PRICE FIVE CENTS

BAPTISTS TO BUILD AUDITORIUM

Local Red Cross Quota is Over-Subscribed First Day

BUSINESS MEN WILL ORGANIZE FOR CAMPAIGN

Rest of Week Will Be Devoted to Charity

MORE THAN $500 IS RECEIVED MONDAY

Pampa's Official Red Cross Quota Only $100

Pampa's Red Cross quota was over-subscribed yesterday on the first day of the drive. More than $500 was received, although the campaign is just getting under way.

The national Red Cross placed the Pampa quota at $100, and more than one hundred memberships were taken out Monday. While more than $100 may be donated to the relief funds of the Red Cross, in keeping with the growth of the city since the appointment was made, that will be decided by the local committee.

From now until the drive is completed the funds raised by subscription will be used for local charity through Associated Charities. Having put over the Red Cross drive, it is desired to carry on the other campaign of the week—to raise an adequate charity fund and eliminate all begging on the streets.

It will require a minimum of $3,000 to inaugurate the Associated Charities work on the desired basis. With winter coming on, it is realized that the need for well regulated charity will be large, and that proper administration of charity can be done only by a person employed to make a study of local needs and give personal and financial aid as required. If possible later, a Red Cross nurse may be obtained to give expert personal service in addition to investigating charity cases and distributing funds.

Under the most approved plan of Associated Charities, an office is established and complete records made of each application for charity. These records show at a glance how much assistance has been given any individual over a period of years, and shows whether progress is being made toward self-help.

Associated Charities have a relation to each other comparable to credit associations, in that records may be exchanged on cases. Uniform methods of record keeping are encouraged. These records have another advantage, because unworthy individuals usually refuse to be fully investigated, although they would have no hesitancy in soliciting help from every available non-regulated source in the city. Most of the cities of 10,000 and above have found such a system necessary, and many smaller places have the same plan.

Unregulated soliciting is increasing here, and both church and business groups are very anxious that the charity drive will be large enough to solve this problem for a whole year. A meeting of business men to organize for the promotion of the drive in the business district will be held at the First National bank at 10 o'clock tomorrow.

The Rev. Tom. W. Brabham, chairman of the charity drive, stated today that his workers are determined to end the charity problem in this one drive, and that they urgently request the cooperation of the entire community.

Elva Gubelmann is erecting a tile and stucco residence with garage on his lot in the Strop addition. The residence will cost $4,000.

Country Club to Be Subject of Meeting Tonight

The organization of a country club for Pampa will be discussed in an open meeting tonight at the Chamber of Commerce rooms at 7:30 o'clock by the members of the Pampa Golf club and other interested persons. Pampa is believed large enough to support a country club, and much enthusiasm is being taken in the organizing of a club of the present golf club say.

It has been suggested that a location be leased where a large up-to-date golf course may be built and where a club house, tennis courts, and other places of amusement may be erected.

All the sport enthusiasts in the city are urged to be present at the meeting tonight.

CONTEMPT IS HELD AGAINST 6 OPERATIVES

Federal Government to Press Case in Courts

JURY TRAILING NOW INVOLVED

Proceedings Follow Investigation by the Grand Jury

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Contempt proceedings against Harry Sinclair, William Burns, and four others in connection with the oil conspiracy jury scandal were brought today in the District of Columbia Supreme Court by the federal government.

A petition asking that the defendants be compelled to show cause why they should not be dealt with by the court was filed by District Attorney Gordon within a day after the special committee appointed by Associate Justice Siddons had begun to function in an inquiry as to whether contempt proceedings should be instituted.

Others named in the proceedings are Harry Day, New York; Sheldon Clark, Chicago; Sherman Burns, New York; and Charles Vethsch, Baltimore.

Justice Siddons set December 5 as the date for the hearing.

At the suggestion of Justice Siddons District Attorney Gordon agreed to file a supplemental petition to the contempt in the case of Edward Kidwell Jr., charged with having freely discussed the case during the trial.

Schools to Dismiss for Thanksgiving and Resume on Monday

The Pampa Independent schools will dismiss Wednesday afternoon for the Thanksgiving holiday and will not hold classes until Monday morning. The majority of the teachers will spend the holiday at their homes.

Saturday afternoon the Harvesters will meet Canyon in the college town for the district championship game and a large following of students and fans will attend the game. Any local fan with a car who can take any of the students to Canyon with them may leave their names at the Pampa Daily News office.

Wrecked by Washington Twister

When a tornado struck Washington, D. C., killing one person and injuring more than 200, heavy property damage was wrought in residential districts and suburbs where the twister hit. The picture shows houses torn by the storm.

BUILDERS OF PAMPA ARE GUESTS AT LUNCHEON

British Flier Is Off to Honolulu

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.—Captain Frederick Giles, British flier, took off from here today at 7:24 a. m., in the second attempt to fly to Honolulu on the first leg of his projected flight to New Zealand.

Profiting by his previous experience, Giles made the take-off with ease, his plane, weighing more than 5,000 pounds, loaded with 390 gallons of gasoline gaining altitude easily.

Hatless, without goggles or helmet, and dressed in a light business suit he donned a life belt as added trap-pings for the 2,400-mile flight. He carried no radio, no life raft, no parachute, and no sextant, being unable to use a navigation instrument.

Thus equipped, Giles trusted a good bit to luck and his ability to guess the amount of his draft, together with the time honored method of dead reckoning in flying over the trackless waste of water which already has claimed seven fliers who attempted the feat.

Camel Well To Be Shot Today

The Camel Oil company's No. 1 Harrah in section 163, block 3, Gray county, will be shot with 500 quarts of nitro this afternoon at 5 o'clock. The shot is placed from 3,125 to 3,285 feet through three pay sand.

First show was reached at 3,130 feet about three weeks ago when the well stood with more than 500 feet of oil in the hole. The second and third showings swabbed about 100 barrels a day.

This well is being drilled by E. E. Finley, W. R. Campbell and H. G. Twiford.

Dancier Gusher Flowing Steadily

The Rotary tools were removed from the Dancier to al's No. 3 Jackson in section 88 block B-2 in the Bowers pool last night at 5 o'clock and the well continued to flow 250 barrels an hour through the night and this morning. Standard equipment is being installed.

The well came in Sunday afternoon for 300 barrels an hour natural flow. The well is a diagonal offset to the Delaney, Eslek and Reiger well in the same section.

White Deer Land Executives Are Hosts

Builders of Pampa, past and present, were guests at luncheon today of the White Deer Land company at the New Schneider hotel.

William Alexander Alcock of New York, personal representative of Frederic de P. Foster, chief executive of White Deer lands, was guest of honor, and in his opening remarks he praised T. D. Hobart, former local representative of the firm, as one of the men who have contributed much to the building up of this city and territory.

Mr. Alcock expressed his great surprise at the recent growth of Pampa, and stated that when he drew the first map of the town he little expected it to develop as it has.

Many speakers praised Mr. Hobart and the White Deer Land company for service to the community and the service of other citizens were recalled. Jokes of the early days passed back and forth as the large group, after partaking of an elaborate turkey luncheon, lighted cigars and settled back to enjoy reminiscences.

M. K. Brown, as toastmaster, introduced Mr. Hobart, J. N. Duhan, first mayor of Pampa; Mayor F. P. Reid; Charles C. Cook, first lawyer to "stick;" Charlie Tignor, long-time employee of White Deer Lands; F. E. Finley, first banker; J. M. Dodson, and C. P. Buckler. Each spoke happily of their experiences, and expressed faith in the future of the city.

Those present included T. D. Hobart, W. A. Alcock, B. E. Finley, M. K. Brown, C. P. Buckler, C. C. Cook, DeLea Vickers, J. M. Dodson, Joe M. Smith, W. Purviance, Olin E. Hinkle, L. N. McCullough, J. E. Murfee, A. H. Doucette, Lynn Boyd, W. R. Campbell, F. P. Reid, J. D. Sugg, Scott Barcus, Siler Faulkner, C. S. Barrett, L. C. McMurtry, J. N. Duncan, Otto Studer, J. S. Wynne, Tom Crawford, Clyde Fatheree, G. T. Hunkapillar, J. R. Henry, T. H. Lane, F. T. Mason, C. A. Tignor, H. B. Lovett, Dr. A. R. Sawyer, H. J. Lippold and Fred Hobart.

WOULD REVISE TAX

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—A reduction in the tax on corporation incomes from 13 1-2 to 11 1-2 per cent was approved today by the House ways and means committee.

Wanted—Dead Bank Robbers—Liberal Reward Is Offered

"A reward of $5,000 will be paid for dead bank robbers" is a sign that may now be seen in the banks of Texas. The local banks have received large posters which have been placed in prominent places in the buildings.

The poster reads that the Texas Bankers association will pay $5,000 for each bank robber killed. Also there is no limit to the number and that the $5,000 will be paid for each one.

There is no particular place mentioned where a robber may be killed. He, as a menace to society, may be killed while in the act of robbing a bank, while escaping, while in a bandit car, when 25 or 30 miles away or while being hunted by a posse but no live robbers will be accepted.

The Texas Bankers association is out to exterminate bank robbing and has adopted this drastic plan.

Gangsters' War in Chicago Claims a Victim Today

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—The first victim of Chicago's new gang war was found shot to death in a doorway on the south side today. The body was that of Frank Herbert.

Police believe that Herbert died while trying to crawl to his home after being shot by rival gangsters.

New Serial of Oklahoma Will Start Tomorrow in Pampa's Daily Newspaper

Bitterness was in his heart as Tony Harrison rode away from the Bar-K ranch and Rita Moore, and he told himself passionately that he had seen the last of both of them. Yet the love story of Rita Moore and Tony Harrison furnishes the plot of the Pampa Daily News latest serial, "The Blazing Horizon."

This is the first historical novel to be written for first publication in newspapers, and Ernest Lynn's splendid romance of the opening of Oklahoma is one of our own territory.

STRUCTURE TO COST $60,000 IS ANNOUNCED

Detailed Plans Will Be Made Tomorrow Evening

MEN OF CHURCH MAKE DECISION

Sunday School Plant Already Is Being Used

Immediate construction of an auditorium to cost more than $60,000 was announced today by the First Baptist church.

The decision to build was reached last night at a mass meeting of men of the church.

Details of the building program will be started out tomorrow night at the weekly prayer meeting, when committees on construction and financial arrangements will be worked out. A full representation of members of the church is desired at that time.

The Baptists recently completed a modern Sunday school plant as an annex to the present building, and the fine auditorium likely will be tied into this structure. The Sunday school building is located just east of the church, and is attractive because of its pleasing architecture and construction.

The auditorium will be built along the most modern lines, and with the carefully planned Sunday school plant will give the Baptists very complete housing facilities.

City Election Is Slow Today

At 3:15 p. m. today only 177 votes had been cast in the city election to determine the new commission to serve until next April under the new charter.

A few more than 100 votes were cast by noon, but the voting was slow this afternoon. Heavier voting is anticipated toward 6 o'clock, when the polls will close at the city hall.

T. D. Hobart is unopposed for mayor. F. T. Mason and Lynn Boyd are out for commissioner No. 2 and W. R. Campbell and D. W. Osborne are candidates for commissioner No. 1.

Coolidge Will Broadcast Thanks

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—President Coolidge will broadcast his Thanksgiving day proclamation over a radio hook-up comprising twenty or more stations tomorrow evening from his study in the White House.

The readers of the News already know many of the characters. You will wish to start reading the very first installment, which will be the big Chapter 1 of tomorrow.

Oldtimers of this community know much of the stirring days of Oklahoma's early history as a state. And since Pawnee Bill himself has approved the historical facts of the story, school teachers will find it useful in the classroom.

Start this fine new serial tomorrow.

ROVING RADIO STATION INVADES FLOOD REGION, TELLS TALE OF DELUGE

Two radio sets, mounted on motor cars and manned by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and The Associated Press, broadcast Vermont floods to send from isolated communities the first stories of the deluge. Above is one of the traveling radios, and below is a receiving station at which the reports were picked up and telephoned to The Associated Press at Boston.

BOSTON—When floods swept across New England and wiped away the normal facilities of communication, two roving radio sets installed in motor cars penetrated the stricken regions of Vermont, hardest hit of the suffering states, and carried the story to the outside world.

At the first news of the flood, the radio expedition was organized by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in cooperation with The Associated Press.

Two cars, equipped with powerful short-wave sets, started out in charge of J. K. Clapp, instructor in the radio research laboratories of the institute. A. H. Brolly and L. T. Goldsmith went from the school to assist in operation of the radio and Paul S. Walcott, of the Boston bureau of The Associated Press, accompanied the party to gather and write the stories of the flood.

Flowing through water-swept roads the cars reached Brattleboro and established one station. The second car pressed northward, sending back news to the first station as it went. The relayed messages were received at Massachusetts Tech at Cambridge and at the experimental station on the estate of Col. H. R. Green at South Dartmouth, Mass.

From both receiving stations the reports were telephoned to The Associated Press at Boston and sent by wire thence throughout the country.

The traveling station was designated 1XM. It operated on a 40-meter wave length in daytime and on 80 meters at night.

Texans Adopt Ice Skating

DALLAS, Tex.—Ice skating and games have taken a strong hold in a part of the country where a temperature low enough to cause frost is considered cold, and where natural ice is seldom seen.

Started a year ago under a systematic plan in Dallas, Houston and San Antonio, artificial ice rinks have reopened this fall, and the ice hockey season got under way early in November when the Kansas City team led by William F. Grant, secretary of the American Hockey association, visited Texas.

Fourteen games were on the Dallas schedule. By the time they were to end, the rink owners hoped to have their plans completed for a circuit which would include Kansas City, the three Texas cities, and possibly Fort Worth, Oklahoma City and Tulsa, Okla. D. C. Bell, owner of the Dallas skating rink, expects hockey to be successful in the Southwest this year.

In San Antonio, the season opened with a school and city league ready for ice, and plans well along for inter-city series.

Elwin Carroll, manager of the rink at Houston, announced plans for bringing northern college teams to Houston for the holiday season series, and also indicated favorable consideration of the league composed of Kansas City, Oklahoma and Texas teams.

Although most of those who visited the rinks last year in Texas had never seen a hockey game, and never before attempted to skate on ice, they took to the sport enthusiastically.

Games here this year will be played on a new $250,000 rink, said to be one of the four largest in the country.

GERMAN TEACHER-ATHLETE COMES TO U. S. FOR WINTER TRAINING

STEIN, Germany—America's climate and its methods of teaching and training are attractions for Dr. Otto Peltzer, famous German athlete.

Peltzer, holder of the world's records for numerous track events, including the 1,500 meter dash, will sail for New York November 21 on the "Dresden." He will be accompanied by a German specialist in athletes' diseases, Dr. Brunnmann.

The German runner has had the American trip in mind since May, 1926, but it was delayed by athletic engagements and his duties as a teacher of history, civics and athletics at the public school of Wickersdorf in Thuringia. His purpose in going to the States is to study American methods of teaching and training and to train in a warmer climate for the 1928 Amsterdam Olympiad.

After visiting New York, Detroit, Chicago and San Francisco, spending Christmas with friends in the latter city, Peltzer intends to go to Australia to take part in several events.

Peltzer has taken issue with the German athletic commissions, which oppose an athlete's participating in events unless he is in topnotch form, in order to save him for but a few all-star events.

"It is, of course, impossible throughout the year to be in best form," Peltzer says, "but one ought constantly to remain in the vicinity of one's achievements, because only then can one develop beyond oneself. Every time when I failed for a time to take part in events, I found that I had gone back, and only through hard training and difficult contests was I able again to climb into first place."

The outstanding event in Peltzer's career was his defeat of both Nurm and Wide in September 1926, when he established a new world record of 3.51 minutes for the 1,500 meter race.

Peltzer was born March 8, 1900. He studied medicine at the University of Munich and Jena, but later changed over to political science and sociology. He took up sports in 1920 in the hope of improving his health, with little or no idea of making a world success of it.

He has turned down an offer of $50,000 from an American film concern, as he wants to represent Germany at the Olympic Games.

off five or six Tigers who sought to induce him to depart from the field and it was not until the officials stepped into the picture that he consented to go.

Was Costly to Tigers

Physically unfit to play, for he staggered to the sidelines as would a drunken man, Howe showed the fighting spirit every inch of the way, several times turning his head to where the teams were lined up as if debating as to whether or not he would return.

As he neared the lines he removed his headgear and tossed it aside in disgust and disappointment. Howe wanted to remain in that game until the finish.

I have since wondered if the picture of Howe as he left the field didn't have its effect on the Princeton team. Certainly the Tigers' play deteriorated after he retired.

While the forward pass, Hoben to Fishwick, was the scoring play that actually beat Princeton, I will always think the passing of Howe from the game to the sidelines was equally costly to the Tigers' chances.

Watch those sophomore Tigers next year. Princeton is due for another great team.

BILLY EVANS Says

Sophs Lacked Poise

A few hours before the Princeton-Yale game I chatted with a former Princeton star, close to Bill Roper. In reply to my query as to how he doped he outcome, he said:

"Princeton has a great team, but if the game is close and it is hard pressed to hold a scant lead, it may prove unequal to the occasion. Not because of lack of courage but rather poise.

"The Princeton team is largely made up of sophomores. Few of them have ever faced Yale. It will be a terrific strain for most of the youngsters and it is only natural that they may suffer from lack of experience in the final stages if the score is close."

After the game was over and Yale had won in the closing minutes of play, I vividly recalled the comments of the Tiger star of six years back.

Changed Fight of Line

Glancing over the list of players in the Princeton squad who were eligible for the Yale game, I find the names of 15 sophomores and as many juniors.

While Princeton was far from a one-man team, as a matter of fact the Tiger lineup was one of the best all-round combinations I have seen this year, it seems to me that the moment Center Howe passed from the gridiron, the Princeton line lost much of its power.

I am told that Howe, badly used up in Ohio State game, wasn't physically fit to engage in a single scrimmage prior to the Yale game. In that contest he was pitted against the best center I have seen in action this season, Charlesworth.

Until he was forced out because of injuries with about 12 minutes to play, Howe held his own, despite the fact Charlesworth was pressing every minute. Fatigue more than injuries finally forced Coach Roper to withdraw Howe from the game.

How he hated to go. He fought

HOW FAIR?—If you were a member of an audience listening to a debate between an English and an American team, just how fairly could you judge the arguments?

In the first place, would your bias on the subject discussed affect your decision. And in the second, could you give the English team the decision without fighting a strong urge to favor home folks?

These questions are inspired by the itinerary of the Cambridge debaters who have come to this country to debate the question, "Resolved, that in the opinion of this house compulsory military training should form a part of the education in all schools and universities." It will be noted that the decision is left to a majority vote of the audience. In the interest of accuracy, two votes are often taken. The first represents the feeling on the subject before the debate, the last the consensus following the speeches. Victory goes to the team changing the opinion of the most people.

The old American plan of "the best two out of three" judges, and in which the audience was free to voice its prejudice and favoritism, is quite unlike this, and it requires closer attention and more fairness to take part in the final decision. It should cause debating to become a more popular pastime. In some open forum debating of this kind, the audience is given an opportunity to express itself on the subject.

English debating is less formal, more witty, and less forceful than the better organized, stiffly delivered, and often deceptive American type, but it sometimes lacks the seriousness necessary to put over big ideas. The difference in style is apt to cause Americans to underrate the British custom, and the sportsmanship in this country—keenly keyed to rivalry—is hard to adjust to the debating platform. Moreover, anything compulsory is likely to be received without enthusiasm by American crowds.

But whether because of these facts, or merely because of the devastating force and seriousness of our debaters, the Cambridge team is having little luck. At Simmons university, Abilene, the audience stood by a ratio of 6 to 1 in favor of the American team. Simmons had the negative of the compulsory military training question. Despite the desire to be fair, it is not hard for the listeners to underrate the visitors, and it is hardly probable that they should everywhere be outclassed. Group judgment is almost always for the home folks unless the contrast is decisive.

PRESS FORUM

Kentucky had to choose between the loss of its famous derby and going republican. A hard choice, but it did not falter; it went republican.

More in sorrow than in anger it snowed J. C. W. Beckham under by more than 20,000 votes democratic as he is and democratic as Kentucky is, it could not choose but weep for him, and weeping, swat him; for he had pledged himself if elected governor to make it unlawful to bet on a horse race. We understand he did this not because he was opposed to racing, but in order to try to rescue Kentucky from the domination of the Jockey Club. Kentucky may have desired emancipation, but not at the risk of losing the horses.

Kentucky has had many reverses. Henry Clay couldn't live forever. Lincoln moved away to Indiana and then to Illinois, John C. Breckenridge lost the presidency; in despair it voted for McClellan and finally the mint julep was taken away from it—or at least, there is a national legend to that effect. But through all its trials Kentucky has held on to one blessing, the last and the best; it still had its horse breeding industry and its races. It regrets it cannot have both a democratic governor and its horses, but if it can't have both it will take the horses.

A republican governor is a humiliation, but with proper precautions he can be endured for four years and Kentucky was not so reckless as to give him a republican legislature.

The tariff, General Hancock said, was a local issue, a truth that should have won him the presidency, but didn't. Truth is often disappointing. Yes, the tariff is a local issue and so are other regional interests: horse breeding in Kentucky, the sugar beet in Louisiana, the movies in Hollywood and beer in the free state of Maryland. Where politics interferes too much with these local interests politics will get a black eye.—Kansas City Star.

Forty-Two Party Is Given Monday In Vicar's Home

Mrs. J. S. Wynne, Mrs. C. L. Thomas, and Mrs. DeLea Vicars Monday afternoon entertained a number of their friends. The afternoon was enjoyably spent in playing forty-two, in which Mrs. Fuller Barnett was winner of a unique prize.

Thanksgiving decorations added to the attractiveness of the rooms and the charms and favors given afforded much amusement among the guests.

Delicious refreshments were served the following guests: Mrs. B. E. Finley, Mrs. J. M. McDonald, Mrs. A. Cole, Mrs. C. C. Dodd, Mrs. Lee Ledrick, Mrs. Neal McCullough, Mrs. White, Mrs. Irvin Cole, Mrs. V. E. Fatheree, Mrs. Nels Walberg, Mrs. James Todd, Mrs. Carson Loftus, Mrs. Roy Tinsley, Mrs. J. E. Chapman, Mrs. Fuller Barnett, Mrs. Ivey Duncan, Mrs. Charles Stowell, and Mrs. Alta Stanard.

Bride-Elect of the Season Is Honored in Doucette Home

A very original blue bird shower was given in the home of Mrs. A. H. Doucette Monday evening, honoring Miss Annie Laura Sawyer, popular bride elect of the Thanksgiving season. Hand painted blue bird invitations were sent out during the latter part of last week, and were readily answered in anticipations of the enjoyable time in store for the guests.

The genial hospitality of the evening was opened with a contest of flowers, a "Blooming Romance," in which Mrs. C. T. Hunkapillar was successful in winning a lovely bud vase as a prize. Miss Dorothy Doucette then favored the guests with a reading appropriate to the occasion, "The Lesson with a Fan."

A blue-bird contest, carrying out the theme of decoration of the evening, proved enjoyable and amusing, those failing to complete the contest giving original rhymes concerning birds. Mrs. Edwin Vicars was awarded a blue bird bud vase in giving the most amusing rhyme.

Mrs. Doucette, in a very lovely manner, sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" accompanied at the piano by Miss Ruth Ann Mitchell. A "Shakespearean Romance," a contest of more difficult nature, was won by Mrs. V. E. Fatheree, who was awarded a novel prize of a doll pin-cushion. The lovely prizes given in the contests were presented to Miss Sawyer. A recipe book was then passed among the guests who each wrote her favorite recipe for the benefit of the honoree.

The elaborate decorations in beautiful colors of blue and yellow with tiny blue birds perched about the room were made more lovely by a blue light that cast its glow over the scene. It was beneath this light that Miss Sawyer was seated while Mrs. Doucette read a cleverly written original poem.

Ribbons of yellow and blue were then placed in the hands of the honoree by which she slowly drew a beautiful float toward her to the soft strains of "The Blue Call," played by Miss Mitchell.

The float, beautifully constructed of yellow and blue with two blue birds each bearing the letter "S", was loaded to the utmost with gifts of unspeakable beauty. The opening of the presents afforded much delight among the guests, and were of a beautiful assortment of glass wear, linens, and other useful and attractive gifts.

Refreshments of fruit salad in orange cups, heart-shaped sandwiches, olives, fruit cake and whipped cream on which the letter "S," was written were served the guests, Mrs. George Gill, and Mrs. Emma LeFors, assisting the hostess.

The personnel of this delightful party included Mrs. Joe Smith, Mrs. A. Cole, Mrs. I. B. Hughey, Mrs. Edwin Vicars, Mrs. V. E. Fatheree, Mrs. J. S. Wynne, Mrs. DeLea Vicars, Mrs. P. O. Sanders, Mrs. J. D. Sugg, Mrs. George Gill, Mrs. C. C. Sloan, Mrs. John Henry, Mrs. Mack Graham, Mrs. Ora Duenkel, Mrs. Wade Duncan, Mrs. R. J. Kiser, Mrs. W. Purviance, Mrs. Charles C. Cook, Mrs. C. T. Hunkapillar, Mrs. W. P. Masters, Mrs. Frank Catterton, Mrs. Alta Stanard, Mrs. John Willis, Mrs. C. C. Dodd, Miss Wilma Chapman, Miss Margaret Schmidt, Miss Laura V. Brown, Miss Julia Mae Barnhart, Miss Edna Hog, Miss Dorothy Doucette and Miss Ruth Ann Mitchell.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Henry, and daughter, Miss Ruth, and Calvin Whately of Abilene are the guests of relatives here.

Mrs. A. L. Wincett of Higgins, and Mrs. Mead of Miami are visitors of Mrs. P. C. Ledrick this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Moore of White Deer were Pampa visitors today.

BREAKFAST—Chilled apple sauce, cereal cream, sausage cakes, buckwheat pancakes, syrup, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Casserole of vegetables, tomato jelly salad, rye bread, chocolate bread puddings, milk, tea.

DINNER—Pot roast of steak and vegetables, mashed potatoes, romaine salad, cherry pie, milk, coffee.

Pot Roast of Steak and Vegetables

One flank steak, 2 ounces fresh fat pork, 2 onions, 3 carrots, 2 large turnips, 2 cups shredded cabbage, 2 canned tomatoes, 2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 cup seeded raisins.

Cut pork in thin pieces and cook in an iron kettle or heavy aluminum kettle until brown. Cut steak into pieces for serving after trimming and removing skin. Brown quickly on both sides in hot fat in kettle. Add onions peeled and sliced, carrots scraped and cut in match-like strips, turnips pared and diced, and cabbage. Season with salt and pepper and add tomatoes. Add enough boiling water to barely cover meat and vegetables and sprinkle raisins over top. Cover closely and simmer for two hours. Do not let the "kettle" bubble but keep it just below the boiling point. Serve meat on a hot platter surrounded with the vegetables with the raisins sprinkles through.

The Execution of Gen. Gomez

A second after this picture was taken, Col. Manuel Limon (right) signaled with his hat, gave the command to fire, and Gen. Arnulfo Gomez (blindfolded) fell to his death with seven bullets in his body. The scene is the cemetery at Tepeelo, Mexico, where the general, regarded as a formidable presidential possibility in 1926, was executed as a revolutionist. Gomez had been pursued for weeks by federal troops.

Humphries Battles Vincent to a Draw at Athletic Club

Pug Humphries of Drumright, Okla., and Clausine Vincent of Stillwater, Okla., battled ten rounds to a draw last night at the Pampa Athletic club. First Vincent would be in the lead only to have Humphries come back strong, especially in the infighting, when his short arms worked like pistons on Vincent's stomach.

Humphries started forcing the fight in the first round and continued to lead. Vincent is long and rangy while Humphries is short and stout. The first round was even. Both boys were being careful and leading few blows, although Humphries was doing the leading. The second round went to Humphries by his aggressiveness, while Vincent took the third on solid punches.

In the fourth, Humphries landed a hard right to the jaw and Vincent took the count for four, but came back strong to make a draw on the round. Number five was Vincent's and six went to Humphries.

Vincent took a lead in the seventh when he landed to the jaw, sending Humphries down for a count of eight. Humphries' eye was bleeding from an old cut which Vincent opened with his head. Humphries showed a nice comeback to take the eighth round.

Round nine was Vincent's by a shade while the last round went to Humphries on solid punches to the head. He was leading all through the round.

Red Andrews of Amarillo was the third man in the ring.

Duff Stanley of Amarillo won an easy decision over Battling Bob Murray, who was too slow for the rangy boy from Amarillo. Battling Bob only took one round out of the eight.

Stanley commenced to use his superior reach in the first round, and in the fourth round had Bob down for a count of five with solid rights to the stomach. Bob also took a count of five in the fifth and nine in the sixth.

Freddie Young of Borger took Farrell into camp in the special event, although Farrell finished the bout strong. Young was a rangy boy with a long reach which he used to keep Farrell away, but when the former Pampa boy got at close range he usually landed solid.

The newsboys put on a classy four-minute round for the fans. The midges also wielded wicked pairs of mitts.

Business and Labor Join to Aid Red Cross

Heads of U. S. Chamber of Commerce and American Federation of Labor Urge Member Organizations and Individual Business Men and Workers to Support Red Cross Membership Enrollment

THE nation's business and industry, as represented by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, and the American Federation of Labor, has expressed anew its confidence in the American Red Cross, and heartily commends the record of service of the Red Cross in the past year.

The leaders of both the National Chamber and the Federation of Labor have called upon the member organizations of the two bodies, and the individual business leaders and workers to respond to the Red Cross appeal for membership of 5,000,000.

President Lewis E. Pierson of the Chamber of Commerce, in a letter to organization members throughout the country, points out that the demands upon the Red Cross have increased year by year, and are still increasing. To meet these demands, he states, requires the support of the large, popular membership, an effective organization and large resources.

"The Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America is heartily in sympathy with the national and international work of this great organization and bespeaks the generous cooperation of the business men of the Nation," continues President Pierson. "You will, I am confident, rally to this call and lend every possible support to the Red Cross in its annual membership campaign which is to be conducted throughout the country in the period between November 11 and 24."

President William Green of the Federation of Labor, in a communication addressed to officers and members of international and National Unions, State Federations of Labor and City Central bodies affiliated with the A. F. of L., tells of the desire of the Red Cross to enroll 5,000,000 members this year. He says:

"We know that in the past year the Red Cross has met its greatest test in peace time relief work in the Mississippi valley. For months we were thrilled by the speed, precision and competency with which it performed the tasks of rescue and relief. We were gratified that the workers of the Nation aided so generously in providing the Red Cross with the relief funds it required."

"The American Federation of Labor has confidence in The American National Red Cross. It is in sympathy with the national and international service of this great democratic organization. It has supported it gladly in the past. It will continue to express its faith as need requires. I urge every worker who can possibly do so to join the Red Cross during the annual roll call."

Statute Rates Name After Two Centuries

LONDON—For 250 years King Charles I has at on his great bronze charger at Charing Cross gazing down Whitehall at the spot where he lost his head, and unidentified so far as inscriptions are concerned.

But at last, on initiative of the Royal Martyr Society, the office of works has consented to the fixing of a tablet, with name and dates officially approved. This was agreed upon chiefly for the benefit of the increased number of tourists, from the provinces and abroad, who pass the statue every day and who, from their guide books or otherwise may not be able to identify the unhappy monarch as he sits majestically with bared head.

Charles' statue was cast in 1633, but the civil war broke out before it had been erected. By order of the Cromwellian parliament it was disposed of as "junk" and stood in a shopkeeper's garden in Holborn until the Restoration when Charles II ordered its erection near the site of the old Charing cross in Trafalgar Square where it stands today at the head of the famous thoroughfare flanked by the principal buildings of the government.

London's "Coffee Dan"

Like San Francisco's "Coffee Dan's" which helped to make San Francisco famous in the line of eating. Ham and eggs is a specialty in the London place, after the theatre, just like Coffee Dan's was in the old days following the earthquake and fire of 1906.

The London Coffee Dan is a Frenchman, and resembles Coffee Dan, the original, dead these many years. When his place was at the height of its fame, with society women in evening gowns dining alongside messenger boys and cab drivers, Coffee Dan, in all his glory and his black frock coat, white shirt and black tie, looked for all the world like the late Samuel Gompers.

Instead of the "white" coffee, with its chicory flavor which helped to add fame to the Coffee Dan's place of Powell street, served in cups a third of an inch thick, the London Coffee Dan's specializes in light alcohols.

The Coffee Dan's here used to cater to the swells. But business fell off, somehow, and the ham and eggs idea was introduced as a life saver. The innovation took at once. The ham and eggs here have as trimmings "potato chips" as Londoners call French fried, and "bitter" on the side in tall glasses, bitter being the "pub" name for the best beer on tap.

LONDON—University women in Australia operate garages, do farm work and many other tasks involving manual labor, but their part is not prominent in public life, believes Miss Edith Thompson, president of the All-English Women's Hockey association. She has returned from an Australian tour with an English club. Household duties leave no time for municipal work, she says.

OUSTING OF "KING BEN" PURNELL ENDS 24-YEAR HOUSE OF DAVID RULE

"King Ben" Purnell (left) has been exiled at 66, by court order, from the House of David colony he founded in 1903 at Benton Harbor, Mich. Before he started the cult he was an itinerant preacher in Kentucky and Ohio, and the upper picture shows him beside his wagon in those days. At the right is his wife Mary, and below is Shiloh temple, his administration building at Benton Harbor.

BENTON HARBOR, Nov. 19.—Three centuries ago Joanna Southcote taught in England that one day a messenger would come from Israel to lead 144,000 chosen souls to everlasting life.

Six self-styled messengers rose and fell, mortal as the members they rallied to their little cults. And now the seventh, Benjamin Franklin Purnell, who taught that he was the last and the most divinely favored of the Israelite envoys, has been exiled by a court of law from the colony of bearded men and quiet women which he founded on the shore of Lake Michigan in 1903.

The 500 persons who live by the teachings of Joanna Southcote, as interpreted and codified for them by "King Ben," must pursue the rites of their strange faith under the jurisdiction of a receiver appointed by the court.

Purnell, monarch of the House of David since its inception, may not set foot again inside its domain, nor may he have any association with the colonists whose affairs, religious and material, he directed so long.

Not only is Purnell deposed at 66, gray-bearded and wan, from the throne he lately graced in the vigor of his prime. Two criminal charges still confront him, to be tried, if the state elects, in the wake of the court order directing receivership for the colony. They arise from the same charges made against girl members of his cult, which influenced the court to oust the reigning monarch.

Purnell is not expected to return, the shadow of his old age, to itinerant ministries by which he made his way before he founded the House of David. A native of Kentucky and a humble artisan in youth, he entered upon a nomadic life as an evangelist, abandoned a girl wife he had married at 16, and was wed at 19 to Mary Stollard—later the "Queen Mary" of his Benton Harbor cult.

Together they made their way into Ohio, Purnell preaching as they journeyed, and finally reached Detroit, where they were admitted to the cult of "Prince" Michael K. Mills. Clashing over direction of this group, Purnell and his wife seceded and went to Benton Harbor, where Purnell proclaimed himself the "seventh messenger" and set out in poverty with a few followers to build up what became a prosperous community dedicated to the beliefs he proclaimed.

He forbade the trimming of hair or beard, prohibited the eating of meat and drew a rigid list of commandments. Members of the community who died, he taught, had violated some regulation of the cult.

The court declined to break up the cult, and its followers may continue to practice their religion, but who will succeed Purnell as leader has yet to be decided. Among colonists prominent in the cult's affairs during the defense of King Ben is H. T. DeWhirst, once a supreme court justice in a Western state.

CHAPTER LX

"Just as a sculptor, who thoroughly understands the principles of form and composition, can accurately supply any missing integral part of a statue," Vance explained, "so can the psychologist who understands the human mind, supply any missing factor in a given human action."

"I might add, parenthetically, that all this blather about the missing arms of the Aphrodite of Melos—the Milo Venus, y' know—is the utterest fiddle-faddle. Any competent artist who knew the laws of aesthetic organization could restore the arms exactly as they were originally. Such restorations are merely a matter of context—the missing factor, if ye see, simply has to conform and harmonize with what is already known."

He made me one of his rare gestures of delicate emphasis.

"Now, the problem of circumventing suspicion is an important detail in every deliberated crime. And since the general conception of this particular crime was positive, conclusive and concrete, it followed that each one of its component parts would be positive, conclusive and concrete."

"Therefore, for the Major merely to have arranged things so that he himself should not be suspected, would have been too negative a conception to fit consistently with the other psychological aspects of the deed. It would have been too vague, too indirect, too indefinite."

"The type of literal mind which conceived this crime would logically have provided a specific and tangible object of suspicion. Consequently, when the material evidence began to pile up against the Captain, and the Major waxed vehement in defending him, I knew he had been chosen as the dupes."

"At first, I admit, I suspected the Major of having selected Miss St. Clair as the victim; but when I learned that the presence of her gloves and hand-bag at Benson's was only an accident and remembered that the Major had given as Pyffe as a source of information about the Captain's threat, I realized that her projection into the role of murderer was unpremeditated."

A little later Markham rose and stretched himself.

"Well, Vance," he said, "your task is finished. Mine has just begun. And I need sleep."

Before a week had passed, Major Anthony Benson was indicted for the murder of his brother. His trial before Judge Rudolph Hansacker, as you remember, created a nationwide sensation.

The press association sent columns daily and for weeks the front pages of the country's newspapers were embellished with spectacular reports of the proceedings.

How the district attorney's office won the case after a bitter struggle; how, because of the indirect character of the evidence, the verdict was for murder in the second degree; and how, after a retrial in the court of appeals, Anthony Benson finally received a sentence of from 20 years to life—all these facts are a matter of official and public record.

Markham personally did not appear as public prosecutor. Having been a life-long friend of the defendant's, his position was an unenviable and difficult one, and no word of criticism was directed against his assignment of the case to Chief Assistant District Attorney.

Major Benson surrounded himself with an array of counsel such as is rarely seen in our criminal courts. Both Blasfield and Bauer were among the attorneys for the defense—Blasfield fulfilling the duties of the English solicitor, and Bauer acting as advocate. They fought with every legal device at their disposal, but the accumulation of evidence against their client overwhelmed them.

After Markham had been convinced of the Major's guilt, he had made a thorough examination of the business affairs of the two brothers, and found the situation even worse than had been indicated by Stitt's first report.

The firm's securities had been systematically appropriated for private speculations; but whereas Alvin Benson had succeeded in covering himself and make a large profit the Major had been almost completely wiped out by his investments.

Markham was able to show that the Major's only hope of replacing the diverted securities and saving himself from criminal prosecution lay in Alvin Benson's immediate death.

trial that the Major, on the very day of the murder, had made emphatic promises which could have been kept only in the event of his gaining access to his brother's safe.

Furthermore, these promises had involved specific amounts in the Major's possession; and, in one instance, he had put on a 48-hour note, a security already pledged—a fact which, in itself, had his brother lived.

Miss Hoffman was a helpful and intelligent witness for the prosecution. Her knowledge of conditions at the Benson and Benson offices went far toward strengthening the case against the Major.

Mrs. Platz also testified to overhearing acrimonious arguments between the brothers. She stated that less than a fortnight before the murder, after an unsuccessful attempt to borrow $50,000 from Alvin, had threatened him, saying: "If I ever have to choose between your skin and mine, it won't be mine that'll suffer."

Theodore Montagu, the man who according to the story of the elevator boy at the Chatham Arms, had returned at half past two on the night of the murder, testified that, as his taxicab turned in front of the apartment house, the headlights flashed on a man standing in a tradesman's entrance across the street, and that the man looked like Major Benson.

This evidence would have had little effect had not Pyffe come forward after the arrest and admitted seeing the Major crossing Sixth avenue at Forty-sixth street when he had walked to Pietro's for his drink of Haig and Haig. He explained that he had attached no importance to it at the time, thinking the Major was merely returning home from some Broadway restaurant. He himself had not been seen by the Major.

This testimony, in connection with Mr. Montagu's annihilated the Major's carefully planned alibi; and though the defense contended stubbornly that both witnesses had been mistaken in their identification, the jury was deeply impressed by the evidence, especially when Assistant District Attorney Sullivan, under Vance's tutoring, painstakingly explained, with diagrams, how the Major could have gone out and returned that night without being seen by the boy.

It was shown that the jewels could not have been taken from the scene of the crime except by the murderer; and Vance and I were called as witnesses to the finding of them in the Major's apartment.

Vance's demonstration of the height of the murderer was shown in court, but the issue was confused by a mass of elaborate scientific objections. Captain Hagedorn's identification of the pistol was the most difficult obstacle with which the defense had to contend.

The trial lasted three weeks, and much evidence of a scandalous nature was taken, although, at Markham's suggestion, Sullivan did his best to minimize the private affairs of those innocent persons whose lives unfortunately touched upon the episode. Colonel Ostrander, however, has never forgiven Markham for not having him called as a witness.

During the last week of the trial Miss Muriel St. Clair appeared as prima donna in a large Broadway light-opera production which ran successfully for nearly two years. She has since married her chivalrous Captain Leacock, and they appear perfectly happy.

Pyffe is still married and as elegant as ever. He visits New York regularly, despite the absence of his "dear old Alvin"; and I have occasionally seen him and Mrs. Banning together. Somehow, I shall always like that woman.

Pyffe raised the $10,000—how, I have no idea—and reclaimed her jewels. Their ownership, by the way, was not divulged at the trial, for which I was very glad.

On the evening of the day the verdict was brought in against the Major, Vance and Markham and I were sitting in the Stuyvesant Club. We had lined together, but no word of the events of the past few weeks had passed between us. Presently, however, I saw an ironic smile creep slowly to Vance's lips.

"I say, Markham," he drawled; "what a grotesque spectacle the trial was! The real evidence, y' know, wasn't even introduced. Benson was convicted entirely on suppositions, presumptions, implications and inferences. . . God help the innocent Daniel who inadvertently falls into a den of legal lions!"

Markham, to my surprise, nodded gravely.

"Doubtless," sighed Vance. "You illuminati of the law would have little to do if you went about your business intelligently."

"Theoretically," replied Markham at length, "your theories are clear enough; but I'm afraid I've dealt too long with material facts to forsake them for psychology and art."

However," he added lightly, "if my legal evidence should fall me in the future, may I call on you for assistance?"

"I'm always at your service, old chap, don't y' know," Vance rejoined. "I rather fancy, though, that it's when your legal evidence is leading you irresistibly to your victim that you'll need me most, what?"

And the remark, though intended merely as a good-natured sally proved strangely prophetic.

THE END.

Athletic Club Is Bringing Best of Ring to Pampa

The sport fans of Pampa have made possible one of the best Athletic clubs in the Southwest. The Pampa Athletic club, where some of the best boxers in the United States are seen in action, has been remodeled, enlarged, reserve seats installed and the ring enlarged to the regulation 18-foot size.

Next Monday night Kid Granite, who has moved to Pampa to make his home and will be employed by the Roxana Petroleum company, will meet Buddy Chambers in the main event. Chambers has had some fast bouts recently and is a comer Granite arrived this morning and will work out at the Pampa Athletic and Amusement club every afternoon with Wildcat Monte, Duff Stanley, and other fast boys.

The American Legion matchmakers, Vick Bickley and Jim Bolen, are planning to have a surprise for the boxing fans in the near future. The local club is getting so popular that three and four sports writers from Amarillo attend the boxing matches in Pampa every Monday night.

"Big Parade" Is Vivid Explanation of Human Conflict

"The Big Parade," a gorgeous war spectacle which should revive in audiences which see it something of the appreciation of veterans such as greeted them at the close of the conflict was seen by packed houses at the Rex theatre last night.

It also has been retained for today and tonight.

John Gilbert, Karl Dane, and Renee Adore carry the leading parts in admirable fashion, and it is undoubtedly a picture in which Miss Adore will long take pride. War in its awful reality is vividly portrayed, yet through it all is one of the highest types of comedy—that thrown against the background of intense sorrow.

"The Big Parade" carries with it the idea of cosmopolitan America, and how the war fused various types of men into buddies of real character. It shows how soft, dependent youngsters went gayly away, to come back serious-minded men; and how the inability of home folks to understand the awfulness of war embittered many veterans. It perhaps more than any other war picture is a revelation of the meaning of the well known after-effects of human conflicts.

There is a simplicity to the picture which prevents it from being deceptively spectacular. The young and old will be glad they saw it; the thoughtful will ponder long over the ideas it suggests.
