars of screen and stage from childhood.

Ian Hunter of Mott the Hoople is likely the most extreme example of that — literally a worshiper of the great film stars and the kind of person who would — and did — sneak into the grounds of Elvis Presley's mansion just to be physically close to his hero.

An odd thing about this kind of rock 'n' roller is that nearly all of them have decided, somewhere along the line, that the way to become a star is simply to start calling yourself a star. Repeat it enough and everyone will get so used to the idea they begin taking it for granted.

This, of course, is a basic propaganda technique — and it seems to work, so long as the newly created star never lets his guard down.

The biggest stars in rock didn't do it this way — they got to be stars because they were exceptionally good at what they did, or they created sharply original music, or were particularly bizarre, or were very lucky. Most likely, a combination of the above: they did their own thing, and the public made them stars.

But there are a lot of such self-created stars around — some of them quite talented. Hunter, for example, has both a great voice and a hatful of charisma.

The best self-made star of them all is David Bowie, and he is so good he likely would have made it without the propaganda, though it probably would have taken a bit longer. He is one of the best four or five lyricists around; he has the kind of unique voice that has always done well in rock, and a stage presence unmatched by anyone. Mick Jagger included.

Unfortunately, except for his classic "Ziggy Stardust," Bowie has been less than successful at putting himself across on record. Most of his albums are good, but not great; there are flashes of brilliance, but it is not sustained or consistent. It often requires that you already appreciate Bowie before you can appreciate his records.

His newest effort, "David Live" (RCA CPL2-0771) — despite being one of the most accurate records of a stage production ever committed to vinyl — is just such an album.

Culled from two performances last July in Philadelphia, "David Live" reproduces the sound of Bowie's show perfectly. The only problem is that the David Bowie Show is heavily dependent on the physical presence of its star.

LET'S TALK Squanto chose to aid Pilgrims

By REV. W. LEE TRUMAN
Copley News Service

An Indian on my personal list of heroes met a small group of Europeans — men who with their families had known religious persecution and fled to a hostile land seeking religious freedom. They believed in values for which they were willing to risk their lives. They stepped from their long boat onto a stony shore and dubbed that spot Plymouth Rock. The year was 1620.

This native American who later extended his hand in friendship to these pilgrims was named Squanto. Had Squanto been a man who nursed grudges, he very well could have stood silently in the dark of the forest and during moments of their laxness slain these strange people. Squanto would have had a good reason to do this; the seed of his hatred had been sown deep. A greedy British sea captain, under the guise of friendship, took Squanto on board his ship, put him in chains, then sold him for a handsome profit into slavery in Spain.

Squanto escaped, and in time, made his way to England. The man who had befriended him and paid his fare back to his homeland did so because he said it made him sad to see such a forlorn human being lost and bewildered as was Squanto. This benefactor said this was a statement of his own Christian faith, and, in so doing, he acted out of concern if not love for this Indian who had suffered loss of not only his freedom, but his land and his family.

Squanto chose to remember the good done to him rather than the evil. He also chose to let the seed of hatred die and the seed of the love flourish in its place.

That first group of pilgrims were astonished to have a native American greet them in English. It was Squanto, then, who showed them how to hunt in their new land, where the fish were, and how to grow corn as the Indians knew how to grow that food staple. He befriended our Pilgrim Fathers, and made that first Thanksgiving possible.

Each of us throughout life have the choice that was Squanto's. The question is: Are we to remember and seek revenge for every injury, real or fancied? Shall we seek to be kind and to repay only those who have been helpful to us? Do we give without thought of return?

This Thanksgiving, may each of us keep ourselves busy recognizing and appreciating the good that has come to us without our having merited it, recognizing it for what it is and determining that our choice will be as the choice of an original American. To make Thanksgiving possible for someone else is one choice, and you will be much happier for so choosing.

WITH GOOD PRECAUTIONS Burglary Easiest Crime To Halt

Burglary constitutes between 40 and 70 percent of the reported index crimes for any law enforcement agency. The most common type of crime in the United States — burglary — is one of the easiest to prevent.

Short of turning your home into a fortress, there's no way you can make your home absolutely thief-proof. There are, however, many things you can do, often every economically, to discourage burglars and other intruders, and protect your possessions and homes.

The Consultants Against Crime, the crime prevention specialists of the Pampa Police Department, point out that burglary is most often a crime of opportunity. Close to half of the daytime burglaries here are committed by burglars who don't have to do a thing to gain entrance except walk through an unlocked door.

The first thing the homeowner can do to protect his property is to participate in Operation Identification. An engraving pen is available at no charge from the Pampa Police Department to engrave your property with your driver's license number (such as TX 5551212) on all valuable equipment such as tape recorders, stereos, television sets and other valuables.

You can take photographs of possessions which cannot be engraved, such as jewelry, fine silver and antiques.

A list of your property and photographs should be stored where they cannot be lost even in case of fire, such as with your insurance agent, a relative, or in a safety deposit box.

As soon as your property is marked, vinyl decals are available at no charge to be placed on a prominent place on your home which warns potential intruders that your property is properly marked, which heightens the risk of their being "stuck with the goods" or caught.

This will deter many would-be intruders since any sensible burglar wants only property which he can get rid of easily with no questions asked. In case the property is stolen, however, it is quickly and easily traceable because most states have a computer system which will tell them within a few seconds the name and address of the operator's license.

Marking deters the burglar because people are wary about purchasing marked equipment — and that includes the "fence" used by the professional burglar.

The next step in discouraging the intruder is to "lock up and lock out."

Rule number one is to keep doors and windows locked — even when you're home. Some burglars specialize in small items such as purses or money they can pick up while residents are working in the yard, hanging up laundry, or visiting with friends.

Most people are unaware that most locks on their apartments and homes, no matter how new or expensive the home is, are what the burglar refers to as "10-second" locks. That is approximately how long it takes him to open the door and gain entrance.

The crime prevention unit suggests these precautions: —Ideally, doors should be of solid, heavy wood without a window. If your home is not constructed in this manner, there are still steps you can take to protect your home.

—The stronger and more sophisticated the lock, the better your protection. A burglar cannot risk the noise required to force or break down a solid door with a good lock.

—Instead of replacing the principal lock on outside doors if they do not already have a deadbolt, install a secondary security device with a minimum one-inch throw deadbolt.

All deadbolt locks should have hardened cylinder guards. The crime prevention unit has a booklet showing how locks should be installed and what to do for special situations, such as doors with glass panels, sliding glass doors or windows, louvered doors and windows, and garage doors.

—Install a wide-angle peephole in your front door so you can identify callers before unlocking. A peephole or a door knocker with a peephole and grill you can talk through can be purchased very inexpensively and is simple to install yourself.

Chair locks on the side of doors do not offer any protection. They can be easily forced, unlatched, or cut.

—Garage doors are just as important as other outside doors. Once a burglar gets in the garage, he has complete privacy to break into your home. A single lock or padlock on the outside of your garage is not sufficient to protect your home.

—Windows should be secured with locking devices or with a pin placed through special holes drilled in the frame. The crime prevention unit booklet also illustrates how this is done.

—The finest locks in the world will not keep out an intruder if a burglar gets possession of your keys. When you change residences, have a locksmith re-key your outside locks. It is not necessary to have the entire lock replaced. Former residents, apartment complex employees or employees of building contractors may still have keys in their possession.

—Be careful about giving or lending duplicate keys. Always separate your home keys from your ignition keys when you leave your car in a parking lot or garage. Avoid identification tags on keys, including license plate numbers. They tell burglars what locks they fit.

—Make sure no one in your family tries to "hide" a door key outside. Burglars know more about where to look for hidden keys than anyone. If you are worried about locking yourself out, leave a house key with a trusted neighbor or friend.

—Since citizen compliance with these suggestions is the way to prevent burglary, the crime prevention officers say they can't emphasize enough the fact that no lock is a lock unless it's locked.
