Armistice Day Observances Are Under Way in City

HOLIDAY SPIRIT NOTICEABLE AS SERVICES BEGIN

PARADE HELD THIS MORNING

Harvesters Will Play Panhandle High at 3 p. m.

Armistice Day dawned bright and cool today, with a strong northeast wind blowing to add zest to the holiday spirit which was noticeable very early.

Dozens of American flags were placed in the business district, where most of the stores were closed in observance of the day. Former soldiers, wearing the uniforms of their divisions, were prominent on the streets.

At 11 o'clock a parade headed by Post Commander Lewis O. Cox of the American Legion, and composed of Legion members, Legion drum corps, the colors, and patriotic organizations of the city got under way. The groups moved to the Legion hall, where services were held with the Rev. W. L. Evans and Mayor F. P. Reid as the principal speakers.

The high school orchestra and a number of upper classmen took part in the program.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock the Harvesters and Panhandle high school will clash on Ayres field.

In the evening there will be the Carnival at the high school building and a banquet and dance at the Schneider hotel, where a special orchestra will play.

Jersey Cows Bring Large Price Here

Twenty-five head of Jersey milk cows brought Joe Adair $1,513.25 yesterday at public auction. I. S. Jamison and son had charge of the sale. The price is probably the largest ever paid for milk cows in this territory.

Another large price was paid for shocks of cane. Mr. Adair sold 475 bundles, which had made about 600 bales to the acre, for 65 cents a bundle.

Brisk Wind in Prospect for Game This Afternoon

The Pampa Harvesters are going to have a hard battle this afternoon when they meet the Panhandle III team. The wind will make playing hard and the team who gets the breaks is likely to win.

Cosch Diekey will use his regular line with Walden, Carlton, Maness and Roberts in the backfield. The game is called for 3 o'clock.

Mrs. A. B. Zahn and Miss Zahn left Thursday for Norman, Okla., where they will attend the homecoming at Oklahoma University.

Nine Years Ago—and Now

Armistice Day Recalls Heroism of William Amey, who Captured 50 Germans in War

LONDON, Nov. 11—If you were introducing William Amey, former lance corporal in the Warwickshire infantry, to an American, the best way to do it would be to say:

"This man is the Sergeant York of England."

Sergeant York, you will recall, was selected as the greatest individual hero of the A. E. F. Similarly, William Amey could easily be picked for a corresponding rank among England's heroes. And Armistice Day is an excellent time to tell about him.

Hard Prize to Win

Amey, to begin with, holds one of the most highly-prized decorations in the world—the Victoria Cross. The V. C., granted only for deeds of the highest heroism, usually goes to a man after his death, for the simple reason that a deed that merits the honor usually ends fatally for the doer. An officer has to recommend the hero for the V. C.; the colonel of the regiment, the brigadier general and various lieutenants and major generals have to approve the recommendation, and finally the king himself must pass on it.

But Amey got one—and is alive today to tell about it.

Amey joined up in 1916, at the age of 35, from Leamington. His army career was without any unusual incidents until the closing fortnight of the war, when the 15th British army corps was engaged in the last "big push" in the vicinity of the St. Quentin canal, near the spot where Quentin Roosevelt lost his life.

At 5:30 on a chilly, foggy morning Amey's battalion went over the top, with the village of Landreocles as its objective.

"The whole country was wrapped in a thick blanket of fog," says Amey. "Part of our outfit went forward so fast that it failed to mop up, and our men were falling victims to machine gun nests that had been left undisturbed. It was easy to get lost or separated in that fog. Directly, I found myself accompanied by only one man, stumbling along through a muddy field."

"On one side of the road was a thick, high, tough hedge. Judging by the lights we saw in the fog we concluded that German gun fire was coming from that direction."

"Come on," I said to my pal. "We're going to see what's on the other side of that hedge."

Seven Machine Guns

"So we busted through, at the cost of some scratches. Crickey! There behind that hedge were seven machine guns, sticking their snouts through the hedge while the Germans, safe and sound, were peppering our men. I took my rifle and shot down one crew. The others saw us, but they couldn't pull their machine guns out of the hedge and turn them on us, and they didn't have time to pull their service revolvers. They just ran for it and disappeared in the fog.

"Come on," I said to my pal, "we're going after them."

"You know, when your blood is up you don't think about danger or the odds against you or anything of that sort. You just keep going. Well, we went. We saw no trace of the gunners. But directly we saw something big and dark loom up in the fog. I thought it was a little fortress, but it was only a French farmhouse."

"There was no sign of life, and I barged in through the open door. The rooms were empty, but there was a stairway that led down to a deep cellar. I shifted my rifle, took a hand grenade and started to tip-toe down that cellar stair."

"For a minute I was dazzled by the light. The Germans might have been short on food but there certainly was no candle shortage. In one corner of the cellar there were 50 Germans, and it seemed like every one of them had lit a candle. Near the stairs huddled the French family—two old men, and two old women and some kids."

"I raised my hand grenade and

L. G. Blanton Buys 320 Acres of Land From E. N. Groves

Negotiations were completed yesterday for the sale of 320 acres of land to L. G. Blanton. The half section is situated five miles north of the city and was owned by E. N. Groves. The sale price was reported to have been $18,000 cash. The sale was made through the Pampa Land company.

Four Buildings Under Construction On Tech Campus

(Special to The News.)

LUBBOCK, Nov. 11—With four buildings under construction, the Tech campus presents a busy aspect. The favorable weather has been responsible for rapid progress of the construction work.

The first unit of the agricultural building is practically finished, and Dean A. H. Leidigh and his faculty expect to move at once into their new home. Both offices and class rooms are provided for in the new structure. The home economics building, which has been housing the agricultural school, will now be used entirely for home economics.

The home economics practice house will be ready for occupancy about January 1. This building will be one of the show places of the Tech campus. With excavations complete for the new engineering building and concrete being run for the foundation, the walls will begin to rise soon. This building will have a frontage of 275 feet and will be an imposing structure. A greenhouse for the agricultural school makes the fourth building now under construction.

Mr. and Mrs. Ewing Williams have returned to their home in Perryton after visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Williams here.

Owen Johnson of the Crystal Palace returned to his home in Wellington the first of this week to undergo a tonsil operation. He is reported to be better and will be back in Pampa Monday.

Mrs. Houston Parks is visiting her mother in Amarillo today.

BODY IS FOUND ON HIGHWAY IN PARKED AUTO

A. E. Hoyt Apparently Succumbed to Heart Disease

FORMERLY WAS AT CORSICANA

Wife and Son Are on Way Here From Dallas

A. E. Hoyt, proprietor of the Hoyt Drug store here, died about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon while enroute to Amarillo in his car. It is believed that death was due to heart disease.

Details of his death are meager, but it is said the body was found by a passing motorist who saw the car parked by the side of the road about 20 miles south of here on the Clarendon road. Mr. Hoyt apparently had felt a heart attack coming on, and had parked his car just before succumbing.

The body was brought here, where it is now at the Malone funeral home.

Mr. Hoyt's wife and son are enroute from Dallas to Pampa, having been notified of the death. The family formerly lived at Corsicana.

Two Men Killed in Bootleg War

(By Associated Press)

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 11—Two brothers, Robert Aulfo, 23, and Frank, 20, were shot to death by a masked man using a shotgun as they sat around a card table in a restaurant last night.

Their two companions, Lee Meachum, and Vito LaPacola, were wounded. Bootlegging warfare with ramifications in Springfield, Chicago, and St. Louis is believed by police to have been the basis of the double slaying.

Greater Daily News to Require New Building

The Pampa Daily News has outgrown its present quarters, and soon must have a larger building to house its expanding departments and the fine new machinery it will install.

The management would like to receive bids or propositions from local people who would be interested in erecting a new building for the Daily News plant, upon which the newspaper would take a long-time lease. Moving entails much expense and inconvenience, and the News desires to have adequate quarters for a considerable period.

The News might consider, however, leases on buildings which are already completed and which would be suitable. Anyone interested may obtain further information at the office.

As "The Newspaper of the New Pampa," the Daily News has grown in circulation and general activity until its floor space and equipment are crowded to capacity. Anticipating the still further growth of Pampa, which it will share, the News today announces an expansion program which will give it a new, bigger "dress" and make it one of the best equipped small city dailies in the Southwest. A building adapted to newspaper requirements, and well located, must therefore be obtained.

RED CROSS—Cities all over the nation are responding to the annual Red Cross roll call, and many have practically raised their quotas, although the drive does not really start until today.

The records show that the Red Cross was called upon to work in more than 75 disasters during the last year, some of them huge in extent. There is a disaster somewhere every week. Just now it is New England, where floods are doing great damage.

Pampa should respond generously when the drive is extended to her citizenship this week.

LIKE MARINES—They died like marines, did those two Americans on duty in Nicaragua. After bombing a group of rebels, they were forced to land their plane in a dense forest, where they were found and riddled with bullets.

recall when America declared war on Nicaraguan people, rebel or otherwise. Then read up on the Monroe doctrine, if you have the time, and see if you can follow the logic of the state department.

FARM RELIEF—It is not surprising that the joint farm conference of the National Grange, the American Farm Bureau Federation, and the Farmers' Union, failed to agree on farm relief.

The difficulty of the problem is as much a cause as any divergence of ideas that might obtain. Except in wartime, when things are done at any cost, any kind of relief is fraught with grave complications.

Perhaps relief is a poor word in this instance, for what is needed is really not relief, in the sense of assistance to make up for lack of proper adjustment of farm economics, but rather measures to bring about the right relation between farm and market. There is a danger that these meetings of large farm groups, and resulting lack of unanimity, may make the road to relief more difficult. This danger was pointed out by one of the farm group spokesmen, who declared "the road for this legislation will be made much easier if the farmers only could reach an agreement."

A relief platform is valuable to a political party only to the extent that it can attract votes, and disagreement among farm groups is apt to mean that neither major party will advocate specific forms of relief. The farmers' representatives will meet separately soon to attack the problem again.

TWINKLES

At last reports Chicago had questioned everything British except the English language, and the Honorable Mayor is reported trying to learn Esperanto.

A Scotchman will fight for a penny, it is said, but probably not for a million. In the latter case, he's fall dead.

What a big day this ought to be for Big Bill and his cohorts of the stump.

Mrs. Coolidge recently dressed all in red, which is further proof that Cal's hat isn't in the ring.

Woodrow Wilson's first attempt at public speaking was a failure. This should not encourage every young man to persist at failures, however.

In ye olden type the groundlings threw over-rip fruit in indignation but the modern way seems to throw a bomb.

Too fat to be honest, sighed a fat boy arrested for forgery. Maybe that's also the trouble with some of these oil magnates.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Leacock confesses to the murder but Vance exposes the confession as a lie to shield Miss St. Clair. Vance tells Markham to come to his apartment and he will tell him who killed Benson. When Markham comes Vance hands him a document on which is outlined a strong case against Mrs. Platz.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER LI

Markham read this précis through several times—he was fully 15 minutes at the task—and when he had finished he has silent for ten minutes more. Then he rose and walked up and down the room.

"Not a fancy legal document, that," remarked Vance. "But I think even a grand juror could understand it. You, of course, can rearrange and elaborate it, and bedeck it with innumerable meaningless phrases and recondite legal idioms.

Markham did not answer at once. He paused by the French windows and looked down into the street. Then he said:

"Yes; I think you've made out a case. Extraordinary! I've wondered from the first what you were getting at; and your questioning of Platz yesterday impressed me as pointless. I'll admit it never occurred to me to suspect her. Benson must have given her good cause."

He turned and came slowly toward us, his head down, his hands behind him.

"I don't like the idea of arresting her. Fanny I never thought of her in connection with it."

He stopped in front of Vance. "And you yourself didn't think of her at first, despite your boast that you knew who did it after you'd been in Benson's house five minutes."

Vance smiled mirthfully, and sprawled in his chair.

Markham became indignant.

"Damn it! You told me the next day that no woman could have done it, no matter what evidence was adduced, and harangued me about art and psychology and God knows what."

"Quite right," murmured Vance, still smiling. "No woman did it."

"No woman did it!" Markham's gorge was rising rapidly.

"Oh, dear no!"

He pointed to the sheet of paper in Markham's hand.

"That's just a bit of spoofing, don't you know. Poor old Mrs. Platz—she's as innocent as a lamb!"

Markham threw the paper on the table and sat down. I had never seen him so furious; but he controlled himself admirably.

"I see; my dear old bean," explained Vance, in his unemotional drawl. "I had an irresistible longing to demonstrate to you how utterly silly your circumstantial and material evidence is. I'm rather proud, you know, of my case against Mr. Platz. I'm sure you could convince her on the strength of it."

"But, like the whole theory of your excited law, it's wholly specious and erroneous. Circumstantial evidence, Markham, is the utterest tommyrot imaginable. Its theory is not unlike that of our present day democracy."

"The democratic theory is that if you accumulate enough ignorance at the polls you produce intelligence; and the theory of circumstantial evidence is that if you accumulate a sufficient number of weak links you produce a strong chain."

"Did you get me here this morning," demanded Markham coldly, "to give me a dissertation on legal theory?"

"Oh, no," Vance blithely assured him. "But I simply must prepare you for the acceptance of my revelation; for I haven't a scrap of material or circumstantial evidence against the guilty man. And yet, Markham, I know he's guilty—as well as I know you're sitting in that chair planning how you can torture and kill me without being punished."

"If you have no evidence, how did you arrive at your conclusion?" Markham's tone was vindictive.

"Solely by psychological analysis—by what might be called the science of personal possibilities. A man's psychological nature is as clear a brand to one who can read it as was Hester Prynne's Hawthorne, by the bye, I can't abide the New England temperament."

Markham set his jaw, and gave Vance a look of artistic ferocity.

"You expect me to go into court, I suppose, leading your victim by the arm, and say to the judge: 'Here's the man that shot Alvin Benson. I have no evidence against him, but I want you to sentence him to death, because my brilliant and sagacious friend, Mr. Philo Vance, the inventor of stuffed perch, says this man has a wicked nature.'"

Vance gave an almost imperceptible shrug.

"I shan't wither away with grief if you don't even arrest the guilty man. But I thought it no more than humane to tell you who he was, if only to stop you from chivvying all these innocent people."

"All right—tell me; and let me get on about my business."

"I don't believe there was any longer a question in Markham's mind that Vance actually knew who had killed Benson. But it was not until considerably later in the morning that he fully understood why Vance had kept him for days upon tenter-hooks."

When, at last, he did understand it he forgave Vance; but at the moment he was angered to the limit of his control.

"There are one or two things that must be done before I can reveal the gentleman's name," Vance told him. "First let me have a peep at those alibis."

Markham took from his pocket a sheet of typewritten pages and passed them over.

Vance adjusted his monocle, and read through them carefully. Then he stepped out of the room; and I heard him telephoning.

When he returned he re-read the reports. One in particular he fingered over, as if weighing its possibilities.

"There's a chance, you know," he murmured at length, gazing incessantly into the fireplace.

He glanced at the report again.

"I see here," he said, "that Colonel Ostrander, accompanied by a Bronx alderman named Moriarty, attended the Midnight Pollen at the Piccadilly theatre in Forty-seventh street on the night of the thirteenth, arriving there a little before 12 and remaining through the performance, which was over about half past two a. m. Are you acquainted with this particular alderman?"

Markham's eyes lifted sharply to the other's face.

"I've met Mr. Moriarty. What about him?" I thought I detected a note of suppressed excitement in his voice.

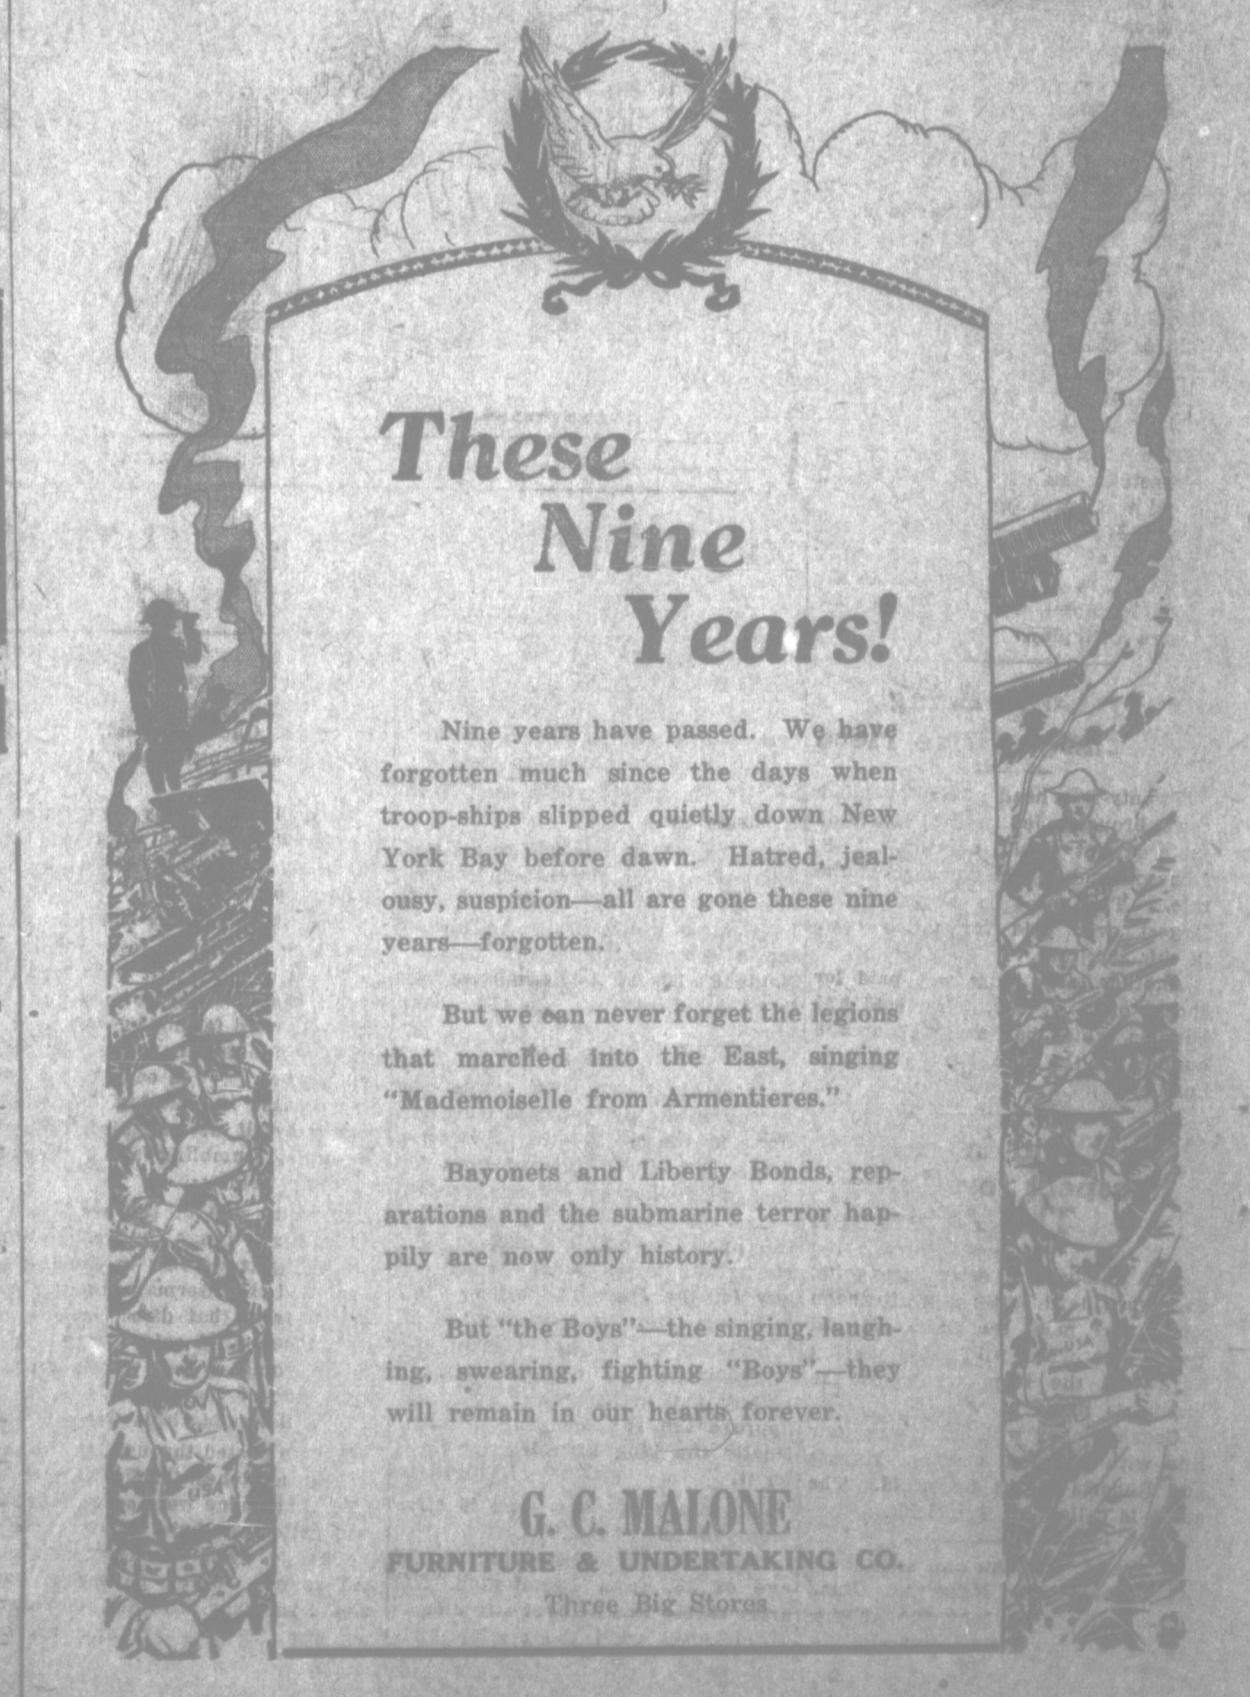

"Where do Bronx aldermen fall about in the forenoon?" asked Vance.

"At home, I should say. Or possibly at the Salmoset Club. . . . Sometimes they have business at City Hall."

"My word!—such unseemly activity for a politician! . . . Would you mind ascertaining if Mr. Moriarty is at home or at his club. If it's not too much bother, I'd like to have a brief word with him."

Markham gave Vance a penetrating gaze. Then, without a word, he went to the telephone in the den.

These Nine Years!

Nine years have passed. We have forgotten much since the days when troop-ships slipped quietly down New York Bay before dawn. Hatred, jealousy, suspicion—all are gone these nine years—forgotten.

But we can never forget the legions that marched into the East, singing "Mademoiselle from Armentieres."

Bayonets and Liberty Bonds, reparations and the submarine terror happily are now only history.

But "the Boys"—the singing, laughing, swearing, fighting "Boys"—they will remain in our hearts forever.

Methodist Society Hold Candle Service For Foreign Workers

The Woman's Missionary Society met Wednesday and Thursday afternoons at the church, in observance of the week of Prayer and self denial.

Beneficial programs were given at both meetings. The Bible lessons studied, "Pray Ye Therefore," and "Youth's Search for God and Our Responsibility," were taken from the texts, Luke, 10:12 and Isa 1:9. Mrs. Erwin Vicars, Mrs. Lee Harrah, and Mrs. Purviance gave interesting talks to those present. The attendance both days was very good as there were 21 present Wednesday and 20 present Thursday.

A very impressive candle lighting service was held in honor of the new missionaries who have recently gone out on foreign fields. A number of those present were given the names of two young missionaries and as these were called, a candle was lighted for each from flames of the large candle in the center of the table representing the Light of Christ. After all the candles had been lighted, prayers were offered for these noble people who are doing so much for salvation.

right on up and the auditorium will no longer accommodate the people that come. We had a high hour at the morning service. People responded to the invitation, and three united with the church when the pastor brought us one of his very best sermons, "Are We Juggling With Justice?" he spoke right out without fear or favor, beginning with the higher-ups and coming right on down to the smaller sins.

He said, "Most of our youthful criminals come from godless homes, and most of the juvenile criminals never attend a Sunday school."

No doubt more comment has been made on Rev. Truhitte's sermon of last Sunday than any sermon ever preached in Pampa, and if the pastors of this city don't stand against sin that it is a dead moral fact that the Devil will not fight his own business.

We will never, never accomplish the work and bring the world to Christ until we, who profess Christ, arouse ourselves and wake up and shake the Devil's fleas off ourselves and live for Christ.

What we need to-day is prayer.

God is proving to us that "prayer is changing things." The Word of God meets every need of human life, answers every question and solves every problem. It is a complete encyclopedia within itself. Only the Bible could have accomplished what has been done by Christian people.

Rev. Truhitte will speak Sunday morning on the subject, "Crowding Out Christ." Sunday evening, "The Most Horrible Sin in Pampa." This subject will point out the sin that causes the most sadness, breaks the most hearts, causes the most tears to fall, puts more grey hairs in father's heads and sends more moth-other sin. Hear this sermon Sunday night.—Reporter.

Armistice Day---

told that German crowd to put their hands up and keep them up. They did.

Captured Whole Crowd

"One of the old women was so glad to see me she kissed me, and one of the old men slipped me a glass of cognac. I told him in my best French—which isn't much—to go upstairs and call my pals. Then I told those Germans I was going up and that they were to follow me in single file, every man with his hands up. Every man was to leave arms of every kind down in that cellar. I said that the first man that disobeyed would be shot dead.

"They came up, the whole 50. By that time some of the soldiers of my section had been summoned by the old Frenchman and we bagged the whole lot.

"I suppose I owe my life to a fluke. Those enemy soldiers probably thought the farmhouse was surrounded by our men and if they tried anything on me they'd be killed like rats in a hole by hand grenades. Lucky they didn't know I only had one man with me."

That's Amey's story. But he didn't tell the whole of it. The colonel in command of his regiment finished the tale in an order of the day, posted up for all the regiment so see:

"Later, single-handed, he attacked a hostile machine gun post situated in another farm house. Exposed to a heavy fire he advanced unhesitatingly, killed two of the garrison and drove the remainder into a cellar until help arrived.

Took Another Chateau

"Again, later and unaided, he attacked a chateau in Faubourg Soyers, which had been strongly held and was holding up our line of advance. With determination and disregard of personal safety he rushed the chateau, killing two Germans and holding the remainder until reinforced. This gallant action was instrumental in capturing of a further 20 prisoners, and cleared away the last of the opposition in the sector.

"Throughout the day the conduct of Lance Corporal Amey in the face of such opposition and danger was of the highest type, and beyond all praise."

And now?

Well, William Amey, today a quiet man of 46, his dark hair just streaking with silver threads, has his pencils sharpened and is back at his old job of turf accountant, just as if there had never been a war.

Mrs. Grace Higgins and Miss Wilma Behrens went to Amarillo Thursday night to attend the Polles. They will return today.

Winter Wheat in Texas and Oklahoma in Good Condition

DALLAS, Nov. 11.—Winter wheat in the heavy producing sections of Texas and Oklahoma is in excellent condition, according to a report of the car service division, American Railway association, reviewing general business and crop conditions in the Southwest during the last half of October.

Because of heavy yields in Canada and the Northwest, exports of wheat through Texas ports have been considerably reduced and bookings are light, nor can this situation be expected to change until the Canadian and Northwestern spring crops are out of the way, says the report.

All Texas ports have exported less wheat since July 1, 1927, as compared with the same period for 1926, the report shows. At Galveston, 11,673,766 bushels were exported in July, August, September and October of this year against 30,574,235 bushels during the same period in 1926. Comparative figures for the same periods at other points as reported are as follows: Houston, 1927, 1,247,160 bu., 1926, 2, 372,984 bu.; Texas City, none, 1926, 2,448,928 bu.; Port Arthur, 1927, 388,500 bu., 1926, 493,170 bu.

Approximately 800,000 bu. of corn have been booked for export through Galveston during November, and because of a substantial surplus of this crop in Oklahoma and Texas this season "still further exports are anticipated," the report continues.

TWO MILLION CARS

DETROIT, Nov. 11.—At 10 a. m., Saturday, Nov. 5 the 2,000,000th car which Dodge Brothers have made came off the final assembly line, just 12 years, 11 months and 21 days after the first car was built by John and Horace Dodge on November 14, 1914.

No. 2,000,000 is a standard four cylinder leather upholstered sedan and was shipped immediately to W. L. Eaton, Seattle dealer, who purchased it nearly eight years ago upon falling by six months to get in his order in time to get No. 500,000.

The passing of the 2,000,000 mark by Dodge Brothers sets a new record for the automobile industry as no other company manufacturing cars that sell in or above the Dodge price class has yet approached the point of making 2,000,000 cars in the short period of less than 13 years.

Conquest Drive Nets $725,000

DALLAS, Nov. 11.—Total cash receipts for the Conquest Campaign of Texas Baptists, which was organized a year ago for the purpose of paying off debts on Baptist institutions in the state, have reached $725,000. Dr. F. S. Groner, general secretary of the Texas Baptist Convention, announced, Pledges last spring reached more than $1,100,000, and Dr. Groner believes that by the time the annual convention opens at Wichita Falls, November 16, $800,000 or this amount will have been paid.

Efforts to increase the pledges and cash contributions, and to collect pledges already made will continue without interruption, at least to the last of this year, at which time Baptist officials believe that more than a million have been received.

"It was but recently, when I started to act as master of ceremonies with my band at the Paramount Theatre, that I realized how vital perfect voice condition was to a performer. I have always been a consistent smoker and, fortunately, Lucky Strikes were my favorite brand. I like their toasted flavor and, best of all, I can smoke as often as I like, without fear of irritating my voice, which is becoming a great asset in my work."
