Thorndale.—During an electrical storm Saturday afternoon, lightning struck the residence of Will Heintze, one mile north of Thorndale, and set fire to a bed near a window. The family extinguished the flames before any damage was done.

Tahoka.—Robbers entered several business houses Saturday night at Wilson, a small town in the northern part of this county. Eleven tires were taken from the Dawson filling station, while the safe was taken from a dry goods firm. The safe was lifted out through a small window.

Austin.—Collections under the 1 cent gallon tax on gasoline for the month of July amounted to approximately $430,000, which is an increase of $23,000 over the previous month, according to the figures released Tuesday evening by the tax division of the comptroller's department.

Tucker, Lake Providence, La., and on another slip was cotton picking record bearing the name, Arthur Simmons. The man had been dead several days.

Logan, 29, suffered nothing more serious than a fractured left leg and severe cuts on the face and arms. Lying in a heap at the bottom of the stack, he was not rescued until a hole had been burned in the bottom of the stack with an acetylene torch.

Rio Grande City.—The first regular passenger train ever to enter Rio Grande City, consisting of private cars bearing officials of the Rio Grande City Railway, was welcomed here Monday by approximately 12,000 persons. After the arrival of a second train bearing delegations from Brownsville and San Antonio, the train was christened by Miss Lillie Monroe with waters from the Rio Grande.

Olney.—Passenger train No. 24, Wichita Falls & Southern railroad, was wrecked about a mile and a half north of Olney and immediately north of the Olney refinery at 10:30 Tuesday morning, killing Engineer J. W. Finn, instantly and injuring Fireman R. L. Durham, slightly.

OIL FIELD ACTIVITY IN THIS LOCALITY

The rig has been completed for the Young & Patrick No. 1 Byrum test, in the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 188 block 3, seven miles west of town. A two-inch line is now being laid from the Tipton McConnell gas well to the new rig to furnish gas for fuel. The well will probably be spudded in within the next few days.

Reports are current that negotiations are under way for the drilling of another test about three miles of town, but as yet nothing definite has been announced.

No drilling has been done at the Dancinger Oil Co., J. B. Bowers No. 1 the past two days owing to the prevailing wind blowing the gas toward the boilers. The gas production in this well is estimated at from 15 to 20 million cubic feet per day.

Drilling is going forward on the A. R. Anderson well in section 124 block B-2, Beavers-Bradford lands.

The last quarterly report given the state for tax purposes by the oil companies, shows the H. F. Wilcox-Pampa Oil & Gas Co., No. 1 well in the Combs & Worley ranch produced over 3,900 barrels of oil during the quarter.

SURVEY STARTED ON ROAD FROM CHILDRESS

The actual survey of the Fort Worth & Denver City Railway Company line to run north from Childress to a point in Beaver county, Okla., will start from Childress Wednesday morning, as planned Monday afternoon. All stakes and other material for making the survey have been concentrated at Childress and rapid progress is expected to be made by the engineers.

The surveying for this railroad will pass through Childress, Collingsworth, Wheeler, Hemphill and Lipscomb counties. The survey for the Fort Worth & Denver South Plains railroad has been completed below the caprock and the engineering corps stationed near Estelline will make the survey for the new line.

It is expected the new railroad will touch the towns of Wellington, Shamrock, Wheeler, Mobeetie, Canadian and perhaps run considerable to the west of the town of Lipscomb.—Childress Index.

OIL PROSPECTING UNDER WAY BY WILCOX COMPANY

(From Gaymon, Okla., Herald)
John L. Dickson and Wm. Garrett of Tulsa, Okla., representing the Wilcox Oil & Gas Company have been in Gaymon several days, and have set the stakes for two oil test wells. One of these is in section 23, township 3, range 14.

M. M. Valerius, the geologist for the company arrived in Gaymon recently and brought good news that the contracts for the rigs and equipment for both of these tests has been contracted for, and the material for same will be on the ground within a few days. The rigs will be the property of the Wilcox Company. Water for the tests at 28-3-145 will be pumped from the Beaver river not far from the rig. It is thought that oil sand will be found here at a depth of about 3100 feet, but the company's contracts call for drilling to a depth of 4,000 feet if necessary.

COMMERCIAL SHOWS RUNNING HERE NOW

The Commercial Shows carnival is playing here this week on lots near the electric light plant, to fair sized crowds.

This company has two rides, ferris wheel and merry-go-round, several shows, including the Monkey speedway, athletic show and illusion show which are drawing fair crowds. In spite of the busy season with the farmers.

A number of concession stands are also being operated by the company, including a restaurant, and various doll and blanket stands.

Larger crowds are expected to be in attendance the remainder of the week.

The carnival is running under the auspices of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, giving that organization a percentage on all the business done here.

Miss Elizabeth Stewart returned to Amarillo Wednesday.

FATALLY INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mrs. Dick Walker of this city was fatally injured at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon when the car in which she was riding, turned over eight miles west of Dalhart.

She was taken to a hospital at Dalhart where she died at 6 o'clock the same evening.

The car was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Beville, Jr., and baby of Clarendon and Mrs. Walker of this city, who is a sister of Mrs. Beville. The party had been to Colorado for an outing and were returning to this city when the tragedy occurred.

Mrs. Walker was driving the car at the time of the accident, and lost control when it struck some sand. The car is said to have been wrecked but none of the other occupants were injured.

When the tragic news of the accident reached here Mr. Walker departed for Dalhart, but a second message came stating that she had passed away at 6 o'clock, which cast a pall of sorrow over the entire community.

Deceased was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Baird of Clarendon, but formerly of this city. She was born at Mobeetie, March 13, 1898, but spent most of her childhood here. She graduated from the local high school and then attended Clarendon College, the family moving to that city about ten years ago. She was a member of the Methodist church, having joined when a small girl. She was united in marriage with Richard Walker five years ago, and for several years they had made their home on the Baird ranch, 12 miles east of town.

Mrs. Walker is survived by her husband, her mother and father and two sisters, Mrs. Beville and Miss Beulah of Amarillo.

Funeral services were held at the family home in Clarendon Tuesday morning and were attended by many friends of the family. Those from this city going to the funeral included Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Finley, Mesdames W. Purvisance, C. C. Dodd, A. H. Doucette, Dolly Barnhart, P. C. Ledrick, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. McMurtry, Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Pope, Mr. and Mrs. Mel Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Neal McCullough and Mrs. Clyde Fatheree.

Mrs. Walker had many friends here who mourn her untimely death. Her sweet disposition and charming manner endeared her to all who knew her, and her loss will be keenly felt in this community.

The many friends of the family extend tenderest sympathy in their bereavement.

FORMER TEACHER HERE MAKING GOOD RECORD

The State Life Bulletin, published by the State Life Insurance Company of Indianapolis, Ind., has the following to say regarding a former resident of this city, in a recent issue:

"From the plains of West Texas where he was principal of the Pampa High School Charles C. Bradshaw journeyed to Fort Worth and joined the State Life Agency of Newsom & Moore. Mr. Bradshaw had no experience in the life insurance business but his work in the classroom was ideal preparation for this work. So clearly did Mr. Bradshaw explain the value of State Life Complete Protection that he wrote 12 applications in July for a total of $24,750.00 and tied with Mr. W. A. Taylor of California for the leadership of Class D. Mr. Taylor is a veteran who qualified for the One Hundred Thousand Club in his first year and for the Two Hundred Thousand Club in his second year. It is Bradshaw's ambition to follow Mr. Taylor's trail."

JAMES TODD, Jr., Minister.

OFFICIAL PARTY HERE WEDNESDAY

The official party of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce arrived from Miami at 12:30 Wednesday noon, and were entertained at dinner at the Schneider hotel by a committee of the local Chamber of Commerce, after which a meeting was held at the high school auditorium, when several short talks were enjoyed.

Owing to the extremely busy season only a few farmers were in attendance, but those present together with a representative crowd of business men, spent an interesting and profitable hour.

After a selection by the orchestra Mayor F. P. Rely opened the meeting and asked Henry Ansley of the Amarillo Globe to take charge. He told his hearers that the time here was very limited as the party was expected at Wheeler at 4 o'clock, but that Col. R. Q. Lee, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce would be the first speaker, and would give a 30-minute talk on the poultry industry. Mr. Ansley then introduced Col. Lee, who stated that he had a rather long address on the subject of diversified farming, but owing to the lack of time, would only touch upon one of its important phases, the raising of poultry. He said that the few years ago he became interested in the poultry industry and made a trip to Petaluma, Calif., especially to gather first hand information of the business as conducted there. He was surprised at the magnitude of the industry, and the fact that most of the eggs produced there were marketed in New York City instead of on the Pacific coast as he had expected. He said that ten million dollars worth of eggs were shipped from that immediate community each year, besides those marketed closer to home. He found Petaluma a thriving town of 7,000 population, and bank resources of approximately sixteen million dollars, and the poultry industry was the main livelihood of the residents there. He studied their marketing system and their source of feed for the many thousands of birds and was again surprised to learn that much of the grain fed was milo maize and kaffir shipped there from the Panhandle of Texas. The land there being worth from $500 to $3,000 per acre, was too high priced to afford to raise feed on it when it could be shipped in at its present prices.

Colonel Lee told of when he was operating a country store years ago, that some of his customers would bring in a bucket of eggs via the back door, as they didn't want anyone to know that they were dealing in anything they considered so small as selling eggs. Now at his home town of Cisco they have organized the Bankhead Poultry Association, and had put the poultry business upon a solid foundation of business and profit and it was now considered good business to have some eggs to sell. He added that they were getting more for their poultry than heretofore, and were unable to much more than supply their immediate community with quality eggs, in which they specialize.

Besides being president of a bank and connected with other industries including a railroad, he is the owner of one of the largest poultry farms in the southwest, and is very enthusiastic about the future of the industry, and stated that he believed that no country in the nation was better adapted or more advantageously situated for the raising of poultry products than is the Panhandle country with its healthy climate and abundant feed crops.

B. M. Whitaker, agricultural agent of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, whose home is at Haskell, was the next speaker, and in a fifteen minute talk told his hearers the proper method to select seed from their milo maize and kaffir fields for planting. He told of exhaustive experiments made with selected seed and said that he was satisfied that seed properly selected for variety and uniformity would increase the yield from 500 to 2,000 pounds of grain per acre. He advised each farmer to select his own seed in preference to buying them from seed dealers, and told why it was so much better.

The meeting was then brought to a close by Henry Ansley who invited everyone in this community to attend the Tri-State Fair Exposition at Amarillo Sept. 26 to Oct. 1, and urged the stock raisers to market their cattle and hogs at the Western Packing (Continued on Last Page)

PROJECTS TO CREATE VAST LAKES ON RIVER

War department engineers, water conservation engineers and commissioners of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico are in session at Amarillo this week going over the matter of the proposed flood control measures and irrigation projects on the South Canadian river.

The meeting was arranged by A. S. Stinnett of Amarillo, who has taken the lead in this important project, and is being attended by prominent engineers including Gen. Geo. Goethals.

Sites for five dams are being considered along the Canadian, the first at or near Logan, N. M., the second in Oldham county, the third north of Amarillo in Potter county, the fourth in Hutchinson county near Kit Carson creek and the fifth at the Lockhart crossing in Roberts county, north of Pampa.

The sites for the dams are considered ideal by the engineers making the surveys. They estimate that each of the five dams would impound water sufficient to create lakes from 20 to 30 miles long at each site, furnishing sufficient water to irrigate many thousands of acres.

Engineers have estimated the cost of the five projects at five million dollars, and this amount will be asked of the next national Congress, as a flood prevention measure.

Mr. Stinnett, who is familiar with project from every angle, feels confident that the appropriation can be secured, as well as some state aid from the three or four states affected.

These gigantic lakes would be much to the Panhandle of Texas, as well as serving to control the flood damage below here on the river, where many thousands of dollars loss results each year from overflows.

REPORTS ARE GAME WARDEN DISMISSED

Press reports Wednesday were to the effect that B. D. Garmon, district deputy game warden has been removed from office by Turner Hubby, Texas chief game warden.

There is some talk of charges having been made against Mr. Garmon and some of his friends hunting quail out of season, which is being denied flatly by Mr. Garmon and a number of his supporters and friends.

Hints of the Klan and anti-Klan issue having some bearing on his dismissal have been heard. Walter Crosssett of Amarillo stated Wednesday that he intended to bring the matter before the Potter County grand jury in order to prove Mr. Garmon's innocence of the charge of killing quail out of season.

No announcement has been made of a successor having been appointed to take Mr. Garmon's place.

TOLL LINE CAPACITY WILL BE DOUBLED

For the past few years, especially since the oil prospecting has been under way here, the Southwestern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company's toll lines from here to Amarillo and more distant points have been congested.

To remedy this situation and also adequately care for the ever-increasing long distance business from here the company is now installing two additional copper circuits from Pampa into Amarillo, and on down to Sweetwater, where they will connect with the many trunk lines to Fort Worth, Dallas and other points, according to District Manager Hill, who was a business visitor here late last week.

The construction crew is coming this way from Amarillo and is composed of about thirty workmen, who will be here within the next few days.

Mr. Hill stated that their toll business from this station was very satisfactory, and they hoped to be able to render still better service when the additional lines are put to work.

These improvements which will cost $200,000, will double the capacity for long distance service from Pampa, which will be good news to the oil men, grain dealers and others who have much need for toll service. Mr. Hill stated that it would require about 30 more working days to complete the job.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Pope and daughter, Claudine, and Virginia Faulkner have returned from a few days' visit with Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Henry at Palo Duro.

KANSAS CITY STOCK MARKET

CHAS. M. PIPKIN, Market Correspondent

Kansas City Stock Market.—Following the moderate display of strength that occurred in the hog market late last week there was a 25 to 40 cent decline Monday that carried quotations back to the low point of last week. Receipts were moderate, but demand throughout the east was narrow. Fat steer prices were uneven, strong to a quarter higher, mostly strong. Stockers and feeders were 15 to 25 cents higher, cows and heifers 10 to 15 cents lower, and veal calves 50 cents lower. Lambs were 15 to 25 cents lower and sheep steady. Trade was active at the decline.

Monday's Receipts
Receipts Monday were 27,000 cattle, 6,500 hogs, and 10,000 sheep, compared with 26,000 cattle, 7,000 hogs and 10,000 sheep a week ago, and 30,200 cattle, 12,900 hogs, and 16,750 sheep a year ago.

Beef Steers

Prime and good to choice fed steers were lacking. Some good short fed steers at $12 to $13.25 were quoted strong to 25 cents higher, and the good grass fat and wintered steers were stronger. Most other classes were steady. Choice to prime steers had they been available, would have shown a material advance. The general trade however, indicated a stronger tendency, and some of last week's uneven decline will probably be eliminated this week. Fed cattle will remain scarce and they should make a quick recovery. Grass fat steers sold at $5.25 to $9.50, and wintered steers $9.25 to $11. Cows and heifers which remained firm last week broke 10 to 15 cents Monday, but at the decline trade was active. Light weight veal calves were 50 cents to $1 under last week's high time, best selling up to $12.

Stockers and Feeders
Fleshy feeders advanced 25 to 40 cents, and straight stockers and feeders were up 15 to 25 cents. Fleshy feeders suffered a severe decline last week. The per cent of straight feeders and stockers was larger than on preceding Mondays.

Hogs
Hog prices broke 25 to 40 cents Monday and quotations were returned to the low point last week, and were as low as at any previous time since early June. Normally the hog market should be advancing at this season of the year, but pork demand seems unable to carry the strain of higher prices. The top price Monday was $12.75, and bulk $12.40 to $12.70. Light weights sold at a premium over medium and heavy grades. Packing socks brought $10.75 to $11, and stock hogs and pigs $12.50 to $13.

Sheep and Lambs
Lamb prices were down 15 to 25 cents and sheep were steady Monday. Most of the offerings were eastern lambs that brought $14.25 to $14.50. Native lambs brought $13.75 to $14.25, and feeding lambs $13.50 to $14.25. About the only sheep offered was a bunch of Texas wethers at $8.25. The first Utah range lambs offered this season brought $14.50. The supply of western lambs will increase.

Horses and Mules
Receipts of horses and mules were slightly larger than on preceding Mondays but not sufficient to attract large demand. Prices held firm.

ANOTHER NEW WRINKLE
San Antonio.—General prohibition agents have discovered a new fangled container for bootleg liquor. The container consists of a box with two separate compartments, the top one filled with large white onions, while the bottom part hides the liquor. A false bottom to the box affords access to the liquor.

W. L. Woodward returned Tuesday night from a business trip to Santa Anna. He stated Thursday morning that he expected a shipment of pipe for the gas mains in here any day, as it had been shipped long enough to be showing up. The arrival of material is the only thing holding up work on the gas system at this time.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Murlee and daughter, Jeanne, returned home Wednesday from St. Louis and Chicago where they went to purchase fall clothing and ready-to-wear.

Rev. B. J. Osborn returned first of the week from Goldston, where he held a very successful meeting.

We'll bet the Alabama man who paid $160 for a queen bee got stung.

Our main objection to work is that there are so many other things to do first.

Texas and Wyoming aren't original.
The first state governed by a woman was the old Garden of Eden.

Secretary Kellogg says the administration will tolerate Mexico "only so long as it protects American lives and property." Gosh, suppose he says the same thing about Chicago.

We heard a story the other day about an editor having to be carried home on a stretcher as the result of having received a kind word over something he had printed. The shock simply unnerved him. But just as he reached his home someone came along and gave him a good cussing
about another article he had printed,
and he got up and returned to work.

One of the most appealing features about the county fair is the opportunity it offers the farmer to compare his own work with that of his neighbors and so inspires in him a healthy ambition to improve himself and his work. He is afforded the opportunity to examine the best animals,
grains, feeds, fruits and vegetables,
poultry and other products and determine where he falls short of the mark. Likewise his wife can pit her needlework, her baking and pastry,
her canned fruits and vegetables
against those of other women and enjoy the thrill and reward that comes of victory. Altogether, the country fair stimulates friendly competition that has been responsible for much of the farm progress in the past century.
It is to be regretted that Pampa will have no fair this year, but plans should be made early in 1926 for the biggest and best fair ever held here.

From an ethical standpoint it can fairly be claimed that the country press and small city dailies have a marked advantage over the big metropolitan newspapers. The smaller papers are conducted by their owners who are personally known to the people and business men of the community and read in nearly every family.
The owners, editors and publishers
are freer to express their honest convictions than the highly commercialized city press, too often run by hired employes, principally to earn dividends. The small daily or country weekly that lives up to its opportunities represents the stand of personal journalism in behalf of the community. As long as the small city dailies and country weeklies remain true to their best traditions, with their editorials devoted to constructive policies, their influence in journalism will increase.

In prehistoric times the world was inhabited by strange monsters, reptilian in structure, that fed off the tops of the trees. These giants became so huge that they literally ate themselves out of existence. There was not enough food in the world to support them, and they passed out of existence, leaving behind nothing but imprints in lime deposits that later solidified into hard rock. Our modern metropolitan cities might well be compared to the huge dinosaur. At present our great cities have become so large that streets are inadequate for the traffic transportation systems are overloaded, sanitation presents a perplexing question, a thousand and one problems seem to increase in geometric proportion as the city grows.
It is quite possible that the next half century may see our great cities outgrow their usefulness like the dinosaur. It is at least wise to say that the future will see a more extensive development of rural areas, the growth of many small industrial centers throughout the nation, and at least a slackening in the rate of big city development.

Among Our Exchanges

Spearman Reporter: This is the

Claude News: Occasionally one punishment, but let one of their near-

and they have changed their ideas
back to capital punishment post haste.

Clarendon News: General support of the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce means much to every institution in the city. It is manifestly fair that every business contribute its share to the cost of all community endeavor as well as its share of effort in putting things over. This is where the chamber of commerce comes in, for there is no other medium whereby community effort is so easily marshalled. It is your chamber of commerce.

Panhandle Herald: The Agricultural Department at Washington has just given out a report showing the net cost of cotton production in three cotton growing counties of the State.
It is shown that it cost 17c per pound of lint cotton in Rusk County in the eastern section of the State, and 13c
in Ellis County in the central portion of the State, while in Lubbock county on the South Plains, it cost 10c per pound. The report also shows that the acre production of lint in Rusk County was 171 pounds, Ellis County, 173 and Lubbock County, 183. This is proof that the growing of cotton
on the plains lands is no longer an experiment, but just a little ahead of any other section.

Elk City (Okla.) Press: A town prosper in proportion to the horse power and horse sense of its boosters.
Fine feathers do not make fine birds,
neither do fine pictures in a catalog make fine goods. Ask the peddler
the next time he sells you something where he will be when you want to make an adjustment on your purchase. Advertising opens the doors of knowledge to the buying public and the public wants it, expects, and is disappointed if it does not get it. If there's anything that proves the truth of the old saying, "anticipation is greater than realization," it's in ordering an article from a mail order house. The community ought not stand for a newspaper that does not stand for the community and nothing but unwarranted modesty keeps us
from stating the reverse of the proposition. The most apt illustration we ever heard of the soundness and value of advertising is the story of the lady who, when sailing out past
the Rock of Gibraltar, asked her husband where the insurance sign was.
Now you tell one.

got cured of one of his grouches the other day for good and for all time.
At least he says he is. Here is the way he tells it: "I have been very much opposed to the way our women folks dress in these latter days and I haven't hesitated to express my opposition. I have especially voiced it around the home and I haven't the least doubt but my wife and daughters grew very weary of hearing me talk on the subject. I was always harking back to the time of the sensible way women dressed 30 years ago.

"Now it happened that I married
just about 30 years ago and I was always talking about the modest and sensible way the ladies dressed at that time. I can see now that my wife had become threadbare on the subject and she determined to cure me. And she did, completely. The other night we were invited-out to a little social party where there was to be a dozen men and their wives. I got home early from my business, shaved, slicked down what hair I had and put on my Sunday suit. I took my seat in the parlor and waited for my wife. I grew a little impatient but finally as she came in, all my life
I have never been quite so shocked.
She had gone into her wardrobe and extracted therefrom a costume worn by her-on-her wedding trip to the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893. There she stood without the least smile on her face and announced she was ready. I sat glued to my chair. She had on a dress that dragged the floor and it had some kind of a founce on it that made it spread out like a fan behind. And I had forgotten about the bustles. She had on the largest one that I thought I had ever seen.
Although she afterward declared she had worn that identical one to the world's fair. And say, you should have seen how she was laced up in front. You could actually see the ridge of a whalebone under a close fitting basque. And I could have spanned her waist above the bustle.

"You would have laughed fit to kill to see how she had her hair fixed up and a most ridiculous hat on top that was sorter screwed to one side, and such a neckpiece as I thought had never been on land or sea. But while I was just getting ready to explode one of our daughters came in and handed me a picture of her mother taken on our bridaltrip. And I'm the biggest liar in ten states if she didn't have on the exact costume the picture showed she wore that day down on the midway when we posed for our pictures. She was insisting that she was ready and that we would be late for the party. But I didn't budge an inch and I never would have budged
if she hadn't seen I was cured and left the room. The girls helped her and she came back in a few moments
with a dress just striking her shoe ops, a pretty little hat, her lips had a touch of rouge, there was just a suspicion of paint on her cheeks, and I told her I never saw her look prettier in my life or more tastily dressed. I'm off the old style way of dressing."—Marshall News.

The Best Policy

A man was giving a lecture to a club on the subject of "honesty." He related that when a boy he saw a cart laden with melons outside a shop and nobody about. On the spur of the moment he stole a melon and started into a passage. "I soon got my teeth into that melon," he said, "but instantly a queer sensation assailed me and a shiver went through me. My resolve was taken at once. I went back to that cart and I replaced the melon—(loud applause)—and took a ripe one!"—Doherty News.

Wasted Breath

A Texas attorney was delivering a Fourth of July address. He had held forth prosily for nearly an hour, apparently without getting anywhere. At length he stopped, and then said in impressive tones: "I pause to ask myself a question."

A voice from the back of the hall shouted: "Better not. You'll only get a fool answer."

Remnant of the Miniature

"HALT! Who's there?"
Crash! A spurt of flame leaped from the muzzle of the sentinel's rifle, and the shadowy form that had committed the capital military crime—refusal to halt at a sentry's challenge—crumpled into a dark mass on the narrow footpath.

The sentinel snarped another cartridge into the chamber of his rifle and carefully watched the prostrate form at which he had fired, while he called loudly for the corporal of the guard.

Halting the approaching men until he was satisfied of their identity, he let them advance, and reported what had occurred to the noncommissioned officer of the guard.

Cautiously advancing to the prostrate figure holding his rifle at the ready, the corporal convinced himself that the man lying there was dead.

"A good shot, Jones," he muttered to the sentinel, as he knelt beside the body. "If one does not shoot straight the first time in this country his chance for ever firing again isn't much."

Striking a match against the stock of his rifle he stooped over the dead man.

"My God!" he exclaimed. "It's an officer!"

"I had to shoot!" said the sentinel. "He wouldn't halt and you know our orders."

"It's Captain Orden," said the corporal, in a whisper. "You did your duty—you had to shoot. But Orden! He knew the orders. Why—?"

The captain of the guard leaned his elbows on the rough boards of an improvised table, intently reading one of many letters that the monthly mail had brought him that day.

A candle stuck upright in its own grease flared fitfully, as a wandering breeze from Lake Lanao, shaking the rain-like dewdrops from the trees onto the damp canvas of the tent, stole in through the open flaps.

Suddenly the captain found himself on his feet, listening intently, while his right hand loosened his pistol in its holster. The slow pacing steps of the sentinel outside of the guard tent had stopped.

The sentinel in front of the tent caught a distant call. "Corporal of the Guard, Number Seven!" The tension relaxed, and in an instant a detachment of the guard was away at the double to Post Number Seven.

With an unconscious sigh of relief the captain turned to the table and refolded his letters, stuffing them in his pockets while he waited for a report of the cause of the single shot he had heard in the distance.

Soon the sound of the relief slowly returning was followed by a movement at the entrance of the tent. The sergeant of the guard entered.

"Captain Orden shot by Number Seven, sir," he reported. "He walked up on Number Seven and would not halt when challenged."

"Where is Captain Orden?" asked the captain of the guard.

"In his tent, sir," answered the sergeant.

"Take charge of the guard until I return," ordered the captain. "Have you notified the surgeon?"

"Yes, sir," the sergeant replied. "He is there now."

A few minutes later the captain of the guard met the regimental surgeon dropping the flaps of Orden's tent behind him as he emerged into the quiet company street.

"Good shot, that sentinel," said the surgeon, as he ran his fingers thoughtfully through his grayish beard. "Poor Orden never felt it. But he knew this camp like a book, captain. God knows we've been in the bushy place long enough for him to. Why should he deliberately walk up on Number Seven?"

"Who knows?" answered the captain, as he opened the flaps and entered the tent.

Orden's body was on his back, his right hand on his forehead, his left on the camp table. The captain noticed the tiny blue mark on the forehead, where the sentinel's bullet had found its target.

In warfare soldiers soon become indifferent to death, even accept it as a matter of course, but a wave of bitter sadness swept over the officer as he turned from his friend to the table.

A pile of letters lay there. One, open face down, seemed about to slip from the rough table to the ground. The officer picked up the sheet of heavy paper and turned it over.

A wedding announcement—he caught the name "Catherine" blazoned on its creamy surface as, with a flush and a feeling almost of surprise, he thrust it into an envelope that lay open beside it.

He noticed curiously that some of the other letters had been opened. A wandering breeze made the candle flicker as he turned to leave the tent, and his eye caught a wondrous gleam from something on the wooden floor.

He stooped to pick up what he saw to be the broken remnant of an exquisite miniature.

The beautiful face had been severed and twisted as if a frantic bee had driven it hard into the earth, but across the back of the lowest frame he could read the name "Catherine."

Finding it beside the others, the captain of the guard dropped the flaps of the tent behind him.

THAT MAIL ORDER HOUSE CONTRACT

Some of the weekly newspapers which come to our desk are refusing the advertising of the mail order houses and simply for the reason that they are competing with the home merchants.

Now we have been thinking for years that these mail order houses should help our home merchants support the local papers for the simple reason that they do not support anything else in the counties which are continually flooded with their goods. We all know that every family in the county has several mail order catalogs, and we also know that they are continually making use of them. Now pray tell us why their advertising should be rejected?

They are getting our county's money all the year round. As far as we're concerned we believe that these rich mail order houses should carry at least a page of advertising in every county paper in the Union every week. Say about $100 to $150 a month. This would help out a good deal; we could then pay the Chamber of Commerce five bucks where we pay them one, and it would help us to pay our dues to the P. T. A. and the several other organizations. We advertise other out of town business—so why not the mail order house be allowed to shoot in a one to two page ad? By heck, we'll give the Boy Scouts a treat on the first payment, and if we have anything left we'll go and pay the old grocery bill which is long past due, and several other bills we owe these merchants around here, who do not believe in advertising in their home papers.—Olney Enterprise.

MAGIC OF RODEO ROPERS

Wizards with iron wrists, who can send a lasso snapping through the air with the accuracy of a rifle bullet, will work their magic when famous ropers will meet at the Chicago Roundup and World's Championship Rodeo to be held for nine days, beginning August 15. A good portion of the prizes put up by the Chicago Association of Commerce, under whose auspices the cowboy contests will be held, is set aside for the ropers. Champions, past and present, have written Tex Austin that they will be on hand to compete for the awards and the world's championship title. Austin, who has put on many big rodeos, will direct the Chicago contests. A steer or calf in action makes remarkable speed and to send the loop of the lariat whipping through the air and to have it land unerringly around horns or neck is one of the most difficult of cowboy feats. To do this and then to throw and tie the animal must be the work of only a few seconds. The experts are bringing their own roping ponies, so intelligent and highly trained that some are almost priceless.

NO DAYLIGHT SAVING HERE

Many are the tricks resorted to by the "outlaw" horse to throw his rider. Pitching, bucking every second of the time he is in the arena, the broncho struggles furiously to win the decision. No buckaroo must "show daylight" between himself and his saddle, or he is disqualified.

The sport of sports is the real cowboy contest, and titles for the leadership in riding, "bulldozing" and roping will go to the buckaroos and cowboys who compete in the Chicago Roundup and World's Championship Rodeo, which will bring nine days of frontier life to the metropolis beginning August 15. Tex Austin, famous for successful rodeos he has held, will direct the events.

THREE REAL CHAMPIONS

(Copyright by H. H. Doubleday.)

"Expert and daring" leaders in the great sport to which they have brought fame, are the cowgirls from the western ranges who will compete in the Chicago Roundup and World's Championship Rodeo, to be held for nine days beginning August 15. Champions past and present, as well as new voices after fame, will add thrills to the cowboy contests which will be presented in the new $5,000,000 stadium under the auspices of the Chicago Association of Commerce. A group of these cowgirls started the small Britisher when they appeared in the International Championship held by Tex Austin at Wembley, England, recently, and the same champions will compete in the Chicago spectacle. Austin is organizing the Chicago roundup and will manage it, and the $50,000 in prizes is the largest amount offered for any contest this year.

National Marketing the Solution of Farm Problem

Following is a speech delivered by B. P. Yoakum, under the auspices of the Texas Wheat Growers Association at Amarillo Wednesday of this week: Permit me to thank you for the cordial invitation extended me through your president, Judge L. Gough. Only circumstances over which I have no control could prevent my responding to a call to associate myself with any effort for the betterment of agricultural conditions in Texas.

If I have accomplished anything worth while it is due to my native State. Any credit given to me by ever-generous friends I owe to my good fortune of being a native Texan, thereby inheriting a birthright that any American is justified in esteeming a rare gift.

If I can repay even a small amount of the debt I owe to Texas by aiding the farmers of the State in their struggle for a fair and equitable share of the great wealth their foresight, industry and intelligence contribute to the Nation I shall feel well repaid for my efforts.

Those attending this convention are assembled to consider a problem of the greatest importance to every man and woman and to every business, big or little.

First Experience in Marketing

It was 19 years ago, at a small railroad station on the Rock Island in Oklahoma that I talked to a farmer loading a car with exceptionally fine watermelons which he had sold for 5 cents each. These melons were shipped to St. Paul. Through the railroad agent I had their sale and distribution through the different dealers and retailers checked. The marketing result of this farmer's transaction was as follows:

The farmer received, per melon, 5c; the railroad received 12c. Cost per melon delivered at St. Paul 17c. The consumer paid from 75c to $1 per melon, or an average of 85c. Profits, commissions, etc. 68c.

This marked my first lesson in the study of marketing farm products. Since then I have made hundreds of personal investigations and have found that the farmers have greater injustice heaped upon them than any other class of our citizenship and it is steadily growing worse.

My first speech on farm marketing was made at Dallas, Texas, 18 years ago. I advocated then and have consistently advocated ever since the same remedy for the farm solution that I am advocating today. I knew I was right 18 years ago and I know I am right today.

My earlier speeches were listened to by some Texans who have since been most consistent in their support of aggressive agriculture, among whom are Judge L. Gough, of Amarillo; Col. Frank P. Holland of Dallas; Col. H. T. Fryer of San Antonio, and Frank Andrews of Houston.

Barometer of All Business

Farming is not only the supporting industry of the Nation. It is also the barometer of business conditions every year. When crops are short in any section of the country that section suffers. When crop shortage is general hard times follow. Therefore all of our business prosperity and depression is dependent upon the farmer's condition.

The fact is well established that on an average the farmer does not receive more than one-third of the prices consumers pay for their products. While on many commodities there is a spread of from 200 to 500 per cent between the prices the farmers receive and the prices the consumers pay.

This is not accounted for by reason of the small retail dealer growing rich on unjust profits. It is because there are too many of them engaged in distribution who must live and support their families from the profits taken between the farmers and consumers.

Under the existing system of marketing farm products pass through too many hands. A profit to all is necessary for them to live. The present basic, unscientific system of marketing the products of the farmers has resulted in an army of leeches that must sap the life blood of the farmers in order to live. Only by taking it out of the farmer at one end and the consumer at the other can they get a living. To put it another way: From the closest investigation there are 15 million food dealer population and 10 million farm population or 1 1/2 farm population to 1 dealer population. This is a load that no one class can carry and hope to live with prosper.

Too Many Profits

A very enlightening illustration of how the present marketing system is operated to provide a living for the vast army of people who live off of the farmer is given by the Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt from his personal knowledge, who furnished me this statement of facts: Mr. Roosevelt following the distribution of a crate of celery from a carload shipped from Norfolk, Va., to New York City. The producer received, per crate 40c; sold by commission man No. 1, per crate 60c; sold to commission man No. 2, 75c; sold to commission man No. 3, 90c; sold by Bronx commission man for $1.05; sold by Bronx commission man to local district commission man, per crate 1.15; sold by district commission man to a buyer for grocery stores, per crate $1.25; sold over the telephone to other grocery stores $1.35; sold by retail grocers to consumers for $2.60, or 600 per cent more than the producer was paid. There were seven commissions and seven profits between the producer and the consumer.

In this carefully made observation by Mr. Roosevelt is to be found the farmers. This simple statement contains more common-sense information as to the cause why many thousands of farmers have lost their homes and are suffering from bankruptcy and family distress, is contained in all the volumes on the shelves of the bookcases in Washington, D. C., compiled by committees appointed to investigate the farmer and his business.

Potato Production

Consider also for a moment the white potato industry. The farm value of the potato crop of 1924 was 262 million dollars. 58 cents for 454 million bushels. The average price paid by consumers was $2.25 a bushel.

Under a national marketing system controlling distribution and marketing and allowing 300 million dollars for cost of distribution and marketing, the farmers would have been ahead 600 million dollars, based upon the total crop, or in proportion to the potatoes marketed.

The present unorganized situation continues the dealers in absolute control of production, distribution and consumption, and under these conditions the farmers of each state are working into the hands of and helping the dealers take an undue toll from themselves, as well as the farmers of their sister states.

The potato is a national food product. Eighty per cent of its distribution by railroad is interstate traffic. Certainly no one can seriously claim that any state or local co-operative organization can control the distribution or price of an interstate food commodity, nor can any co-operative law be enacted that can confer the power to control marketing conditions between states.

Eighty per cent of potato shipments being interstate, the moment they reach the railroad station and a bill of lading is issued they become traffic between the states. There are 275 local potato organizations in the different states, all trying through local organizations to protect the farmers from a calamity that is distributed through the United States without having an interstate marketing organization to control either distribution or marketing.

There is no way to correct this wrong except to permit the farmers to sell that which belongs to them under a federal charter granted by Congress under which they can organize nationally to cut out the unnecessary middle-man, through a national system of "farmer control" of marketing, controlled and managed by the farmers without any interference by the Government.

Men and women engaged in any other business in the world would not stand for a marketing system that robs them of all their profits and deprives them of enough money to live and enjoy the comforts of life as others do.

Local or state co-operative marketing systems can not supply the remedy. The solution can be found only in national co-operative commodity systems of distribution and marketing through central commodity selling agencies. The whole meaning and intent of co-operation from the farmer's standpoint, is to handle their own business and keep it under their own control until its final disposition to the consumer, cutting out all unnecessary middle expenses, profits and commissions.

Selfish Interests Obstruct

Large and powerful interests dealing in farm products and some of the men behind them know perfectly well that the farmers of the nation are financially unable to finance and organize a national system of marketing.

These interests know the obstacles that confront the farmers and prevent them from enjoying the profits that are rightfully theirs. They know that Congress must first enact a law on abling farm commodity growers to organize a National Marketing System. They know that to enact such a permissive law the powerful influence that reaches Congress in its various forms must be overcome.

They know the expense of holding conventions and conferences of farm representatives in every farming community in every state and sending farm representatives to discuss and explain the system and its advantage to farmers would call for considerable money and that the farmers as a whole have not the money.

They know that a consolidation of any big industrial enterprise requires large sums of money for organization, starting operation and other necessary legitimate expenses. They also know if a combination of industrial enterprises involving a hundred million dollars is consolidated, enabling those interested to control distribution and marketing, and placed in efficient operation at an expense of ten million dollars, no one can find fault.

They know that farmers producing Irish potatoes in Texas can not prevent the farmers of Oklahoma, Colorado, Idaho and other states from selling their potatoes at any price the dealers may force them to accept.

They know that breaking down the price of potatoes in any one of the large potato producing states is used to break down the farmers' prices in every other state. They know that there is no nationally organized machinery under which the farmers can protect their interest against the nationally organized dealers and distributors. Knowing all these facts these interests in devious ways discourage and prevent, if possible, the farmer from organizing for his own protection.

The United States and State Governments, in what is termed "field work" spend about 16 million dollars a year sending experts and young students of agriculture through the country to teach the farmers how to pursue an unprofitable business. If part of these millions of dollars the government is expending toward the education of girls and boys in agricultural colleges were spent in training them how to sell their production as well as how to produce, it would be of the greatest benefit to the farming industry. Unded such training agricultural boys and girls of 20 years ago would have been trained to direct a great National Marketing System.

Under such training the disasters of the last five years, causing financial ruin and loss of thousands of homes to the farmers under mortgaged foreclosures, could not have occurred.

It is never too late to correct a national mistake and if agricultural institutions of the states would inaugurate along practical lines a training system in the distribution and marketing of products of the farm, it would result in giving to the students knowledge in the conduct of the farming industry that no combination of wealth or politics could defeat.

MOTION PICTURE OF BIGGEST ROAD JOB

Dynamite, blasting powder, steam, hydraulic nozzle, compressed air, prot, steel, and cement became the tools of the road builder when engineers of the Bureau of Public Roads undertook to build a modern highway through the rugged Cuyama Valley in southern California and found themselves tackling the heaviest road construction job in the West. The building of the Cuyama Road is graphically depicted in the new United States Department of Agriculture educational motion picture, "The Road Goes Through."

The old road through the Cuyama followed the course of the Cuyama River and fluted the stream nearly 75 times. The flood waters of this river endangered the lives of travelers, keeping the road closed at certain seasons, and the treacherous Cuyama exacted a perpetual challenge to man. Federal engineers accepted this challenge and conceived a new road to be carved in the mountainside a thousand feet above the river bed, that would be open to traffic 12 months every year.

Large quantities of dynamite and blasting powder were employed to "shoot" the right of way and enormous "fills" were made with rock and earth of the mountain sides. When the alkali waters of the Cuyama put some of the steam boilers out of commission air compressors were installed to operate the steel jaws of the shovels. Modern concrete bridges were built to span the gullies, which became roaring torrents during rainy seasons.

Barrier after barrier was met and overcome, and in the end the skill and industry of the road builder triumphed over nature and the Cuyama Road went through.

Whatever one may think of General Duesen, we will honor the great deal he will not excuse such popular enthusiasm over a plan to speed up the Senate in passing more laws.

The Sin of Omission
It isn't the things you do, dear,
It's the thing you leave undone,
Which gives you a bit of heartache
At the setting of the sun.
The tender word forgotten,
The letter you did not write,
The flower you might have sent, dear
Are your haunting ghosts at night.
The stone you might have lifted
Out of a brother's way,
The bit of hearsome counsel
You were hurried too much to say;
The loving touch of the hand, dear,
The gentle and winsome tone,
That you had no time nor thought for
With troubles of your own.
The little acts of kindness,
So easy out of mind;
Those chances to be angels
Which everyone may find;
They come in night and silence—
Each chill, reproachful wrath—
When hope is faint and flagging
And a blight has dropped on faith,
And sorrow is all too great;
For life is all too short, dear,
So suffer our great compassion
That tarries until too late;
And it's not the thing you do, dear,
It's the thing you've left undone,
Which gives you a bit of heartache
At the setting of the sun.
—Margaret Sangster.

Watch Your Diet, Says Prima Donna

Cyrena Van Gordon, prima donna of the Chicago Opera company, believes in the proper and her privileges. She believes in the practice of this much-discussed person in wearing no corsets, in wearing short skirts, going in for athletics and outdoor life and in thoroughly opening the theories and practices of her mother and grandmother.

Miss Van Gordon, who is, in private life, Mrs. S. Fagan, says, the wife of Doctor S. B. Munn, says that all of these things are woman's right and are necessary if a woman is anxious to keep her youth and beauty. Her exercise is not the only thing that is necessary for the woman who is desirous of being attractive. She must watch her diet and be careful not to eat anything that will, in any way, be fattening.

There are certain dishes to which Miss Van Gordon is partial and to which she gives the credit for the retention of her beauty. These dishes she prefers to prepare herself and when on tour with the Chicago Opera company, she carries a small electric stove in order that she will not be deprived of the food she deems necessary. These dishes are easily prepared.

- Miss Van Gordon uses for Colony and Cheesecake Casserole.
- 1 cup cheese
  - 1 cup chopped celery
  - 1 cup evaporated milk
  - 1/2 cup water
  - 1/2 cup flour
  - 1/2 cup butter
  - 1 cup cooked egg-casserole
  - 1/2 cup buttered bread crumbs
  - 1/2 cup salt
- She makes white sauce of milk, water, butter, flour, and salt, and mixes it with all ingredients except crumbs. She then places it in an oiled baking dish and covers with crumbs, baking in a moderate oven until brown.
- Chicken à la King.
- 1 cup cold chicken, sliced
  - 1/2 cup butter
  - 1/2 cup flour
  - 1/2 cup green pepper, chopped
  - 1 egg yolk, stirred
  - 1 cup evaporated milk
  - 1/2 cup mushrooms
  - 1 cup chicken broth
  - 1 egg yolk, stirred
  - Salt and pepper
- Cook the pepper (save mushrooms) if they are used in the butter for 10 minutes, keeping them covered with cooking liquid. Add the flour and mix well; add the milk and broth. Stir to a smooth sauce. Put chicken in sauce to heat, and just before serving stir in beaten egg yolk. Cook in double boiler to prevent curdling.

FARM RADIO PROGRAMS WILL BE BROADCAST

The R. F. D. Club, a radio program for the farm people every Monday evening and Wednesday noon over WFAA is announced by A. K. Short, formerly of A. & M. College and now director of the S.R. Agricultural Foundation.

"Radio can be made to mean more to the farm people than to any other class," states director Short. We invite every agricultural agency in the state to help us make this program a real service to the rural southwest," he states.

To become a member of the R. F. D. Club, farm listeners must make a suggestion for the betterment of the club programs. It is the intention to invite the listeners to build the programs.

At 8:30 on Monday evening and at 12:30 Wednesday noon, the R. F. D. Club programs of the Agricultural Foundation will open with the gong of the old heel sweep—the same as that used on the farms of the southwest to call the men from the fields.

The Monday evening programs will be built around the most timely agricultural subject of the season. Some of the programs planned are co-operative marketing, cotton seed selection, poultry culling and boys and girls club work.

On cotton night, the music for the program will be folk songs of the cotton fields of the south.

A farm question box will be a feature of the noon-day program every Wednesday at 12:30. Director Short invites the members of the R. F. D. Club to send in their questions to be answered over radio.
