YOUTH TAKES ITSELF SERIOUSLY

and nations surging with new national feeling suffer the same motivation. Young Nationalist China, trodding under feet many of the traditions of the centuries, beats its breast and pours forth demands as long as breath lasts, figuratively speaking.

The younger Chinese know what they want and why. They want their nation to stand alone, and that means immediate withdrawal of the ships of the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France, and Italy. They want revision of the admittedly "unequal" treaties which give special privileges to foreigners.

YOUTH often demands more than is good for it. The nations named in the pleas will go slow in abandoning China and the nationals residing there. Big business will not give up the protection which the gunboats afford.

The leaders of America must watch developments in every center of dense population. We are in a real sense neighbors to every part of the globe.

Laws Make Criminals

There are too many fine distinctions drawn between what persons have individual rights to do and what they may not do. Many modern laws are passed not actually to protect society, but to suit the whims of a class which has strong ideas on a subject.

"There ought to be a law" is the first cry of the fanatic and reformer. We have tried to legislate every virtue known to humanity, and as church members we have too much substituted the rule of legislated might for the influence we claim for Christianity. The Giver of Laws condensed the basic principles of human conduct into a number which can be tabulated on the finger tips, and added thereto a philosophy and plan of living calculated to bring about the refinements of character which would make detailed enumeration of applications of principles unnecessary.

In other words, it is easy to make a new class of criminals—that is, law breakers—by placing a Thou-Shalt-Not across the paths they habitually follow. Regulations are necessary, but they should be differentiated as between law of conduct and law of mechanical necessity.

The world is too full of so-called legalistic virtues. These will not stand up in practical application.

The Men Who Pay

It has appeared to many that the tendency to neglect local rights has dominated state administrations, and especially highway commissions. For instance, road building is done from control point to control point, with the tourist always the favored patron.

Senator J. D. Parnell of Wichita Falls, West Texas' candidate for lieutenant-governor, aptly gives the following instance and argument:

"More than twenty million dollars is collected each year on automobile license fees and on the gasoline tax. Every man driving an automobile and buying gasoline pays the tax, yet the law provides that this money can only be spent upon approximately 7 per cent of the highways of our State. Before any of it may be spent in a county, they must vote bonds and raise additional money for the construction of State highways. In other words, all the people are taxed to build a small percentage of the roads and more than 70 per cent of the taxpayers receive no direct benefits from these roads.

"If a taxpayer happens to live on a designated highway or near one, well and good, but most of them are not fortunate enough to live upon these highways. The primary purpose of building hard surfaced roads was to enable the producer to transfer his products from the farm to the market. However, our enthusiasm for tourists and motor bus roads has led us into a field of inter-county and interstate transportation. We are spending the money derived from both state and local sources for the construction of main highways and leaving the rural community in the mud."

It is not Mr. Parnell's idea that the building of connected tourist highways should be retarded, but that the injustice to local communities should be corrected. Many counties not fortunate enough to be on the main-traveled highways are paying automobile and gasoline taxes year after year without prospect for seeing part of this money returned for their use.

There are state needs and local needs. Mr. Parnell has the right idea in pleading for recognition of the latter.

Americans, per capita, are 96 cents poorer this year than they were last, the treasury tells us. If we could find the person who got our 96 cents, we'd gladly send him the other four.

Moral uplift note: Don't get too wild with your vacation stories within half a mile of anyone else who was along.

CAPITOL NEWS

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON — This is one year when all the smart political writers and nearly all the dumb political writers are shaking their heads and saying that this election will be a horse race of which no man can forecast the outcome.

And you can't prove anything else by this writer, either.

Already Dr. Hubert Work has announced that prosperity will be the Hoover campaign keynote and that experience has proved that you can't ever trust the Democrats with prosperity.

Experience hasn't proved anything of the sort, or proved, but a great many people think it has and it may be that on November's first Wednesday everyone will be believing that the "full dinner pail" cry was what beat Smith.

Meanwhile Smith will undertake to offset that. He will parade a choice assortment of manufacturers, bankers, corporation lawyers and other millionaires. The list is headed by Campaign Manager J. J. Raskob, chairman of the finance committee of General Motors. Business may prefer Hoover, but it doesn't distrust Smith.

The prosperity holler is mentioned first only because it has figured in so many election campaigns before. The trouble with doping this election is that not only will all the old deciding factors figure this year, but also a great troop of new ones.

This, for instance, is the first time the middle west has threatened any such revolt against the G. O. P. and the first time the Solid South has threatened to make trouble for the Democrats. Common opinion now is that, neither section will live up to the expectations of the calamity howlers, but that's not certain.

Smith's biggest asset is his chance to carry New York and contiguous states; his biggest handicap is his religion. He is the first Democratic candidate with a chance to carry New York since Grover Cleveland and he is the first Catholic candidate ever.

Smith's stand for Volstead Act modification may be recorded in history as the thing which decided the election, but it's too early now to tell how the issue is going to work.

This year the Democratic party isn't starting under any financial handicap. Clem Shaver left it with money in the bank and Smith can have all he wants for the campaign. Most other Democratic candidates for the last 30 or 40 years have been forced to wonder at times where they were going to get carfare. The new order of things will help considerably.

Campaign management may also tell. In the preliminary practice, the Hoover managers have done a certain amount of fumbling. They'll probably get over that, but campaign managers generally have something the matter with them.

Smith's managers may even plan to sing and shout him into the White House, realizing that it might be done for Smith where it wouldn't work with Hoover. In the campaign of 1840, the Whigs had no business to beat the Democrats, but they paraded and shouted and sang until they got all the voters parading and shouting and singing and soon they had "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too" in office. There's a dangerous swing to "East Side, West Side".

Possibly the Democrats will develop a few Bill Thompsons to yell about Hoover's connections with "King George". Smith won't use those tactics, but he has plenty of friends who wouldn't be squeamish about it. It seems to work in Chicago and it might do as well elsewhere.

TWINKLES

Cheer up, without clouds in a while how can there be a silver lining?

The best adjectives we think of apply to the lady who took pity on the Saturday night staff and brought in an extra ordinarily delectable cake. Yes, it was that good.

"Better Dogs—Better Kept" is the national dog week slogan. Shades of unloved Fido, what dog is interested in the color of his bedspread.

Abuse is the favorite fake form of argument, but most of our modern politicians are short on expressive eloquence of the old days.

Like the boy about to lose his little red wagon Amarillo has discovered she wants to keep her Bronco. Here's luck to her, if she can.

A toy that squawks is classified as a musical instrument. That puts the classical art in the mouth of the Democratic mules, doesn't it?

BARBS

(By N.E.A. Service Inc.)

A man fined $1 in a New York court for a traffic violation had only a $5000-bill and a $1000-bill on his person. Probably he was just on his way to buy a couple of sandwiches and a glass of ginger ale at a night club.

Prohibition Commissioner Doran has ordered dry agents to quit shooting innocent people. Even if the intention is only good clean fun?

She courageously resolves not to be jealous, but she receives another blow to her pride when she accidentally overhears one bridegroom ask a girl if she thought the bride liked being a second choice.

Let's go tonight," Rod urged. "Certainly not," Bertie Lou objected. "We'll wait for Lila." Molly looked blank enough to bring satisfaction to Bertie Lou for her decision.

Negro Attorney Is Suspended After Graft Exposure

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(AP)—Perry W. Howard, negro national committeeman for Mississippi, under indictment on charges of conspiring to violate the law prohibiting the sale of federal offices, was suspended today as special assistant attorney general James W. Hubbard, deputy United States marshal for the southern district of Mississippi, indicted with Howard, also was suspended.

Howard, Hubbard, and two others were indicted by a grand jury specifically charged with having received $1,500 for a place on the United States marshal's staff.

BILOXI, Miss., July 17.—(AP)—While a federal grand jury continued to deliberate, was suspended today Mississippi Republican leaders in dispensing federal patronage today, speculation became rife as to what effect the investigation would have on sentiment in control of party affairs in the state.

A bitter faction struggle has been waged within the party in the state for several years with the forces headed by Perry W. Howard, negro national Republican committeeman from Mississippi, bitterly opposed at every turn by the group headed by George L. Sheldon, former governor of Nebraska and now a delta farmer, and leader of the "illy white" faction advocating white leadership. Sheldon has made several attempts to oust Howard from his acknowledged position of party leader.

New Orleans Man Shoots Wife and Attempts Suicide

NEW ORLEANS, July 17.—(AP)—Vincent Colafte, insurance agent, and his wife were found in what physicians pronounced a dying condition from gun shot wounds in their apartment here today. Police said the case was one of attempted murder and suicide.

The couple, both of whom are 24 years old, was taken to a hospital where surgeons said it would be almost impossible for either to survive.

Police said Colafte shot his wife and himself.

Overseer of Zion City Announces His Successor Today

ZION CITY, Ill., July 17.—(AP)—Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion City, who recently returned from a trip around the world and announced he was convinced the earth was flat, has named his successor. He will be Apostle M. J. Mintern, youngest of the Zion church's leaders.

Voliva failed to mention his views on immortality or his prophecy that the world would come to an end in 1933, but explained he felt he should name his successor because of the "uncertainty of this frail and transitory life." The overseer is nearing his 60th year.

MURDER, THEN SUICIDE

SAN ANTONIO, July 17.—(AP)—A verdict of murder and suicide was returned today in a dual shooting which cost the lives of Mrs. Margaret Goodwin, 45, and O. F. Dalrymple Monday. The bodies were found late yesterday in Mrs. Goodwin's house. Mrs. Goodwin had been shot through the temple and Dalrymple through the side of the head.

For West Texas

Senator J. D. Parnell of Wichita Falls is West Texas' candidate for lieutenant-governor. He recently characterized his campaign as follows:

It would be impossible for me to discuss in detail all the important issues that are before the people in this campaign. I desire to submit my candidacy upon the basis that my record in public life entitles me to the consideration of the voters of the State.

I was born in Cook county and reared in Wise. Having moved, in my early manhood, to Vernon, in Wilbarger county, and remained there until I came here in 1920.

I have never scratched a Democratic ticket, and expect to vote for every nominee in the party at the coming election in November.

I will not resort to mud slinging and demagogery in this campaign. I had rather lose the office than to defame the character of one of my opponents. I shall discuss their public record at length, but not one time during the campaign will I resort to the disreputable practice of trying to belittle or embarrass them in order that I might appeal to the prejudices of the sovereign voters of this State.

Great Britain's War Pact Note Is Awaited by Kellogg

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(AP)—Secretary Kellogg's proposed treaty for the renunciation of war approved by four of the fourteen nations which were invited original signatories, state department officials today looked to Great Britain for the next important development.

Dispatches from London said a note in reply to Mr. Kellogg's communication of June 23 which was submitted with the draft treaty probably would be given to the American charge d'affaires there tomorrow and quoted Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary, as asserting in the House of Commons that the London government had reached a definite stand on the subject.

Berry Picker Who Found Carranza's Body Gets Award

NEW YORK, July 17.—(AP)—John Carr, berry picker who found the body of Captain Emilio Carranza, beside his wrecked ship in a New Jersey swamp, will be presented $750 as a reward today at Chatsworth, N. J., at 3:30 p.m. Five hundred dollars is from the Mexican war department and $250 from Consul General Arturo Elias. The presentation will be made by A. N. Marinsky, a member of the consul general's staff.

"Baby of National Committee" a Democratic Vice Chairman

WICHITA, Kas., July 17.—Away back in the '70s of the last century, a pioneer Kansas woman named Mrs. Laura V. Gardiner was demanding that women be given the right to vote.

"Why shouldn't I be allowed a hand in running the affairs of state?" she used to ask. "Here I am rearing five children without assistance. Shouldn't I have as much to say about government as a man?"

Mrs. Gardiner lived to see woman suffrage a fact. At the time of her death she was a member of the board of education.

And now her daughter, Mrs. Florence Gardiner Farley, of Wichita is justifying her mother's faith in woman suffrage. For Mrs. Farley, "baby member" of the Democratic national committee has just been named one of the five vice-chairmen. As assistant to Mrs. Nellie Taylore Ross, of Wyoming, she is second in command of the women's activities.

Mrs. Florence Gardiner Farley

Politics is an old story to Mrs. Farley. The youngest child of the family, she was her mother's confidant during the dark days of the fight for suffrage, and in her childhood she learned much of the ways of political machinery.

As she grew older she became a firm friend of the late Col. S. B. Amidon who was probably the state's most prominent Democrat. One result of this friendship was her election, seven years ago, as national committeewoman from Kansas.

In that capacity Mrs. Farley attended the Madison Square convention of the Democrats four years ago, perfecting her skill at the game and making new contacts with party leaders from other sections. At the Jackson Day dinner in Washington last winter she was mentioned for the post of vice chairman.

Party solidarity is one of her watchwords.

"There is no doubt in my mind that we can carry the country this year if we stand united and work harmoniously," she says. "Our purpose should be the success of Democratic ideals. I believe those ideals of representative government will triumph if we work for them."

A few years ago Mrs. Farley's favorite form of recreation was horseback riding. But Wichita now has eight airplane factories, and Mrs. Farley has become an aviation enthusiast. Now she divides her spare time between horses and planes. Not long ago she and several others made an extended tour of the east by airplane.

C. M. Smith of the Brown-Crummer bonding company, Dallas, was a business visitor in Pampa, Monday.

CONOCO-ETHYL REPLIES AS FOLLOWS:

1 Of what are you composed?

I am a combination of Conoco, the extra-miles gasoline, and Ethyl brand of Anti-Knock Compound, the fluid developed by General Motors after years of exhaustive research. Ethyl is the most effective Anti-Knock Compound yet discovered.

2 How do you stop "Knocks"?

The Ethyl Fluid controls the combustion rate of the gasoline. It keeps it from burning too quickly in the presence of carbon and at high temperature.

3 Do you increase power?

Yes. Carbon deposits increase the compression of the ordinary compression motor because they decrease the size of the combustion chamber and thereby furnish greater pressure against the pistons. Since Ethyl fluid neutralizes the heating qualities of carbon and maintains the normal combustion rate of gasoline, this increased pressure becomes increased power.

As for the new, specially designed high-compression motors, Ethyl made them commercially possible.

4 Why are you colored red?

So that you may know me when you see me. The color is an oil soluble—absolutely harmless. I must warn you, though, that some imitators are also colored red, so be sure to fill only at those pumps which display the Conoco Ethyl sign.

5 Why should a motorist pay slightly more per gallon for you than he does for ordinary gasoline?

Because in the long run I save him money. I more than pay for myself in (1) freedom from the expense of carbon removal, (2) elimination of engine wear and tear caused by knocking and (3) more power for every gallon.

6 To sum up—just what may the user expect from Conoco Ethyl Gasoline?

A smoother running engine. More power—particularly on hills and heavy roads. Quicker acceleration. Less gear shifting. No knocks—without retarding the spark. More economical operation.
