SAINT LOUIS, Nov. 7.—Bob O'Farrell has been deposed as manager of the Saint Louis Cardinals and Bill McKechnie, coach during the past season, has been appointed manager of the team for next season, President Sam Breadon announced today.

O'Farrell has signed a player's certificate, Breadon says.

Moody Refuses To Comment on Hawkins' Announcement

AUSTIN, Nov. 7.—Governor Dan Moody today refused to comment on the announcement of W. E. Hawkins of Breckenridge that he intended to be a candidate for governor next year.

Hawkins was one of the defense attorneys who lost a hard fight to prevent the electrocution of A. V. Millikin last week.

Although Wehrle would not divulge with him in the venture. He said they were men of capital from Arizona, Texas, and California.

Hazards Lurk in Florida Waters for The Fleet of Rum-Chasing Coast Guards

Coast guardsmen combating rum-runners off the Florida coast lead lives that are always exciting and often dangerous. Lately Horace Alderman (lower left) and a companion liquor-runner, shot to death three officers and wounded a fourth before being captured. At the Ft. Lauderdale base Commander Jordan (upper left) directs a fleet of coast guard cutters like that shown above. Below is a submersible steel tank used by runners in towing whiskey ashore.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla.—One thrilling adventure after another, rivaling those of days when pirate ships sailed the high seas and buccaniers compelled their prisoners to walk the plank, makes up to the life of coast guardsmen battling rum runners in Florida waters.

Prices have been put upon the heads of several guardsmen, officers declare, as the struggle to halt the smuggling of liquor becomes more acute. Winter's icy winds in the north are turning the bows of many runners southward, resulting in increased activity along the Florida coast.

When a slim, speedy government chaser, armed with one-pounders, closes in on the boat filled with illegal cargo, the officers seldom know whether the crew will surrender, abandon the vessel or choose to "fight it out."

There was, for example, the recent battle about 30 miles off Fort Lauderdale in which three officers were killed and a fourth wounded when Coast Guard Boat No. 249 captured a rum runner.

The 249 was on its way to Nassau, in the Bahamas, carrying Robert K. Webster, secret service operative, to trace counterfeit $50 bills used in rum transactions, when it spotted and closed in on the rum boat and captured Horace Alderman and Robert E. Weech.

While officers transferred the cargo, Sidney Sanderlin, boatswain, sought to get in touch by radio with the Fort Lauderdale base. Suddenly, the account goes, Alderman fired down the hatch and killed Sanderlin. Victor A. Lamby, motor machinist, rushed to aid the fallen man and was mortally wounded by a bullet through his spine.

Alderman grabbed Lamby's gun. (See Hazards, Pg. 8, Col. 1.)

Many Contractors Here for Opening of Bids on Pampa Sewer Extensions

All-Day Closing Is Asked November 11

In view of the fact that November 11 is a legal holiday and its proper observance is being stressed everywhere, Mayor F. P. Reid today announced that he had decided to amend his proclamation, and call upon business men to close their stores all day.

His proclamation, therefore, is that the closing will be on the all-day basis.

There will be no objection, however, if grocery stores or others selling necessities find it advisable to open for business a short time on Armistice day.

Boy Scouts Are Given Loving Cup

A silver loving cup, the gift of local merchants and business houses, was presented to the troop of Boy Scouts at the Methodist church Sunday night by Mayor F. P. Reid.

The cup was given to show their appreciation of the work done by the Boy Scouts of Pampa during the fire prevention drive.

In a few well chosen words, Mayor Reid told the boys that the city council and the merchants of Pampa appreciated their efforts in assisting in the clean-up. He further stated that in the future the boys would be called on to help on occasions like that.

Prominent contractors from far and near will be in Pampa this evening for the opening of bids on the Pampa sewer extensions.

Bids will be received up to 7 p. m., when the city council will convene at the city hall. It is expected that there will be representatives of more than a dozen firms present.

Ample funds are available to carry the sewer extensions into every part of the city, and to construct a disposal plant on the land recently purchased by the council.

Armistice Day Program Outlined

A banquet and dance at the Schaefer hotel will close the Armistice day celebration in charge of the local post of the American Legion. An exceptionally talented orchestra has been secured to play at the banquet and dance, which will commence at 8 o'clock. Tickets may be secured from members of the Legion or at local drug stores.

A parade, composed of the Legion members and school children, will take place in the morning followed, by short addresses at the Legion hall.

At 3 o'clock Ayres field will be the scene of an interesting football game between the Panhandle high school team and the Pampa Harvesters, who are long-time rivals.

W. A. Taylor and L. J. Starkey were in Spearman and Perryton Sunday.

VOTE RIGHT

(An Editorial.) THE DANGER in the average election is not that the majority will make a mistake, but that this majority, through negligence, will lose its Democratic right to rule.

Tomorrow is another crucial day in Pampa history. A charter commission appointed by the city council will legally and formally present to local voters a document intended to increase the powers of local self-government.

It has been considered advisable to adopt the commission-manager plan, which is serving many Panhandle communities. The Board of City Development plan has been included so that the burden of supporting the work now done by the Chamber of Commerce may be more evenly distributed.

Pampa is a $5,000,000 corporation. To operate without a charter is dangerous. Public improvements involve hundreds of thousands of dollars, and this money should be handled in a business-like manner from day to day, rather than from week to week as is now done.

VOTE TOMORROW, and vote for the charter. There is a minimum vote necessary for passage, and that minimum is larger than the average special election. TAKE A FRIEND with you to the polls. And if you will be out of the city tomorrow, vote by the absentee method at the city hall. VOTE TOMORROW for another progressive step toward a Greater Pampa.

Flood District Suffers As Fires Are Impossible

BOSTON, Nov. 7.—Snow squalls and freezing weather added today to discomfort of thousands in New England flood area, where homes have been surrounded and cellars filled with water.

Furnaces were useless in many places, and in the rural districts it was impossible to get warmth from wet wood.

The dead in the flood is known to exceed 150. Relief workers bent their efforts today toward feeding and clothing those driven from their homes and toward prevention of disease. While northern waters continued to subside, the situation in the south portion remained acute. Six thousand persons were reported routed from their dwellings at Springfield, Mass., where the full effects of the Connecticut river at flood stage is being experienced. The river's rise today was most serious at Hartford.

"Going to Whittle" After This Year Cal Divulges

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—This is the latest Coolidge anecdote: The president when asked what he intended to do when his term expired replied:

"I am going back to Vermont."

"What are you going to do in Vermont," he was asked.

"Well, for a year or two I am going to whittle," the president replied.

LARGE VOTE IS POSSIBLE THIS TIME IN CITY

No Property Qualification Required in This Balloting

MONTGOMERY TO BE THE JUDGE

Polls To Be Located in Rooms at the C. of C.

What: Charter election. Where: Chamber of Commerce rooms. Who: Qualified voters, that is, those of one year's residence in the state and of six months in the city, and who paid poll tax, or those who were out of state January 1, 1926, but have been in state a year and city six months, without having paid poll tax.

In tomorrow's city charter election there is a possibility of the largest vote in Pampa's history, providing local citizens cast their ballots on the proposition.

There is no property qualification in this election, but the usual residence of a year in the state and six months in the county is required, together with the poll tax requirement. But those citizens who were out of the state on January 1, 1926, and who could not have, therefore, been eligible to pay a poll tax, may vote if they have been in the state a year and in the county six months.

W. C. Montgomery has been appointed election judge. The polls will be at the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

The vote is the outgrowth of the appointment on June 30 by the city council of a charter commission of fifteen. This commission made a lengthy study of city charters, and at length drew up what is believed to be a document especially adapted to Pampa's needs. The charter codifies the principal ordinance required by a big civic corporation, but provides that other existing ordinances not in conflict will remain in force. Two outstanding features of the new charter are the commission management plan and the Board of City Development plan.

T. D. Hobart was chairman of the charter commission. Others who signed the document when it was submitted are Lynn Boyd, A. A. Tiemann, M. K. Brown, F. C. Ledrick, Chas. C. Cook, J. M. Dodson, T. H. Lane, Scott Barcus, J. E. Murfee, Jr., F. T. Mason, and F. A. Cary.

The ballots contain this wording: "For the adoption of the charter."

"Against the adoption of the charter."

BRIBERY TRIAL CONTINUED.

(By Associated Press.) AUSTIN, Nov. 7.—The bribery trial of F. A. Dale of Bonham, lawyer expelled as a member of the state legislature, was continued today until January 9 by agreement of opposing counsel.

VIGILANCE—It would be easy to commend the formation of a Dallas police force of 113 citizens, whose duty will be to "strengthen the drive against reckless automobile drivers," but perhaps this should not be done without reservations.

Personal liberty is highly desirable, providing that liberty does not injure other persons or encourage disrespect for law. But when it becomes necessary to array citizens against citizens, there is something more wrong than poor law enforcement.

But not so if he is arrested by someone specially picked for the purpose. It looks too much like persecution. A new state law, over which there is quite a controversy, provides for arresting officers to wear designated clothing.

In a city the size of Dallas, 113 additional police are not numerous enough to give the semblance of an inquisition, however, legal. For that reason, there may not be much of an uproar on the part of motorists. It is indeed regrettable that the trend toward more and more speed, better and quicker thrills, and humor that laughs at law has made it necessary to create citizen-police.

Oklahoma has citizen vigil

Introducing George W. Haldeman

ante squads that war on bank robbers, which is proper, but it should not be necessary for Texas citizens to war on other citizens. Dallas, however, seems to find the latter course desirable.

Pampa's problem has thus far been largely confined to fire entertainments, as too many people consider them. We believe forfeiture or suspension of driving licenses would be the most effective remedy possible in the instances under discussion.

KNOWLEDGE—"Know thyself" is an old axiom, but still popular. Knowledge of self is not easy. If it were, there would not be so many egotists.

Equally important, however, knowing the materials with which one works. The school teacher, for example, should know her pupils individually and intimately. This knowledge should include everything from that of a bad tooth to the most involved hereditary traits.

It is easy to let the bright children do the reciting and give all fair grades but that is not real teaching. Talkative children are not necessarily the most talented, but big capacities are often hidden.

Pampa schools are making progress toward understanding the children. The physical beings are to be better known through the examinations being given by the school nurse. The records will be permanent, and therefore more valuable each year.

The child can be compared to the unfolding flower, which, like the human being, is determined by heredity and environment. Sunshine, water, and care determine how the flower reaches its possibilities, just as the child becomes a part of his home, school, and community training. That children are vastly different is inevitable. It is the duty of the teacher to become an evener, yet without stunting any special ability. This means mental tests as well as physical examinations. Each teacher constantly is testing the children, not merely through written work, but by oral question, problem giving, and constant observation. Colleges are going further and giving mental tests on entrance. Some public schools, as those of Canyon, for instance, are doing the same thing. It is asserted that these tests give the teacher information which otherwise it might take months to learn.

Bright children are thus kept from getting lazy, and those of less frankness are given opportunities to express themselves. Teaching in the modern sense is a most scientific profession, and should be more fully regarded in this light. Cooperation on the part of parents is often difficult on account of misunderstandings of the newer methods. Parent-Teacher associations are overcoming this trouble rapidly.

Education, the biggest industry in almost every community, is becoming bigger and better as both teachers' and parents' conceptions grow.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The presidential candidacy of the Hon. Charles Curtis, senator from Kansas, either means that the Apis Bombus Praesidens, commonly known as the presidential bumble bee, is an insect of hitherto unsuspected virulence and potency or that Senator Charlie has something up his sleeve.

The Senate's Republican leader is a man with as few illustrations as a chorus girl in her late forties. Big Bill Borah may believe that it is possible to change a colleague's vote by a passionate logical speech; George Norris may suspect that the ordinary citizen ought to be represented here; Tom Walsh and Jim Reed may think the country will some day get excited about official corruption; Tom Heflin may be convinced that the Pope's guns are trained on the Capitol; someone somewhere may hope that the Senate as a whole will some day show some horse sense and stop playing politics for an instant—but Curtis has been here 33 years and he knows better.

Thus, it seems most unlikely that Senator Curtis suspects that he might become president unless someone has whispered something in his ear. There are altogether too many reasons why he isn't likely to be nominated and Curtis knows them as well as anyone. He's old; he's a westerner; he doesn't make an especially good speech he has no popular following outside Kansas and so on.

But although he insisted that he wouldn't be a "stalking horse" for any other candidate, there is no reason to suppose that Curtis isn't just as willing to be a good work horse for the party, as he has always been. The outstanding fact about his candidacy is that it will make the going just a little easier for the party regulars who expect to nominate their man in the end.

It seems to me that any hopes for a united farm state bloc of delegates at the next convention have gone blooey and that the farm state delegates will be split three ways—among Lowden, Norris and Curtis. Previously we had Lowden, a middle ground sort of politician, and Norris, a radical progressive.

Now we also have Senator Charlie, the regular, and the regular Republicans in the west who don't deliver a delegation to an eastern reactionary doubtless will assemble under his totem pole. In other words, it looks as if the farmers and western progressives will be as impotent in the next convention as ever, which is to say that Faithful Charlie is again carrying the hod for his party.

It must be admitted, however, that one can't read Senator Charlie's mind with any definite assurance. He may have his eye on the vice presidency or a cabinet job as a reward for his services before and at the convention—or it may be that the poison of Apis Bombus Praesidens is actually spreading through his system.

What those who point to Curtis as a possibility do say is: "Look what happened to Harding!"

What happened to Harding is a rare thing in a Republican convention. Given even similar conditions in the next convention, there doesn't seem to be any board of strategy such as Harry Daugherty and his wrecking crew lined up behind Senator Charlie. What happened to Harding put new life into Apis Bombus Praesidens but it finally proved

Faces Trial Route Like Pav'ino's

Instead of fighting Paulino Uzcudun, Phil Scott (left), English heavyweight, will box with Knute Hansen (right) in New York, November 4, 4, in Scott's first bout on these shows his possibilities as a contender for Gene Tunney's crown against the same opponent whom Paulino defeated in the latter's premiere appearance in New York.

NEW YORK—A British menace to Gene Tunney's heavyweight crown, Phil Scott of London, will follow the "trial horse" path in Madison Square Garden November 4 that led Paulino Uzcudun, Spanish invader, to the front ranks of the heavyweight contenders.

Scott's first opponent in America will be Knute Hansen, Minnesota Dane, who lost a ten round decision to the woodchopper of the Pyrenees when the Basque first answered Tex Rickard's summons to the "big money" center of Nistiana.

Now Rickard has called Scott to the list of heavyweights who will battle through the winter for the big open air "shots" of the spring and summer and finally a chance to dislodge Gene Tunney's crown next fall. Originally Uzcudun was slated for the ten round testing role, but an injury suffered to the Spaniard's left arm in battle with Tom Heehey in September formed him from the match.

Scott, a seaman on H. M. S. Trafalgar at the age of 15 during the world war, sports the championship of the British Isles and claims victories aboard over both Heehey and Uzcudun. Since the war, Scott served two years as a Scotland Yard detective and a year or two as a London fireman. He has been in the ring six years.

Panhandle High Defeats Tulia on Home Grounds

Panhandle high school defeated the Tulia high school team 14 to 6 Friday while Shamrock was defeating Wheeler 24 to 6.

The Pampa Harvesters will meet the Panhandle team here Friday afternoon, and are looking for a hard battle. The two teams have long been rivals and a tough game is probable.

Shamrock will play the Harvesters here Monday. The Irish crew has not been beaten this season.

The local boys have been playing sensational football all season and are in the best of condition. They are not over confident, but figure they can pull a win from Shamrock.

The Irish team has a heavy, fast backfield which uses its weight and speed to break through the line, but are liable to meet a stone wall in Captain Herlicher and his sturdy men.

Both coming games will commence at 3:30 o'clock.

Cornell Captain

HAROLD HOEKELMAN

ITHACA, N. Y.—A football sailing high over the Cornell gridiron carried a load of calamity for Harold Hoekelman three years ago. But he "came back" and is captain of the Cornell eleven this year, his last in college football.

Cornell was playing Williams Hoekelman, sturdy Cornell halfback, stood on his own five-yard line as a high punt sailed toward him. He elected to catch it instead of letting it roll over the goal line and be brought back to the 20-yard mark. But he muffed the ball instead and a fleet Williams end scooped it up and rushed it over the line, enabling Williams to win the game, 14 to 7.

It was tragedy for Hoekelman. But like Merkle, whose famous "bonehead" play still lives in baseball annals, he came back. That is, he left college for a year, and then returned seeking to regain his lost laurels on the gridiron.

He played a sterling game in subsequent football battles. Coach Gilman Doble, usually relentless, was quick to excuse Hoekelman's mistake when the New York 165-pounder, fought his way back to a valued place in the Red and White ranks.

Mussolini Is Puzzled By Twin Mayoresses On Visit From London

The twin lady mayoresses of London, the Hon. Margaret (left) and the Hon. Elizabeth (right) Blades who visited Rome, brought back a necklace as a gift from the Queen of Italy to their stay-at-home younger sister Janet (below).

LONDON—The King of Italy was puzzled when he saw London's twin lady mayoresses.

Pope Pius was amused because of their striking likenesses.

Signor Mussolini, good naturedly, of course, was sort of vexed, because he could not distinguish one from the other.

The Honorable Elizabeth and the Honorable Margaret Blades, daughters of Sir Rowland Blades, the retiring Lord Mayor of London, accompanied by their mother, Lady Margaret Blades, were presented to all the dignitaries of Rome during a four day stay in the Eternal City.

The visit was made as a gesture of friendship from one historic city to another by Sir Rowland just before giving up his office.

The King asked the Lord Mayor many questions about London, and was especially interested in the size of its population.

The King and Queen questioned the twins about their younger sister, Janet. Because she was the "stay-at-home," the Italian Queen gave them a necklace of ancient stones to be presented to her upon their return to London.

The Pope, in conversation with the Lord Mayor's family, asked all about Oxford and referred to his visit there in 1914 on the occasion of the Roger Bacon celebrations. As a Prefect of the Vatican library he was then the official guest of the Chancellor of the University, Lord Curzon.

Caused Wilce Anvil Chorus to Stop

This is the young man whose good work for Ohio State against Chicago put a stop to the Jack Wilce anvil chorus. He is Howard Kries, a back. All he did was catch a 50-yard pass from Robin Bell to score a touchdown and later knock down a pass that would have won for Stagg's Maroon outfit. Ohio State's victory put a stop to the anvil chorus that was howling for Jack Wilce's head.

things about Oosterbaan that were new to me, most of which were decidedly uncomplimentary.

I am inclined to think that if Coach "Doc" Spears sent the gentlemen in question to scout the Michigan team, he will suffer great disappointment at their report. It seemed to me they were scouting only Oosterbaan.

After every play there was much comment about the Michigan captain. This is no brief for Oosterbaan, because I don't even know the gentleman, although I have always been an ardent admirer of his athletic ability.

For that reason I took issue with the Minnesota scouts as to Oosterbaan, expressing the opinion that not in years has the west produced a better end.

My thoughts were not of a soothing nature, rather they stirred up the Gopher scouts, causing them to talk louder and more vehemently.

No Star, Scouts Say

Here are some of the things I learned about Oosterbaan from listening to their remarks:

That he is the most over-touted player in the game. That the scribes alone have made him famous by naming him All-America for two seasons, thereby displaying their ignorance. I confess to having made such an estimate of Oosterbaan.

Also that he lacks "guts" refuses to get into the thick of the play, puts individual play ahead of team work, is a poor tackler and a joke on the offense, although a trifle better defensively.

However, after listening to it all, I am still of the opinion that Benny Oosterbaan is one of the greatest ends in the country, despite the belief of the Minnesota scouts to the contrary.

That is why I am so interested in the outcome of the game. If Oosterbaan is no better than the Minnesota scouts painted him, then the Gophers should run his end at will and slide off tackle as easily. But will they?

BALLOON PILOT KILLED

SPARTA, Tenn., Nov. 5.—Captain Hawthorne Gray, who set out from Belleville, Ill., yesterday seeking an altitude for free balloons, was killed in a crash near here today.

Death is believed to have been caused by heart trouble or gas, as no bruises were found on the body.

The log found on the wreckage said he reached an altitude of 49,000 feet, which would be a new world's record.

Likes Benny Oosterbaan

The outcome of the game between Michigan and Minnesota this year has more than the usual importance attached to it for me.

It is always a great game, a fiercely fought battle for the possession of the old brown jug, a coveted trophy.

My more than ordinary interest in the result this year is due to the fact that two Minnesota scouts sat directly behind me in the Illinois press box, when Zuppke's team defeated Michigan.

I have always been a great admirer of Captain Benny Oosterbaan of Michigan. It has been my good fortune to have seen him play perhaps 10 games in the three years he has been a member of the Michigan varsity.

In all probability the poorest game I have ever seen him play was in the Illinois contest, where it was apparent the loss of his running-mate "Loole" Gilbert, greatly handicapped his offensive methods.

In every other game I can recall he has been an outstanding star. I always have regarded him as one of the best ends I have ever seen in action.

Scouts Scouted Benny

Listening to the conversation of the Minnesota scouts—I couldn't help it, as it was audible all over the press box—I overheard a lot of

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Vance prevents Markham from arresting Leacock when Pfyfe's story implicates the captain. It is brought out that Pfyfe had been in Alvin Benson's power because of a forged check. Leacock confesses to the murder, but Vance exposes the confession as a lie to shield Miss St. Clair, who had been with Benson the evening of the murder.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XLVII

Vance sighed. "Don't you want to be of any help at all in this case?" he asked sadly.

"What good did it do you to make an ass of me in front of that woman?" spluttered Markham. "I can't see that you got anywhere, with all your tom-foolery."

"What!" Vance registered utter amazement. "The testimony you've heard today is going to help immeasurably in convicting the culprit. Furthermore, we now know about the gloves and hand-bag, and who the lady was that called at Benson's office, and what Miss St. Clair did between 12 and 1, and why she dined alone with Alvin and why she first had tea with him, and how the jewels came to be there, and why the Captain took her his gun and then threw it away, and why he confessed. . . . My word!

"Doesn't all this knowledge soothe you? It rids the situation of so much debris.

He stopped and lit a cigaret.

"The really important thing the lady told us was that her friends knew she invariably departed at midnight when she went out of an evening. Don't overlook or belittle that point, old dear; it's most pertinent. I told you long ago that the person who shot Benson knew she was dining with him that night."

"You'll be telling me next you know who killed him," Markham scoffed.

Vance sent a ring of smoke circling upward.

"I've known all along who shot the blighter."

Markham snorted derisively.

"Indeed! And when did this revelation burst upon you?"

"Oh, not more than five minutes after I entered Benson's house that first morning," replied Vance.

"Well, well! Why didn't you confide in me, and avoid all these trying activities?"

"Quite impossible," Vance explained jocularly. "You were not ready to receive my apocryphal knowledge. It was first necessary to lead you patiently by the hand out of the various dark forests and morasses into which you insisted upon straying. You're so devilishly unimaginative, don't you know?"

A taxicab was passing, and he hailed it.

"Eighty-seven West Forty-eighth street," he directed.

Then he took Markham's arm confidently.

"Now for a brief chat with Mrs. Platz. And then—then I shall pour into your ear all my maidenly secrets."

(Wednesday, June 19; 5:30 p. m.)

The housekeeper regarded our visit that afternoon with marked uneasiness. Though she was a large powerful woman, her body seemed to have lost some of its strength, and her face showed signs of prolonged anxiety.

Snitkin informed us, when we entered, that she had carefully read every newspaper account of the progress of the case, and had questioned him interminably on the subject.

She entered the living-room with scarcely an acknowledgement of our presence, and took the chair Vance placed for her like a woman resigning herself to a dread but inevitable ordeal.

When Vance looked at her keenly, she gave him a frightened glance and turned her face away, as if, in the second their eyes met, she had read his knowledge of some secret she had been jealously guarding.

Vance began his questioning without prelude or protest.

"Mr. Platz, was Mr. Benson very particular about his toupee—that is did he often receive his friends without having it on?"

The woman appeared relieved.

"Oh, no, sir—never."

"Think back, Mrs. Platz. Has Mr. Benson never, to your knowledge, been in anyone's company without his toupee?"

She was silent for some time, her brows contracted.

"Once I saw him take off his wig and show it to Colonel Ostrander, an elderly gentleman who used to call here very often. But Colonel Ostrander was an old friend of his. He told me they lived together once."

"No one else?"

Again she frowned thoughtfully.

"No," she said, after several minutes.

"What about the tradespeople?"

"He was very particular about them. . . . And strangers, too," she added. "When he used to sit in here in hot weather without his wig, he always pulled the shade on that window." She pointed to the one nearest the hallway. "You can look in it from the steps."

"I'm glad you brought up that point," said Vance. "And anyone standing on the steps could tap on the window or the iron bars, and attract the attention of anyone in this room?"

"Oh, yes, sir—easily. I did it myself once, when I went on an errand and forgot my key."

"It's quite likely you think, that the person who shot Mr. Benson obtained admittance that way?"

"Yes, sir." She grasped eagerly at the suggestion.

"The person would have had to know Mr. Benson pretty well to tap on the window instead of ringing the bell. Don't you agree with me, Mr. Platz?"

"Yes—sir." Her tone was doubtful; evidently the point was a little beyond her.

"If a stranger had tapped on the window would Mr. Benson have admitted him without his toupee?"

"Oh, no—he wouldn't have let a stranger in."

"You are sure the bell didn't ring that night?"

"Positive, sir." The answer was very emphatic.

"Is there a light on the front steps?"

"No, sir."

"If Mr. Benson had looked out of the window to see who was tapping, could he have recognized the person at night?"

The woman hesitated.

"I don't know—I don't think so."

"Is there any way you can see through the front door who is outside, without opening it?"

"No, sir. Sometimes I wished there was."

"Then, if the person knocked on the window, Mr. Benson must have recognized the voice?"

"It looks that way, sir."

"And you're certain no one could have got in without a key?"

"How could they? The door locks by itself."

"It's the regulation spring-lock, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then it must have a catch you can turn off so that the door will open from either side through it's latched."

"It did have a catch like that," she explained, "but Mr. Benson had it fixed so's it wouldn't work. He said it was too dangerous—I might go out and leave the house unlocked."

Vance stepped into the hallway, and I heard him opening and shutting the front door.

"You're right, Mrs. Platz," he observed, when he came back. "Now tell me; are you quite sure no one had a key?"

"Yes, sir. No one but me and Mr. Benson had a key."

Vance nodded his acceptance of her statement.

"You said you left your bedroom door open on the night Mr. Benson was shot. . . . Do you generally leave it open?"

"No. I 'most always shut it. But it was terrible close that night."

"Then it was merely an accident you left it open?"

"As you might say."

"If your door had been closed as usual, could you have heard the shot, do you think?"

"If I'd been awake, maybe. Not if I was sleeping, though. They got heavy doors in these old houses, sir."

"And they're beautiful, too," commented Vance.

He looked admiringly at the massive mahogany double door that opened into the hall.

THE WHY OF SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

THE BRIDESMAID

HERE is a common superstition that a girl who acts three times as a bridesmaid will be an old maid—a sort of "three-times-and-out" superstition. It would appear that this idea had its origin in that conception of marriage by the ancients—as is shown many times in mythology and folklore—as something to which magic particularly attached. Among the forms of magic associated with marriage was sympathetic magic of the sort known as contagious. Several current superstitions illustrate the "contagious magic" idea in connection with marriage, and reasoning by analogy, it would seem as if a girl who has been three times a bridesmaid ought to be pretty sure of being bride herself.

Now the young woman who has been three times exposed to the contagious magic of marriage without effect might reasonably be supposed to be immune. Upon comparative religion, folklore and magic, new light is constantly being thrown. The three really form one subject and even Sir James Frazer, in his twelve volumes of the "Golden Bough," has but touched upon vast and unexplored regions. Therefore the above explanation of the bridesmaid superstition is only offered tentatively. Perhaps future research may reveal some other.

Science Points Way to Cheaper Pork

ROBERT J. EVANS, secretary of the American Duroc Jersey Association and a strong exponent of the ton-litter idea.

Prof. J.R. Wiley, of Purdue University, father of the ton-litter idea. F.H. Norman, of Reuben, Indiana, who produced the first ton-litter on record.

That was in 1922. Many of the leading hog growers looked upon the development of one-ton litters in six months' time under average farm conditions as nothing more than an idle dream and politely refused to take part in the contest. Mr. Wiley and his associates, however, scoured around the state until they had found a sufficient number of farmers who were willing to follow the few simple yet rigid rules laid down for the contest. The work began. Long before the pigs were six months old the excellent results of the work became evident. Thirty-six ton litters were marketed in Indiana that year as a result of that contest. And the "Doubting Thomases" had to admit that the raising of litters weighing a ton in 180 days under average everyday farm conditions was not only possible, but could be accomplished without much difficulty.

After the first season's work, the swine extension men in other states were so completely sold on the ton-litter idea that the organization of ton litters was immediately made a major project in practically every section of the country. From these thirty-six litters in the one-ton class in 1922, interest in the work has continued to grow until last year 741 ton litters were reported in 23 states. Following are the states where ton litter contests flourished last year, and the number of ton litters credited to each:

Illinois	132	Texas	18
Pennsylvania	121	Idaho	8
Indiana	85	Georgia	8
Missouri	78	Oregon	8
Tennessee	67	Virginia	4
Kentucky	44	Louisiana	2
Ohio	44	North Dakota	2
Missouri	35	Kansas	2
Wisconsin	34	Nebraska	2
Iowa	27	Utah	2
Oklahoma	21	North Carolina	1
Michigan	18
Total	741

Two Tons of Pork on Hoof.

The astounding thing about the 1925 "Ton Litter" contest in the various states is the phenomenal weight to which some of these litters have been brought up. Over seventeen tons of hogs from eight sows on seven farms in six states were produced in one year. These eight sows, with one in Texas in 1924, are the dams of the only known litters in the world to reach a weight of two tons or more at 180 days of age. They demonstrate absolutely that not only can one ton of pork on the hoof be made in six months, but that double that amount is possible if the best methods of breeding, feeding and management are followed.

The champion litter of the year and of all time was produced by the Rawleigh Farms at Freeport, Ill. This remarkable group of 16 purebred Poland-China pigs reached the world's record weight of 4,798 pounds in six months after passing the one-ton mark when 102 days old. These pigs were rescued by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation from 25,000 others on the Chicago market when they were within five minutes of the "sticker's" knife in the packing plant. They were then used to make up one of the feature educational exhibits at last year's American Royal and the International Livestock Shows. Another litter on the same farm, consisting of 15 pigs, weighed 4,511 pounds in 180 days, the second highest weight on record.

Strict adherence to modern sanitation practices was followed in the development of these two litters. Blue grass before weaning and rape afterwards, with plenty of fresh, clean water were furnished. Corn, tankage, minerals, skim milk and kitchen waste with a pig meal consisting of bran, corn meal, linseed meal, rolled oats, middlings, beef scrap, gluten feed, dried buttermilk, molasses, salt and charcoal made up the concentrate allowance. The cost of feed, labor, freight and commission left a profit of approximately 7 cents a pound for the heaviest litter.

Five Pigs to the Litter. Mr. Wiley's survey also showed that the average litter contained but five and seven-tenths pigs and that the average weight of those litters at six months of age was low—1,030 pounds for those made up of from five to seven pigs. This convinced Mr. Wiley that the key to increased hog profitability in the prolificacy in sows and the ability to grow rapidly is pigs.

The 5.15 of the Future

A glimpse into the aeronautical future is provided by this picture of an Army non-rigid dirigible landing upon the roof of the Newport News, Va., high school, the first descent of the kind ever accomplished. After discharging mail and passengers, it again ascended and drifted away.

MOM'N POP ... We'll Say ... by TAYLOR

GEO. W. DAVIES
Secretary of the American Poland-China Record Association, Explaining How Farmers May Add One Hundred Million Dollars to Their Annual Income by Following the Ton-Litter Idea.

IF THE American farmer will apply in his pig raising certain practical principles made available to him by science and experience he can boost his income $100,000,000 a year from this one source alone.

Next month will witness the return of the ton-litter reports. Farmers who want to learn how to make more money out of their "mortgage-litters," will study these master lessons of economic pork production with greatest care, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, which exhibited the champion two-ton litter last year.

In effect the "Ton-Litter" means a material reduction in the overhead carried by the farmer on his pigs by getting more pigs to market from each of his sows. More pigs from less sows and few simple rules of sanitation in their raising, mark all the difference to the farmer making this $100,000,000 or doing without it.

Just what the "Ton Litter" can do for the farmer was demonstrated in dramatic fashion at the American Royal Livestock Show at Kansas City and the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago last fall. The thousands of men and women who thronged both of these shows were amazed to learn that the 16 pigs comprising the world's champion litter of pigs exhibited by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation weighed 4,798 pounds at six months of age. Over two tons of pork from one sow in 180 days!

Largely as a result of the Foundation's pig exhibit, and brought closer home by a depressed corn market, the "Ton Litter" is rapidly winning many converts among farmers who had previously scoffed at it. They are coming around to see that through proper feeding, breeding, care, and management they can turn out at six months a litter of pigs weighing 2,000 pounds that had previously taken them twelve to eighteen months to produce.

says it to Weech and ordered the other six government men in "line up."

"Move the whiskey back to our boat," he instructed Weech, "and then go below and set this government boat on fire."

As Weech went into the hold Webster jumped for Alderman. He was killed instantly with a bullet through his head. Jodie L. Hollingsworth, following the secret service man, was wounded through the eye and nose. But it was the "break," and the rest of the small crew rushed upon Alderman and Weech and overpowered them, and brought them to port. They now await trial at Jacksonville for first degree murder.

Closely allied with rum running is the smuggling of aliens and narcotics. An affidavit in government possession tells how a rum boat took 27 aliens from Cuba to an island off Florida, only to return in a few days to rob them of all they had. Other stories tell of aliens paying the smuggling fees, being taken aboard, and being set adrift at sea or drowned.

Strategy is used oftener than force to land liquor. Submersible steel tanks, carrying about 600 cases of liquor, were used with success for awhile towed behind boats and cut adrift if guardsmen pressed too closely.

Attempts to smuggle by airplane are no longer novel. Planes can easily fly between the British Bahamas and Florida, but federal operatives now know how to deal with them. They are sighted in the air and kept from landing.

Even when rum runners desert their boats, danger lurks often in bombs with time fuses or explosives attached to the ignition. More than 5,000 miles of coast line around Florida offer innumerable bayous and inlets where rum runners try to land cargo. To meet the situation reinforcements are being added and a section base is to be set up at St. Petersburg with an off-shore patrol of six vessels. The coast guard also uses planes.

Buick Dealer Is Enthusiastic After a Visit to Plant

T. K. Underwood of the Underwood Motor company, local Buick dealers, has just returned from Flint, Mich., where he spent two days as a guest of the Buick Motor company. The company is entertaining most of its 3,800 dealers at the factory this fall, and at the famous General Motors proving ground, at the rate of about 250 each week.

Mr. Underwood made the trip in a special Pullman train, along with the other dealers in the territory of the Oklahoma City branch. These dealers reached Flint early Sunday morning, October 30. Their train took a siding near the Buick factory, and the party, numbering about 125 men was met by the Buick executives, divided into groups of a dozen or so each, and started at once on an inspection tour through the plants.

Except for luncheon, which was served at the Hotel Durant, the tour occupied the entire day. The luncheon was attended by E. T. Strong, president of the Buick Motor company; O. W. Churchill, general sales manager, and other Buick executives, who addressed the visiting dealers on various sales and service problems, and congratulated them on their part in making this by far the greatest of all Buick years.

The next day the dealers landed at the proving grounds, which lie a few miles from the nearby town of Milford. Here they were shown the testing through which Buicks go constantly to safeguard their position of quality leadership. After a day crammed with interest, the dealers left for home.

"It's hard to say which was more amazing, the factory or the proving ground," said Mr. Underwood. "Each was a wonderful experience and a genuine treat. The day at the factory brought home the marvelous efficiency of Buick manufacture, and explained how it is that Buick can offer such startling values. We saw the conscientious care that goes into the making of every Buick car, and relentless tests which insure that every one is right before it goes out, and we gained some conception of the enormous resources this policy has enabled Buick to develop."

"I was especially impressed at the way machinery had taken the place of man power, whose work it does more quickly and more accurately than men. Movement of parts, in their transformation from raw material into finished cars, is taken care of by a system of conveyors of marvelous ingenuity, each designed perfectly for its own particular job. They run from operation to operation, and from plant to plant, in what seems a hopeless maze, yet their movement is perfectly co-ordinated and their combined effect is efficiency itself."

"With all its machinery, Buick employs almost 30,000 workers. Its factory is nearly 2 miles long and several blocks wide, it has its own fire and police department, its own water and telephone system—in short, it is a good-sized city in itself."

"We were delighted to see the proving ground because we had heard so much about it. The visit set us straight on one point—the proving ground was not established to set a stamp of approval of General Motors cars, to prove them good, as rumor has it, but to put those cars through the most rigid tests, in comparison with all other cars made, so they may perform with the best at all times."

"Buick keeps a big fleet there constantly, going through the roughest kind of grind, so that performance may be constantly bettered. These Buicks averaged 900 miles a day the year round, a fact that gives some idea of the tests through which they are put. The demonstration of the Buick roadster upon the speed loop was amazing, and I did not know an automobile could go so fast."

"I think all the dealers in the territory felt that the visit was the experience of a lifetime. For myself, the visit to the plant and the proving ground and the contract with Buick's builders made me mightily proud of my connection with Buick. It put a real significance in the slogan: 'When Better Automobiles Are Built, Buick Will Build Them.'"

Greatest Volume at Piggly Wiggly Reached Saturday

The Piggly Wiggly grocery store here reached a new high record on total sales Saturday, which was the first anniversary of the opening of the store in Pampa.

"The volume of business has steadily increased during the past months," says Carl Boston, proprietor, "but the greatest volume of sales was reached Saturday."

"I want to give the Pampa Daily News due credit," says Mr. Boston, "for our large volume of business is largely due to consistent advertising in the daily newspaper."

Mr. Boston operates a Piggly Wiggly system store in Clarendon as well as in Pampa. After returning from a business trip to Oklahoma recently, Mr. Boston reports that business in the Panhandle is much better than in the neighboring state.

Carnival by High School Students Is Coming Attraction

All the cleverness and ingenuity of Pampa's high school students will be concentrated to make a carnival that will be a real attraction on the evening of Armistice day.

The entire high school building will be utilized for the various shows and concessions. There will be freaks, athletics, and other attractions typical of carnivals. No admission will be charged at the entrance, but "money" will be sold for the individual attractions.

The doors will open at 7 p. m. At 11 o'clock the winners in the beauty contest will be crowned.

The proceeds will be for the benefit of "The Harvester," the high school annual.

Garage Slightly Damaged by Fire Sunday Afternoon

Slight fire damage resulted to a garage at the rear of J. E. Walker's residence on East Kingsmill avenue Sunday afternoon.

The fire alarm was sounded at 2:30 o'clock and the fireman made a fast run to arrive in time to confine the blaze to one corner of the building.

The fire apparently started in a waste box at the rear of the garage.

Power Company To Survey Llano River Country

(By Associated Press.)

AUSTIN, Nov. 7.—The request of Ward Arnold of Chicago, said to be connected with the Syndicate Power company, for permission to go over the Llano river to determine the feasibility of impounding water for power purposes was granted today by the board of water engineers.

The policies of the syndicate have been attacked by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

P. O. Boxes Are Giving Trouble

Complaints on local post office service are growing.

The bad condition of post office boxes, many of which have defective locks is affecting many customers. Another need is for some manner to post mail after 11 p. m. in the evening. Many workers come off night shifts find it impossible to post mail at the local office before they retire for sleep.

Pampa citizens are suggesting the need for better equipment and for carrier service, which has been long delayed.
