$2.00 PER YEAR

JULY PERMITS EXCEED 127,000

BUILDING INCREASE FOR JULY IS LARGEST IN HISTORY OF PAMPA

July has come forward as the greatest building month in the history of Pampa. Permits totaling more than $127,000.00 have been granted already this month. June permits reached $96,300—the biggest month before July. Permits in May reached almost $60,000 and in April passed $92,000. It is expected the remaining two days of July will see the $130,000 mark passed. In all probability August will surpass any other month with a large number of permanent buildings now under consideration.

Principal among the business houses permits were issued for during July were the Sharp & Reynolds two story sea and rest brick on Javier street, $15,000; Schafer Hotel, $9,000; Sterling Williams tile factory, room apartment house, $4,000; the National Supply Company warehouse and office, $5,000; H. Olson's twenty room apartment house, $5,500; Sykes, Rast & Boyd Lumber company warehouse and office, $6,000; and the R. E. Johnson hotel building (second story) $10,000.

Among the many fine residences that permits were granted for in this month were the Jess Wynne nine room home in the west part of Pampa, $15,000; G. C. Malone's new home—$2,000; Frank Davis home, $4,500; two six room duplexes in the Brown addition being built by Mrs. Alta Starnard; $5,500; Mrs. H. F. Barnhart's $4,000 residence in the North addition; J. M. Patton residence, $5,000; Willis Prose home $5,000; Mr. Press' new home, $4,000; Joe Cannon home, $3,000; M. A. Lewis, $3,200; and many other varying in price from $100 to $15,000.

Important Meeting of C. of C. Tuesday Night

PAMPA OIL ACTIVITY INCREASES

MURFEE CALLS SESSION FOR RE-ORGANIZATION OF CHAMBER

The Pampa Chamber of Commerce plans to hold the most important meeting of the year on next Tuesday night at the White Deer Land Company offices, according to President J. E. Murfee.

President Murfee urges every merchant of Pampa to attend this meeting—whether or not he already belongs to the Chamber, and issues a special invitation to the new merchants of Pampa to be present.

President Murfee states that the Chamber of Commerce work is being neglected by the business men of Pampa and it is understood that other duties will force the resignation of several officers of the Chamber.

The new merchants of Pampa are showing an interest in local affairs and it is hoped by the Chamber that much new energy can be secured from this source. A number of merchants who recently came here have expressed the desire to unite with the local Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations, and it is expected the membership will be doubled.

HOSPITAL NOTES

O. Vinson of the Gulf Petroleum Company suffered three fractured ribs when a length of twelve inch pipe fell on him.

J. E. Seitz, who was recently burned is recovering nicely.

The News is being demanded from every section of the country. Here comes a letter by air mail from J. E. Adams of Portland, Oregon, asking for a copy of the News.

FOUR GRADUATE IN PAMPA HIGH SUMMER SESSION

Superintendent R. C. Campbell announces four graduates from the Pampa high school during the summer session just closed. Three graduating were, Misses Emma Leonard, Mary Meers, Zella Patton, and Virginia Faye Wright. This makes a total of thirty-two graduates to this year 1926—the largest yet to be graduated from the Pampa high school during the one year.

Superintendent Campbell states that he is expecting one of the most successful years in his teaching career during the session that will begin in little more than one month. Arrangements have been made to take care of many more students than was enrolled during the last year, with several new additions being made to the teaching staff.

C. C. Dold has moved into the new building on Railroad street, one block west of his old location on Cuyler St. Mr. Dold has a fine location for his hatchery and produce—it is always easily accessible for farmers.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dickson, formerly of this city, have moved to White Deer. They are planning to open a confectionery there.

X. Holmes, living south of Pampa, sold a quarter section of royalty this week to the McMan Oil and Gas Co. for $50,000.

Mrs. Frances Tolbert and son, Mrs. Judith Sherrod of Wichita Falls and Eleanor Gist of Amarillo were guests of Mrs. Wolmar Lockhart last Sunday.

H. L. MILLER TO OPEN DRUG STORE IN SMITH BUILDING

H. L. Miller announces the opening of the Miller Drug Store in the new Smith building on West Foster avenue. The opening date will be Wednesday, August 4.

Mr. Miller has lived in Pampa for some time, having been associated with the Fatherson Drug store until recently when he decided to go into the drug business for himself.

The Smith building is nearing completion this week and is one of the finest buildings in Pampa or this section of the Texas Panhandle.

Mr. Miller states his new store will have the most modern equipment procurable. The fountain will be equipped with scalding apparatus and every glass will be thoroughly sterilized.

There can be no doubt that Pampa is rapidly becoming a city. Mama is already being told by dancers that an enormous traffic jam on Cuyler street made her an hour late with the car.

MAYOR REID ASKS CITIZENS TO CONSERVE CITY WATER SUPPLY

Mayor Reid announces that the third city water well has not yet been put into operation on account of a delay in shipment of machinery and requests that water users of Pampa conserve the water supply until the new well can be put on the pump.

The two wells now being pumped are producing water at the rate of about 140 gallons per minute and are being pumped steadily day and night in order to keep the city supplied, according to Mayor Reid, who states that while the water situation is not serious as yet, only a strict conservation of water during the next few weeks can prevent the situation from becoming alarming if the present influx of people continues.

SUSPECT ESCAPES FROM PAMPA JAIL HOUSE WEDNESDAY NIGHT

J. C. Jenkins escaped from the Pampa City jail Wednesday night of this week with the aid of an accomplice who worked from the outside.

Jenkins was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Sheriff Graves. Twenty-four gallons of whiskey was found near where the arrest was made.

The bolts were removed from the bars on the improved jail window and allowed the suspect to escape. Sheriff Graves recently moved the cells from the county court house at LeFors to Pampa and the city officials promised to make arrangements for housing the cells, but have not done so as yet. The prisoner was removed from the jail cells and put in the old temporary jail on account of rain. The cells from the court house served no protection whatever from the rain and cold winds.

Officers in surrounding counties have been notified and it is expected that Jenkins will be returned to the Pampa jail.

COMPLETE RETURNS IN THIS ISSUE

Complete returns from the primary election in Gray County are given in detail on page five of this issue. This report was taken direct from the official returns made from each box. The Republican returns showed 27 votes polled in Pampa with almost as many in the remainder of the county. Dr. V. E. Brunow, Pampa and E. B. Hedrick of Amarillo are tied for county chairman of the Republican party at 25 votes each.

There is still a great amount of wheat in the fields and piled on the ground waiting for shipment, but it is thought that the entire crop will be harvested and taken care by August 15.

Small boy who had just witnessed the purchase of six-bits worth of cured ham: "Is that ham cured, Ma? Mama: "Yes, son."

S. B.: "Dr. Cole is a great doctor, isn't he Mama?"

Dr. Cole says he has his handfull these days. A day seldom passes that victims of accidents are not brought to his office for treatment. These, in the main, are oil field workers—rig builders, tool dressers, skimmers and rough necks.

Fifty-nine dollars was subscribed toward the "Belle Bennett Memorial" later an original concert prepared by Mrs. Lee Woodward was enjoyed. A delicious salad, course was served to the thirty ladies present.

Of next Wednesday the society will meet at the church at 2 p. m. for Bible study.

Pampa Field Play Increases While Others Are on Decline

The Pampa oil field is now experiencing one of the greatest periods of activity known to any so called "wildcat" field in the Southwest. Inadequate rail facilities and a lack of water during the past week are the only two things that have prevented an even greater increase in the number of wells that are being drilled in this field.

Oil scouts and experts writers state without qualification that this is not only "going" to be the biggest play in the oil industry, but is already assuming that position.

Following is a detailed survey of the activities in the field during the past few days:

DEMETRAL WINS DECISION OVER OSCAR DOTSON IN 60 MINUTE HANDICAP

Demetral, the Greek middle weight champion of Dallas, Texas won a decision over the smiling blacksmith, Oscar Dotson, heavyweight champ on of Oklahoma for 11 years.

Demetral stepped into the ring at 165 lbs. while Dotson at 192, because of the weight handicap Dotson agreed to get two falls in 60 minutes or lose the bout.

Both men showed exceptional form and started right off the bat with all that was in him.

Dotson gained his first and only fall in 52 minutes with a double toe hold, forcing Demetral to give him a fall.

With only 8 minutes to go the smiling blacksmith put forth an attack that only the fittest could hold up under but Demetral proved up in every respect to the tests endured only by professional wrestlers in the best of condition.

The best on the whole was one of the cleanest and best ever held in the state of Texas, and Pampa can feel proud that it has a real wrestling promoter in its midst.

Jack Vincent, heavyweight champion of Oklahoma wired that he wished to meet the winner of the bout and in all probability he will be matched here in the near future as both Dotson and Demetral say that they will meet him.

J. A. Bolds states that the next bout will be staged on an elevated ring that the seating will be so arranged that every one will be able to see the bout without difficulty.

A preliminary bout staged by two local men, Ernest Kennedy and Jack Stone, both 192 lbs. furnished a number of laughs to the crowd.

Ed Sackler is now employed by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Sackler has been working for some time with the Dold's Produce and Hardware before taking up the new line of work.

Men Who Know Secrets of Trade Discuss Rewards of Authorship

John E. Rosser in Dallas News.

The poet Milton, according to well-worn reports, received for the manuscript of his "Paradise Lost" the equivalent of $25. That day is gone. Recently there have been chuckles because of a telegraphic passage at arms between a celebrated comedian and a writer of songs. The funny man thus wired the versifier: "Send me a song-lyric, and if it's good I'll send you a check for $200." To which patronizing proffer this dignified reply was made: "Send check for $200 and if it's good I'll send you a lyric." That is the new day—a day in which Fannie Hurst, having received a prize of $50,000 for the world—or blanket—copyright of her scenario story, "Mannequin", quickly discovered, with a chagrin that superseded her first flush of triumph, that this award cost her heavily, and that the same manuscript, sold in her customary way, would have brought her far more money.

Writers are more and more aware of the money side of their trade. They are sure that in this new day there is scant excuse for the hardships of Grub street and the somber attic in the village. They surmise that the publishers of vast writers of magazines and books, the producers of pictures and plays, and even the lesser exploiters of the printed page are quite capable of paying for what they use.

The Business of Authorship

There is, however, a vast need of accurate information as to the rewards of writing. The business side of authorship is a trade within itself—a trade which has become all the more complex because of modern developments and inventions. In "The Commercial Side of Literature," Michael Joseph and Grant Overton—the latter contributing a summarizing final chapter—have sought to supply to the would-be writer, the amateur, and the pusillid professional the financial bases of the author's trade. Both of these collaborators are authors of repute. Mr. Joseph is associated with a large literary agency, which concerns itself with the marketing of every sort of literary ware. Mr. Overton is known as a former adviser to a publishing house and now as fiction editor of Collier's. These gentlemen have had excellent opportunity to inform themselves concerning the subject of which they have written.

The book begins with an extended discussion of the modern novel, that literary form whose numerical primacy compels chief attention. We are given to see why a new freedom marks the longer fiction of today—how new themes and new methods, or the seeming lack of all method, are natural enough. There are conjectures as to the main springs of "best sellers" and of "high-brow" books. Here Mr. Joseph writes charily, and, even so, he will not escape sharp challenge for some of the views he expresses. We learn of the money value of a good title and of the timeliness of a book. A book that today may bring success might tomorrow sink into the limbo of forgotten things. And it is a matter of financial moment to author and publisher in just which season a given book appears.

Textbooks Make Money

We are given the relative money value of non-fiction books—memoirs or reminiscences, biographies, belles-lettres, travel and technical books, poetry (with the lowest dollar compensation of them all), educational works, political treatises. Stamina of successful textbooks is remarked, and for those who can handle statistics, the counsel is given that the writer of books in economics is destined for the next ten years to receive the largest royalties.

Two illuminating chapters are devoted to the relations of author with publisher. The counsel ranges all the way from the elementary injunction to submit manuscript in typewritten form, using only one side of the paper, to the more advanced etiquette to be observed in the diplomacies of publishing. Here is a valuable stretch of common-sense advice—advice without which no person should attempt to market his written products. The exaltation characteristic of authorship elicits this observation: "Common sense is about the least common thing in the world, and authors seem to have even less than other people."

Beware of Literary Agents

The upshot of the discussion of the value of literary agents is that "there are only about half a dozen agents with a reputation." The writer is urged to beware of the others. And even the half dozen elect can do little or nothing for the beginner. Only the seasoned and known writer need turn to the literary agent. But in the matter of contracts the agent earns his salt. The agent can guide the author through the mazes of copyright and market complexities.

Writing Is a Successful Gamble

Mr. Overton would impress the reader, as would Mr. Joseph, that writing is a precarious game—one in which there are prizes and in which disappointment and hard work are surely present. We learn of the customary figures for manuscripts of different types, or royalty rates and of the sums paid outright for certain uses. He says bluntly: "A living gained by writing or even a fortune gained by writing remains a successful—gamble."

But the gamble is there and the sporting chance invites us. Most of us know we could, if we would, write the long-awaited great American novel. We could write a great play. Most easily of all, we could turn out better scenarios than those currently utilized for the screen.

We really mean to tackle the job before very long. But before we do it will be well if we read such a book as Messrs. Joseph and Overton have provided. For thus shall we be better prepared for blinding glory if it comes, or for crushing heartaches if we fail.

"Were any of your boyish ambitions ever realized?" asked the sentimentalist.

"Yes", replied the practical person. "When my mother used to cut

my hair I often wished I might be bald-headed."

It's a wonder the barber shop mirrors haven't cracked under the strain of seeing so many strange

Men Who Know Secrets of Trade Discuss Rewards of Authorship

John E. Rosser in Dallas News. The poet Milton, according to well-worn reports, received for the manuscript of his "Paradise Lost" the equivalent of $25. That day is gone. Recently there have been chuckles because of a telegraphic passage at arms between a celebrated comedian and a writer of songs. The funny man thus wired the versifier: "Send me a song lyric, and if it's good I'll send you a check for $300." To which patronizing proffer this dignified reply was made: "Send check for $200 and if it's good I'll send you a lyric." That is the new day—a day in which Fannie Hurst, having received a prize of $50,000 for the world—or blanket—copyright of her scenario story, "Mannequin", quickly discovered, with a chagrin that superseded her first flush of triumph, that this award cost her heavily, and that the same manuscript, sold in her customary way, would have brought her far more money.

Writers are more and more aware of the money side of their trade. They are sure that in this new day there is scant excuse for the hardships of Grub street and the somber attic in the village. They surmise that the publishers of vast writers of magazines and books, the producers of pictures and plays, and even the lesser exploiters of the printed page are quite capable of paying for what they use.

The Business of Authorship

There is, however, a vast need of accurate information as to the rewards of writing. The business side of authorship is a trade within itself—a trade which has become all the more complex because of modern developments and inventions. In "The Commercial Side of Literature," Michael Joseph and Grant Overton—the latter contributing a summarizing final chapter—have sought to supply to the would-be writer, the amateur, and the puzzled professional the financial bases of the author's trade. Both of these collaborators are authors of repute. Mr. Joseph is associated with a large literary agency, which concerns itself with the marketing of every sort of literary ware. Mr. Overton is known as a former adviser to a publishing house and now as fiction editor of Collier's. These gentlemen have had excellent opportunity to inform themselves concerning the subject of which they have written.

The book begins with an extended discussion of the modern novel, that literary form whose numerical primacy compels chief attention. We are given to see why a new freedom marks the longer fiction of today—how new themes and new methods, or the seeming lack of all method, are natural enough. There are conjectures as to the main springs of "best sellers" and of "high-brow" books. Here Mr. Joseph writes charily, and, even so, he will not escape sharp challenges for some of the views he expresses. We learn of the money value of a good title and of the timeliness of a book. A book that today may bring success might tomorrow sink into the limbo of forgotten things. And it is a matter of financial moment to author and publisher in just which season a given book appears.

Textbooks Make Money

We are given the relative money value of non-fiction books—memoirs or reminiscences, biographies, belles-lettres, travel and technical books, poetry (with the lowest dollar compensation of them all), educational works, political treatises, and successful textbooks is remarked, and for those who can handle statistics, the counsel is given that the writer of books in economics is destined for the next ten years to receive the largest royalties.

Two illuminating chapters are devoted to the relations of author with publisher. The counsel ranges all the way from the elementary injunction to submit manuscript in typewritten form, using only one side of the paper, to the more advanced etiquette to be observed in the diplomacies of publishing. Here is a valuable stretch of common-sense advice—advice without which no person should attempt to market his written products. The exaltation characteristic of authorship elicits this observation: "Common sense is about the least common thing in the world, and authors seem to have even less than other people."

Beware of Literary Agents

The upshot of the discussion of the value of literary agents is that "there are only about half a dozen agents with a reputation." The writer is urged to beware of the others. And even the half dozen elect can do little or nothing for the beginner. Only the seasoned and known writer need turn to the literary agent. But in the matter of contracts the agent earns his salt. The agent can guide the author through the mazes of copyright and market complexities.

Writing is a Successful Gamble

Mr. Overton would impress the reader, as would Mr. Joseph, that writing is a precarious game—one in which there are prizes and in which disappointment and hard work are surely present. We learn of the customary figures for manuscripts of different types, or royalty rates and of the sums paid outright for certain uses. He says bluntly: "A living gained by writing or even a fortune gained by writing remains a successful—gamble."

But the gamble is there and the sporting chance invites us. Most of us know we could, if we would, write the long-awaited great American novel. We could write a great play. Most easily of all, we could turn out better scenarios than those currently utilized for the screen. We really mean to tackle the job before very long. But before we do it will be well if we read such a book as Messrs. Joseph and Overton have provided. For thus shall we be better prepared for binding glory if it comes, or for crushing heartaches if we fail.

"Were any of your boyish ambitions ever realized?" asked the sentimentalist.

"Yes", replied the practical person. "When my mother used to cut

my hair I often wished I might be bald-headed."

It's a wonder the barber shop mirrors haven't cracked under the strain of seeing so many strange

LOW WATER RATE

In its last regular meeting of this month the City Council voted unanimously last Monday night for a small increase in the water rates of the city. The present rate, while high enough to pay the expenses of pumping, is still much lower than the rate in neighboring cities, it is understood here.

The new rate provides water for commercial and industrial purposes at thirty cents per thousand as compared with fifty cents in Amarillo, making the total cost over the period of one year to the city's largest consumer, the ice plant, less than one half the interest on the investment on one well.

FIRE TRUCK TO BE REPAIRED

Pampa is taking on the atmosphere of a small city in spite of a number of natural "hazards" between the "greens". The City Council has ordered the repair of the hose truck, according to Mayor Reid, who states that the fire department will be put in first class condition.

This truck has been out of commission for several months and the city was lucky that no fires have occurred. An effort is also being made to bring half to the increasing hazard of trash littered streets.

R. M. Beere, news editor of the Panhandle Oil Review and oil scout deluxe, was a visitor at the News office Thursday night. Mr. Beere, or Bobby as he is familiarly known to the oil world, says he is in a tight hole—no boost one oil company to such an extent in his paper that his mother invested a thousand dollars in its stock! Bobby says he's put them on notice and if they don't bring in a well there's going to be something doing.

Dr. A. Sawyer certainly takes his mail order catalogues seriously. One day last week the writer had the good fortune to visit the dr's office and inspect same with the guidance of Dr. Sawyer.

The Doctor obligingly explained the us for every article and instrument in sight. In the course of inspection we came to a large mail order catalogue of the sort Wm. Crawford and force always like to see come in. "I couldn't get along if it wasn't for mail order houses" stated the Doctor. "This catalogue serves as an ideal surface for preparing my clay or plaster paris model. When one sheet is soiled I simply tear it off and use the next. One large catalogue will ordinarily last several months."

Creamed Cauliflower

A cauliflower should be firm and white with outer leaves cut off. Boak the cauliflower head down for one hour in salt water. Drain and plunge into hot water and cook until tender. When done break into sections and make a cream dressing of two tablespoons of flour, and one and one-half cups of milk. Let boil for several minutes. Slice a gimento in thin slices and add to the cauliflower, pour over the dressing, sprinkle with paprika.

WIDER ROADS

The nation has approximately a half million miles of hard surfaced highways. If a decade ago someone had predicted that the country would be spanned by paved roads as it is, he would have been put down as a dreamer.

Good paved roads have brought heavy increases in traffic, which was undreamed of ten years ago, with the result that the biggest problem of the present is not so much more paved roads as wider roads.

Wider roads will be absolutely essential in the future to enable traffic to speed up and to avoid accidents. A slow moving truck or any slow vehicle will block traffic on a narrow road because there is no chance to pass such obstructions from the rear.

Many states are already remedying this situation by building shoulders on their paved highways to overcome the difficulties that narrow roads present.

It would seem to be wisdom to build the hard surfaced roads of the future wider than they are being built to care for the constantly increasing traffic needs.

Roadside signs leading to a small town of Colorado carry this advertisement of a haberdasher: "We retail shirts. Does yours need it?"

Mr. Z. H. Munday made a trip to Spearman this week in his new Dodge coupe.

Sammet Duncan has purchased 120 feet trackage east of the Pampa Grain company elevator from C. S. Barrett for $4,250. He plans to use this trackage for oil tanks in connection with the Texas Garage.

A full-page advertisement in the Saturday Evening Post now costs $7,500, if the same is confined to black and white. Printed in colors, the same space will cost $9,000. An increase in rates recently went into effect, yet big advertisers will continue to buy this space in liberal quantities because they know that advertising pays.

SAY TEXAS HAS HIGHWAY MATERIALS OF BEST GRADE

Road building materials of unusually good quality are well distributed over Texas and in practically inexhaustible quantities. This fact is shown by the thousands of samples of such materials which have been tested by the engineering experiment station of the University of Texas.

There are a great variety of these materials and they are found in nearly every part of the State. Some of the trunk highways are well favored in the matter of their building material being near at hand, while others are more or less remotely situated from the source of supply.

The tests prescribed for materials for road construction are rigid and by conforming to them a much better type of highway is now obtained than was the case in former years, it is stated.

$22,000,000 Gas Line to Denver May Be Started

An 18-inch gas line from the Panhandle fields to Denver, Colo., is to be laid by the Lone Star Gas Company, according to an announcement Monday by E. H. Conrad, chief engineer of the company.

In addition to this line, survey for which has been partially made, Mr. Conrad said the company was also considering the construction of a line from that city with Panhandle gas.

These two lines, together with the one now being constructed from the Panhandle fields to Wichita Falls, will aggregate a total of 1,000 miles. It is estimated the cost of one mile of eighteen-inch pipe is $22,000, so the construction program now proposed will call for an expenditure of $22,000,000.

According to Mr. Conrad the proposed route of the line to Denver will be north, through the edge of Kansas and thence into Colorado probably by way of Colorado Springs.

A large ditching machine arrived in Childress Sunday and was unloaded Monday morning, and it was said that work of laying the pipe north out of this city will begin at once.

A trainload of eighteen-inch pipe for the Lone Star Company arrived at Electra Sunday and was being unloaded for distribution Monday.

PANHANDLE—The road bond issue for $1,000,000 carried in the recent election in Carson county. The State will add $1,500,000 and eighty-six miles of concrete will be built in the county, placing it first among Plains County highway.

CLAUDE—Vocational work off boys will be added to the curriculum of the Claude high school next session. The school this year is twenty-one and total number of affiliated units in the school this year is twenty-one and one-half.

OLNEY—Thirty new members have been added to the local chamber of commerce, after a campaign by Karl Goodman, membership secretary of the West Texas organization and Merle Gruver, secretary of the Olney commercial club.

BIG SPRING—The main feature of the Big Spring dairy program for Saturday, July 31, will be "The Trail of a Scrub Bull", with legal assistance for the defense and the prosecution. Then registered bulls will be distributed among the communities of Howard county that day.

FLOYDADA—The Floydada City council has issued a twenty-year gas franchise to McMahan, Groadwell, & Tipton, Oklahoma City. The gas is being piped from the Amarillo field and will be ready for use by the first of the year. Tulsa, Kress, Plainview, Canyon, Abernathy, Lubbock, and Lockney will also be supplied by this company.

AMARILLO—$200,000 will be spent on the Amarillo Warehouse, Storage and Ice Company which has recently been purchased by the Home Oil and Gas company. Ice storage for fruits will be arranged, and ice cream factory built, and the ice manufacturing capacity increased to serve 200,000 people.

THERE are no cut prices to health. The best is none too good. So, when you buy cheap plumbing fixtures, and think you are saving money, you are not. You are losing money. And, what's worse, you are making your home a breeder of disease.

When you buy "Seconds," "Damaged," "Defective" plumbing goods, you buy trouble, sickness, death.

A cordial invitation is extended by this congregation to all strangers and visitors to attend the services Sunday. The bible school at 10:00 a. m. affords an excellent opportunity for the introducing of the entire family to the life of the church. There are classes for every member of the family. The minister will be in the pulpit at both services Sunday at 11:00 a. m. and 8:00 p. m. The preaching will be to the end that all will have a better understanding of the Word of God, and a greater desire to live it. The evening service will be evangelistic.

The members of the church are urged to keep the parsonage advised of homes having rooms vacant, and strangers and visitors seeking rooms may be able to readily secure them, by calling at the parsonage. We are anxious to be of all service possible. James Todd, Jr., Minister.

Herbert Graham also has a new Ford coupe.

Judge W. J. Townsend and Judge Fred K. Spurlock, both of Wichita Falls Texas, are visiting in Pampa this week. Judge Townsend states that they plan to open an office here if a space can be found. He further states that he knows this is an oil town—he paid two dollars for a cot, and not a very good one at that, the first night he was here.
