Wintry Weather Arrives

A cold front moved into the Panhandle during the night while area residents were sleeping off the affects of too much turkey and relaxing muscles, tired from a whole day of football, television style.

Blowing snow began in the western Panhandle, moving southeast and engulfing the Top O' Texas in a curtain of whirling powdery flakes before sunrise.

Little accumulation was visible early today, but the Amarillo Weather Service branch had issued travelers warnings for the eastern edge of New Mexico, Oklahoma Panhandle and the Texas Panhandle.

Weathermen were predicting more of the same for the remainder of the day. Temperatures were expected to hover below the freezing level, but snow accumulation was expected to be light. A clearing trend for the later hours today was expected.

Temperatures on Thursday climbed to a chilly 36 degrees before plunging to a low of 21 degrees early today. Northerly winds sent the chill index well below zero, marking the end of an exceptionally fair autumn in 1974.

"There's about an inch of snow," said Betty Foster, receptionist at Dr. A.S. Abdullah's veterinary clinic in Dalhart.

"It's 20 degrees and the wind's blowing. Business seems to be normal," she said. "There's not as many people stirring, but that's partly because it's the day after Thanksgiving."

Light rain was forecast for most of the state today with traces of snow expected in West and Northwest Texas. The temperature dropped into the teens in the Panhandle, into the 40-45 degree range in Central Texas and the 60s in South Texas.

The cold front reached Wichita Falls and Abilene by 6 p.m. Thursday and was expected to hit the Gulf Coast by 6 p.m. today.

Midwesterners donned caps, boots and mufflers early today in a continuous light snowfall and near-zero temperatures in the Plains, lower Rockies, Great Lakes, Ohio Valley, and Minnesota, Kansas and Missouri.

Shoppers Get Warning On Parcel Thefts

Crisp and cold weather stirred the Christmas spirit among Pampanos today as the holiday season came alive and the calendar showed only 20 more shopping days remain.

Along with early morning snow hurries came the annual warning from police and sheriff departments for shoppers to protect Christmas packages from theft.

In past years there have been thefts of parcels from unlocked automobiles.

Motorists should lock cars and place Christmas packages out of sight — preferably in the automobile trunk, according to the police arm.

Another sure sign of the approaching Christmas holiday will be the appearance of Salvation Army kettle stations where the public can make contributions to the Christmas fund for indigent families.

Three stations will be located at points downtown in front of the Woolworth store at Cuyler and Kingsmill, at Gibson's Discount Center and at Dunlap's store in Coronado Center, beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday.

According to Capt. Bart Degg of the local Salvation Army post, money contributed goes to buy food and toys for less fortunate families so they may have a merry Christmas.

WINTRY MESSAGE — Gail Wilkins, sophomore student at Pampa High School, took time out from her downtown visit this morning to write a winter message on a card window covered by snow — 21 degrees, the low recorded this morning as a cold front sliced through the Panhandle. Ford Plans Visit To China In 1975

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will visit the People's Republic of China in 1975, the United States and China announced jointly today at the conclusion of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's visit to Peking.

Ford's scheduled visit to China, the second for an American president since President Richard M. Nixon went to Peking in 1972, was announced simultaneously by the White House and the Chinese government.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen quoted Ford as saying of the trip:

"I look forward to visiting the People's Republic of China some time next year and to continuing the process of normalizing our relations."

It will not be Ford's first trip to China. He went to Peking in the summer of 1972 with a congressional delegation.

The joint announcement, issued at the end of Kissinger's sixth visit to China since July 1971, said:

"The U.S. and Chinese sides held frank, wide-ranging and mutually beneficial talks. They reaffirmed their unchanged commitment to the principals of the Chang Hai communique. The two governments agreed that President Gerald R. Ford would visit the People's Republic of China in 1975."

The Chang Hai communique was issued at the conclusion of Nixon's eight-day trip to China in February, 1972. It called for making U.S.-China relations more normal and the United States promised to reduce its military forces on Taiwan as tension in the area diminished.

An official aboard Kissinger's plane said the idea of another presidential trip to Peking was raised by the Chinese shortly after Kissinger arrived in Peking Monday. The trip was scheduled Wednesday after Kissinger checked with Ford in a telephone call, the official said.

Neither side gave a specific reason for the visit. But the issue of Taiwan, the seat of the Nationalist government of China, remains a serious and unsettled problem in U.S.-Chinese relations.

The People's Republic of China considers Taiwan an integral part of its territory. The United States, on the other hand, maintains full diplomatic relations with the government of Taiwan as well as a defense treaty.

Under the Nixon administration, the United States sought to keep the Taiwan problem on a back burner, hoping that eventually the leaders in Taiwan and the leaders in Peking might hold talks which could eventually resolve their differences.

Ford, who returned earlier this week from a trip to the Far East and a summit meeting with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, meanwhile was awaiting a message documenting the new tentative U.S.-Soviet agreement to put a ceiling on each country's offensive nuclear weapons.

Doctors Say Nixon 'Unable To Testify'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A panel of three physicians said today that ailing former President Richard M. Nixon is unable to testify in the Watergate cover-up trial and probably would not be able to until Feb. 16, 1975.

The specialists, who examined the former President at the request of U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, also reported that Nixon would be unable to make a deposition until Jan. 6, 1975, and then only in two daily sessions of one hour each.

The report, which was issued unanimously by the three doctors, threw considerable doubt on whether the former President's testimony will be available for the trial of five former Nixon aides, which had been expected to conclude before Christmas.

Nixon, who has been hospitalized twice since he resigned from the presidency last Aug. 9, was examined personally at his San Clemente, Calif., home by the three court appointed physicians. He has been subpoenaed to testify at the trial by his former No. 2 White House aide, defendant John D. Ehrlichman.

The 3-page physicians report to Sirica said:

1. Mr. Nixon is not personally able to travel to Washington to testify.

2. It is difficult to predict with accuracy when such a trip to Washington, D.C. might be accomplished without excessive risk. If recovery proceeds at the anticipated rate, and there are no further complications, we would estimate that such a trip be possible by Feb. 16, 1975.

3. Mr. Nixon is not presently able to appear and testify at a site near his home.

4. His recovery proceeds at the anticipated rate, and there are no further complications, we would estimate that he should be able to testify at a courtroom near his home by Feb. 2, 1975.

5. Mr. Nixon is not presently able to be deposed by the parties in this case.

6. If recovery proceeds at the anticipated rate, and there are no further complications, we would estimate that he should be able to give a deposition in his home by Jan. 6, 1975.

7. If a deposition is to be taken as described in response to (6) above, we suggest it be obtained in no more than two daily sessions of no longer than one hour each. There should be adequate opportunity for rest between sessions. A physician should be in attendance to monitor Mr. Nixon's condition during the taking of a deposition."

Nixon's former top aide, H.R. Haldeman, testified earlier in the day that after he resigned as White House chief of staff in 1973, he took several Watergate tape recordings home and listened to one of them at Nixon's direction.

Haldeman, who described his job at the White House as "the one person totally available to the President day and night," testified that he listened last year to two White House tape recordings of conversations between Nixon and former White House counsel John Dean. He said he listened to one of them before he resigned April 30, 1973, and the other afterwards.

Haldeman said he spent two tedious days shortly before his resignation listening to a tape made on March 21, 1973. Then, he said, he returned to Washington from California the following July and at Nixon's suggestion took several tapes to his Georgetown house.

But, he said, he listened only to a Sept. 15, 1972 tape at that time.

In the Sept. 15 conversation, Dean claims Nixon congratulated him for containing the original Watergate investigation. On March 21, Dean claims he warned Nixon of a "growing cancer" on the presidency.

Sirica appointed the medical panel to determine whether the former president, who underwent emergency surgery a month ago for treatment of phlebitis, has recovered enough to fly to Washington and testify. He is wanted by both prosecution and defense attorneys as a witness in the trial of five of his former White House and campaign aides.

Sirica also wanted to know whether, as an alternative, Nixon might be able to give a deposition at his home or appear at a nearby courthouse where the entire court might transfer to hear him.

Former White House domestic adviser John D. Ehrlichman says Nixon's testimony is essential to support his claim of innocence against charges of conspiracy obstruction of justice.

Mitchell's cross-examination by chief Prosecutor James F. Neal on Wednesday produced some of the sharpest exchanges of the trial, riveting in dramatic impact the playing of many previously secret White House tapes.

Haldeman's lawyer has estimated his defense will require only two or three days. Haldeman's cross-examination will be led by assistant Watergate prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste.

Sirica remarked two days ago he still believed the trial would be finished by his original deadline of Christmas. If Nixon should be unable to testify, Sirica probably will be right.

US Population Heads Toward Zero Growth

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — U.S. population growth has fallen below one per cent a year and appears to be dropping toward zero, according to a United Nations report.

The Economic and Social Council put U.S. population growth at 0.9 per cent annually for the first four years of the 1970s—a drop from 1.3 per cent a year in the previous decade.

The council said young American couples anticipated an average of 2.3 children in a family, just above the 2.2 replacement level. It also reported a slowdown in immigration.

The United States, the report said, appeared "to be approaching a natural rate of increase close to zero."

Although much of the council's data was more than a year old, the report said the last two years had seen some reduction in violent crime in American cities.

The report said the increase in crime at the start of the decade was due to a rise in heroin use, but "it is possible that drug addiction in the United States has passed its peak."

The council said one reason for the drop in population growth was an increase in Americans living alone. It said the number of persons alone rose from 11.9 million in 1970 to 14 million in 1973.

Another significant factor in the drop in population growth was a change in the distribution of age groups.

The report said the number of children under five years of age dropped from 8.9 per cent in 1968 to 7.8 per cent in 1973, while the proportion of people over 65 rose from 9.5 per cent in 1965 to 10.1 in 1973.

Educational Needs Meetings Planned

In compliance by a request by the office of the governor to the Regional Education Service Centers in the state, a series of meetings has been scheduled in Amarillo.

The proposals and requests of the needs in the educational field will be discussed and recommendations developed for the governor. Reactions by various audiences regarding these proposals will be analyzed.

After the meeting are concluded, the proposals and feedback from the public and the professions will be presented to the governor for his consideration.

During late December and early January, a committee will be working with the governor in finalizing his plan for financing public education for presentation to the legislature.

Area meetings are set for Dec. 2 when Parents Teachers Association members and lay citizens interested in the financing of public education will convene at 7:30 p.m. in the Education Service Center, Region XVI, 1601 S. Cleveland.

A "working hours" meeting with superintendents of the region will be conducted at the same location on Dec. 3, with a meeting of school board members to convene at 7:30 p.m.

Members of the Pampa school board will attend the meeting, according to Paul Simmons, president.

Dr. Dan Long, superintendent of schools, has issued an appeal to district lay persons to plan to attend the Dec. 2 session. These meetings will concern everyone in the state, according to information of the school board and administration.

Area of financing are to be explored before legislation is considered.

"Now is the time to look at it," Dr. Long told board members.

IRA Banned In Britain

LONDON (UPI) — Parliament and Queen Elizabeth today outlawed the Irish Republican Army and gave the police wider emergency powers to arrest and hold suspected bombers and terrorists.

Scotland Yard maintained tight security throughout the capital against retaliatory IRA attacks.

The anti-IRA bill received an unopposed third and final reading in the House of Commons after a marathon 17 hours of debate. The House of Lords gave it rubber stamp approval less than 15 minutes after receiving it and sent it to Queen Elizabeth, who signed it.

Despite a night of criticism by opposition legislators calling the measure too soft, the bill went through the House of Commons unopposed on its third and final reading.

Scotland Yard warned Britons to guard against reprisal bombings. A series of blasts has wounded 29

Londoners since the IRA crackdown was announced Monday.

Worried London mailmen, fearing a new outbreak of letter bombs, refused to handle packages to and from Ireland.

Despite the delaying tactics of some legislators, the House of Commons passed the "Prevention of Terrorism" bill and armed police with wide powers to seize IRA suspects.

The government drafted the bill following bomb attacks in Birmingham last week that killed 20 persons. Police blamed the IRA for the blasts.

Bomb blasts have killed 49 persons and injured more than 800 in Britain in the past two years as part of an IRA campaign to end British rule in Northern Ireland.

The government-sponsored bill makes the IRA illegal in Britain for the first time and bans wearing of IRA uniforms. It also gives authorities power to bar or expel IRA suspects from Britain.

Spokesmen for all parties united to support the crackdown in Parliament.

The objections came from individual members demanding a doubling of the maximum five-years imprisonment for membership in the IRA and seeking to give the police even tougher powers.

Northern Ireland members complained the expulsion measures had the effect of treating Northern Ireland like a foreign country and asked for changes.

But political sources said the final bill would go on the statute books along the broad lines sought by Home Secretary Roy Jenkins.

"I have not claimed and do not claim now that the proscription of the IRA will of itself reduce these terrorist outrages," Jenins told Parliament. "But the public should no longer have to endure the affront of public demonstrations in support of that body."

Libertarianism's Boost

Newsweek Magazine devotes a page of space in the current issue to the Libertarian philosophy, and the significance of it all is that they are not laughing any more.

In the past, Newsweek and Time delighted in taking cheap shots particularly at our late founder, R.B. Hoiles. Their articles usually contained numerous factual errors and there always was a slant to the writing designed to create the impression that R.C.'s mind dwelled in the stone age.

Freedom Newspaper commentary was and remains of the Libertarian persuasion, voluntarism, as R.C. Hoiles liked to put it. We quietly and peacefully encouraged individuals to think for themselves and do for themselves while the national slick news media snickered and gave rave notices to socialist programs and the burgeoning political bureaucracy.

But a funny thing has happened on the way to economic disaster, people have started thinking for themselves, and the libertarian idea has been discovered by a national magazine as a topic worth serious mentions.

The Newsweek article is not without its usual twist, but is more cautious than previous stories. The article suggests a poker player who thinks the other guy is bluffing, but he can't quite make up his mind to call the hand.

The article refers to the libertarian "utopia," which shows they really don't understand the philosophy at all. Libertarians do not preach utopia — that is a socialist myth.

Libertarians are mostly realists who know that life is trouble, that problems always will be with us and that some will always get more of the economic pie than will others.

And we believe that the best way to approach the problems is for individuals to be free to make their own decisions. The best way to promote harmony among individuals is to recognize them as sovereign beings.

The opposite of libertarian thought is the philosophy of the all powerful state which reduces individuals to cyphers to be manipulated by politicians and bureaucrats and the responsibility of everyone.

The fact that this is contrary to human nature is overcome temporarily by the force of government which can punish or threaten to punish all who do not conform.

What has caused the libertarian idea to emerge as a point of view to be more widely recognized is the simple fact that political statism is failing, and slowly more individuals have begun to understand that.

The fact that only 38 percent of the registered voters turned out nationally in the recent election is clearly an indication that politicians no longer enjoy the confidence of the people.

Politicians will rationalize the trend with such suggestions as a "turn off" because of Watergate, but we believe it is more than that. It is more logical to assume that if individuals believed that candidate X could actually solve the problems, voters would sweep him into office. That simply did not happen in the last election, and we suspect a better explanation is that more individuals are looking for alternatives.

Exposure of the Libertarian idea in a national news magazine, surface job that it was, will no doubt cause others to think in that direction.

The most helpful portion of the Newsweek article was grudgingly reported: "Libertarianism at least has the virtue of consistency — a quality that is winning converts from the grays of political moderation."

What a greater virtue can one desire? A society grown weary and disillusioned over the lies and failures of politicians eventually turns to something it can depend upon.

It has a long way to go, but it has come a long way when the slick news magazines no longer are laughing.

Taxpayer Rip-Off

Share holders in ITT (International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation) will be heartened to learn that the corporation is going to be at least partially reimbursed for property which the government of Chile stole ("expropriated" is the word most commonly used) from it in 1971.

According to the Wall Street Journal, a panel of arbitrators in Washington, D.C. has held that ITT is entitled to compensation for losses suffered at the hands of the Chilean government during Allende's communist reign.

Trouble is, whatever compensation ITT shareholders get will be at the expense of U.S. taxpayers at large. This revolting development comes as the result of U.S. Government involvement, with taxpayer funds, where it had no business to be in the first place.

For as the Wall Street Journal report reveals, the judgment of the arbitration panel went, not against the Chilean government, which stole the ITT property, but against the "Overseas Private Investment Corporation," which, as it turns out, was the insurer of the ITT venture in Chile.

So what? One is inclined to ask. The Overseas Private Investment Corporation took a profit-seeking chance and, in this instance, insured a loser. Let it take its lumps.

Ah, yes. If only that were the case. But it isn't.

For, as the Journal article went on to add, the Overseas Private Investment Corporation is not a profit-seeking private enterprise as its name leads one to believe, but "a (U.S.) government agency that insures U.S. companies' investments abroad."

So, the government of Chile keeps the stolen ITT property. ITT is compensated by the U.S. Government agency, and you know who picks up the tab.

With communism and fascism all over the world being subsidized by the U.S. taxpayers, how can they lose? How can we win?

INSIDE LABOR Long Oil Strike In 1975?

By VICTOR RIESEL
NEW YORK — And now comes President Ford's inside labor adviser to tell us in warm, reassuring, drawing words that all will be well on this front in 1975. For this, Gen. Bill Utery, federal mediator, who should spend lots more time meditating, should win labor's still unawarded silver loving cup.

In effect, friend Bill says that next year unions will practically give this country a "breathing spell." Spell, yes. Breathing, no. Gasp, yes. Just look at the facts. Pick your union. Say the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers (OCAW), whose militant veteran 58-year-old president Alvin Gropiron, headquartered in Denver, virtually has predicted a long strike over a new contract against the nation's refineries early in '75.

Brother Gropiron, a national AFL-CIO vice president, to the left of most of his other 34 colleagues on the high command, isn't given to making idle threats. He knows it will be tough hammering a highly automated industry, which is well stocked with gasoline and heating oil. He knows that he will hit — as any experienced labor chief does — right in the nation's crutch. So he is aware of the ensuing public outcry.

But he'll have his men with him. Yes, yes, women too. The OCAW demands are for top table stakes — at least $2 an hour more per man per each year of a three-year contract. Reckons this way — $1.50 an hour raise each year of the contract. Plus 50 cents an hour cost-of-living catch up. Makes $2 an hour more or $80 a week, or $240 additional (as a raise) at the beginning of the pact's third year.

That's for starters. Gropiron's people want an uncapped COLA (Cost of Living Allowance) which could add another $30 to $40 a week in wages by contract's end. So we're then will happen to the price of living, the cost of services, the value of the dollar?

Obviously, if pensions, Social Security payments, rainy day bank accounts are to mean anything, there will need to be as much meditation as mediation. Won't you come home, Bill Utery?

Scientists discover Amazon is pure water

Not only is the Amazon the largest river on earth, but its waters are among the purest. Waters tested by hydrologists of a joint U.S. Geological Survey-Brazil expedition was found to have a chemical purity nearly equivalent to that of distilled water and greater than that of American tap water. — CNS

OUTRIDER The Mythical Free Market

By GARY WILLS
Columnist William Buckley has come up with another plan for dealing with the oil shortage. (His first suggestion was that we commandeer a convenient oil country by force.) Plan No. Two has no major disadvantage except that it will never be adopted.

He computes the current "Real" price of oil at about $5.00 a barrel — everything above that (currently about $9.50) is extortion by the oil monopolists. Since we cannot put direct pressure on the oil producers, Buckley proposes that we put it on our own importers. Concretely, he would make the import tax exactly equal everything paid out by buyers over the "real" figure of $5.00 per barrel. So, if the price being paid is $9.50, the importer will have to pay a tax of $4.50, making his full cost per barrel $14.00. For Saudi oil, priced at $11.25, the full cost to the importer would be $17.50.

Buyers would buy less; and for what they bought they would have to charge more, with the inevitable result that current oil would be conserved and new sources developed more rapidly. And, once that has taken place over a certain period, the pressure on the OPEC countries to reduce their rates will begin to mount.

It is a plan that accomplishes roughly the same thing as an import quota, gas rationing, or a high tax on the consumer. It even has the advantage that it brings pressure immediately to bear on the comparatively small part of the country made up of oil businessmen rather than directly on all two hundred million citizen-consumers. And that is why it will never be adopted.

Mr. Buckley rather naively calls his plan a "market solution" — I suppose because it aims to restore "real" (i.e., pre-monopoly) prices in international trade. But, of course, it does this by using the power of central government to impose a huge and punitive tax on our own importers — hardly a free market activity.

America least of all has had any free market in its past. What it had at its moment of greatest economic achievement (notably in the second half of the nineteenth century) was a very close union of government-power and big business (— a government less by Congress than by Fisk and Gould, Carnegie and Rockefeller, Vanderbilt and Harriman. And that record of efficiency, without any regard to free market

She might not settle for peanuts

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: As a lawyer, may I comment on the dilemma of the divorcee who didn't know what to say when a man asked for sex outside of marriage?

She should give him a calm, lawyer-like answer; he is asking her to trust him with her body. She is running the risk of an unwanted pregnancy. What is HE risking?

Shouldn't the risk be equal? Why doesn't he give her $1,000 in cash to put into her savings account, and at the end of nine months, if there is no unwanted baby, she can cheerfully return his $1,000.

If she does become pregnant, she can use the money for an abortion, or partial support of the child. In that way, he at least risks something. It is clearly unfair to ask a girl to have sex, and should something go wrong, all the risk is hers.

While the risk can never be made truly equal, the deposit of $1,000 to her account before sex would make it a little more equal.

I wonder how many men who would ask a girl to risk her body are willing to risk some of their money?
J.M.S.: PLANDOME, N.Y.

DEAR J.M.S.: If your proposition is truly "lawyer-like," the legal profession is in trouble. The girl's non-lawyer-like response could be: "If you really want to monkey around, I'm not settling for peanuts!"

DEAR ABBY: I am a 20-year-old fellow who has always liked older women. (I mean women about 45 or 50. I really groove on gray hair, and a woman with middle-age spread.) I could never get turned on by girls my own age, and I have tried. Do you think there's something wrong with me? When I was 17, I became very much attracted to one of my high school teachers (she was about 40) and she told me I should have a long talk with the school psychologist, but I never did.

I've heard of men marrying women 20 years older than themselves, and I can't see where there is anything terribly wrong with that.

Please tell me if you think I have a problem, and if I have, how serious is it? Thanks.

Don't tell me I am searching for my mother, because she died when I was a baby and you can't miss what you've never had.
LIKES THEM OLDER

DEAR LIKES: Yup. You have a problem. Your high school teacher gave you some good advice. You need professional help, and I suggest you get it. (P.S. And who said you can't miss what you've never had? It's possible to miss that the most.)

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago, I married a handsome, trim man with whom I'd been in love for three years. The first four years of our married life was wonderful. The last two have been something else.

He started to gain weight, and kept piling it on until now he looks like a barrel of lard. When I try to tell him it's unhealthy and unsightly, he gets angry and refuses to listen. He is so gross it makes me sick to look at him. I no longer want him to make love to me. He's repulsive.

Three weeks ago, I gave him an ultimatum. Either lose 50 pounds in the next six months, or I'm leaving. Apparently he didn't take me seriously because he's still drinking and eating like a herd of horses.

I'm not asking for advice. I want to go on record in your column, and I'll see that he reads it. MEANS BUSINESS

DEAR MEANS: You're on record, but if you really love him, you'll help him. An ultimatum is no help. He needs a physical examination, a good diet program, and lots of love and moral support from you.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ANNAMARIE: One woman's leftovers can be another woman's banquet. Now is the time to talk turkey.

Maybe cats aren't the only creatures on earth to have more than one life. Rather a mind-boggling thought to most people in this work-a-day world, but not to everyone, especially Ruth Montgomery.

She has become one of the most widely read and respected authors dealing with psychic phenomena in the United States. Her book, "A World Beyond," dealing with the after-death revelations of the renowned medium Arthur Ford was a best seller and her newest book, "Companions Along The Way," is enjoying brisk sales nationally.

But Mrs. Montgomery wasn't always interested in psychic phenomena, let alone believe in it. During the 1940s and '50s, she was a tough-minded political writer in the Washington, D.C., press corps. Her stories were syndicated by International News Service.

"I always felt that psychic phenomena mediums and the like were pretty phony," Mrs. Montgomery said in an interview. "Then, in 1958, I was assigned to do a series on seances in which I interviewed Arthur Ford among others.

"The series was pretty critical, but I was intrigued by it all," she said. "So two years later I went to see Ford. While I was there he went into a trance and told me things about my relatives, both living and dead, which no one could have known."

But the clincher, so far as Mrs. Montgomery was concerned, was information about the exact whereabouts of then-missing Illinois Judge Lynn Parkinson.

According to Mrs. Montgomery, Ford told her Parkinson had drowned in a lake. It wasn't two weeks before the body of the judge was recovered from its watery grave in the exact lake.

Mrs. Montgomery soon became a disciple of Ford, who showed her how to perfect a technique called psychic or automatic writing which would enable her to communicate with the spirit world.

Mrs. Montgomery stressed the importance of following an exact ritual when preparing to receive information from the spirit world.

"First I meditate for 15 minutes to clear my mind," she said.

"Then I place my fingers lightly on the typewriter keys and say a prayer for protection."

She emphasized that it is important to do this at the exact same time every day and always say a prayer for protection.

"By beginning at the same time each day and praying for protection I am guarding against any mischievous or evil spirits entering my mind while I'm in this receptive state," she said.

Paper Shortage Crimps Style At U Of Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A critical shortage at the University of Texas is forcing changes in the intimate habits of the school's 41,841 students, 1,700 professors and 9,600 employees.

UT officials say they can't find any folded toilet tissue for campus restrooms.

"The manufacturers have just notified the university and all state agencies that they're going to quit manufacturing folded toilet tissue," said Billy Knowles, assistant buildings superintendent. "Right now we are just going on reserves."

Rolls of tissue are available, but it costs more and necessitates replacing paper dispensers in hundreds of toilets all over campus.

UT workmen are in the process of installing 1,650 new roll dispensers and taking out the metal box dispensers for folded tissue.

The new dispensers cost $7.25 each. And the paper to fill them also will be higher.

Knowles said rolled paper cost $19 to $20 a case compared with about $10 a case for folded tissue.

Officials also figure switching to rolls will increase the amount of paper used.

"One of the advantages of folded paper was that there was less paper wasted," Knowles said. "The folded tissue was locked in a box and it took a little longer to sit there and pull it out."

Knowles estimates it will take five to 10 more cases of roll tissue a month to supply UT restrooms that now consume 60 to 65 boxes of folded paper at a cost of $8,200 a year.

The university isn't alone in the toilet tissue difficulty. Almost all state agencies are finding it impossible to replenish folded tissue supplies.

"It's a critical item," said C. M. Walton, assistant director for purchasing at the State Board of Control. "Most manufacturers are limiting production to those items that they sell in quantity and make the most out of. They're not particularly concerned with my problem or your problems."

Often he's that 'nice young man'

By RON WELLS
Copley News Service

ARSONIST.

The word conjures up all sorts of nightmarish scenes which could be straight out of a low-budget motion picture.

Yet these individuals aren't distorted night stalkers who wear black capes and hats or commit their sinister acts with melodramatic flare as in the "Phantom of the Opera."

"You can't recognize an arsonist on the street like you would a streaker," said Dr. Thomas N. Rusk, psychiatrist and medical director at the Western Institute for Human Resources, San Diego, Calif. "For the most part their outward appearance is quite normal. Often they will be quiet, gentle and passive."

As uncomplicated as a compulsive fire setter may appear on the surface, he or she is, in reality, extremely complex and suffering from a complex mental disability called pyromania, which was first studied in 1883.

"Pyromania is the morbid impulse to set fires," said Dr. Javad Emami, clinical psychologist and director of the Phoenix Center for Psychology, San Diego. "Pyromania is a compulsive act which can become as addictive for some people as alcohol is for others."

"In addition there is a more specific subclassification to the pyromaniac behavior, called pyroclagnia, which many pyromaniacs experience," Emami said in an interview. "Pyroclagnia involves the erotic emotions which are often aroused in a pyromaniac at the time he or she sets a fire."

"The motive of a pyromaniac is not to harm anyone," said Dr. Walt Robbins Griswold, a specialist in forensic psychiatry in San Diego. "Most pyromaniacs are neurotic rather than psychotic and therefore are able to remain in touch with reality."

These experts in mental disorders classify pyromaniacs in two categories: those trying to work out sexual conflicts within themselves, and those who have aggressions and are rebelling against authority.

The reason for these conflicts and aggressions, say the doctors, can usually be traced back to some traumatic or extremely frustrating period in the individual's childhood.

"Usually there has been a divorce, a brutal, inattentive or even smothering parent," said Rusk in an interview. "The first signs of pyromania manifest themselves between the ages of 3 and 9 and are usually linked to rebellion against one or both parents."

BABY BOOM

Italy's population problem mounts

By MIL CHIPPE
Copley News Service

ROME — This winter, population experts in Italy predict, Italian midwives and maternity department staff will be run off their feet.

The reason: an unprecedented baby boom, due, the experts claim, to the fuel-saving measures imposed by the Italian government late last winter during the world energy crisis.

With television closing down two hours earlier than usual, at 10:30 p.m., bars, cinemas and restaurants shutting before midnight, and Sunday motoring banned, millions of couples had few other options besides bed.

But urgent appeals by the government, newspapers and population experts to warn the public of the danger fell on deaf ears.

Yet even if the experts' forecasts are proved wrong, Prof. Buzzati Traverso, one of Italy's leading geneticists, says Italy's population problem is "horribly worrying."

On-paper the problem does not appear serious. Italy had roughly the same relatively slow growth rates as other developed countries — 0.8 per cent a year — and with a population of around 56 million, the density is theoretically a comfortable 180 inhabitants per each third of a square mile.

But these figures hide the fact that more than a third of Italy is mountainous and virtually uninhabitable, and that, when this is excluded, the population density becomes about 280 people per each third of a square mile.

Traverso blames overpopulation for many of Italy's present social problems, unemployment, the string-pulling and corruption needed to get jobs, overcrowded schools, the chaotic traffic, the destruction of the countryside by large-scale building, pollution, crime and violence.

And this can only get worse, he claims, when the total population is increasing by 400,000 each year. Yet political leaders appear unaware of the problem.

The main problem is that questions of population limitation and birth control are taboo in a country where the Vatican is just across the river from Parliament, and where the main ruling party since World War II has been the Catholic-dominated Democrazia Cristiana (Christian Democratic).

Italian laws are in fact designed to encourage proliferation. A person can be jailed for having himself or herself sterilized, or having an abortion. The age at which one can legally marry is one of the lowest in Europe — 16 for a boy and 14 for a girl, which can be reduced to 14 and 12 respectively under special circumstances. Big families get special allowances.

Americans find snug refuge in London

By NEIL MORGAN
Copley News Service

LONDON — Twenty steps off Mount Street, in London's West End, a small public garden lies hidden from view. Its elms and plane trees tower above old brick walls and church roofs. Circular beds of tulips and delphinium glisten in the warming shafts of late spring sun. A sign warns, "Beware of the hose."

Other Americans have loved this refuge, known as St. George's Hanover Square. Wooden benches line the grass, each bearing the name of grateful American couples who sensed its serenity. Just outside the iron grill gateway that leads to South Audley Street is a cozy Westminster public library.

The American who seeks to borrow a book can be reminded that there remains a trusting simplicity at some level in his foreign relations.

London remains a snuggery for the American escaping the shrill tensions of his own land. Not since wartime have social links between British and Americans seemed so close. The love-hate relationship is still there, a mingling of skepticism, contempt, and envy. But Britons now concede their own Americanization at a time when, paradoxically, more Americans have been choosing to settle in a Britain that seems to them gentle and civilized.

For every hidden garden like St. George's Hanover there has risen a Kentucky Fried Chicken, mercifully so far restricted to pop districts like Soho or Piccadilly. For every inventive new play seen on London stages, a violent U.S.-made cinema draws waiting lines off Leicester Square.

When the British introduce their DC-10 skytrain service, a low-cost, walk-on jet shuttle between London and New York, passengers will have their hands stamped with invisible ink in a system frankly copied from one used by the Disneyland Hotel for its train service into the amusement park.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than ever this year, we need to make the most of Thanksgiving leftovers.

Toward that end, here are four leftover recipes that were left over from last Thanksgiving.

Turkey Surprise:
Slice cold turkey meat and stack it on a serving plate. On top of stack place one slice of roast beef.

Those at the dining table who expected roast beef will be surprised to find themselves eating turkey again.

(In some cookbooks, this dish is called Turkey Dismay.)

Stuffed Stuffing:
Finding something different to do with leftover stuffing always presents a problem. This year, pull a switch.

After serving turkey stuffed with oyster dressing on Thanksgiving, serve oysters stuffed with turkey dressing. Then, for the third meal in the series, serve dressing stuffed with turkey and oysters.

Mold the leftover dressing into the shape of a prairie chicken, or whatever strikes your fancy, and let it stand in the gazebo or some such out-of-the-way place until it develops a thick crust.

Smash or gouge a hole in one end of the dressing and scoop out the encrusted portion. Stuff the cavity with slivers of turkey and oysters. Heat in oven or on barbecue spit until grizzled.

Crammed Cranberries:
Finding someplace to cram the leftover cranberry sauce is almost as much of a problem as finding some place to stuff the leftover stuffing.

One could cram the cranberries into the stuffing, but that would be too much like the recipe above. Variety is important when getting rid of Thanksgiving leftovers.

The gourmet way of cramming cranberries is to place the leftover sauce in a crockery jar and press down on it with a heavy African wood carving or some other blunt instrument.

The pressure forces out moisture and leaves room in the crock for more sauce. Repeat process until all leftover cranberries have been crammed into the crock.

When demounted sauce ferments, it makes a delicious cranberry dehydrated wine.

Pumpkin Pie Treats:
Dump leftover pumpkin pie into blender and homogenize. Pour contents onto cookie sheet and form into shape of tiny jack-o'-lanterns, or, if you prefer, jacks-o'-lantern.

Place in freezer and leave until next Halloween. They make fun favors for trick-or-treaters, or, if you prefer, tricksters-or-treat.

5 KILLED Israelis Engage Gurrilla Squad

Israel troops patrolling inside Lebanon battled a squad of Palestinian guerrillas and killed five of them, the Tel Aviv military command reported today. One guerrilla escaped. The first frontier clash in a month took place north of Kibbutz Dan Thursday night on the eve of Israeli celebrations marking the 27th anniversary of the U.N. vote to create the Jewish state. "We were on a routine patrol near the frontier and by the light of the moon we saw a group of terrorists about 100 yards away," a member of the Israeli patrol said in an interview with the armed forces radio.

Pioneer Nears Giant Jupiter

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — Pioneer 11 is gliding toward Jupiter's south pole at an angle which will allow the best measurements ever made of the gaseous planet's composition, a University of Arizona scientist said today.

Pioneer is looking at the planet from an angle never possible before," said Dr. Martin Damosko, who plans the operation of the spacecraft's electronic camera. The unmanned, 560-pound vehicle's speed increased to 26,000 miles per hour as it approached the underside of the giant planet, now 2.7 million miles and three days away.

Pictures of the orange and gray-striped planet now appear as a 3-inch sphere on the 21-inch television screen at NASA's Ames Research Center, which controls the spacecraft. Jupiter's great Red Spot — believed to be a 20,000-mile-long permanent hurricane — is clearly visible.

Pioneer's unique angle of approach is providing experimenters with previously unavailable data on the atmosphere of Jupiter and its four planet-sized moons.

Scientists studying the information gathered by last year's flight of Pioneer 10, depict Jupiter as a giant ball of gaseous material with a stormy cloud bank and a small solid core. The area of space occupied by the planet and its 13 satellites contain two-thirds of the total mass of the planets in the Solar System.

He said the equipment they carried indicated "they were aiming at hitting one of the settlements" inside Israel. "It was a hard, fierce firefight."

A military command spokesman in Tel Aviv said there were no Israeli casualties in the battle near the collective settlement at Dan, built on the site of an ancient Israel's northernmost outpost.

The Palestine News Agency said in Beirut the guerrillas attacked an Israeli army camp northwest of Dan with artillery, rockets and machine guns, but gave no casualty figures.

"A big confrontation battle took place between the revolutionaries and the enemy forces in the area," the news agency said.

The Beirut newspaper An Nahar quoted Arab diplomatic sources today as reporting Egypt has told U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim it will reject any Israeli withdrawal from Sinai unless it is accompanied by a similar withdrawal from the Golan Heights.

Sinai is Egyptian territory, while the Golan Heights are Syrian territory, Israel has occupied both since the 1967 Middle East war.

An Nahar said Egypt felt that "the peace efforts of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger 'were not enough by themselves' to accomplish any serious advance towards a peaceful settlement of the Middle East crisis."

Egypt also says that it will not discuss any political issue in the crisis with Israel outside the Geneva (Arab-Israeli peace) conference, and that the resumption of the conference is a basic condition for the accomplishment of any advance in political efforts," the newspaper said.

Guerrilla groups have frequently raided Israel to protest anniversaries of the U.N. vote that called for the creation of separate Jewish and Arab states in the former-British territory of Palestine.

It was the first encounter with guerrillas along the Lebanese frontier since Oct. 29, when Israel reported killing three commandos in a frontier clash.

NOW THAT'S A TURNIP! — Central Fire Station had an exhibit Wednesday. Not in the area of fire prevention, the "show" was edible. Harry Patton, center, swears up and down he dug up the big turnip with a backhoe! Disbelieving buddies, Tom Leggett, left, and Kirby King, right, wouldn't comment on the gardening feat. BY EARL BUTZ Catholic Office Wants Apology For Remarks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The office of Cardinal Terence Cooke has accused Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz of "ethnic mockery and vulgar religious prejudice" for a joking reference in a mock Italian accent to Pope Paul VI's views on feeding the poor.

It was the second ethnic controversy to beset the Ford administration. Gen. George Brown, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, was reprimanded by the Archdiocese of New York asserted the Pope "had his pleas for immediate relief to starving people answered by ethnic mockery and vulgar religious prejudice by Secretary Butz."

"If Mr. Butz can speak this way and remain in your Cabinet," Clark told the President, "Catholics, Italo-Americans and the starving people of the world will all know how poorly they are esteemed by your Cabinet."

A spokesman for Butz said one newsman pointed out to him that the Chinese and the Pope apparently do not agree with the need for population control as a means of alleviating food shortages.

Butz made the remark "off the record" to some newsmen at a private breakfast meeting Wednesday.

Responding to the report, Monsignor Eugene V. Clark, a spokesman for the cardinal, said in a telegram to President Ford, "I call upon Secretary Earl Butz to apologize immediately or resign, following his crude, pointed insult directed at Pope Paul VI, spiritual leader of the world's Catholics."

Band Members To Sell Cakes
Pampa High School band members will begin Texas Manor Fruit Cake sales for the Christmas season on Dec. 2, according to the director, Jeff Doughten.

Fruit cakes for Christmas season delivery may be ordered through Dec. 10.

A door-to-door campaign has been planned; however, orders may be placed by calling the band office, 669-2681.

Orders for 24 or more cakes will be subject to a price adjustment.

Regular sales are $4.65 for the two-pound bar; $7.80 per three-pound tin and $12 for the five-pound tin.

Local homemakers will learn how to make and use low cost cleaners during this week's "You Can Do It" television program at 1:00 p.m. on KAMR-TV, Channel 4, Saturday.

Featuring hostess Cindy Kidwell, the educational program will teach viewers how to make cleaning products for windows and mirrors, porcelain, furniture, and general household uses.

"Cleaning on a Shoestring," this week's lesson, also will feature ideas for cleaning marble, tile, aluminum, and chromium.

"You Can Do It" is a six part educational television series, which will run through Dec. 28, sponsored locally by the Gray County

Family Living Committee and KAMR-TV. It was created and produced by home economics specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System, through a special USDA grant.

Programs in upcoming weeks will include lessons on repairing leaky faucets, toilet repairs and adjustments, caulking and weatherstripping.

Bulletins on any of the projects taught during the series are available at no charge through the County Extension Office, at 669-7429 or Box 1756, Pampa, Tex.

Next week's program will teach leaky faucet repairs according to Elaine Houston, County Extension Agent.

Ford Awaits Message On New Weapons Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today awaited a message from Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev documenting their tentative verbal agreement to put a ceiling on each country's offensive nuclear weapons.

Ford planned to make the 10-year accord public once he has the aide de memoir from the Soviets in hand.

He may hold a press conference today or early next week to disclose the numbers of missiles and delivery systems each side would be allowed under the new equivalency pact reached at the Vladivostok summit. The White House has said only that each side would be limited to less than 2,500 missiles and strategic bombers under new negotiating guidelines that could lead to a new, 10-year arms control treaty.

If Ford does not receive the agreement in writing this week, he will wait to disclose the pact next week

Kissinger Leaves China After Long Discussions

TOKYO (UPI) — President Ford will visit China next year, the Chinese and U.S. governments announced jointly today.

The two governments agreed that President Gerald Ford will visit the People's Republic of China in 1975," said a joint communique issued at the end of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's five days of talks in Peking.

On Kissinger's plane, after its departure from China, a high American official said the Chinese indicated in the opening hours of Kissinger's discussions that they would welcome such a visit.

Wednesday, after checking by telephone with Ford twice, Kissinger made the offer and the Chinese accepted.

The official told newsmen aboard the plane that Ford's visit to China will probably come in the last half of 1975 and certainly after the June visit to Washington of Soviet Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Neither the Americans nor the Chinese gave any reasons for the visit. But, the Chinese will regard it as wanting the visit to counterbalance the Brezhnev trip to America. Further, Peking put the visit as another step toward the "normalization" of Sino-American relations specified by the Chinese and former President Richard M. Nixon on his pioneering presidential journey to China two years ago.

American officials said he and the Chinese had skirted one of the main issues between the two countries—continued U.S. recognition of the National Chinese government of Chiang Kai-shek on Taiwan.

Kissinger flew to Tokyo from Shanghai. He had ended his five-day trip to China by viewing ancient gardens, touring an embroidery factory and eating at every stop along the way.

Kissinger topped his diplomatic talks with a

Thanksgiving Day dinner in which a Chinese army band played "Turkey in the Straw" and spent today touring Soochow before going to Shanghai.

The secretary visited the 2,500-year-old Tiger Hill Gardens, the 500-year-old Choeheng Gardens planted during the Ming Dynasty, and an embroidery factory.

He attended three banquets and stopped six times for tea and snacks during today's trip. At one point he said, "Well, I haven't eaten for at least 30 minutes."

Kissinger was scheduled to arrive in Tokyo tonight to brief Japanese officials on his talks with Chinese leaders. He was due to fly home to Washington Saturday, ending a four-nation tour of Asia.

LET'S TALK

Lift the taboo on this killer

By W. LEE TRUMAN, Ph.D.
Copley News Service

A subject seldom discussed or written about, but which destroys many thousands of lives each year is the taboo, killer. This killer is the second highest cause of death among all college students, according to Dr. Gale Thompson. I'm talking about suicide.

The figures used by any authority are always open to qualification, because they know that many suicides are not recorded as such. Family shame, circumstances surrounding the death, all leave the question veiled.

"Once a minute," writes Dr. Karl Menninger, "someone in the United States kills himself with conscious intent." This nationally known psychologist has also pointed out that there have been well organized campaigns mounted against almost all major diseases except this loss of life through self-destruction. Few depth studies have been made in the past, but now social scientists are beginning to ask what can be learned about suicide.

Thorough studies are being made to collect and analyze statistics, and from these studies some startling facts are coming to light. The basic reasons behind a person taking his life can only be surmised after the fact, but the facts that can be gathered need to be used to disarm this lurking killer.

The first fact is that almost everyone has entertained a fleeting thought of self-destruction. As a child it was: "Won't they be sorry when I'm gone," and the adult uses some version of Paul Tillich's words, "It's too painful, I'll flip out of history." The danger comes when such thoughts become obsessive or so attractive that they are acted upon.

These studies show so far that three times as many men kill themselves as women. Men more often use violent means, and women choose the ways they feel will not be painful or will not disgrace themselves in death. Race, social position, financial situation and occupation are all apparent factors. Three times as many whites as negroes kill themselves; about the same proportion as the population.

Almost twice as many doctors as all other occupations take their own lives, and more military officers than enlisted men destroy themselves. Suicide is more common among people with about average incomes. Dr. Menninger also has noted that ministers and miners are the men least likely to do away with themselves.

The suicide rate goes up as business goes down. It is more common in the metropolitan areas and less common in the open farm districts. It is higher among persons who are divorced, unmarried and living without families.

Studies have also noted that the rate has always dropped in time of war. There has been an effort to try and find the connection between suicide and the geographical area, barometric pressure, ionization or even the day and time of day to give some clue to the psychologists.

When does a man take his life? It might seem logical that it would be on a dreary, cold winter day or during the long depressing night hours. Not so, says Harvard School of Public Health, who discovered that people are far more likely to kill themselves on a sunny Monday, or Tuesday morning in mid-spring or early summer.

Dr. K. D. Douglas of Southern Methodist University has noted that: "When one is depressed, the never-ending sunshine is difficult to bear. The retreat of fireside and slippers help to protect the depressed person from himself. This line of retreat recedes and the days grow longer."

The conclusion of all studies is that prompt, competent professional care of the possible suicide may mean the difference between life and death. This may be a very taboo subject, but by leaving it taboo, it will continue to take the lives of thousands of Americans needlessly.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, NOV. 30
Your birthday today: Opens a chance for personal growth and prosperity during a full and busy year. Convert energy and know-how into earnings and claim your rewards. Stay on a cash-and-carry basis. Relationships thrive and multiply, but require difficult, selective choices. Today's natives are always alert for material benefits.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Now that you're deep into weekend schedules, make peace, square away your accounts and tidy up your personal life. Be ready for an unusual Sunday tomorrow.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Correct recent errors today, if they are correctible. Relatively quiet conditions favor catching up on neglected routine chores: get busy!

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Find out where people stand and in what direction they're headed. Strive to reconcile divergent viewpoints. Line up budgets: get them in working order.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Being relieved of urgent responsibilities doesn't mean you're free to ignore long-range interests. Get all the extra rest your schedule permits.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Stick to the well-rounded, sensible habits that usually get you through the week-end. Try to hold down expenses. Use every opportunity to improve understanding and respect.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Since you're so gung ho about presenting your views, do it gracefully but candidly. You have many chances to improve communications; use them wisely.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: At times it's human to drift aimlessly, but don't let important connections lapse. Intellectual activity takes precedence over physical labor, but somehow get enough exercise.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Your influence is stronger; make it felt. Straighten out your facts. Verify accounts with receipts, check stubs. Adjust recent discrepancies.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: There's better going available now, but don't take anyone's feelings for granted. Not everybody is thick-skinned enough to take sharp or incessant criticism.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Back up a little; catch up on work you've had to put off. Some of your friends are still away; those at hand seem more reasonable, amenable to new dealings.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Everybody promises to be a bit more accessible and easier to get along with. Meet them halfway; leave off criticism of past incidents.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Mobilize your energy—resist temptation toward laziness. Home conditions are favorable. Others have forgotten past disagreements or have mellowed.

"If your doctor advises radical mastectomy, find another doctor." This is the sad advice that was offered in a women's magazine not so long ago.

Other publications suggested that women boycott the surgeon who suggests wide surgical operations for breast cancer. Is this the correct viewpoint? Is surgery for breast cancer necessary? There is much new information about the problem, but unfortunately no new answers.

Consumer Market Report

COLLEGE STATION — Turkey prices are much lower than they were last year. Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt said this week.

Price dips are due to this year's good turkey crop and very high cold storage holdings, the consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said.

However, if turkey still doesn't fit the holiday food budget this year, consumers can choose turkey parts or switch to another entree entirely, Mrs. Clyatt added.

Choices include chicken, ham, or certain beef cuts.

A variety of steaks, chuck, rib and rump roasts — and ground beef — are meat market features.

Commenting on Thanksgiving vegetables, the specialist said sweet potatoes will reach their peak in time for the holiday, and white potatoes — at much lower prices than last year — are in abundant supply.

Broccoli and Brussels sprouts are now in their peak season, and bulk turnips and rutabagas are readily available.

Carrots, cabbage, squash and dry yellow onions are other economically priced selections.

Also, cranberries are abundant — with prices near or slightly below last year's levels.

Holiday fruits include tangelos, with 40 per cent of that crop coming to market this month. However, tangerine supplies won't peak until December, the specialist said.

Mrs. Clyatt termed Texas grapefruit flavor "delightful" this season and reported a supply increase — "buy it by the bag," she added. Grapes, bananas, oranges and pineapples are other good fruit choices.

On buying eggs, she cautioned consumers to choose those from refrigerated cases — "also, read labels carefully for grade and size."

Medium-size eggs are likely to be close to large size in price. Larger sizes are the better buy, if there's less than a seven-cent price spread (per dozen eggs) between one size and the next smaller size in the same grade.

Breast Cancer Is No. 1 Killer

And it is a problem. In the United States, one out of every 15 baby girls born will eventually develop cancer of the breast. There are two to three cases of breast cancer diagnosed in the United States for every 17-minute period throughout the day, and one death from breast cancer for every 17-minute period. So the problem is a serious one. Cancer of the breast is the No. 1 killer of women.

Nevertheless surgeons who advocate broad-scale surgical procedures are tagged "sodomachistic male chauvinists" or are given, other, less printable labels. The breast is obviously a sore point with many women since it has physical, psychological and sexual connotations. For doctors who treat breast cancer, that organ must be considered like any other organ.

Removal of tumor and the organ in which it arises along with the lymph nodes and the connecting lymphoid vessels is the usual surgical approach to treatment of cancers. For treatment of breast cancer, this includes removal of breast, tissue under skin to armpit and lymph glands in the armpit.

This so-called "radical" breast operation was introduced about 1850 by an English surgeon. From then through the first half of the 20th Century, radical mastectomy came to be regarded as the routine treatment in most cases of cancer of the breast when that cancer was confined to the breast and nearby lymph nodes. It is an extensive procedure since it covers the front of the chest and around the chest into the armpit. Nevertheless, for many years, it was considered the operation which gave the best long-range results.

This viewpoint changed somewhat after World War II. Patients began to present the problem of breast lumps to doctors earlier in the course of the disease. Often the doctor saw the lump before it had spread across the chest and to the lymph nodes in the armpit area. So a different view of breast cancer began to appear.

In 1948, a professor of radiology at the University of Edinburgh in Scotland claimed that radical mastectomy was no longer necessary. He noted no difference in survival or recurrence rates in breast cancer after a less extensive operation, simple mastectomy, only the involved breast is removed without the nearby chest and armpit tissue.

According to reports, that simple mastectomy with follow-up x-ray treatment to the area gave as good results as radical mastectomy. Over the years since that time, many patients have been reported in whom x-ray followup was used after radical mastectomy, simple mastectomy or even mere removal of the cancerous lump. In most of these series of cases, the percentage of patients who were alive five years after the operation was about the same at 70 per cent.

As these investigations became more sophisticated, and the statistics more explicit, other facts began to emerge. Most doctors are agreed now that there is quite a difference in fate of the patient after treatment for this disease depending on factors involving the patient and the treatment.

It is important for the doctor to know not only about the spread of the cancer, but also about the exact histologic type of tumor. In addition, facts are being discovered about the immune system of the body which might alter the course of treatment. Treatment must be tailored to clinical, histologic and immunologic factors.

Perhaps the most important single factor in determining the outcome of the illness is speed of diagnosis. Women who have tumors found early enough have 9 out of 10 chances of surviving more than 10 years. Improved techniques of x-raying the breast have recently made it possible to find tumors almost microscopic in size. Since tumors produce more heat than normal tissue, instruments designed to measure breast temperature give promise of being useful for rapid, large scale screening. Frequent breast examinations by patients and their doctors continue to be a useful means of early detection of breast cancer.

Early detection means increased survival rate. It lessens the likelihood of the need for radical mastectomy. But, although many new techniques for detection and treatment of breast cancer are entering the scene, the most definitive procedure continues to be wide surgery for the treatment of cancer of the breast which has reached the lymph nodes of the armpit. All doctors are not in agreement with this but most of the leaders in treatment of breast cancer do agree. Women with suspicious breast lumps who hide the condition from their doctors because of fear of radical surgery, because they think of their doctors as male chauvinists, or for other social, psychological, or cosmetic reasons are making a serious mistake. They could be risking their lives.

Why Grow Old?

Beautiful Hair Is An Asset; Must Receive Proper Care

A woman's hair has long been called her "crowning glory." Indeed it is one of her loveliest assets if it has body and sheen. However, many women find the crown an uncertain blessing. There are several kinds of problem hair.

Very fine hair is one of the most frustrating ones. I wrote about this not so long and will give you only a brief review of first aid. We cannot change fine hair so we just have to learn to live with it. The following measures will help you do so happily. A medium-short style makes this type hair appear thicker and fuller. The weight of long hair does just the opposite. A blunt cut is essential. A body permanent can make a big difference. If you give yourself permanents get one of the body-wave kits. These were planned for you.

A setting gel is helpful when the hair is fine. Use it generously. A beer rinse will add body. Open the can the day before so the beer will be flat. There are also products on the market formulated to make the locks seem thicker.

Extremely oil hair is another problem which some women must endure. If you have this type topknot, you will have to shampoo your hair frequently. Do not hesitate to do this daily if necessary. Of course a short hair cut will make this easier to do. Also the hair cannot accumulate as much oil.

Use a shampoo designed for oily hair. These products vary greatly. Some contain more detergent than others and therefore remove more oil. It is a good idea to shampoo twice. You might also try leaving the soap on the scalp for four or five minutes before rinsing thoroughly. If these routines do not help ask your doctor to prescribe a medicated shampoo for you.

Mousy-looking hair which has no highlights is a source of unhappiness to many women but it should not be. There are temporary rinses which will give it life. Don't be afraid to try one.

Don't forget foot care during the winter. For your copy of "Take Care of Your Feet," send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Josephine Lowman in care of Register and Tribune Syndicate, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

When today's deal arose in a National Championship event a few years ago, a "book" situation arose in the play of the cards. Each of the South declarers handled it correctly.

The bidding:
South West North East
2♦ Pass 2NT Pass
3♣ Pass 3NT Pass
4♦ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♥.

After winning the opening heart lead with his king, declarer cashed his three top trumps, picking up the outstanding pieces. East discarded a diamond on the third trump lead.

It was readily apparent to declarer that the success of his contract depended on avoiding the loss of three club tricks, since the loss of a heart trick was inevitable. It was equally apparent that if the six adversely held clubs were divided 3-3, then his contract was in the bag, by giving away two club tricks, declarer would promote his fourth club into a winner. And declarer also knew that the six outstanding clubs rated to be divided 3-3 only a little over one-third of the time.

And so declarer centered his thoughts on how to best handle the club suit if the six missing clubs were divided 4

2. He found the correct solution.

After drawing trumps, he cashed the ace of clubs. He then followed up by leading the club queen. West taking the trick with his king as East's ten fell. Declarer's contract was now there for the taking. When he regained the lead, he led a low club towards dummy's nine. West took his jack, and simultaneously, South's eight-spot became his game-going trick.

Had declarer, after playing the club ace, led a low club he would have gone down. East would have won this trick with his ten-spot, and eventually West's king and jack would have taken two more club tricks.

As declarer played the hand, he would make two club tricks whenever either defender held the doubleton J-x or 10-x. The alternative play of leading a low club, after cashing the ace, in the hope that one of the defenders held the K-x of clubs, was against the odds, since the chances of one of the opponents holding either the J-x or the 10-x was twice as great as holding specifically the doubleton K-x combination.

An opportunity for your son.

Newspaper route management teaches him to deal with people

A BOY with a newspaper route earns money that can help him get the things he wants. Even a college education.

More than that, he learns life's important lessons.

One of these is on how to deal with people.

Meeting his customers on his route, collecting and servicing, he gains this valuable business competence. It will help him throughout his life. Many former newspaperboys, notable successes among them, have told us as much.

Your newspaperboy also applies the arithmetic he learns in the classroom in a practical way by making change and handling bills...thus he becomes a better student. He learns, too, the value of promptness and of good manners.

In fact, you'll find that a newspaperboy manages to keep a step ahead of other boys in preparing for life...while building a bank account of his own.

Should your son be inclined to put himself that step ahead, have him get in touch with us. There may be a route available to him in your neighborhood. And along with it...the opportunity for the self-advancement you want him to have.

BARRETT BAPTIST

Barrett Baptist Church will be in revival Dec. 1-6, according to the pastor Rev. Jackie Lee. Evangelist for the services will be Wayne Copeland, Fort Worth, Marion Warren, Euless. The evangelist is a graduate of Houston Baptist College and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary where he did post graduate work. He has lived and worked at "Teen Liberators" a ministry to drug addicts in Houston and provided supply preaching, jail ministry and street ministry, as well as conducting revivals and services for Texas Alcohol and Narcotics Education. He was minister of youth and music at the First Baptist Church in Huffman and pastor at Shiloh Baptist Church in Liberty. A full-time vocational evangelist, he has toured the Holy Land, participated in "Meet Jesus" Crusade with Baptist General Convention of Texas and acted as Crusade coordinator in 1973. He has led 150 church revivals and city wide crusades since 1965. He was listed in 1973 in "Outstanding Young Men in America" and in the same year toured Kenya, Africa. Music director for the revival is Marion Warren, a native of Bomarton, Tex. He is a graduate of University of Corpus Christi and Southwestern Seminary. He has served in First Baptist Church of Howe, Trinity Baptist in Corpus Christi, music and youth director at Second Baptist in Corpus and music and youth director at University Baptist Church in Arlington before entering evangelism in 1968. He was a member of Texas Boys Choir and earned a voice scholarship at UCC. He made a crusade to Japan in 1962 and in 1965, made a crusade to Argentina and Bolivia. In 1970 Warren was with a Canadian Crusade and serves as associate evangelist of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association when asked.

WAYNE COPELAND

FIRST UNITED METHODIST

The First United Methodist Church is preparing for an All Church Fellowship Dinner to be held Sunday evening at 5 in Fellowship Hall. The church members will bring salads and sandwiches to be spread together. The dessert will be served as a part of the advent observance. During the worship time at 6 p.m. the pastor, Dr.

Lloyd Hamilton, will deliver an inspirational message on celebrating advent. A short film, entitled "Draw Me a Christmas", will be shown and a "Festival of the Plum Pudding" will usher in the advent season. Also included in the evening's plans will be a variety of activities involving all ages in preparation for Christmas in our church and homes. The activities will include: carving figures for a nativity scene for the church, Christmas for home trees, decorating cookies for shut-ins advent wreaths, Children's Christmas wreaths, embroidery on banners, wall murals depicting the Christmas story and other home decorations and gift ideas.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration Zion Lutheran Church

By REV. T. KEONIG

Yesterday we sat down to tables heaped with food of all kinds; today there are people in this country and in other parts of the world who will be wishing for a crust of bread or a handful of rice. At the same time that many of us plopped down in front of the T.V. after being stuffed so full that we could hardly move, there were people too weak to bury their dead family members because they hadn't anything to eat for so long. And when we turned in for the night, after a double dose of bi-carb because we had eaten so well, there were people going to bed with hunger pangs gnawing so loudly you could hear them.

The annual Thanksgiving festivities seem to center on tables piled with food. It reminds us of the first day on which Americans gave thanks in the colonies. Much had happened to them for which they took time to give thanks to God. Now as then, perhaps the question was asked, maybe even as people gathered for worship — Why give thanks? Why take special pains to give thanks? After all look at what we've been through? Look at what we have done to earn all that we have? See how we have worked and sacrificed. Those aren't new thoughts. Even the Old Testament people had them. And God gives us an answer to the question through the prophet Samuel. "To this point has the Lord helped us." (1 Sam. 7:12) Think about it! Think about how graciously the Lord has helped us; blessed us to right now — to exactly where you are now. For all that God has done we give thanks, but especially at special times like the national holiday which we observe on Thanksgiving Day.

A person once asked a friend, "Can you imagine what could be worse than to have absolutely nothing to be thankful for?" After thinking a few moments, the wise friend replied, "Yes — having much to be thankful for, but no one to thank." That is the situation of many minds today that take the generous gifts of the Creator for granted and don't even recognize that "every good and perfect gift is from above and comes from the Father."

Every gift! The greatest gift God has given is often overlooked too. It was a plain and simple gift — yet the greatest as well. That is the gift of His Son Jesus Christ. God gave His Son to be our Savior from sin. This gift too, is one of which we are totally undeserving. Even the benefits of all that Christ has done in His life, suffering and death are made ours through a gift — the gift of faith created and sustained in us by the Holy Spirit. That gift is ours to enjoy now and in the life to come in heaven.

Yes we have all kinds of reasons to give thanks. But thanksgiving is more than words or the observance of a national holiday. That in itself can be meaningless and hollow. Our best thanksgiving is offered to God in our living. Thankful living shows itself in how we share what we have with others; how we use all that God has given us in the best way possible and in a way that is pleasing to Him.

Our thanks - living can really be put to the test right now as we feel the pinch of inflation and yet remain the richest nation and people in the world. We can quickly become greedy about what we have or show true thanksgiving to God in how we help others in struggle to simply survive. Then, by God's grace we can be living examples and answers to the question, "Why Give Thanks?"

THE MORAL ANGLE

When does killing the unborn become murder?

By FATHER LESTER
Copley News Service

Dear Father Lester:

A young man who is charged with killing a pregnant woman may be charged with a double murder because of the child. Why is it that killing the unborn child could be murder for him yet not murder for a mother (and doctors) killing her child through induced abortion?

A.I.P.

Dear Al:

The inconsistency in the laws seems to result from a divergence of the lawmakers' views in regard, either singly or jointly, to (1) the human status of the unborn child, (2) the definition of murder, (3) the innocence of the child.

Civilizations based on Judeo-Christian principles of morality have traditionally held that the child from the very moment of conception or relatively soon afterward is a human person with all the inherent rights of any other human being. Philosophically they would say that the substantial form of the human body, which makes the being a person, is infused at the moment of conception or at the time when the material brain is sufficiently formed to be used by the intellect for at least rudimentary functions.

The exact moment of the infusion of the intellectual soul is still disputable; yet until the exact moment can be determined with certainty, human life must be presupposed for practical purposes to begin at conception. Hence, lawmakers guided by this traditional view have always legally protected the unborn child of any age.

On the other hand, some recent lawmakers who allow the killing of unborn children seem to base their idea of when a human being becomes a human being on some home-spun or utilitarian philosophy.

The following definition of murder has stood the test of ages: the direct killing of an innocent person. Of course, though, not everyone today, including lawmakers, seems to care about definitions; he prefers to have words mean only what he himself wants them to mean.

Some lawmakers too dispute the innocence of the unwanted child — as if the child were responsible for his existence and intended evil to his mother.

St. MATTHEW'S EPISCOPAL

Rev. C. Phillip Craig, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, will conduct the sixth annual Quiet Day observance Dec. 4.

Services will begin at 10 a.m. with a Holy Communion and healing service and conclude about 2:30 p.m.

This will be the first time Father Craig has conducted the observance. He came to Pampa in January of this year to replace Rev. Sam Hulsey, who left for a postorate in Nashville, Tenn.

Rev. Craig received his bachelor of arts and master of divinity degrees at the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn.

He came to Pampa from all Saints Episcopal Church, where he served as pastor, at Greensboro, N.C. While at Greensboro, he served as a counselor for the Industrial Counseling Service.

Following the communion service, addresses will be delivered at 10:30 a.m. and 11:30 p.m. Dialogue will be conducted at 1 p.m. following a noon luncheon.

The public is invited to attend a sack lunch needs to be provided for the luncheon.

Theme of the Quiet Day observance this year is "Maranatha — Come, Lord Jesus"

The special occasion is designed to allow participants to strive to obtain a nearness to God in the tranquility of silence, following the advice found in Luke 17:21, "...for, behold, the kingdom of God is within you."

Remembering The 'Dumb Ox'

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
To his classmates, as G. K. Chesterton reminds in his delightful biography, Thomas Aquinas was known as "the dumb ox."

History, however, has looked differently on the mind of Aquinas and the nickname that has stuck has not been "dumb ox" but "the Angelic Doctor."

This year marks the 700th anniversary of the death of Aquinas and therefore brings a whole series of reappraisals of both his life and work — especially among Protestants, prejudiced by Martin Luther's dismissal of the theologian as "the greatest chatterbox" of the medieval scholastics.

It has been marked, for example, by a major new biography of Aquinas, James A. Weisheipl's "Friar Thomas D'Aquino," along with a new edition of Chesterton's "Saint Thomas Aquinas: The Dumb Ox" (both Doubleday, the latter a Double Day Image paperback).

In addition, such magazines as the liberal Protestant "Christian Century" and the conservative Protestant "Christianity Today" have both run reappraisals of Aquinas.

It is noteworthy that contemporary commemorations mark Aquinas' death and not his birth.

That is partly because very little is actually known about his life. His date of birth is uncertain and for a long time his place of birth was a matter of scholarly dispute.

What is certain is that Aquinas was born into a turbulent age, not unlike this one, marked by many of the same problems as this one — urban squalor, university unrest, economic inflation and uncertainty, and exciting scientific breakthroughs.

One example of the turmoil of the time touched Aquinas' life very directly. In 1244, after leaving the Benedictine monastery, Aquinas joined the still emerging Dominican order — a radical group stressing voluntary poverty, missionary zeal and a strong return to the Bible.

His joining the Dominicans brought him into conflict with his family and they kidnapped him and held him under house arrest for a time.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

Because I love Zion, because my heart yearns for Jerusalem, I will not cease to pray for her or to cry out to God on her behalf until she shines forth in his righteousness and is glorious in his salvation. The nations shall see your righteousness, Kings shall be blinded by your glory; and God will confer on you a new name. He will hold you aloft in his hands for all to see — a splendid crown for the King of kings. Never again shall you be called "The God-forsaken Land."

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH
Nursing Homes Need Visitations

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read the letter signed E.C. saying that nursing homes should provide physical therapy. Almost three years ago my husband had to be cared for in a home because I was unable, physically, to care for him 24 hours a day. My experience has been that visits with the patients are what is needed. You can't realize the pleasure of a smile when a patient sees you, then to be taken for a walk, or, if in a wheelchair as many are, to be taken for a ride around the home. And just "mental stimulation" is so rewarding to them. They love to be remembered by name, a smile, a pat on the shoulder or a shake of the hand. I show movies once a week. These have to be travel films. For one thing, regular movies cost too much. And another, the patients' attention cannot be kept to follow the continuity of a story. I also take their pictures on slides. You can't know the pleasure this gives them, to see themselves on the screen. Why not come out and try something like this? With no visitors it can be a lonely life for them. They get confused, feel left out and lonesome and abandoned by friends and family. Some people cannot go into a home. It depresses them. This is not needed. Come with a smile on your face, a greeting. The world will be much brighter for you, and you will be rewarded by the response from the patients. Just to have someone to talk to, someone who cares, means so much. Mrs. A.N.

We have, at our home, an activities director who organizes arts and crafts for those interested. Bingo three times a week. We have a volunteer organist for sing-alongs, piano players, and volunteers who come in to sing and dance. These are mostly children. We have a coffee hour on Saturday, a birthday party each month, parties for various celebrations. All are invited to come but there are some who would rather not. If a relative or friend were there, the patient could be encouraged to join the group. Some can walk but need an arm to steady them. Why not come out and try something like this? With no visitors it can be a lonely life for them. They get confused, feel left out and lonesome and abandoned by friends and family. Some people cannot go into a home. It depresses them. This is not needed. Come with a smile on your face, a greeting. The world will be much brighter for you, and you will be rewarded by the response from the patients. Just to have someone to talk to, someone who cares, means so much. Mrs. A.N.

Need I add anything to this letter? The nursing home must do its share—but so must you!

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please advise as to why you think my navel would be sore. At times it is crusty and itchy.—S.K.

There could be several reasons, but any one of them requires medical treatment. The most likely cause is that some sort of infection has established itself. See your doctor to avoid the possibility of it developing into something serious.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you give some of us new mothers a bit of information on baby walkers? I've heard that it's bad for their feet and they start to walk later.—Mrs. R.B.

I'd put it the other way around—walkers don't help babies walk any sooner. I doubt if a walker is bad for a baby's feet, but babies just don't need walkers, and don't benefit by them. Babies will stand up when they are ready—hanging onto anything that is handy—and they will walk when they are ready. You can put babies in walkers or any other contrivance, but you aren't helping them. Let nature tell them it's time.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are there symptoms of gout besides getting an enlarged big toe?—Mrs. J.G.

The toe (which can become extremely painful) is the commonest place for gout to make its presence known—it's the first spot in maybe 75 percent or more of cases. But any joint can be affected. Troubled with gout? To learn of new treatment for this painful disease, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of Dr. George C. -Driving takes seeing

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn: I'm 16 and wear glasses and have just started driving. I do not want to wear glasses when I drive but admit I do see better with them. The problem is my Dad. He says no glasses no driving. Do you think he's right?

Dick

Dear Dick: You answered your own question. You said you see better with glasses. Keep in mind that 90 per cent of all driving decisions depend on good vision. To be a good driver, you must develop good driving habits that depend on using your eyes. You must also know your capabilities and limitations. Driving takes seeing. Wear the glasses.

The Almanac

United Press International
Today is Friday, Nov. 29, the 333rd day of 1974 with 32 to follow.

The moon is full. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius.

American author Louisa May Alcott was born Nov. 29, 1832.

On this day in history: In 1890, the first Army-Navy football game was played. The Middies won, 24-0.

In 1929, Lt. Cmdr. Richard Byrd and three crewmen became the first persons to fly over the South Pole.

In 1963, a Canadian plane crash near Montreal killed 118 persons.

Also in 1963, President Lyndon Johnson appointed the Warren Commission to investigate the assassination of President John Kennedy.

A thought for the day: American writer Henry David Thoreau said, "Time is but the stream I go fishing in."

Selfish Barber

When Harry bought out Joe's barber shop, he insisted that Joe make him a special promise: to stay out of the barbering trade for the next four years.

At first, Joe managed to keep busy with other work. But finally, lonesome for the old way of life, he opened a barber shop in another part of town.

Harry lost no time in suing him for violating their agreement. But at the hearing, Joe was able to prove that none of his old customers were coming to the new shop—and that they were not likely to come in the future either.

Bearded Lady

Dear Pat and Marilyn: I am 16 years old. I am not bad looking, except for one thing. I have black hair and an olive complexion. I also have a lot of fuzz on my face. It is embarrassing even to write about this to a total stranger.

I have mentioned this to my mother but she just laughed and told me that it was nothing to worry about. The kids at school tease me. They call me names and I know this is why I have never had a date. Can anything be done?

Dear Lady: Yes. Your doctor can prescribe the best course of action. Your problem is a fairly common one so don't feel all that different. Show this letter to your mother. She should understand how disturbed you are. Make an appointment with your doctor today.

Confidential to Nervous

If you let school make you so nervous, you will end up with low grades and no education. Nothing is that important. Face each day, step at a time. Face each class, session at a time. Complete one assignment without concerning yourself about the next. Finally, greet each day with these words, "I can."

Pirates Take On No. 2 Bronte Tonight

By PAUL SIMS

SPUR — A balanced ground game and a defense with a bunch of little kids that do what they're told to do, make the Bronte Longhorns an eight-point favorite against the Lefors Pirates when the teams clash in the Class B state quarterfinals tonight here.

Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m. for the game, which pits the No. 2 team in the state against Lefors, a team notorious for knocking off favorites. The Pirates have beaten Groom for the 1-B championship and Sundown for the bi-district title and have been underdogs in both games.

Against Sundown a week ago in Hale Center, Lefors fell behind, 15-0, early, but battled back to a 28-15 win. Fullback Barney Sawyer, also an all-state linebacker, scored touchdowns on runs of four, one and nine yards and halfback Rim Hix added one on a one-yard run.

It was the first time since 1949 Lefors won a bi-district game. Prior to the game, Sundown had lost only once and was ranked highly in the state. The Pirates will have an even tougher time with the Longhorns, who haven't lost and are only percentage points away from being the top ranked team in the state in the Harris Ratings.

Quarterback Nelson Coulter, tight end Jim Dan Raughton and halfback Alan Barbee are responsible for Bronte's offensive balance. Raughton was all-district a year ago and all three are likely to make all-state this season.

Fullback Turney Coulter, a freshmen sensation, and halfback Wayne Alexander round out Bronte's running attack.

Linemen, besides

Raughton, are split end Bobby Bailey (125), left tackle Mark Lee (145), left guard Ricky Frazier (150), Center Kit Carlton (150), right guard Kerwin Denton, (145) and right tackle Clinton Porter (200).

The Bronte defense has allowed a total of 35 points all season. It shut out Sanderson last week when Bronte won 32-0 in the bi-district.

"We don't have any defensive standouts. Just a bunch of little kids that do what they're told to do," head coach Gerald Sandusky said.

"I guess you'd have to say we're pretty well balanced."

Defensive ends are Coulter and Marvin Ensor (130), tackles are Lee and Porter and guards are Billy Ren Lee (135), and Paul Cervanka (150). Linebackers are Denton and Carlton, halfbacks are Alexander and Barbee and safety is Raughton.

"We're fairly quick," Sandusky said. "I'd say our quickness is our strong point."

"We've just been lucky this year. We haven't played anybody very tough. This is just on of those lucky years."

Sandusky's last "lucky" year was in 1969 when he coached the Longhorns to the regional title, which was as far as a Class B school could go at the time.

Bronte has no players out with injuries, while Lefors will have one — Hix, who turned an ankle in practice Wednesday. Phil White, a 140-pound sophomore, will fill in for Hix.

Also in the backfield will be quarterback Greg Beck.

Sawyer and halfback Rick Jennings. The three, along with Hix, have been explosive this season.

Sawyer, who gained 1,242 yards on 151 carries during the regular season and added 169 on 33 tries against Sundown, leads the Pirates' rushing attack.

On the offensive line are right end Bobby Dunn (17), left end Keith Baker (150),

Defensively, head coach Leonard Tolbert will go with ends Allison and Franks, tackles Cady and Larry Jackson (215), noseguard Beck, linebackers Sawyer and Jennings, cornerbacks

Baker and Dunn and safeties Jennings and Bobby Crain.

Lefors has quickness, size and a reputation for beating the "better" teams. Still look for Bronte, which has annihilated everybody it's played this season, to win. The Pirates must stop Coulter and Barbee and that's much easier said than done. Bronte by eight.

would be hurt and Longley would have to play against the Redskins.

"He may deny it now," said Staubach, "but he said it nationwide. He wanted me to get hurt. Well, it backfired. Now the words are back where they belong."

Allen took the loss particularly hard.

"This is the toughest loss we've ever had," he said. "I can't remember a tougher loss. Longley did a great job. What else can you say?"

Clint Gives Dallas Comeback

Sports Page

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Tom Landry summed it up by saying "football is an incredible game."

George Allen called the event, "the toughest loss I ever had."

And Roger Staubach, in effect, told Diron Talbert to go jump in the nearest river, or worse.

In one of those fiction-type affairs Thanksgiving Day, an understudy known only to certain folks in Texas, came in to replace the dazed leading man, rallied the home team once and then, in the final seconds, threw one of those wild bombs that somehow found its mark and won the game.

In this particular case that bomb gave Dallas a 24-23 win over Washington in perhaps the bitterest rivalry currently running in the NFL.

The understudy was Clint Longley, a young rattlesnake hunter who came to Dallas by way of a circuitous "route" from Abilene Christian College. His NFL playing career officially began Thursday with 10 minutes left in the third period with Dallas behind 16-3 and Staubach wobbling to the bench. The victim of a solid hit courtesy of Redskins linebacker Dave Robinson.

"They told me to grab my helmet and get in there," said Longley, who became Staubach's backup after Craig Morton was traded to the New York Giants last month. "I had to find my helmet first."

Longley proceeded to throw a 35-yard touchdown pass to Billy Joe DuPree and then guided Dallas on a 70-yard touchdown march that ended in a one-yard run by Walt Garrison to put the Cowboys in front by a point.

But after those heroics, Duane Thomas—a ghost of Thanksgivings past for Dallas—scored his second touchdown of the day on a 19-yard run to put Washington ahead.

Little else could have been expected from Longley, drafted by Cincinnati early this year in the NFL supplemental draft and then traded to Dallas for a sixth-round draft choice. But he had something else—a 50-yard touchdown pass to Drew Pearson with 28 seconds left that gave the Cowboys the victory and prevented the Redskins from clinching a playoff berth.

Dallas still has a slight hope for the playoffs left—a hope that could become a reality only if it wins its remaining two games and the Redskins lose both of theirs.

"Football is an incredible game," said Landry. "This is what makes it so unbelievable at times. Clint Longley has incredible ability. He just knows where his receivers are."

"He's too young to read the defenses correctly. It's just a special football sense and he's going to be a good one."

For Staubach the win was particularly sweet because Talbert had said two weeks ago he hoped Staubach would be hurt and Longley would have to play against the Redskins.

"He may deny it now," said Staubach, "but he said it nationwide. He wanted me to get hurt. Well, it backfired. Now the words are back where they belong."

Allen took the loss particularly hard.

"This is the toughest loss we've ever had," he said. "I can't remember a tougher loss. Longley did a great job. What else can you say?"

FORZANO RETURNING

Denver Ruins Detroit

DETROIT (UPI) — The Lions lost themselves a football game—but they have won themselves a coach.

"Absolutely," Detroit owner William Clay Ford replied Thanksgiving Day, when asked if Rick Forzano could coach the Lions next season. "As far as I'm concerned, he will be. You'd better go ask him—maybe he doesn't want to."

This was after, not before, the Denver Broncos had virtually eliminated Detroit from playoff consideration by scoring a 31-27 victory on national television.

The Broncos are 6-5-1 and the Lions 6-6. Detroit fell 1½ games behind Minnesota in the NFC's Central Division and the Vikings have three games to play. Only an incredible combination of circumstances would qualify the Broncos as the AFC wild card team.

"There has been definite progress," Ford said of his club. "The best we could finish is 8-6. That isn't a great leap over last year (6-7-1), but there's new spirit, a new attitude that should carry over."

"Rick's a real leader. He's given them a will to win. There were times in the past when they would accept a loss," said Ford, who twice last season blasted his players for their lackadaisical play. "He's instilled pride. When they make a mistake now, they care."

"They're a great football team," Coach John Ralston of Denver said about his opponents. "They are as fine a coached club as we've played this season."

"The Detroit coaches have done more with this football team than any other club in the league—with the exception of, say, St. Louis."

Detroit's Greg Landry, who completed 12 straight passes but failed in his miracle worker role in his first start of the season, said the Lions have had a "pretty tough" year.

"First we were on strike," Landry said. "Then we had our head coach (Don McCafferty) pass away. Then we had a new coach to adjust to. Our last seven or eight games we've been coming on well. It's a credit to the ball club when you're 0-4 to be able to get to 6-6."

Key SWC, SEC Tilts To Be Televised Today

Two traditional college football holiday treats will brighten up the television screen today, and for the first time in quite a spell both matchups will be inspired by something more than the "age-old rivalry" mystique.

The first contest of the afternoon pits Texas A&M against Texas for the 81st time, and the seventh-ranked Aggies, who have not fared very well against the Longhorns over the years, will be highly motivated this year because a victory would take them to the Cotton Bowl for the first time since 1968.

In recent years Texas usually has the Southwest Conference title clinched by this time, but Texas A&M currently leads the SWC and could wrap up the title with a victory. A loss, however, would enable Baylor to represent the SWC in the New Year's Day classic. Texas, which has gone to the Cotton Bowl the last six years, is out of the running but will be going to the Gator Bowl.

Not too surprisingly, Texas has been made an eight-point favorite. That's largely because the game is at Austin where the Aggies have beaten the Longhorns only four times in 41 previous visits. However, Texas Coach Darrell Royal doesn't put much weight in past performances.

"I don't believe in all that past business," said Royal. "There are a number of people on that football team that haven't lost in Memorial Stadium, and it doesn't matter what happened back in ought-four. I don't believe in all that stuff. I don't think it's worth any points."

The other half of today's televised double bill has sixth-ranked Auburn meeting unbeaten and top-ranked Alabama at Birmingham. Both teams are already committed to postseason bowls—Alabama to the Orange and Auburn to the Gator—but the Tigers could gain a share-of-the Southeastern Conference title by beating the Crimson Tide Alabama, which has won the conference title the last three years, currently holds a one-game edge over Auburn, which has not finished on top in the conference since 1957.

Alabama has been made a 15-point favorite.

This is the final weekend of college football for the regular season, and it began on Thursday night when ninth-ranked Penn State rallied to the second half to defeat Pitt for the ninth time in succession, 31-10.

The Nittany Lions, down 7-6 at the half, came from behind on two touchdown passes from Tom Shuman to Jim Easie.

SEC tilts to be televised today.

A GOLDEN CROP — Russell Baldrige and his son, Glen, survey a pile of eastern Washington sugar beets to be shipped to refiners. When farmers planted this year's crops, they didn't know prices would soar, making sugar beets a new kind of gold rush. This year's acreage of the golden crop was more than 30 percent below last year's.

Group Okays Lottery Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee today approved legislation to exempt state-run lotteries from federal antitambling laws.

The measure, which was approved by voice vote, originally was prompted by Attorney General William B. Saxbe who said the state lotteries were in violation of federal antitambling laws that prohibit the transporting of information about lotteries across state lines.

Saxbe gave Congress 90 days in which to correct the legal conflict before the Justice Department would consider taking any legal action against the lotteries.

The bill would amend the federal antitambling statute to allow the publication and broadcasting of advertising, lists of prizes and winners and other information concerning state lotteries.

The measure would also permit the mailing of newspapers across state boundaries which carry advertisements and other information about the operation of the lotteries.

Other provisions of the bill would permit the transportation or mailing of tickets and other materials used in state lotteries.

The legislation, however, would not cover church-run lotteries or other nonprofit lotteries run by other private organizations.

The bill presently will affect 12 states: Connecticut, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Illinois, Maine, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The market has the immediate potential for a 40 to 60 point rally, according to Rosenkrantz-Ehrenkrantz-Lyon & Ross. "During the last two weeks, a high degree of investor panic has been occurring," the firm says, pointing to the rapid descent of the market averages. "Based upon our assumption that we are currently in an intermediate term rally phase, aggressive investors can cover short positions and initiate buying," it adds.

The Dow Jones Industrial average is the weakest performing market average of the lot, while the broader market continues to exhibit resilience and considerable underlying strength," says Comparative Market Indicators of Bellevue, Wash. Since the previous intermediate uptrend ran into resistance, the market will need more time for base building before a new advance emerges, the firm continues. "Over the near term, we favor the positive side," it says.

Each year about 100,000 drinkers become alcoholics, and an increasing number of them are women, according to an insurance company statistical report. — CNS

BOSTON BUSING II Opposing groups at loggerheads

Editor's Note: This is the second of three articles on the busing of schoolchildren in Boston — the background, issues and reasons for resistance.

By CIMA STAR
Copley News Service

BOSTON — Boston city schools opened six days late this year with attendance at 66 per cent instead of the normal 86 per cent. In Southie, less than 200 students out of an enrollment of 1,300 turned up at South Boston High. Six persons — five black students and one police officer — were injured that day, and seven persons were arrested throughout the city.

The fact that this is an election year — helped fan the flames of fear and anger in Southie and elsewhere. Had it not been an election year, some of those officials and candidates, who had been strong supporters of desegregation for years, would have spoken differently. But they wanted votes, and their desire for votes virtually eliminated the needed voices of reassurance and calm. Opponents of busing had no opposition.

Few observers believe the issue in Boston is racism. For example, J. Michael Ross, a Boston University sociologist, has completed a 10-year study indicating that busing is equally unpopular among college graduates as it is among elementary school graduates.

Nor did he find any significant difference among ethnic groups — Irish Catholics, Italians, or Jews — in their opposition to busing. The major difference, according to Ross, between Southie's resistance and the resistance of others, lies in their methods of protest. In Southie, where residents are less sophisticated than in more upwardly middle-class neighborhoods, they know they have little power. As a result, they are angry, they throw rocks, they scream abuse, and sometimes erupt into violence.

More sophisticated neighborhoods are more experienced in gaining power over their lives. "It is not by chance," points out the professor, that Hyde Park and West Roxbury were originally excluded from the busing plan.

Another Boston University professor, Dean Robert Dentler, feels that resistance to integration has been severe primarily because the city spent nine years resisting it instead of working out a peaceful way of implementation, and because the method was "dangerously close to unplanned."

However, Dentler believes that despite the current difficulties, what he calls a period of "depressed achievement," and considerable conflict, the city will not only live through the crisis, but within three years will have accommodated to the change.

"The reason it takes that long," he says, is due to "the many readjustments that will come up in the first year and a half. They will be reassessing, reassessing. The concept of a plan is to stabilize an otherwise unstable situation."

Next: Future of schools seems promising.

Man can fly by own power

Man can produce enough power to fly a machine, says the British Royal Aeronautical Society, which offers a $120,000 prize for the first man-powered flight over a figure-eight course.

It has carried out tests on a special machine, known as an ergometer, which records horsepower that a "pedal aeronaut" could produce. — CNS

Zeigler Wins 'Gobbledygook' English Award

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Former presidential press secretary Ronald Zeigler won the "Gobbledygook" award from the National Council of Teachers of English for a 99 word answer to a question "that would seem to require a 'yes' or 'no' answer."

The council's Committee on Public Doublespeak said Tuesday Zeigler, press aide to former President Richard Nixon, was asked by reporters whether a batch of Watergate tapes were still intact.

"His question would seem to require a 'yes' or 'no' answer," said committee chairman Daniel J. Dietrich of the University of Illinois.

The award "in the category in the misuse of euphemisms" went to an Air Force press officer in Cambodia, identified as Col. Opler, who told reporters after a U.S. bombing raid, "You always write it's bombing, bombing, bombing. It's not bombing. It's air support."

Don J. Willower of Pennsylvania State University received the "educationese" award for a two-paragraph statement that included the following sentence: "Public schools display a myriad of normative and other regulatory structures that promote internal predictability, as well as a host of adaptive mechanisms that reduce external uncertainties."

An award for "their skillful use of the language of silence" went to the advertising industry for a candy commercial. Dietrich said told children "that the bad guy in tooth decay is plaque, and the 'super cops' in battling this villain are toothbrushes and dental floss."

BOSTON BUSING II Opposing groups at loggerheads

Editor's Note: This is the second of three articles on the busing of schoolchildren in Boston — the background, issues and reasons for resistance.

By CIMA STAR
Copley News Service

BOSTON — Boston city schools opened six days late this year with attendance at 66 per cent instead of the normal 86 per cent. In Southie, less than 200 students out of an enrollment of 1,300 turned up at South Boston High. Six persons — five black students and one police officer — were injured that day, and seven persons were arrested throughout the city.

The fact that this is an election year helped fan the flames of fear and anger in Southie and elsewhere. Had it not been an election year, some of those officials and candidates, who had been strong supporters of desegregation for years, would have spoken differently. But they wanted votes, and their desire for votes virtually eliminated the needed voices of reassurance and calm. Opponents of busing had no opposition.

Few observers believe the issue in Boston is racism. For example, J. Michael Ross, a Boston University sociologist, has completed a 10-year study indicating that busing is equally unpopular among college graduates as it is among elementary school graduates.

Nor did he find any significant difference among ethnic groups — Irish Catholics, Italians, or Jews — in their opposition to busing. The major difference, according to Ross, between Southie's resistance and the resistance of others, lies in their methods of protest. In Southie, where residents are less sophisticated than in more upwardly middle-class neighborhoods, they know they have little power. As a result, they are angry, they throw rocks, they scream abuse, and sometimes erupt into violence.

More sophisticated neighborhoods are more experienced in gaining power over their lives. "It is not by chance," points out the professor, that Hyde Park and West Roxbury were originally excluded from the busing plan.

Another Boston University professor, Dean Robert Dentler, feels that resistance to integration has been severe primarily because the city spent nine years resisting it instead of working out a peaceful way of implementation, and because the method was "dangerously close to unplanned."

However, Dentler believes that despite the current difficulties, what he calls a period of "depressed achievement," and considerable conflict, the city will not only live through the crisis, but within three years will have accommodated to the change.

"The reason it takes that long," he says, is due to "the many readjustments that destabilize the situation that will come up in the first year and a half. They will be reassigning, reassessing. The concept of a plan is to stabilize an otherwise unstable situation."

Next: Future of schools seems promising.

Man can fly by own power

Man can produce enough power to fly a machine, says the British Royal Aeronautical Society, which offers a $120,000 prize for the first man-powered flight over a figure-of-eight course.

It has carried out tests on a special machine, known as an ergometer, which records horsepower that a "pedal aeronaut" could produce. — CNS

Zeigler Wins 'Gobbledygook' English Award

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Former presidential press secretary Ronald Zeigler won the "Gobbledygook" award from the National Council of Teachers of English for a 99 word answer to a question "that would seem to require a 'yes' or 'no' answer."

The council's Committee on Public Doublespeak said Tuesday Zeigler, press aide to former President Richard Nixon, was asked by reporters whether a batch of Watergate tapes were still intact.

"His question would seem to require a 'yes' or 'no' answer," said committee chairman Daniel J. Dietrich of the University of Illinois.

The award "in the category in the misuse of euphemisms" went to an Air Force press officer in Cambodia, identified as Col. Opler, who told reporters after a U.S. bombing raid. "You always write it's bombing, bombing, bombing. It's not bombing. It's air support."

Don J. Willower of Pennsylvania State University received the "educationese" award for a two-paragraph statement that included the following sentence: "Public schools display a myriad of normative and other regulatory structures that promote internal predictability, as well as a host of adaptive mechanisms that reduce external uncertainties."

An award for "their skillful use of the language of silence" went to the advertising industry for a candy commercial Dietrich said told children "that the bad guy in tooth decay is plaque, and the 'super-cops' in battling this villain are toothbrushes and dental floss."
