SANITARIUM PATIENT SHOT TO DEATH

KILLED WHILE HE LAY IN BED HELPLESS RECOVERING FROM RECENT OPERATION

Two Men and Their Wives Who Asked To Visit Sick Man Are Charged With Murder And Held Without Bond

CORPUS CHRISTI, Sept. 6.—(P)—Four persons were in Nueces county jail today charged with murder in the death of E. C. Young, Beeville filling station proprietor, who was shot to death last night as he lay helpless in bed at Spohn Sanitarium here recovering from an appendicitis operation.

Those charged were Robert Lothringer and R. G. Whittington, Beeville barbers, and Mrs. Amie Lothringer and Mrs. Hortense Whittington, wives of the two men. None of the quartet would make a statement.

Bond for the four was refused by the sheriff's department. No date yet has been set for examining trials.

Hospital attaches said Lothringer and Whittington appeared at the hospital about 9 o'clock last night and asked to see Young, who was in a private room on the second floor. They were admitted and within a few minutes three shots were heard. Attaches to the room to find Young dead; three .38 calibre bullets in his body.

There were no witnesses to the shooting. Mrs. Young and her four-year-old daughter, who were staying in a private home near the hospital, heard the three shots that killed Young.

Young was operated upon for appendicitis last Sunday.

Million Dollars Missing In The Baptist Mission

ATLANTA, Ga. Sept. 6.—(P)—The home mission board of the Southern Baptist convention today had announced itself unable to pay current salaries due to the discovery of a $1,000,000 shortage in accounts of Clinton Carnes, treasurer, who disappeared August 15.

Developments piled high as a special church committee headed by Dr. C. W. Daniel of Richmond, Va., dug deeper into the affairs of the board and Carnes.

The committee was unable to announce the approximate size of the shortage after it was found that Carnes kept a secret file in which were entered special loan transactions with more than 150 banks in the South which transactions never came under the scrutiny of regular auditors or of the church.

First court action was announced when Walter R. Brown, Baptist layman and lawyer, intervening as a church contributor, obtained a temporary injunction returnable September 29 against several possible sources of funds to rehabilitate the board.

Criminal proceedings were indicated by the announcement determination of assistant solicitor general Ed A. Stephens to begin grand jury proceedings against the mission treasurer as soon as practicable. He began conferences with the joint church committee for that purpose.

Meanwhile there was little to indicate what Carnes could have done with the money he allegedly obtained during the period of the accruing shortage, estimated to be several years, possibly eight. Nor was there any word of the missing treasurer, who vanished after telling his chauffeur he would not be home for dinner on August 15 because of a business trip to Raleigh, N. C.

Army Bombers Off To El Paso Today

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 6.—(P)—"On the line" with the break of day, warning up the motors of the huge Keystone bombers, the second bombardment squadron of the United States army, consisting of nine planes and with a personnel of 15 officers and 14 enlisted men, in command of Major Hugh J. Knerr, took the air at 6:30 o'clock today for Midland, Texas, next stop on the cross country flight from Langley Field, Va., to Los Angeles, Cal. Major Knerr said he expected to make El Paso by nightfall.

The planes landed at Shreveport airport at 4:45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon after battling the elements allmost all the way from Maxwell field, Montgomery, Ala.

DALLAS, Sept. 6.—(P)—An army bombing plane, one of nine similar ships enroute from Langley Field, Va., to Los Angeles, stopped at Love Field here for several minutes just before noon, having been forced down by motor trouble. The plane soon continued on its flight to Midland, the plane was commanded by Lieutenant Beadin. He reported the eight other ships were well ahead of him.

Cow Puncher May Be New Mexico's Next Governor

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Sept. 6.—(P)—New Mexico's cow puncher attorney general, Robert C. Dow, who has slept many a night on the range with his saddle for a pillow, is the Democratic nominee for governor of his state.

In the face of a last minute attempt stamped for Cal. D. K. D. Sellers, after earlier he had been conceded victory, Dow won the nomination last night with a majority of 94 votes at the party assembly.

Being attorney general of New Mexico has been the vocation of Dow, whose home is at Carlsbad, for the last two years, and dogging steers in rodeos throughout the United States is his avocation.

The "cow boy attorney general" is known wherever rodeos are held.

A month or so ago he was in the Chicago rodeo and more recently at El Paso, Tex., riding a borrowed horse, he roped a steer and tied him in 23 seconds.

Born and reared in Eddy county, New Mexico, "Bob" Dow started out as a boy to learn the cow puncher's art and worked at times for less than $1 a day. Then he became interested in law. He left the ranch for a time to study at the New Mexico Military Institute and to take his LL.B. at Washington and Lee. A few years divided between the ranch and legal practice carried him to the office of district attorney and two years ago he was nominated and elected as attorney general.

Last night the following Democratic nominees were named:

United States senator, long term, Jethro S. Vaughn, Albuquerque; United States senator, short term, Juan Vigil, Taos county; Congressman, John Morrow, Colfax county.

Coolidge Getting Ready To Return To The Capitol

SUPERIOR, Sept. 6.—(P)—Packing took hold of the summer white house in earnest today.

With President Coolidge's return to Washington only a few days off, the time had come for almost last minute preparations. Most of the household linens was placed away in trunks and boxes while the chief executive's bulkier personal effects such as books and papers were also packed.

Leaving such preparations to Mrs. Coolidge and the white house attendants, President Coolidge tried to make the most of his last chances for an open air life before returning to the capitol. Stating that his fishing rod would be the last thing to be packed he arranged last night to fish as usual this morning in one of the private lakes on the Cedar Island lodge.

Sleepy Burglars Awakened By Snap From Handcuffs

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(P)—The theme song to be played, strummed or yodelled as musical setting for the accompanying news item is: "Please Go' Way And Let Me Sleep."

Three men had set about the burglary of the electric manufacturing company. They carried out box after box of heavy merchandise to their car. It was hard work. Soon they began complaining in loud tones. It got so bad that the neighbors couldn't sleep.

Police were called. They found the three in their automobile slumbering. Only the snap of handcuffs about their wrists awakened Jesse Hale, George Davis and Will Gaines.

All Entries In Marathon Swim Forced To Quit

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—(P)—A sort of money prize would be paid to Georges Michel of France for his effort in the Wrigley Marathon of 21.7 miles was the question in the minds of swimming devotees and officials here today. The Parisian baker, conqueror of the English Channel and second-place man in the second annual 21-mile marathon here last year, was in excellent condition after having been forced out of the race by the chill of Lake Ontario last evening.

Michel, when hauled from the water was the sole survivor among the 199 starters, and had covered twelve and one-quarter miles in the rather laborious time of eleven hours and twelve minutes. The round French baker-man apparently strove to remain longer in the race than Ernest Vierketter, German channel victor and champion of the Rigley marathon here last year.

Vierketter covered some twelve miles when taken from the water semi-conscious at 5:42 p. m. Shortly prior to this, Roland H. Tagmeier of Seattle had given up the ghost, and shortly afterward Louis I. Mathias of Long Island, N. Y., followed, leaving Michel alone in the icy lake with evening shadows falling.

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—(P)—Officials of the Canadian national exhibition, sponsors of the annual 15 mile "swimming Marathon in Lake Toronto, announced today that a "consolation race" for a prize of $5,000 will be staged Saturday in view of the unsatisfactory ending of yesterday's swim. Of the 199 entries none was able to finish in the icy waters of the lake.

George Michel, of France, the last to leave the water, covered only 12 1/4 miles in 11 hours 12 minutes.

Lefors Road To Be Graded Soon

Surveyors from the county surveyors office here started work this morning surveying the LeFors road for widening and grading purposes which will commence immediately, according to Commissioner W. A. Taylor. The road will be widened to the necessary width for paving which was voted in the recent precinct bond issue to pave 41 miles of road in this precinct.

The LeFors road has been a cause of grief to the commissioners oil companies and motorists for the last year.

Grade work has been completed on the south of field road and the road connecting with the Clarendon highway to be paved as part of the precinct paving program. Work will start immediately on the Borger road preparing it for paving.

Trainmen Killed When Locomotive Strikes Washout

Smith To Speak In Oklahoma On Sept. Twentieth

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER Associated Press Staff Writer

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(P)—Governor Smith will carry his presidential campaign into the west the week of September 16 with three speeches in Nebraska, Oklahoma and Colorado.

The first speech will be at Omaha on September 18, the second at Okla-third at Denver September 22.

The itinerary for the first week of his tour was announced today by the Democratic nominee himself. All of his speeches will be at night, he said.

The governor will remain away from New York state the week beginning September 23, but he was unprepared today to say where the schedule would take him in that period. Neither would he indicate whether he would go to the Pacific coast or invade the south before he returned to Albany.

After the second week of his stumping trip, the nominee will go direct to Rochester for the Democratic state convention beginning October 1.

Asked what subject or subjects he would discuss in his three scheduled speeches in the West, the Governor said he could not make that public at this time. He thought, however, that at Omaha it probably would be farm reform.

He added all three speeches, which will be extemporaneous would be delivered at night, and that the same program would be followed throughout his campaign.

The nominee's special train will leave New York Sunday, September 16, and take on his party at Albany the same day, probably in the early evening.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(P)—As the time draws near for public announcement of his speaking intentions in the presidential campaign, Governor Smith continues to maintain an almost complete silence as to national party affairs while he goes about minding New York state's business at the capitol.

He is not even holding any important conferences such as usually mark the pre-stumping periods of presidential candidates, and to all outward appearances, from a national standpoint he is just watchfully waiting the hour of his departure for the first real speech making trip of his campaign.

Now and then the Democratic nominee receives a caller who has a report on prospects on Democratic success in such and such a state or district, but he is depending almost exclusively on mails and the telephone for confidential information on the progress of the party organization.

Visitors continue to flock daily in and out of the reception room at the capitol next to the Governor's private offices, but almost without exception they are sightseers.

That the telephone is one of the chief dependencies of the nominee at this time as a purveyor of political reports was evidenced during a press conference. A score of newspapermen, had barely seated themselves and taken standing positions along the walls of the executive office when the telephone buzzed. Sensing the nature of the call, the nominee shouted to his secretary, George B. Graves, in the next room:

"Have it put in the booth, George, and he was gone for several minutes."

Another step looking toward the completion of pending state business and the clearing up of affairs for his successor in the governor's chair was taken by a meeting of the state buildings and sites commission. This commission is charged with the duty of drawing up plans and obtaining ground for office structures over the state.

Of Congeniality

Terms and things are not what them seem.

Take congeniality—who can define it? One's acquaintances speak of certain individuals as congenial, although to us they may seem aloof, recessive, egotistic, or exclusive. It depends upon the point of view, of how near we are to the ones in question.

One's close friends are always congenial. Of course, they may have widely different personalities, but we learn to interpret them differently. One individual's hearty laugh and handclasp may mean no more than the quiet greeting of another type of friend—they might mean much less.

It is not given to all to wear their personalities top-side up and exposed like an electric sign. You have to dig for the gold in some characters. They reveal their charms day by day, and even year by year. That is why time tried friendships should not be discarded for new, blustery friends who seek to know everyone and have no secret assets to match the liabilities of character they may possess.

In other words, it is wrong to pass harsh judgment upon a person one does not know. The worker in public life, constantly meeting strangers, learns to cultivate his friendships gradually and knows which persons let everything in their personality out at once and which must be coaxed into the fuller acquaintanceship. Moreover, judgements should not be based upon mere business contacts. Many persons, curtailed by details, or wearing their office personalities, are quite different on their lawns, at their clubs, at church, or when not in their habitual environment.

It is inherent in human nature to be friendly. Often the person who has a weakness for appearing harsh, hard-boiled, or blustery before a new acquaintance is meek and approachable when known well. Timidity is often covered up with bluster, but no false cloaks are worn in the presence of close friends.

This is an argument for more kindness in everyday life. It is based on the assumption that most criticisms are of persons one does not know. The loss of not knowing intimately those toward whom one feels unkind is considerable. The life-long friend is often a person toward whom very little affection was felt in the first few meetings. Friendships are worth cultivating. There are no crop failures, and intensive methods can be made extensive with a little effort.

Moreover, diversification is advisable. Like many kinds of people. If they all fit one pattern it would be a monotonous world. Every person needs friends with whom he can never agree in all things. Tolerance in its broad and true meaning is then possible, and of tolerance the world has much need.

A Blessing or a Curse?

It's hard to tell, in this modern age, whether any new invention is going to turn out to be an agent of destruction or an instrument of peace.

Consider, for instance, the airplane.

In some ways the airplane is one of the greatest possible aids for breaking down barriers of prejudice, ignorance and distance between nations. Lindbergh's flight to Paris was an outstanding demonstration of that fact. When his silver plane came gliding down to Le Bourget field in the darkness, a new friendship began between the French and American people. In a very real and valuable sense, the international relations of these two nations were made better by his flight.

Similarly, the flight of the Bremen from Germany to Labrador did much to revive the old-time friendship between the United States and Germany. And no one in this country has forgotten what Lindbergh's flight to Mexico City did for Mexican-American relations.

The airplane, in addition to being a freight and passenger carrier, an instrument of exploration and a means for rapid communication, is also a war weapon of great potency.

The last war hardly did more than indicate the possibilities. There were many aerial combats, many extensive raids; yet they were as nothing to what will be done in the air in the next war. Great fleets of planes carrying hundreds of tons of explosives will fly over cities and wipe them out in one vast cataclysm. Flying navies will swarm through the air in profusion. No one, be he 500 miles behind the front, will be safe. War will be brought home to the women and children, the aged and infirm. Its horrors will be increased beyond our comprehension.

And this, also, is one of the fruits of aviation. How are we to classify the airplane, then? Is it a blessing or a curse? Will it, ultimately, do more to destroy than to build? Will there ever come a time when we will wish the airplane had never been invented?

Truly, in this modern age it is hard to pass hard and fast judgments or any new discovery.

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON — Report is that Roy Chapman Andrews had discovered in the Orient the bones of a prehistoric monster apparently as large as the Woolworth building call to mind the fact that huge and awesome animals were also flying and bounding over our own fair land once upon a time.

Not that there were any the size of the Woolworth building. In fact, most of them—probably were no larger than the ordinary street car and many about the size of an automobile. Nevertheless, they were bad things to meet on a dark night—or at any other time.

You can see their skeletons at the National Museum, including those vicious birds with fangs which give you the horrors. Generally speaking, the most familiar of those terrible beasts were the dinosaurs, which gambled on this continent a matter of 80,000,000 years ago. They were all the way from the size of chickens to at least 100 feet long.

Of more recent residence are the mastodons, whose period is counted back only 50,000 or 100,000 years.

Dinosaur bones, for all their age, are still being found. Charles W. Gilmore, curator of vertebrate paleontology at the National Museum, led a party onto the Blackfoot Indian reservation in Montana and returned recently after two and a half months, in which he collected two and a half tons of dinosaur bones.

Knowing this was dinosaur territory, Gilmore plowed into grassfree, eroded areas of the badlands. Often, he explains, a paleontologist finds fragments sticking out from the earth strata on such a hunt, but frequently he can't get to the main, essential bone source. "When worthwhile bones are found they are covered over with paper and encased in plaster of paris which is not chipped off until they reach the museum.

This trip Gilmore obtained parts of eight different kinds of dinosaurs and has high but modest hopes that he has brought back a new kind of armored dinosaur, which would be hot news to paleontologists. The curator's specimen consists of a complete skull and 160 bones, about half the bones the critter originally had.

The bones were scattered all over the place and Gilmore is having a lot of fun putting them together because if this dinosaur isn't a new species it is certainly another of whom only one trace has previously been found. The other find was near the Red Deer river in Alberta, and Gilmore has quite a few more bones than were picked up there, so it's a big thing, anyway, even if this type of dinosaur was only 13 or 14 feet long.

"The nicest part of the whole work", Mr. Gilmore told your correspondent, "is to find a second specimen adding to existing knowledge of the skeletal structure of something found before. We seldom find a full skeleton. They're generally built up on a series of discoveries."

The prize bones, of course, are specimens new to science. For instance, a new kind of pterodactyl was recently found in Oregon. It was the first skeleton of the bird to be found west of the Rocky Mountains and thus extended its known geographical range. One never can tell what will turn up—think of the reptile bird with teeth which never flew and was found millions of years after his time in Kansas!

Noted Methodist Missionary Dies From Old Wounds

CINCINNATI, Sept. 6.—(P)—The Right Rev. Joseph Crane Hartzell, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church for Africa, died here today. His death was due to injuries received when he was bound and beaten by robbers in his home at Blue Ash, near here June 1.

Bishop Joseph C. Hartzell, known as the David Livingstone of Methodism, gave 20 years of his life to the spreading of Christianity in the heart of Africa as a representative of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Receiving as a gift from Cecil Rhodes, the British "Empire builder," 39,000 acres of the site of Umatilla in Rhodesia, at the time the British government built its railroad across Africa, Bishop Hartzell developed an educational, industrial and missionary center which has since his retirement been enhanced by more than $50,000 by the church.

Bishop Hartzell was active in eastern Rhodesia and East Africa, the east coast and Liberia, on the Congo and in Angola in the West coast and in the Madeira Islands.

When he retired in 1916, the church estimated he had given 68,000 hours of service to the natives in Africa.

While he was living in retirement at his Blue Ash home last June, two men came to the Hartzell home and asked permission to use a phone, while a third remained in a car outside. The housekeeper protested but the kindly churchman, bade them enter. Within a few minutes the bishop became suspicious and ordered the men to leave. While the housekeeper ran for aid, the men attacked the bishop. His thigh bone was broken and a deep slash was cut in his head. Because of his age his wounds never healed. The strangers then took his gold watch and wallet containing $15.

John Coolidge Is At Grandmother's In Northampton, Mass.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 6.—(P)—John Coolidge is unengaged and jobless.

Here to visit his grandmother, Mrs. Elmina Goodhue, he made both of those points clear in an interview after coming from Brule, Wis., where he spent a vacation with his parents.

He arrived by way of New York City where yesterday he talked with W. A. May, treasurer of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad while awaiting train connections for this city.

Frequent reports have attributed to him a desire to enter railroading, while others, equally unconfirmed by either John or President Coolidge, have represented him as seeking an opening in the radio business.

In the same conversation he took occasion to deny that he was betrothed to Florence Trumbull, daughters of the Governor of Connecticut, in whose company he has been frequently.

KILLED IN STREET AFFRAY
GALVESTON, Sept. 6.—(P)—Paul Kreider, 30, Galveston, was shot to death in a street affray here last night. Pete Combe also of Galveston, faced a preliminary hearing today on a charge of murder in connection with Kreider's death.

Prisoner Makes Good His Words "I Will Escape"

PARIS, Sept. 6.—(P)—Dr. Pierre Bourrat, who declared in open court when convicted of murder "I will escape," has made good his word in France's penal colony in the tropical forest of French Guiana.

Dr. Bourrat and two others escaped from the hospital at St. Louis Marconi, off which is the notorious Devil's Island, where incorrigible prisoners are sent.

The doctor had always maintained he was innocent, and his lawyer was so convinced of his client's blamelessness that he wrote a book which caused his disbarment.

Dr. Bourrat, a brilliant Marseilles physician who was decorated in the war for valor, was sentenced to the penal settlement for life in March 1927 for killing Paul Rumebe, a war comrade and patient.

Ten Refugee Nuns Plan To Establish Convent In Dallas

DALLAS, Sept. 6.—(P)—Ten refugee nuns of the Carmelite order have arrived here if present anti-Catholic sentiment continues to prevail in Mexico, it was learned by the Dallas Times Herald today.

If such a cloister should be located here, it would be the first in Texas. Dallas girls have asked permission to enter the community.

The process of the group is a former society girl of Havana, Cuba, and the others are native Mexicans.

Commission Faced With Proposal To Control Oil

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 6.—(P)—The Oklahoma corporation commission was faced, at a meeting scheduled for Tulsa today, with a proposal to extend to the entire state oil conservation policies already applied to the seminoles pool.

The meeting was called to act on a petition filed late in August by the conservation committee of the Mid-continent Oil and Gas association and the advisory and operators' committee. These seek restriction of Oklahoma's daily oil production of 100 barrels a day.

The plan would not greatly affect the Little River area, restrictive program already in effect there. However, Ray M. Collins, umpire of the Seminoles pool, was reported to have agreed, after a conference with the Seminoles advisory committee and officers of the Retter Foster corporation, to seek minor changes in the Little River regulations.

The Retter Foster company sought and was denied a permanent injunction in the United States district court at Oklahoma City, against enforcement of an order of the corporation commission curbing production in this area.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilmas of Dallas are guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Craven. Mrs. Wilmas is Mrs. Craven's sister.

Publication Of Ferguson Forum May Cease Soon

AUSTIN, Sept. 6.—(P)—Former Governor James E. Ferguson, announced the probable suspension of publication of the Ferguson Forum, said to have been issued for the past eleven years, in the current number of the publication.

Lack of an adquet number of subscribers was given as the cause. Final decision on permanent discontinuance will be made between now and October 1, Ferguson said. He added he would like to "keep going" at least two more years.

"The main thing the Forum would like to keep going for would be to pull the 'I told you so' on the present highway commission when the next legislature gets a real investigation under way," he said.

"Living Bond" Is Released After Investigations

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Sept. 6.—(P)—John Crosby, Jr., Villa Acuna youth who offered himself as "living bond" for Forrest Whitehead, Del Rio ranchman, after the death of John Kastner, following a fight at Villa Acuna last Saturday, has been released by Mexican authorities and last night rejoined his friend on the American side, according to information received in San Antonio today by Mrs. A. B. Whitehead, sister-in-law of Forrest Whitehead. The two spent the night at Whitehead's home at Del Rio, Mrs. Whitehead said.

Mrs. Whitehead revealed young Crosby had not been taken to Piedras Negras, as was first reported, to stand trial for the slaying of Kastner, but his mother, who owns the hotel at Villa Acuna, in which the fight occurred, technically had taken her son's place. While not actually under arrest, Mrs. Whitehead said, Mrs. Crosby had gone to Piedras Negras to clear up the situation and save her son from being taken to the border city.

Mrs. Whitehead gained her information by a long distance telephone conversation with Del Rio.

Kastner died at Villa Acuna Sunday, Whitehead, who admitted having engaged in a fist fight with him, was arrested, and then released when young Crosby agreed to vouch for him. When Whitehead did not appear for a hearing, Crosby surrendered.

WHIRLWIND by ELEANOR EARLY. CHAPTER XII. CAPTAIN HANNA was short and fat and jolly, with a rolling gait and a big, loud laugh. John Arnold was a pudgy little man and the hair on the top of his head was thin and getting thinner. He had a small black mustache and a sharp little nose and a tremendous chin. Mr. Arnold was an antique dealer. Eustis was tall and slim. His hair was light brown and wavy. He wore it rather long and had a habit of shaking it back from his forehead impatiently. His eyes were blue and his skin very pale. His mouth was well-shaped, with lips so vivid they almost seemed to have been varnished. He had a crooked little whimsical smile, and one eyebrow quirked up when he talked. "He looks," thought Sybil, "like a hungry poet. I'll bet Mab would like to cook him a good meal and run her fingers through his hair." Arnold was one of those people who love to find mutual acquaintances. "So you come from Boston?" he queried. "Now I used to know a lot of people in Boston. I'm from New Haven myself. Let's see—do you know George Tracy? And the Osgoods?—they're the woolen people. You don't? Well, now, that's strange. I suppose you know Mrs. Young—Mrs. Leon Young? Fine old lady..." Eustis was quieter. "I've asked the steward to bring up Martinis," he said. "Perhaps you had rather have something else?" Mab was trying desperately to look sophisticated. "I simply adore them!" she exclaimed. "And when they came she whispered excitedly to Sybil, "Do you eat the foolish olive, or let it lay?" The captain had left. "Make yourselves at home," he told them. "I'll be in later." EUSTIS, presently, began to devote himself to Sybil. Arnold had Mab in a cozy corner, chatting of Sandwich glass. "I've a precious dolphin candlestick I'd like to give you," Sybil heard him say, while Mab looked as if he would like to choke him. "I've in Sybil tried to make the conversation four-sided. Eustis could positively rude. "I'm up on antiques," he announced. "And John can't talk about anything else." "You must give me an autographed copy." "I'll do that for you." "Darling!" Eustis's arms closed tight around her. She trembled, but he found her trembling. His body against hers was trembling. His hair had fallen across her forehead. Soft, blond hair, beautiful in the moonlight. His eyes blazed into hers. He held her with arms that felt like steel. Then he took his mouth away, and whispered against her lips. "Kiss me." Obediently she relaxed, and her body became soft and clinging. He freed her arms and she put them about his neck. "Yes," she said. "THEN it was over. He stood with his hands on the rail, and she noticed how white his knuckles were under the fair skin. "I didn't mean to do it so soon," he said. "Oh, it doesn't make any difference. I'll never see each other again after this trip." "You'll come out with me tomorrow night?" "Yes." "And every night until we re-appear?" "Yes." "Sybil, I'm wild about you." She shrugged her shoulders and gathered Mab's scarf about her. "It's getting chilly, isn't it?" "But don't you care at all that love you?" "You think I should be flattered because there's something physical about me that intrigues you?" "But you don't understand." "Oh, yes I do. That's the trouble." He left her at her stateroom door. "Good night, Princess." "Good night, Foolish." MABEL was reading in her berth. "And you said you weren't a home wrecker! It was bad enough Sybil Thorne, to take my eyes. But to go off and leave me with the junk man..." "But you sent me your journal, Mab!" "I know, honey. Ain't life tick-dickens?" Sybil undressed slowly. Cold creamed her face with abstracted deliberation and sat with a hair brush in her hand, gazing meditatively at nothing at all. "Snap out of it, kid," advised Mab, slipping a finger between the pages of her book. "Missus, Craig, dear?" She leaned from her upper berth solitiously. "You can't tell me you're not in love, Sybil Thorne!" She peered intently at Sybil's pale face and tired eyes. "My dear, you look like the devil. What's the matter?" Sybil slipped her satin coat from her shoulders and stood in her nightgown at the open port hole. There was something in the pungent, salty night. Something in the spray that beat upon her face. Something reckless and disturbing. "You're a sentimental old maid, Mab," she opted, tartly. "And you'd have 40 hits if you knew the half of it." She snatched up the light and tumbled into her berth. "Tomorrow night!" she was stretched along her burning body, and a curious sensation welling within her. A strange, exultant heat—mostly in her stomach, making it distressingly hollow. "Tomorrow night! Tomorrow night!" (To Be Continued) Sybil begins a dangerous affair with Richard Eustis. Amazing developments in the next chapter.

Athletics Need Games As Yanks Get Percentage

By WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN, Associated Press Sports Writer

The Athletics stand in need of ball games, even though the Yanks did what they could to help by dividing a pair with the Senators at Ruppert stadium yesterday. If the champs win two of their remaining three with Washington, the Mackmen cannot invade the stadium on Sunday in first place even by sweeping five at Boston. Such a turn would send the contenders into the big series in a virtual tie, with the Yankees holding a percentage advantage.

If Messrs. Hadley and Braxton should turn out to be as tough as they look, the Macks could gain first place unchallenged on five straight over the Red Sox, and could enter a virtual tie in four out of five—a more legitimate Philadelphia expectancy. The veteran manager of the Athletics counts on three victories in the four games at the Yankee stadium, and his immediate objective is to jockey his team into a position where first place can be taken and held on such a performance.

Although the New York lead this morning remained two games, the Athletics were in a better position for the simple reason that they trailed by only two games in the losing column. Until yesterday's even break by the Yankees, the Philadelphia deficit was marked by a difference of three losing engagements and of only one in the winning column. The runners-up were idle while the champions were at work on the Senators.

Jones, who likes to demonstrate that Huggins erred in trading him, held the Yanks to six hits and one run in the opening clash yesterday while his mates fell upon Pippas for enough of each in the seventh to give Sam a victory, 3 to 1. Burke and the elongated Weaver were nowhere nearly so effective in the second skirmish, and Heimach registered an 8 to 3 win.

In a battle of the lower depths, the Tigers turned on the White Sox to win 10 to 2 after the Sox had maltreated the Bengals in a most shameful manner through all the early games of the series. Other clubs in the American league were unscheduled.

The Giants cleaned up their 1928 affairs with the Phillies by winning a 14 to 3 decision for Larry Benton at the Baker bowl, his twenty-third of the season.

The only other activity in the National league yesterday was at Boston where the down-trodden Braves turned to slay the Robins by 9 to 2 and 7 to 1. Even this dismal finish left Brooklyn with fifteen victories over the Boston Braves in twenty-two engagements.

Dallas Steers Win From Spudders By 3 to 1 Yesterday

(By The Associated Press)

A sore arm, healing suddenly, beat one Texas league team yesterday while another—an ordinary left arm presumably in fair trim—let down the team behind it to defeat.

Young Victor Frazier, whose valuable member had been in bad shape "got well" and passed out to first place. Wichita Spudders only five hits. Dallas winning 3 to 1. It was the second time in two days that the Steers had braked the rushing Spud offense.

First, one of the Beaumont left handed men, was extremely erratic, erring four times and making two wild pitches. The errors and poorly aimed heaves having been counted up, the Houston Buffs there upon decided to take six runs, to the Exporters four.

For an unfortunate slip of sweating fingers gripping a batted ball, Shreveport paid the price of a game, Fort Worth winning, four to three, when Sport Tiny Owens threw wild to first and let in three runs.

Waco and San Antonio sat in the shade, not having had schedules.

Ed Gober and his Pampa Grays will take the field Sunday afternoon against the Amarillo All-Stars, the team that nearly eliminated them from the Amarillo tournament. The All-Star team was the only team to max the Grays string of victories during the eight days of play.

Tickets are going fast and a large crowd is expected to attend the game. An opening game between the Roxana Petroleum company team and the Magnolia Petroleum company's nine in the Industrial league will start at 2 o'clock. The second and feature game will be called promptly at 3:30 o'clock. The teams in the industrial league are playing fast ball and two hard fought battles are assured.

It is probable that either Gus Ketchum or Slim French will be in the box for the locals while either Stockton or McDonald will be the opposing moundman. Gober will use Close, the most valuable youngster in the Amarillo tournament, on first base. He is one of the fastest first sackers in the state and with Seitz also in the infield something is sure to happen.

The games will be played at Magnolia park at the east end of Foster and Kingsmill avenues.

Negotiations are being completed with Texas, winners of the Denver tournament, for a three game series to be played either here or at Texon next week-end.

"From now on - Chesterfield!"

Mild enough for anybody . . . and yet they Satisfy***

* A PLAIN, unvarnished statement of fact: "Mild enough for anybody and yet they satisfy". If you will light a Chesterfield and smoke it critically you will find no hint of harshness, but a certain mildness, with a rich, wholesome flavor. Chesterfields satisfy without being harsh. They're mild without being insipid or tasteless.

Butcher Boy Lover Defense Based On Fainting of Woman

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Testimony that Mrs. Myrtle Mellus was subject to fainting spells while drinking intoxicants, today had a place in the defense of Leo P. Kelly, butcher boy, charged with her murder.

Mrs. Mae Switzer, wife of a wealthy Los Angeles merchant and friend of Mrs. Mellus and Kelley during their five years romance, yesterday declared as the first witness for the defense that "many times" she had seen Mrs. Mellus fall in fainting spells, in the six months preceding her death.

"What was she doing at the time?" the witness was asked.

"She was drinking," Mrs. Switzer replied.

Upon the testimony of Mrs. Switzer defense attorneys said, they hoped to prove that Kelley did not kill Mrs. Mellus but that she died of natural causes, complicated by injuries received in falls when she fainted.

The Sergeants, it was announced by one paper will be immediately ordered back into military service on their return. Their terms expire in November.
