GOVERNOR LONG ALLEGED TO USE VILE LANGUAGE

BATON ROUGE, La., April 5. (AP)—Gov. Huey P. Long was pictured as a cursing, swaggering individual before the impeachment hearing of the house of representatives by members of the Caddo police jury who said they had paid a call of courtesy on the governor in February and the governor used obscene, objectionable language.

An affidavit also was read from Representative Felix Delaune of St. Charles Parish, which said that he had been offered a job by Governor Long if "he got right on the oil tax."

The house adjourned until 3 p. m., when charges under count No. 17 dealing with allegations of penitentiary pardon irregularities were to be heard.

Huge Airplane to Be Here Saturday to Give Flights

One of the largest airplanes in the world, a 16-passenger tri-motored Ford all-metal monoplane costing $61,000, will arrive at the local landing field Saturday morning from Plainview.

The plane is owned and operated by the Kenyon Transportation company. It will be in charge of R. S. Riggs, veteran transport pilot.

Mr. Hardin, business manager, is the man who gave Col. Charles A. Lindbergh his first training in parachute jumping.

Trips will be made throughout the time the plane is here. A minimum of 10 passengers will be carried, according to Mr. Hardin, who arrived here yesterday, as it requires that many fares to meet the high cost of operating the plane.

Henry Lemons left this morning for Lawrenceville, Ill., where he will supervise pipe line construction from that point to Hayworth.

'It's Like This—'

THE NEWS IS INFORMED that the Pampa Business Men's association has a committee whose duty it is to investigate advertising schemes and determine whether they are meritorious enough to be locally supported.

The merchant hesitates to bluntly turn down every proposition offered, and yet he has little time to investigate. The Business Men's association is offering a worthwhile service in providing a means for passing upon promotion plans.

There is, of course, the question of supporting local advertising mediums. As a newspaper which advocates "trade at home" policies, The News believes it is entirely legitimate to suggest that the local organs offer the best mediums for the money, and that transient individuals "with a scheme" should be told to seek more favorable fields for their propositions.

Another angle is presented, moreover, when instances arise similar to one called to general attention last week. Some purported "railroad man" solicited advertising for a railway magazine. He offered the inducement that in return for the advertising Pampa would be given a fine "write-up" and the magazine sent to all the big interests.

Such a write-up it is! We learn from it that Pampa's population is nearing 1,500. Natural gas is soon going to be a reality. The city actually has electricity. It had a fine fat in 1925. It looks like it may become an oil town.

This is the kind of "fine write-up" which the local advertising made possible. It would be worth ten times the cost of the advertisements to suppress the article. Pampa is having hard enough time living down the 1920 census and the old encyclopedia data on this community.

The merchants were "hooked" by a clever solicitor. Their motives were good, but they had no way of knowing anything about the worthiness of the plan, the value of the advertising, and the information that was to be placed in the magazine. This haphazard method illustrates strongly why we have Chambers of Commerce and Business Men's associations. Had either of these organizations been consulted by the business men who took advertisements, the write-up would have been corrected and brought up to date before being sent to the publisher.

Certainly, in the future, no business man will allow himself to become a party to an incident of this kind.

There are scores of traveling schemers who make their living preying upon unsuspecting merchants. Another favorite scheme is to buy space in a small town newspaper near a larger city, then sell this space to the big town merchants at twice or three times what the space originally costs.

While yet a lad, the writer was employed by one of these traveling wonders to distribute the "extra circulation" of small town papers in the bigger towns and to collect for the ads. He was well paid, for the smart ad salesman made 200 per cent. The "extra circulation" reached the men who bought an ad, both at their stores and home address, and particularly the most convenient dump yard. It is a soft scheme for everybody but the merchants, and unless they investigate the plan they are apt to be deluded into thinking the hot line of mush was worth what they paid for it.

To get a true line on these promotion schemes, have a friend ask the boomers who they think of their customers. Almost invariably they quote Mr. Barnum, with much back slapping and guffawing.

And they avoid towns in which there are Advertising clubs or agencies which pass upon the merit of the propositions offered.

WASHINGTON—Well, anyway, the organized wets have finally arrived on the battlefield.

After sniping from the trees for these many years, they have sent out a small battery to fire a broadside. Only a broadside of propaganda, of course, but one of the same type which has poured from the never-resting printing presses of the Anti-Saloon League at Westerville, O.

The hard facts about prohibition and its enforcement probably will win the battle for one side or the other if there is ever any winning of it, and it must be recognition of that fact that the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, after a long period of rather inactive existence has hired itself a research director and launched its first major propaganda attacks.

"Prohibition Scandals" A 30-page pamphlet entitled

Scandals of Prohibition Enforcement has appeared. The association also published a study of the Quebec liquor control plan and now has in preparation a study of the Bratt system of control in Sweden, another of liquor control in six Canadian provinces and one of prohibition in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. It will survey killings by prohibition agents, analyze federal statistics on enforcement, count the cost of enforcement and study the growth of the illicit liquor industry and of intemperance and crime in separate pamphlets.

All this may not seem frightfully important, but it at least presents a changed situation. Official textbooks. Occasionally in the past they have issued a pamphlet on some particular phase of prohibition, but it has soon become outdated. Wet snipers in Congress have sometimes rounded up sets of facts and figures to hurl at the dries, but who reads the Congressional Record?

The Anti-Saloon League sent out millions of copies of its pamphlets purporting to give Al Smith's legislative record in the last campaign. Neither the Democratic committee nor the organized wets had anything in the nature of a counter-attack except details and Smith's own wet speeches would have been vastly more effective had they been based on careful research.

The first big blast of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, just published, purports to be proof of William Howard Taft's doleful prophecy as to the probable serious results of the eighteenth amendment.

It sets out by reviewing gross corruption, closely tied in with prohibition, in Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Buffalo. It's an appalling story when all the facts are assembled together, although it does not demonstrate, of course, that such conditions must necessarily continue under prohibition.

Nationwide conditions are then briefly surveyed and "horrible examples" of graft and official corruption are cited from more than a score of American cities. In less than eight years, it states, some 1291 prohibition agents have been separated from their jobs for cause—principal cause being graft.

THE JURY'S PART. Pampa News: Bandits are getting so active that we suppose more publicity will have to be given the 'dead or alive' rewards. Or perhaps turn a few of the robbers over to those very thorough Dallas juries.

Probably you haven't noticed it, yet it is a fact that since Dallas juries got rough, and started in to deter criminals, present and prospective, Dallas has become an almost crimeless city. Dallas police have been so vigilant and successful in tagging the bad men who proposed to institute reigns of terror, and live impudently on the proceeds, they have almost worked themselves out of work. The spoiled eggs from Chicago and points North and East have decamped around Dallas. It discloses wisdom on their part. The people of this town have become impatient even with juveniles who manifest predatory dispositions. All the practiced bandits were juvenile thieves, and Dallas is convinced that the best way to interfere with lawless practice is to nip the practitioners in the bud. Any town can do what another town does. To palter with criminals is to invite them. To lead serious attention to spurious evidence, perjured and doctored, or to give countenance to frivolous technicalities, is to thwart the police, ridicule the courts and defy the prosecuting authority. Hard criminals can be effectively dealt with by hard juries. It gets back to the jury in every criminal case. No matter how plain the law, how stern the Judge, how tireless the District Attorney, unless the jury upholds the law it caters to lawlessness.—State Press in Dallas News.

"John Doe" Charged in Tulsa Slaying

TULSA, Okla., April 5. (AP)—A warrant charging "John Doe" and "Mary Doe" with the murder of William S. McCray, wealthy Tulsa oil man, in their hands, county investigators today prepared to take further steps to solve the mystery surrounding the oil man's death. McCray died last Thursday, a week after he had been beaten by an unidentified man, in a hotel.
Several theories have been advanced by investigators in connection with McCray's death. The belief that he might have been involved in a blackmail plot has attracted attention of the officers who have traced one woman to another state, in their effort to unravel that angle of the case.

Hollywood Sights and Sounds

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD.—Some day one of the song writers in filmdom's musical alley may be inspired to write a movie lullaby—not a theme song for a picture, but a tune to be played softly in the imposing offices where cinema moguls decide what cinema fans shall have for screen fare in the coming months.

And paraphrasing the old ditty, it may go like this:
"Hush, little two-reeler, don't you cry,
"You may be a roadshow by and by."

If ever such a song is written, it may not be far wrong, to judge from recent production news from the studios. Of course, there are as yet no two-reelers which have been expanded in length and lavishness of filming to justify their exhibition as "roadshow" attractions, but the time may come.

And right now there are at least three large productions which have changed startling in character since they were first projected.

MINSTREL TO REVUE

What started out to be a Pierrot and Pierrette minstrel show at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has developed with the passing of weeks into a project for a musical "Revue of Revues" with all the trimmings.

Then there is Fox's "Movietone Follies," which, after completion recently as just that and no more, has been or will be given a "story" and thus transformed into a regular musical comedy.

Archie Grotler, song writer who, with Con Conrad and Sidney Mitchell, wrote songs for the piece, is to play the part of a stage and dance director for the backstage scenes of the story.

Arthur Kay, who conducted the orchestra, unseen, in the original form of the production, now will be seen and heard as a piano player in the revised version.

AND THEN WHAT?

Most striking of these metamorphoses during production, however, is that which distinguishes "On With the Show," the Warners' most pretentious undertaking to date.
This all-color-talking-singing-dancing picture began as a three-act play about backstage life, called "Shoe-

Paris! Chintz prints are new for chiffons which Paris uses for dinner and dance dresses. Saw one at Phillippe et Gaston's with a long circular overcoat, open in front over rows of crystal beads. The colors are rose, green and lavender on a white ground. Rita string" novel in itself in that it was written by an aspiring playwright on a train trip from New York to Los Angeles.

The Warners bought it, scenarized it as an all-talker with numerous musical sequences, and changed the name to "Broadway or Bust." Then they decided to film not only the story, but the entire musical comedy about which its plot centers—in other words, to present a play within a play.

Herrick's Body Is

BREST, France, April 5. (AP)—The body of Myron T. Herrick, American ambassador to France, bade goodbye to French soil today, and aboard the Tourville, finest of French cruisers, started the long trip back to America.
Commandant J. M. C. Abrial, captain of the Tourville, accepted his charge with moving military terseness.
"In the name of my country I salute the body of a friend of France. He is now in my charge and will reach America safely."
The reception of the body aboard the cruiser was brief but impressive. A salvo of nineteen guns—the ambassador crane carried it to the Tourville's deck.

The Tourville's band changed from Chopin's funeral march to the Star Spangled Banner. Then six husky French sailors lifted the coffin shoulder high and bore it into the "ardent chapel" where two French sailors will stand guard without interruption in watches of four hours until New York is reached.
Mrs. R. Paul Conroy and children are visiting with friends and relatives in Tulsa. They will return in about two weeks.

Drafted Players Wearing Uniforms of Major Leagues

NEW YORK, April 5. (AP)—At least a dozen baseball players, possibly more, will wear major league uniforms this year as they say "better later than never." They are drafted athletes "accepted" last autumn after the appointments had been passed by the scouts.

Twenty-five players were selected from minor league clubs, 15 by the National and 10 by the American. Two have changed clubs since they were promoted but a decided majority have retained major league status for the time being and at least half promise to go into the season as big time players.

Hal Rhyne was drafted by the Athletics from San Francisco and claimed by Boston when Philadelphia decided it could not use his services. He was made good in the Red Sox infield Harold Elliott, a pitcher drafted by the Cardinals from Waco, has landed with the Phillies. The Cincinnati Reds have asked writers on Walter Lutzke, but the infielder will not go back to Newark until the other clubs have spoken.

Perhaps the most sensational spring performances of the drafted players have been turned in by Earl Sheely, first baseman, late of Sacramento, and Johnny Kerr, Hollywood second baseman. Sheely took over the Pittsburgh first base assignment and was the only Pirate infielder to survive the training trip without injury. Kerr stepped into the second base job without a struggle on the Chicago White Sox.

More than half of the 15 pitchers in the draft list probably will make the grade. Luther Roy and Phil Collins have done well with the Phillies and win Ballou seems certain to remain with Brooklyn. Mike Cvetograc can make himself useful as a left-handed Chicago Cub, and Cincinnati may be able to find room for Martin Gudat, former Cardinal. Archie Campbell, ex-Yankee, has had some good and bad days with Washington, but the good ones have outnumbered the bad. The fate of Levertie and Peery with the Braves and Estrada of the Browns has not been decided.

YANKS AT DALLAS

DALLAS, April 5. (AP)—The barnstorming New York Yankees, featuring the terrible twins, Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, were here today for a single stand against Manager Milton Stock's Dallas Steers. Close to 10,000 fans were expected to watch the world's champions perform.

Charlie Barnabe, veteran southpaw has been appointed to face the slugger Yanks from the hill.

Three Kings—A "Hand" That Can't Be Beat

By JAY R. VESSELS
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK (AP)—When it comes to hitting home runs, striking 'em out or playing second base with emphasis on hitting ability, you have, respectively, Babe Ruth, Dazzy Vance and Rogers Hornsby.

So these men, at the top of their respective departments of baseball, naturally head the list when it comes to the old pay envelope.

Dazzy Vance's successful drive on the Brooklyn treasury for a 1929 salary of $25,000 gave baseball a high salaried trio that stands out in a class by itself.

Ruth a $70,000 beauty, stands at the peak—the highest paid player in baseball.

Hornsby, without an equal in the National league and second only to Ruth in the whole world of baseball, draws down $40,000 a year.

Which of the three will make the most from his big league baseball career?

The Bambino scarcely can lose, for, counting this year, he already has drawn down around half a million. At 25 he doubtless is good for two more years in the home run business. His present $70,000-a-year contract expires this year. Vance certainly is no present or potential competitor of the Babe's in this total salary business. Including this year, the dazzer has drawn $110,244 for eight years of strikeout duty.

Hornsby, at 32, has a three-year advantage on Ruth when it comes to age. But that doesn't necessarily mean that he will be in the harness longer than George Herman, because infielders just don't last as long.

The Rajah doubtless will be able to daw on his managerial experience for many a year in the big salary class.

But you cannot count on a man like Ruth, who will be sitting by the fireside capitalizing on his remarkable reputation to match incomes with the stars, past and present, long after his batting eye has been dimmed.

SQUIRREL BITES CHICAGOANS

CHICAGO, April 5. (AP)—Seven persons, four of them children, have been bitten by a red squirrel during the past three days. One woman was bleeding from 20 bites on the arms, neck and shoulders, when she ran into a police station yesterday and told of the attack.

Texas Oil Notes

DALLAS, April 5. (AP)—Failures exceeded the number of new producers in West Texas last week and new production fell to a new level for the year. Five well completed in three counties rated a total of only 6,923 barrels compared with 11 completions in five counties for 23,359 barrels the week before. Eight tests in six counties were abandoned.

Two producers, each flowing around 1,000 barrels daily, have been brought in in the Refugio field. The wells are the Saxet Gas company's No. 6 Claude Heard, in the south end of the field, and the Houston Oil company's No. 5 Wilson Heard, drilled a short distance north of the Saxet producer.

KELLOGG IN PARIS

PARIS, April 5. (AP)—Former Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg arrived here today from Le Havre where he disembarked from the Isle de France, feeling "fit again" after a slight cold. He was met at the station by First Secretary Gordon of the embassy, and representatives of the foreign offices.

Babe Attracts But Mates Do Hitting

WACO, April 5. (AP)—Babe Ruth is the New York Yankees' training camp attraction, but his teammates are doing most of the heavy hitting. While the Babe entertained the kids in right field, Tony Lazzeri and Lou Gehrig hit three home runs between them to enable the Yankees to down Waco, 13 to 3, yesterday.

Lazzeri hit two home runs, his second, over the center field wall, being the longest hit any Yankee has made this season. Gehrig hit one homer and drove in six runs.

Six Teams of South Remain in Basketball Meet

CHICAGO, April 5. (AP)—The South's aspirations to become the high school basketball center of the nation appeared nearer realization today.

Eight teams from three sections of the country were still in the race for the national title but six of them were from below the Mason-Dixon line. The mid-west had only one entry in Jackson Mich., while the West was represented by Joes, Colo.—the team that yesterday showed how a novice team could defeat an outfit of tournament veterans.

Because somebody must lose whenever somebody wins, two of the southern teams are certain to be put out of the running today. Athens, Texas, and College Grove, Tennessee, clash. Warren Ark., dark horse, encounters Classen of Oklahoma City, conqueror of Ashland, Ky., the national champions. Jackson, Mich., and Wheeler, Miss., meet in the upper bracket and Jena, La., and Joes, Colo., in the lower bracket.

About New York

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
NEW YORK—They are reading fortunes in beauty shops these days; well, in one of them, at least.
 Peggy Price told me about it. The woman, she said, take tea with their manicures and while the hands are being prettied a synthetic gypsy reads the leaves in the bottom of the cup.
 Peggy, who frequents Paris and Montmartre, where she used to live, to New York and Forty-second street, where she has a tea room, is in the prognosticating racket itself. A year ago when another tea room started telling its patrons about their future, Peggy, as the Mysterious Madame, served as hostess and scanned the portentous dregs. Then she decided to go into business for herself.
 Now she has with her as principal mystic, Flossie MacKinnon of Aberdeen. Flossie a year ago was Janet, but a reporter wrote a story about her in which he called her "Flossie." The other girls in the tea room took it up, and the customers, so that now she is Flossie MacKinnon.

BAD NEWS
 It was Flossie, in gypsy garb, who read this skeptic's tea leaves. And what fate holds in store for me? She wouldn't tell me, but there certainly was trouble lurking in the Oolong.
 Two cups of tea I drank in the hope of getting a break. But there it was in the second cup, too—that ominous cross. When it first appeared, Flossie said:
 "You know, my people in Scotland were miners. They never failed to read their tea cups, and they drank a lot of tea.
 "Well, if one of them saw a cross in his breakfast cup he just wouldn't go into the mines that day!"
 (Not a bad idea, I thought. I'll tell the editor about that. "Say, Bill, I was double-crossed today, so I won't be down.")
 There were, of course, other omens, carefully pointed out by Flossie, who, I must say, had a good imagination when it came to seeing airplanes and hearts, and cats. There were ships, meaning voyages (how I love to travel); women sitting with their backs toward me, which meant no good; a cat, representing an "open enemy" (come outside, you big bum!) and a vacant chair. Not very promising.
 Perhaps it was due to the "vibrations." The drinker's "vibrations" determine the arrangement of leaves, Peggy explained. Mine, after a week-end of parties, must have been strong enough to register on a seismograph somewhere.
 Due, however, to careless stirring of the sugar, there were a few gleaming particles that meant money. Not much, I was told; but money, at any rate.

Gains Health and 14 Pounds With Sargon

"I gained fourteen pounds on three bottles of Sargon. It mastered every one of my ailments and kept me on the job. I never felt better in my life than I do now," said S. U. Blakely, well known resident of 1125 Laurel St., Beaumont, recently.

"Before I started on Sargon I was so weak and rundown that many days I had to stay at home and let my work go. I had a bad case of chronic indigestion and datter eating I suffered so much from gas pains, dizziness, heart palpitation and smothering spells that I dreaded to see mealtime come. I lost weight rapidly and felt exhausted from under-nourishment.
 "Biliousness and constipation added to my suffering and my kidneys were so badly disordered that there was a hard pain across the small of my back and I had to get several times every night. This broke into my sleep and brought on extreme nervousness.
 "The medicine I took didn't help me, and I heard so many of my neighbors praising Sargon I decided to try it. Now I too, want to help spread the good news to other sufferers. Sargon helped me from the first. I began to eat big, wholesome meals without a bit of trouble afterward. The pain in my back disappeared and I never have to get up at night now. Sargon Soft Mass pills ended every trace of constipation and biliousness. My nerves are steady, I have gained weight, and feel so well it is hard to realize I was ever in the bad shape I was. Sargon deserves all the praise I can give it."
 Sargon may be obtained in Pampa from Fatheree Drug Co. and in McLean from Erwin Drug Co.—Adv.

Mrs. W. T. Fraser will be in charge of the story telling hour at the public library tomorrow from 10 to 11 o'clock. It was announced today.

Owen Carroll and Lil Stoner pitched good ball and demonstrated they are about ready for the start of the American league schedule.

SHERIFF BLAKE STICKS
HOUSTON, April 5. (AP)—Sheriff Blake has convinced Manager Joe McCarthy he is ready for his share of hurling in the Cubs' campaign for the National league pennant. Blake pitched seven innings against Houston yesterday and allowed four hits. The Cubs won, 10 to 0.

All of Morrow Girls Airminded

CUERNAVACA, Mex., April 5. (AP)—All three of the daughters of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow are airminded. One of them in June will marry Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, foremost aviator. The other two, since "mister" is to have an airman husband, are losing no chances to get some of their thrills for themselves.

Miss Elizabeth Morrow, sister of Colonel Lindbergh's fiancée, Anne, flew with him yesterday for more than an hour. Their trip in his small two-seated plane took them over the twin volcanoes Popocatepetl and Ixtachihuatl. Such a trip fostered the budding romance of Colonel Lindbergh and Anne in the early days of their courtship.

Anne's other sister, Constance, who will return shortly to school in the United States went for an airplane ride, too, though her's was not so long as Elizabeth's. Anne herself did not get to go up until her two sisters had come back to earth. It was her second trip with her aviator husband-to-be since she crashed with him at Valbuena more than a month ago.

Mrs. Kendrick Talks on Public Welfare

The duties of the various departments of the public welfare division of the Parent-Teacher organization were explained by Mrs. J. I. Kendrick of Amarillo, fourth vice-president and public welfare chairman of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations yesterday afternoon in an address to the conference.

Mrs. Kendrick gave brief survey of the projected work of the committee on juvenile protection, legislation, motion pictures, and safety. Pointing to the progress already made through the achievements of the P.-T. A. and through awakened public sentiment, she told of two legislative measures passed during the last session of legislature and to a third that likely will be passed in the next regular session.

The first of these was the measure lowering the minimum school age to six instead of seven years. By the second, physical education in public schools will be compulsory. The third measure, which both the P.-T. A. and the Federation of Women's clubs advocate, would make the office of county superintendent of public instruction appointive, rather than elective.

Young People Lack Capacity of Being Remorseful

While not especially critical of the present younger generation, Mrs. Geraldine Green, dean of women at Canyon Teachers college, believes definite ethical training of the youth of the country were never more necessary, she indicated yesterday in an address at the P.-T. A. convention.

"For the most part my faith in the present generation and our schools is strong," Mrs. Green said, "but there are times when my belief in our present methods of education as they pertain to the development of ethical character is shaken. Yet one must take into consideration the age in which we live and admit that youth is bearing up amazingly well under conditions which are, to say the least, puzzling to the more mature."

"For many years there seemed to be a common belief that there were two sets of ethical principles, one for school life and one for life outside the school. In recent years educators have realized the fallacy of this, and much has been written on the development of ethical character—My chief quarrel with the young people with whom I have come in contact in recent years is their refusal to show any regret over their shortcomings or misdemeanors. Frequently, in dealing with infringement of regulations in college, it is disheartening to see that the first emotion shown by the culprit is a desire to get even with the person who furnished the incriminating evidence."

"In the schools, among the means for the development of ethical character the following have their place: wise selection of content and methods of instruction in all subjects of study, the social contacts of pupils with one another and with their teachers, the opportunities afforded by the organization and administration of the school for the development on the part of pupils of the sense of personal responsibility and initiative, and, above all, the spirit of service and the principles of true democracy which should permeate the entire school—principal, teachers, and pupils. Honesty cannot be taught by the dishonest; loyalty by the disloyal; responsibility by the irresponsible. In fact, it is my belief that much more is caught than is taught. Psychologically, girls follow a leader, and try to imitate her in every way; boys are more prone to follow a group. If then behooves those of us who are responsible for the training of children to see that the right kind of individual and group of leaders are available."

"In the early years, children should have the opportunity to make choices wherever the hazards are not too great. It is pathetic to see some of our boys and girls in college, away from the guidance of parents for the first time, attempt to choose for themselves."

Conventionalities

"How I do hope that Gray county will organize a county council of parents and teachers some time this year! If a city council helps its local organizations, you know how your rural organizations and schools would be benefited by the county work."—Mrs. J. M. Crain, district president.

"This is a good convention. The order, in particular, is the best I have ever seen."—Mrs. T. J. Page, corresponding secretary and publicity chairman of the district.

Pampa was "given a hand" by the seniors and juniors of the correspondence courses at their graduation exercise yesterday.

Mrs. Emanuel Toomin of Fort Worth, shortly after making her address on "Humane Education"—"I have a dreadful headache. You know why? I gave off so much information this morning. Nature abhors a vacuum, so I am paying for it."

For the successful paging of the convention, on which many comments are to be heard, credit goes to Mrs. Tom E. Rose and the high school girls who assisted. Notices and calls were placed on a bulletin board. The pages for the three days were: Mary Ellen Cook, Helen McKinney, Frances Campbell, Lillian Jamison, Yvonne Thomas, Inez Barrett, Wanda Barnard, Virginia Rose, Wilma Washman, Pauline Barnard, Melba Graham, Dorothy Doucette, and Virginia Rose.

"The decorations at the luncheons and the tea were wonderful. They were quite the prettiest an eighth district convention has had."—Mrs. Crain.

Mrs. Noyes Darling Smith, state president, left yesterday afternoon for Ballinger, where today she will address the West Texas Teachers' associations. From there she will go to Floydada, to participate in the annual conference of the fourteenth district Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations.

"P.-T. A. plans will work anywhere there are people to work them."—The district president, after hearing reports of delegates.

Attractive place cards, each decorated with a student in cap and gown, marked covers for the luncheon given yesterday in honor of juniors and seniors of the correspondence courses. They were painted by the grade pupils of East and West Ward schools.

Trained Leaders in P.-T. A. Work Are Necessary—Mrs. Smith

The urgent necessity for trained leadership in Parent-Teacher associations everywhere was emphasized throughout the three-day program here. A school of instruction for delegates was conducted by Mrs. Noyes Darling Smith state president, with a class on Wednesday morning and another yesterday.

The local president, Mrs. Smith said is the most important factor in the whole Parent-Teacher organization dependent upon her the responsibility of making a reality, in thought and life of her members, the plans, the hopes, and the dreams of the organization.

The purpose of the school of instruction was to acquaint the presidents and delegates with every detail of Parent-Teacher work, that through their understanding might come ability to make the P.-T. A. movement bring that really trained parent-hood which is its aim and ideal.

State Sues When Work Is Unfinished

AUSTIN, April 5. (AP)—Damage suit totaling $75,000 for alleged failure to comply with contracts were filed today by the attorney general's department against Charles D. Barnes and D. C. McCord, Dallas contractors, and the Fidelity Union Casualty company of Dallas, their surety.

The litigation resulted when the contractors became financially unable to proceed with work on buildings at the Terrell state hospital and girls training school at Gainesville, the petition stated.

The state alleges the casualty company was paid $34,625 on one contract and $20,144 on the other.

Miss Ruth Williams Dies at Hospital—Funeral Held Here

Miss Ruth Williams, 29 years old, died in a local hospital this morning at 1:30 o'clock. She had been ill in the hospital for more than a month. She was the daughter of J. J. Williams of Elk City, Okla. Her mother died four months ago.

Miss Williams came to Pampa three years ago from her home in Elk City. Since that time she had been in the office of Dr. W. Purviance. She was a popular member of the younger set here and many mourn her passing.

The body was then taken overland to Elk City for burial there Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. Truhitte will officiate at the services there.

KIRBY ANNOUNCES HE WON'T BECOME CANDIDATE

HOUSTON, April 5. (AP)—John Henry Kirby has decided not to make the race for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1930.

"I am complimented by the type of men and women who have offered me their support," said Mr. Kirby, "but feel that, at my time of life, I should not consider standing for this great office."

Pledges and inquiries following the published intimations that he would be a candidate moved him to announce a definite decision on the matter, Mr. Kirby said.

good faith, having only to place their operations under the surveillance of the state department of health.

She pointed out that while there are several child placing agencies in the state doing a splendid and legitimate work, there are constantly springing up in the state other organizations whose work is not honest in purpose or in conduct.

The problem of dealing with solicitors, obviously one of the greatest in connection with welfare work for both the public and the department, is some what relieved, she said by an enactment of the 44th legislature, which requires all welfare organizations to have a charter and all solicitors for such organizations, a permit or license. Mrs. Wernken urged her audience to donate to no solicitor who cannot show a license and asked moreover that questionable operations be reported to the board of health.

On the subject of day nurseries, Mrs. Wernken said, "Day nurseries are doing a wonderful work, and those doing the greatest work are not the purely charitable ones. "If a mother pays no more than a nickel a day for the care of her child, she can preserve a sense of proper responsibility of which she is utterly robbed by charity. Let me urge you, if you have a nursery, to let the mothers pay a little at least for the benefits derived. It is the wisest and the kindest thing to do."

International Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General Topic:— The Ministry of Isaiah.
Scripture Lesson:— Isa. 6:1-8; 20:1, 2; 28:1-5.

1. In the year that king Uzziah died I saw the Lord sitting upon a throne high and lifted up; and his train filled the temple.

2. Above Him stood the seraphim; each one had six wings; with twain He covered his face, and with twain He covered His feet, and with twain He did fly.

3. And one cried unto another, and said, Holy, holy, holy, is Jehovah of hosts: the whole earth is full of His glory.

4. And the foundations of the thresholds shook at the voice of Him that cried, and the house was filled with smoke.

5. Then said I, Woe is me for I am undone; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips; for mine eyes have seen the King, Jehovah of hosts.

6. Then flew one of the seraphim unto me, having a live coal in his hand, which he had taken with the tongs from the altar.

7. And he touched my mouth with it, and said, Lo, this hath touched thy lips; and thine iniquity is taken away, and thy sin forgiven.

8. And I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then I said, Here am I, send me.

9. Isa. 20:1. In the year that Tartan came unto Ashdod, when Sargon the king of Assyria sent him, and he fought against Ashdod and took it;

2. At that time Jehovah spake by Isaiah the son of Amoz, saying, Go and be did so, walking naked and barefoot.

3. Isa. 38:1. In those days was Hezekiah sick unto death. And Isaiah the prophet, the son of Amos, came to him, and said unto him, Thus saith Jehovah, Set thy house in order; for thou shalt die and not live.

4. Then Hezekiah turned his face to the wall, and prayed unto Jehovah.

5. And said, Remember now, O Jehovah, I beseech Thee, how I have walked before Thee in truth and with a perfect heart, and have done that which is good in Thy sight. And Hezekiah swept sore.

6. Then came the word of Jehovah to Isaiah, saying,

7. Go, and say to Hezekiah, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of David thy father, I have heard thy prayer, I have seen thy tears: behold I will add unto thy days fifteen years.

8. TIME: Isaiah's call, B. C. 765. Syria and Israel invade Judah, B. C. 737. Sargon's expedition against Ashdod B. C. 711. Hezekiah's sickness, B. C. 710. Dates as given in Beecher's Dated Events of the Old Testament.

9. PLACE: Jerusalem.
Introduction.
We return today to the Old Testament for our study. We are to continue for six months in a study of the prophets of the latter half of the Old Testament period.

God's way to His people through Moses, Samuel, Elijah, Elisha, Joel, Amos, Hosea and Micah. These men of God came fearlessly and directly with God's word to His people in times of crisis. God used them to teach His people, to warn them and to drive home truths of tremendous import. Jeremiah and others have great truths with our generation needs.

Isaiah's Times.
Isaiah lived in the closing days of Uzziah's life. The reign of this great king was marked by expansion, prosperity, luxury and peace. His kingdom, with Jerusalem as the Capital, and Northern Kingdom, with Samaria as capital, were blessed during the forty years preceding Isaiah's ministry with unparalleled prosperity. Luxury and vice went hand in hand and conditions were exceedingly bad when the good king Uzziah died. The people could not withstand the temptations which peace and luxury thrust before them. Certain doom faced them.

Amos and Hosea.
Amos and Hosea came to the northern kingdom with God's word of inevitable punishment. They literally preached their hearts out, but to no avail. The people did not want to hear them and would not heed their earnest words. The end came for Israel in 722 B. C. and the ten tribes were carried away by the Assyrians. Micah worked alongside the great Isaiah in preaching God's word to the people of Judah and Jerusalem. Sin is everywhere. Disobedience and injustice are everywhere. God's name is dishonored on every hand. It is a serious situation.

This fine Jewish youth, Isaiah, saw

LESSON

Jehovah. He was devout and thoughtful. He loved the good King Uzziah and probably grieved much over the calamity which had befallen him. He was conscious of the serious condition of the people of Jerusalem. While in this state of mind he enjoyed as most unusual experience. We do not know exactly where he was, but we are told that he "saw the Lord." It might have been while worshipping in the temple or in a quiet moment of meditation in the seclusion of his own home. God appeared to him and he was instantly impressed with His presence.

The lofty throne upon which He sat and the fulness of His robes served to impress the young man with a sense of His majesty and power and glory. It was awe inspiring. He was profoundly impressed. He could not be the same again. He could not think of Jehovah again as he had formerly thought of Him.

The effect was cumulative. Everything seemed to be converging to make the youth. Just as he is overwhelmed with the majesty and holiness of Jehovah he suddenly looks upon himself. The contrast is too great for him. He realizes his own vilness and sin as never before. In the white light of God's own holiness and purity he seems to be the vilest and most unclean of all. He is convicted of sin. He has no hope for himself. He has no remedy to use. There is no salvation. It is a situation completely devoid of hope. It is well that he came to this place. "Man's extremity is God's opportunity."

Divine Cleaning

When he confessed his guilt and vilness there was an immediate move on God's part. One of the creatures was sent with a live coal to "purge away the guilt. It was a symbolic act which was perfectly intelligible to the young penitent. It revealed to him the loving desire of God and His willingness to go to any length to accomplish the cleaning of one who prays for forgiveness and healing. The cleaning fire of divine love purges away his

"Here Am I, Send Me."

The Scripture account would lead us to believe that Isaiah volunteered immediately. There was no hesitation. He realized the definite call for someone to be sent, and he offers himself willingly and instantly. It is the most beautiful scene in all life to see an obedient youth answer the call of God to service. Jonah heard a similar call and turned away into disobedience. God loves a ready answer to His call. He rejoices when one of us says: Here am I; send me, it is the logical step for a forgiving child of God to take.

Immanuel Foretold.

Isalah, having received a commission from the King of kings, was ready to face an earthly king. The noble, confident prophet was a fine contrast to the avrven king. "Take heed, and be quiet," said Isalah; "fear not, neither let thy heart be faint." Then the inspired prophet uttered the oracle which for two thousand years has been regarded as not only bearing on the then immediate future but as looking ahead to the supernatural birth of that the Lord Himself would give him a sign: a virgin should bear a son and should call him Immanuel. "God is with us," and before that Son shall be old enough to distinguish good from evil both Israel and Syria shall be overthrown, and the Lord will bring the king of Assyria upon Judah.

Isalah and Hezekiah.

The miserable career of Ahas finally came to an end and he was succeeded by his young son, Hezekiah. It is refreshing to pass out of the foul atmosphere of the one into the rarer air of the other. Hezekiah is a good king and strives heroically to bring back the worship of Jehovah among the people. He is aided in this work by the eloquent preaching of Micah and Isalah. These two prophets deliver powerful messages demanding reformation. A real reformation is effected. The people are prevailed upon to listen again for God's voice in the land.

After a long life of service we have the picture of the king at the point of death. Isalah, the faithful old preacher, came to him to warn that his death was near and begged him to make all preparations for that event. It was a striking thing, the picture, that Isalah always brought the true word of God. He was deeply stirred and began to pray. The prayer was fervent and his heart was right, for God answered by sparing his life for 15 years.

There is a wicked, though not a new, herey coming in upon the church. In the denial of the efficacy of prayer for physical blessings, just such a blessing as recovery from sickness. I pray you, remember what that denial carries. It carries a denial of many a portion of God's word. Let us take God as the great physician of body as of soul.

"O Thou who keepst the key of love,
"Open thy fount, eternal Dove,
"And overflow this heart of mine,
"Enlarging as it fills with thee,
"Till in one blaze of charity
"Care and remorse are lost,
"Like motes in light divine."

ONE OF THE MYSTERIES

By Alice Judson Peale
Some day late in April we surely must go with the children to the nearest pond to look for frogs' eggs. They will be found lying in masses of clear colorless jelly on the bottom of the pond.

We can scoop them up with a net or, if need be, with our hands, and carry them home long with water from the pond in big preserve jars.

Watching the eggs day by day the children will be fascinated by the changes taking place before their eyes. The myriad inert black specks gradually become endowed with life, and emerge full-fledged tadpoles at last.

Thus to observe in a jar upon the window sill the development of life is to be present at one of the major mysteries of existence. Children will react to it differently according to their temperaments. To one it will be an interesting phenomenon, worthwhile in itself, but productive of no further thought. To another it will be the starting point of observation and inquiry concerning mysteries even more wonderful and complex.

The child in whom it awakened this deeper interest should be helped to develop it. With him we may undertake to make a tadpole aquarium—the necessary directions are to be found in various books of nature study. From the tadpole aquarium his interest may turn to other phases of animal life, and always we may kind him the support of a sympathetic ear and of patience with all the mess and clutter incident to his scientific pursuits.

But whether to our child the frogs' eggs become the gateway to wonder or just plain pollywogs, we must not neglect to teach the respect due to all living things. These are intended to raise the new hatched tadpoles they must be taken back to their native pond, there to fulfill their destiny as plump and handsome frogs.

CHAPTER XLVIII

"I WOULD prefer that you begin your confession with the story of how 'Lettie Miller' came into existence, Miss Manning," the detective sergeant decided. "There has been ample evidence to prove your relationship with Harry Borden—your own story this morning and the evidence volunteered by Frank Ashe, Jake Bailey and Attorney Walters. I think perhaps your visits to Mr. Hayward's office, ostensibly to inquire about insurance, would be a good starting point."

"Not ostensibly!" Martha Manning contradicted. "I really wanted to take out a small policy on my life in favor of my son. I hoped to save enough from my tiny salary, and to earn more in some other part-time job, to pay the premiums."

"The idea came to me when I had followed Harry into the Starbridge Building one afternoon. He did not see me until we were both in the lobby, and he refused to stop and talk with me. When he had rushed into an elevator, I stood in the lobby, gazing blindly at the bulletin board, as if I were looking for the room number of a tenant. After a bit I saw the words 'Insurance Broker' after the name John C. Hayward, and the office number—742. I did not know Harry's office was visible from Mr. Hayward's window, didn't know it until I was actually standing at that window. I saw Harry at his desk, but he did not see me."

"Later, a physician in a free clinic told me that I had tuberculosis, and knowing that insurance would be out of the question, I went in person to pass the news to Mr. Hayward, rather than write him a letter. I did want to see Harry again, if only from a distance, and I was so lonely the prospect of talking with so kind a man as Mr. Hayward was pleasant to me. But I had no plans, then."

"One evening early in December when I had followed Harry to the Starbridge Building, without getting a chance to speak with him, and was waiting for him to come out, a small army of cleaning women poured out of the building. It was just after nine. One of the women—it was Minnie Cassidy, as I learned later—looked so ill that I followed her into the street. She almost fainted, and I took her home, using the last cent I had for the taxi."

"On Christmas day, when I was desperately casting about for a way to see Harry alone, I remembered Minnie Cassidy's gratitude, remembered, too, that she worked on the seventh floor of this building. I went to see her. I told her I needed work very badly, would take anything. She told me that one of the 'cleaning ladies'—her 'partner' on the seventh floor, as Minnie called her—had just quit, and that her place had not been filled."

"It was Minnie who took me to Mrs. Fellow the following Monday, but late Christmas day I had engaged a room in a horrible old rooming house under the name of Letty Miller, and in the guise of Letty Miller. Just for a week, in case Mrs. Fellow checked up on my address. The gray wig and the dress—she looked down at it as if I had been given me as a sort of souvenir of my part in 'Stairs,' a play in which I had made a rather notable success just at the time I met Harry Borden. . . . Yes, I was an actress."

"That explains a lot," McMann commented grimly.

"But—go on. You laid your plans to kill Borden?"

"No!" Again that flashing denial. "I merely wanted to be near him, to have easy access to his office, so that I could see him alone some night and make him listen. I believed he still cared something for the boy, at least. Jake Bailey was always waiting when Harry worked at night and my chance for an interview did not come. Not even Friday night, for it was nine when Jake left, and I had to leave the building, or be sought for and discovered by Mrs. Fellow. But I admitted Harry to his office that night with my passkey and he did not recognize me."

"Friday afternoon I wrote one last urgent appeal to my son's father, and on Saturday morning I telephoned to ask for his decision. He was not in, or would not talk—I could not know which. I called later at half-past one, from an office I was cleaning, and Minnie herself answered the phone. I am sure that Minnie had no idea she was talking with 'Lettie Miller.' Harry gave her a message for me. I was to call again in 15 or 20 minutes. I—"

"One moment, please. How did you manage your transformation each day from Martha Manning, switchboard operator of the Acropolis Hotel, to Letty Miller, the scrubwoman?" McMann asked.

"It was comparatively easy. Department store rest rooms in the afternoon and any place in the dark—doorways, anywhere. It was merely a matter of putting on or taking off the wig, and making up, or removing make-up, according to the role I was to assume. This afternoon I walked into a department store rest room as Martha Manning, and left it as Letty Miller, without your man, Carlson, suspecting that the two were the same person. This afternoon I changed hair—carrying the extra one in my coat pocket, and turned my coat inside out. It is a reversible tweed, not the garment I wore this morning."

"I see," McMann agreed, obviously chagrined. "Now about the second call to Borden Saturday afternoon—"

"I had just entered Mr. Hayward's office, intending to make my call on his phone and then clean his office."

"Wait! You knew all along that Hayward had a gun in the bottom drawer of his desk, I suppose?"

"No. I did not see it until I was 'Lettie Miller.' I opened the drawer to thrust in a towel which was hanging out untidily, and saw the gun then. That was early last week—Monday, I believe. But even then I had no idea of ever using it. But I remembered it—later."

"On Saturday afternoon I entered Mr. Hayward's office at five minutes to two, to telephone Harry as he had requested. I was happy. I thought he meant to listen to me at last. Mr. Hayward came back for his theater tickets, and because the telephone was ringing, I left him alone. I waited in an office across the hall and as soon as Mr. Hayward was gone I re-entered his office and put in my call. I knew Harry was in, for I had stepped to the window and had seen him sitting at his desk. He answered. 'I pleased with him to create a trust fund for the boy, told him that I was ill and might not live long to support that trust fund. He called me all sorts of names—liar, parasite, and worse. When he finally refused pointblank, I told him I'd—I said I had already put the case in the hands of a lawyer, who would file"

"But—go on. You laid your plans to kill Borden?"

"No!" Again that flashing denial. "I merely wanted to be near him, to have easy access to his office, so that I could see him alone some night and make him listen. WAR ON BOOTLEGGERS GROWS MORE INTENSIVE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 5. (AP)—Declaring unrelenting war on "the worst rum and murder ring in Florida," Sheriff W. B. Cahoon, on whose head bootleggers are reputed to have placed a price of $1,000, today redoubled his efforts to find the slayer of Joe Haywood, his former deputy, shot to death Wednesday night.

Haywood, a former federal drug agent at Birmingham, Ala., since coming to Jacksonville as a deputy sheriff had become known as the "terror of bootleggers." He too had a price on his head, authorities were reported.

In the fourteen suspects in jail today, the sheriff believed he had the slayer.

College Deans Main Speakers Last Night at P.-T. A. Convention—Art of Living Is Theme of the Program

Two thought provoking speeches last night provided the major portion of the program at the closing period of the second day of the P.-T. A. convention here. The speakers were Prof. D. M. Wiggins of Simmons university and Dr. J. M. Gordon of Texas Technological college.

A prelude to the main program was played by the Pampa band under the direction of Pete Bradford. Entertainment features included selections by the Methodist mixed quartet, composed of R. B. Fisher, Mrs. R. B. Jones, Mrs. P. L. Elliott, and E. D. Zimmerman; solos by Mrs. A. H. Doucette; and whistling numbers by Mrs. Roy West. Mrs. J. M. Crain, district president presided.

"Education, whether practiced in the home, the kindergarten, the church or in the school, has but one ultimate purpose—to introduce children into the proper modes of behavior," asserted Prof. Wiggins.

Living As An Art
"Living is an art, highly intricate and the heart and soul of an art are to be found in the fabric of human behavior. Successful living, which is after all, the highest objective, must be measured in terms of human behavior. Every phase of human activity expresses itself in the individual's behavior. The acid test of education is to be found in terms of human behavior. The formation of good civic habits must not be neglected. Habits, to be properly formed, must be made pleasing and attractive. The junior high school organization has made much progress in this particular direction. "Civic responsibility must be either assumed or acquired. It is not an inherent quality, but parents and teachers are often prone to so regard it. The assumption of responsibility is the result of processes of growth.

"The problem of citizenship has been intensified through the addition of extra hours of leisure. Our eight-hour program has added to the educational load. Additional leisure is a blessing if properly used, but it may become a curse to the group."

Speaks on Vocations
Dr. Gordon's address was full of humor, interspersed with bits of philosophy and idealism. He declared, in speaking on "Vocational Effectiveness," that social unrest is largely lacking in proportion to this effectiveness.

Pointing out that this machine age is making necessary constant employment adjustments, and that many workers are finding it necessary to surrender their jobs to machinery and to learn other trades, he said that the primary necessity of earning food clothing and shelter is growing more and more complicated. He showed that while formerly sons followed the vocations of their fathers, now the fathers are uncertain of their industrial jobs and the sons are often perplexed as to what work to take up.

Dean Gordon asserted that it is becoming illogical to provide training only for the young folk—there are many grown-ups who wish to continue their educations and perhaps to learn a trade. He advocated extensive plans to co-industrial system.

Positions Are Fewer
"Future property of this country will depend upon our ability to keep our workers employed," the speaker said. "And we never needed fewer men than now; the problem will grow more intense as time goes on."

He pointed out, however, that new vocations are developing almost daily and that professions are breaking up into scores of specialized jobs. Vocational guidance as explained by him means more than finding jobs for the unemployed. It means the prevention of the waste and anguish of having misfits in industry. Surveys of opportunities must be made along with individual analyses of the workmen. In closing Dean Gordon declared that a person's job and his regard for the responsibilities it imposes largely determine his philosophy of life.

ONE OF THE CROWD!

It's not the Noblest Thought to Despise the Crowd

Yet there comes up within one the zeal to leave the crowd behind. Oh, the multitude—the great slow-moving crowds—most of us would like to look at this mass of human beings from the pinnacle of some unusual success. To be separate and apart is the absorbing ambition of most of us, but if one would only think well, that one would know there can be no aloofness from the crowd if success in life be real and good. The noblest passion of any heart is to love and understand the crowd.

College Deans Main Speakers Last Night at P.-T. A. Convention—Art of Living Is Theme of the Program

Two thought provoking speeches last night provided the major portion of the program at the closing period of the second day of the P.-T. A. convention here. The speakers were Prof. D. M. Wiggins of Simmons university and Dr. J. M. Gordon of Texas Technological college.

A prelude to the main program was played by the Pampa band under the direction of Pete Bradford. Entertainment features included selections by the Methodist mixed quartet, composed of R. B. Fisher, Mrs. R. R. Jones, Mrs. P. L. Elliott, and E. D. Zimmerman; solos by Mrs. A. H. Doucette; and whistling numbers by Mrs. Roy West.

Mrs. J. M. Crain, district president presided. "Education, whether practiced in the home, the kindergarten, the church or in the school, has but one ultimate purpose—to introduce children into the proper modes of behavior," asserted Prof. Wiggins.

Living As An Art
"Living is an art, highly intricate and the heart and soul of an art are to be found in the fabric of human behavior. Successful living, which is after all, the highest objective, must be measured in terms of human behavior. Every phase of human activity expresses itself in the individual's behavior. The acid test of education is to be found in terms of human behavior."

"The formation of good civic habits must not be neglected. Habits, to be properly formed, must be made pleasing and attractive. The junior high school organization has made much progress in this particular direction. "Civic responsibility must be either assumed or acquired. It is not an inherent quality, but parents and teachers are often prone to so regard it. The assumption of responsibility is the result of processes of growth."

"The problem of citizenship has been intensified through the addition of extra hours of leisure. Our eight-hour program has added to the educational load. Additional leisure is a blessing if properly used, but it may become a curse to the group."

ordinate this type of work with the industrial system.
