Trade Day Brings Christmas Buying Opportunities

TOMORROW IS MONTHLY EVENT FOR DECEMBER

Pampa Territory Is Reading of Big Values

SEASON NOW IS BIG ATTRACTION

Local Stores Crowded With Gifts of All Kinds

"Your golden opportunity for Christmas buying" is the slogan for the December Trade Day, which will be tomorrow in Pampa.

In addition to the big list of specials, the stores have crowded their shelves with thousands of dollars worth of seasonal merchandise. The spirit of Christmas dominates local stores, which are filled all day long with shoppers eager to select gifts from the large numbers displayed.

People throughout the Pampa trade territory today are reading of the many bargains to be offered tomorrow. It can readily be seen, local merchants point out, that enough can be saved on the Trade Day specials to buy several Christmas presents.

Pampa business men meet regularly to plan the monthly value-giving event and to plan welcomes that count—in dollars saved the buyers. Unusual values, rather than cheap entertainment which few really enjoy, form the basis of Pampa Trade Day, a territorial trade institution alone of its type in the Panhandle. "Come to Pampa tomorrow."

Raw Silk Worth $50,000 Stolen in Train Robbery

LANGSHORE, Penn., Dec. 13.—Raw silk valued at $50,000 was stolen today when a Reading company freight train was held up near here by a band of fifteen men.

In an exchange of shots with the train crew, one of the band, believed to have been wounded, was seen to be carried into an automobile. He made his escape with the others.

Sister's Love Aided Dreda Aves To Place in Metropolitan Opera

Often in the life of this American singer, now with the Metropolitan Opera Company, did love enable her to overcome the obstacles which threatened to block her path.

Curiously enough, it wasn't the sort of love that makes the movies go round. It was the love of one sister for another.

When Dreda was 18 years old she left her home in Galveston to study for the career of an opera singer, in direct defiance to the wishes of her father, an Episcopalian minister. Her sister, Miss Marian Aves, was then doing settlement work in New York, and it was to her that Dreda went. Through her aid and constant encouragement the young singer was enabled to begin her studies.

During the World War the two sisters went to France, where Dreda sang in hospitals for the entertainment of disabled and wounded soldiers. On her return she continued studying and traveling.

Congress May Be Asked to Probe Banking Policies

DALLAS, Dec. 13.—A suggestion for a Congressional investigation of the policies of the eleventh Federal Reserve district is being considered for use if remedial relief is not given by the registration or ousting of Lynn Talley, governor of the Dallas Federal Reserve bank.

This was indicated in a cause of dissatisfied bankers before a special meeting of the Federal Reserve board of directors, in which testimony was resumed by protecting bankers today.

Big Wells Will Boost Production in County Over 20,000

The Phillips Petroleum company's No. 2 Jackson in section 88, block B-2, struck pay last night at 2,840 feet, which is several feet higher than expected. The well will probably be drilled in tomorrow.

The Phillips Petroleum company's No. 1 Jackson in section 88 block B-2, is drilling at 2,830 feet and will be brought in this week. The drilling in of these wells will send the Gray county production over the 20,000 barrel mark and give the county one of the outstanding pools of the state.

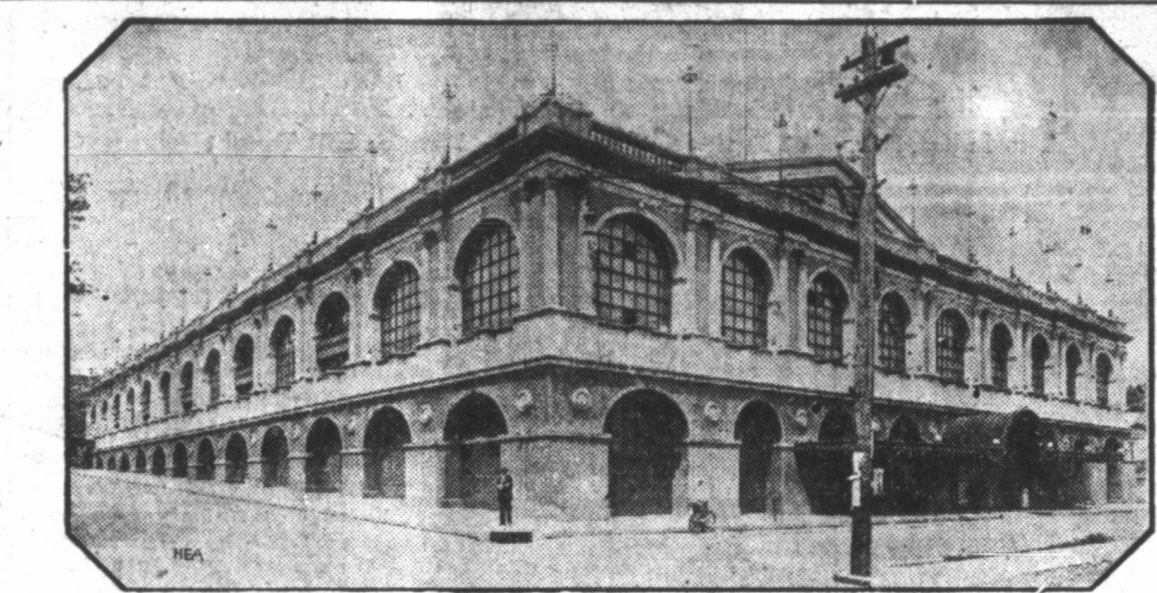

Much interest is being taken in the McAuliffe et al's No. 1's No. 1 Morse in section 2 block 28, in rank wildcat territory. A flow of 10,000,000 cubic feet of gas was encountered between 2,352 and 2,365 feet and after being cased off the first oil show was struck yesterday at 2,400 feet.

This wildcat is more than 2 miles north of the Travis Oil company's No. 1 Back in section 44, block 25, the discovery well in that territory. Pay is expected within the next 100 feet and a large producer is looked for.

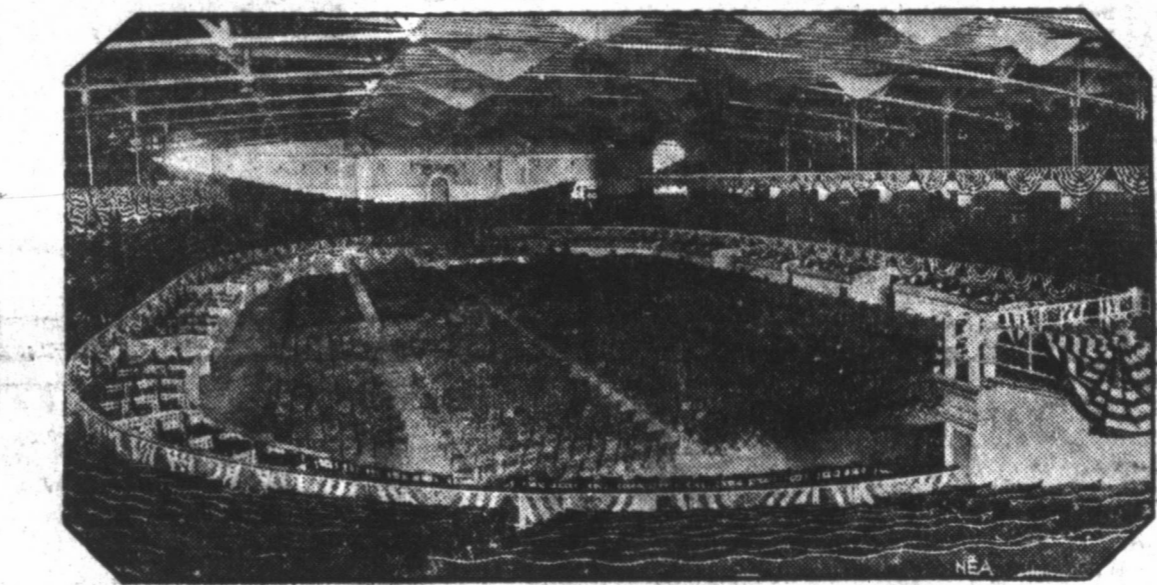

If this well hits it will mean extensive drilling in that territory as practically every company drilling in the Gray county field holds leases around that well.

John Willis et al's No. 1 Burnett estate in section 111, block 5, Carson county, had about 10,000,000 cubic feet of gas last week and a show of oil at 3,015 feet yesterday. This well is about 3 miles south of the McIlroy pool and about 8 miles from Berger, and is expected to be drilled in sometime today.

SOLONS GATHER IN BED ATTIRE

Action Taken While National Guard Is Asleep

(By Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 13.—Quietly assembling in a downtown hotel while National Guardsmen, who had been called out to prevent their meeting, slept at the state capitol, the self-convened executive session of the Oklahoma House of Representatives early today voted six impeachment charges against Governor Henry Johnston, Charles Noon of Muskogee announced at the door of its executive session.

It also voted impeachment charges against Chief Justice Fred Branson and Harry Cordell, president of the state board of agriculture, the session's leaders said.

Each charge was voted, it was said, by an overwhelming majority. The legislators were summoned in their bath robes and appeared in every conceivable form of undress costumes from their beds to the meeting.

It was learned that the session voted to submit the charges to the Senate as soon as it may convene for impeachment action. Charges pending against the governor, it was said, are making military authority supreme over civil authority; charging him with illegal employment of Kirby Fitzpatrick as attorney for the state banking department; incompetency, charging him with giving Jose Alvarado, alleged robber, a commission as a peace officer; and charging that a $79,000 deficiency certificate had been paid to a state employe illegally.

It also is charged that the governor was in an alleged conspiracy with Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, his confidential secretary, and an unnamed woman in connection with the effort of an Altus, contractor to collect a claim.

L. G. Merrell, Earl Talley, Dr. Roy Webb, F. M. Culbertson, and J. G. Christy left this morning for a today hunt in Mason county, Texas.

Attorney Burke was in Shamrock on business today.

BANK BANDITS TAKE $5,000

Small Institution Near Eastland Is Robbed Today

EASTLAND, Dec. 13.—Two unmasked men shortly after noon today held up the First State bank at Carbon, near here, and escaped with $5,000 in cash. Four employes and four customers were locked in the vault.

Oklahoma Farmer Kills Wife, Five Children and Self

(By Associated Press.)

HENNESSEY, Okla., Dec. 13.—Phillips Mills, a farmer, killed his wife and five small children with an axe early today, then hanged himself from a rafter in his barn. Neighbors said Mills had been despondent because of financial losses and family trouble.

Professor Declares Rebecca Rogers Has Form of Insanity

LA GRANGE, Dec. 13.—Rebecca Bradley Rogers is suffering from a form of dementia praecox, Dr. Handman, criminologist of the University of Texas, told the jury in Mrs. Rogers' trial here today. She is charged with robbing a bank at Buda about a year ago.

Palace Confectionery Is Robbed of $40 Left in Cash Register—Thieves Abandon Candy in Flight

Thieves entered the Palace Confectionery store some time last night and stole between $35 and $40 that had been left in the cash register. Nothing else was taken, although some boxes of candy had been carried as far as the back door and left there.

Entrance was gained by taking a screen from the rear window and breaking a pane of glass to get to the cock on the window. They left the store by the rear door, locking it after them. They also closed the rear window after entering.

An attempt was also made to break the J. E. Murfee Dry Goods store, but the attempt failed when the screens on the rear windows withstood the attacks of the burglars.

Officers are investigating the theft, with few or no clues to work on.

Robbers Tie Three Persons and Loot Fort Worth Home

FORT WORTH, Dec. 13.—Four unmasked youths entered the residence here of Mrs. L. A. Peterson today, tied the woman and a roomer, C. W. Elrod, and J. W. Webb, employed by her, and robbed them of $3,200 in cash and approximately $1,500 in jewelry.

Mrs. Peterson declared she knew the identity of one of the robbers.

F. D. Ford, an employe at Masters' Cafe, was taken to the Pampa hospital this morning with pneumonia.

Lindbergh Hops Off Suddenly on Mexico City Trip

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Charles Lindbergh sailed away today in his spirit of St. Louis for the non-stop flight to Mexico City, which will take him more than 2,000 miles of mountains, plains, and valleys.

The flier decided the time and weather were right, and without more ado he announced he was ready to go on his errand of good will. The trip is expected to require about 26 hours in the air. He took his plane up at 12:29 p. m.

Terrill Gangman Dies in Amarillo

(Special to The News.)

AMARILLO, Dec. 13.—Roy Harmon, alleged member of the Terrill bandit gang, died here last night of wounds received when he was shot by a Wildorado night watchman while supposedly attempting to rob a mercantile store.

Gus Johnson, wounded at the same time, is recovering in a local hospital.

Harmon is said to have confessed to banditry with Ray Terrill in Iowa, for which he received a ten-year penitentiary sentence but escaped.

THE STORY THUS FAR

When Jeff Harrison, gambler, is killed in a poker game in Caldwell, Kas., his 13-year-old son, Tony is taken to the Bar K ranch in the Indian territory by Joe Craig, who appoints himself the boy's guardian. There Tony is welcomed by Titus Moore, owner of the Bar K brand, and his little daughter, Rita. Another who has befriended Tony is Gordon W. Little, who later becomes known as Pawnee Bill when he teaches school at the Indian reservation in Pawnee.

In the months that follow, reports come to the Bar K of the activities of the now notorious Benton gang, Tom Benton being the murderer of Jeff Harrison. Craig and Tony depart for Pawnee to visit Pawnee Bill.

CHAPTER XIX

Crisp autumn was on the Indian territory and the man and boy who rode toward Pawnee passed through a veritable hunter's paradise. They flushed innumerable flocks of wild turkeys and one fine gobbler fell victim to Tony Harrison's rifle. They cooked this for their mid-day meal.

The boy also got his chance at a deer, but with his rifle raised against his shoulder and his finger pulling on the trigger he suddenly put the gun down. "I couldn't do it, Joe," he said, smiling wistfully. "He just seemed too pretty to kill—and I got a look of those big eyes of his."

Craig patted the boy's shoulder. "You're right, Tony; they are too pretty and helpless looking to kill. I've never shot a deer except when I was downright hungry and couldn't find anything else."

They made their camp for the night on the south shore of the Salt Fork, in a little grove of pecan trees. Just before sundown they heard the crashing of a heavy animal in the underbrush and Craig signaled to Tony to grab his rifle and follow.

"It's a bear," he said in a low tone. "Be careful, now, and I'll let you bring him down."

The bear evidently was curious for presently they heard him again and then spotted him, not twenty yards away from their camp, a fine looking fellow. He raised his head and sniffed curiously.

Craig lifted his own rifle. "Right between the shoulders, Tony," he whispered, and the boy fired.

The bear emitted a loud grunt, rose to his hind feet and pawed furiously at the wound in his breast. "Another one, Tony; right in the chest."

This time the bear dropped, and Craig ran up to finish him with a shot through the head. But it was not necessary. A bullet had penetrated the animal's heart.

"That's pretty fair shooting," pronounced Craig. "We'll skin him right after supper, and you'll have a first class robe to crawl under this winter."

The next forenoon they passed a number of buffalo wallows, and Craig paused to dwell on the passing of the great herds. "There was millions of 'em at one time, Tony, but they've thinned out considerable, most due to the coming of the railroads. I've seen a herd so big that it took half a day for it to pass, and Pawnee Bill has seen bigger ones than that. He was on a trapping expedition with Tom Evans some years ago, and the party they in killed 1200 in one day out of a herd that took a whole day to pass."

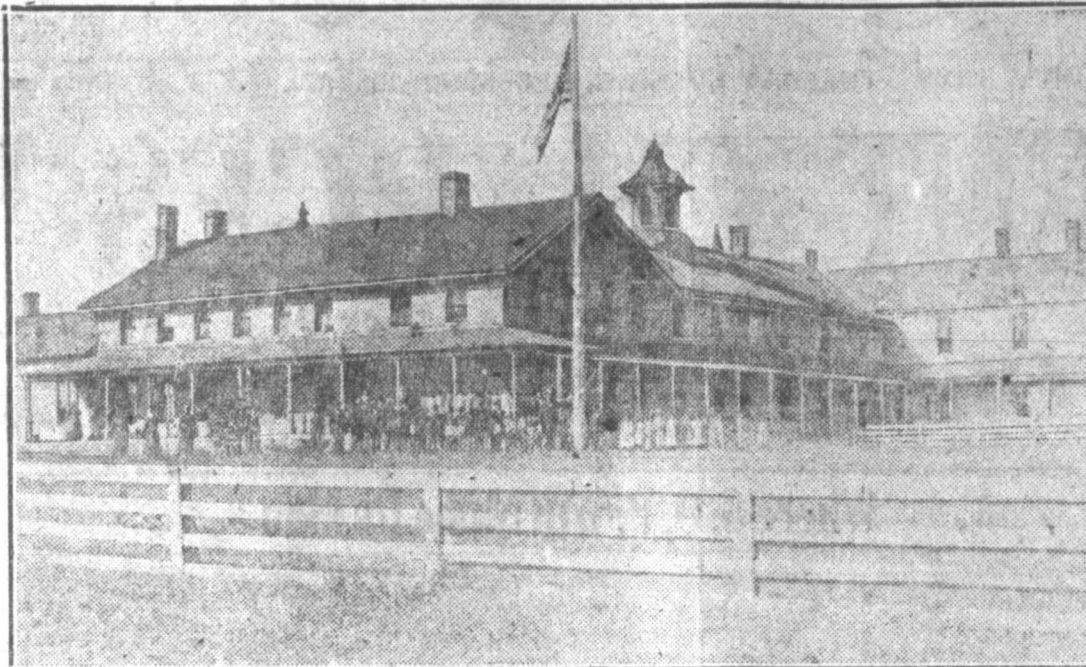

He pointed with his finger. "Buffalo bones, Tony. Somehow they make me right mournful. . . It's a shame to see the old days passing. If Payne and his Boomers have their way, it won't be long before all the game will be gone; and with four families to every square mile, there won't be any place even for cattle." His voice was tinged with bitterness and resentment, and Tony saw the angry gleam in his eyes.

"But it'll have to come some day, Joe," the boy said. "Maybe not soon, but they'll open the territory for settlement some time. And why shouldn't they?"

Craig regarded him in surprise. "Who's been talking to you?"

"No one—lately—but I've been reading something about it." The cattlemen haven't any real legal right to hold land in Oklahoma or in the Strip. Not that I blame them for doing it—you couldn't find a finer man anywhere than Colonel Moore. But some day it will have to come, and I guess the cowmen will have to get out."

Craig appeared to be shocked by this. "Tony I'm real disappointed to hear you talk that way. Do you mean to say you're a sympathizer with the Boomers?"

The Indian School at Pawnee, Okla., Where Pawnee Bill Taught

The boy shook his head. "My sympathies are with Colonel Moore, and you know it. I owe him and you more than I'll ever be able to pay. If I had my own way about it, I'd let things go on as they are now, but it would be because I was selfish about it and not because I thought the other side was wrong."

"Dave Payne," said Craig grimly. "will never live to see Oklahoma opened. Hell! It makes me sick to think about it even. . . There's Black Bear Creek, Tony; we're almost there."

He rode the remaining distance into Pawnee in morose silence.

Pawnee was just a little settlement. There were a trader's store, a community school for Indians and the United States Indian agent's office. They had passed one of the Pawnee reservations on the way, and the others lay close about.

Craig dismounted in front of the Indian agent's office and inquired for Pawnee Bill. "I expect he'll be in here any minute," he was informed by Major Bowman. "If he don't come, you'll find him over at the boarding house."

They saw him coming down the street toward them presently, swinging along with his free and easy stride. He was as brown as leather and looked hard as a rock.

"You can get a room right next to mine at the boarding house," he told Craig and Tony after he had greeted them. "Tony, you and I'll ride over and shake hands with a chief or two. Want to come, Craig?"

"Some other time," Craig replied lazily. "I'm plumb anxious to sit down in one of Major Bowman's chairs and smoke a cigar."

"You keep right on growing, don't you?" Pawnee Bill said to Tony as they rode along. "Let's see—you're 15, aren't you?"

"That's right."

"And you look 18. Well, have you made up your mind to stick in the 'ow business?"

"No, I expect in a year or two I'll be looking around. Maybe I'll go east—I don't know."

"Sort of getting restless?"

"Well, it is kind of hard staying in one place, especially after being used to traveling around the way I did with my father."

"I'll tell you, Tony. I'm joining Buffalo Bill next spring, and I may go in the show business myself if it looks good to me. If I do, I can find something for you to do. It'll be a change anyway."

The boy was silent for a minute or two. He was thinking that it would be hard parting with Craig and Colonel Moore.

"I'll think it over," he told Pawnee Bill. "About Buffalo Bill—do you know him?"

"I've only seen him once. Way back when I was a kid. I guess I was 12 or 13 or thereabouts. I was in Bloomington, Ill. I remember I was walking along the street one day, on an errand for my mother, when I saw a large crowd in front of the St. Nicholas hotel. I thought at first it was a fire or something, but the people were all gathered around three men with long hair and buffalo robe coats. Handsome men, top. They were Buffalo Bill, Wild Bill Hickok and Texas Jack Omohundro. They were playing at the opera house that night in a show called 'The Scouts of the Plains.' I've been more or less of an admirer of Buffalo Bill ever since. It was one of those boyhood impressions that stuck."

"I guess he's a great man," Tony mused. "How did he get his start?"

"There's quite a few versions. Some say he was a great Indian killer, but I don't know that that's true. He used to work for a man named Bill Mathewson years ago. Bill had a contract with the Union Pacific Railroad to furnish meat to its track layers, and the contract didn't stipulate what kind of meat, so he provided nothing but buffalo meat. They got to calling him Buffalo Bill."

"Will Cody, who was working for him, used to shoot buffalo for him, and others got to calling him Buffalo Bill; so you see there were two of them. Finally Ned Buntline, the writer and show producer went west that he was back in Wellington and preparing to leave for Pawnee in some covered wagons to fetch a number of Indians.

It is lonely at the ranch without Rita, and Tony makes a new discovery.

Water Engineer Arrives to Build Big Phillips Plant

R. A. Carter, civil, hydraulic and mining engineer, has arrived here to install the huge water system for the Phillips Petroleum company in the south Pampa field. The basin will be situated where the Cramer and Manly water station, which the Phillips company has purchased was originally located in section 13, block B12, Gray county.

The system when completed will have a daily capacity of 100,000 barrels or 6,000,000 gallons a day. This supply will not only be used by the Phillips company, but by any company in the south field in need of a water supply.

Mr. Carter installed the large water system for the company in Borger and is well known in engineering circles. This supply will serve the Phillips company gasoline plant, which will be erected in the south field, also the proposed carbon black plant.

The above map shows the route of the Dallas-Northwest highway and important connections. The new road will materially shorten the motor vehicle distance between Dallas and Northwest Texas points, at the same time providing a by-pass around the most congested traffic centers of North Texas. Through travel can miss either Fort Worth or Dallas or both. Assurance of cooperation in building the new highway was given by the state highway commission at its November session. Dallas county officials plan to begin construction work by early spring.

This highway, designed as state highway 114, will be fifty miles long, extending from a point on state highway 1 about eight miles northeast of Dallas to the town of Rhome on state highway 2 north of Fort Worth. It intersects many improved traffic ways leading into Dallas and Fort Worth. Dallas county will build a connection around the eastern side of the city of Dallas to enable travel to and from east and southeast Texas to reach the northwest highway without passing through the congested traffic of the city.

Dallas county will provide sixty per cent of the $2,373,000 estimated cost, under the plan approved by the highway commission. The road will be of best type reinforced concrete from eighteen to forty feet wide. A 100-foot right-of-way has been secured for it.

First Carbon Black Taken From Plant

The first carbon black from the new Cabot Co. plant near Skellytown was produced last week when ten of the hot houses were put into operation as a test. The company is using between one and two million cubic feet of gas in the houses already completed.

This plant when completed will be one of the largest in the world covering more than thirteen acres. When all the houses are in use more than 5,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas will be consumed yearly.

PEACE THREAT—It should be of some general interest to note the progress of the League of Nations council toward the settlement of the minor, but never-the-less inflammatory, European disputes.
 A few days ago the press carried a well written but not very clear story to the effect that the Polish-Lithuanian controversy was on the way to settlement. The status of the matter when the council adjourned was that Poland recognized the independence of Lithuania and the latter went on record as not being in a state of war with the Poles. The council, asked Beelaerts Van Blokland, Dutch foreign minister, to draw up procedure for the formal settlement through declarations and agreements on specific matters, one of which is the alleged mistreatment of Lithuanian clergy at Vilna.
 War has smoldered along the border of Poland and Lithuania for a dozen years. Both Poland and her neighbor claim the region about the city and province of Vilna, in which Poland has been in possession since 1920. Two previous attempts to settle this ownership by arbitration—in 1920 and 1925—failed completely.
 Meanwhile the infiltration of Polish peoples progressed. Both peoples being devoutly Catholic, there was no outstanding differences until the confused period which followed the Bolshevik revolution of November, 1927. During that unhappy time Vilna changed hands half a dozen times, being progressively Polish, Lithuanian, and Soviet. The Poles took the city from the Russians a few hours before the Lithuanians could get back in power, and upon this pretext the Polish army remained. Frequent street clashes developed between the rival military forces. Poland a year later attacked the Soviet government in the Ukraine, but after momentary successes her army was forced back, and Vilna too was occupied by the Russians. The latter handed the government over to Lithuania on July 12, 1920, and for a brief three months Vilna was in the hands of the Lithuanians. Poland immediately protested to the League of Nations, and a military commission prevented war by arranging a truce pending further negotiations.

 Two days later, it is recorded, Polish "irregulars" drove the Lithuanians from Vilna and ever since have held the scepter over the unhappy city. Hoping to settle the matter, the Allies in March of 1923 recognized the coup d'etat of the Poles, but Lithuania did not take the action as final. Until the League council this week delved further into the problem, Lithuania considered herself in a state of war with Poland.

Out of this tangled mass of claims must the Dutch minister and the League council derive a permanent arrangement. The one suggestion that appears to meet more than ordinary approval outside the two countries is that Lithuania should become a state of two autonomous cantons—a Polish canton of Vilna and a Lithuanian canton of Kaunas, and that it should perhaps enter into a close alliance with Poland. This probably would not appeal to little Lithuania, but the obstacles, showing no strong racial antipathies, probably would disappear in time.
 Such small but involved disputes keep the war cloud hanging over Europe, and Americans can with difficulty understand the patience with which the larger powers must be endowed to let such conditions exist.

There used to be a cork flooring around the rostrum in the House. Now there's carpet there. The reason for the change, according to what seems to be authoritative information, was that members in the front row addicted to chewing tobacco succeeded in making the cork section dangerously slippery.
 General John C. Speaks, a congressman from Columbus, sits in the first row this session and gives a splendid exhibition of maxillary endurance, but has not thus far been caught damaging the carpet. As a matter of fact, the Congressional Directory doesn't explain whether the general is chewing tobacco or gum, but if it's gum the wad must be as big as his fist.
 Politics makes strange bedfellows—and seatmates, witness the Senate. Often one observes a couple of good hell-raisers of similar sentiments sitting alongside each other, such as Borah and Norris, Jim Reed and Joe Robinson, or even Shipstead and Howell. On the other hand, you'll find the radical young LaFollette parked alongside the reactionary and ancient Gillett of Massachusetts. And Dave Reed of Pennsylvania, the lieutenant and servant of Secretary Mellon, sits alongside Jim Couzens of Michigan, probably the bitterest enemy Mellon has in public life.
 As a general thing, in the Senate everyone shakes hands and pats everyone else on the back, regardless of what they call each other in debate. Two senators from a given state often hate each other in their hearts, but manage to conceal it. That doesn't go for Brookhart and Steck of Iowa, however. A senator beginning a

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The chief trouble with the Seventieth Congress is that it looks so much like the Sixty-Ninth. Congress is like a pair of pants. The country never has had a new pair and never will. Each election finds some new patches at a point where the voters either perceived a hole or a threadbare spot instead of serviceable material.
 In the course of two or three decades so many patches are necessitated that the pants are all patches and thus in a sense new, but patches themselves are being patched every two years with the result that each time the country puts them on they appear to be almost the same as before but not quite.
 About a dozen new senators showed up this year, more than a third of the 32 up for election last year having been voted out. There were only 96 senators, so some slight difference is to be noted by careful scrutiny. But over on the House side, where 435 representatives sit, it might just as well be the very same House that went out last March. Congressmen in the mass certainly do look like congressmen in the mass.
 Sessions of Congress are opened after the chaplain, having offered a prayer of his own, concludes with the Lord's Prayer. For some reason, neither the members nor the galleries join in on the Lord's Prayer as is the practice at most other assemblies.

There used to be a cork flooring around the rostrum in the House. Now there's carpet there. The reason for the change, according to what seems to be authoritative information, was that members in the front row addicted to chewing tobacco succeeded in making the cork section dangerously slippery.

General John C. Speaks, a congressman from Columbus, sits in the first row this session and gives a splendid exhibition of maxillary endurance, but has not thus far been caught damaging the carpet. As a matter of fact, the Congressional Directory doesn't explain whether the general is chewing tobacco or gum, but if it's gum the wad must be as big as his fist.

Politics makes strange bedfellows—and seatmates, witness the Senate. Often one observes a couple of good hell-raisers of similar sentiments sitting alongside each other, such as Borah and Norris, Jim Reed and Joe Robinson, or even Shipstead and Howell. On the other hand, you'll find the radical young LaFollette parked alongside the reactionary and ancient Gillett of Massachusetts. And Dave Reed of Pennsylvania, the lieutenant and servant of Secretary Mellon, sits alongside Jim Couzens of Michigan, probably the bitterest enemy Mellon has in public life.

As a general thing, in the Senate everyone shakes hands and pats everyone else on the back, regardless of what they call each other in debate. Two senators from a given state often hate each other in their hearts, but manage to conceal it. That doesn't go for Brookhart and Steck of Iowa, however. A senator beginning a new term is customarily escorted down the center aisle to the rostrum for the oath by the other senator from his state. Like so many precious brides, they take the proffered arms of their sponsors. But when Brookhart's name was called, Steck refused to step up and do the honors.

Mrs. John W. Langley of Kentucky, elected to her husband's seat after he had been sent to the federal penitentiary on liquor charges, is the most conspicuous spot of color in the House. She is the only grandmother in Congress, but she's good for a beauty contest with the other three congresswomen any old time. She made her debut in a light, stylish afternoon dress and brown stockings.

Do your own thinking, urges Mrs. Langley. Sure, but you must have lots of facts to think and listening to the other fellow has its advantages.

Amusu Bridge Club Is Entertained at Rex Theatre Monday

The members of the Amusu Bridge club were delightfully entertained Monday afternoon at the Rex theatre as the guests of Roy Sinor, the manager. The picture, "Lost at Sea," was a Tiffany production featuring Lowell Sherman and Natalie Kingston. This splendid picture was greatly enjoyed by the large number of club members who attended.

Young People to Enjoy Weiner Roast Friday Evening

The weiner roast planned by the young people's Sunday school class of the Methodist church for Thursday evening will be postponed until Friday afternoon. Everyone interested in this class is invited to attend. It is suggested that old clothes be worn, and that all bring some weiners. Be at the church at 5:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Young Men's Class Is Organized in Baptist Church

A young men's Sunday School class was organized in the First Baptist church last Sunday. The class will be given a name at the next session.

Meetings will be held in the new Baptist Sunday School building in the Pastor's study, with the Rev. D. W. Truhitte as teacher of the class. The class is proving very interesting and under the Rev. Truhitte's instructions will do beneficial work.

Any one who is not in Sunday School elsewhere regularly is cordially invited to attend this class and become one of the members, of which there are fifteen at the present time. The members will meet in front of Hayter Brothers Men's store at 9:30 o'clock next Sunday morning and will go to the place of meeting together.

The officers of the class are as follows: President, Bob Rose; first vice-president, L. Z. De Spain; second vice-president, A. Frank

CLARENDON JUNIOR COLLEGE TO BE RANKED SOON

(Special to the News) CLARENDON, Texas, Dec. 13—Recently L. B. Cooper, Dean-director of Clarendon Municipal Junior college, let it be known that a representative from the State Department of Education will visit the college soon after the holiday season for the purpose of rating the institution.

The officials are confident that the school will be rated at a First Class junior college. This rating would entitle those who do satisfactory college work to receive an elementary or secondary school certificate.

NAVY FILM AT CRESCENT STARS LOWELL SHERMAN

A famous stage actor and a former Follies girl are co-starred in "Convoy," Robert Kane's great epic of the Navy, coming next to the Crescent theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

Lowell Sherman, called by many the successor to the mantle of Richard Mansfield on the legitimate stage, will be seen as Ernest Drake, the head of the German Secret Service in America at the outbreak of the war. And Dorothy Mackaill, pretty little English girl who rose to screen prominence from the chorus of the Follies, acts the role of the heroine who sacrifices her reputation to safeguard the sailing of a Convoy on which her brother and sweetheart are leaving for France.

Famous on Stage

Sherman is one of the best known of that small class of actors and actresses who alternate their talents between the stage and screen.

Indeed Sherman was being starred in a Broadway hit "The Woman Disputed," during most of the period in which he was playing in "Convoy."

Among the best known of his screen portrayals were in "New York," "The Reckless Lady" and "The Wilderness Woman," with Alleen Pringle.

"Convoy," boasting a five star cast including Buster Collier, Lawrence Gray and Ina Keith, is filled with remarkable episodes of the Navy at War, including actual pictures of the famous Battle of the North Sea, in which the combined British and American fleets defeated the German fleet outside Kell Harbor.

FAMOUS FIGHT PROMOTER WITH BLUE IN FILM

To fight fans all over the country, the presence of "Rob Roy" Benton in the cast of Warner Bros. production of "One Round Hogan" will lend it an authentic atmosphere which nothing else could, for "Rob Roy" with fifty-six years of ring-side writing behind him, is undoubtedly the dean of all sport reporters.

Born in New York, he became the protegee of such grand old editors as Bennett, Dana and Greeley. He promoted the famous Kearney-McAuliffe fight for a $250 purse and sustained a broken arm which prevented him from correcting and stopping fallacious reports of the seventy-two round affair. As a result, he is still meeting youngsters with garbled versions.

Benton was instrumental in arranging many fights throughout the country and has brought out some of the most famous leather-pushers. He became internationally famous under his pen name, "Roy Roy." More recently he was press representative for Jack Dempsey, keeping that worthy constantly before the public eye.

His health has recently curtailed his activities, but when sought by his friend, Director Howard Bretherton, to appear in and give technical suggestions on the picture, he willingly complied. James J. Jeffries, Lella Hyams, Tom Gallery, Frank Hangney, Texas Kid and Abdul are also included in the cast. "One Round Hogan," greatest fight-film of the year starring Monte Blue will be seen at the Rex theatre Friday.

J. E. Stribling of Oklahoma City, Okla., was a business visitor in Pampa Monday.

Mrs. Wade Taylor, Mrs. Ralph Trimble and Mrs. Phillip Pond visited friends in Amarillo today.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST—Stewed dried peaches, boiled rice, cream, boiled salt codfish, corn bread, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Baked oysters, shredded cabbage, with lemon and oil, rye rolls, canned pears, bran cookies, milk tea.

DINNER—Ham baked in milk, twice baked cabbage with lemon and oil, rye rolls, canned pears, bran cookies, milk, tea.

DINNER—Ham baked in milk, twice baked sweet potatoes, creamed spinach, new potatoes, creamed spinach, new onions and radishes, open apple pie, milk, coffee.

If a hot bread is served for breakfast do not repeat the cereal grain in the bread. For instance, if a wheat cereal is used do not make graham or bran muffins.

Baked Oysters

One solid pint oysters, 1 egg, 1-2 teaspoon paprika, 1-2 teaspoon onion juice, 1 teaspoon worchestershire sauce, 1-2 cup minced celery and parsley, fine sifted cracker crumbs, 1-4 cup coarse buttered bread crumbs, lemon juice, salt.

Drain oysters from liquid and put very dry between towels. Sprinkle with salt and lemon juice. Beat egg slightly with paprika, onion juice and sauce. Dip each oyster into egg mixture and then roll in sifted crumbs. Place in the bottom of a well buttered casserole making an even layer of oysters. Sprinkle with celery and parsley and add another layer of oysters, dipping each oyster first in the egg mixture and then in the sifted crumbs. Cover with celery and parsley. Continue layer for layer until all is used. Combine any of the egg left from dripping the oysters with 1-2 cup milk and pour over mixture in casserole. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake in a hot oven for twenty-five minutes.

BILLY EVANS Says

Breaks Are Important

"The teams are matched so evenly that the one that gets the breaks is sure to win."

How often have you seen that one sentence as the final opinion after some expert has taken you through a column of inside stuff relative to the ability of the players on the two contending clubs, in making his comparison.

The "breaks" might be commonly classed as mere luck. Often a good team, through daring on the bases or a willingness to gamble with the hit and run, when a bunt appears proper baseball, gets a break that enables it to win the ball game. But after all these things are just another form of luck.

There is no denying that luck is a very important factor, if not the deciding factor, in almost every branch of sport. Baseball, football and golf, all bow to the whims of Dame Fortune. Her smiles usually mean victory.

Take two crack golfers, have both of them at the top of their game, and nine times out of ten, some foot break will be the determining factor in the result.

Jack Won With Breaks

Recently, while discussing various phases of golf with Jock Hutchinson and the part that luck plays in determining the winner of some major event, he recalled his experiences of several years ago in the British open.

You will recall that back in 1921, Hutchinson won the British open. The following year he finished one stroke away from Walter Hagen, the winner. Had Jock repeated he would have accomplished a feat decidedly out of the ordinary.

"When I won the title in 1921, naturally I was the big hero," said Hutchinson in discussing the happening, "but as a matter of fact I played much better golf the following year and failed to finish on top."

"Several times in 1921, when I won the title, luck was with me. When a fellow holes out in one and gets a two on the next hole, just falling to repeat his ace of the previous hole by a matter of an inch, he is getting more than his share of luck. That is what happened to me."

"In several other instances the breaks were almost as good to me. The following year played much better golf, but Dame Fortune frowned on me from start to finish."

According to Hutchinson, luck alone gave Hagen the margin on the same hole of a shot. The advantage gained at that hole was just enough to turn the tide in Hagen's favor.

Won by One Stroke

Here is Hutchinson's explanation as he unfolded it to me.

"In the hole that decided the match, Walter Hagen, who won the championship, made exactly the same shot I did. My shot went over the green and into the rough. I took a seven on the hole.

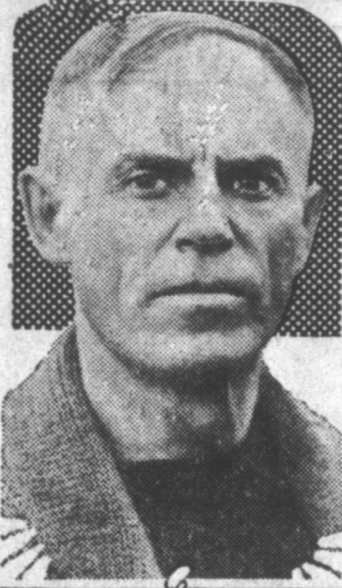

"Along comes Hagen with the same sort of a shot that seemed headed for the rough. Instead of nestling in the rough as my shot did, Hagen's ball struck a fence paling and bounded back onto the green. Walter took a four on the hole.

"That was the widest margin that separated us on any of the holes in the match. At the finish, the three stroke margin Hagen gained there, gave him a one stroke edge at the finish.

"It was luck pure and simple that Hagen's ball should have struck the fence and bounded back on the green, making it soft for Walter to hole out on the next shot, instead of taking three additional strokes to get into position as I did."

True, luck does play an important part between evenly matched teams or players, but to win a golf championship a player must be consistently brilliant as well as lucky.

Quits as Coach

Here's John Heisman, who after coaching football for 36 years has retired. He was at Rice Institute in Texas this year and has to his credit many famous eleven at Georgia Tech., Pennsylvania, Washington and Jefferson and other schools.

John P. Mead of the Empire Gas and Fuel Company has been transferred to Pampa from Amarillo, where he has been stationed for the past year and a half. Mr. Mead was with the same company at Eldorado, Kans., previous to his assignment to the Amarillo territory.

Stars of Navy Eleven Enter Ring

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—Seven husky members of the Navy football team, which closed its season with a gallant if losing battle against the Army, have donned the gloves as candidates for the Middle boxing team.

With three backs and a center added, the roster of "Spike" Webb's boxing squad would pass for one of "Navy Bill" Ingram's football teams. Now under the fistic tutelage of Webb are Emil Geise of Wisconsin and Wrexford Chappell, Montana, tackles; Bryan Swan, Missouri, and Ed Burke, Pennsylvania, guards; Paul Moret, Michigan, and Fred Jeans, Texas ends, and Charlie Bauer, New York, halfback. Burke is captain-elect of football.

"Whitey" Lloyd, hard-plunging back and basketball player, and Sloane, who scored the Navy touchdown against the Army, also are bandy with their fists.

Boxing trains the hands, says Coach Ingram, and is better schooling for football than hurdling or track.

That the reverse also is true is indicated by the record of the boxing team which has not lost a meet in eight years.

Whittington Beats Page, But Fails to Be Decisive

Fred Whittington, the Tulsa boy, threw more gloves at Walter Page of Ponca City than he has seen in a long time in the main event at the Pampa Athletic club last night. The fans of Pampa have been witnessing so many slugging matches that they do not seem to appreciate a scientific match such as was presented last night.

The boy from Tulsa failed to win the decision by as large a margin as would be expected by the number of blows he appeared to land. Page is probably the cleverest boy that has yet been seen in the ring. He was covering perfectly the first nine rounds taking the most of Whittington's blows on the arms, gloves, or the top of the head.

The first six rounds were comparatively even with Page hitting the more solid blows. Whittington had nearly ten pounds advantage in weight and three inches in reach. He has lost his punch since he performed here last, as he was hitting Page open in the last round and failed to knock him off his feet.

Next Monday night Fred Whittington will meet either Claudine Vincent or Tommy O'Brien in the main event while Speedy Snow, the Pampa boy, will tangle with Young Burke.

Burke, the Breckenridge boxer, won from Bill Higdon, substituting for Rip Blake, by a technical knockout when Higdon left the ring in the fourth round after claiming he had been hit when down, and fouled.

This boy Higdon is a nice boxer and in the ring with a boy his own size would be hard to beat. He had his bigger opponent in trouble the first rounds and was really justified in protesting.

Jimmie Hudson of Amarillo failed to put in an appearance for the special event to meet Frankie Farrell so Tabby Levine, the hard hitting Pampa boxer, beat him. Farrell put up the worst exhibition he has shown here. He was outweighed and seemed to be out of condition, which may account for his poor showing.

That he is game no one will deny. He took a count of nine in the first round but came up and lasted the six rounds although groggy. With training he will make a good boy.

Peter Gaudes, junior featherweight champion of the world, who accompanied H. E. Ripple, Page's manager, to Pampa boxed a four round exhibition with Bill Barnett, the fighting newsboy, and was the hit of the evening. He is clever, fast and uses footwork that has never been seen here before. He is the undisputed champion of the world and is open to meet all comers.

Use of Air Mail and Special Handling Stamps Is Urged

Uncle Sam is of the opinion that the public at large does not understand the advantages of using the special-handling stamps, such as "fragile," "perishable," and the like.

To obtain perfect service, a special delivery stamp should be placed on the parcel. This would insure a little more rapid delivery on arrival in the city.

There also are many postoffice patrons who do not know of the service that can be rendered by the use of the air mail.

The air mail and special delivery afford the speediest service possible, at a nominal cost. And Christmas gifts or greetings have a new sense of meaning when the air mail is used.

It is pointed out that since the air mail rate is but 10 cents a half-ounce to any point in the United States, it is a very economical service, providing the maximum of service with the minimum of cost.

FUQUA MAKES GIFT TO CHURCH AT CANYON

CANYON, Dec. 13—W. H. Fuqua, Amarillo banker, has made a gift of $500 to the building fund of the first Baptist church of Canyon.

The basement is being used by the congregation for all its services, as the old church building has been sold and will be removed from its present location within a short time.

Mr. Fuqua's gift to the Canyon church was made because of his interest in the young people of the Panhandle, a large number of whom are students at the West Texas State Teachers college and attend this church.

The Baptist students of the college form the largest group of any denomination except that of the Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Twiford, and Mrs. Raymond Harrah were Amarillo visitors yesterday.
