PRICE FIVE CENTS

CITY CHARTER VOTE VERY SMALL

Low Bids Are Submitted on Pampa Sewer Extension

CONTRACT WILL BE LET HERE THIS EVENING

Amarillo and Childress Firms Competing for Award

TWO TOTALS NEAR $111,000

High Figures Up to $145,000 Given Last Night

An exceptionally good contract price on the Pampa sewer extensions will be received, it was indicated here last night when seven bids were opened by the city council.

Tabulating of the hundreds of separate items is under way today in the office of A. H. Doucette, city engineer, and the city council will meet again at 7 o'clock this evening to award the contract.

Tom L. Green of Amarillo and two Childress firms bidding jointly apparently are competing closely for the award, with the low figures approximately $111,000. High bids reached $145,000. The Childress firms are the Orman and the Jordan construction companies.

A revised price by the clay tile manufacturers lowered the bids on contracts with that item. Alternate material is concrete sewer pipe.

Several prospective bidders withdrew, and several made joint agreements with other firms. The seven bidders whose figures are being tabulated, are, with their head representatives:

Tom L. Green, Amarillo, by D. H. Jones.

C. L. Burt, Hutchinson, Kans., by R. W. Binford.

Jones Construction company, Dallas, by W. D. Maxwell.

Orman Construction company, Childress, by O. K. Reed.

Dobson, Humphries company, Omaha, by E. B. Morris.

McCall Engineering company, Waco, by H. S. McCall.

Asplund Construction company, Suid, by P. Asplund and W. H. Sindt.

Lee Ledrick Is Injured by Truck

Lee Ledrick suffered severe injuries to his shoulder and right side Friday afternoon when a truck loaded with casing fell on him.

Mr. Ledrick was under the truck when it slipped off the jacks, crushing him. The only thing which saved his life was the differential's landing on a high place in the road.

The accident occurred near the Big Bend Oil company's No. 1 Ledrick, in section 7, block 5-A, Roberts county. Mr. Ledrick is resting at his home here, and doctors believe no bones were broken.

Minister From Guatemala Dies After Operation

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Senator Stephen Latur, Guatemalan minister to the United States, one of the most widely known Central American diplomats, died here last night.

The minister had been operated upon last Saturday for appendicitis.

Spilled the Beans

Edward K. Kidwell, leather-worker juror at the Fall-Sinclair oil trial in Washington, whose alleged statement that he expected to have an auto "a block long" if there was an acquittal led to the charges of jury tampering which halted the proceedings.

Coolidge Favors Repeal of Federal Inheritance Tax

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—President Coolidge favors repeal of the federal inheritance tax, it was said today.

He believes this revenue is needed by the states for state government.

Students of Central High to Provide Patriotic Program

Students of the senior and junior classes of Central high school will provide patriotic entertainment at the morning celebration on Armistice day at the American Legion hall.

All those taking part in the parade are asked to be at the Legion hall by 10:30 o'clock, the parade being scheduled for 11 o'clock. The morning entertainment will be following the parade.

The Pampa Harvesters will meet their old rivals, the Panhandle high school eleven, on Ayres field at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Coach Verde Dickey is getting his warriors in great condition for the battle.

A dinner and dance will be given at the Schneider hotel at 8 o'clock, with an eight-piece orchestra in attendance.

Tale of Amarillo Men Who Asked Advice on Pampa

Three prominent Amarillo men visited a fortune teller. When asked about a business deal which involved a land transaction in Pampa, the lady instructed the Amarillo men to accept the land in Pampa, as in five years that city would be larger than Amarillo.

Whether the men accepted has not been divulged, but they are said to have thought well of the advice. Pampa has a future far beyond what is expected, according to visitors in the city.

BELIEVE GANG OF BANDITS IS NOW IN JAIL

Ten Suspects Behind Bars—Charges Ready

ONE WOMAN AMONG GROUP

One Robber Said To Have Confessed His Part

(By Associated Press.) FORT WORTH, Nov. 8.—Officers here today believe they have broken up the band of robbers who recently robbed several banks in Central Texas. Ten suspects are under arrest in several places, and charges will be filed against them today.

One of the suspects is a woman. A man held is already charged with the robbery of the bank at Richland, and another is said to have confessed his part in the Johnson robbery.

West Foster Paving Will Be Opened Thursday Night

Almost one block of brick has been laid on West Foster avenue, and Indian Jim expects to have the street open for traffic by Thursday night. When the street is open there remains one half block on Tyng street to be completed in the last of the present paving program.

The base was laid on Tyng street yesterday, and will probably be open for traffic by Saturday night, which will end the paving in the city for this year.

The Stuckey Construction company will go from here to White Deer to lay paving on the main street. From there, the company will move south because of the cold weather.

Dallas Brick Mason Killed in a Fight With Mexicans

(By Associated Press.) BRYAN, Nov. 8.—William Cummings, 40 years old, a Dallas brick mason working on a church here, was fatally wounded in a fight with Mexicans here today, sustaining several knife cuts.

Five Mexicans, including a woman, were arrested.

Entire Mississippi Democratic Ticket Is Elected Today

(By Associated Press.) JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 8.—The entire Democratic state ticket was formally elected today, nominees in the August primary having no opposition.

The slate headed by Theodore Bilbo for governor included one woman, Mrs. W. A. Montgomery, a member of the board of prison trustees.

Girl Leader of I. W. W. Strikers

Milka Sablich, 19, whose speeches have stirred the miners in the southern coal fields of Colorado, is pictured above with a broken arm she sustained in an attack upon a mine. The girl, attired in a red dress, was leading strikers to the mine property when she was trampled by a mine guard's horse.

Special Preparations Are Made by Members of Pampa Trade Day

Mud Eleven Feet Deep in Flats of Flood Districts

(By Associated Press.) LITTLE RIVER, Va., Nov. 8.—Mud spread across the flats here by the flood was measured today and found to be eleven feet deep.

Relief workers expressed the belief the many bodies might be buried so deep in this silt that they would never be recovered.

(By Associated Press.) BOSTON, Nov. 8.—Relief work in the New England flood district was well under way today, with transportation facilities gradually being restored.

Cold weather continued to add much to the suffering of the refugees. The known death list continued around 140, with no accurate estimate of the property damage yet available.

Woman Killed and Husband Slugged by Unknown Fiend

(By Associated Press.) MILWAUKEE, Nov. 8.—Kidnaped last night after her husband had been slugged and thrown into a ditch, Mrs. Emma Greenwald of Mounthorbb, Wis., was found slain near Dousman, Wis., today.

Her husband is in a hospital here. Police believe that the couple were victims of a degenerate who also is suspected of having slain Lillian Gaeff October 11.

Business men of Pampa were never better prepared to receive Trade Day visitors than they are for tomorrow, the November event.

This third of Pampa Trade Day is expected to be the best and biggest, despite the fact that the October occasion was described by shoppers and business men alike as the best day of the fall season.

Exceptionally good bargains have been assembled for the thousands of shoppers who will find many attractions in well arranged Pampa stores. Local business men are anxious to show that their stocks are as large and varied as can be found in this section, and they are making profit-sacrificing bargain rates as an inducement to this trade territory to get acquainted.

Trade Day is primarily for the buyers, not for the sellers. Both profit, for permanently satisfactory business connections will be formed.

Pampa Trade Day, an institution, invites you and your friends to visit its members tomorrow. Come to Pampa.

Sande in Tears As Racing Body Refuses His Pleas

(By Associated Press.) BALTIMORE, Nov. 8.—The Maryland racing commission today refused to lift its ban against Earl Sande, famous jockey, whom the body deprived of his license for alleged foul riding Friday. Sande left the commission room after the hearing today in tears.

PASSAGE HELD DOUBTFUL BY ITS BACKERS

Only 157 Votes Had Been Cast at 3 O'Clock

TOTAL AT NOON WAS EIGHTY

Balloting Started Well But Slumped at Noon

Between now and 6 p. m., when the polls at the Chamber of Commerce will close, the fate of the proposed city charter Pampa will be determined.

Only 157 votes had been cast at 3 p. m., and while it was generally believed a majority were favorable, the outcome of the election was considered doubtful. Balloting started off briskly, with 50 votes being cast in the first two hours, but the procession later lagged and the noon hour did not bring the usual number of votes.

As in most school elections, the voting proceeded listlessly. Discussions largely were confined to predictions on the total vote. It is expected, however, that a heavier representation of citizens will appear toward 6 o'clock.

With no property qualification involved, the number of voters eligible is unusually large. Passage of the election will align the city with those empowered by charter to have the city manager form of government, the board of city development plan, and other advantages.

Burns Detectives Fail To Identify Government Agent

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON—Nov. 8.—The defense lost a point in the oil conspiracy tangle today when the Burns detectives failed to identify the government agent it claimed had improperly talked to a juror in the case. William Long, detective who had made an affidavit intended to show that H. R. Lamb, attached to the attorney-general's office, had trailed Juror Norman Glascock and conversed with him, failed today to recognize Lamb as the man involved.

Mysterious Blasts Wreck a Theatre; Damage Church

(By Associated Press.) HAMMOND, Ind., Nov. 8.—A series of mysterious explosions, which police attributed to black powder and bombs, wrecked the State theatre here this morning, damaged the All Saints church across the street, and broke plate glass windows for blocks around.

The damage was estimated at $500,000. A fire which followed the blast was quickly extinguished. Owners of the theatre could assign no reason for the bombing, stating that they had no labor troubles and no enemy that they knew about.

HIGH RENTS—Probably no reputation is more damaging to an oil center than that for having exorbitant rents.
Rent must have a definite, not too high ratio to the whole income. It too often happens that wages in an inflated area readjust themselves more quickly than rent and other living costs.

Pampa has seen a readjustment, and rents have fallen appreciably. There is a danger, however, as the city is well peopled, that rents will be maintained at too high a level.
The Seattle family which has been torn apart by the law because the parents would not let a son repeat the "flag oath" is a victim of the clash of two powerful impulses.

Those who have faith in the future of Pampa—and who does not?—should look to that future, and not merely to the present. Encouragement of industries will mean much to Pampa's future, and a few property owners can strike at the heart of the city's prospects by placing exorbitant prices upon industrial sites.

On the other hand, it should be known that Pampa has many advantages which are not typical of the average Panhandle city.

Moreover, food and clothing may be obtained as cheaply as at other Panhandle cities, and more cheaply than many.
Let's make it possible and desirable for people of small means to live here. "Come to Pampa" will then be a slogan with an unusual meaning for an oil center.

PATRIOTISM—Religion which places its tenets across the path of popularized patriotism, is, from its very nature, fanatical.
The Seattle family which has been torn apart by the law because the parents would not let a son repeat the "flag oath" is a victim of the clash of two powerful impulses.

This is near November 11. Patriotism is at the flow tide, and public opinion probably will favor the law's action in Seattle. But remembering that "inalienable right to worship God according to the dictates of one's conscience," it may be seen that the love of freedom, which brought about this nation, is again involved.

Even during the war period some allowance was made for fanatical, or unusual, religious beliefs. Whether the school board and the law should have overlooked the boy's wish to avoid the flag oath, and should have by teaching and example made him a good citizen, or should have caused his separation from his parents, is a big question.

One of the greatest needs of the day is for reasonableness in cases like this. The clash of religious and patriotic passions should never occur, and neither the state nor the church should be so rigid in requirements that such clashes develop. Both may be at fault.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—Back in the good old days before the war our national debt was around a billion dollars and we could have paid it off by all chipping in $10 apiece.

The debt is now approximately 18 1/2 billions and the per capita share is more than $155.
But at one time in 1919 the public debt, which had jumped 23 billion dollars in two years, was $26,596,701,000 and when that fiscal year closed, the per capita debt was more than $230.

Treasury experts estimate that, barring emergencies or important depressions, the debt can be paid off in a little more than 30 years at the present rate.

At one time, in 1920, the interest on the debt amounted to more than $1,000,000,000 a year—about a third of the federal expense. Last year it was only $785,000,000. Next year (the fiscal year ended June 30, 1928) it is hoped to get this figure down by 50 million dollars or more.

A rough estimate indicates that in addition to the $25,000,000,000 debt we will also have paid something like $30,000,000,000 in interest when it is all over. That estimate is little better than a guess, however, as the figure is impossible to compute.

These figures are of special interest at this time because there will be some argument in the next Congress as to whether some of the treasury's surplus for 1927-28, which Secretary Mellon estimates at $455,000,000, should not be applied to the debt instead of to tax reduction.

One objection to the $400,000,000 or $500,000,000 tax reduction demanded by Democrats and business men is that it is likely to result in a treasury deficit because the cut will be applied to next year's receipts. The surplus is diminishing because it has been created only by what the treasury calls "non-current and fast vanishing items" such as back payments. Mellon estimates next year's surplus at $275,000,000.

The answer of those who would again use the surplus to help wipe out the debt is that debt reduction is itself tax reduction because it reduces the enormous interest burden now carried by the country. The treasury says that we are paying $65,000,000 less interest this year than last, largely because the debt was reduced by $1,131,809,000.

The 1926 reduction was $872,977,000, which resulted in a saving of more than $36,000,000.
In 1926 a surplus of $377,767,000 was applied to the debt. Last year, when Congress again failed to effect tax reduction, the surplus applied to the debt was $635,809,000.

"To the extent that we are able to reduce our public debt and eliminate the vast charges of interest thereon, we are lightening the burden of the people of our country," says President Coolidge.

Perhaps half the saving on interest last year was due to the treasury's refunding operations. The average rate of interest on our interest-bearing indebtedness was brought down from 4.09 per cent in 1925-26 to 3.96 per cent.

Most of the debt is represented by the five Liberty loans, the retirement dates of which were, in order, 1947, 1942, 1928, 1938 and 1923. Those loans raised $21,433,000,000.

Monte Wins Over Vincent by Shade in Hard Fight

Wildcat Monte of Drumright, Okla., last night shaded Bobby Vincent of Stillwater, Okla., at the Pampa Athletic club.

Monte is probably the fastest boy yet seen at the Pampa Athletic club. He is here one second and gone the next.

Vincent started out on the aggressive and had the Wildcat on the run the first round, but began missing in the second and by the third round was swinging wild.

The fourth and fifth went as draws, with Vincent being the aggressor and swinging wild for a knockout. Both boys were hitting wild, but Monte was doing damage in the clinches.

The sixth and seventh showed Monte playing his old game of leading and hitting hard. Vincent was missing, not landing more than three blows in the seventh round, and apparently hanging on. Rounds eight and nine were slightly in favor of Monte, but Vincent seemed to be coming back and was landing more often but taking punishment in the clinches.

Vincent came out in the tenth and battered Monte all over the ring for the first two minutes, they slowed up. He had the round all to himself and was really the wildcat of the evening.

The third man in the ring was Red Andrews, from the Amarillo Athletic club, who refereed an exceptionally clean bout.

The semi-final saw Battling Bob outpoint the bigger and heavier Buckshot Peoples in eight fast rounds. The kid is one of the cleverest boxers that has ever stepped in the ring and with a couple of years more experience will be ready for all comers.

He was in, pecking at Peoples' face, and out before the heavier boy could land.

The surprise event of the evening was what should have been a six-round bout between Kid Daniels and "Black Cloud" Goldie, two negroes. The "cloud" had it all the way until Daniels quit from a left to the head, in the third round.

Club boys furnished the early events.

Next Monday night Wildcat Monte and Jimmie Carter will furnish the entertainment in the main event, while Rusty Cahill and Duff Stanley will feature the preliminary bout.

Playing Ball Prison "Trade"

LEAVENWORTH, Kas.—If practice make perfect, the two baseball teams at the United States penitentiary here have about reached that state.

The "Federals" and the "Booker T's," the negro team, are composed of prisoners at the federal penitentiary and all they have to do is practice. Baseball is their official occupation while they sojourn behind the walls.

At the close of the season the Booker T's claimed the semi-pro championship of Kansas. Members of the team are on the field continually. Games are played on Saturdays and Sundays and the entire week is spent solving the forecasted delivery of the pitcher who will oppose them. If he is a devotee of the slow ball, they hit slow balls for six days and the result on the seventh usually is a massacre for the helpless hurler.

The athletic director, Frank J. Sack, a guard, naturally has no trouble with his players breaking training rules.

Both teams play games outside the prison. They visited Kansas City, St. Joseph, Mo., Topeka, Kas., and other neighboring cities as well as the "parks" of the two other prisons near here, the United States Penitentiary Barracks at Ft. Leavenworth and the Kansas State Prison at Lansing, during the season just closed.

The traveling prison teams are accompanied by a sports writer serving time for some minor offense. He carries a portable typewriter, and keeps up with his profession by writing play-by-play detail of the games. On his return to the prison, the newspaper man grinds out reports for Leavenworth and Kansas

BILLY EVANS Says

This Change Unlikely

Yale has suggested that the colleges of our country return to unpaid football coaches.

It is a nice thought, savor of the old college spirit, but there isn't a chance in the world that the suggested reform will make any noticeable headway.

Twenty years ago certain colleges were fairly successful using the unpaid coaching system, which thrusts the responsibility on the loyalty of the alumni and also makes a hole in the bank roll of the old grads.

The coming of the new concrete stadiums, seating from 50,000 to 100,000, sounded the death knell of this system of unpaid coaches. Too much is now demanded of the modern football coach, artistically and

City papers published the next day. The incarcerated correspondent, however, has never used a "by-line" and his identity is withheld by the prison officials.

Six former professional baseball players are in the federal prison and several are on the Federal team. Two or three pros bolster the teams at the other prisons.

The baseball team at the United States Disciplinary Barracks, the military prison, also travels and boasts a "staff correspondent" who once was a sports writer on a Buffalo, N. Y., newspaper. His stories break into the local newspapers with regularity, sent out through Lieut. C. W. Pence, the Educational and Recreational officer.

financially, to ask mere loyalty to carry the burden.

College football has developed into big business. It needs one man control to be successful. With unpaid coaches there is always a difference of opinion that plays havoc with results.

Coaches Earn Salaries

Knute Rockne, famous Notre Dame coach, is a wise king about more things than football. He is a good business man always.

It seems to me that his answer to a query as to what he thought of unpaid football coaches was full of logic, and typically Rockne.

"When the colleges have a free gate to the football games, then I will be more than willing to donate my services as coach," he said.

"Just so long as the colleges charge an admission, I feel the men or men who set the stage for the football games, the coaches, should be compensated, and rather generously."

I like Rockne's wisdom. He spoke more than a mouthful of common sense. The football coach has a tough job and earns every cent he gets, for he must deliver.

Rockne has the right dope. No college should ask a coach to work for nothing unless the gate is free—and why not the refreshments, also, including the hot dogs?

Grange Was Criticized

This matter of taking money for your services and thereby joining the professional class often produces unusual situations.

Several years ago, when professional football began to lure college stars away from the strictly amateur class, there was much ballyhoo about lack of loyalty to one's alma mater.

When the much advertised "Red" Grange joined the pro class, he was widely criticized for his act in certain quarters, one or two holler-than-thou coaches firing a number of broadsides at him.

"I helped make several hundred thousand dollars for Illinois and received nothing in return, so why shouldn't I have the right to capitalize my athletic assets after I have finished my college career?" was Grange's answer.

So He Kept Quiet

In this connection, when the subject of pro football was being discussed at the annual meeting of the football coaches, one certain coach, after attacking the professional player in the strongest terms, had the wind taken out of his sails when a far more broad-minded mentor said:

"If there was ever a professional, you're one. Tell me any single instance where you have passed up a chance to make money by capitalizing on your football prestige."

Since the coach in question is one of the highest priced mentors in the game, his argument against professional football lost much of its conviction.

Unpaid football coaches would have to be men of wealth in order to give up so much time to their work and there are not enough to go round.

FRUSTRATE FLANAGAN ARMY'S AIM IN TILT WITH NOTRE DAME

NEY ORK—When they meet Notre Dame's football machine November 12 West Point's Cadets will have before them the vision of a hip-shifting, twisting ball-carrier, racing over the turf of the Yankee Stadium behind a perfect screen of interference for a decisive touchdown in the game between these inter-sectional rivals a year ago.

Christy Flanagan, a Texan, was the elusive youth who broke through Army's defense for the only score of the 1926 game. Christy is again a star of Knute Rockne's cast. He already has treated the Naval Academy in much the same fashion he did the Army last fall, so that the Cadets regard it as a matter of service football pride and prestige to check Christy's marauding activities in this year's game at the Stadium.

But Flanagan isn't the only threat in this year's Notre Dame array. John Niemiec, punter extraordinary, is also an all-round star in the back-field platoon that Rockne has developed to a high pitch of skill.

A veteran team, the Army expects to be well-prepared for the dazzling Notre Dame attack. Led by the shifty Harry Wilson, the Cadets have a strong line, flanked by two brilliant ends, Harbold and Born, besides one of the most seasoned ball-carrying arrays in the East. Wilson is playing his eighth season of "big league" football, supported by two experienced stars, Murrell, fullback, and Red Cagle, halfback.

The Army-Notre Dame battle has come to be one of the foremost inter-sectional classics.

Since 1913 the rivals have met annually without interruption except for the war year of 1918. Notre Dame has gained a big margin by capturing nine of the 13 games. The post-war period has seen the Irish triumphant six times and the Cadets once, with a scoreless tie marked up in 1922. Altogether the Army has emerged victorious only three times.

A Trumpet CALL!

To Our Territory Amarillo

The Center of This Great Trade Radius Bids For Your Support

Oil field cities ought to stick together.

Patronize home industry, by all means; but when your home town hasn't what you want, go to the leading city of your territory, which is Amarillo.

Amarillo is the wholesale, manufacturing, and jobbing center of the North Plains and of the Panhandle oil field. This fact does not detract from the importance of other cities in this territory. Borger serves its own people; Panhandle people buy in Panhandle; Pampa patronizes its home stores. But these stores can save freight and can correspondingly reduce the price to their customers by buying at the nearest wholesale point, which is Amarillo. They can save time by ordering what they want from a point so close at hand. They can get what they want for their customers in Amarillo.

It is just an extension of the principle of buying at home. Buy your retail merchandise at home; when you want wholesale merchandise which you cannot get at home, get it in your territory. Get it in Amarillo.

Our Wholesale & Manufacturing Industries Are Second to None

Greatwest Mill & Elevator Co.

Located at Amarillo, Texas, Telephone 2980: Are Manufacturers of "Amarillys" and "Greatwest" Brands of High Grade Flour. Every Sack Fully Guaranteed, and the Leading Buyers of Grain, Paying the Top Market Price at all Times.

The city that provides the farmers in the surrounding country with a market for their grain is the one that will attain the greatest measure of popularity and prosperity. The fact that the Greatwest Mill and Elevator Company pays the highest market price at all times brings thousands of dollars worth of business to the town and vicinity and aids in no small degree in making Amarillo a live and prosperous city.

They maintain a modern mill in which their popular brands of flour are manufactured and the uniform good quality of "Amarillys" and "Greatwest" flour, which is fully guaranteed, and has made their products genuinely popular with housewives in this section.

This Mill and Elevator is modernly equipped with the latest milling devices for the production of the best flour. Every known precaution is taken and the flour they produce is without a peer.

In this comprehensive review of our industrial progress it is essential that prominent mention be made of this enterprise which has been one of the vital factors in the development of this section. Their plant is strictly modern and up-to-date in every particular and is equipped with the very latest modern machinery throughout. The scientists that have given this matter careful study have decided what is most efficient and this company has adopted these methods just as soon as it has been approved.

CURRIE, Vance's valet.
S. S. VAN DINE, The Narrator.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Vance prevents Markham from arresting Leacock when Pfyfe's story implicates the captain. It is brought out that Pfyfe had been in Alvin Benson's power because of a forged check. Leacock confesses to the murder, but Vance exposes the confession as a lie to shield Miss St. Clair. Vance prevails upon Markham to question Mrs. Platz—once more.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XLVIII

"I know, Markham, our so-called civilization is nothing more than the persistent destruction of everything that's beautiful and enduring, and the designing of cheap makeshifts. You should read Oswald Spengler's Untergang des Abendlands—a most penetrating document. I wonder some enterprising publisher hasn't embalmed it in our native argot."

"The whole history of this degenerate era we call modern civilization can be seen in our woodwork. Look at that fine old door, for instance, with its bevelled panels and ornamented bolection, and its Ionic pilasters and carved lintel. And then compare it with the flat, flimsy, machine-made, shellacked boards which are turned out by the thousand today. Sic transit . . ."

Vance studied the door for some time; then turned abruptly back to Mrs. Platz, who was eyeing him curiously and with mounting apprehension.

"What did Mr. Benson do with the box of jewels when he went out to dinner?" he asked.

"Nothing, sir," she answered nervously. "He left them on the table there."

"Did you see them after he had gone?"

"Yes; and I was going to put them away. But I decided I'd better not touch them."

"And nobody came to the door, or entered the house, after Mr. Benson left?"

"No, sir."

"I'm positive, sir."

Vance rose, and began to pace the floor. Suddenly, just as he was passing the woman, he stopped and faced her.

"Was your maiden name Hoffman, Mrs. Platz?"

The thing she had been dreading had come. Her face paled, her eyes opened wide, and her lower lip drooped a little. Vance stood looking at her, not unkindly. Before she could regain control of herself, he said:

"I had the pleasure of meeting your charming daughter recently."

"My daughter . . ." the woman managed to stammer.

"Miss Hoffman, y' know—the attractive young lady with the blond hair. Mr. Benson's secret'ry."

The woman sat erect, and spoke through clamped teeth.

"She's not my daughter."

"Now, now, Mrs. Platz!" Vance chided her as if speaking to a child. "Why this foolish attempt at deception? You remember how worried you were when I accused you of having a personal interest in the lady who was here to tea with Mr. Benson? You were afraid I thought it was Miss Hoffman. . . . But why should you be anxious about her, Mrs. Platz? I'm sure she's a very nice girl. And you really can't blame her for preferring the name of Hoffman to that of Platz."

"Platz means generally a place, though it also means a crash or an explosion; and sometimes a Platz is a bun or a yeast-cake. But a Hoffman is a courtier—much nicer than being a yeast-cake, what?"

He smiled engagingly, and his manner had a quieting effect upon her.

"It isn't that, sir," she said, looking at him appealingly. "I made her take the name. In this country and girl who's smart can get to be a lady, if she's given a chance. And—"

"I understand perfectly. Miss Hoffman is clever, and you feared that the fact of your being a housekeeper, if it became known, would stand in the way of her success. So you eliminated yourself, as it were, for her welfare. I think it was very generous of you. . . . Your daughter lives alone?"

"Yes, sir — in Morningside Heights. But I see her every week. Her voice is barely audible."

"Of course—as often as you can. I'm sure . . . Did you take the position as Mr. Benson's housekeeper because she was his secret'ry?"

She looked up, a bitter expression in her eyes.

"Yes, sir—I did. She told me the kind of man he was; and he often made her come to the house here in the evenings to do extra work."

"And you wanted to be here to protect her?"

"Yes, sir—that was it."

"Why were you so worried the morning after the murder, when Mr. Markham here asked you if Mr. Benson kept any fire-arms around the house?"

The woman shifted her gaze.

"I—wasn't worried."

"Yes, you were, Mrs. Platz. And I'll tell you why. You were afraid we might think Miss Hoffman shot him."

"Oh, no, sir, I wasn't," she cried. "My girl wasn't even here that night—I swear it!—she wasn't here. . . ."

She was badly shaken; the nervous tension of a week had snapped, and she looked helplessly about her.

"Come, come, Mrs. Platz," pleaded Vance consolingly. "No one believes for a moment that Miss Hoffman had a hand in Mr. Benson's death."

The woman peered searchingly into his face. At first she was loath to believe him—it was evident that fear had long been preying on her mind,—and it took him fully a quarter of an hour to convince her that what he had said was true. When, finally, we left the house she was in a comparatively peaceful state of mind.

On our way to the Stuyvesant Club Markham was silent, completely engrossed with his thoughts. It was evident that the new facts deduced by the interview with Mrs. Platz troubled him considerably.

Vance sat smoking dreamily, turning his head now and then to inspect the buildings we passed.

We drove east through Forty-eighth street, and when we came abreast of the New York Bible Society House he ordered the chauffeur to stop, and insisted that we admire it.

"Christianity," he remarked, "has almost vindicated itself by its architecture alone. With few exceptions, the only buildings in this city that are not eyesores, are the churches and their allied structures."

"The American aesthetic credo is: Whatever's big is beautiful. These depressin' gargantuan boxes with rectangular holes in 'em, which are called skyscrapers, are worshipped by Americans simply because they're huge. A box with 40 rows of holes is twice as beautiful as a box with 20 rows. Simple formula, what? . . . Look at this little five-story affair across the street. It's infinitely lovelier—and more impressive, too—than any skyscraper in the city. . . ."

Vance referred but once to the crime during our ride to the club, and then only indirectly.

"Kind hearts, y' know, Markham, are more than coronets. I've done a good deed today, and I feel positively virtuous. Frau Platz will sleep much better tonight. She has been frightfully upset about little Gretchen. She's a doughty old soul; motherly and all that. And she couldn't bear to think of the future Lary Verde Vere being suspected. . . . Wonder why she worried so? . . . And he gave Markham a sly look."

Nothing further was said until after dinner, which we ate in the Roof Garden. We had pushed back our chairs, and sat looking out over the tree-tops of Madison Square.

"Now, Markham," said Vance, "give over all prejudices, and consider the situation indulously—as you lawyers euphemistically put it. . . . To begin with, we now know why Mrs. Platz was so worried at our question regarding fire-arms, and why she was upset by my reference to her personal interest in Benson's tea-companion. So those two mysteries are eliminated. . . ."

"How did you find out about her relation to the girl?" interjected Markham.

"It was my ogling did it," Vance gave him a reproving look. "You recall that I 'ogled' the young lady at our first meeting,—but I forgave you. . . . And you remember our little discussion about cranial idiosyncrasies?"

"Miss Hoffman, I noticed at once, possessed all the physical formations of Benson's housekeeper. She was brachycephalic; she had over-articulated cheek-bones, an orthognathous jaw, a low flat parietal structure, and a mesorrhistan nose. . . . Then I looked for her ear, for I had noted that Mrs. Platz had the pointed, lobeless, 'satyr' ear—sometimes called the Darwin ear. These ears I saw that Miss Hoffman's were of the same type, even though modified, I was fairly certain of the relationship."

"But there were other similarities—in pigment, for instance; and in height,—both are tall, y' know. And the central masses of each were very large in comparison with the peripheral masses; the shoulders were narrow and the wrists and ankles small, while the hips were bulky. . . . That Hoffman was Platz's maiden name was only a guess. But it didn't matter."

"The book—or a part of it—has, I believe, been recently translated into English."

Just place yourself in the shoes of the merchant after he has handled hundreds of dollars of worthless checks. He is always glad to accept your check but the experience of past losses makes him necessarily cautious.

You can't afford to have your check questioned by occasionally giving one for which there aren't funds in the bank to cover.

Always be sure of your bank balance—never overdraw! The merchants of Pampa have banded together in an effort to stop this evil. A wedding of much interest to the young people of Pampa was solemnized Saturday at noon in Clarendon, and united Miss Cassie Ledrick and H. D. Balthrop in marriage.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Moore at the Methodist parsonage in Clarendon.

Directly after the wedding, the young couple left for California, where they will be gone a month or more.

Mrs. Balthrop is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ledrick who have been long-time residents of this city.

She is a graduate of Pampa high school and has had college training in both the College of Industrial Arts at Denton, and in the Kansas A. & M. at Manhattan, Kansas. For the last two years she has been secretary of the city water department.

Mr. Balthrop is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Balthrop of Memphis, Texas, and has made Pampa his home for the last six years. He has been employed by the local Buick company.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Balthrop join in congratulating them, and will be pleased to learn that they will probably make their future home in Pampa.

Miss Velora Reed Entertains Friends Friday Evening

Miss Velora Reed entertained a number of her friends Friday evening in the home of Mrs. Jack DeGraftenried. The time was enjoyably spent in playing bridge, which provided an entertaining diversion until a late hour. Honors went to Mrs. Campbell and Verde Dickey.

The hostess served delicious refreshments of tuna salad, cookies, and hot chocolate. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, Miss Irma Crowe, Miss Lucille Mooney, and D. and Jack Gould, Frazier Taylor, and Verde Dickey.

Siler Faulkner is foreman of the grand jury in session at LeFors.

B. S. Via and Burke Mathes spent yesterday in Miami.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Arnold of Bentonville, Ark., are visiting their son, Arthur E. Arnold, of Pampa. They will spend Thanksgiving here.

Mrs. R. M. Byers Celebrates Birthday Of Son Friday

Mrs. R. M. Byers celebrated the birthday of her son, Leo Byers, with a dinner Friday night. Following the serving of a most delicious three-course dinner, the guests enjoyed music and games. The honoree received many gifts and enjoyed the congratulations of his friends present.

The guests were Mrs. Hannah Clark of Cushing, Oklahoma, Gavin Albin, of Tulsa; Tom Martin of Panhandle, Miss Opal and Myrtle Byers, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Byers.

Mr. and Mrs. Fisher Are Entertained In Doucette Home

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Doucette entertained in their home Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Fisher. The hostess served a most delicious dinner after which the guests went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Twiford. Those present were the immediate family of Mr. and Mrs. Doucette, and the honorees, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Fisher.

Social Calendar

All the circles of the Baptist W. M. U. will meet in a general meeting at the church Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The Methodist Missionary Society will meet at the church with Mrs. Fred Cary as hostess Wednesday afternoon. A meeting will also be held Thursday in observance of the week of prayer and self denial.

On Trade Day, Wednesday Nov. 9, the Ladies Aid Society of the Christian Church will hold bazaars on four corners of the streets of Pampa. Various objects useful to the modern housewife will be offered for sale.

Thursday afternoon Miss Blue's Class will be entertained at Mrs. A. S. Mahan's with Mrs. Edwin Vicars, Mrs. Fred Cary, and Mrs. Carl Boston assisting.

The Coterie club will hold an all-day meeting at the home of Mrs. Olive Smith. The time will be spent in making a quilt top to be given to charity.

The Friday 13 Bridge club will meet 2:30 Saturday afternoon with Miss Mable Davis.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Fisher are leaving today for Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where they will make their home. Their many friends here regret to see them leave, and wish to extend their good wishes for the enjoyment of their future home.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Witt and sons of Amarillo spent the week-end with relatives in Pampa.

Mrs. Harry Edenborough and Mrs. White of White Deer were Pampa visitors Monday.

H. L. Hazy, highway engineer from Memphis, is in the city on business.

Guy Farrington and father, J. C. Farrington, left today on a trip to California.

Mrs. E. T. Howell of San Diego, Calif., mother of Mrs. Frank Keehn, Jr., who has been seriously ill, recently motored to Pampa accompanied by Mrs. Jack Brown, a former member of the staff of the San Diego Sun and the San Diego North Pampa News. Mrs. Keehn's condition is somewhat improved, but she is not out of danger, physicians say.

Mrs. Hannah Clarke of Cushing, Okla., visited with Mrs. R. M. Byers over the week-end, while on her way to California on a visit.

Chas. Sharpe left this morning for Amarillo, where he will join M. C. Parker and a group of Amarillo men on a deer hunt near Springfield, N. M.

Ladies of Christian Church will sell decorated bricks on streets Wednesday, Trade Day. Get one. Help us build. Oh Maggie. Price 45c. 8-13

OPEN INSURANCE OFFICE

The Panhandle Insurance Agency of Pampa has taken an office in the Brunow building. J. B. Hulme is in charge, and he will be joined soon by Wayne O'Keefe of Panhandle. This firm has already done considerable business here.

SCHOOL TAX PAYABLE

Taxes due the Pampa Independent School District may be paid at Room No. 10, Smith Building, Pampa, Texas.

McConnell Made Strong Bid For The Shrine Ring

Roger "Sluefoot" McConnell, Panhandle entry for the shrine ring at the ceremonial at El Paso last week, received the largest vote of any of the entries among the class of 125 taking the degree.

"Sluefoot" McConnell, called the Kaffir Corn and Wheat King of the Panhandle, was the popular man at the convention and ably assisted by his campaign manager Sam A. Fenbers, also of Pampa, made a strong fight.

The ceremony was the largest and most important event ever held in El Paso. Mr. McConnell is receiving the congratulations of his friends, who have received the news from members of the delegation who attended the ceremony in El Paso.

Bowers Trial Is Now Under Way

The trial of Joe Bowers, Sr., on a charge of driving a car while intoxicated got under way this afternoon at LeFors.

The regular jury panel was exhausted before a jury was completed this morning.

Education Week Observed Here in Public Schools

Education week is being observed in Pampa public schools. Yesterday was health day, and discussions of personal hygiene were held in most of the rooms.

Today is "Visit Your School" day. Each teacher will make a fifteen-minute talk on education. Tomorrow at chapel the Rev. James Todd, Jr., will speak. Thursday is home and school day.

An important part of Education Week will be the sermons on education Sunday. The local pastors will make education their themes.

Local Chevrolet Dealers Lead This Sales Territory

Culberson-Smalling Chevrolet company, winner in a Turkey-Bean contest just closed, will eat turkey soon while dealers of McLean and Spearman, the losers, will sit across the table and partake of beans.

The local firm sold 54 new Chevrolts and 45 used cars in October, closing the month with a spurt that put them far ahead of all rivals. It is expected that the banquet will be held here about November 10.

Expecting an even greater volume of sales in November, the dealers here have asked for 30 new cars within the next few days.

German Women's Congress Asks Equal Chances for Careers

EISENACH, Germany—"More women in parliament" was the slogan of the Federation of German Women Societies when it held a congress here. More than 800 leading women of Germany represented a total membership of a million.

A resolution was unanimously adopted that for all constituencies throughout the Reich women candidates should be nominated, and that all tendencies to restrict women's participation in the legislature should be fought too and nail.

Dr. Marie Munk, a well known woman lawyer, read a proposed new law drafted by herself on divorce reform. She believes it should be a basic principle that the question of guilt alone should not form the sole recognized ground for the granting of divorce.

Dr. Munk also insisted that women judges should be appointed to sit with male colleagues in divorce courts.

Legal recognition of a married woman's sole rights to her own earnings as well as a legal right to a share in the husband's income was urged by Dr. Margaretha Berent, another woman lawyer.

Dr. Emma Beckmann of Hamburg spoke of the need of combating the present-day forces tending to destroy family life. She called for equal periods of training for careers for both sexes so that qualifications of women should not be termed inferior to those of men.

An appeal by Frau Glaue of Jena for more extended state aid of parents enabling them to give daughters as well as sons a sound education was applauded.

Frau Emma Ender of Hamburg was re-elected president of the Federation by an unanimous vote of the congress.

Many German Streets Have The Same Name

BERLIN—When a traveler reaches Berlin and, boarding a taxi, asks the chauffeur to take him to, say, number 121 Berliner Strasse, he is not a little surprised to find the cabby retort, "But what Berliner street do you mean?"

Berlin is made up of countless boroughs which at one time were independent little towns. Each of them had a road leading to Berlin, and each of them, after incorporation with the metropolis, insisted upon retaining its Berlinstrasse. This has proven such a nuisance in the course of time, however, that there is a strong movement for abolishing all repetitions.

Another favorite street name is that of Bismark. There are 20 streets and 5 squares within Greater Berlin named after the Iron Chancellor. Wilhelmstrasse likewise occurs 20 times, and Bahnhofsstrasse (Railway station street) even 22 times.

The Linden tree seems the most popular among Berliners, of the frequency with which streets are named after it is a criterion. There is not only historic Unter den Linden, but Berlin in addition has 13 Linden streets and 6 Linden avenues. The chestnut is the next closest competitor with 9 streets named in its honor.

Goethe is apparently the most popular poet, for 14 Berlin streets bear his name, while Schiller is thus honored only 13 and Lessing 12 times.

There are 17 park streets, 12 school, 13 main, 16 forest, 16 Moltke 77 Kaiser Friedrich streets.
