Cinema 4 could reopen this month

By KATE B. DICKSON Associate Publisher

An Arizona theater owner wants to reopen Pampa's Cinema 4 Theater this month and he's looking to the city's revolving loan fund for some financial help.

The Pampa Economic Development Corporation will hear from businessman James Yates when the PEDC meets in special session at 9 a.m. tomorrow at 105 E. Foster.

Susan Tripplehorn, PEDC executive director, said before Yates can receive the "small amount of money" he's asking for the loan must be approved by both the PEDC board and the Pampa City

The revolving loan fund was created as a result of the purchase of property at 822 E. Foster by the State of Texas Capital Fund, said Tripplehorn. The state deeded the property to the City of Pampa which is required to pay monthly rent on the building.

It is that rent that is used to create the revolving loan fund which has about $66,000 in the bank.

Loans from the fund must be for at least $5,000 and for any loan (See CINEMA, Page 2)

Relay for Life tribute to cancer survivors

Organizers of American Cancer Society's (ACS) Relay for Life seek cancer patients, past and present, to join them in the Cancer Survivor's Celebration, June 9, at Pampa's Recreation Park.

"A cancer survivor is anyone who has ever had cancer, even if they have it now, who is alive today," said Kathy Gist, ACS member and cancer survivor.

At 6:30 p.m., Friday, June 9, the Cancer Survivors Walk will kick off the 2000 Relay for Life, an annual fund-raiser for the Gray-Roberts Chapter of the American Cancer Society. This special lap, reserved for cancer survivors, is a celebration of hope for all who are affected by cancer, organizers said. Walkers will wear survivor ribbons and buttons as they take a short stroll or roll around the fenced-in area at Recreation Park. Wheelchairs will be available for anyone who might need them, Gist Refreshments for the Cancer Survivors Celebration will be provided by the Circle of Friends, support organization for the Harrington Cancer Center. "We invite the walkers to play a lively game of Bunko after their walk," Gist added. "It's a simple game that requires no skills and no betting. We'll teach you the rules.

Courthouse grant hits snag over funds match

By DEE DEE LARAMORE Staff Writer

A misunderstanding between Grav County officials and the Texas Historical Commission (THC) may leave a $3.8 million state grant to renovate the courthouse in jeopardy.

After a special meeting Wednesday, Gray County Commissioners agreed that County Judge Richard Peet should send a letter to the THC to explain the misunderstanding and propose a way to keep the grant and meet the county's match of $1.3 million. County officials originally thought Gray County's match would be covered by a $450,000 tobacco settlement and local donations.

Judge Peet explained to the News that the misunderstanding stems from the original request for a state grant to help fund a $5.3 million renovation of Gray County Courthouse. In making the request, Peet said he understood that Gray County would be responsible only for 15 percent of the total grant amount of $3.8 million or approximately $570,000, not 15 percent of the grant amount plus the remainder of the project cost - $1.3million.

In the letter to Texas Historical Commission Executive Director Lawrence Oaks, Peet explains that "there was a misunderstanding of the actual money on hand and the ject in three years as outlined in the original grant request. This way, he said, Gray County would be able to meet the $1.3 million match to the state's $3.8 million grant.

Peet's plan calls for cutting projected cost of the first two phases from $4.8 million to $4.6 million, with the county providing $846,000 of the total cost. The third phase would be completed over the next seven years at a total cost of $486,671 to the county, just under $70,000 per year.

"This project would cover all the significant historical restoration items and yet would still be a viable project for Gray County," he said in the let-"It's like someone telling you have $5,000 to go shopping and then after you get started they come back and tell you that you only have $2,500," said Commissioner Joe Wheeley, who voiced his misgivings in Wednesday's meeting. "I would have a different feeling about it if I had gone into it knowing what I know now," Wheeley told the Commissioner's Court. Recognizing that the renovation is important and that a number of people are in favor of continuing no matter what the cost, Wheeley added, "I need to feel that positiveness before I can vote to support it." "If I had known that a grant for $4.3 million would cost (the county) close to 30 percent rather than 15 percent, it would still be a good deal, but the way it was done, I need to go back now and try to rationalize what took place," Wheeley said. "Remember what we wanted to do and the reason we applied for the grant in the first place," Commissioner Gerald Wright pointed out. Wright referred to an estimated $2 million in electrical, plumbing and exterior repairs needed for the 70year-old courthouse which would be included in the proposed renovation.

"I don't want to make it so (the Historical Commission) won't do it at all and we don't get anything at all," Wright said.

"I think this will be cheaper on us to do this and take 10 years to finish rather than spend $2 million," commented Commissioner Jim Greene. "These figures scared me to death until I got into them," said Commissioner James Hefley. Peet told commissioners that in addition to the $450,000 set aside for the project, an anonymous donor has committed to pay $100,000.

"I'm not at liberty to tell who the donor is, at their stipulation," he said.

Peet said that the first thing needed is the THC's approval of the revised time line for the renovation before any efforts are made to seek other donations or grants from local foundations to help fund the project.

The $69,524 needed annually for Phase III of the project could be paid for through "good budgeting," he added.

"I'm hoping we can accomplish all this with no tax increase and I believe we will," he said. "That was the purpose for applying for the grant in the first place."

The fact that more than 99 million American households now have phones illustrates that communication is no longer a luxury, but a necessity. It's an example of how once imposed — taxes never seem to die in Washington. The House of Representatives overwhelmingly voted recently to repeal the telephone excise tax.

Repealing this tax will save Americans around $5 billion a year by beginning to trim some of the taxes and fees we all see off our phone bill each month. It's long overdue, and something that's just common sense.

After all, we won the Spanish American War. But there's no reason we should still be paying for that vic-

Jefferson Davis was president of the Confederate States of America, and if more people knew more about him, I think a lot of Americans would vote for him.

It was a rally to stir the political soul of any candidate. But none was there. Only Bill Clinton, the American president, at the finale of his farewell tour of Europe, in the twilight of his term.

His was the campaigner's wave, the fence-line handshaking, the cheerleading speech to the throng stretching far down the broad mall beyond St. Michael's Square on Monday, at the last show of his week of European conferences including the

These wouldn't have been his voters anyhow, of course. But when he stood before them in the blazing evening sun, the old Clinton seemed revived, the man who pressed every hand in reach, beamed as he shared the stand with the conductor of the Odessa Symphony Orchestra, waving in time as they played "Take Me Out To The Ballgame."

Clinton had seemed subdued, almost wistful, at earlier stops, occasions of state, as though bent on leaving the image of statesman rather than that of

His summit conference with Russian President Vladimir Putin was cordial enough, by the account of both men, but without the hearty embraces of his sessions with Boris Yeltsin, retired from office now as Clinton will be at noon next Jan. 21. So ended his summit weekend in Moscow, after sessions in which Putin said he found Clinton a comfortable negotiating partner, and Clinton said it was productive, even to deal with differences candidly and clearly.

Clinton's tour at its 'last hurrah' mood

In Kiev, Clinton and President Leonid Kuchma celebrated with a champagne toast at the presidential palace Monday as the Ukrainian leader announced that the last nuclear power plant at Chernobyl, site of the 1986 disaster, will be shut down on Dec. 15. That, too, was long in the works.

Clinton showed little fire in his address to the Russian parliament Monday, a 45-minute speech with some of the elements, but none of the hearty style of a State of the Union message to Congress. He offered a series of recommendations to the Duma on economic reform, down to overhauling the tax code for fairness to attract foreign investors. This after saying that one problem in the relationship is an American tendency to press its answers to problems as though Washington knows every-

Kiev police estimated 50,000 people were in the crowd in front of Clinton. They waved small flags, the blue and yellow of Ukraine and the red, white and blue of the United States, cheered his

They had come hours earlier, to stand in 86degree heat, as Ukrainian rock stars and bands performed as they awaited Clinton. The Odessa symphony took the train up to Kiev for its part of the program.

Clinton had more advice, urging Ukrainians to build free markets for prosperity beyond the hard times that followed the fall of communism in 1991.

It was a solo. Kuchma, just re-elected president over a communist rival, stayed at the palace. This was Clinton's show.

"Do not give up," he cried. "Keep on fighting. Borites, poboryte. His translation of "Keep on fighting," which is

Dogs may soon have 'guardians'

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Dogs here may soon have to fetch the morning newspaper for their guardians, not their owners. The City Council is considering an ordinance that would change the title of pet owner to guardian.

Supporters say it will prevent animal cruelty by encouraging people to treat pets more like family members. Opponents, like Councilman Tom Eldridge, see it as a waste of time and another chance for people to roll their eyes at this liberal college town. After all, Eldridge said his chow mix Millie already runs his

The name change, one of several revisions being considered to the city's animal ordinances, was proposed by the Humane Society of Boulder Valley, a private group which runs the city's animal

The legal standing of pets would not change under the Boulder proposal. Animals are considered property in state and U.S. constitutions, said Assistant City Attorney Walt Fricke.

More than one way to raise money

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — There are fiberglass cows loitering in Chicago, pigs in Cincinnati, lizards in Orlando, Fla., and 6-foot ears of corn in Bloomington, Ill. Norfolk has mermaids.

The sculptures of the painted mythical sea sirens are part of a public art project, "Mermaids on Parade," designed to raise money for local arts groups in this coastal city.

The idea was conceived last fall and modeled after a 1998 public art project in Switzerland that featured embellished fiberglass cows. Chicago used the same concept last year with "Cows on Parade."

"We're the only ones doing mermaids," said Norfolk city spokesman Bob Batcher. "They're awesome."

Norfolk adopted a mermaid with outstretched arms as its official symbol in 1998, and mermaids have surfaced since then on signs, T-shirts and municipal stationery.

Local artists and hobbyists have been busy decorating the 40- to 50-pound forms, which are being "adopted" by sponsors for $2,000 apiece.

Most of the mermaids will be displayed outdoors, atop heavy ases. "We've got to make sure they don't swim away," batcher

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP) — The coronation of a rodeo queen has folks here bucking and hollerin'.

For the first time in 19 years, the ceremony to crown the Dacotah Stampede Rodeo Queen will be held at a site away from the annual rodeo. And coronation organizers aren't happy about it.

Traditionally, the ceremony has been held before the bull riding competition on the closing night of the rodeo. The coronation, held during the Brown County Fair, is allotted about 15 minutes.

But when organizers this year asked the fair board for 20 minutes, they were told to move the ceremony to 45 minutes before the rodeo begins, said Carol Kvasnicka, a founder of the Dacotah Stampede Queen Committee.

The coronation is now scheduled during a banquet Aug. 6, the day before the fair begins. The new queen will be introduced at the The committee suggested the extra time to crown the queen and give the audience a chance to meet Miss Rodeo America and past

Kvasnicka said the change means fewer people will attend. "We're just a little organization trying to do something good for the rodeo and the county and some girls," she said Tuesday.

Fair board members were unswayed. "We wanted to have it before the rodeo because it slows down the rodeo, and there are people with little kids there and it just keeps getting later and later," Lynda Wiedebush, a member of the Priscilla Feral, president of Friends of Animals, wants a ban on bounties paid for gopher feet during the annual Viola Gopher Count on June 15.

Animals ought to worry less about the pesky burrowers. "If these people lived in the country, and I don't know where they live, they would know that the gopher is nothing but a rodent.

It harms machinery and crops," Shea said Wednesday. The 126-year-old Gopher Count has grown into a kind of reunion in this community about 80 miles southeast of Minneapolis. There's a pie-eating contest, fireworks and a parade. And lots of gopher paws. People bring in gopher paws as evidence that the rodents were dispatched. The bounty on a pocket gopher is $1.25, and the less-troublesome striped gopher fetches 50 cents.

That's the part that bothers Friends of Animals. "It's pathetic, frankly," Feral said.

Wal-Mart victorious in Medicaid dispute

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) -Wal-Mart, which grew huge by beating the prices of competitors, scored a court victory as a judge struck down a new state Medicaid policy that reimbursed large chain pharmacies at a lower rate than smaller ones.

In Wednesday's ruling, U.S. District Judge G. Thomas Eisele called the policy unconstitutional, arbitrary and politically moti-

Eisele issued a permanent injunction against the policy, which had been put into effect April 28. Wal-Mart filed suit last

The policy paid chains with 11 or more stores an estimated cost of the average wholesale prescription price minus 17.3 percent. Pharmacies with fewer than 11 stores were paid the average price minus 10.3 percent. It was expected to save the state up to $4.5 million.

The state Department of Human Services, which oversees the Medicaid program, is considering an appeal, spokesman Joe Quinn said.

"For many wealth. There is a wealth gap in this country that we have to care about."

The House is scheduled Friday to consider a bill to gradually reduce estate taxes over 10 years at a cost plus. President Clinton is threatening a veto, citing ative. the estimated cost of $50 billion a year after repeal is completed in 2010.

Republicans, with strong backing by business and farm lobbyists, long have sought to repeal the tax, but in this election year they're gaining more Democrats than ever before. Current law exempts $675,000 of a person's estate from the tax; $1.3 million for farms and small businesses. Even though only about 2 percent of all people who die ever pay the tax — most of them quite wealthy — the stories told by farmers and small businesses about their tax fears and the high costs of estate planning are politically compelling.

"I'm afraid it will be the demise of the company," said Frank Armstrong of the National Fruit Product Co. of Winchester, Va., which makes applesauce and other products.

The poll of 800 registered voters, taken May 15-17, had a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

Many drivers mistakenly believe that cyclists have no rights on public roads and feel compelled to "teach them a lesson," deliberately endangering their lives.

The fact is, a bicycle is classified as a vehicle on the public roads in all 50 states.

Tips for drivers: 1. Don't get too close. Cyclists want to be left alone. Cyclists are not required to ride on the shoulder, on the sidewalk or 2 inches from the edge of the road.

2. Don't pass a cyclist and then slow down, stop or turn in front of him. Sometimes we are going as fast as you are. 3. Don't honk. You're likely to startle an inexperienced cyclist or a child and cause him or her to fall.

Tips for cyclists: Wear a helmet.

AMARILLO - Pampa came from behind to edge River Road 20-19 in a West League Texas game Wednesday night.

Pampa rallied for the win after trailing 17-5 at the end of two innings.

Outfielder Kyle Keith led Pampa's hitting attack with five runs-batted-in on two singles and a triple. Kyle Francis, Kevin Schaub and Adam Wright each knocked in three runs. Travis Lancaster and Michael Galloway each knocked in a Pampa second baseman Charlie Craig stifled River Road rallies with a pair of outstanding defensive plays late in the contest.

The win evened Pampa's record at 2-2.

SEATTLE (AP) — Tom Goodwin went 4-for-5 with a career-high four steals, and Colorado swiped seven in all as the Rockies beat the Seattle Mariners 6-1 Wednesday night for their first win at Safeco Field.

Goodwin is 26 for 30 in steal attempts and is tied with Florida's Luis Castillo for the most stolen bases in the major leagues.

He came home on a double steal in the first inning — the first steal of the plate by Colorado since Todd Helton against Houston on May 30, 1998.

Goodwin stole a pair of bases in the third and had another steal in the seventh. Colorado was 7-for-8 on the basepaths against catcher Tom Lampkin, with Mike Lansing, Neifi Perez and Brian Hunter also stealing. Lampkin threw out Perez.

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tigers slugger Juan Gonzalez has paid a visit to a memorial to another Puerto Rican baseball star of another era — Roberto Clemente.

When Gonzalez arrived at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium for Wednesday night's game, he first walked up a small hill to a plaza in front of the ballpark.

He spent a few minutes making his first visit to the statue of Clemente, which stands alone on the otherwise unadorned plaza.

was an exciting moment," Gonzalez said. "I'm happy and very emotional."

Puerto Ricans consider Clemente a national hero for his Hall of Fame career with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Clemente, 38 and still an active player, died in a plane crash Dec. 31, 1972, as he was taking relief supplies to earthquake victims in Nicaragua.

The 12-foot bronze statue was dedicated in 1994. It has a time line of Clemente's life and feats engraved in its circular base. Gonzalez read those items as he walked slowly around the statue, which shows Clemente in his No. 21 Pirates uniform as he drops the bat and watches the flight of a hit.

"People in Puerto Rico have asked me if I've seen the statue," Gonzalez said. "I told them I had never been to Pittsburgh."

This week's interleague Tigers-Pirates series gave Gonzalez his Pittsburgh visit.

Gonzalez was 3 when Clemente died. He said he has learned of Clemente's legacy through his close friend Luis Mayoral, who also was a close friend of Clemente's.

Mayoral, now the Tigers' Latin American liaison, visited the Clemente statue with Gonzalez.

A few moments later, Mayoral said, "Clemente's greatness is in the way he

"We've basically got to go back to the drawing board and figure out what to do with that phenomenon, No. 34," Indiana forward Jalen Rose said.

Meanwhile, Miller was 1-for-16 from the field in the worst playoff game of a career built on dramatic postseason performances. The Pacers' star guard missed shots long, short and sideways on his way to seven points, a career play-

The L.A. glitterati turned out in heavy numbers for the first finals game in the year-old Staples Center's history, and the Lakers put on a performance worthy of the stage. Los Angeles shot 68 percent in the first quarter to grab a big lead, then protected it by hitting 10of-18 shots in the fourth quarter.

Los Angeles led 77-71 when the fourth began, but O'Neal quickly got an assist on Brian Shaw's jump shot and then a rebound dunk.

Even when Shaq began to tire in the closing minutes, he continued to score with metronomic regularity. He had a layup with 7:42 to play; a leaner with 6:16 left; another layup with 5:15 left; an offensive the Lakers, 12-year veteran and rebound, a layup and a foul with

The agency, after a lengthy review, has concluded that the pesticide, chlorpyrifos — sold under the trade names Dursban and Lorsban — poses a risk to children because of its potential effects on the nervous system and possibly brain development.

For decades one of the most widely used insecticides, chlorpyrifos is found on everything from pet flea collars to garden and lawn chemicals and indoor bug sprays. It also has been used widely in agriculture to protect fruits, vegetables and grains from insects.

Under an agreement that heads off further regulations, Dow Chemical Co., will immediately halt production of chlorpyrifos for virtually all nonagricultural uses. The EPA also will impose tighter restrictions on its use on some agricultural products, specifically apples and grapes, and ban its use on tomatoes. These restrictions are designed to eliminate the chemical's residues on foods often consumed by children.

"There's concern that these products are going to remain on the shelves" and that the insecticide will continue — although at much reduced levels - be used in agriculture, said David Wallinga, a scientist for the Natural Resources Defense Council. He said that under the EPA phase-out, existing stocks of Dursban may continue to be sold for household and garden use for 18
