Call For Additional Welfare Drive Workers Is Made by Boyd

DIRECTOR SAYS MORE HELP IS BIGGEST NEED

Headquarters Is Opened This Morning at B. C. D. Room

CAMPAIGN TO END SATURDAY

If Goal Is Reached It Will Make Nursery Possible

At noon more than $800 had been received by solicitors in the Pampa Welfare association finance drive, it was announced by Lynn Boyd, chairman of the campaign. He said the response is gratifying, and that the principal need now is for additional workers. It is hoped that the goal of $4,000 may be reached by Saturday night.

If the full amount is subscribed, the Welfare association will create a day nursery and continue its other work among the needy of the city. Mrs. M. P. Downs, welfare nurse, has been under difficulties for the last year. She had only $1,500.00 with which to carry on her work.

More ladies are needed to help in the work and all men who promised to be present had not appeared at noon. Chairman Boyd said. He is desirous that twenty more women be ready to start tomorrow morning.

Band Will Play
Tomorrow the Pampa band will give its services and will play wherever stands have been erected on the main streets.

It was brought to the attention of several collectors this morning that citizens were not fully aware of the work being done by the Pampa Welfare association, or of the system used for distribution of funds. No money can be disbursed without the issuance of a check by the treasurer and he cannot issue a check for more than $10 without an order from the nurse. If the amount to be given is more than $25 the order must be signed by at least three members of the board of directors.

Funds are used to help the poor, care for the sick, feed and clothe the needy, and for health work in the schools.

Statement Made
A statement of the receipts and expenditures of the association during the last year has been prepared by Mrs. M. P. Downs, nurse, and presented to Lynn Boyd, chairman of the welfare drive.

The statement follows:
Amount received from subscriptions etc. $1,828.00

Paid out:
Salary of community nurse	$975.00
Medicines	50.55
Nurse and hospital fees	64.54
Telephone, No. 605	45.00
Groceries	424.71
Rent paid for needy	86.00
Transportation	70.60
Clothing	11.00
Funerals	52.60
Printing and supplies	20.00
Total	$1,800.00
Balance in bank	26.00

THE WEATHER VANE

WEST TEXAS: Partly cloudy, colder in the Panhandle tonight; Saturday partly cloudy, colder.

—AND A SMILE

NEW YORK. (P)—Sam Rebach, 19, is off the Houdini stuff. He thought he had it down pat and permitted himself to be locked in the strong room of a fur store where he is employed. Police firemen, and an ambulance were on the way when the boss arrived and opened the vault. Sam had told a confederate the combination, but the confederate forgot it.

FULL HOUSE NOW EXPECTED AT PROGRAM

"The Old Family Album," together with other comic feature numbers, will be presented at the Central auditorium at 8 o'clock this evening. More than a hundred persons will appear on the program, which is being given under the auspices of the A. A. U. W. and the College club, for the benefit of the Pampa public library.

A parade was to be held on the business streets at 4 o'clock this afternoon, and during the parade circulars will be passed from the street corners. On 50 of the circulars will be the letters "O F. A." These 50 circulars will be free passes to the benefit program, each good as a ticket for either an adult or a child, on condition it is presented at the ticket office with a paid adult ticket.

The sale of tickets for the program has been rapid, and reserved tickets were taken so fast after they were placed on sale Wednesday that it became necessary to open two new sections. Mrs. George Wolfe, chairman of the ticket-committee, says a full house is indicated.

District Court Docket Now Has Nearly 400 Cases
Yesterday was the last day that suits could be filed to get service at the next term of the 31st district court. The first term of the 31st district court under the new plan by which Gray county will have two nine-week terms annually, will convene March 18.

Judge W. Reece Ewing of Miami will be presiding judge of the court, Clifford Braly, formerly of Panhandle but now a resident of Pampa, is district attorney of the new court.

When court convenes there will be more than 300 civil suits and 89 criminal cases awaiting. Of that number, two are for murder.

TULSA BUSINESS MEN WILL SEE REVOLUTION
TULSA, Okla., March 8. (P)—A party of Tulsa business men left today in two tri-motored planes for Brownsville, Texas, to cruise along the border in an attempt to observe activities of the revolution.

Mayor Dan Patton, C. A. Mayo, hotel proprietor; Victor Gray, paving contractor, and C. S. Avery, former chairman of the Oklahoma highway commission, were in one plane, which went directly toward Brownsville.

In the other plane were Alva J. Niles, former territorial adjutant general; Johnson D. Hill and Frank Matchett, Tulsa bankers; R. D. Bedinger, aeronautical inspector for the department of commerce; Victor F. Barnett, managing editor of the Tulsa Tribune. This plane stopped in Oklahoma City, where A. E. Warner, utilities official, and Harvey P. Everest and son joined the party. Other stops for passengers were to be made at Fort Worth and San Antonio.

The air tourists expected to arrive at Brownsville tonight and fly along the border tomorrow as far as Laredo.

SEUBERT NOW STANDARD OIL COMPANY HEAD

But the Post Held by Stewart Is Not to Exist

AUTHORITY IS TO BE SIMILAR

Defeat of Chairman Is Held Surprisingly Decisive

WHITING, Ind., March 8. (P)—Edward G. Seubert today replaced Col. Robert W. Stewart as head of the $900,000 Standard Oil company of Indiana.

Mr. Seubert, who has been president of the company, was not given Stewart's office as chairman of the board, that post having been abolished at the directors' meeting yesterday. Instead, he was named executive officer, with authority similar to that exercised by Col. Stewart.

The forces representing the younger John D. Rockefeller, which controlled yesterday's annual stockholders meeting at which Col. Stewart was removed from the board of directors, made no attempt to name Stewart's successor as executive. They were interested only they explained, in removal of Col. Stewart whom Mr. Rockefeller had regarded as "morally unfit" to continue direction of the business.

The vote was nearly two to one against Col. Stewart, but the individual shareholders stood two to one behind him, viz:

Shareholders for John D. Rockefeller, Jr., 15,204.
Shareholders for Col. Stewart, 31,336.
Only 17 of the 7,901 employe-stockholders voted against Stewart, it was announced.

The new directorate is:
William A. Burton (former president) Melvin A. Traylor, Thomas S. Cook, Gentry Cash, C. J. Barkdull, R. E. Humphreys, Ames Bail, E. J. Bullock, R. H. McElroy, Allan Jackson, and Edward G. Seubert. The first four are new members. They were chosen to fill vacancies created by the defeat of Stewart and Stephens and by death.

Col Stewart, by reason of his 22 years service with the company, is entitled to an annual pension of approximately $75,000. His salary as chairman of the board was $125,000 a year.

MILLER SAVES SEARCH AND SEIZURE BILL IN DEADLOCK

AUSTIN, March 8. (P)—The first vote today on the Graves house bill relating to liquor search and seizure regulations found an even division in the senate, but Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller voted with proponents of the bill.

The vote was on the motion to table the minority report which would in effect have killed the bill.

Senators Thomas B. Love of Dallas and Walter C. Woodward of Coleman, leaders in the fight for the bill, applauded vigorously.

LANDOWNERS ARE BACK—AND HAPPY

Pampa's delegation to Austin returned to home yesterday, tired, but happy in realization that it accomplished what it went to the capital to do. Twenty-one strong, the Pampa delegation made its presence felt in Austin, with the other delegations from West Texas, the gallery at the house was filled to capacity, the returning Pampans say.

They are praising the Fort Worth & Denver and Katy railroad lines for courtesy in giving private cars to the Pampa delegation. The cars supplied at Amarillo were transferred to the Katy at Fort Worth and were held over in Austin for the returning delegates.

The Gray county landowners and legal advisers made the trip to Austin in the interest of all landowners of West Texas. They believe that their presence in the capital was instrumental in having the house and senate enact the land over Gov. Dan Moody's veto.

Those making the trip from here included:

C. C. Stockstill, E. E. Reynolds, Bill Jackson, John Caven, Jim Stroppe, C. W. Bradford, C. C. Alexander, H. E. Saunders, Guy Saunders, Henry Thut, J. E. Williams, M. B. Davis, Joe Bowlers, John Boyers, A. E. Herftman, F. M. Gwin, C. P. Buckler, Ed Dinegan, J. M. Saunders, C. C. Cook, and S. D. Stennis.

BILL TO OUST BOLTERS GOES TO DAN MOODY

Final Passage Achieved Last Night by House

300,000 VOTERS AFFECTED BY IT

Opponents Claim Act Drives Drys Out of Party

AUSTIN, Mar. 8. (P)—Loyal Texas Democrats who stayed by their guns during the last presidential campaign apparently held the whip hand of political power today, the house last night passed the measure giving the state executive committee right to purge from the ranks those who swung the state into the republican column for the first time in history.

The measure drafted by Senator A. J. Wirtz of Seguin, needed only the signature of Governor Moody to put it into effect. Proponents believed the governor will show no hesitancy in placing his stamp of approval on the bill, and its opponents were equally certain he would veto it.

Its scope is broad, affecting approximately 300,000 voters, a majority of whom are believed to be women, who cast ballots for republican electors at the polls last November.

Representative George Kemble of Fort Worth, maintained that if the executive committee took advantage of the power vested with them and excluded persons who left the party, Reno Eickenroth, only republican member of the house, would be its next speaker. He asserted the bill would divide the ranks of the party and cause persons excluded from voting in the Democratic primary to cast their lot with republican forces.

Representative B. J. Forbes of Weatherford, a minister, said the Democratic party would become known as a liquor organization in Texas if drys were banished from it.

The house also passed finally a bill changing the name of South Texas Teachers college at Kingsville to Texas College of Arts and Industries and providing an increased curriculum.

Gordon Thome, son of one of the founders of Montgomery Ward and company, has married for the fourth time.

Juan Guillermo Villasana, chief of the civil aviation section of the department of communication, and probably two local newspapermen.

President Portes Gil today was to turn from his active direction of the war against the insurgents to christen the tri-motored plane in which the colonel will inaugurate the new air-mail service between this city and Brownsville, Texas. The flight will be made tomorrow, starting at 7:45 a. m. Lindbergh will carry as his passengers

OVERWHELMED AND BACKED TO BORDER, DEFENDING GENERAL AGREES TO TRUCE NEAR NOON

Dead and Wounded Strwn About War-Torn Mexican City in Plain View of Americans in El Paso

BOY WOUNDED BY STRAY BULLET BUT U. S. AVOIDS COMPLICATIONS

More Than Score Killed as Machine Guns Rake Combatants—Revolutionists Claim Sinaloa Report

JUAREZ, Chihuahua, March 8.—(AP)—Raked by artillery, its principal streets transformed to a battle ground, Juarez fell today before the onslaught of the invading revolutionaries after a sanguinary siege which routed defending federal forces.

Bombardments from rebel artillery left the Sixteenth of September street, the city's famous thoroughfare, littered with dead and dying while the insurgents charged in mounted columns against the fleeing federals. A battle that began at dawn had brought to the rebels possession of all the government's seven strongholds shortly before noon.

General Mathias Ramos commanding the federals in Chihuahua, fled with his handful of followers to shelter on the shore of the Rio Grande in plain view of hundreds of Americans in El Paso.

General Miguel Valles, in charge of the rebel forces in command of the city, told a reporter for the El Paso Herald that the lives of some would be endangered, even those who fought against him, if they would come over to the rebel cause.

"Will there be any executions?" he was asked.

"I do not know," he replied. "I have ordered my men not to take anything without paying for it. There will be no looting."

JUAREZ, Mex., March 8. (P)—The number of dead in the battle of Juarez was unofficially placed at 23. Of these, 14 were listed as rebels, including two officers, and nine federals, including one major-general. Nineteen rebels and 13 federals were wounded.

EL PASO, March 8. (P)—Federal troops stationed on top of buildings in Juarez, at 6 a. m., opened machine gun fire on rebels approaching the city by train.

The rebels made a surprise attack against the city from the northwest under cover of an irrigation ditch, 200 feet from the international line.

Federals Fire Low

The federals sent their shots low apparently in an effort to avoid shooting across the border. The rebels returned the fire with rifles as they moved into the city proper to get at hand to hand combat with the government troops.

The firing ceased at 6:40 o'clock.

The start of the fighting was plainly visible from El Paso. The heaviest firing was ten blocks away from the thickly populated district of South El Paso. The gun fire roused the town and there was much excitement here.

NOGALES, Ariz., March 8. (P)—Mazatlan, the seaport metropolis of Sinaloa, has been evacuated by a thousand troops of the federal forces and General Turbe, commanding an advancing revolutionary army of 2,000 men expects to occupy the city tonight, reports to The Herald here today said.

The federal troops in Juarez were estimated at some 600 men, while the rebel force appeared to number some 2,000 or more.

The federal machine gun fire took a heavy toll. Bodies could be seen from this side of the border, sprawled on the pavement of Sixteenth of September street, one of the main thoroughfares of Juarez.

Civilian Defenders Flee
Some civilian volunteer defenders of Juarez threw down their guns and fled for the international bridge when the battle opened. They were halted on the American side of the bridge and arrested by United States border patrolmen. Their ammunition was confiscated, and they were taken away.

The rebel troops captured Fort Hidalgo in Juarez, but were repulsed with five killed when they attacked the headquarters of General M. Ramos, commanding federal troops on top of the Hotel Rio Bravo.

A reporter for the El Paso Herald, hidden in a house in Juarez where the fighting was most severe, told his paper by telephone. He lay at full length on the floor and bullets sizzled overhead through the building.

The early attack upon the city was made by three separate rebel detachments, the one from the northwest, a second from the east, and the third from a detachment which moved upon the city in box cars.

Hospital Rapidly Fills
After the lull in fighting the federal hospital started to fill with injured. Twelve men were reported known dead and 12 wounded in the first rush, but it is believed the rebel losses were higher.

The former chief of police of Juarez, Albino Frias, was reported at the head of one rebel detachment. He disappeared from here several days ago.

Rebel cavalry charged down the streets of Juarez in what appeared to be their most powerful offensive to end the siege for control of the important northern railroad center, and point of entry. It was during this thrust the stray shots first reached the American side of the border.

In the thick of the battle Augustine Gallo, mayor of Juarez, who was under arrest charged with being friendly to the revolution, was freed, and took his place on the firing line with the federal troops.

Machine Guns Plistified
The fighting was intense. Machine gun fire raked the principal streets of the town as three rebel machine gun sections answered the fire poured into the revolutionary forces from federal

"It's Like This—"

AT LAST PLAINVIEW is to have a daily newspaper. For several years Plainview has been one of the largest cities in Texas without a daily publication.

The Herald and The News have been merged, and the Plainview Evening Herald will appear in its new form March 15. Full leased wire of the Associated Press will be had from the start.

The two papers were good ones, and their owners were prosperous—more so, in fact, than they may be for several years under the new plan. But no city is recognized as such these days unless it has a daily paper.

It is as much the province of the daily to help make things happen, to ask those responsible why things are NOT happening and to remind them of opportunities, as it is to publish the facts after they occur.

Panhandle journalism will welcome the new Plainview daily. This section is rapidly forging a list of small dailies, indicating more intensive development. Plainview should support a small paper with ease, and it is fortunate that both papers did not try daily publication—to their own detriment and that of the community as well.

It would be treason, Sir! To say that the state of Texas should be subdivided into four parts, simply because the governor and some others do not agree with certain ideas pertaining particularly to West Texas, as has been talked in the legislature at Austin, is nonsensical, to say the least.

Henry Tyte? I'll Say He Is! "Well, just for that we'll form some subdivisions of our own."

By Cowan

Why is a state, anyhow? A mere political division, for the sake of form.

Most everything smacking of the political, also smacks of red-tape. Three more states in our present system, just so much more red-tape.

But Texas is not merely a state. It is an empire, as the United States is a nation.

Divide the nation, and we lose that unity in which is our strength.

Nations and states are not composed of boundary lines. They are made up of ideas and ideals, of folklore and tradition, of aims and aspirations, of achievements and the history of those accomplishments. "Remember the Alamo! Remember Goliad!" These apply alike to Texans residing amid the piney woods of East Texas or the mosquitoes along the coast, upon the rolling hills of North Texas or the level plains of the Panhandle, under shadows of our far-west mountain ranges or beneath spreading palms of the Rio Grande Valley.

Divide Texas? Just the wail of a failure. No true Texan, worthy the name, would speak of it.

Every true Texan, worth the name, would fight to prevent it.

Let all the oil, seeping beneath the beds of every river in the state, run to waste, or be stolen. Who cares? Texas remains.

Permit every stream in the domain to run dry, and yet be pronounced navigable. What's the difference? Texas survives.

Texas was Texas when Indians roamed its prairies after buffalo. Tejas, the country sloping seaward, springing eternal, the empire budded.

It is in full bloom now and no man's hatchet-like smatterings of loose-tongued babbling is going to hew it to pieces.

It would be treason, Sir, of the rankest sort. And there are more than two million Texans who would die, a did the less than 200 besieged in the Alamo, rather than surrender.—Lubbock Avalanche.

Whoa, there, Mr. Editorial Writer. It does not behoove the pot to call the kettle black. In quoting aroused citizens, do not yourself go into a trance, even in the name of Texas patriotism.

We remember our Texas history, and The Alamo and Goliad too. We also recall another battle, just won by the aroused landowners of West Texas in the Battle of Austin. We have a hunch, moreover, that this is not the last skirmish of the kind.

We have not suggested division of Texas into four parts, or two either. Frankly, we doubt that division will ever take place. Every true Texan, worth of the name, would fight to prevent it", you say. Bunk. "Permit every stream in the domain to run dry, and yet be pronounced navigable."

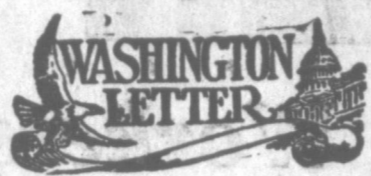

"Let all the oil, seeping beneath the beds of every river in the state, run to waste, or be stolen. Who cares? Texas remains." That, Sir Avalanche is treason—treason to the honest West Texas landowners who were asked to surrender their lands to Austin aristocrats who sought to misuse the state departments to reach ill-gotten wealth. Who cares? West Texas cares. The legislature cares, or it would not have gone over the heads of Moody and Pollard.

Texas is a proud name, but if there is any fighting done, it ought to be to prevent that name from being sullied through defrauding of its citizens in the name of its high-level officials.

Remember, yes remember—that it is only an honest government that is worth remembering. It would be better to raise the cry of division than to permit the state to break its own contracts, cancel its official patents, and wage legal war to rob landowners of soil upon which they have pioneered, built a civilization, and paid taxes.

Treason? Then page Patrick Henry.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER WASHINGTON—The Hon. John Garibaldi Sargent unquestionably has derived a deal of quiet satisfaction over the difficulty Mr. Hoover had in finding the right kind of a man to succeed him as attorney general.

Denied if it didn't put kind of a crimp in those critics that have been allowin' all along that finding a successor would be just about the easiest of all chores and that the old Department of Justice would get along in exactly the same way if he were to have no successor at all.

Yessir, it does kind of give a feller a thrill to resume his position as leading lawyer in Ludlow, Vermont, after seeing the new president having such a heck of a time filling his boots!

Sargent will be very happy to get back among his native Green Mountains. His yearning for them these last few years has been just as sincere as could be. His announced reaction to his job here is that it was a great experience—kind of broadens a feller—and that he enjoyed it. But he is now assuredly the most content of the retired cabinet members.

In recent times, at least, there has been no other cabinet member just like Sargent. He leaves friends here; not many admirers, it is true, but no enemies.

His main job, in his mind, was to do what his friend Calvin wanted him to do. Inasmuch as Calvin seldom had any instructions, he did very little. He will be remembered here as the cabinet member who never appeared to know what it was all about and who, furthermore, didn't care. In that respect he left the Justice Department the same Sargent, now 68 years old. These Vermonters get set in their ways much younger than that. And it is somewhat to Sargent's credit that he never professed to know what it was all about when he didn't. His official conduct seemed to be keyed along the lines of a public address in which he once said:

"In 150 years we have all traveled far, very far; and if it is excusable to make use of the substance of a somewhat slangy phrase, we do not yet know just where we are going. I say we do not know where we are going and I say it again, because I wish you to take note of the assertion; ask yourselves if you can say to the contrary, and if you feel sure about it each tell yourself the answer."

Few of his speeches were quite good enough to dissolve the suspicion that Sargent had written them himself. He was not averse to speechmaking, but he appeared to have a perfect horror of ever telling newspapermen anything. That was all right with the newspapermen, but the old gentleman also clamped down a mantle of secrecy over his entire department. Often he varied his customary simple answers of "I don't know" and "I can't discuss that" by saying "Colonel Donovan has charge of that," but he wouldn't let Donovan, who was regarded as the real attorney general, open his mouth. And thus the Justice Department worked in nearly absolute secrecy; it seemed as if Sargent regarded correspondents as more dangerous than the nation's criminals.

It is a rather quaint fact that Sargent apparently never knew much more than he told the press. When a Senate committee asked him about the so-called aluminum trust it appeared that he hadn't even heard of the inquiry until six or eight months after taking office, even though the company had been accused of anti-trust violations by both his predecessor and the Federal Trade Commission. He learned about it first when some newspapermen happened to ask him about it.

Sight of moderns in old-fashioned clothes proves that the folks of yesterday were not as awkward as they looked.

Mexico is very nice in season, but the present one isn't much to recommend the country a health resort.

Two orphan boys are head men of this nation, but the fact is no reason for ultra-modern youth to regard lack of parents as an asset.

Oil Pay Topped at Worley-Reynolds No. 31, Section 61

A light spray of oil was encountered late yesterday in the Wilcox-Pampa Oil company's No. 31 Worley-Reynolds in the southwest corner of the southeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section 61, block 3. The oil was topped at 2,980 feet on top of a hard formation.

This morning the test was drilling at 3,001 feet in the granite wash formation. No increase was reported. This test is in the southeast portion of the old Wilcox pool of the South Pampa field.

In the LeFors pool, the Skelly Oil company's No. 1 Saunders in the southwest corner of section 4, block 1, A. C. H. & B. survey, came in for an initial flow of 610 barrels daily. Pay is coming from granite wash formation. Total depth of the test is 2,573 feet.

The oil is 41 gravity, and is free from water.

Present Paving Is Near Conclusion

The Stuckey Construction company finished paving the alley west of Frost street between Foster and Kingsmill avenues this afternoon. With the completion of that alley, there remains only the alley east of Cuyler street between Foster and Kingsmill avenues to be paved.

Another day's run will finish the paving of Tyng street with vibrolithic concrete. This will be the last paving until spring opens up, officials of the Stuckey Construction company say.

On Aerial Honeymoon

Charles S. Mott of Flint, Mich., and his bride, the former Mrs. Dee Furey of Detroit, pictured above, were reported uninjured when Mott's tri-motored plane in which they were starting out on an aerial honeymoon was forced down at Anderson, Ind. Mott is executive vice president of General Motors. The news of their marriage in Toledo came as a surprise to their friends. Mrs. Furey was publisher and editor of a Detroit society magazine.

Mrs. R. E. Williams, Miss Wanda Barnard, Miss Virginia Rose, Miss Yvonne Thomas, and Miss Inez Barrett will go to Amarillo this evening to spend the week-end.

E. H. Whitehead, publicity manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and Chas. P. Miller, new member of the publicity department, were visitors here yesterday.

Carson County Home Demonstration Club Work Already Well Organized

PANHANDLE, March 8.—Just as "Little drops of water and little grains of sand, make the mighty ocean and the beautiful land" so will cows, hogs and hens under the intelligent direction of Carson county farm women and girls stabilize the happiness and prosperity of the county, according to the Carson county home demonstration agent.

The various leaders of the women's federated clubs of this county realized that they could not overlook these things that some are inclined to call small, compared with wealth in oil, wheat, etc., because they repeatedly appeared before the commissioner's court and asked that a home demonstration agent be employed by the county.

On August 22, 1928, the home demonstration agent, began work in Carson county. Organization of girls 4H clubs and women's home demonstration clubs in practically every rural community in the county is completed. There are twelve communities in the county having a total of one hundred and ninety three women and girls enlisted in home demonstration work. This includes only those girls between the ages of 12 and 20 in the county.

Their plan of work for the year comes under six heads, each constructive and helpful in farm life. Each member chooses a productive project at the beginning of the year which has to do either with garden, poultry, or dairying. Each 4H club girl is required to make four garments during the year. Each member cans at least 20 cans of vegetables, fruit, or meat for home use.

Each club member makes one article to improve the interior of the home, and plant flowers, trees, and shrubs on the home grounds as a project. To abide by the constitution and by-laws of the club and to learn correct parliamentary forms in carrying out each club program, and to exhibit work at community, county and state fairs, are others of the six items of the year plan.

Reid Is Re-elected to Tri-State Fair

F. P. Reid, pioneer resident, has received word that he was re-elected a director of the Tri-State fair for this year. The Pampa man has been a member of the board for the last five years, or since the fair association was organized. Mr. Reid was also a director of the association organized in 1915. Elaborate plans are under way for holding a greater fair this year, Mr. Reid says.

The Rev. A. A. Hyde, minister of the local Presbyterian church, is attending the Panhandle district Christian Endeavor convention at Memphis. He will speak tonight there on "The Value of Christian Endeavor to the Individual." He will return for the local service Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lavender and George E. May were business visitors in Amarillo yesterday.

Giants Suffer Three Injuries in Less Than Game

SAN ANTONIO, March 8. (AP)—Andy Reese, Jimmy Welsh, and Jack Cummings have injuries to show for a six and a half inning practice game the New York Giants played here yesterday.

Reese and Welsh passed out of the game via the Charley-horse route. Cummings' right thumb was injured by a foul tip. Nor was that all. Joe Genewich essayed to play left field and nearly sprained a leg when he chased a long drive, caught it, and then fell.

At Clearwater, Fla., Doug McWeeny has capitulated to the arguments of Wilbert Robinson and affixed his name to a Brooklyn contract.

Dazy Vance announced he was going back to Homosassa, Fla., to build a vacation camp, unless the Robins agreed to give him $25,000.

The Brooklyn board of directors announced their top figure would be $22,500. If Dazy accepted he'd be the highest paid pitcher in baseball.

Elgin Wilson, a young righthanded rookie from Milford, Texas, may answer the application of the White Sox for another good pitcher. Wilson pitched seven innings of steady baseball for the regulars in yesterday's game at Dallas, holding the "Goofs" to six scattered hits and winning, 6 to 2.

Detroit Tiger pitchers were permitted to cut loose yesterday for the first time since the training season at Phoenix, Ariz., opened. Of the veterans, Ed Stoner looked especially good, while Johnny Prudhomme and Lefty Barnes, recruits, also pleased Manager Harris.

Complete reversal of form was displayed by the St. Louis Cardinals between their last two games—one last fall in the Yankee world series and the other yesterday in the Florida Grapefruit league when three rookie hurlers held the Philadelphia Athletics to three hits, while their teammates batted out a 2-to-0 victory.

Today the two clubs clash again, at the A's park in Fort Myers.

Artificial Lung Again Success

KEY WEST, Fla., March 8. (AP)—The newly developed artificial "lung" for use in escape from disabled submarines on the ocean floor, has been proven successful from a depth of 200 feet in the final tests conducted in Florida waters.

Lieutenant C. N. Momsen, and chief Torpedoman Edward Kallinowski yesterday overcame the tremendous pressure of 200 feet when they stepped out through a hatch on the deck of the submarine S-4, and rose to the surface approximately nine minutes later unharmed.

W. S. Cross of Memphis, formerly a Pampa merchant, was a business visitor here yesterday.

NICK AND BIG TRAIN IN TRIM FOR 1928 PENNANT STRUGGLE

Walter Johnson and Nick Altrock, veteran Washington standbys, just couldn't hide their enthusiasm when they reached spring training quarters. Here they are just before starting the 1929 grind.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—The Washington Senators may not win the American League pennant but they're sure to be a great drawing card.

The reason is that Walter Johnson is back with the Senators and that Nick Altrock, baseball's favorite clown, is starting off in midseason form.

These two celebrities of the national pastime have been fixtures with the Washington fans, as well as with fans throughout the circuit, for the greater part of the last 20 years.

The Big Train was with the Senators for 21 years until last season. He was released then to manage the Newark club of the International League. He is back this year as manager of the club for which he pitched more than two decades.

In the old days Nick and Walter took their regular turn on the mound for, believe it or not, Nick once was a player who took his game seriously. That was twenty years ago. Nick was off and on with Washington from 1909 to 1919. During that time he was classed as a pitcher.

He served as a Senator hurler during 1909, 1912, 1913, 1915, 1918 and 1919. Since then the funny one has drawn his pay as a coach but his main business has been to entertain the fans and, of course, keep his teammates in good spirits.

They're a great combination, are the Big Train and Nick and if there's anything in hard work they'll have the Senators in the pennant race from the start.

IDENTITY OF INJURED MAN SOUGHT—MAY BE BANDIT

TEXARKANA, March 8. (AP)—Officials here today checked Alabama and Texas criminal records to trace movements of a man arrested here in connection with the $6,000 robbery of the First National bank of Texas City. When arrested the man was nursing a bullet wound in his right arm which he said he suffered Jan. 31 in Birmingham. This and his apparent fear of being taken to Alabama made police believe that he might be wanted for some crime in that city. The man admitted that he had been pardoned in 1927 while serving a term for bank robbery in Texas.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

Why Sharkey Won

It was generally agreed among the experts who gathered at Miami Beach for the Stribling-Sharkey fight that the superb physical condition of Sharkey had little to do with his victory. The matter of pounds in weight that he had on Stribling was not as important as the stamina that he displayed in withstanding two terrific right hand punches to the jaw that Stribling landed on him.

Sharkey, strange for his way of bragging, said after the fight that Stribling almost knocked him out in the fourth and ninth rounds and that if Stribling had used his right hand often he would have won the fight.

And he added: "That's on the level I ain't talking for a return fight."

Was Trained Smartly

Stribling, though, getting back to the subject, was in great condition because he worked hard and consistently, harder and more consistently than he ever worked for any other fight. The weather conditions should have been against him.

It was so hot, Stribling said, he couldn't work every day, and when he did work he didn't work against the class of sparring partners that Sharkey had.

Sharkey was in danger of getting too fine but his program was mixed up so well with diversions by his trainer, Al Lacey, that he got the maximum of condition with the least penalty.

Unusual Talking

The experts were wondering if the hard siege of training Sharkey went through for the fight might not in the long run detract against him.

Some of them thought that he would feel so pleased after the fight and would think so well of his commanding position among the contenders for the heavyweight championship that he would go back to the life of a New England squire with overtime work.

The day of the fight, several of us asked Sharkey what his plans were after the fight.

"First of all, I'm going to do some very heavy eating," he said. "I'm going to smoke cigars all the way back to Boston. No cigarettes, though. You can't chew those things. When I get back home I'm going to eat and smoke the old pipe plenty."

"You know," he went on, "I've got a joint up there in Boston that it's taking this fight to pay off. I haven't been in it yet. I only saw two rooms before I left and there wasn't any rugs on the floor. I'm kinda interested to look over the joint and help the missus get it fixed up. I'll have to keep in shape to do that. If you've ever had to move a lot of furniture from room to room and up one floor and down another you know that it's good training. I won't have to do any work for some time. My bad knee is all right and when I get the time to spend just as I want to spend it I'll get in better shape. I worry a little bit when I get things on my mind."

Where Money Goes

None of the experts really know Sharkey, but if any of them have an inkling of the man himself the Boston writers have and they have no doubt that Sharkey will suffer from money.

They think that the man has a greater love for money and position than business he is in and he will not slip into the slumps he suffered after several of his best fights.

He has an estate of handle that may cost as much as Dempsey's in California. He has four of the best automobiles that can be bought in the country, chauffeurs, his personal man and the general overhead of a home that set him back more than $200,000, and he knows according to the Boston boys, that Sharkey, the fighter, has to keep his joint going.

Did You Know That—

SAN FRANCISCO has a Hawaiian rookie . . . who pitches, plays first and chases flies . . . and hits 'em on the nose . . . Gus, the rassing champ, says he fears Malcevic . . . more than any other rasser. . . and they meet in Boston soon. . . Harry Hellmann says Bill Kamm is the best third baseman in his league . . . and everybody agrees. . . Jeff Tesreau has sent another pitcher from Dartmouth to the majors. . . this one is Bill Breckinridge, with the A's. . . the other was Edwards, with the Braves last summer. . . Jack Sutherland expects another big year at Pittsburgh . . . with plenty of veterans back and a lot of good freshmen for football. . . Henrietta, Tex., asked for a donation from Dempsey . . . to help build a memorial to Rickard. . . and Jack said Madison Square Garden was the place for that. . . if the Garden itself wasn't a memorial to Tex.

Phillies May Lose Their Consistency

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 8. (AP)—Supporters of the Philadelphia Nationals hope and believe they have lost the jewel of consistency since the last season ended. The Phillies have consistently finished last in the National league race of late and any change must be for the better.

Early signs at the training camp indicate that Burt Shotton, now a sophomore manager, at least has a chance to push his team out of the cellar.

A large question mark remains after the pitchers' names but the rest of the line-up has been so improved that even if the pitching is no better than it was in 1928 it will show more results.

The most encouraging development is in the infield. Tommy Thevenow seems certain to play great ball at shortstop. The star of the 1926 world series has recovered from a broken leg.

Teams Score for Each Other at Dallas Tourney

DALLAS, March 8. (AP)—This is the story of a team that couldn't lose for winning. It is different.

In the opening round of the A. A. U. woman's basketball tournament here this week, two of the weaker teams, Holland's Magazine of Dallas and Mesquite high school, were paired against each other.

Both teams, unknown to the other, had decided to get eliminated in their opening fray. Whereas they were outclassed in the championship fight, they figured they might have a chance to survive the consolation. Both sextets decided they would pretend to do their best, only to have no luck hitting the basket.

To make things look aboveboard, Holland's started off by chucking in three points. Then they eased up and waited for the Mesquite Lassies to begin scoring. But they waited in vain. The Mesquite forwards apparently couldn't locate the hoop.

It suddenly dawned on the Holland's girls that there had been some dark scheming. Then the Holland's guards began tossing the ball through the goal they were "defending," and the Mesquite guards opened a similar offensive against their opponents' hoop.

It ended with Holland's leading, 17 to 8, through no fault of its own. Fourteen of the winners' points were scored by the losers, and all the losers' points were scored by the winners.

This achievement availed the Mesquite girls little, however, as they were defeated by the A. Harris team of Dallas, 19 to 9, in the first round of the consolation.

The World's Quality Oil made still better!
Leading lubrication specialists improve the quality of Mobiloil to meet today's demand for a superior lubricating oil
Today's high-speed driving conditions place a new burden upon lubrication. Your engine requires a better oil, especially adapted to these conditions. This need is now met with the New Mobiloil, superior to anything produced before. At 35c a quart, you will find this Mobiloil the most economical oil you ever used.
MAKE THIS TEST
Drive to the nearest Mobiloil dealer . . . have him drain all the old oil from your crankcase and . . . fill it up with the correct grade of the New Mobiloil. You know from experience how your engine ran the last time fresh oil was put in the crankcase . . . Now—notice the difference!
Look for these results—
Increased Oil Mileage: Often 100 extra miles per quart from the New Mobiloil.
Increased Gasoline Mileage: Many tests show gasoline consumption reduced as much as 16%.
Faster Pick-Up—More Power: Quicker get-away, more "pep" on the road, less labor on the hills.
Smoother Operation: A quieter motor, a velvety smoothness of acceleration, less vibration when speeding.
NEW Mobiloil 35c a quart
The dealer who sells a quart of the New Mobiloil for less than 35c (except Mobiloil "E" the chatteringproof oil for Model T Fords, at 30c) is not making his fair reasonable profit. Lower prices often accompany substitution.

BLAZING the SPORTS TRAIL

By ALAN J. GOULD (Associated Press Sports Editor.)

The New York Yankees, quite possibly the greatest baseball team of all time, in the last two years have discovered a positive method of extracting most of the thrills from the world's series.

By taking eight successive games from National league opposition in this period, the athletes representing the house of Ruppert & Huggins have aroused concern as to when some opposing team will win a game, let alone a series from them.

The hurting of Penneck and the wild pitch of ill-fated John Miljus in 1927, the tremendous hitting of Gehrig and Ruth, capped by the Babe's three home runs in the final game of the 1928 series—these features have furnished something to get a trifle excited about as the Yankees have steam-rollered all opposition, but it takes the element of competition to provide any real thrills.

Go back to 1924 and you will find as big a thrill as any world's series ever knew. Old Barney Johnson out there on the hill, beaten twice before by the Giants, but hurling bird shot at 'em now.

Thirty-five thousand Washington fans, tense and emotional as the seventh and deciding game goes into extra innings. The Giants fighting desperately, keen to offset the stigma of scandal that preceded the championship. The Senators, spurred by their first pennant, fighting back just as fiercely behind their beloved pitcher, Johnson, in danger, but with enough of the old "smoke" left to save him. Then the twelfth, Earl McNeely's $50,000 hit that bounded over Freddy Lindstrom's head and scored the winning run. Old Barney and the Senators triumphant. Fans delirious with joy. A celebration that lasted into the early hours of the next morning and which for sheer riotous outburst of feeling rivaled that of Armistice day.

No world's series triumph ever has been gained under more dramatic circumstances. It was the peak for Johnson, as great a popular favorite as any in the game's history. The following year, 1925, at Pittsburgh and again in the final game, the Big Train was battered to defeat by the Pittsburgh Pirates as he tried to turn in his third triumph.

Another year and another picture. The heroic mantle shed by Johnson is picked up by the rawboned, tobacco-chewing Nebraskan, Grover Cleveland Alexander, the man who had been "sold down the river" to St. Louis by the Chicago Cubs for misbehavior.

"Old Pete," as the players know him, is in rare form, twice stopping the Yankee sluggers, his second victory in the sixth game, deadlocking the series and forcing it to the limit once more. Comes the seventh—and drama again. Jess Haines has a sore thumb after filling the bases with Yankees. Out of the gloom shuffles Old Pete. He has pitched a full game the day before, but he is back again to face Lazzeri, the hard-hitting young Italian, with two out, and the Yankees only one run behind. A roar goes up for the veteran. New York appreciates its dramatic circumstances, win or lose. One strike. A foul drive, savagely hit that is only a few feet from being fair and breaking up the ball game. Two strikes. A vicious swing for the third strike and Lazzeri is out, the Yankees stopped and the game just about clinched.

A mighty roar again. Old Pete shuffles in to the bench; doffs his ill-fitting cap, takes a drink. All in a day's work for him, but he has saved the series and, as Johnson did for Washington, given St. Louis its first world's championship.

It has always been such achievements as these that have lifted the baseball classic to its heights. Baker, Ruth, Gehrig and the other great hitters have had their day, but the pitching feats of Mathewson, Adams, Coombs, Coveleskie, Penneck, Johnson and Alexander will be more often recalled.

Baptist W. M. U. Gives Programs on Home Mission Work

Special programs in observance of a week of prayer for home missions were given at meetings of the Baptist Women's Missionary Union, Wednesday and Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. J. E. Chapman acting as leader. Talks on the work of the Baptist church in Cuba and Panama and among the foreigners in the United States were given by Mrs. W. B. Henry, Mrs. Hawkins, Mrs. George Berlin, and Mrs. D. H. Truhitt.

The discussions of yesterday afternoon centered around the work in the mountain schools and among American negroes. The program was presented by members of Circle 1 and 2. Mrs. E. F. Brake and Mrs. William McAllister led the devotional. Special topics were presented by Mrs. Robert Mitchell, Mrs. T. B. Solomon, and Mrs. G. C. Stark.

An offering for foreign missions will be taken at the regular church meetings next Wednesday afternoon.

Women's Auxiliary of Presbyterian Church Has Good Meeting

Mrs. Walter Moon and Mrs. L. B. Nichols were hostesses to other members of the Women's auxiliary of the Presbyterian church Wednesday afternoon, at a meeting in the home of Mrs. Tom Clayton. Thirty-three members and guests were present for the program and a pleasant social half-hour which followed.

Mrs. George Briggs directed a lesson on the 35th chapter of Genesis. Mrs. A. A. Hyde and Mrs. Dave Pope gave interesting short talks. Several members volunteered during a brief business discussion to serve in the Welfare association drive for funds.

Episcopal Auxiliary Has New Members

Four new members were received into the Woman's auxiliary of the Episcopal church at a meeting Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. E. H. Hamlett. They were Mrs. E. C. Sower, Mrs. W. O. Galton, Jr., Mrs. A. Raiskey, and Mrs. J. L. Peake.

The afternoon was devoted to a lesson in the missionary study, "The New Africa." Mrs. F. M. Perry and Mrs. Wm. M. Craven presented the program.

Five members of the auxiliary volunteered to assist in the Welfare association's drive for funds today and tomorrow.

Methodist Circles Elect Officers at Meeting This Week

Three circles of the Methodist Women's Missionary society elected permanent officers at their meetings Wednesday afternoon. Circle 3 will hold an election at the meeting next Wednesday. Circle chairmen also appointed representatives to assist in the Welfare association's annual drive.

Permanent officers of Circle 1 are: Chairman, Mrs. R. C. Campbell; secretary, Mrs. F. M. Gwin; and treasurer, Mrs. Henry Thut. A telephoning committee is composed of Mrs. J. E. Ward, Mrs. F. M. Gwin, Mrs. W. Mullinax, and Mrs. Earl Stuckey.

Circle 2 elected Mrs. J. M. Dodson chairman; Mrs. Jack Mason, secretary; and Mrs. C. S. Boston, press reporter. Officers of Circle 4 are: Chairman, Mrs. C. C. Dodd; treasurer, Mrs. Nels Walberg; secretary, Mrs. Robinson; and reporter, Mrs. Woods. It was decided in the business meeting that members of this circle would each serve as leader for a Bible or Missionary Voice lesson at some time during the year.

"Jesus the Ideal Child" was the topic on which programs for the afternoon were based. Talks were made at each circle meeting on Christ's birth and early life. His early school training in Nazareth, and the beginning of His ministry in His twelfth year. Related topics which were discussed included: "The Religion of the Child and How It Is Adapted to Children's Needs," and "The Duty of Parents to Children and the Obligation of Children to Parents."

Mrs. J. Raymond Browns Is Hostess to Club Wednesday

Members of the Pla-Mor bridge club were guests of Mrs. J. Raymond Browne at a party of attractive appointment Wednesday afternoon. St. Patrick's day suggestions in the bridge accessories gave added interest to the game. Green mint baskets, shamrock shaped, marked places at the quartet tables when refreshments were served, and the menu of a dainty two-course luncheon featured the favored green and white scheme.

Mrs. Browne's guests were: Mrs. Claude Lard, Mrs. Roy Kilgore, Mrs. W. M. Voyles, Mrs. Roy Dyson, Mrs. E. W. Etter, Mrs. Hemphill, Mrs. Burt Hammett, and Mrs. A. L. Jones. Score favors went to Mrs. Hemphill, high, and Mrs. Dyson, low.

Legion Auxiliary Will Form 8-40 Has Bridge Club

The Pampa unit of the American Legion Auxiliary will have an Eight and Forty division, it was decided Thursday at an auxiliary business meeting. Application will be made at once for a charter. Mrs. R. A. Webb, president, said. The local auxiliary previously had been invited to join the Amarillo unit in forming an Eight and Forty, but it was found that enough Pampa women were interested in the project to form a separate division.

At the same meeting, a bridge club for members of the auxiliary was organized. All members of the unit are eligible for the club. Meetings will be held twice a month on the regular auxiliary meeting days.

P-T. A. Selling Lunches to Raise Convention Funds

The ways and means committee for the sixth annual convention of the Eighth district congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations has conducted the sale of home-made sandwiches, candy bars, and milk to school children during this entire week, maintaining a food counter at each of the schools.

A total of $110 had been made in this way at the close of business last night. Today's sales are expected to increase the amount considerably. Members of church societies, women's social and study clubs, and many other individuals outside the Parent-Teacher associations helped generously in this project, furnishing sandwiches and money for supplies. Mrs. R. C. Campbell, chairman of the finance committee, today expressed the appreciation of her committee for this valuable assistance, and the interest the public is showing in making the convention a success. The P-T. A. committee will sell popcorn and home-made candy this evening at the library benefit program at Central auditorium. Funds from the sales will be used for district convention expenses.

Miss Frankie Barnhart returned yesterday from Clarendon, where she went Tuesday to attend the wedding of Miss Retta Mae Gordon and Mr. Derwood Skelton. The wedding is of interest to many of the younger set in Pampa. The bride has formed many friendship here in visits with Miss Barnhart and others.

Referendum to Permit University Land Tax Favored

AUSTIN, March 8. (AP)—A house joint resolution by Representative Penrose Metcalfe of San Angelo, proposing a constitutional amendment to permit taxation of university lands for county purposes, was engrossed by the senate today by a viva voce vote.

Talks in favor of a referendum on the subject were made by Senator Thomas B. Love of Dallas, and Senator Walter C. Woodward of Coleman.

The constitutional amendment proposed by Senator Hyer designed to remove all doubts as to the constitutionality of statutes like the Small land title validating bill, passed over the governor's objection, was finally adopted by the senate, 27 to 3.

Senator C. C. Small of Wellington, author of the land bill, opposed the resolution as unnecessary despite the fact the attorney-general held his measure unconstitutional.

Senator Woodward had an amendment adopted which would prevent the legislature from validating patents obtained through fraud or in violation of constitutional prohibitions.

REVOLUTION

machine gun emplacements on high buildings and street intersections of Juarez. Federal snipers hidden on building tops took their toll of the advancing forces.

Down Commercial street, through Sixteenth of September street, in the heart of the business section, the battle waged, the federal retreating foot by foot ahead of the on-coming rebel advance. Dead and wounded were sprawled in grotesque positions on the paving as the fighting passed.

Rebels Well Armed
Outnumbered four to one, the loyal troops fought desperately to hold the city, one of the most important ports of entry in the entire country. The equipment used by the rebels was said to have been as modern and as complete as that of the federals.

Civilians Given Weapons
Juarez civilians, many of them little more than boys, turned out to support the government. Issued rifles, many of them had to be told how to handle them. Something resembling a holiday spirit followed the feverish excitement that had prevailed when the attack was only threatening. The civilian recruits displayed their weapons proudly, and laughed and joked as they marched off to the fight.

United States troops from Fort Bliss lined the border from the Santa Fe to the Stanton International bridges, behind sand bag barricades, awaiting the word that would have sent them to foreign soil to protect American lives on the northern side of the border. Machine guns and light artillery were trained on the scene of battle in Juarez as khaki clad United States regulars awaited a possible zero hour that would recall the ever famous phrase "over the top."

EL PASO, March 8. (AP)—Brig. Gen. Van Horn Moseley refused permission to General Matias Ramos to gather his federal troops on the United States side of the international border for an attempt to recapture the city of Juarez, which has fallen. General Ramos had established headquarters at the southern base of the international bridge where a small group of federals still are holding out. Firing was desultory.

A few bits of comic entered in the battle today. A federal cavalryman clattered down one of the main streets in pursuit of his runaway horse as machine gun bullets whizzed through the air about both man and beast. The cavalryman's sabre scabbard slipped between the runner's legs and tripped him up every few steps, but he persisted in the chase. A street corner cut the end of the chase from view.

Small Battles Vicious
A dozen or more miniature battles were enacted in the streets as rebel contingents came upon federal barricades. Most of the casualties came during these rushes. Early in the battle 17 rebel cavalrymen weaved their way through federal outposts to within a block of the federal headquarters before they were discovered. Machine gun fire mowed five of the squad down and killed several horses. The rest retreated.

In the Hotel Rio Bravo, turned into a hospital, Mexican blue cross nurses aided by American students from El Paso who volunteered for service treated wounded soldiers as they staggered into the place during lulls in the fighting. All around the hotel federal forces had placed machine guns and sand bag barricades and this district was the main stand of defenses for the federals.

Panic In El Paso
Panic swept the southern part of El Paso immediately across the border from Juarez as the battle raged on Mexican soil. Bullets from the conflict rained thick and fast upon United States soil, some of them finding lodging in houses and automobiles in the thickly populated section.

Menus of the Day

By SISTER MARY

Ordinarily the housewife supplies her family with its protein food by serving meat in some form, but during Lent, when meat is off the menu occasionally during the week, she must look elsewhere for her protein.

Protein is found in meat, fish, nuts, the legumes (dried beans, peas, lentils), milk and milk products and eggs. Of these it has been found that the protein of the legumes is of rather poor quality because they do not yield sufficient amounts of certain of the simple digestive products which the necessary for the growth of muscle. Eggs are actually "full of meat" and contain everything the body needs for its development but must be properly combined with other foods.

Eggs are a concentrated food in that there is no bulk in the way of connecting tissue and all concentrated foods must be wisely chosen.

Much has been learned in the last few years about the vitamin content of eggs, particularly the egg yolk, and they come under the list of protective foods along with spinach, orange juice and cod liver oil.

Properly cooked eggs are easily digested and can be served to an entire family from the two-year-old up. This does not mean that a two-year-old child may eat "deviled eggs" nor fried eggs nor eggs served in any of the highly seasoned sauces. But it does mean he may have poached eggs, eggs soft cooked in the shell, eggs hard cooked in the shell, carefully scrambled eggs, baked omelets and shirred eggs.

In planning meals in which eggs form the main dish, do not serve a dessert rich in eggs such as a custard or soufflé. If a custard is used, it should be regarded as the "main dish" and the rest of the meal built around it.

Keep in mind that eggs are always cooked at low temperature.

To soft cook an egg in the shell, lower it carefully into enough boiling water to completely cover it, reduce heat and let it stand five minutes. Do not let the water bubble. To hard cook, an egg, let it stand in hot water just at the boiling point, but not bubbling, for 30 minutes. The yolk of the egg cooked in this fashion is dry, crumbly and mealy and easily digested and the white firm and tender.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

IS IT A SQUARE DEAL
 Why go to church when you could not live in a community without the church? If the church is the backbone of any community; the center of all our best life, thought and development; the greatest holder of power and authority; the best school for a character that will live through eternity; and the giver through its membership of more than 50 per cent. of all things—be it a square deal for you to let others do all this for you—and enjoy your best right hands?

George Washington said, "To deprive our young people of the inspirational ideals that come from religion is treason to youth."

of holiness if we interpreted it altogether in terms of love.
 Nor is it only the love of God that is holy. All love is the love of God, and all love is holy. Man's capacity for love is the evidence that in God he lives and moves and has his being. So it was that John said that "love is of God," and that "he that loveth is born of God and knoweth God."
 The best life, the "holiest" life, is the life in which there is the most love. Can we really dare to believe that? So few men act upon it in practice. Yet when we analyze human experience and the results of men's actions and ambitions can there be any doubt that love is the supreme thing and that its satisfactions go far beyond all other achievements.
 Money, power, pleasure—what are any of these in comparison with the satisfactions of those who have discovered what it means to love and to be loved—and especially of those who have found the meaning of the greatest sentence in the language, "God Is Love?"

THE CONTROL OF THE WORD
 Our best impulses, our faith, our hope, our love, our zeal—all need to be constantly controlled and restrained or directed. For this serves the word of God. The locomotive may chafe continually against the track as if in effort to set itself free; yet without the track it would plunge swiftly into perdition.
 How good and beneficial is that restraining, directing, controlling track! So is that restraining, directing, controlling word of God. It checks and it balances; it impels and restrains. Our sentiments and notions would run wild, as the branches of the vine would waste their strength in luxuriant tangles of shoots and tendrils, were it not for the pruning knife, the word of God. (John 15:2,3). Our religious zeal would soon run riot and lead us into all manner of follies and extravagances if we should leave the word of God.
 Our subject for Sunday morning is, "The Four-Fold use of the scriptures."
 Sunday evening subject: "An Approved Workman."
 All previous records were broken last Sunday in numbers attending our meetings. This is encouraging and we are expecting that records will continue to be broken right along now. Soon we may have three times as many in attendance as we had just a few months ago.

Paintings Will Be Shown in Canyon
 CANYON, Mar. 7. (Special)—A feature which promises to be very popular at the annual meeting of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society on March 29 is to be an exhibit of the paintings of Harold Bugbee, native of the Panhandle and painter of scenes he has known all his life.

The son of a pioneer of Clarendon, Texas, Harold Bugbee has been reared in the midst of the teeming life of a rapidly developing country. One of his recent paintings is a portrait of Colonel C. C. Goodnight, and most of the others which will be shown in the exhibit are depictions of the canyon and open range of the Northwest Texas.
 The exhibit will be shown for several days, and all visitors to the Historical Society meeting will be given a chance to see it.
 Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Mitchell spent yesterday in Amarillo.

Rotary Conference Will Be Held at Ranger Soon

RANGER, March 8.—The greatest conference in the history of Texas Rotary for the forty-first district which will be held in Ranger, March 21 and 22, judging from the enthusiastic letters that are pouring into conference headquarters from the clubs and individuals throughout the district.

Rails is planning to send a 100 per cent attendance, writes J. Edd McLaughlin. Mineral Wells likewise contemplates an attendance of 100 per cent. Due to the nearness of Eastland and Cisco to Ranger—Eastland being 10 miles away and Cisco 20 miles distant—it is assured that Eastland and Cisco, as well as Ranger, will register a perfect attendance. In fact the conference may witness the shattering of all records for the number of clubs with the entire membership present.

Lubbock will have at least 50 on hand, Charles A. Guy, editor of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal writes. And Fort Worth can be counted on for a big representation, states E. A. Tolbert.

These expressions are typical of the enthusiasm with which the clubs of the district are looking forward to the conference.
 While Ranger is the conference city, Eastland and Cisco are joining with Ranger as host clubs. It has for years been the proud boast of Eastland county that it is the only county in Texas with three Rotary clubs. Eastland countians are very proud of their county, for they declare that it casts more votes, has a greater mileage of paved highways, has more population and has more wealthy rendered for taxation than any county west of Fort Worth until El Paso county is reached.

MEXICAN MAIL ARRIVES TODAY AT BROWNSVILLE

 The mail was all ordinary letter mail, but the congestion caused by the revolution in Mexico was so acute Mexican authorities decided to speed it to the border plane, even though it did not carry airmail stamps.

LAUGHS AT SENTENCE
 LIBERTY, March 8. (AP)—John Swilley, 68-year-old farmer was under sentence today for the killing of H. J. Hendrix. A jury found him guilty last night after deliberating after deliberating one hour and a half. Notice of appeal was given by defense counsel. After the verdict, Swilley laughed as he talked happily with counsel.

International Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NONN

General topic: Baptism and the Lord's Supper.
Scripture lesson: Matt. 28:19, 20; 1 Cor. 11:23-29.

Matt. 28:19. Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit:

20. Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you: and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.

1 Cor. 11:23. For I received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, that the Lord Jesus in the night in which he was betrayed took bread;

24. And when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, This is my body, which is for you: this do in remembrance of me.

25. In like manner also the cup, after supper, saying, This cup is the new covenant in my blood: this do, as often as ye drink it, in remembrance of me.

26. For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink the cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death till he come.

27. Wherefore whosoever shall eat the bread or drink the cup of the Lord in an unworthy manner, shall be guilty of the body and the blood of the Lord.

28. But let a man prove himself, and so let him eat of the bread, and drink of the cup.

29. For he that eateth and drinketh, eateth and drinketh judgment unto himself, if he discern not the body.

Golden Text: This do in remembrance of me.—1 Cor. 11:24.

Introduction

"An ordinance is an outward institution, appointed by Christ, by positive precept, to be observed by all his people to the end of the age, commemorating an essential gospel fact and declaring an essential truth. Of these there are two, baptism and the communion—the initiation and the consummation of the Christian life. These ordinances are the gospel in symbol: they commemorate, declare, and typically embody in the whole Christian system (1 Cor. 15:1-5). They are the true symbols of Christianity, divinely appointed and all-sufficient."—Henry G. Weston.

The Communion

"It is not because we look upon it as a sacrament imparting a mysterious spiritual grace; it is because the vision of Christ which we get when we partake of these emblems of his suffering, and the prayers to Christ that rise from our hearts when we recall what he has done for us, inspire us with a new devotion to him and put within us a courage to face our duties and bear our trials, that we emphasize the importance of being faithful in celebrating this ordinance."—Frank M. Goodchild, in "Around the Lord's Table."

When the knights of King Arthur had been long absent, on their quests, from the round table, their courage and moral stamina would gradually weaken: so the legend tells us. The renewal came when they were able once more to share the meal of their fellowship. Such a reinvigoration of the spiritual life comes to the Christian at the table of the Lord, when he rightly partakes of the supper.

The Two Christian Sacraments

"Protestants regard baptism and the Lord's Supper as the only sacraments. The Roman and Greek churches add five others: confirmation, penance, extreme unction, holy orders (the clerical office) and matrimony. A sacrament, according to the meaning of the original Latin word, is an oath. One might say that in this sense, by the two Christian sacraments, baptism and the communion, we swear or pledge our allegiance to the Lord Christ. More specifically, however, the sacrament is an act by which, or in which, God speaks to us. The Bible is his spoken word, the sacrament his acted, dramatic word."

A Command and an Example
What makes baptism and the communion especially imperative and precious to the Christian is the fact that in observing them he is following both the command and the example of his Lord.

It was appropriate that the head of the church should lead the long procession of his disciples down into the baptismal waters; himself submit to the initiation that he was transforming, and sanctifying with the Holy Spirit (ver. 11). In Acts 10:38 Peter refers to this event as Jesus' formal anointing for his life-work. The representation of the Holy Spirit by a dove-like emblem is fitting. We think of the dove of the Deluge. Among the Samaritans the dove stands for the glory of God. Attention has often been called to the fact that all three personalities of the Trinity were present on the occasion.

In the closing verses of Matthew our Lord gives baptism an added importance by making it a part of his Last Commission, and of his program for the spiritual conquest of the whole world. This inclusion of baptism in the Commission is important, because here is one of the church's strongest warrants for making it an indispensable part of the Christian profession.

The Baptism at Pentecost
We learn from this, as well as many other references in the later New Testament books, that baptism forthwith became a universal ordinance in the early church. It always followed immediately upon identification of oneself with Jesus and his kingdom.

"Unto the remission of your sins," need not trouble Protestants, when we remember that the ordinance was but a symbol. The remission of their sins would be effected not by the baptism, but by that which it was symbolizing: repentance and faith in Jesus as Saviour.

Buried With Him by Baptism
"Baptism was an incomplete sacrament while Jesus was with his disciples. Its meaning could be fully defined only after his death and resurrection. The Apostle Paul, who lived in the perfect light of finished redemption, adds another word to baptism's symbolism: It is more than a symbol of cleansing, more than a symbol of faith in Jesus; it symbolizes his burial and resurrection, our resurrection hope; and in it we declare that we have left our old sinful personality, to be new men and women in Christ Jesus. This important representation is obviously sacrificed when the ordinance is administered otherwise than by immersion."

Summary: Christian baptism, from the Protestant viewpoint, is thus:
1. A rite of initiation into the organized church.

2. A symbol of the spiritual purification that the candidate has undergone (cp. Acts 22:16).

3. A burial and resurrection, picturing Jesus' burial and resurrection, and the spiritual death and resurrection of the believer in union with him. (Cp. Rom. 6:3ff.; Gal. 3:27).

4. A pledge of devotion to Christ as Lord and Saviour; and, when administered in public, an open declaration of one's allegiance to him."

The Lord's Supper a Memorial
"This do in remembrance of me." 1 Cor. 11:24, 25. The Lord's Supper is a remarkably meaningful, sacrament, simple, dramatic, of large teaching value.

The ordinary meal is well-nigh a sacrament in Scripture. Many Biblical scenes and lessons are associated with eating and the dinner table. Bread was then the commonest food and wine a common drink. And they both were the result of crushing. It was natural then that there at the Last Supper, on the eve of the Cross, as Jesus broke bread and filled the cup with his disciples, he should point out to them how truly that breaking and pouring pictured the violation of his body, the shedding of his blood, soon to be—and all that they would stand for. Already he had called himself the Bread of Life, and as early as the Cana Miracle he had intimated that his Spirit was the fruit of the vine that was to satisfy and revivify the world athirst. "It (the Lord's Supper) is a singular medicine for all sick creatures, a comfortable help to weak souls."—(John Knox).

It is supposed that at first the sacrament was observed as a part of, or the conclusion of, the regular communal meal that a group of disciples ate together. (Cp. Acts 2:44-45).

When there had been too much sociability or gluttony at the meal the observance would degenerate into a profane farce. 1 Cor. 11:27.

The New Covenant
"New covenant in my blood" is to be understood: This new covenant of grace, that supercedes the old one of law, is mediated by my blood, as the old one was by the blood of the sacrificial victims. The shedding of blood was essential to a covenant, and it was the condition of the forgiveness of sin. (Cp. Jer. 31:31, and Heb. 10 and 11).

The Christian would be carrying Jesus' thought and intention to their natural conclusion if he remembered his Lord not only signally in this ordinance, but also incidentally in every meal; thinking of that Lord's giving of himself every time that he partakes of a morsel of bread, or puts a cup to his lips."

Summary:
1. The Lord's Supper commemorates and reminds us of—vividly re-enacts for us, the sacrifice of the cross.

2. It is a confession and reminder of our need of constantly partaking spiritually of the Bread and Drink of Life, even Christ Jesus. And so, observed not once, like baptism, but repeatedly.

3. It expresses our community and union with Christ, and with one another, the church. Hence it should bring us nearer to him, our Lord, and unite us more truly into a brotherhood where he is the Brother Preeminent.

4. Because the sacrifice that it commemorates was one that Jesus gladly made—they sang a hymn before they went out—and because of all that it means to us, the Lord's Supper is also regarded as a thanksgiving. That is the meaning of the word "Eucharist," by which it is sometimes called.

5. As the most general and universally practiced rite of our faith, it is, as it were, a rallying-post of Christianity. Around the table of our Lord we are in the company of all the saints who from their labors rest and of all the millions who today call Christ Lord.

Secretary. 3-15

THE BLACK PIGEON By NEA Service, Inc. by ANNE AUSTIN

THIS HAS HAPPENED Between one and four o'clock Saturday afternoon, "HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN, promoter of dubious stock enterprises, is shot Monday morning RUTH LESTER, his secretary, who, after she had sprang beneath the slatted window of his private office...

Further suspicion is cast on Jack by the testimony of BENJAMIN COWAN, who tells of hearing Jack threaten Borden's life Saturday morning...

WILBUR, who was downtown with me, had to call a cab and take me to her home. She can tell you. And then I find a dick waiting to grab me...

spent at least 10 minutes on the seventh floor. "I didn't," Rita denied recklessly. Suddenly an incident which she had completely forgotten until that moment occurred to Ruth Lester like a flash of lightning across a dark sky...

DEFECTIVE Sergeant McMann made quick work of his preliminary questioning of Rita Dubois. Her replies as to name, age, profession and place of employment were given coolly, even nonchalantly, but Ruth, seated near the dancier, so that both of the girls faced the detective as the dead man's desk, saw that Rita's hands were tightly locked.

McMann studied the girl for a long minute through narrowed, glinting eyes. Then: "Well, Rita, let's have your story. Did you go to the station?"

"I got him, and he told me to come over to the office—" "Wait!" McMann interrupted sharply. "Exactly what did you say to Borden and what did he say to you?"

"I've just remembered something, Mr. McMann," Ruth whispered, as the big man bent low to listen. "Saturday morning, when Mr. Borden was in the outer office with Rita, he waved goodbye to her with the torn half of a yellow-backed banknote. I didn't see the denotation, and I didn't think much of it at the time, but now I believe I know what had happened, and what Mr. Borden meant when he said that about keeping his part of the bargain if she kept hers."

"That's a lie!" Rita denied vehemently, her black eyes blazing. "Then—" McMann grinned crookedly—"I take it that your week-end at Winter Haven with 'Handsome Harry' was to have been in the nature of a honeymoon? Let's not waste time, Miss Dubois! I know that you and Borden had planned to go to Winter Haven on the 2:15 Saturday afternoon, that Borden had bought a drawing room for the trip and that he had reserved a suite for you and himself at the Winter Haven Hotel. Now what I want you to tell me is—why didn't Borden meet you at the station as he had planned?"

The dancier laughed, but it was not a gay sound. "That was what I wanted to know, too—and I found out when I saw the headlines about the murder at noon today."

"Sure! Ten minutes after two," Rita asserted confidently. "I had my eye on the big clock."

"It wouldn't have been useless to one person—Rita Dubois!" Ruth reminded him. "And she could have passed it, no matter how she got it, for she would have thought no one knew of Borden's having had the other half! Please ask her for her half of the bill, Mr. McMann! If she still has it, I'll believe she did not see Mr. Borden when she came back Saturday afternoon."

For two hours Ruth Lester had been praying that Rita Dubois would furnish Jack Hayward an alibi, by admitting that Borden was alive when she had visited him after 2:15. The collapse of that hope now was so unmeriting that the girl feared she would faint.

"So it was news to you that Borden was dead, was it, Rita?" McMann grinned. "I'll say it was!" Rita assured him, nonchalant again. "I was knocked out. Fainted right on the street. My girl friend, Willette McMann interrupted suddenly. "Well, Rita, go on," McMann directed at last. "You came, and you were hopping mad, too, weren't you?"

"Defective Birdwell interrupted the whispered conference. 'Headquarters on the line, sir. The Golden Slipper safe was robbed sometime between closing time early Sunday morning and noon today. The manager of the club has some sort of tip about a $500 bill—'

As McMann reached for the extension on Borden's desk, Rita Dubois rose, looked wildly about as if for a way of escape, then braced herself against the desk, her enormous black eyes fixed in an agony of suspense upon the detective. (To Be Continued)

"Of course!" McMann agreed blandly. "Nothing to do but to turn right around and go right back home, and wait for Borden to call you there. So that's what you did, eh?"

"Yes," the dancier agreed eagerly—and fell headlong into McMann's trap. "Then, Rita," McMann asked, as Ruth leaned forward tensely, "now you account for the fact that you

The torn $500 bill. Will it pin the murder on Rita Dubois?

"In only a few days after I started taking Sargon and the pills, I began to improve. Four bottles of Sargon and two of pills made me feel like a different man. I have regained my lost weight and am always hungry. What I eat, digests. I am no longer bothered with bloating, gas or belching, nor biliousness and headaches. I sleep soundly and have my old-time 'pep' and energy. I feel fine all the time.

"I have never indorsed a medicine—but I'm telling all my friends about the Sargon treatment.

The above statement was made by Charles E. Burns, wealthy retired real estate and insurance man of Girard, Kan., a recent Kansas City visitor. Since his wife's death a few years ago, Mr. Burns turned his farm over to his son, sold his other business and is taking

WORLD COURT RULES MAY BE CHANGED

GENEVA, March 8. (AP)—The council of the League of Nations, meeting in private session today, decided to send the question of the world court of justice to the commission of jurists which will meet on March 11 to consider revision of the world court statutes.

The council increased the powers of the committee so as to enable it, in considering revision of the court's statutes, to examine the proposals which have been brought forward by Elihu Root, noted American jurist.

President's First Cabinet Meeting Is Set for Today

WASHINGTON, March 8. (AP)—The group of men selected by President Hoover to act as his official advisors in conducting the business of the government was called together today for the first cabinet meeting of the new administration.

Several problems lay before the cabinet. Among these was a discussion of the best method of transferring many of the duties of the prohibition bureau from the treasury to the justice department, the activities of Elihu Root at Geneva in attempting to clear the way for American adherence to the world court, and the Mexican revolution, about which Secretary Kellogg, continuing at his post until Henry L. Stimson arrives from Manila, is known to have felt some concern.

Since Mr. Hoover declared himself in favor of giving to the department of justice a large portion of the duties of the prohibition bureau now resting with the treasury department, the question has arisen whether the transfer can be effected by executive order or whether legislative action is necessary. The president was expected to ask attorney General Mitchell for an advisory ruling on this point.

Mr. Hoover also is faced with making appointments to posts of assistant secretaries of the departments and to numerous diplomatic posts. Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh has been suggested for the commerce department aeronautical post.

SCHOOL INVESTIGATION DRINKING, PETTING, STARTS

RACINE, Wis., March 8. (AP)—Rumors of widespread drinking and petting at junior high school parties were recognized by the Racine board of education today when a sweeping investigation was ordered.

School functions at the Washington and the McKinley junior high schools are mainly under fire, but the board's inquiry will include all phases of student activity throughout the city.

It is charged the youngsters have been bringing liquor to school parties.

Principal Thomas E. Sanders of the Washington school denied knowledge of such actions at parties there. Principal H. C. Kilbourn of McKinley school said at one party four boys brought home brew but drank outside. He learned of it next day and severely reprimanded them, he said.

When a merchant is called upon to supply some commodity which he does not happen to have in stock he can usually satisfy his customer by telling him that he will have it in a few hours or in a few days at most.

The light and power company cannot do this.

It must always have a large reserve of kilowatts for immediate delivery to the new customers or to fill the increased order of the old customer. It cannot say: "We are just out of kilowatts, but we will have a new supply tomorrow, or next week, or next month."

It makes no difference whether the customer be a new manufacturing establishment, ordering kilowatts in quantity, or a householder, installing additional lights—the company must make IMMEDIATE DELIVERY.

This means a large capital investment in reserve equipment.
