Two Sisters Seek a Romance With the Same Man and Find Their Lives Entangled in a Real Drama

Chapter I The June sun struck his shoulders with pleasant warmth as he parted the brush, bridged a wide ditch easily and emerged on the open backwoods road. He squinted eyes a trifle deeper but of the same clear blue as the sky above him. And, squinting, his tanned face broke into little crinkles around his eyes and into unaccustomed furrows on a broad brow that was lighter where the line of his hair began. He thrust his hands into breeches pockets, squared his shoulders and swung into a brisk stride. Over his shoulder he addressed his companion, "Getting on toward lunch?" He was agreed with, he gathered, by the enthusiastic tall wagging at the heels of his riding boots. "Now, my good fellow," he continued, "if this were the New England of legend, we would approach the next dwelling with a pleasant smile and a hungry look and be invited to join the family at its noonday meal. As it is, we've got to find our way out of this maze of backwoods and push on to our hosts." There was, as he had expected, a wall of field stone hip high. He swung himself onto it. "It's ha' past twelve, Miss Daphne," a strident voice from within the house echoed. "Whatcha want for lunch?" Daphne Brett pushed back a strand of black curly hair from a white and perspiring brow and sat back on her heels. "If you've brought eggs, there'll be scrambled eggs, bread and butter and fruit. I didn't bring anything else from town. She called from the top of the stair well. Then, anxiously: "Prunella, have a look at how the garden's coming, will you? If it looks as though it wouldn't take more than an hour to clear out the worst weeds, tell the boys they can run home for lunch. Then, you'd better get to work on the dining room."

TEX'S TOPICS

There is a spectre-like, tragic note in an article we have just finished reading about the present-day New Jersey scene of the Lindbergh baby kidnaping of 1932.

Off there from Hopewell, N. J., no laughing children, no one but the storied ghosts of Sourland Mountain roams the luckless 400-acre Lindbergh estate today, five years after the tragic kidnaping.

Dust is gathered on the furniture that has never been moved from its rooms. . . . Unused is the private road down which a kidnaper fled, and brush has grown on what once was to be a private landing field.

The estate no longer belongs to the Lindberghs. . . . The colonel and his wife quit the place after their son's abduction. . . . In 1933 they deeded the house and property to a welfare organization, of which they are among the trustees.

But the children never came. . . . No move has been made to open the white house or to develop the project. . . . Taxes are paid regularly, and "no trespassing" signs are posted to keep hunters and curious off the waiting acres.

Its furnishing which still was in progress when the kidnaping occurred March 1, 1932, never has been finished. . . . Time has weathered the scraping scars made by the kidnap ladder on the south wall of the house under the nursery windows, just as underbrush has reclaimed the trampled thicket five miles away where they found the baby's body.

The curious still drive by on week-ends, but do not get beyond the barred gate at the entrance to the vast estate. . . . Yes, the Sourland Mountain ghosts still walk, and they still conceal many mysterious ramifications of a crime for which a man has given his life in part-payment.

Wylie Christopher of Laketon, writes in to say that a bird in the hand is bad table manners. . . . Since that nine-year-old girl got married it is no longer tactful in Tennessee to ask, "Whose little girl is oo?"

Kenneth Blackledge's lunacy hearing has been set for 12:30 Friday noon. . . . Guy McTaggart has been retained as defense attorney, and Bill Jarrett will handle the prosecution.

In sub-zero weather swimmers have gay time of it in pool at Banff Springs, Canada. . . . while spectators on bank freeze in furs. . . . it's hot sulphur pool with an average temperature of 90 degrees.

It may be little late for Valentine story, but this one has unusual touch. . . . a young Toronto doctor sent his wife X-ray photograph of his own heart. . . . with traditional arrow pasted across.

Soviet Russia officers who never heard of American promoters pulled a "bicycle marathon" stunt. . . . they rode 20,000 miles on bikes across Soviet union and back. . . . cycling 288 days without serious mishap.

Yesteryear In Pampa

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY Federal crop production loans were available, announced County Agent Ralph Thomas.

A top-spinning craze hit high school students. Adicts included Albert Lard, Siler Faulkner Jr., and H. L. Ledrick.

A meeting was called to organize a twilight league for softball games, with four teams already sure entries.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY The Little Harvester announced that the average girl in Pampa high school was 5 feet 3.2 inches tall and weighed 117.3 pounds.

The Junior chamber of commerce set June 1-5 as dates of the Panhandle Centennial, and R. G. Hughes, celebration chairman, named sub-chairmen.

Were Things Simpler in the Old Days? OR IS IT JUST A MATTER OF PERSPECTIVE?

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK -- At the moment, 28 or 30 plays are on Broadway, and this is about the average for a season that has been fat on production but slim on hits.

If one were to poll the critics for the best performances by actors on Broadway in the last two decades, their selections would be something like this:

Frank Craven in "Bought and Paid For"; Alfred Lunt in "Outward Bound"; Walter Huston in "Desire Under the Elms" or "Dodsworth"; Louis Wolheim in "What Price Glory"; Charles Gilpin in "The Emperor Jones"; Lionel Barrymore in "The Copperhead"; Frank Bacon in "Lightnin'"; Frank Bacon in "The Green Pastures"; Nat Goodwin in "Oliver Twist"; and Geo. M. Cohan in "The Song and Dance Man."

Where are these stars today? Alfred Lunt is on a road tour in "Idiot's Delight"; Walter Huston is idling in New York; Lionel Barrymore is in Hollywood; George M. Cohan is getting ready to produce a play.

Not all slogans or signs mean anything, but here is one noticed in a restaurant where the service isn't particularly good. It says: "To waiters: When you meet your patron, say, 'Have you ordered, sir?' And when you have returned his check, say, 'Thank you, sir.' Thank you, sir, is a many statement. Saying, 'It promptly marks you as gentleman and tends to remove any annoyance which quick service might cause.'"

Checking into a hotel recently, the mayor of a western town declared: "This is an amazing city, but you're darn shy on silver dollars. Paper money makes me feel broke." . . . Incidentally, I haven't seen a silver dollar in two years--and darn few paper ones.

The absence of dried grasshoppers (as bait for fishing) is explained. Five hundred barrels were captured last summer, but they weren't prepared for anglers. They were delivered alive to a Hollywood studio to be used in the locust plague scene in "The Good Earth."

UNWELCOME VISITOR WABASH, Ind.—David Springer found no welcoming signs from emigrants when he entered a barber shop. There were two reasons. . . . First: He did not want a haircut or a shave; second: he came to get his automobile which had crashed through the shop window when the brakes failed to hold.

People You Know

For the third straight day the conception of spring pulsed in the air, a warm, ecstatic actuality, and the man's spirit became as one with earth, and he found himself sitting at his desk looking out the window into the swimming sunshine, and his body cried out to follow a turning plow in Cattlet creek bottoms, his huge bare feet walking in the furrow as the moist earth slid silkily over the bright metal and lay in glistening slices, and the crows, a safe distance behind the plow following in the furrow snatching worms. . . . The spring afternoon throbbed toward sunset, in the heart, and the man knew suddenly what he would do so he gathered up little Billy Monts and bigger Bill Coons and Junior Green, fitting companions to celebrate the rites of spring, and went to a little lake in some canyons south of town and cooked meat over a fire (built with one match by Billy) and then ran up and down the canyons and hills in the encouraging moonlight until 10 o'clock, and all felt in an unexpressive sort of way that the signs of spring had been observed, in the heart, and that the heart of earth was beating faster because faunish urges had not been denied.

How's Your Health?

PULLING BAD TEETH Mark Twain remarked that many complain about the weather, but few do anything about it. Similarly the medical profession has talked much about oral sepsis (mouth infection), but comparatively little conclusive work has been done on it.

A little more than a year ago, however, two keen experimenters demonstrated that the extraction of infected teeth is followed within a few minutes by the appearance of germs in the blood stream. The number of germs gaining entrance into the blood stream appears to be directly related to the severity of the infection centering about the diseased teeth and upon the amount of surgical manipulation which the patient is subjected.

Other experimenters have since upheld these observations, and the studies have further shown that bacteria may be "forced" into the blood stream when patients suffering from diseased teeth and pyorrhea are allowed to chew on hard candy. Pressure upon or forcible movement of teeth that have infection in their tips or abscesses about their roots can liberate bacteria into the blood stream.

These findings confirm the suspicion with which infected, devitalized teeth have long been regarded. Incidentally it also has been shown that living healthy teeth are practically never free of infection. So authorities are now inclined to argue "that there is no reason why every mechanically useful live tooth should not be saved." Gum infections, such as pyorrhea, may be treated without sacrificing vital and useful teeth.

Aquarium Collectors Bring 'Em Back Alive

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Aquarium collectors, equipped with traps glass bottomed buckets and water periscopes, have arrived from the north to "bring back alive" odd and strange tropic fish for north-erners to see. Most of their catches are made in shallow water, where their traps, baited with fish and meat, are placed along the reefs at depths of from five to 30 feet. Fish caught in greater depths, they say, usually are of little value since the pressure change in bringing them to the surface is injurious to them. The waters around Miami, Key Largo, Key West and the Bahamas are favorite spots for specimen hunters. Mass weddings, becoming popular all over China, are held every three months in Peking.

This, That and Everything

By JESS KELLEY

Very few human traits are so obnoxious to good taste as the superiority complex. Such an attitude of mind is not only a source of constant torment to its possessor, but it also tends to drive sensible people to a revolting disgust. This superiority complex seems to be the natural child of a pampered pride. This false pride may be inconspicuous in its beginning, but after a long period of gentle nourishment in the mind where such a frame of mind has gained residence, that pride will begin to manifest itself in the most hateful manner. We all have observed this contemptible attitude at work in individuals whose personalities might have been attractive if only the other commendable qualities had not been overshadowed by the thoughts of self-importance.

I once knew a certain girl who had the superiority complex in its most advanced stages. She felt herself above other girls, and she even threatened to remain single because she thought no man was good enough for her. One day her mother, speaking concerning the probability of her daughter's marriage, she was heard to say, "Oh, Ruby will never marry, because she is looking for a perfect man." Perhaps the thought had never entered Ruby's mind, but she had mothered her "perfect man," she would have been, in all probability, still out of luck; for the "perfect man" might have been seeking a PERFECT girl.

LET'S KNOW TEXAS AND TEXANS

BY WILL E. MAYES

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. As evidence of good faith, contributors must give their names and address, but only their initials will be printed. Address inquiries to Will E. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Q. Who was Col. James Morgan? A. H. He came to Texas in 1828; was a merchant at Anahuac in 1830, and in 1836 at New Washington. He was in command at Galveston Island during the Texas revolution and aided Burnet and cabinet in escaping from New Washington to the island before San Antonio reached there. He filled various public positions in Texas, and after the revolution lived on his plantation at Morgan's Point (New Washington) where he became blind in his old age.

Q. What special services did Dr. Ashbel Smith render Texas? A. Soon after coming to Texas from Connecticut in 1837, Dr. Ashbel Smith, a highly educated physician, was made surgeon-general of the Texas army. From 1842 to 1845 he was Minister to France; in 1846 was with Taylor's army in Mexico; was president of the board of examiners at West Point in 1849; in 1861, entered the Confederate army as captain, promoted to colonel of Second Texas Infantry; in 1856, 1866 and 1879, was Harris county member of legislature; in 1876, was Texas commissioner to Paris exposition; spent last years of life on his plantation on east side of Galveston bay.

Q. What was the design of the Lone Star flag that floated over the blacksmith shop at Washington-on-the-Brazos during the convention of March, 1837? A. The flag that floated over the convention with the sinewy-arm flag is thought to have been that designed by Sarah Dodson for Capt. Andrew Robinson's Harrisburg Company, that went into service in September, 1835. It consisted of three exact squares, blue next to the staff, white and then red, with a white star in the center of the blue square—the same flag that the Harrisburg company followed in the siege of San Antonio in December, 1835.

POND BUILDING IN OKLAHOMA TO BE SOUGHT

LAWMAKERS EXPECTED TO GIVE RELIEF TO AREA

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 25 (AP)—Two hundred veterans of wind-eroded areas in far-western Oklahoma left their problems in the hands of their state lawmakers today and returned home to carry on their individual fights against dust.

A farmer, a lawyer and a college professor were named to a special committee by Gov. E. W. Marland to draw up legislative proposals outlined at a conference here today.

Dr. Paul B. Sears, botany professor at the University of Oklahoma and author of a book on wind and water erosion, is chairman.

The committee prepared to offer the legislature, now in session, at least three important proposals:

An immediate appropriations—possibly $150,000—to furnish funds for pond building and listing of soil.

A resolution memorializing Congress to create a Great Plains dust bowl authority to carry out a long-time plan with federal funds.

Legislation to permit setting up of conservation districts, with authority to carry out necessary erosion-prevention work on lands of owners who decline to do so themselves.

Dr. H. G. Bennett, president of Oklahoma A. and M. college, scoffed at suggestions that land in the Oklahoma Panhandle be taken out of cultivation because of dust storms.

"Fifteen or twenty per cent of the best farm land in Oklahoma is in the dust bowl," he said.

Woman Can Live Alone and Like It in Gotham

NEW YORK, Feb. 25 (AP)—A woman can "live alone and like it" in New York or be a wife who cooks her husband's breakfast bacon—and most employers don't give a whoop which she is, as long as she does her work and does it well.

That was the opinion of most men and women sounded out today on a statement of Miss Florence Birmingham, of Massachusetts, that this business of married women holding jobs should cease, and cease quickly.

The manager of a mid-town haberdashery said:

"Sure—I employ several married women. So what? What difference does it make whether they're spinsters or matrons? The question is, can they sell shirts?"

A man who hires and fires at a 5-and-10-cent store said his girls could work out their personal happiness any way they chose, so long as they kept up their batting average on the job.

Miss Sadie Magloyaki, 29, cashier in a drug store, voiced a dissenting opinion.

"Why don't all these married women go home and mind their babies and give us unmarried girls a chance?" she asked.

STRIP-TEASE DEFENDED AS HIGH AMERICAN ART

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP)—The Brothers Minsky, who put the strip-tease dance into the Congressional Record, defended the shed-your-shirt today as high American art.

"It's not altogether what you take off," said bespectacled Brother Herbert, "but how you take it off."

"And," added mustached Brother Morton, "who takes it off."

As burlesque impresarios, the brothers were willing witnesses yesterday before the House immigration committee in behalf of a bill to restrict entry into America of foreign performers.

Girls of the United States, they vociferously agreed, have it all over their sisters across the seas when it comes to the fine points of the strip-tease.

"For one thing," said Herbert, "they've got rhythm."

"And," added Morton, "they got more looks."

Brother Herbert said hundreds of young American girls are knocking at the doors of burlesque.

"Look," he said, "here's a letter from a little girl out west some place. She wants to be a stripper. We get piles of them."

Read Newspapers, Says Henry Ford

WAYS, Ga., Feb. 25 (AP)—Henry Ford said today he preferred newspapers to history books in modern education—and not too many games during school hours.

"Newspapers are the best educators," Ford said in an authorized interview at his winter home in south Georgia. "They arrive every day and are up to the minute."

Twenty years ago Ford said history as written was the "bunk," but he was interested himself for many years in visualizing the evolution of every art and restoring many valuable objects of historical value.

"I'm not keen on games," he added. "They are all right but the main thing in education after all is to teach boys and girls to be useful. It may be well to acquaint them with the fundamentals of sports and games in school, but I don't believe time should be spent on these during school hours every day."

Dramatic critics in Germany must have a special permit from the government to practice their profession.

WAR ISOLATION IS ENDANGERED BY NEW POINTS

National Honor Is Involved in Parley

LONDON, Feb. 25 (AP)—Ticklish points involving the national honor of France and Russia and the "act of God" shelling of a British warship today endangered the international control plan to cut off war.

Authorities admitted the task of setting up a non-intervention system had proved so complicated the plan to throw a patrol net around Spain probably could not be made effective on schedule at midnight March 6.

A sub-committee meeting of the most interested powers of Britain, France, Russia, Germany, Italy and Portugal, was called for today, however, to salvage as much of the agreement as possible.

Some hope was expressed at a modified blockade, both by land and by sea, would be possible on March 6, leading to complete control by gradual stages.

The sub-committee can do nothing, however, until the objections raised by France to the land patrol and by Russia to the sea patrol are removed.

MRS. GARNER SUFFERS INDIGESTION ATTACK

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP)—Mrs. John Nance Garner, who seldom misses a day at her job as secretary to the Vice-President, was recovering today from a severe attack of indigestion.

Without his partner, Garner faced a problem of dodging callers and a multitude of office formalities which he dislikes.

The quiet housewife-secretary stands guard over her husband both at the office and at rare official functions he attends.

Politicians praise her eye for the direction of the political wind. When the Garners start packing their trunks, everybody knows the congressional show is about to close.

Mrs. Garner tells friends her husband gave her a serious talk soon after their marriage in 1895, describing marriage as a business deal.

"And he said to me, 'Now, you do the work and I'll do the talking,'" she concludes. "—and that's the way it's been ever since."

ARLINE JUDGE TO WED NEW YORK SPORTSMAN

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Feb. 25 (AP)—Arline Judge was Reno-bound today, determined to bounce out of the matrimonial frying pan into the divorce court fire.

The curvaceous, dark-haired actress took a train last night for the Nevada capital because, her attorneys announced, she prefers to terminate her five-year marriage to Director Wesley Ruggles in six weeks.

Last week-end Miss Judge confirmed her engagement to Daniel Reed Topping after Topping had exchanged blows in a Hollywood night club with Pat Di Cicco, actors' agent who once snubbed Miss Judge.

Topping is a millionaire sportsman and owner of the Brooklyn Dodgers professional football team.

BAER DENIED LICENSE TO FIGHT BOB PASTOR

NEW YORK, Feb. 25 (AP)—The latest heavyweight fiasco—the failure of New York's fistic fathers to grant Max Baer a license to fight Bob Pastor in Madison Square Garden—found the Californian preparing today for a fistic invasion of England.

Baer's manager, Ancl Hoffman, said that as a result of the collapse of plans to fight here, he would go through with an agreement with British promoters with a guarantee of 4,500 pounds for Baer to meet the winner of the Petersen-Farr bout for the British heavyweight title.

BOB FELLER TO LEAVE FOR TRAINING CAMP

VAN METTER, Ia., Feb. 25 (AP)—Bob Feller, baseball's prize rookie, will leave tonight for the Cleveland Indians' training camp at New Orleans equipped with a new curve as well as a blinding fast ball.

Bob attended high school today, probably inwardly fidgety but exhibiting the same calm composure he has shown since becoming one of the country's most publicized youngsters.

Baseball, not books, says his father, is Bob's first love and he aims to get plenty of it during spring training.

He's been working on a new curve which he hopes to try out against American league sluggers this year.

"Why, the darn thing breaks so wide the boys down at the high school can't catch it," Bob's father says.

DR. TOWNSEND FOUND GUILTY OF CONTEMPT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP)—Dr. Francis E. Townsend, predicting attorney draft a plea today for a new trial in an effort to overturn his conviction of contempt of the House of Representatives.

The elderly California physician, who heard the verdict yesterday without emotion, said an appeal would be taken to a higher court if the request was denied.

Justice Peyton delayed sentence for three days. He can impose a maximum of a $1,000 fine and a year in jail.

The federal court jury of 11 men and one woman deliberated 50 minutes. It considered only whether Dr. Townsend had walked out of a House committee hearing last May without permission, another charge of refusing to appear before the committee having been dismissed.

Dr. Townsend, who claims millions of followers for his plan to give $200 a month pensions to those over 60 years of age, said the conviction would not affect the work of his organization, Old Age Revolving Pension, Ltd.

"We will carry on," he said. "The work will go on and I expect to win this fight eventually."

ried to the top of the staircase. "Prunella, be sure to tell Willie Cox to bring back the fruit cake and sandwiches I ordered from his mother."

"Fruit cake and sandwiches!" If Daphne had said caviar and truffles, Prunella's voice couldn't have been any more expressive of her feelings. "Just because you're trying to rent a house don't mean you have to give a tea party."

"This time it does," Daphne said firmly and added, "It cost me six dollars—a lot of money—for the ad in the Sunday paper. I've got to rent this place for the summer! I need the money, Prunella. So it's up to me to show the Snyders that a home-like place this is. How much time have I before lunch?"

"You got a quarter of 'n hour," Prunella, ex-schoolmate, friend and maid-of-all-work, answered and went to fetch the eggs from the back porch.

"Hi!"

Prunella straightened and her eyes followed the hailing voice to the figure seated on the back garden wall. Another tramp, she thought, and took another look. She retreated hastily and called:

"Miss Daphne, one of 'em's come. He's out back."

The company she was waiting for would hardly be "out back." Daphne thought, and stole a hurried glance out the south window, saw the dusty figure on her garden wall and knew it to be the retound Mr. Snyder she had already met. Without removing the unflattering towel that bound her hair, or the grimy effects of her morning's work, oblivious to the shapelessness of her slender figure enveloped in one of Prunella's pink gingham models, she went into the garden.

"Hello," he said before she could ask him what he wanted. "Will you tell me who owns this place?"

"It's owned by the Misses Brett," she said shortly.

He didn't look at her; plainly his eyes were all for Brett Hall. "I'd like to see the interior," he said. "Also I'd like to have a bit of lunch. Do you think the Misses Brett are hospitably inclined?"

"There's nothing but scrambled eggs," Daphne said, her eyes once more on her watch. She had no time to exchange pleasantries with stray travelers of the road, but this one looked strong. Perhaps he . . .

He let himself down from the wall before she said anything further and, with his eyes still on the house, he said, "Thanks, and what might your name be, my pretty maid?"

"You call me Daffy," she said crisply, and picked up her broom. "You might earn that lunch by tackling the weeds in the west garden. This place has got to look like a well-kept garden by 5 o'clock. Prunella will give you your lunch in the kitchen."

"Fair enough," he said, and tucked his pipe into a pocket of the coat he discarded at once.

Daphne forgot him. There were many things to be done. There were bowls to fill with flowers and Daphne herself to transform from a scullery maid into a cool, charming hostess in a smart frock to give —Illustration by E. H. Gunder

"Tomorrow," Daphne said coldly, "I am not entertaining. I'm a working girl. I shall be back in New York at my job." The information slipped out.

The appearance of a gentleman reluctantly renting her family estate for the summer.

"But we want to lease it for a year!" Mrs. Snyder said.

A year at a hundred a month! Daphne, all too conscious of what that sum meant, couldn't rise to acceptance while her eyes and ears were assaulted by the ravages being wrought by the small Snyder brood. Determinedly she kept her eyes from the mahogany table where she could hear the rasp of a scratching spoon. She resented hearing the kicking, destructive twins. She didn't want these people living in her house, but how else was she to meet her need?

Feebly, she heard herself saying, "I didn't wish to rent for more than the summer months. Also, there is . . . someone else who has asked me to give him a little time to decide." Her voice trailed off weakly.

There was a distinctly cold silence. And then a firm footfall sounded on the gravel path. A long shadow fell across the polished floor.

"Good afternoon," the voice she had last encountered in her garden greeted them smoothly. "I've come back to tell you I've decided to accept your terms, Miss Brett. A hundred and fifty a month is quite agreeable."

She started, recovered, and hesitated in that one brief second.

"Oh, how do you do, Mr. . . . Mr. Van Dusen. I was just talking about you." She said it very fast.

Chapter II
Daphne Brett saw twelve hundred dollars float out of her window and was relieved. Not but what she would feel very differently when the Snyders departed and she was once more faced with the inescapable truth that she needed it badly.

For the time, she permitted herself the luxury of late afternoon filled the drawing-room when she introduced "Mr. Van Dusen"—the name had been the first to spring to her mind—to the Snyders. He might not have appeared in a brighter light so perfectly turned out in the riding clothes he wore with careless grace. "A hundred and fifty a month!" Mrs. Snyder fluffed the lace of her jacket. "Well, I'm sure I don't blame you, Miss Brett."

Daphne's unexpected visitor, looking up from his tea-cup, glanced at Daphne and addressed himself with surprise-tinged tones. "Look here, how stupid of me! You're the people who wanted the place before I saw it?"

"Oh, no," Daphne said quickly. "That was . . . er . . . someone else who wanted to rent for a year but I . . . I told them I had promised to give you time to make up your mind." There was no mistaking the appeal in her face, or the meaning of her words. The dark eyes and the bright blue eyes traveled at the same moment to the youngest Snyder and her fruitless effort to prevent a dab of sandwich filling from slipping down her pinnafore with awful certainty to the handsome brocade of the sofa.

That settled it.

Blue eyes addressed himself to

Mrs. Snyder with the charm of a diplomatic attaché. "If I were not so selfish, I should make the now-impossible gesture of turning the place over to a lady who would lend it greater grace."

Mrs. Snyder adjusted her laces and her smile. "Did you hear that, Henry?" she asked her husband and returned to more flattering attention. "Tell me," she said, "are you by any chance related to the South Orange Van Dusens?"

Looking exceedingly regretful, he said that he wasn't. "We're Virginians," he said. "This is my first introduction to Connecticut and I mean to make the most of it."

"I'm sure you will," she said graciously. "Come along, Henry, we've got to be getting back. Anyway, we've enjoyed the visit, Miss Brett, and I'm pleased to have met you, Mr. Van Dusen. Shall I tell the South Orange . . . that is, my friends, who you are?"

"By all means," he replied with a quick and dazzling smile. "I'm Derek Van Dusen."

Daphne walked to the road where the Snyders had left their car. saw them off with a mutual exchange of goodbyes and hoped that Prunella was, by now, in the drawing-room where the combination of her mother's finest silver and the presence of an unknown young man did not make for a feeling of security.

A man who would ask for a hand-out at the back door, turn up in strange circumstances four hours later and slip with such suspicious ease into the role offered him of an imposter, had all the earmarks of being a dangerous character. Why was he hanging around her house all day? He didn't look like a tramp certainly with his fine clothes and manners but after all, the depression had turned up strange types. Daphne hastened her footsteps.

He was relieved to see, sitting in Tom Brett's chair, turning the pages of a magazine when she entered. "Well," he said, looking up at her brightly and rising, "shall we estimate the damage?"

"There has been some, hasn't there?" she answered ruefully, and noted, surreptitiously, that all the silver seemed to be on the tray.

It hurt her eyes to see the spreading grease spot on the gold brocade, the jagged scratch on the satin surface of the mahogany table. The crumbs didn't matter, nor the broken glass.

Her slender finger traced a zig-zag on the table and found a companion in the finger that marked gesture.

"It will be easy to fix that," he said and for the first time a feeling of gratitude stirred Daphne.

"I oughtn't to ask you questions," she said when they both sat down. "I ought to say 'thank you.'"

Daphne shook her head and watched the practiced way in which he filled the bowl, tamped down the tobacco and applied the match. No fumbling gestures. She liked that.

He drew on the pipe for a moment and then: "Shoot."

"Shoot?" Daphne had forgotten what she was going to say.

"Questions," he answered briefly. "Let's have them. Or shall I start?"

Daphne was startled and annoyed. Why should he question her?

"Did you want to rent to those people?"

"No, I did not!"

"Just as I surmised," he said. "But I don't understand . . ."

He said no attention. "However, you should have, shouldn't you?"

Daphne swished cold tea around in her cup before answering. "No, not really," she said and was elaborately casual. No need to tell this stranger her business.

"Good! I feel better about it now." He didn't believe her but Daphne couldn't have guessed that. Or that he knew that a fragile girl like herself did not indulge in the kind of work she had been doing when he had mistaken her for a maid, unless she was pretty hard up. Nor did the gesture of serving tea to the Snyders escape him.

"You did a very fine job of helping me," she said and wondered how she could invite him to go.

"Oh, the Van Dusens—the Virginia Van Dusens, not the South Orange Van Dusens, mind you—go about constantly, rescuing ladies in distress with the greatest of ease."

"Yes, I noticed that," she said. "I mean the ease. What else do you do with you?"

"Contemplate the cosmos," he said pleasantly.

"That's approximately what I thought," she said pleasantly.

"Tell me what else you thought," he encouraged.

"Were the scrambled eggs to the taste of the Van Dusens?" she asked pointedly.

"Excellent," he said graciously. "Plentiful and fresh but, my dear girl, no Worcestershire seasoning!"

"An oversight," Daphne said with a fine edge of sarcasm. "The next time you come to lunch, do let us know beforehand."

"I will," he promised. "What about tomorrow?"

"Tomorrow," Daphne said coldly. "I'm not entertaining. I'm a working girl. I shall be back in New York at my job. The information slipped out. She didn't want him to know that she would not be there. If he were a prowler . . . Perhaps a gentleman thief . . . Perhaps he was . . . She stopped thinking and said sternly:

"Much as the country and the open road appeal to me, it's a luxury I can't afford."

"I can't either," he said and sighed. Daphne's suspicions were immediately confirmed in her mind.

"I see," she said, conveying nothing.

"I, too, have a job in the city but I shall forget its confinement when I return to this peaceful loneliness each night."

Daphne sat up very straight. Oh, why had she told him that she was not to be here?

"That's our arrangement, isn't it?" he inquired easily.

"At a hundred and fifty a month?" Her words had a smart sting.

"Certainly. I said I agreed to your terms. I'd like to take it over at once for occupancy until October first."

It rather took Daphne's breath away. It had possibilities of also taking away her problem. Against her better judgment she threw discretion to the winds.

"Would you," she asked leaning forward so he saw the hope in her dark eyes, "would you really like to rent Brett Hall?"

"I thought it was all settled," he answered calmly.

"Then . . . then it is."

"You'll want references, of course."

"Of course," she said, wishing she had thought of it first.

"Unfortunately they'll prove that my name isn't Van Dusen. It isn't even Derek. It's Smith," he said, looking at her reproachfully. "How could you have missed it?"

Daphne permitted herself a smile. "It was too obvious, which you are not," she said.

Son-in-Law of Haile Selassie Is Put to Death

ADDIS ABABA, Feb. 25 (AP)—Ras Desta Dantu, son-in-law of Haile Selassie and last of the Ethiopian chiefdoms to dispute Italian occupation, has been captured and executed, an official communique announced today.

He was killed yesterday immediately after an Italian scouting party seized him near by mountain regions.

The Fascist soldiers surprised the Ras with a few followers. There was a quick exchange of shots, then capture.

Had Gassy Bloat Misery and Weak Kidneys

"All my life I had been an active man and had always enjoyed my full share of health and strength up until a few years ago, but at that time I seemed to break down," said Mr. Tull. "I began to have trouble with an upset stomach and was always bloated badly and couldn't digest my food right, also began to suffer with weakened kidneys and got nervous as a result of this misery, but finally I found

Over 30 Ingredients in This Great Compound

VAN-TAGE contains over 30 Ingredients (including 21 Great Herbs) which help cleanse bowels, bring loads of gas from the stomach and invigorate liver and kidney action. WHY PAVE STREETS WITH CONCRETE?

- here's why—
- 1 Every street demands a gritty, non-skid surface for the protection of motorists and pedestrians.
 - 2 At night you need a pavement with high visibility.
 - 3 Safety also calls for a pavement that is free from chuck holes, ruts and bumps . . . and stays that way with minimum maintenance.
 - 4 You want a pavement that drains quickly . . . that is easily cleaned and stays clean . . . no depressions to catch dirt.
 - 5 You want a pavement that makes the whole neighborhood look modern, prosperous, attractive.
- Concrete . . . and only concrete . . . completely meets all of these specifications.

AROUND HOLLYWOOD

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD-A new "second generation" of actors steps up on the Hollywood horizon.
Some of them were youngsters in pinafores or short pants when the now famous Bennett sisters, Doug Fairbanks, Jr., Noah Berry, Jr., et al., were being heralded as likely prospects for carrying on theatrical dynasties.

to hit the bright lights. Both are children of the one-time matinee idol, Francis X. Bushman who, as the wis will have, has gone "from ham to hamburger."
And then these names appear, more or less frequently, in current cast lists: Barbara Denny, Bryant Washburn, Jr., Julie Cabanne (the daughter of Christy Cabanne), William Tannen and Carlyle Blackwell, Jr., Alice Moore, daughter of Alice Joyce and Tom Moore, signed a contract but has not been seen importantly.

Mrs. Ewing Recalls Early Days In Mobeetie Section

After Miss Fitch finished school at the Ft. Worth University, she returned to the Panhandle and went to Mobeetie to teach music.

Everything seemed to have changed. Things were not the way I remembered them as a child. The rock school house which I had thought a huge affair was only a small two room building. I remember that one night they were having some kind of program in the school house and I was asked to play. Bill Irwin escorted me to the affair. Many years later he became an aviator and was an ace during the world war. He was lost a few years ago in the famous San Francisco-Honolulu flight.

The old rock building remained in use until a few years ago. A frame addition was added to it. I am told that the foundation of the present grade school building in Mobeetie was made from the rocks in the old school house.

Romance Begins
The romance between Lulu Fitch and W. E. Ewing began while she was teaching at Mobeetie. Young Ewing had moved with his parents to Canadian from New Mexico and was employed by H. E. Hoover. Miss Fitch had friends in Mobeetie and often came there to visit. They had the same friends and heard much of each other though they never met. Miss Fitch's friends told her much of the fascinating Mr. Ewing and from the same friends he heard a great deal about the lovely and talented young music teacher. Still they missed meeting each other. Young Ewing in his forceful, determined way decided to take things into his own hands and meet the elusive Miss Fitch.

Accordingly when Hoover next set him to Mobeetie, he went with the definite purpose of meeting her. He arrived in Mobeetie only to find that the young lady he sought had that morning gone to Canadian for a few days and that they had doubtless passed each other on the road. When he returned to Canadian she had already gone back to Mobeetie. Shortly after Christmas, however, Miss Fitch went to Canadian to teach music, and she and Ewing finally met. Moonlight hay rides and picnics, parties, and buggy rides formed an idyllic background for their courtship. Miss Fitch went to Kansas City to her continued study of music. Young Ewing followed her, and they were married there. They returned to Canadian and established their home. They later moved to Miami where Ewing became associated with Judge Hendricks in a law firm. In 1908 Ewing was elected district attorney of the 31st district. In 1916 he was elected district judge in a three cornered race with Frank Willis Jr. and M. M. Miller. He has continued in this capacity for twenty years. He has been opposed only once since he was elected. He began his 21st year as district judge of this district when he opened court in Pampa in January.

The Ewings have two children; a son, Robert Ewing, recently of Shamrock and now of Pampa, and a daughter, Mrs. William A. Woolf of New York City.

THE FINANCIAL WHIRLIGIG

By LOUIS SCHNEIDER
RETALIATE.
An Amsterdam source informs your correspondent that Washington's concern over so-called "hot money" is unwarranted. It was confidentially disclosed that about $7,500,000 of foreign funds is in the United States. Of this amount $3,500,000,000 is permanent. That is, the funds are in manufacturing plants and properties owned and operated.

Of the remaining $4,000,000 about $2,000,000,000 is in United States government bonds. These are held for banks and long term investment accounts. That leaves only $2,000,000,000 in speculative securities. Our Dutch informant believes that only half of this amount will leave the United States if the dollar price of gold is reduced.

Holland believes that President Roosevelt will demand a tax on foreign capital profits only as an excuse to obtain funds to help pay for his spending programs. If such a step is approved by the American Congress foreign nations will retaliate with a tax on American money invested outside the United States. That is estimated to reach the merry tune of about $13,500,000,000.

Speculative circles are bullish on Cointreau. The shares are currently priced at the best levels for the past 12 months. What's behind the move? Talk—which can't be confirmed—that the company netted a profit of $4,500,000 during 1936, also, that the directors are to place the shares on a $2 annual dividend paying basis when they meet for action early next month.

If these two gossip items aren't confirmed it means that smart traders got away with a neat play. Conservative Wall Streeters wonder if the S. E. C. is waiting to check before stepping into the picture.

FACTS.
Approximately 30 per cent of the daily New York Stock Exchange transactions are made up of odd lot purchases and sales. Now that the ice has been broken almost all utility holding companies will register with the Securities Exchange Commission. Socony-Vacuum Oil has property interests in virtually every nation on the globe except the Soviet Union. Park & Tilford has five employees on its payroll with a total of 267 years—each has served more than 50 years. Since June 30, 1936, Brazil has burned 4,000,000 bags of coffee out of the 11,000,000 scheduled to be reduced to ashes this season. Spiegel, Inc.—formerly Spiegel Map Stern—services 1,300,000 active accounts. From the huge duPont interests down to the small ten-shareholders General Motors has a stockholders' list of 340,000 names. Thus far railroads have spent $50,000,000 on air-conditioning equipment.

AIRPLANES.
A billion dollars will be spent this year for airplanes and equipment. This is the result of a survey of 56 countries made by the Bendix Aviation Company. It was found that 28,500 units will be purchased this year. Four out of five will be fighting planes. Altogether over $500,000,000 will be spent on planes, navigation equipment, spare and replacement parts.

APPEALS PILE UP AT OFFICE OF CIO GROUP

WORKERS SEEK HELP IN ORGANIZING PLANTS

DETROIT, Feb. 25 (AP)—John Brophy, a director for the Committee for Industrial Organization, said that the John L. Lewis labor group has been receiving more appeals than it can handle to help workers organize in small towns in the automotive and other industries.

Calls for organizers from auto parts and accessory shops are turned over to the C. I. O.'s ally in that field, the United Automobile Workers of America. Brophy said that the requests from other industries have been so numerous that the U. A. W. A. has been asked to supply organizers to aid workers' groups in unrelated industries as well.

A number of these have come from workers who have called sit-down strikes in Detroit cigar factories, bakeries and other businesses, Brophy said. He indicated that the C. I. O., formed to organize workers in mass production industries, may consider setting up a division to deal with workers in miscellaneous industries.

A. U. A. W. A. sound truck was destroyed by a bomb and negotiators for General Motors and the union still were engaged in seeking a determination of workers' seniority rights.

John M. Barringer, city manager of Flint, who was criticized during the strike for forming a police "reserve" of civilians, was removed by the city commission last night.

Housewives Not Buying Meat as They Used To

CHICAGO, Feb. 25 (AP)—Housewives, said livestock men today, hold the key to the current riddle at the stockyards. How far will meat animal values advance because of last year's drought?

Livestock prices have been moving gradually but with numerous temporary recessions in recent months. Market observers said the substantial rise that trade analysts talked about last summer should be well under way by now.

Livestock men generally regard the housewife as the dictator of livestock and meat prices and statistics indicate she has been showing some indifference toward meat. Lent is a contributing factor, it was pointed out, but at the same time, with retail meat prices lower than the peak levels of 1936, packers have been storing heavily and moving a comparatively decreased volume into consumption.

Prevailing livestock prices were considered high for this time of year and in view of the lows reached in 1932, 1933 and 1934, but are well above peaks touched in 1935 and 1936. Cattle are at the best comparative level.

DR. CRANE'S REMAINS WILL BE REINTERRED IN STATE CEMETERY

AUSTIN, Feb. 25 (AP)—Remains of Dr. William Crane, pioneer Baptist minister and educator, will be reinterred in the state cemetery Friday, fifty-second anniversary of his death.

Former Gov. Pat M. Neff, president of Baylor University, will deliver a funeral oration under auspices of Daughters of the Republic of Texas.

Dr. Crane, once president of Baylor, also was organizer and first president of the Texas State Teachers' association. He served on a committee which submitted plans for establishment of the University of Texas by the legislature.

He died in 1885 and was buried in the old cemetery at Independence. A monument will mark his grave in the state cemetery.

FDR MAY USE COURT CHANGE AS OWN CLUB

WOULD ATTAIN GOAL BY AMENDING DOCUMENT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP)—Usually well informed persons said today President Roosevelt was considering the use of his Supreme Court reorganization proposal as a weapon to force action on a constitutional amendment.

The chief executive was reported reliably to have discussed with congressional leaders the possibility of enacting his court bill with a clause making its operation conditional on failure to amend the constitution within a given time.

Senators who have talked with the President recently said he had no specific constitutional amendment in mind. He was described as preferring one to limit the court's jurisdiction rather than one to extend federal power over industry and agriculture.

It was said, however, he had reached no decision on combining the bill with an amendment and was unlikely to do so for some time. He is expected to await developments before making any new moves.

Senate leaders were understood to have advised Mr. Roosevelt it was doubtful whether they could get sufficient votes to approve any of the constitutional amendments so far proposed.

Word that the chief executive had discussed the alternate proposal was the first intimation he might make to any change in his recommendation to increase the Supreme Court unless other justices retire.

Under the alternate proposal he still would have assurance of a court reorganization unless a constitutional amendment was adopted. An amendment would be submitted to the people at the same time the reorganization bill was enacted, or earlier.

The court bill then would carry a provision delaying its effective date until sometime next year, with a clause that it would not go into effect even then, if the constitutional amendment meanwhile had been ratified.

Among some of Mr. Roosevelt's advisers there was hope that the national conference on constitutional amendment, called for March 18, might bring some agreement, at least among the liberal group, on the form an amendment should take.

Passage in the meanwhile of the voluntary retirement bill for Supreme Court justices over 70, said Senator McCarran (D-Nev.), would vitally affect and clarify the whole situation.

McCarran said he would try to bring the bill before the Senate tomorrow.

'Mercy Trek' Saves Life
HALIFAX, N. S. (AP)—A "mercy trek" of 68 miles through rain-drenched woodland was made by Murdoch Slauenwhite, who walked that distance here to summon a doctor for a stricken lumberman. The physician was unable to return with him, so Slauenwhite took the medicine and walked back with it alone. The patient recovered.

Flashes of LIFE

LINGUISTIC INTERLUDE

CHICAGO—Judge Joseph B. Hermes asked Mary Griffen, who had boasted of her linguistic accomplishments in women's court, what she meant when she said: "Omnes homo mendax est."

"That's what you are, Judge," the defendant retorted. "What!" exclaimed the jurist. "A mendax is a liar."

"Oh, I misunderstood," Miss Griffen said apologetically. "I meant you were a homo sapiens. A homo sapiens is a wise man."

TONSorial HANDICAP.

TIME OUT.
KANSAS CITY—A federal court jury took 30 minutes but only one ballot to convict Edson M. Walker, election judge, of a vote fraud case.

"What took you so long?" a juror was asked. "Well," he explained, "we got into an argument over who should be foreman. Everyone wanted to be foreman, you see."

A BONER.

DEMOCRACY, NOT DICTATORSHIP IS FDR'S AIM

So Says Educator at Teachers Meet in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 25 (AP)—George S. Counts of Columbia University Teachers college said today President Roosevelt was seeking democracy, not dictatorship.

Addressing the department of superintendence of the National Education Association, with 10,000 delegates present, he said:

"The charges of dictatorship which are being hurled at the President today because of his proposals to make the federal government efficient and sensitive to the popular will either reflect confusion or are calculated to create confusion."

"The essence of dictatorship is the suspension of all civil liberties and rule by police power. Of this the President has displayed not the slightest trace."

"In the struggle now being waged over the control of economic power the aristocracy will employ every device known to demagoguery and political manipulation to confuse the issue," he said.

He recommended that the government carry out political mandates from the people quickly and effectively, distinguish between "dictatorship and democracy," preserve the rights of "free speech, press, assembly, petition, and security of persons," monopolize the police and military power and develop a system of public education with "more effective positive force in the development of democracy."

Gets Drought Relief From Coal Pit
MCALISTER, Okla. (AP)—An abandoned coal strip pit on his farm turned out to be fine drought relief for A. R. Lee, Pittsburgh county farmer.

During last summer's drought he decided he could make use of the 18 feet of water standing in the pit. He hooked up an 8 horse engine to a 5-inch centrifugal pump and successfully irrigated an acre and a half of green beans, an acre of tomatoes and an acre and a half of melons.

His set-up is ready for use next summer—if there should be another drought.

TWO SPOTS IN OIL INDUSTRY CAUSE WORRY

TOO MUCH GASOLINE BEING REFINED MOST AGREE

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 25 (AP)—Two of the sensitive spots of petroleum's nervous system—the inventory of finished stocks and the price of refined products—had oil men a trifle jumpy today.

Those who had their eyes focused on some significant price increases were hopping a little if not jumping for joy. The increasing amount of motor fuel on hand disturbed those inclined to take a dour view of the general situation.

The American Petroleum Institute's figures as of ten days ago showed total stocks of motor fuel at 7,718,000 barrels, an increase of 2,718,000 over the year before. A continued heavy run to stills was indicated by a new peak in the production of crude oil, 3,296,531 barrels daily for the week ending Feb. 20 as reported by the Oil and Gas Journal.

Most executives here were agreed too much gasoline was being refined despite the indicated heavy demand.

The overall picture of the industry was brightened by a three-tenths of a cent a gallon increase in the tank wagon price of kerosene made effective yesterday by Standard Oil of Indiana in ten mid-western states.

Refining companies need, operators were agreed, a hike of a cent a gallon in the price of gasoline and a quarter of a cent a gallon for kerosene to keep pace with the increased costs of production and the general advance in the cost of crude.

The pickup in field operations continued, with 500 completions reported in the country compared to 469 the week before. About 80 per cent of the completed wells were productive.

Texas' far-flung fields reported heavy operations. An important discovery was in Walbarger county, north Texas, where a deep sand well looked good for 2,500 to 3,000 barrels daily. It was an old producer deepened to 3,071 feet and completed in a sandy lime formation.

Clew looked at Mrs. Hart who weighs more than 200 pounds, and asked, "He—did what?" "Turned me over his knee." "That man shouldn't get a divorce," the judge observed, "he should get a medal."

Cary Grant says: "a light smoke rates aces high with my throat"

"Luckies have been my cigarette for five years now. I rate them a 4 star cigarette. They're always good to the throat, and taste so much better than other cigarettes that it seems to me this "Toasting" process is a swell idea. Yes, a light smoke like Luckies rates aces high with both my throat and taste."

APPEARING IN THE NEW COLUMBIA PICTURE, "WHEN YOU'RE IN LOVE"

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Mr. Grant verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.
