Texas Uninstructed for President Club Is Formed

HASTY ACTION IS FEARED BY TEXAS GROUP

Decision On Al Smith Now Is Strictly Opposed

WICHITA FALLS MAN CHAIRMAN

Organization Is Not Unfriendly Toward Anyone

(By Associated Press)
 DALLAS, Oct. 24—Formation of a Texas Uninstructed for President club, with Charles Francis of Wichita Falls as chairman and C. C. Renfro of Dallas as secretary, was announced here by letter today.
 Explaining that its purpose is to vote down wherever possible instructions for Al Smith, Dan Moody, or anyone else, the club announced that it is not unfriendly to these or any other Democrats, but it is merely formed in order not through the party's chance to win by espousing prematurely the candidacy of anyone it was stated.

Harvesters Prepare For Three Hard Games in Row

The Pampa Harvesters have three hard games coming up and Coach Verde Dickey is getting his eleven in readiness.
 Friday afternoon the local team will go to Miami to meet what are considered their toughest opponents, on Nov. 1, Follett High school's team will play the Harvesters on Ayres field, and on the following Friday Perryton will be the opposing team on the home field.
 Miami has one of the strongest teams in the history of the school, and are bragging that the Harvesters will bite the dust, but the locals differ with that statement. Carlton and Hardin will be back in the game.
 The Follett game will probably be a hard fought one, but very few definite reports have been received as to the prowess of the team. They are said to be fast.
 Perryton has a strong team this year and has been causing several upsets in football dope, but the Harvesters are out to finish the season without a loss. With Walstead and Carlton running wild they should make good the team boast.
 Coach Dickey will be busy this week perfecting plays and coaching the team on off-sides. The team lost 39 yards on off-side penalties Friday, which is enough to lose a hard game. The team seems a little over-anxious and off-sides have been numerous.

Fall-Sinclair Trial Delayed as Judge Searches Records

(By Associated Press)
 WASHINGTON, Oct. 24—A decision as to the admission at their criminal conspiracy trial testimonies given before the Senate oil committee by Harry Sinclair and Albert Fall was deferred today by Justice Siders in the District of Columbia Supreme Court.
 The justice said he wanted further evidence as to whether Sinclair was subpoenaed before the committee before he passed upon so important a point in the present case.

Murder Charge Confronts Locke, Once Oklahoma Indian Official

ANTLERS, Okla.,—Because he reverted to the law of his Indian ancestors, which placed the lives of tribesmen in the hands of their chieftains, Major Victor M. Locke, Jr., once superintendent of the Five Civilized Tribes, must face trial for murder.
 Locke is charged with killing Abner Battiste, 24, flood-blood member of the Choctaw tribe, of which Locke is a member and was once principal chief.
 Friends of Locke declare he acted to protect maidens of the tribe from the attentions of young Battiste. Locke shot the Indian to death late in September after driving him away from the home of two girl wards of Locke. Free on a bond of $25,000, Locke is scheduled to go to trial here early in November.
 Locke's career has been a tempestuous one. In 1892, when only a stripling, he left school in Texas to hasten to the Indians country that is now southeastern Oklahoma and join forces with his father, Victor Locke Sr., in what was later known as the "Locke Rebellion." The uprising was against the Choctaw tribal government and aimed to prevent the execution of 35 tribesmen. The rebellion Indians were captured by a battalion of United States troops and taken to the reservation with his companions.
 From 1914 to 1918 Locke was principal chief of the Choctaw tribe. He entered the World War and emerged a major.

President Harding appointed Locke superintendent of the Five Civilized tribes, composed of the Choctaw, Chickasaw, Cherokee, Seminole and Creek, in 1921. Miss Alice Robertson, then congresswoman from Oklahoma, immediately began a war on Locke, her political enemy, and, although no charges were filed, Locke resigned after an investigation had been made into his office.
 He retired to his home in the mountainous corner of Oklahoma, where he has extensive interests. Locke shows slight trace of his Indian descent. He is 51 years old. His divorced wife and 13-year-old daughter live in Oklahoma City.

(By Associated Press)
 LOCKHART, Oct. 24—With preliminaries out of the way, the sanity trial of A. V. Millikin, condemned slayer of Mrs. Virginia Petty of San Antonio, reached the testimony stage today.
 District Attorney Blundell said he expected to introduce approximately a hundred letters said to have been written by Millikin since his conviction.
 These letters, he said, will show that Millikin knows what it is all about.
 Taking of testimony was again delayed this morning, and it was indicated that another motion to transfer the case to another county will be filed this afternoon.

CITY CHARTER ELECTION HELD VITAL ISSUE

Vote on November 8 May Change Form of Government

ARTICLES WILL EXPLAIN PLAN

City Manager Idea Is Popular in Many States

(This is the first of a series of informative articles relating to the city charter election.—Editor's Note.)

On November 8, the voters of Pampa will go to the polls (at least those who are interested in the development of the city will) and decide whether or not a charter will be adopted changing the form of government from that of six councilmen and a mayor to that of three commissioners and a city manager.
 Every qualified elector in the city should and no doubt desires to vote in that election. Furthermore, every vote cast should represent a definite conviction based on reliable information. In order to assist in furnishing such information the Pampa Daily News and the Pampa Chamber of Commerce are presenting a series of articles developed from letters from 20 of the 21 cities and towns in Texas which have the city manager plan written into their charters.
 In an effort to get a cross-section picture of the general attitude toward this form of government, the chamber of commerce wrote to the chambers in each of the twenty-one cities requesting the names of four or five representative citizens, from whom an expression might be gotten. These men were then solicited for their opinions on the subject and the number of replies together with the diversity of vocations represented indicates that a careful weighing of the evidence presented should permit a conclusion that will be correct to the greatest possible degree.
 How It All Started
 For a beginning of the series, it seems appropriate to give some history of the city manager plan, its beginning and progress to this time. In 1908 the Mayor and City Council of Staunton, Virginia, in disgust over the inefficiency of government by councilmanic committees, hired C. E. Ashburner and passed an ordinance delegating to him all administrative details and responsibility giving him the title of "General Manager." He made good and became somewhat famous for his novel title. Realizing that the ordinance arrangement did not accomplish one of the greatest possible advantages of the plan, removing the management of the city from politics, Staunton later made it a part of their city charter.
 In the fall of 1910 Lockport, New York was looking for a chance to get aboard the commission government, which was then sweeping over the country. The Lockport Board of Trade accordingly had to prepare legislation and proceeded to improve on the regular commission play by combining its single elective board feature with the Staunton idea of an appointive manager. Lockport did not succeed in getting its bill passed by the legislature, but the "Lockport plan" was talked about all over the country.
 In the summer of 1912 Sumter, S. C., a city of 8,000 inhabitants, adopted a new charter embodying the Lockport idea and began operating under the new system early in the following year. This was the first therefore to have the city manager system by charter. Two neigh-

Canadian Wins Over Locals in Golf Sunday

Canadian's Golf team arrived in Pampa Sunday morning determined to wipe out the insult handed their High school football team Friday afternoon and they succeeded, although it was not a riot.
 Before commencing the friendly match members of the Canadian team were guests of the local club at a dinner given at the Schneide hotel.
 The match got away with Ott Studer and Morgan Davie in the lead. Studer beat his man three-up Jack Berry led Tom Thomas, and a the finish was three-up. Dick Dunbar was defeated by Frank Chambers, two-up. Willard Sage lost to Marion Adams, two-up, in a spirited match all the way.

PRODUCTION IS 300 BARRELS EVERY HOUR

Camel Oil Company's Well Has 550 Feet of Fluid

6-INCH CASING IS BEING SET

Amagray Test Makes 144 Barrels on Swab

The Delaney, Eslick and Rieger No. 1, Jackson in section 88, block B-2, the discovery gusher of the Bowers pool, has increased its flow to 300 barrels an hour.
 Last week the flow increased to 280 barrels an hour, and Sunday jumped another 40 barrels an hour to make the total 300 barrels.
 The Gulf Production company's No. 1 Bowers in section 89, block B-2, about a mile north of the Delaney gusher, is flowing 3,000 barrels a day after being drilled 12 feet deeper. The well came in more than a month ago at 3,003 feet for about 800 barrels.
 Another surprise was encountered in the Camel Oil company's No. 1 Harrah in section 163, block 3, about five miles north west of Pampa, when pay was reached at 3,117 feet, which is 54 feet higher than first showing in any of the nearby wells. Sunday morning, after drilling operations had been suspended to set casing, it was found that 550 feet of oil stood in the hole. The 6-inch casing is being set and storage built.
 The Last Chance Gas company's No. 1 McConnell, section 201, block 3, Carson county, had 1,400 feet of oil in the hole Sunday morning. It was drilled 163 feet below the former depth reached before operations were suspended, and picked up a fine showing last week. Storage is being erected, and additional casing will be obtained for drilling in.

Canadian Wins Over Locals in Golf Sunday

The Amagray Oil company's No. 1 Chapman, in section 9, block 26 Gray county, swabbed and flowed 144 barrels the last 24 hours ending at 7 o'clock this morning. Production was from 2,523 to 2,545 feet, total depth.
 The Shamrock Oil company's No. 1 Back, in section 44, block 25, is drilling ahead in lime at 1,960 feet.

NATURAL RESULT—Ernest L. Tutt, manager of the Southwest district office of the U. S. department of commerce at Houston, is authority for the statement that despite the quick suppression of the revolutionary movements in Mexico, recent trade there has been severely crippled.

Train service between Vera Cruz and Mexico City was suspended, but service to Laredo, El Paso, and other border points was normal. The censorship on cables, which was removed September 13, was re-established, but the new long-distance telephone line from Washington to Mexico City was clear throughout.

Prices of necessities increased as soon as the flow of trade was hampered. The silver peso dropped to a discount of 8 per cent as compared with gold. Naturally, business men on both sides of the border were anxious to see a discontinuance of disorders of every character.

The service of Oregon and Calles in bringing a period of peace has been great, inasmuch as business between that country and Mexico has taken great strides. This means that in connection with the embargo on arms and ammunition, peace is far more profitable than war, and that organized business will see to it that cordial relations are maintained as far as possible. Business can virtually determine foreign policies, and business is tending strongly toward peace. In fact, commercial wars, rather than military ones, mark the present world status.

RAD BOYS—Texas has a training school for bad boys, but the training is highly deficient if recent reports are to be believed. The chairman of the state board of control declares that better industrial training facilities at the Gatesville school will be essential if the institution is to release youths capable of earning a living by "honest work."

The danger of slicing state budgets to hold expenditures within the revenue may be seen in the fact that the salary of the superintendent of the industrial department was cut from $2,400 to $1,800. If the department is worth anything at all, it is worth as much as the average school teacher obtains for similar work, if not more.

Under the present arrangement, the boys go to school half the time and work the other half. Up to this time the work has consisted mainly of farm employment. There has been no effort made until recently to convert the institution into an industrial school. More than 75 per cent of the boys come from towns and cities, and naturally many of them have no desire to go to the farms when their term is ended. When they are expelled or discharged, they are sent to go back to crime for a livelihood. On the other hand, many of them, not being of a literary disposition, could become expert mechanics and craftsmen and might learn to like this work if they had an opportunity. It is a well known fact that manual dexterity creates a strong like-through habit for any vocation.

Boys, the material men are made of, can become useful citizens despite early moral slings, and Old Man Texas is not living up to his opportunity and responsibility in this regard.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Here in the effete east, where almost any one from west of Chicago is regarded as a radical, many persons regard Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana as a radical who will bear watching.

Especially here in the smug national capital, it is felt that if Wheeler isn't a radical there isn't one in the Senate.

But out in Montana, one learns with astonishment, Wheeler is being panned as a reactionary. Some of the voters out there are much more radical than Wheeler and if there were enough of them, as there aren't, Wheeler might be defeated in his campaign for re-election next year.

The anti-Wheeler feeling centers in Sheridan county, in the extreme northeast section of Montana, along the Canadian border and North Dakota.

Experts say that you can't find a more radical section in the country than Sheridan county. The folk out there boast of it, too. And it's peculiar in more ways than that.

By electing farmer-labor county tickets each year, these radicals control the county. From all reports they do good job of running it. They drove a small-time crooked regime out of office when they stepped in.

Sheridan is altogether a farm county and is run in the interests of the farmer. The state law prevents any change in the form of county government, but the Sheridanites don't mind that. They have just the kind of a government they want.

The dominant force in Sheridan county is the United Farmers, a secret agrarian organization which has also made headway in Washington state, Minnesota and North Dakota. This group is organized both for economic and political action. Its numbers and membership lists are kept secret and when it endorses a candidate for office the fact is kept secret so that if perchance it takes a political licking the fact remains unknown. Meanwhile, it arranges with local merchants to give all card-carrying members a discount when they come to town for purchases.

Every store in Plentywood, the county seat of Sheridan, is said to grant such a discount. In this way, members are guaranteed savings amounting to more than the membership dues. Often the council steps in and persuades a banker to hold off on a mortgage foreclosure against a farmer.

When a court ruled that a Sheridan county mortgageholder was entitled to a portion of the debtor's crop, a crowd of the boys went right out to the debtor's farm, threshed his crop and hauled it away and sold it before the court could enforce the decree. An ex-sheriff, sent by a court with papers containing bad tidings to a straitened farmer, was seized and threatened with a noose. After a promise not to return, a pint of castor oil was poured down his throat as a "lesson." He has since been known as "Castor Oil Collins."

"They raise hell with bankers who try to foreclose on farmers," says a man who knows Sheridan county and admires its people. The county sheriff has a splendid reputation for catching border rum-runners, but he is hard on would-be farmhands who don't carry the red card of the I. W. W. Incidentally, some of the big farmers in Montana prefer I. W. W. workers, insisting that although they demand reasonable hours and wages they aren't as shiftless as the ordinary non-union hand.

McCrary Batters Varsity TO STARDOM AS FLEET FULLBACK OF GEORGIA

Fleetness, coupled with ability to crash through opposing lines, is making a football hero of Herdis McCrary (above), University of Georgia fullback. His playing was largely responsible for Georgia's recent 14 to 0 victory over Yale.

ATHENS, Ga.—A smashing, hard-driving attack, the kind of offense that gives football its greatest thrill, is bringing fame to Herdis McCrary, an Indiana boy, playing his second year as fullback for the University of Georgia Bulldogs.

McCrary has 197 pounds of brawn spread over six feet of height, which he uses to tear through opposing lines, while a pair of nimble feet are capable of taking him around ends at a speed of ten seconds to the hundred yards.

In fact, he depends upon his strength and speed for spectacular gains rather than the tricks of side-stepping and hip-awinging. Once during the Florida game last season he charged for the forwards from the opposing six yard line and when he landed for the touchdown three Floridians were sprawled unconscious around him.

McCrary ran wild when Georgia met the University of Virginia, traditional rivals, this season, scoring four touchdowns, one each quarter. Once he intercepted a pass and ran 64 yards, through the whole team, across the goal line. He was on the receiving end of most of Georgia's passes, while his line smashes and ends help put the ball in a favorable position. Georgia won 32 to 0.

After the recent Yale-Georgia game, in which McCrary scored one of the touchdowns that gave Georgia a 14-0 victory, was a consistent ground-gainer and saved the victory for his team in the last few moments of play by stopping Caldwell of Yale. McCrary was described as a "bull-necked battering ram of Dixie."

Experts hail him as one of the leading candidates for the All-Southern and possibly higher honors, if he continues his spectacular performances.

BILLY EVANS Says

Much Credit Due Ban Johnson
B. B. Johnson has resigned as president of the American league.

The retirement of Ban Johnson from baseball marks the passing of the man who more than any other person has placed baseball on its present high plane.

The deeds and the work of President Johnson will be far more appreciated 20 years from now than they are today.

Like all great men, Mr. Johnson had the courage of his convictions, a very definite opinion on all things and a willingness to express it, regardless of whose toes he stepped on.

Being human, he made mistakes. At times he might have been more tactful; but that wasn't the way of B. B. Johnson. He didn't believe in handling drastic situations with kid gloves.

He passed from the game still boasting a legion of friends and admirers who appreciate what he has done for it. Likewise he has made enemies. Men with the courage of their convictions always do.

After serving for 22 years under President Johnson, as a member of his staff of umpires, I want to go on record as saying I always have found him a square shooter.

Gave $500 Extra to Umpires
During those 22 years I have had my arguments with President Johnson, often because I thought my contract called for less money than I expected. Yet in the end, I always found him manifestly fair.

I recall one reason I argued over a matter of $500 expense money. At the close of the previous season, in a chat I had with Mr. Johnson, I took it for granted I was to get such an additional amount. In the spring my contract didn't call for it.

I stood pat on the situation. Mr. Johnson finally admitted that he had recollections of the discussion and gave me the extra-money I had been promised.

"I guess all the members of the staff would welcome an extra $500, so I will make the increase general," was the way he dismissed the dispute.

Since he gave me an additional amount for expense, in fairness to the rest of the staff, he added it to their salary, also. This, too, after all of them had signed for the season.

Early Days Tough in Baseball

When I joined the American League, the staff of umpires consisted of only five men; Jack Sheridan, Tommy Connolly, "Silk" O'Loughlin, Tim Hurst and myself.

Most of the year an umpire would work alone. It was customary for Mr. Johnson to double Tim Hurst, who was the poorest fit physically, with the other members of the staff.

The going was pretty tough for the umpires in those days. At many of the parks there was a long bar that dispensed hard liquor and beer. Vendors peddled half pints of whiskey through the crowd then as pop is sold now, for the small sum of two bits.

Mob scenes were almost daily occurrences, wild riots were frequently staged. President Johnson, with a firm hand, soon brought order out of chaos, made life worth living for and umpire, the game more enjoyable for the spectator and the profits greater for the magnate.

A strict disciplinarian, there was no dodging an order Johnson issued of a penalty that he imposed. His word was final in all things pertaining to the American League. Yet he was always fair.

Twenty-Two Nations In Winter Olympics

SAINT MORITZ, Switzerland—Twenty-two nations thus far have accepted Switzerland's invitation to participate in the 1928 Olympic Winter Games.

France after hesitating for several weeks finally decided to send a team, and the Olympic Committee here now announces that "it is a great pleasure that America will honor Switzerland by its presence."

Canada will send its famous hockey team and will delegate athletes for speed and artistic skating competitions. Other countries entered are Great Britain, Poland Italy, Spain, Czechoslovakia, Austria, Germany, Holland, Japan, Luxembourg, Yugoslavia, Rumania, Hungary, Latvia and Belgium.

Oklahoman Wants Season Opened Sooner

KANSAS CITY—Bennie Owen, veteran coach of Oklahoma University, hopes to see two new changes in the football regulations in the six-team conference formed by the teams which have withdrawn from the Missouri Valley conference.

Owen wants the season opened for practice not later than September 10 instead of September 15, as has been the rule in the Missouri Valley for several years, and would like to have authorization for freshmen teams to meet freshmen teams from other schools in one game each year.

The Oklahoma mentor believes the time between September 15 and October 1, when first games usually are played, is too short to enable football men to get in the best of condition.

Furthermore, because of their fine flavor, I recommend Lucky Strikes to all the champion swimmers whom I coach."

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Suspicion attaches in turn to Miss St. Clair, Pfyfe, and Leacock. Vance eliminates the girl, and when Pfyfe's testimony strengthens the case against Leacock he intervenes to keep Markham from arresting the captain. Miss Hoffman relates that Pfyfe and Alvin Benson had quarreled in the latter's office and Markham summons Pfyfe to question him on this and several other points.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV

"I really should have mentioned these before," he confessed, indicating the papers with a delicately inconsequential wave of the hand. He leaned forward on one elbow, taking a confidential attitude, and as he talked the cigaret bobbed up and down between his lips. "It pains me deeply to go into this matter," he began; "but since it is in the interests of truth, I shall not complain. My—ah—domestic arrangements are not all that one could desire. My wife's father has, curiously enough, taken a most unreasonable dislike to me; and it pleases him to deprive me of all but the meagerest financial assistance, although it is really my wife's money that he refuses to give me. A few months ago I made use of certain funds—$10,000, to be exact—which, I learned later, had not been intended for me. "When my father-in-law discovered my error, it was necessary for me to return the full amount to avoid a misunderstanding between Mrs. Pfyfe and myself—a misunderstanding which might have caused my wife great unhappiness. "I regret to say I used Alvin's name on a check. But I explained it to him at once, you understand, offering him the note of my good faith. . . . And that is all, Mr. Markham. "Was that what your quarrel with him last week was about?" Pfyfe gave him a look of querulous surprise. "Ah, you heard of our little contretemps? . . . Yes—we had a slight disagreement as to the—shall I say terms of the transaction?" "Did Benson insist that the note be paid when due?" "No—not exactly." Pfyfe's manner became unctuous. "I beg of you, sir, not to press me as to my little chat with Alvin. It was, I assure you, quite irrelevant to the present situation. Indeed, it was of a most personal and private nature. He smiled confidently. "I will admit, however, that I went to Alvin's house the night he was shot, intending to speak to him about the check; but, as you already know, I found the house dark and spent the night in a Turkish bath. "Pardon me, Mr. Pfyfe,—it was Vance who spoke—but did Mrs. Benson take your note without security?" "Of course!" Pfyfe's tone was a rebuke. "Alvin and I, have explained, were the closest friends." "But even a friend, don't you know," Vance submitted, "might ask for security on such a large amount. How did Benson know that you'd be able to repay him?" "I can only say that he did know," the other answered, with an air of patient deliberation. Vance continued to be doubtful. "Perhaps it was because of the confession you had given him." Pfyfe rewarded him with a look of beaming approval. "You grasp the situation perfectly," he said. Vance withdrew from the conversation Pfyfe for nearly half-an-hour, nothing further transpired. Pfyfe clung to his story in every detail, and politely refused to go deeper into his quarrel with Benson, insisting that it had no bearing on the case. At last he was permitted to go.

"Not very helpful," Markham observed. "I'm beginning to agree with Heath that we've turned up a mare's-nest in Pfyfe's frenzied financial deal." "You'll never be anything but your own sweet trusting self, will you?" lamented Vance sadly. "Pfyfe has just given you your first intelligent line of investigation and you say he's not helpful! . . . Listen to me. Pfyfe's story about the ten thousand dollars is undoubtedly true; he appropriated the money and forged Benson's name to a check with which to replace it. But I don't for a second believe there was no security in addition to the confession. Benson wasn't the type of man—friend or no friend—who'd hand over that amount without security. He wanted his money back—not somebody in jail. That's why I put my car in, and asked about the security.

"Well, what of it?" Markham asked impatiently. "Oh for the gift of tears!" moaned Vance. "Don't you see that there's someone in the background—someone connected with the security? It must be so, you know; otherwise Pfyfe would have told you the entire tale of the quarrel, if only to clear himself from suspicion. "Yet, knowing that his position is an awkward one, he refuses to divulge what passed between him and Benson in the office that day. . . . Pfyfe is shielding someone—and he is not the soul of chivalry, you know. Therefore, I ask: Why?" He leaned back and gazed at the ceiling. "I have an idea, amounting to a cerebral cyclone," he added, "that when we put our hands on that security, we'll also put our hands on the murderer."

At this moment the telephone rang, and when Markham answered it a look of startled amusement came into his eyes. He made an appointment with the speaker for half past five that afternoon. Then hanging up the receiver, he laughed outright at Vance. "Your auricular researches have been confirmed," he said. "Miss Hoffman just called me confidentially on an outside phone to say she has something to add to her story. She's coming here at 5:30." Vance was unimpressed by the announcement. "I rather imagine she'd telephone during her lunch hour." Again Markham gave him one of his searching scrutines. "There's something damned queer going on around here," he observed. "Oh, quite," returned Vance carelessly. "Queerer than you could possibly imagine."

For 15 or 20 minutes Markham endeavored to draw him out; but Vance seemed suddenly possessed of an ability to say nothing with the blindest fluency. Markham finally exasperated. "I'm rapidly coming to the conclusion," he said, "that either you had a hand in Benson's murder, or you're a phenomenally good guesser." "There is, you know, an alternative," rejoined Vance. "It might be that my aesthetic hypotheses and metaphysical deductions—as you call 'em—are working out—eh, what?" A few minutes before we went to lunch Swacker announced that Tracy had just returned from Long Island with his report. "Is he the lad you sent to look into Pfyfe's affaires du coeur?" Vance asked Markham. "For, if he is, I am all a-flutter." "He's the man. . . . Send him in, Swacker." Tracy entered smiling slyly, his black note-book in one hand, his pipe-nex in the other. "I had no trouble learning about Pfyfe," he said. "He's well known in Port Washington—quite a character, in fact—and it was easy to pick up gossip about him." He adjusted his glasses carefully, and referred to his note-book. "He married a Miss Hawthorne in 1910. She's wealthy, but Pfyfe doesn't benefit much by it, because her father sits on the money-bags—" "Mr. Tracy, I say," interrupted Vance; "never mind the nee-Hawthorne and her dotting papa.—Mr. Pfyfe himself has confided in us about his sad marriage. Tell us, if you can, Mr. Pfyfe's extranuptial affairs. Are there any other ladies?" Tracy looked inquiringly at the district attorney; he was uncertain as to Vance's standing. Receiving a nod from Markham, he turned a page in his note-book and proceeded.

Oldtimer Recalls Experiences When With Gen. Custer

AUSTIN, Oct. 24—The swashbuckling pioneer days when the Indians and the plainsmen took shots at each other and craftily stalked amongst the pussy willow foliage festooning the Brazos river were recalled here recently by a real old timer, Col. W. B. Hicks, 86, of Texas and Oklahoma.

He is known in plains tales as "Crow Scout Curley." He is riding horseback to New York and Washington, to visit President and Mrs. Coolidge and see about collecting an estate of $8,000,000 to which he is sole heir.

Col. Hicks' story of his life sounds like a boy's story book. He has credentials to show that he was with Gen. George Custer as a scout in the last battle of the Little Bighorn years ago. Col. Hicks served a term as a captain in the Texas ranger force. Later he was a crack rider and pistol shot with the first "Buffalo Bill" show. Riding into Austin on Texas Jack, an Arabian horse, Col. Hicks expressed hope that "people will retain a respect for the horse even in this automobile age."

He has a book with postoffice stampings showing that he had been in several hundred thousand towns and cities in America and abroad. Many of these affixtures were received during a horseback trip around the world from 1910 to 1915. Owner of 800 acres of oil land inherited from his mother, who was a full blood Commanche Indian, Col. Hicks lived until he was 86 before learning three months ago from a New York lawyer that he was heir to the large estate left by his father, George Hicks of Fort Worth, early day rancher, he said.

Electric Lines Spend Millions on Changes

(By Associated Press) CLEVELAND, Oct. 24—The coordinated electric railway and bus industry has spent a million dollars a day for the last year on sweeping improvements, W. H. Sawyer of East St. Louis, Ill., president, told the American Electric Railway association at its annual convention today. "If the public will now use public transportation for business and motor cars for pleasure as outstanding problems of transportation will be solved, he declared. "If public transportation is a necessity, and if it is required to sustain property values, it must be supported," the executive declared. Electric railway managements now operate about 15,000 miles of bus service in addition to 43,000 miles of rail, and carry some 16 billion passengers a year, Sawyer reported.

Birthplace of Reed Restored as Shrine

NEWPORT NEWS, Va.,—Belrol, the birthplace of Dr. Walter Reed in Gloucester county, soon will be opened as a national memorial.

The Walter Reed memorial commission has restored the little three room house where the man who conquered yellow and typhoid fever was born, the son of a circuit rider who ministered to 21 churches for an annual salary of $150 and cast-off clothing.

After Reed had taken a medical course at the University of Virginia, he returned to Gloucester county to practice. His youth prevented him from growing a beard, and because he was thus unable to impress the citizens, he once related he entered the medical corps of the army.

This step led to his experiments, in which he and others risked their lives, resulting in discovery of the sources of yellow fever and the transmission of typhoid fever and the transmission of typhoid germs by flies.

Belrol is in a historic center near Virginia. Nathaniel Bacon hid near here when he was defying the British colonial governor, and the York river, in which the patriot was buried secretly by friends, is not far distant. The ruins of Rosewell, mansion of the Pages and the place where Thomas Jefferson is said to have written the first draft of the Declaration of Independence, is within a few miles of the little house, as is Yorktown.

GRADING CONTRACT WILL BE LET IN RANDALL CANYON

CANYON, Oct. 24—The contract for the grading on the first 8 miles of the base for the paved road from Canyon to Amarillo will be let early in November, according to statements of Randall County officials. It is possible that the contract for the remainder of the road grading will be let by the first of January, though it may be delayed until spring.

A viaduct crossing the Santa Fe tracks will add greatly to the safety of this stretch of road which will practically make Canyon and Amarillo one, with the college facilities of Canyon within 30 minutes of Amarillo students.

Chevrolet to Have Big New Plant At Atlanta Soon

DETROIT, Oct. 19—An indication that the automobile industry is looking forward toward increasing prosperity was noted here today with the announcement by the Chevrolet Motor company that construction will start immediately on a new Chevrolet assembly plant in Atlanta.

The Atlanta plant has been made necessary to adequately meet the requirements of the rapidly growing demand for Chevrolet cars in the South and at the same time to relieve the Cincinnati plant, which has been operating on an overtime basis to care for southeastern business as well as that from more immediate territory. The Atlanta plant will serve particularly Georgia, Florida and parts of Alabama and South Carolina.

When completed early next spring the plant will represent an investment of more than $2,250,000, covering acreage, buildings and equipment. Thirty-one acres of ground have been taken over for the Atlanta layout. Building plans call for 410,000 square feet of floor space, including plants, office and driveway shed.

The plant will be one of the largest and finest of its kind in the south with a capacity of 350 cars a day. Work will be provided for 1,200 people and the payroll will exceed $8,000 daily.

CALVES OVER NEW LINE

To W. E. Melton goes the distinction of shipping out the first cattle from the new stockyards on the Santa Fe line out of White Deer.

Twelve carloads of calves were sent to Kansas to buyers who will feed them there. The shipments went over the short line and eastward Saturday.

A combined gas range and refrigerator has been given its first showing at the convention of the American Gas Association in Chicago.

Santa Fe Purchases Promote Prosperity

WHILE the Santa Fe is itself a large employer of labor—its payroll in 1926 totalled $107,000,000, and its employes number more than 75,000—indirectly as a buyer of materials and supplies it helps to furnish employment to many more. Such purchases last year exceeded $64,000,000. In addition it bought over $12,000,000 of new cars and locomotives.

Its largest class of material was fuel, which totalled $24,360,000. This consisted of about 2,267,000 tons of coal, and 507,800,000 gallons of fuel oil. The use of coal or oil on any division is determined primarily by which is the cheaper fuel in that locality.

The second largest class of purchases was iron and steel products, for which the expenditure was approximately $19,750,000. This included an expenditure of $9,500,000 for 152,700 tons of rail, frogs, switches, and fastenings. $1,500,000 went for wheels, axles, and tires, and $306,000 for flues and tubes for locomotives. Bridges, turntables, structural steel, forgings, and fabricated, unfabricated, and pressed steel took nearly $3,000,000. Steel and iron are basic necessities in railroading.

Purchases of forest products totalled $6,412,000, which included over 3,000,000 cross ties, and large quantities of lumber and timbers. The Santa Fe creosotes its ties and much of its timbers, otherwise greater quantities would be needed each year.

Folders, report blanks, notices, tickets, tariffs, and various items in the stationery line required $1,225,000, electrical materials $660,000, lubricating oil and grease, illuminating oils, waste, etc., $1,180,000, and air brake material $617,600.

These purchases were necessary to maintain the railroad properly and to give satisfactory service to the public. They were covered by 130,000 invoices and were made from 3,347 individuals and firms. Note the wide spread of this buying.

Thus the Santa Fe and all railroads are an important factor in maintaining the prosperity of our country through the employment arising from these large purchases of supplies, as well as the millions directly disbursed among their own employes for services.

When the railroads are doing well, they buy materials and supplies on a larger scale than when net revenues fall off. Money thus spent mainly pays for the labor of many persons, helping merchants, farmers, everybody—your own community included. You therefore are vitally interested.

The lovely country home of Mrs. Meers was beautifully decorated in autumn leaves and hallowe'en colors. LUNCHEON—Toasted ham and cheese sandwiches, carrot sticks and celery hearts, jellied prunes, milk, tea.

DINNER—Baked red snapper, braised cucumbers, baked onions, coconut custard pie, rye rolls, milk, coffee.

The fish is stuffed with a rice mixture which makes it unnecessary to serve potatoes. One of the simplest ways to vary one's menus and surprise the family is to omit the usual potato.

Toasted Ham and Cheese Sandwich
Eight slices of bread cut 3-8 inch thick, 8 slices Swiss cheese, 4 thin slices cooked ham, 3 eggs, 1-4 cup milk, 1-2 teaspoon salt.

Remove crusts from bread and spread one side of each slice evenly but lightly with softened butter. On half the slices put a slice of cheese, cover with ham and with another slice of cheese. Cover with remaining bread and tie securely with string. Beat eggs slightly with milk and salt and dip each sandwich into the mixture. Fry in a spider in melted butter. Brown one side of sandwich, turn with a spatula and brown the other side. Remove cord and serve with a slice of tomato placed on top of the sandwich.

"Canadian" bacon, which is the tenderloin of pork cured and smoked, can be broiled and used in place of ham.

ENID, Okla.—Marketing eggs in New York city and selling 140,000 chicks a year does not detract from the social life in Washington and Enid of Mrs. Lucy Bradley Garber, wife of M. C. Garber, representative in the house for the eighth Oklahoma district.

Nor does her interest in her husband's business stop her from laying the axe ruthlessly to the neck of any hen which does not account for the laying of 150 eggs a year. She keeps books on each of many hundreds and she knows Mr. Garber and his brother, Bert, opened the Garber oil field at a time when Mrs. Garber was a United States commissioner.

Girl Sees Dentistry As Field for Women

"In many ways the field is more adapted to them," she says. "Children are less afraid of women dentists and usually women use more tact and patience in dealing with them. Many women also prefer women dentists."

Princess Mary Retains Blue or Fall Clothes

DONCASTER, Eng.—Princess Mary is remaining faithful to blue in her autumn wardrobe. She appeared at the St. Leger stakes in a dark blue suit with a lovely sable collar. Her coat was of a woolen mixture worn here in Yorkshire where many of the Princess' neighbors are engaged in cloth manufacture.

Lady Lonsdale, who accompanied Princess Mary in the paddock, wore a dark green worsted suit.

But the most outstanding costume worn at the famous race was that of Lady Manton, who wore a bright scarlet frock, with coat and hat of the same color. Mrs. George Lambton wore a very smart tailor-made suit of loosely-woven tweed in brown and ivory shades. Many navy blue suits were worn with light fur collars attached to the coats.

A brilliant emerald coat trimmed with pale gray fur was one of the most startling garments seen in the paddock. Nearly every fashionably-dressed woman at the meet seemed to be carrying a large handbag. Some of these were of the same material as the dresses of the wearer, but they were chiefly of soft, bright-colored leather.

TEKAS U. INCREASES

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct.—Enrollment in classes in journalism at the University of Texas has seen nearly 100 per cent increase over last year, according to Paul J. Thompson, chairman of the department. The most significant thing about the increase, according to Professor Thompson, is that the greatest increase has been in the enrollment in the news authoring and reporting class which is a required first course to be taken by students in journalism. The large enrollment in this beginning class points to an increase in enrollment in all journalism classes next year, according to Mr. Thompson.

The increase enrollment for courses in journalism in the University can be accounted for by the favorable attention given to the re-statement of the department with the opening of this year and the agreement of the department with The Daily Texan, the campus newspaper, whereby the class in news gathering and reporting collects news for that publication, said Mr. Thompson.

Murder Charge Brings Climax
To Dramatic Career of Remus

George Remus of Cincinnati (upper right), erstwhile "king of bootleggers," confronts a murder charge for shooting his wife, Imogene Holmes (upper left), after she sued him for divorce. Charles P. Taft II (lower left), son of W. H. Taft, will prosecute Remus on the murder charge. Romola Remus (center), daughter of Remus by a former marriage, is expected to testify for her father, and Ruth Remus (lower right), adopted daughter of the family, for the state.

CINCINNATI, Ohio—A costly mansion set deep in the lawns and groves of a suburban estate is the only physical monument to the fortune George Remus reaped from his deals in contraband liquor.

Only half a dozen years ago he brought it, after he had married Imogene Holmes in Chicago in 1920 and had left his law practice there to come to Cincinnati and pyramid into millions in the bootleg business the $10,000 nest egg with which he started.

The old homestead on Prince Hill, dating from Civil war days, was virtually rebuilt by Remus in order that he might endow with a setting of splendor the wife upon whom he lavished his wealth and devotion.

Some three years ago Remus went away from the mansion to serve a term in federal prison for violation of the prohibition law and when he emerged he served another in an Ohio jail on a similar conviction. His wife followed him to Atlanta, to live near him during his prison term—and then, shortly before his release, charged him with cruelty and sued for divorce. Remus countered with the allegation that she sought freedom to wed Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., then a prohibition agent active in gathering the evidence which sent Remus to prison.

Now "Beautiful Imogene" is dead, and her husband, stripped of most of his fortune, is again in a jail cell—this time as the admitted slayer of his wife. He waited for her in a Cincinnati park October 6, and shot her as she journeyed to a divorce court to obtain her final separation.

Prosecution of Remus in his murder trial will devolve upon Charles P. Taft II, who became Hamilton county attorney last January after graduation from a law course at Yale.

Two girls will be arraigned on either side of the case—Romola Remus, 23, daughter of George Remus by a former marriage, who has sided with her father, and Ruth Remus, 20 adopted daughter of the Remuses and a companion of her foster mother the morning of the slaying, who will testify for the state.

proved that in the summer of 1921 he deposited $2,700,000 in one Cincinnati bank alone.

Finally he was convicted and sentenced to Atlanta prison after spending $1,500,000 in his defense.

He estimated his wealth at $5,000,000 on the day he went to Atlanta in a private car to serve his sentence. Of this he put $1,000,000 in his wife's hands and "salted away" the rest, some with friends whom he later charged with cheating him.

In all his dealings he never regarded himself as a criminal.

"I am only a business man," he said, "and my business ethics are the best."

Shortly before his release from Atlanta he was sued for divorce. He fought the suit for two years, and when it was nearing termination he accented the motor car in which his wife and daughter were going to court, followed Mrs. Remus as she leaped from the machine, and fired a bullet into her abdomen.

Private Parking Is Arranged by Theatre;
Lobby Remodeled

Private parking space for the patrons of the Rex theatre is being prepared by the management on the vacant lot adjoining the theatre.

Manager Roy Snor says he will have the lot graded and dragged for a parking space, and will have it lighted with numerous arc lights. A man will be placed in charge of the parking place to guard the cars and oversee the parking. The lot will accommodate more than 100 cars. Workmen are busy remodeling the lobby of the theatre. A new type Spanish ceiling is being built.

To complete the Rex service, four ushers are to be employed immediately.

The battle tonight is expected to be a crowd pleaser, as Vincent is considered to be faster than Carter, and will be out to the first man to knock Carter off his feet.

The preliminaries will commence at 8:15 o'clock.

Listeners Ask Change
In Allotment for WOQ

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—The tremendous grip radio has taken on the American people is illustrated by the attempts of fans to influence the Federal Radio Commission in its decisions.

The most recent example was in behalf of station WOQ of the Unity School of Christianity at Kansas City, Mo. More than 5,000 telegrams and letters have been received asking a good frequency and power allotment for WOQ.

Such communications are sometimes ignored by the commission because of having been inspired by broadcast appeals.

Dave Pellet, a salesman at the K. C. Store, was brought to the Pampa hospital from White Deer this morning with a severely lacerated leg and cuts about the head and face.

Pellet was returning to Pampa from Amarillo about 8 o'clock this morning when, about three miles west of White Deer a flock of turkeys started across the road in front of his car. In trying to avoid running into the turkeys, Mr. Pellet swerved to the side of the road, where one of his car wheels slipped over the side of the grade, hurling the car into the ditch.

A passing car took the injured man into White Deer, where he was given first aid treatment and then brought to the Pampa hospital.
