One Man Rule in Illinois May End With Leader

ALBANY, Aug. 9—(AP)—Governor Smith has decided to go to Chicago to attend the funeral of George E. Brennan.

It is the intention of the Democratic presidential nominee to leave this evening on the Twentieth Century Limited train, which would put him in Chicago at 9:45 a. m. (Central time) tomorrow.

The Governor decided to drop work on his acceptance speech to be present at the funeral of the Illinois Democratic leader, who in recent years had been one of Smith's staunch supporters.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9—(AP)—Severely simple funeral services for George E. Brennan might have arranged, will be conducted tomorrow for the man upon whom Illinois Democrats had pinned their hopes for leadership in the present state and national campaign.

A private service at the home and services at Our Lady of Mount Carmel church have been planned. Immediately following the Democratic national committee's death early yesterday, the family requested there be no floral tributes.

Pall bearers have been chosen from among men with whom Mr. Brennan was closely associated by ties of friendship, politics and business. Two of the pall bearers will be police captains Michael Igoe, whose name has been most frequently heard in all discussions concerning a successor to the leadership of Illinois Democrats in another Igoe, minority leader in the lower house of the state assembly, has been in steady sympathy and support of the Brennan party rule.

There was some sentiment favoring a plan by which the destinies of the party in Illinois would be directed by a group rather than an individual. Floyd Thompson, Democratic candidate for governor, in praising the work of Mr. Brennan added that Democracy in Illinois "is not a one-man party," and that the state and national campaign would continue to be conducted as already planned.

Great French Flier Dies of Injuries

PARIS, Aug. 9—(AP)—Maurice Drouhin, one of France's foremost pilots, died today from injuries received in the final test flight of the plane in which he hoped shortly to realize his life's ambition—A flight from Paris to New York.

When the plane Arce-En-Ciel (Rainbow) crashed on the landing field at Orly airbase yesterday it killed the mechanic Lannet. Manuel, another member of the trans-Atlantic crew was injured, as was Gianoli, an engineer.

Last summer, Drouhin, was Charles A. Levine's pilot when he planned a westward trans-Atlantic flight. Disagreements occurred, however, and the flight was called off and Mrs. Levine paid the pilot 100,000 francs due him under his contract with her husband.

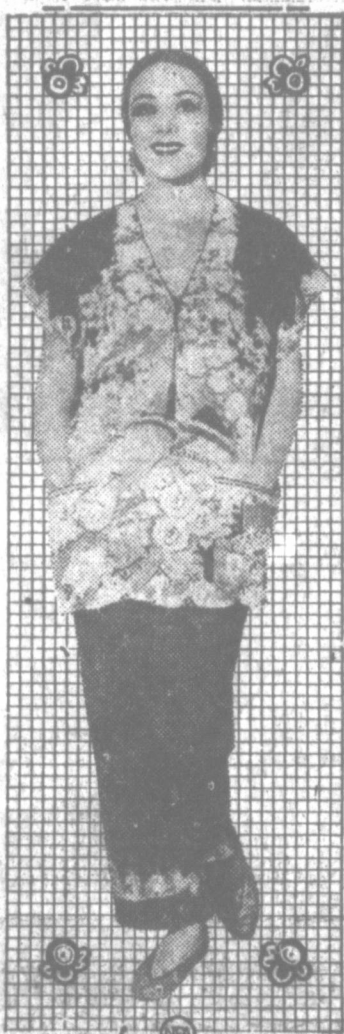

Ben Lipsby of Vernon is assisting in the management of the K. C. store this week. He is a brother of Mrs. M. Fielmsmith and Mrs. Morris Levine.

President Underfer is the Texas chairman of the anti-Smith group.

HURRICANE IS BACK ON SEA

Florida Damage Huge But No Lives Are Lost

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 9—(AP)—Passage into the gulf of the tropical hurricane which ravaged part of the Florida coast and tore across Central Florida from east to west, was announced today by officials of the Western Union Telegraph company after checking with other offices in the affected area.

The hurricane passed into the Gulf of Mexico last night about fifty miles north of Tampa. Coupled with the astonishing news that no lives had been reported lost, were figurative calculations of millions in damage from West Palm Beach to Melbourne on the east coast, and across almost to Tampa on the west.

These points formed extremities of a storm torn square, the other sides of which remained to be determined by the westward course of the storm, which apparently was diminishing in intensity. Storm warnings were raised as far west as Mobile indicating that the disturbance was bound for the palachicola curve of the gulf coast line.

Out of twenty-three cities and towns in the zone of winds ranging from 40 to 110 miles an hour in velocity, came fitful dribblings of information that gave almost identical accounts of devastation. This held true for all except the Lake Okechobee district where flood waters were threatening crops and small communities as tributaries rose under the impetus of 18 inches of rainfall in 24 hours. The lake had risen two feet.

Civil War in Yugoslavia Feared Following Death of Raditch, Fiery Leader of Croatian Element There

VIENNA, Aug. 9—(AP)—Death of Stefan Raditch, fiery Croatian peasant leader, as a result of a shooting in the Chamber of Deputies, is causing anxiety in Europe as well as Jugoslavia.

Belief was held in some quarters today that the situation contained at least possibility of civil war for Jugoslavia unless outside influences were exerted.

Troops were parading today through streets of Zagreb, where Raditch died last night. All places of entertainment were closed.

Great disturbances in view of the intense resentment of the Croats against the Jugoslavia government party whom they hold responsible for the shooting were feared.

That such disorders might not long remain local was the fear that was causing deep anxiety elsewhere.

The bitterness of the Croats toward what they regard as Serbian domination is well known. Prospects of a reconciliation seemed hopeless at present, especially since a parliamentary commission has voted in favor of ratifying the Nettuno convention with Italy in the face of bitter Croatian opposition. The Nettuno convention permits Italians to own land along the Dalmatian coastal line.

LONDON, Aug. 9—(AP)—The Morning Post said today the death of Stefan Raditch was of "incalculable consequence not only to Jugoslavia but to the whole edifice of European peace. . . . The shot which wounded Raditch brought the Balkan volcano to the verge of eruption."

Former Pampa Boy Saved Comrade Then Fell With Plane

Cadet John B. Dawson, former Pampa boy who was killed last Friday when his plane crashed at Kelly field, died the death of a hero. The story of the accident was received here this morning following a statement made by Cadet William J. Crosswell, who landed safely.

At a height of 4,000 feet, the plane Cadet Dawson was flying became unmanageable and Cadet Crosswell made the first jump. His parachute caught on the wing of the plane and he was being carried to the earth with the plane. Seeing the predicament of his comrade, the plucky Pampa boy crawled to the edge of the wing and loosened Crosswell's parachute allowing him to fall clear.

When that feat had been accomplished, it was too late for Cadet Dawson to clear himself from the falling plane and he was carried to his death.

Cadet Dawson while in Pampa was part owner of the Jumping Jack Tire shop on West Foster avenue. He was in partnership with C. A. McMillan, who is also training to be a pilot.

COTTON DROPS TO LOW LEVEL

Buyers Afraid Estimate By Government Is Too Low

NEW YORK, Aug. 9—(AP)—Cotton prices broke $4 to $7 a bale from yesterday's high levels on the New York Cotton Exchange today under heavy selling by Wall Street, Liverpool, and southern interests.

The trade apparently was not disposed to accept yesterday's government crop estimate of 14,291,000 bales as a positive indication of crop prospects in view of favorable weather conditions recently in the south.

The market declined to within a quarter cent a pound of yesterday's low levels, October, which sold as high as 20.75 cents a pound, declined to 19.33 cents, dropped to 19.25.

At the same time there will be a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus asked for L. G. Brackett, alleged operator of the track, arrested on opening night for "making books on a dog race."

Du Pont Resigns as G. M. C. Official

NEW YORK, Aug. 9—(AP)—Pierre S. du Pont submitted his resignation today as chairman of the board of General Motors Corporation for the reason that he felt that his activities in connection with the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment might give the impression that the corporation was involved in that movement. The resignation was not accepted but Du Pont was accorded a leave of absence.

OKLAHOMA AND TEXAS BANKS IN BANDIT RAIDS

MSKOUGEE, Okla., Aug. 9—(AP)—The Citizens National bank of Muskogee was robbed of approximately $3,000 by three robbers about noon today.

INEZ, Victoria County, Texas, Aug. 9—(AP)—An unmasked robber held up the Inez State bank about 9:30 a. m. today and escaped with between $400 and $500 after locking the cashier and clerk in the vault.

The robber entered shortly after the bank opened and another waited outside in a car.

"Stick 'em up," he told Cashier John C. Bianchi and Miss Willie Lee Bailey, clerk, as he entered. "Where's the money?" he demanded, according to Bianchi.

Told that the money was in a drawer, the robber forced the two bank employees into the vault, scooped up the currency in the till, overlooking some small change, and dashed out a door to a closed automobile, in which two men were seen to leave town.

The vault was almost airtight and the two employees had begun to suffer from lack of oxygen when they were liberated. John Prukop, blacksmith, coming to the bank to cash a check soon after the bandits disappeared, heard appeals for help from the vault and immediately turned in the alarm.

Mr. Bianchi called the combination of the vault lock to those outside but the door refused to open. Some one suggested an acetylene torch, but soon it was pried open and Bianchi and Miss Bailey liberated.

Henry C. Koontz, vice-president of the bank, said a complete check up of the loss had not been made but that it was between $400 and $500.

The bandit who entered the bank wore overalls and was clean shaven, Bianchi said.

The other man, waiting outside in the car, was described as about the age of his companion, 40, and to have a mustache.

A posse was organized by Deputy Sheriff R. A. Rogan as soon as the alarm had been given and roads in all directions were guarded.

One arrest was reported at Gollisid and officers were sent there to see whether they could identify the suspect.

Thousand Killed as Volcano Engulfs Small Island

BATAVIA, Java, Aug. 9—(AP)—According to reports transmitted by a resident of Timor, nearly the entire island of Paloeveh, Dutch East Indies, has been destroyed by eruption of the Rokatinda volcano on August 4 and 5. Six villages were destroyed by fire. The death toll was believed to be nearly a thousand.

Six hundred persons were injured when hit by fragments. Further casualties were caused by submersion of the whole seaboard of the island through an earthquake accompanying the eruption.

Paloeveh Island, also known as Rissa Rajah Island, lies about 5 miles off the north coast of Flores Island, one of the larger of the Malay Archipelago islands. It is about four miles in diameter and rises to a peak of 4,900 feet high which is covered with trees to its summit.

Remainder of the islanders, numbering 5,000, were stated to be safe. It was feared nine native boats en route from Celebes Islands to Paloeveh foundered with their crews. The Dutch resident of Timor is proceeding to the scene of the disaster.

LEASES BRING $300,000 CASH IN BIG TRADE

Cockrell-McIlroy Co., Buys Way Into Gray Field

HIGH GRAVITY AREA INCLUDED

New Operators Expected to Encourage Drilling

For a cash consideration of $300,000 the Cockrell-McIlroy Oil company yesterday completed the purchase of a half interest in the Shamrock Oil Co., Inc., large operators in Gray county, he deal included leases in the Bowers-McGee pool the LePors area and the southeastern portion of the county.

The Shamrock Oil company holds leases amounting to 1,787 acres in the county and has several producing wells south of LePors where the majority of the holdings are situated.

In a telephone conversation with Mr. McIlroy this morning at company headquarters in Amarillo, he stated to the News that a location has been made and material on the ground to drill a well in section 50, block 25, H. and G. N. R. survey. This well will be a diagonal offset to the Texas company's 3 Chapman in the same section, which came in last Friday for 1,000 barrels of 44 crude a day.

Wherever the Cockrell-McIlroy Oil company leases are there are always drilling activities and this is the first real step the company has made to take up leases in Gray county. The company has been doing most of its operating in Hutchinson county.

The land in the deal included the following tracts:

The east half of the west half of section 86, block B-2; the west half of the southwest quarter of section 65, block B-2; the northeast quarter of the southwest quarter, the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter, the east half of the northwest quarter, and the west half of the southwest quarter of section 66, block B-2; the south half of the southeast quarter of section 85, block B-2; the west half of the northwest quarter of section 85, block B-2; and the west half of the northwest quarter, and the west half of the southeast quarter, of section 95, block B-2, all in the Bowers-McGee pool, on land owned by J. B. Bowers and Mrs. Maggie Hopkins.

The west half of the northeast quarter of section 31, block 25; the east half of the northwest quarter of section 31, block 25; 10 acres along the west line of the east half of the northwest quarter of section 31, block 25; all the northwest quarter of section 49, block 25; the south 80 acres of the west 140 acres of the east 177 acres of section 30, block 25; the east 137 acres of section 50, block 25; 30 acres of the west 140 acres of section 50, block 25; 40 acres in the south central part of section 50, block 25; all the southwest quarter of section 52, block 25 and the east half of the southwest quarter of section 50, block 25, all in the LePors area running north and east.

Practically all this land is in proven or semi-proven territory.

TWINKLES

It may be fair and warmer Friday night but that is also the time to get warmer on our fair.

The attitude of some farmers is that if you kill a rooster they would like to make you pay alimony for the hens.

It does look as if some employment agency could find jobs for such capable scholars as John Coolidge and Gene Tunney, both of whom contemplate matrimony as soon as they get settled.

How Fairs Grow

Having launched the Pampa fair again, this city must give much thought and work toward making it a success. There are few worse things than a poor fair, nor many more interesting than a good one.

Many persons, not one man or a few men, can make fairs successful. Community co-operation is the primary requirement, because what is exhibited must come from many sources. And mere attendance is not noteworthy unless it is in response to real attractions.

The agricultural and livestock exhibits are highly important. For a season or two, quality, rather than quantity, is apt to dominate these departments. In fact, the purpose of the fair is to encourage their production. While a fair is an end in itself, it is also a means toward community development.

The women's department can be made of intense interest. The household exhibits, textile work, flowers, and other divisions can be made outstanding through the efforts of clubs and individuals.

The farm implement sections, merchants' booths, and similar departments are educational as well as interesting. Entertainment features, especially for the first year, will be stressed. It should be possible to have same races, even if only the amusing "wreck car" variety. Fireworks never fail to appeal to young and old. A football game should be a big drawing card, since school will be well started by the time the fair opens.

Lack of buildings is the greatest present handicap. By adding a few structures each year, however, a plant may be quickly developed. Permanency is essential, since it will be remembered that the old fair, tented, literally "blew away". Pampa's fair offers a fine opportunity for exhibiting our industrial and manufactured products. The variety of home produced materials is surprising when one counts the products made in this territory.

The fair should point the way to better farming and better farm homes, not to mention the value to the city folk, whose problems in this age are not radically different. A county agent to foster the farm development and help assemble the community exhibits would be of great aid. The farming people deserve this technical aid and recognition, such as the State, through the extension service of A. & M college, offers. It is to be expected that the county commissioners, who have coming in for future work, will be able to inaugurate the county agent plan at once.

Prof. J. L. Lester, George Briggs, and their committees have a gigantic task in reviving a fair that has been dormant several years. Let's support them.

CAPITOL News

WASHINGTON—After the Agrarian leaders had held the floor on the Mexican scene for several days—long enough to force Luis Morones and his chief men from the government—other elements among the Obregonistas, much more practical in their handling of affairs, asserted their influence.

Aided by the careful but firm policy of President Calles, they appear to have forestalled the possibility of serious outbreaks.

The announcement that Aaron Saenz would probably be the choice of Congress for provisional president has, temporarily at least, put the extremists in the background.

Saenz is less than 40 years old. He is primarily a civilian, although he holds a military title. Of all those who surrounded Obregon he was the closest to his chief. He was with Obregon when he emerged from his farm in Northern Mexico to become the most victorious commander in the revolutionary ranks.

Obregon's Right-hand Man. He became Obregon's chief of staff and entered Mexico City at his commander's side when the Western army overthrew the reactionary Victoriano Huerta.

When the revolution ended, Saenz returned to civil life. Obregon made him under-secretary of foreign affairs and later made him full minister when Paul was transferred from that post to the treasury. So well did Saenz perform his task that Calles, when he assumed the presidency, reappointed him minister of foreign affairs. He left the post in 1927 to take the governorship of his native state of Nueva Leon and to take charge of Obregon's campaign for presidency.

Saenz is a realist in close contact with Mexico's internal problems, as well as those problems which are constantly in the foreground because of the great amount of foreign capital in the country.

It was Saenz who conducted the long diplomatic contest on the oil question between Mexico and the administration at Washington. It has been recognized on all sides that he handled his part with great intellectual ability. His firmness in standing up for what he considered Mexico's sovereign rights never descended to truculence. He kept his end of the correspondence on a high plane until a way was found to arrive at a common agreement.

Saenz's achievements are of the character which would seem to justify his election as provisional president at this period of Mexican history. He is not of the ruthless type which might seek to impose his will on a people who are still living mentally in a more or less feudal atmosphere. Democracy in Mexico is a hope rather than an accomplishment.

Will Avoid Bloodshed

But Saenz ought to be able to induce the various factions to compromise their differences and avoid plunging Mexico again into the chaos of civil war. He is an Obregon man and apparently a Calles man, as well. With the living support of Calles and the unqualified backing of the followers of the dead Obregon, he ought to get off to a good start.

There seems to be no doubt that President Calles is sincere in his resolution to leave the presidency when his term expires. According to informed persons who know Calles and Mexico, only an attempt of some faction or factions to create a condition of civil war before his time expires would cause him to continue in office after his legal term is up.

A very pretty social affair of yesterday was the informal breakfast with which Mrs. M. A. Finney entertained at 10 o'clock, complimenting Mrs. L. E. Chiles, who with Mr. Chiles left shortly after the party for Fort Worth, Ark., where they make their home temporarily.

Informal Breakfast Given in Honor of Mrs. L. E. Chiles

A very pretty social affair of yesterday was the informal breakfast with which Mrs. M. A. Finney entertained at 10 o'clock, complimenting Mrs. L. E. Chiles, who with Mr. Chiles left shortly after the party for Fort Worth, Ark., where they make their home temporarily.

Mrs. Finney's home was doubly attractive for simple but beautiful decorations of garden flowers. A bowl of vari-colored blossoms centered the table, where covers were laid for the following: Mrs. Chiles, Mrs. A. Cole, Mrs. George Walstad, Mrs. H. H. Hicks, Mrs. J. T. Clark, Mrs. L. N. McCullough, Mrs. Raymond Harrah, Mrs. Silar Faulkner, Miss Hazel Byrd of Waldron, Ark., and the hostess.

A miscellaneous shower was presented the guest of honor before her departure. During the year they have lived in Pampa, Mr. and Mrs. Chiles have formed many friendships, and their departure is much regretted in social circles. The party of Tuesday morning was the second farewell courtesy to be extended Mrs. Chiles, members of the Amusu Bridge club having given her a shower of handkerchiefs at their meeting on Tuesday afternoon.

Two Amusu Club Members Honored at Party Tuesday

Mrs. George Walstad was a charming hostess when she entertained members of the Amusu Bridge club and other friends on Tuesday afternoon. Her home was attractively decorated for the occasion with many bouquets of garden blossoms and cut flowers. The tables and score tablets were decorated with floral motifs and flower-shaped mint cups marked the places when refreshments were served.

Mrs. W. W. Merten and Mrs. L. E. Chiles, popular club members who are moving away from the city, were presented with showers of lovely handkerchiefs. Mr. and Mrs. Merten are going to California to live, after spending a year in this city, while Mr. and Mrs. Chiles are moving to Arkansas.

Those who attended this delightful social affair were: Mrs. L. N. McCullough, Mrs. P. A. Bratton, Mrs. Lynn Boyd, Mrs. C. P. Buckler, Mrs. J. M. Dodson, Mrs. W. M. Craven, Mrs. Silar Faulkner, Mrs. R. W. Mitchell, Mrs. Alex Schneider, Jr., Mrs. M. A. Finney, Mrs. Jarrel Smith, Mrs. L. E. Chiles, Mrs. T. B. Hughey, Mrs. John V. Andrews, Mrs. P. C. Ledrick, Mrs. Lee Ledrick, Mrs. J. S. Wynne, Mrs. Charles Thomas, Mrs. DeLea Vicars, Mrs. Geo. Wolfe, Mrs. Kahalia, Mrs. Tom Rose, Mrs. Rainouard, Miss Hazel Bird, and Miss Marion Barnes.

Mrs. Tom Morris Hostess at Small Party Wednesday

Mrs. Tom Morris entertained with two tables of bridge Wednesday afternoon, having as guests the following: Mrs. C. E. Tucker, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. O. K. Gaylor, Mrs. Foger, Mrs. W. A. Crawford, Mrs. Austin, and Mrs. C. C. Cockerill.

In the six games Mrs. Austin made high score and Mrs. Jones low. Charming favors were presented and afterwards a salad course was served.

Christian Endeavor Gives Picnic on Tuesday Evening

Members of the Christian Endeavor and their friends were entertained with a picnic at Greene's pasture on Tuesday evening. Outdoor games and contests furnished diversion and a picnic supper was served. The party of twenty was chaperoned by Mrs. James Todd, Jr.

Numerous enjoyable social affairs, including lawn parties and picnics, have been given by the Endeavorers this summer, and leaders say that interest in the work of the organization has been appreciably increased by the pleasant social meetings of the membership.

Baptist Circles Work on Church Building Fund

With a new church under construction and with the membership of the church and women's organizations constantly increasing, the summer has proved to be a busy and interesting period for the Baptist Women's Missionary Union.

Two circles meeting Wednesday afternoon worked on the building fund of the church. Circle No. 3 combined business with pleasure in a "White Elephant" social at the home of Mrs. L. Wells Smith. After enjoying a number of games and contests, the members purchased cards or tickets for a treasure hunt. Gifts were found at many odd places in the house. A most satisfactory sum was received from the sales.

Circle No. 4, meeting in the home of Mrs. O. H. Gilstrap, sewed on quilts which will be sold for the benefit of the building fund. An all-day meeting of this group will be held next Wednesday, August 14, in the home of Mrs. E. C. Barrett, and the time will be spent in quilting. At the meeting of yesterday Mrs. Prather conducted the devotional and Mrs. Prather read the scripture lesson. The program was followed by a social hour, during which light refreshments were served.

Mrs. T. B. Solomon was hostess to Circle No. 1, for its weekly business and social meeting. Mrs. E. B. Clay was in charge of the interesting program. The devotional was led by Mrs. W. L. McAllister. Eight members were present.

Circle No. 2 also had a very interesting meeting. The first lesson in the new study course, "Stewardship and Missions", was conducted by Mrs. Elmer Barrett. The usual social hour followed the program and refreshments were served.

Miss Elizabeth Meyer of Amarillo is the guest of her sister, Mrs. D. M. Warren.

Barefoot Boy Has Nothing on Her

If sweltering femininity needs a social precedent in adopting the fad of going about bare-legged, here it is. The pretty social registrars pictured here is Miss Hortense Chaffin. She was attending the Cathedral Horse Show at Downman Park, Rye, N. Y.

H. H. Heskell went to Spearman today to attend to business affairs.

Marine Is Killed and Three Wounded By Rebel Band

MANAGUA, Nic., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Marine corps airplanes today were seeking the position of rebels who killed one Marine and wounded three others in northern Nicaragua. The Marines fired on the rebels, killing ten and wounding three. Private Myer Stengel of Hartford, Conn., was killed. Thomas Payne, Roxbury, Mass.; Russell Schoenberger, South Charleston, West Virginia, and Melvin Mosier, Topeka, Kas., were wounded. They were taken to Puerto Cabeza by plane for medical treatment. It was stated they would recover. They were members of a detachment of fifty under Captain Merrit A. Edson of Burlington, Vt., who were hunting out a band of rebels believed to be in the Coco river region.

They were making their way up the Coco river in boats and sighted the band Tuesday. The Marines opened fire on the rebels who gathered along the shore and a brisk encounter followed.

It was estimated that more than 100 insurgents were in the band. Active pursuit of the rebels was undertaken by planes soon after the encounter.

VIADUCT IS APPROVED

CANYON, Aug. 9.—(Special)—The Santa Fe railroad submitted plans for a viaduct under the railway north of Canyon, and the specifications have been forwarded to Austin.

District Engineer W. A. French stated Saturday that he hoped that a contract would be let for this part of the highway early this fall, the contract for the actual paving of the highway will be let early in the spring.

Close Races in Oklahoma Feature Primary Election

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Neck and neck races for congressional nomination in the seventh and eighth districts and a slight shifting in alignment of forces opposed to or favoring the administration of Governor Henry S. Johnson, were manifest in returns today from the state primary election.

Robert Graham, of Oklahoma City, apparently had joined E. P. Hill of McAlester, another leader in an insurgent group of legislators which last winter attempted to impeach Governor Johnson, in defeat for nomination for house member.

H. Tom Knight, of Claremore, and Tom Johnson of Ankers, other two principal leaders in the impeachment fight were nominated, Johnson by the narrow margin of 71 votes and Knight by a comfortable plurality.

In the eighth district, J. F. Battenberg, of Alva, who a few months ago was discharged as president of the Northwestern State Teachers college, and John W. Williams of Medford, had locked horns for the Democratic nomination for Congress. C. H. Hyde, of Alva, former member of the state board of agriculture, was only slightly behind them. Battenberg was only 39 votes in the lead with approximately half the precincts reported.

Chief Justice Fred P. Branson of Law State Supreme Court, who with Governor Johnson was the object of impeachment charges in the self-convened insurgent legislature, had a lead of somewhat more than 500 votes over W. H. Brown, his closest competitor, in the seventh judicial district.

Mrs. L. G. Waggoner and Mrs. Roy Mathers of Miami were in Pampa to shop yesterday.

Mrs. Doyle S. Pair of Altus, Oklahoma, is a guest in the home of Mrs. H. H. Heskell.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

BERTIE LOU WARD marries ROD BRYER, who had previously been engaged to LILA MARSH. Lila makes her interest for the bride until she meets a rich MR. LORE and marries him. Then she asks her Lou to forgive her the past.

Trying to keep up socially with wealthy friends brings the Bryers in debt and Rod becomes depressed. Lila sees her chance to persuade him to accept a higher salary from Lore. Shortly after she asks Rod to put some jewelry in the safe during her husband's absence. They disappear and Rod wants to notify the police, but she insists that they keep the matter secret, pointing out that suspicion against her might spoil his career. Bertie Lou finds out that he has been seeing Lila secretly and is heartbroken.

She is enticed home to her sick mother and catches a train without seeing Rod. The separation, added to Lila's plotting, causes a sickness to spring up between them. Each expects the other to make advances or explanations.

Rod goes to the Lorees without her and Bertie Lou goes out with MARCO PALMER to entertain. One evening she finds her packing a suitcase for a week-end at the Palmer estate and admits to Bertie Lou that her love is dead and that he is infatuated with Lila.

He is stunned to learn that Lila deceived him about the stolen jewels when a connoisseur advised her people at a dinner party. Confronted, she admits that she gave him an empty case and plotted to make him dependent on her generosity to win back his love from Bertie Lou.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIV

ROD bent his head far back and Lila drew away with a little laugh. "We can forget everything that's happened," she said softly, "and just take our happiness in our own way. Hold me in your arms, Rod, please. We've a right to each other."

Rod jerked himself free of her embrace and took a step backward. He came up sharply against the grill railing. "Lila, you're crazy," he said. "How could there be any happiness for us together?"

Lila looked at him with a touch of scorn. "Must I literally throw myself at your feet?" she taunted him.

"But there's Cy . . . and Bertie Lou," Rod reminded her with great simplicity.

"What do they count?" Lila flared. "Cy ought to know what an old man gets when he marries a young girl! And Bertie Lou doesn't care a snap of her fingers for you!"

"Even so, we're married to them," Rod replied, a trifle wearily.

Lila drew in her breath and pressed closer to him. "What of that?" she asked. "Marriage needn't keep us from being happy, need it? Oh Rod, don't sacrifice me for two people who don't know what it means to be in love!"

"Are you going to leave Cy?" Rod asked her. "I couldn't let you do it for me, Lila. I just couldn't, that's all. Cy's my friend."

Lila ran a smooth finger along his cheek and curled it over his ear. "I don't intend to break his heart," she said. "But he's going on a trip next week."

"My God, Lila, haven't you any decency?" Rod cried, breaking out freely of her clinging arms. His words were like a lash across Lila's face.

"I didn't know you were squeamish," she flared at him. "You ought to divorce Bertie Lou if you think to much of decency."

ROD moved toward the door without answering her but she was before him like a darting flame and stood with her back against the door handle.

"So that got you, did it?" she mocked him. "It isn't so pleasant to hear a truth like that, is it? All right to talk to me about decency, but how about a man who permits his wife to fall for another man and makes no effort to prevent it?"

Rod fairly trembled with out-raged feelings as he stood before her and listened to her scathing denunciation.

"You've led me into this," she went on. "Everyone knows you don't care what Bertie Lou does. Well, why shouldn't you care . . . unless you wanted to be free to do the same? You're a big fraud with your talk of decency. I'd like to know how you get that way?"

Rod tried to brush past her. "Oh, no," she stopped him, "you'll hear the rest of it, Mr. Good. You told me yourself that Bertie Lou's gone out to Marco Palmer's place," she laughed shrilly. "A house party? Are you kidding me or yourself? Decency, ha, ha. I'm not good enough to get on with you, but your innocent little wife, who belongs to Marco Palmer, is good enough to be married to . . ."

"Move, or I'll make you," Rod ordered in a voice that vibrated with suppressed fury. Lila threw her head back and closed her eyes. "You'll have to make me," she dared. The next instant she was rudely and very forcibly thrust aside.

When she righted herself Rod was gone.

But his destination was given no thought in the blind horror that possessed him. Lila's words seared like red-hot irons into his consciousness. Oh how damnably sure she had been! Bertie Lou and Marco Palmer! Fool, fool, fool! Could he see it? It wasn't true! God, it wasn't true!

HE found himself at home. Not one step of the way he had traveled remained in his memory. He might have walked miles or blocks; he couldn't have told which had he not known the distance.

The apartment was unbearable. He went into Bertie Lou's room. That was the worst place of all, with a collection of faded roses on the dresser.

Two hours later Rod was driven out of the place by his mental torture. Where had he left his hat? He started without it, but saw it in the hall and put it on. When he reached the street he hailed a taxicab. Strangely, the driver knew where the Palmer estate was. "Get me there, and don't let any thing stop you," Rod ordered recklessly.

"It's some 'fide, brother," the man returned. He had his doubts of this wild-eyed fare and he had no relish for a long country drive with no pay at the end of it. A light maybe.

"Get above," Rod flashed back. "It's 10 bucks in advance."

Rod dug out the money, handed it to the driver and climbed into the cab.

He drove that car with every nerve in his body, straining forward for more speed, now and then speaking to the man at the wheel, urging him to "give it a little gas, man, cut 'em loose." Women were devilish! "Bad!" a man "was a fool to trust one of 'em!" Rod would know soon. He'd find Bertie Lou somewhere in this warren of sleeping revelers and wring the truth from her!

He took the stairs two at a time, his feet making but little sound on the thick paper that was laid over the stenciling rubber pads. When he reached the second floor landing, a broad, spacious central hall in reality, he paused to look about him.

There were three corridors leading to the sleeping rooms. Rod could see down the one on his right without moving. He took a step in that direction when a man's voice down the corridor checked him. "I won't be long, Mrs. Marco Palmer of the future."

So this was the man whom Lila linked with Bertie Lou!

Rod noticed that he was wearing a silver dressing gown and bedroom slippers. Not a bad looking boy.

But what sort was he to pull a thing like this under his mother's roof, even if it was going to marry the girl?

Rod's lips curled in contempt, but he went on, intending to make Marco tell him where he could find Bertie Lou. Halfway down the corridor he stopped. A maid had appeared from some backstairs, bearing a breakfast tray in her arms. He could inquire of her and possibly avoid a scene with young Pampy.

The girl did not take any notice of him, and just as he was about to speak to her she reached the door of the room Marco had left, and rapped upon it. It was opened at once by someone Rod could not see. But he heard a voice directing the girl where to put the tray. The voice was Bertie Lou's.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Roscoe C. Patterson of Springfield, Mo., United States district attorney at Kansas City, was apparently nominated as Republican candidate for United States senator in Tuesday's primary. His plurality over Nathan Frank of St. Louis, continued to climb today.

Patterson was 5,383 votes ahead of Frank on the basis of returns from 3,428 precincts out of 4,140. The vote was, Patterson 96,589, Frank 91,204, and David M. Proctor, Kansas City, 78,479.

The lead of Charles M. Hay, dry leader of the state, over James A. Collet, a wet ard whose campaign was sponsored by Senator James A. Reed, stood at 21,531 with 3,659 precincts tabulated. Hay had 155,369 and Collet 133,832.

Francis Wilson of Platte City had a wide lead over his opponent for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, State Senator A. L. McCawley. Wilson had 233,796, McCawley 64,152.

Henry S. Caulfield's lead over his nearest opponent, Lieut. Gov. Phil Bennett of Springfield, for the Republican gubernatorial nomination stood at 99,155.

Hay, who was attacked by Senator Reed on grounds that Hay's dry views would conflict with the stand of Gov. Al Smith on prohibition, said he would attend notification ceremonies for Gov. Smith on August 23, and while in New York would confer with Smith on the Missouri campaign. Hay said he intends to give Gov. Smith his full support in the coming campaign.

Mrs. J. E. Dwyer and her two daughters left today for a visit of a few days in Okmulgee, Okla.

Road Is Wealthy Farmer's Gift

When Alexander Coleman of Ft. Madison, Ia., became wealthy he remembered his boyhood home at Hillsboro, which he still owns. He recalled especially how difficult traveling had been for him when he had to take his weekly trips to town. So he had a ten-mile concrete road, costing $300,000, built through Hillsboro and past his boyhood home, as a memorial as a help to farmers of the district. The newly-paved main street of Hillsboro, with inset of Coleman, is shown here.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
BERTIE LOU WARD marries ROD BRYER, who had previously been engaged to LILA. LILA makes life miserable for the bride until she meets a rich MIT LOBEK and marries him. Then she asks Bertie Lou to forgive the past.

Trying to keep up socially with wealthy friends plunges the Bryers in debt and Rod becomes depressed. Lila seizes her chance to persuade him to accept a higher salary from Loree. Shortly after she asks Rod to put some jewels in the safe during her husband's absence. They disappear and Rod wants to notify the police, but Lila insists that they keep the matter secret, warning that suspicion against him might spoil his career. Bertie Lou finds out that he has been seeing Lila secretly and is heart-broken.

She is called home to her sick mother and catches a train without seeing Rod. The separation, added to Lila's plotting, causes a coldness to spring up between them. Each tries to make advances or explanations. Rod goes to the Loree without her and Bertie Lou goes out with MARCO PALMER to retaliate. They grow farther apart, and one evening Rod, after her packing a suitcase for a week-end at the Palmer estate, argued, he admits to himself that their love is dead and that he is infatuated with Lila. He attends a dinner at the Loree and a Frenchman notices Lila's pearls—which Rod thinks are imitations of the ones he lost.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIII

A DISTINCT pallor showed under Lila's makeup as she dropped the pendant and settled back in her chair. She made no move to hand over the pearls to Monsieur Clavier.

A hush fell over the party. One by one the guests began to sense her attitude. She did not wish the pearls examined! Cyrus looked at her in astonishment and Monsieur Clavier began to consider a way to relieve the growing tension.

It was Rod who supplied it. He overturned a glass of wine. Lila was quick to grasp the lifeline he had thrown her. She turned and beckoned the butler, who already was hurrying toward her.

She made as much of the incident as possible. But it did not save her. When the broken glass was removed and the slight commotion over, Cyrus very quietly requested that she let Monsieur Clavier have the pearls.

He was deeply puzzled over Lila's strange behavior but it was plain to him that their guests also were puzzled. And he knew these pearls were genuine. Surely, he thought, Lila did not realize what comment might be passed upon her reluctance to have an expert handle them.

Cyrus had heard of women who substituted imitations for their real gems but he did not believe that Lila had done that. Why should she? His allowance to her was more than generous. He did not want people saying that his wife had to resort to tricks to obtain money.

Lila looked up at him. He nodded, and she noted that he was wearing what she called his business expression. He had worn it when he had dismissed an insolent servant a few days before.

She looked at Rod and he fancied there was a despairing appeal in her glance. But there was nothing dark lamps in a mist, filled with he could do to help her now. Cyrus must know that the "gems" were false. Rod hoped that he would be the only one to suffer and that Lila would escape her husband's wrath. He regretted that the exposure couldn't have been put off until the next day—when he meant to tell Cyrus himself.

His expression, to Lila, appeared sphinxlike. She had never made such a great appeal to him as at that moment, when he thought she was facing a painful revelation in consequence of her kindness to him.

His features became blank in order not to risk showing his feelings, but he hoped that Lila would see in his calm composure a willingness to face the music—that he understood she had done her utmost for him.

LILA slowly drew the rope of pearls over her head and gave them to Monsieur Clavier. "They're really very insignificant to receive your attention," she found voice to say disparagingly.

Privately Monsieur agreed with her, and was mentally chiding himself for having created an awkward situation over a few small pearls. Hereafter, he resolved, he would refrain from commenting upon the jewels belonging to people who practically were strangers to him.

Especially if his appreciation of the gems was less than his admiration for their wearer.

But he was in it now, and he did not wish to say before Madam's husband and her guests that he had been more interested in the perfection with which the pearls matched her complexion than in the pearls themselves.

Still, his breeding would not permit him to express his true opinion of them, which was in accord with Lila's. Turning them over in his hand, scrutinizing them closely, he cast about in his mind for some genuine praise to bestow upon them.

Rod was watching him with fascinated intensity, waiting for the denouement. He expected the Frenchman to show surprise, to become embarrassed. Instead, Monsieur Clavier returned the pearls to Lila with the remark that they were very well matched, indeed, and of a really good color.

"They're the iridescent pearls that are found in the Pacific, near Australia," he told Cyrus. "No others could be so suitable for Madam's fair skin."

Lila took them in a limp hand. She did not look at Rod, who sat with a rather foolish expression of amazement spreading over his countenance.

Cyrus alone thanked Monsieur Clavier for his opinion. Then the company burst into an excited chatter, that covered their relief over a threatening cloud dispelled. It was still evident, however, that their hostess was disturbed, but at least there was no further cause to dread the subtle sense of trouble that had hovered over them.

LILA did not turn her head toward Rod until the dinner was ended. In rising, while he stood there was a despairing appeal in her eyes meet his with great reluctance. Rod gazed back at her from a frozen visage. A slow flush stole up Lila's cheeks as she turned quickly away without a word.

Rod contributed very little in conversation to the half-hour the men spent at the table over their black coffee after Lila had taken her women guests away. He sat, still frowning, over his cigar while the other men told their stories and drank their liqueurs.

When they went to the drawing room he was black-browed with suspicion. Lila was seated before the piano, half-heartedly trying a new jazz piece. She seemed to know, without looking up, when Rod entered the room. Someone twitted her for the harsh discord she drew from the keys, and Lila stopped playing.

Bridge followed, but Rod was among those who did not care to play. Lila played indifferently, abstractedly, and Rod was not surprised, about an hour later, when she was "dummy," to see her rise and make some excuse for leaving the table. He also rose from a nearby chair, and when Lila opened the door that led to the small grilled-in balcony of the library he was close behind. Lila stepped to the edge and stared down at the city. Rod closed the door.

Lila did not lift her head even when he stepped up beside her. For a few seconds he stood there, waiting. Then he put a hand on her wrist and turned her around to face him. She saw a new Rod. There was a hard purpose in his set expression and accusing eyes. It caused her to shiver slightly with fear.

"You'd better tell me all about it, Lila," he said with ominous quietness.

For a moment Lila was silent. The impulse to lie that had seized her, the lie that she had been formulating since leaving the dining room, slipped from her mind. Rod could not be deceived, she realized with unmistakable certainty.

WITH this knowledge sinking like a poisoned arrow into her heart, Lila became a wild creature fighting with its back against the wall. She tore her wrist free with a quick gesture and stood back from Rod, smiling mockingly at him.

"You're guessed it, I think," she said coolly. "The things never were stolen. What do you make of that?"

"Make of it?" Rod echoed, rendered less accusing by her unerring attitude.

"Oh Rod," Lila said with surprising softness, "don't be a complete idiot any longer. You must know why I did it."

"If I did I'd no doubt be too smart to have let you put it over," Rod replied. "I guess I'm a complete idiot, all right."

Lila moved swiftly toward him and put her hands on his arms. "Rod," she breathed, "I had to do it."

Rod stared down at her in utter astonishment. Lila's eyes were indescribable paths.

"I had to make that moment over our glasses come true," she said, "that moment at the table tonight. You never would have said it, Rod darling, but it was in your heart. I knew it. I'd have done anything to make you speak. And I never intended to let you pay for the jewels. Oh you dear stupid, never to have guessed that I gave you an empty case. . . ."

Rod silenced her by tearing her hands hastily from his arms, where gradually they had been creeping toward his shoulders. "Lila, for God's sake . . ." he began, but she interrupted him with a soft palm on his lips.

"Not so loud," she cautioned. "And don't act as if I'd murdered you or something. You must have known for months that we'd have to have an understanding some day. Well, I'm glad the time has come. I couldn't stand it any longer."

"But what did you do that for?" Rod asked her. "You don't know what I've gone through over that fake theft."

"Yes, I do," Lila contradicted; "but don't you see, Rod, that it served to put things in their true light for you?"

"How do you mean?" Rod questioned sharply.

"Why, I mean about . . . us, and Bertie Lou, of course."

"I'm afraid you're jumping to conclusions," Rod rejoined; "everything is hopelessly muddled as far as I am concerned."

Lila made an impatient gesture. "Why do you make me say it?" she cried. "Can't you see that if you hadn't got in trouble you wouldn't have found out that Bertie Lou doesn't care anything about you? That she was only interested in your future success with Cy? When you put a stop to her extravagance she found someone with money to spend on her, didn't she?"

Rod was white. "You mean you faked that theft to get me in a hole?" he asked.

"To make you think me a good friend," Lila explained; "to get you to thinking of me with gratitude. You've always loved me, Rod; if you hadn't started hating me simply because we couldn't afford to marry each other you'd never have imagined that you didn't love me. Do we have to be cheated out of happiness forever simply because you made a mistake like that? I've never stopped loving you," she added and moved forward again to throw herself into his arms.

"I know I tricked you," she went on as Rod sought to loosen her arms from his neck, "but that old bromide about love and war is as good today as it ever was."

"I wouldn't have taken any money from you, but I had to do something to start you caring for me again, and I did help you with Cyrus, you know."

She paused and looked beseechingly at him. "You do love me, don't you?" she pleaded and reached up quickly to put her lips to his. (To Be Continued)

Giants Strong But Cards Are Still Favorites

By WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

John McGraw is doing it, but—there he is. With a record of nineteen victories and twenty-five defeats in the first half of his campaign against western foes, the master mind of Coogan's Bluff settled into the fastness of the Giants dugout two weeks ago prepared to thing his way through an eighteen game siege.

The New York team alone of all the eastern defenders bettered the 500 mark in the western invasion which closed yesterday, but bettered it to the tune of thirteen victories and only four defeats—765 baseball.

The Cardinals nevertheless must remain favorites for the national league flag—so long as they play a steady game and keep their games-lost column in better shape than that of the Giants. Cardinal pitching again had an off-day at the Polo grounds yesterday when Shedel and Haid took a lacing which netted the home talent a 10 to 6 victory.

After posing as contenders, or semi-contenders, through two-thirds of the season, the Robins have assumed their normal position, with every assistance from the thoughtful Pirates.

Kremer surprised himself with a neat fought through to their third one-run game yesterday as the Buccaneers decision in Brooklyn in two days, and their seventh straight in the east. The score was 4 to 3.

While the Robins were settling firmly into sixth place just above the Braves and the Phils, a miracle was being piled upon miracles at Philadelphia to the intense disgust of Joseph Vincent McCarthy and his fellow Cubs. The Phillies, believe it or not, were cleaning up their fourth straight against Mr. McCarthy's ex-contenders.

The Baker boys pulled this one out in the last of the ninth, 4 to 3. The Reds ran their string of losses to eight straight by permitting the Braves to win both games of a double-header at Boston yesterday, 6 to 3 and 12 to 1.

American league teams were engaged in travel, or exhibition engagements. Not content to let a day go by in peace, the Yankees dropped one to Albany, 3 to 2, while the Athletics were winning by 11 to 8 in ten innings at Binghamton.

Birmingham Star Bats Nearly 500 for Title Claim

ELLIOTT BIGELOW

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Elliott Bigelow, outfielder of the Birmingham Barons in the Southern Association, is laying claim to the crown of world's champion batter.

Hitting close to the 500 mark, the giant outer gardener tops the leaders of 22 of the outstanding leagues of the United States.

The most remarkable feature of Bigelow's average is that only once in the history of the Southern Association has a player equalled or hit above the 400 mark for a season. That was in 1902 when a Nashville player named Hill batted 416.

Labeled by many scouts as one of the greatest prospects of the year, Bigelow has been handicapped by one weakness—his throwing arm. To overcome this defect the Birmingham slugger has devoted many morning hours to learning to throw with his right hand instead of his left and as a result is now able to heave the ball to the infield with great improvement.

Bigelow was born in Florida and broke into professional baseball in 1923 with St. Petersburg.

Anvil Park Rodeo Opens Sixth Time With Big Program

CANADIAN, Aug. 9.—The sixth annual All-Panhandle rodeo opened this morning at Anvil park, near Canadian, and will continue until Saturday night. One of the feature attractions throughout the rodeo will be Leonard Stroud and his all-around rodeo troop.

J. C. Studer, on whose land the affair is being held, has granted free fishing and bathing privileges to those who attend the rodeo and frontier celebration. Those who wish to fish must observe the state game laws and those swimming must bring their own bathing suits.

Florence Randolph Hughes, world's champion woman trick rider, will appear at all performances and will ride outlaw horses as part of her act. She is known the world over as a most fearless and daring bronco rider.

Mexican longhorn steers will be used for the bulldogging contests because of their speed and tricky nature. Large Brahma steers will be used in the steer riding events, a daily event.

The stock to be used has been graded and only the best quality of bucking horses and the best steers have been kept for use in the different contests. Riding events will be one of the big features.

The evening high lights will be the commercial shows, with ferris wheels, merry-go-round, mix-up and all that goes to have a good time. The Shamrock brass band will be in attendance during the entire rodeo, playing afternoons and evenings. Fog Horn Clancy, dean of all announcers, will be on hand to announce the program of events.

DENMARK'S YACHT WINS

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Denmark won the Olympic championship race for six-meter yachts today, the Danish craft Elhi showing the way in 2 hours 23 minutes 40 seconds. The Norma of Norway was second.

Wichita Falls Goes Into Lead in Texas League

(By The Associated Press)

Perserverance of a baseball club put it atop the Texas league yesterday. While the erstwhile leading Houston Buffs were taking a 5 to 0 rebuff from Shreveport, Wichita Falls, who tied Houston Tuesday for top honors, plodded through a game with San Antonio to win 4 to 3.

Cventgro, Epud pitcher, took part of the adulation occasioned by his team's rise to the pinnacle. While he was unsteady with the Bears, he held in the pinches.

Hallahan, Buff hurler, went well for a while, but weakened and his outfit topped from the big place.

Dallas and Beaumont sociably split a twin bill, the Exporters taking one 3 to 0 and the Exporters the other 3-2.

Showing disfavor at a two-game shutout administered it by the Waco Cubs, Fort Worth returned the indictment, blanking the Cubs 10.

FOREIGN HEAVIES MATCHED

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—(AP)—The heavyweight championship trails of two leading foreign contenders will cross tonight when Otto von Porat of Norway and Pierre Charles of Belgium clash in a 10-round bout to a decision.

The victor will seek consideration in the heavyweight elimination bouts for a successor to Gene Tunney's title.
