WORLEY—

the family was living in Deaf Smith county. Mr. Worley was fatally injured when a horse he was riding fell on him. Then began a business of partnership between Mrs. Worley and Mr. Combs which still exists, and the story of the Worleys is almost a story of the Combs. Mr. Combs is even more modest than Mrs. Worley, even more shy of publicity of any kind.

When the Combs and Worleys moved to the Panhandle, the buffalo hunters and the Indians had just left. The first time they were in Amarillo, that now thriving city had just one store. Mrs. Worley has maintained a residence in Amarillo for the last 28 years. She spends her time now between the residence at 1210 Van Buren street and the ranch home in Gray county.

In 1913, Mrs. Worley and Mr. Combs sold their Deaf Smith county holdings and bought a 9,000-acre ranch southeast of Pampa. Unlike most ranchers under whose land much oil has been found, in the last five years, Mrs. Worley and Mr. Combs had paid for their "pasture," as Mrs. Worley calls it, when the oil came, and had it stocked with pure-blooded Hereford cattle. The oil money has not changed them a particle. Mr. Combs comes to town every afternoon after the mail, just as he used to do, and he continues to spend a great deal of his time riding among the cattle on his thoroughbred horse. The oil wells were just something they couldn't help. Mr. Combs will always be a cattleman in action and at heart, and horses and cows and flowers and fruits will always be the loves of Mrs. Worley. "Oil wells are greasy," she says. "A horse and a cow mean something—they get next to you. Cattle's just about all I know anyway."

Proof of Mrs. Worley's love for fine cattle is a good-sized herd of Herefords of the Domino strain from the Osborne ranch at Miami. A yearling sire of Mrs. Worley's herd won second at the Fort Worth Live Stock show and exposition last year. The animal and a heifer are now being fitted for the Kansas City show.

Has No Worries

The kindly face of Mrs. Worley indicates that "she tries to be nice to everybody, even people with propositions and newspaper men." She says she never worries about business, "for one thing, I'm getting too old to worry." She is 73. She has completely recovered from the injuries and shock suffered in an accident two years ago when 17 two-by-four pieces of timber crashed through the windshield of a car, lacerating her face. "I'm thankful that I didn't lose my sight which is so precious to me," she said, as reflected in a personality.

Only one time did Mrs. Worley ever have the "blues," she related. That was years ago when they were living in Clay county. Frost had killed the fruit crop for two preceding years, and the crop of the third year was especially promising. One night there came a killing frost. Mr. Worley inspected the blackened buds and reported that the crop had been killed again. "The destruction of so much beauty gave me the only case of blues I ever had, but after awhile, I braced up and vowed I'd never worry again, and I haven't," she said.

Has Splendid Home
The Combs-Worley ranch home is a lovely place. It is huddled in the foot hills of the breaks, and his cotton woods and locust trees. Years ago, Mrs. Worley started raising dahlias in her garden. When the garden would hold no more she transferred bulbs to her yard. Yesterday morning, the yard was colorful with dahlia blossoms—red, yellow, sun burst, orange.

Visitors will see baskets of dahlias from the Worley yard today when they inspect the new hospital. Undoubtedly, Mrs. Worley's collection of dahlia bulbs is the largest in this community. Also in her yard, are the old-fashioned flowers as well as the new. Aristocratic sun burst roses are now in bloom. Mrs. Worley dearly loves to see an orchard in bloom, and then to watch it develop into a grove of golden fruit. An orchard in the spring and in the summer is beauty to her. Where ever she has lived, she has had an orchard. Trees are also necessary, and they are plentiful at the ranch.

Mrs. Worley is proud of the hospital. It is also beauty for her. Superintendent Dye of the Wilcox, a frequent visitor at the ranch, recently told a friend, "That hospital will be a star in Mrs. Worley's crown. Its humanitarianism will go on forever."

But Mrs. Worley said, "Pshaw, you all are making too much fuss about this!"

men's ward on the second floor is virtually a sun parlor, since it is fringed by a solid row of windows and faces the south. Ferns and palms are grouped in the men's ward, or convalescent room, and in the sun parlor on the third floor. The walls of these two buildings are tinted in apricot dust, a paint the color of which is Mrs. Duerr's own creation.

Walls of several of the private rooms are painted battleship gray, but all of the others are in old English Ivory. Colors of draperies, tie-backs and curtain rods are not duplicated in any of the rooms. For instance, the rods in the men's ward are the only ones painted co-halt blue. All curtain rings are black.

One room has green rods and peach curtains; another, pink rods and pink curtains and grey walls; another, purple rods, green curtains. All the rooms have spacious closets. Baths, both tub and shower, are accessible to all rooms and wards. The sun parlor has oak rods, red rings and vermilion-colored curtains. Utility rooms, equipped with sterilizing hoppers and cabinets are located on both second and third floors.

Next to the operating room in the east wing of the third floor is the delivery room—all in white, white tile floor, white tile wainscoting and white walls. Just across the hall south from the delivery room is the nursery on the walls of which are stencilled animals. The ceiling is cream-colored, walls, orchid-pink wainscoting, baby blue; woodwork, white. This room is equipped with a sterilized bath for new-born babies and metal, matted baby baskets in which to place the wee gifts from the stork.

The chart desk faces the corridor in the center of the second floor. An automatic telephone system eliminates bells and buzzers. When a patient wants attention all he has to do is to push up a switch which turns on a red light in the ceiling just outside his door. A light flash on a signal board at the chart desk. By looking at this the nurse on duty is able to tell immediately which patient is signalling.

The ambulance drive is at the rear of the building and extends from Somerville street to the center of the hospital. A platform for receiving the stretchers is exactly even with the floor of standard ambulances, eliminating the difficulty of carrying the patients up steps. The ambulance drive is roofed.

He was knighted by King George V. of England for work done with the Rockefeller Foundation's typhus commission in the Near East. He

He was located in Corsicana a short time after he came back from the Dark Continent, and then came to the Panhandle. Dr. McKean lives in the Cook-Adams addition with his mother. He came to Pampa as physician and surgeon for a large number of the oil, gasoline and carbon companies.

Wheat Surplus Is Imaginary, Campbell Says

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18. (AP)—Declaring there was only an "imaginary" surplus of wheat because of the huge shortage of other grains, Thomas D. Campbell, Montana wheat grower and adviser to the Soviet government in its five-year economic program, appealed today for direct financial aid from the federal treasury to "correct this abnormal balance."

In a statement on the world wheat situation issued after conferences with President Hoover and Chairman Legge of the federal farm board, Mr. Campbell denounced critics of the board, minimized the effect on prices of Russian exports and hedging on the Chicago market, and asked that "we reverse ourselves and thin positively, not negatively, about general business conditions."

"I expect to see a big increase in the price of farm commodities," he said, "when we begin looking at our own situation and are not blinded by what some other country is doing."

Mr. Campbell said he had traveled thousands of miles in Russia recently inspecting state and collectivized farms and discussing the situation with officials of the grain trust.

"They all know that it will take them several years to increase their production to equal their own growing requirements," he said, "but after three years every country in the world will feel that keen competition of Russian grain exports. Meanwhile, our greatest competition is going to come from Canada, which exports from 250 to 300 million bushels per year."

Campbell doubted Russian net exports this year would exceed 20,000,000 bushels, but said even assuming it would be 60,000,000, it was "absurd to say that the present low price of wheat has been caused by this small addition to the world's exportable surplus of approximately 800,000,000 bushels and when the world produces, including Russia, almost four billion bushels of wheat."

The decline in wheat started a year ago, he said, and "has been caused by many conditions, primarily by a world surplus of wheat with poor distribution and a determined and concentrated effort on the part of some organizations to discredit the federal farm board and the Ca-

CAST OF 'CORPORAL EAGEN' WORKING HARD

Miss Marie Cavanaugh, director of the play, "Corporal Eagen," that is to be presented here October 23 and 24 under the auspices of the American Legion, states that the response she is receiving in Pampa is wonderful. Since this is her first trip to Texas, she feels that the interest and enthusiasm regarding this production is highly commendable.

The cast of the play is hard at work every night, getting this comedy in shape for presentation at the high school auditorium.

Belief that the play, "Corporal Eagen," is the funniest and most thrilling play ever enacted on the stage has been expressed by the cast and the committees in charge. The play is the only one of its kind on the road today. It comes to Pampa from the office of the Universal Producing company at Fairfield, Iowa, the largest amateur production company in the world. The play is being coached by Miss Marie Cavanaugh.

That the show is on the level with professional productions is the opinion of legion officials. C. E. Carey and D. W. Thurman are giving their undivided attention to make this play the largest attended production ever staged in the United States.

Besides the play proper, which consists of three acts, there will be a minstrel show between the first and second acts, and a singing group between the second and third acts. The show opens with a patriotic pageant, with 200 local children, a soldiers and sailors chorus, and a high schools girls' chorus. The pageant gives a patriotic touch which will appeal to the audience. "Tipperary," "Over There" and the "Star Spangled Banner" sung by the entire cast, will conclude the play.

Hunting Stories In Vogue Now

One of the first hunting stories of the season came to notice today, when Porter Malone told of "batting 400" Friday afternoon. He and Claude Lard motored nine miles northeast of Pampa Friday afternoon. They saw seven ducks and between them, killed three. They returned to their homes within one and one-half hours.

Porter would not or did not say whether he killed two or only one of the ducks. However, it is thought that the ducks must have informed Porter just where to look for them since he made such rapid time in going out, killing the ducks, and returning to Pampa.

Some doubt has also been expressed as to whether he killed ducks at all, since he said he shot a rabbit while on this speedy hunting trip.

County Agents Will Meet At Turkey School

COLLEGE STATION, Oct. 18.—(Special)—District meetings of county and home demonstration agents from the five districts covering the western half of Texas have been called for San Angelo, Oct. 23-25, during the last three days of the turkey grading school to open there Oct. 20. Director O. B. Martin of the Extension Service, A & M College of Texas and the U. S. Department of Agriculture, has announced. About 175 agents are expected to attend.

In directing the agents to attend the latter part of the school, which is to train men and women to apply U. S. grades on turkeys under Federal-State inspection, Director Martin has pointed out that "definite moves in the direction of orderly marketing are being taken by the Extension Service, carrying to successful conclusion the demonstrations in more economic production."

"Grades and standards are absolutely essential to any scientific marketing work," he went on to say, "for high prices are based on quality or lose out. We want our country and home demonstration agents to be familiar with the turkey grades so that they may assist their people in determining what turkeys to market how to feed to meet the Federal grades, and to be generally able to assist in this big standardization program."

The boys who made the trip were Joseph Sills, Virgil Frasher, Reigel Brown, Claud Cash, Clifton Williams, Howard Gray, Paul Minatree, Edgar Eldridge, Stanley Beck, Worth Seitz and H. B. Taylor.

The Goodyear flag, in colors of yellow and blue, was raised on the staff at the new station of the Adkisson & Gunn Tire company, Saturday.

Department of Agriculture has announced it will cooperate with the Federal department in giving Texas dealers and cooperative associations Federal State inspection this fall and winter. Indications are a considerable part of the turkey crop in Texas will be sold on grades this season.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Turner and daughter of Amarillo, were visitors in the News-Post office Saturday evening. Mr. Turner was formerly bookkeeper of the Pampa Daily News.

YOUTH NEAR DEATH
AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 18. (AP)—Noble Hollis, 19, of Austin, was near death in a hospital here tonight as the result of an automobile accident near here. The youth sustained a fractured skull when the snubber of his automobile broke and overturned the vehicle. An operation was to be performed in an effort to save his life.

Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Hassell and children of Amarillo, and Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Williams and family are visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Wood and family during the week end.

Canyons Will Be Accessible to Public Nov. 2

CANYON, Oct. 18. (Special)—The Palo Duro canyon will be accessible to the public on November 2 through a plan of the Canyon Chamber of Commerce.

Palo Duro canyon, the scenic feature of northwest Texas, is privately owned and is seldom open to the public. In order that the general public may know something of the beauty of the canyon an arrangement has been completed between ranchmen and the chamber of commerce whereby people may become acquainted with the possibilities of the canyon as a park.

According to L. N. George, secretary of the commercial organization, Company F of the national guard will assist in directing the traffic during the day. It is also stated that the trip November 2 will include a different itinerary than that used last summer so that a person who went on the previous trip will see another section of the country.

Secretary George states that people from every section of the state attended the last open day and that more are expected this time. The fall colorings are said to be exceptionally beautiful throughout the canyon this year.

Artist Sketches Museum Articles

CANYON, Oct. 18. (Special)—Ben Carlton Mead, artist of the staff of the Witte Memorial museum of San Antonio, is making sketches of objects of historic interest in the Panhandle-Plains Historical society here today.

From here he will go to the Colorado State museum at Denver. The sketches made from the collection of the Panhandle-Plains Historical society will be added to Mr. Mead's collection of over 300 sketches of objects of historic interest, and will be helpful to him in his work as an illustrator.

Mr. Mead illustrated J. Frank Doble's recent book, "Coronado's Children," a story of lost mines and buried treasure.

Mr. Mead stated that he found much of interest in the collection of the Panhandle-Plains Historical society. Among the objects sketched were an old Indian carreta, and the miniature J. A. chuck outfit.

DRY ICE SELLS

BROWNSVILLE, Oct. 18.—Here is a case of carrying coal to New castle and finding a good market for it.

Ice is being manufactured in Tampico, Mexico, in the semitropics and shipped to New York City and is bringing a good price.

And this in the late fall, with the cold weather in New York. It is dry ice. The first shipment was made recently and others will be made soon.

The dry ice is manufactured from carbon dioxide gas obtained at the Quegrache fields in Veracruz, 18 miles from Tampico.

At present only 40,000 pounds is manufactured daily, although the field has a capacity of 4,000,000 pounds daily.

George B. Terrell Recommends That Cotton Acreage Be Cut Next Year

AUSTIN, Oct. 18. (AP)—Under the present business depression it seems necessary to reduce cotton acreage next year, George B. Terrell, Texas commissioner of agriculture, wrote in an article prepared for The Southern Cultivator. Terrell said he would welcome any practical plan to accomplish a reduction.

He said a cut of 25 per cent would be sufficient.

A 25 per cent crop would reduce the next crop to approximately 10,000,000 bales.

Small production in this country and resultant high prices might encourage greater production abroad, Terrell warned.

"The federal farm board," Terrell said, "is endowed with broad powers and it already has exercised some of those powers indiscreetly and sustained a loss of millions of dollars to the government. The board is authorized to aid in preventing and controlling surpluses in any agricultural commodity through orderly production and distribution; to investigate the conditions of over production of agricultural commodities and advise as to the prevention of such over production and to make investigations and reports upon the following: land utilization for agricultural purposes and reduction of the acreage of unprofitable marginal lands in cultivation.

"If the farm board will guarantee in advance that it will pay 15 or 18 cents per pound for the next year's crop through the stabilizing corporations, conditioned that the grower reduce his acreage 25 per cent, every cotton farmer in the south will sign the contract for the reduction in acreage.

"These contracts can be secured and signed through existing agencies. Enough contracts should be prepared by the board and placed with the state departments of agriculture, extension services of the colleges, chamber of commerce and banks and I would guarantee that they will be signed within 30 days by all farmers where a profitable price is guaranteed.

"There is absolutely no risk in this plan if carried on from year to year. The price of cotton can be guaranteed, more easily and more safely than the price of wheat was guaranteed at $2 a bushel during the World War. "I have always been opposed to the government dabbling in private business, but since it has entered the field of guaranteeing profits for railroads, wages for organized labor, prices for manufacturing by means of the tariff, I want it to go the 'whole hog' and guarantee profitable prices for farm products or get out of the field of private business.

"It seems that with its powers the farm board might lend financial assistance in preventing crop surpluses by aiding in the reduction of acreage. If it cannot, and will not do this and will not name a profitable price for cotton and wheat, our great export crops, and continue to let the gambling exchanges make the price without regard to supply and demand, there is nothing left for the board to do and it might as well be abolished. "The farmer's purchasing power is cut one-half, caused by low prices and day laborers have no purchasing power when they are not earning wages. No writer has yet named the cause of the world panic. The true cause and motive may never be told. It was not caused by over production of cotton and other farm products.

"The total production of cotton for 1925, 1926 and 1927 was 47,336,000 bales, a decrease of 3,349,000 bales under the production for the first three-year period. Yet the average price for the first three years was 16.2 cents per pound while the average price for the past two years was only 13.6 cents. The consumption should have been greater the past three years on account of lower prices and increase in the population."

COTTON MARKET BRISK

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 18. (AP)—Trading was fairly brisk in the cotton market during the short week-end session. Prices fluctuated rather frequently but within a narrow range.

After gaining two to three points in early trading on good Liverpool cables and some over-night buying orders based on the cold spell the market eased off four to five points on the failure of the cold snap to produce as much frost as expected and on fair hedge selling.

In the late trading prices rallied owing to week-end covering helped by some improvement in stocks, making new highs five to six points above the lows and closed at or near the top showing net unchanged to five points up for the day.

Liverpool was three to five points better than due at the time the market opened here and first trades locally showed one point down to three up. The market improved after the start on the buying orders, December trading up to 10.35 and March to 10.65, or two to three points above yesterday's close.

Later prices eased off on hedge selling and the weather. October dropped to 10.30 and March to 10.64 or four to five points down from the early highs.

In the late trading prices rallied on covering and some improvement in stocks making new highs at 10.36 for December and 10.64 for March, gaining six points over the lows. The close was at or near top, showing net gains of one to five points on the active months.

Port receipts 52,729, for season 5,625,022, last season 3,247,588. Exports 32,387, for season 1,791,467, last season 1,607,511. Port stock 3,217,030, last year 1,920,494. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 115,688, last year 131,343. Spot sales at southern markets 41,752, last year 64,156.

LIVESTOCK ERRATIC

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 18. (AP)—(U. S. Department of Agriculture)—Cattle trade around the 11-market circuit this week was very spotted with packers endeavoring to break prices but meeting little success except at a few markets where there was a liberal run of dry fed steers and yearlings. Chicago had a top of $13.35 on yearlings and realized $12.50 for highly finished heavy steers. Western grass steers at the river markets cleared mostly from $5.75 to $6.00 with fed grassers upward to $10.00. Receipts were around 272,900.

Prices on hogs continued to fluctuate from day to day depending on the volume of receipts and the extent to which shippers competed with packers. Current values at most centers are around steady

Morrow Opens New Jersey Senate Drive

Attributing the present business depression to war and post-war influences beyond the control of the national administration, former Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, Republican candidate for United States Senator from New Jersey, is pictured above as he opened his campaign in Newark. He reaffirmed his stand for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and repudiated "wholly unauthorized statements" that he may be an opponent of President Hoover for the 1932 Republican nomination for the Presidency.

with a week ago. Chicago however, had the relatively low market late last week and showed the gain of 40¢ to 50¢. The late top in Chicago was $10.15. Offerings were around 324,300.

Fat lambs opened the week 50¢ to $1.00 lower but with a reaction on late sessions a good sized proportion of the loss was regained. Current quotations are unevenly steady to 50¢ lower, matured classes of sheep are firm to higher with a week ago. The supply approximated 511,600.

GRAIN CLOSES HIGH

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Despite the handicap of a heavy stock market, grain values today not only developed stubborn resistance to selling, but finished with some net gain. Indications of greatly increased wheat feeding in the United States, together with curtailment of corn to a setback of 22c.

A stimulating factor which made itself manifest early in the wheat market today was a report that 19,000,000 bushels of wheat would be used as feed in Minnesota, Montana and North Dakota because of $2.23 difference in favor of wheat against corn for getting a hundred-weight of pork. The effect of such advices was given emphasis too, by Illinois reports which cast doubt on heretofore generally accepted assertions that the condition of corn had improved during September.

STOCKS DOWNWARD

NEW YORK, Oct. 18. (AP)—Stocks underwent another downward revision today. Liquidation was heavy in all groups as the selling of the last two days carried over into the week-end session, but the market found the footing a trifle firmer and the sweeping declines of yesterday were replaced by more moderate net losses.

Final prices were generally at least a fraction above the bottoms and few stocks lost more than three points, while a large number yielded only one or two, but obviously even those declines were sufficient to record many new lows. Sales total 2,161,560 shares, a rather large Saturday business.

Wall street has decided the weakness of the market is due to real liquidation rather than to short selling, and seems to be of the opinion that the sooner it is over the better for all concerned.

The week-end news was not all gloomy. Steel operations in the Youngstown area will be unchanged next week and leading producers find conditions there a little better. A week ago the best that could be said was that things were no worse. Prices on recent bookings are unchanged.

The commodity markets were unusually steady, making virtually no changes, although the weakness of the stock market had a slightly depressing effect on wheat. Foreign exchanges were also dull, featured by a rally in the Spanish peseta which returned to around 10 cents.

GRAIN DEMAND AMPLE

FORT WORTH, Oct. 18. (AP)—Grain trade here during the week has been light but demand was ample for the light offerings although corn and sorghums were hard selling at times. Wheat was in fair demand along with oats and barley. Mills were bidding 86c to 87c for No. 1 hard wheat of any advance, and provisions unchanged

Tiny Girl Pilot Flies Big Plane

A 91-pound girl who can handle a big airplane with ease and is said to be the smallest pilot in the southwest, if not in the nation, is Maxine Miller, 18, above, daughter of a Tulsa, Okla., oil driller, who quit high school to become a flyer. When taking her tests for the limited commercial license she now holds, Miss Miller used seven cushions to enable her to see over the side of the plane, extensions on the rudder so her feet could reach it and carried a 100-pound bag of sand in the cockpit so the plane would perform properly.

Each of the above have put forth their best efforts to make the Worley Hospital a thing of beauty and you have succeeded wonderfully. Good churches, public schools and hospitals are among any cities greatest assets and in this line Pampa does not have to apologize to any town regardless of size.

Pampa is rapidly taking her place among the principal cities of Texas. Her church edifices are unsurpassed in cities of her size. Her schools are equalled by few of the larger cities of the state and none can boast of a more thorough system. As to hospitals, there is not a town in this entire section that can truthfully lay claim to anything that will surpass Pampa.

I join with the people in this territory in congratulating Dr. J. C. McKean on the opening of this modern clinic.

Final plans for the arrangement, specifications and details were arrived at by Dr. McKean with one purpose in mind . . . to have a clinic that would give the people of this territory the same modern, scientific medical services that can be found throughout the entire southwest!

The completion of the clinic marks a great work for the masses as well as the few, for this is the result of a desire to help, not from a selfish standpoint, but to render a service to a progressive community . . . Pampa, Gray County and the Panhandle of Texas

State Poultry Breeders Rank High In Contest

COLLEGE STATION, Oct. 18. (Special)—Texas poultry breeders figure prominently in the list of high pens and high birds of the thirteenth Texas National Egg-Laying contest, final report for the year that began Nov. 1 1929, and ended Sept. 23, 1930, shows. The contest is conducted by the poultry husbandry department of the A. & M. College of Texas. D. H. Reid is head of the department and W. F. Munnerlyn, superintendent of the contest.

While an out-of-state breeder, George C. English of Inglewood, Calif., took first place in points and in number of eggs produced with pen of White Leghorns, Texas breeders took third, fourth, fifth sixth, seventh, ninth and tenth places with high pens in points and second, third, fourth, sixth, eighth and tenth in high pens by eggs.

The Barred Rock entry from the Golden Rule Poultry Farm, Bryan, was high heavy pen of the contest with 2343 eggs valued at 2159.8 points. This team of heavies finished second by eggs and sixth by points. The best 12 months record for a pen of Barred Rocks in the history of the Texas National is 2260 eggs. In the 10 months and 23 days of the contest, the Golden Rule pen exceeded that record by 83 eggs. It is being held for a 12 months' record.

The record of first place winner, pen of George C. England, shows 2461 eggs with 2478.85 points. Hollywood Poultry Farm entry from Woodville, Wash., finished in second place with 2254 eggs valued at 2322.1. Third pen honors were won by Frank Smith, Smith Poultry Farm, Stockdale, with entry that registered 2234 eggs, valued at 2210.15. E. R. Duke, of Channing, took third high pen honors by eggs with entry that produced 2301 and was closely followed by Golden Rule Leghorn team with 2300.

The contest had 600 competing birds with total production of 114,325 eggs.

Within this week, the addition to the Pampa Service Station is expected to be completed. The greasing pit is finished. Plastering is one of the jobs that remains to be done before the addition is finished.

Pastor Has An Unusual Record

LIVINGSTON, Oct. 18. (A)—Celebrating the twenty-first anniversary of his pastorate here, Rev. W. E. Wadsworth, of the First Baptist church has an unusual record.

Rev. Wadsworth came here direct from the Jacksonville college, this being his first charge, and he has been here ever since. He has the distinction also, of having conducted more marriages and funerals than any pastor in the country.

One of his boasts is that he has never accepted remuneration for officiating at funeral services. Due to the roads in this section however, such trips are often expensive to him as he frequently has to have his car pulled out of the mud at a cost of from $1 to $10.

This is one reason, he says, that he never expects to become rich.

University of Southern California Eleven Appears in "Good News" Movie At Hospital

Trenches, roller-coaster tracks and menials provided means by which unusual action scenes of a football struggle were obtained for the filmization of "Good News," which will open today at the Rex theatre as a new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer offering.

Edgar MacGregor and Nick Grinde who directed the screen version of the famous stage musical comedy hit, obtained the services of the University of Southern California football squads for the thrilling sequences that climax the action of the story.

When the company went on location at the Los Angeles Stadium where the Trojan players won their outstanding gridiron triumphs, such pigskin stars as George Dye, Leo Kelly, Marshall Duffield, Tony Stenonovich, Frank Anthony, Dick Tempelton, John Alden, Harry Durkee, Bud Fisher, Dov Harwood, Tony Jurick, Ames Lane, Bill Sietz, Bull Purcell, Jim Musick and Amos Sherman answered roll call. In their ranks the directors placed Stanley Smith, leading man, and Gus Shy and Delmar Daves, who also are featured in the cast.

For the unusual action shots, trenches were dug in the middle of the field and cameras and microphones were shoved into the pits, protected from stampeding players by iron shutters. Along the line of action, as outlined in the script, was erected a roller-coaster track, upon which camera perambulators were mounted in the grooves, enabling the photographers to keep abreast the principal players in a continuous closeup of action and dialogue as the game progressed. "Good News," as it comes to the screen, brings such spectacular scenes as these, which were only suggested by off-stage chering and dialogue in the original stage play. SHARP CURTAILMENT FOLLOWS PRORATION ORDER IN STATE; SURVEY OF FIELDS INDICATE

AUSTIN, Oct. 18. (Special)—Sharp curtailment in the petroleum industry during the first four weeks of September, both of new development activities and of actual output from wells already in production, followed the proration order of the Texas railroad commission, which went into effect on August 27, according to the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas. The maximum daily production of 775,000 barrels specified in this order is 6.8 per cent less than the average daily production of 832,039 barrels during August. Reduction during September, though marked, did not meet this requirement entirely, the daily average of 782,347 barrels being only 5.9 per cent below that of the previous month.

The seven sections into which the state has been divided for proration purposes showed actual curtailment of from 1.8 per cent to 13.7 per cent, with the single exception of the East Central Texas region, which showed a 3.5 per cent gain. This increase was brought about by the development of a new field in Rusk county.

In the Panhandle section, daily average production in September was 85,862 barrels, as compared to 99,439 barrels in August, a decrease of 13.7 per cent, whereas a reduction of 19.5 per cent was scheduled in that district. In north Texas, daily production averaged 66,412 barrels, compared to 73,330 barrels for August, a reduction of 9.4 per cent, whereas only a 5.9 per cent decrease was scheduled. A reduction of 6.7 per cent in west central Texas far exceeded the 2.8 per cent scheduled, when daily average production was curtailed from 53,510 barrels in August to 49,912 barrels in September. In West Texas, the actual reduction was 6.1 per cent, compared to the 4.7 per cent scheduled, or from 287,370 barrels in August to 269,887 barrels in September. Daily average production of the east central Texas section was 41,450 barrels in September, compared to 46,030 barrels in August; a gain of 3.5 per cent, whereas a reduction of .07 per cent was scheduled. Southwest Texas produced a daily average of 94,137 barrels, compared to 99,990 barrels in August, a reduction of 5.9 per cent compared to the scheduled decrease of 17.8 per cent. Coastal Texas produced an average of 175,187 barrels, compared to 178,370 barrels in August, a reduction of 1.8 per cent compared to the scheduled reduction of 3 per cent.

Strenuous objection has been made by producers in the Panhandle section to the drastic reduction which amounts to 19.5 per cent of the August output, required in that area on the ground that the character of the oil bearing granitewash will not permit the choking back of some wells without ruining them. Reduction during September following the proration order was only 12.7 per cent from the previous month's figures. The Panhandle is the smallest in actual territory of the seven general sections but its actual August production was 13 per cent of the state's entire output and its allowable volume under the railroad commission order is slightly more than 10 per cent of the total.

The heaviest contributor to the state's total production is the West Texas section, from which 34 per cent of the August output was taken. With an actual reduction of 6.1 per cent compared to the 4.7 per cent scheduled by the commission, this section came well within its required limits.

Production in the Gulf Coast section, also, was smaller than the maximum allowed. Output of the high gravity oil from the deep wells of this area has been declining steadily for several months, and the request of operators that the proration order be made applicable to that section for only 30 days instead of the 90 days for which it is effective in the remainder of the state was granted in order to allow producing companies to adjust their output to the demand for that particular quality of petroleum. The limit set for the first 30 days was only 3 per cent below August figures, while actual production during that period fell 1.8 per cent below the previous month.

New developments in East Texas caused an increase of 3.5 per cent in daily average production in that section, though output in previous months had been held very close to the limits prescribed by the railroad commission in August. The Van field is included in this section, but under a unit operating agreement of six major companies production has been only a fraction of a potential daily average unofficially estimated at 500,000 barrels. This unit arrangement covers 5800 acres of leases with approximately 100 flowing wells. The new development in Rusk county is not so well organized, but since chief developments have taken place since the promulgation of the proration order no official estimate of its part in the industry has been made.

Development activities throughout toward curtailed output. Permits for new wells granted during September were 23 per cent less than the previous month. Number of wells completed and number of new producing wells declined sharply since operations had been started several months before the general reduction plans went into effect. Initial output of new wells brought in during September was 16 per cent less than that of wells brought into production during August, however.

Permits for new wells in September totaled 466, compared to 605 in August. New wells completed numbered 393 compared to 432 in August, while producers numbered 218 compared to 220 in August.

Proration programs in Oklahoma and California, while not altogether effective, have resulted in marked curtailment of production. Daily average flow of the United States was 2,417,000 barrels in September, compared to 2,933,350 barrels during the similar period of 1929, a reduction of approximately 16 per cent. Prices at Texas fields posted last April remain officially the same. The extent to which small producers have been forced to sell at lower prices is uncertain, as unofficial estimates vary widely, but hearings before the railroad commission brought out that the posted price had been shaded in some cases.

BEAUMONT, Oct. 18. (AP)—The first step of a large truck gardening project being carried out on a scientific basis in Jefferson county, a tract of 175 acres is to be planted in radishes by C. W. Howth. This is in addition to 200 acres of carrots, 175 acres of beets, 175 acres of turnips, and 60 acres of English peas. Marketing plans were completed before the crops were put out.

Competency of Criminal Will Be Known Soon

TAHOCA, Oct. 18. (AP)—A test case, designed to determine whether a convict is a competent witness in a trial of a criminal case, is being filed with the Court of Criminal Appeals from district court here with the appeal of Dick Fitzgerald from a ten year sentence following of the Santa Fe railroad depot conviction of burglary in the robbery tober 27, 1927.

In its appeal, defense counsel expects to admission of testimony of Vernon Churchill, principal prosecution witness, allegedly implicated with Fitzgerald in the robbery, who turned state's evidence.

The prosecution, in trial of the case, maintained that by an act of the legislature in 1928, a convict is a competent witness, and this was upheld by the district judge. Defense counsel contended that his testimony should not be admitted on the grounds that, being an unpardoned convict, out of the penitentiary only because he escaped, he was not a competent witness.

Henry Nahm, president of the United Dry Goods Stores, Inc., left Saturday on a business trip to San Angelo.

Editor Suggests Citizenship Plan

MCCAMEY, Oct. 18. (AP)—If an idea suggested by A. Garland Adair, McCamey publisher, is carried out "Citizenship Bulletins" portraying the story of American progress and appealing for greater respect for all laws will be posted in all post offices in the United States.

Adair recently wrote to Senator Morris Sheppard regarding the subject and sent a copy of his Texas Picture News as a model, asking that the senator place the matter before the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission if he deemed it worthy.

Senator Sheppard wired back immediately. "Am in sympathy with your suggestion and will present your idea at once to the Commission to Enforce Laws."

In making the suggestion, the McCamey editor pointed out that when one entered a post office today, whether in Texas or Maine, the first thing to greet him was a picture of some criminal with great bold, black figures announcing the handsome rewards for the fugitive's apprehension. He stated that while these bulletins were necessary to public safety, yet they were like newspapers which published nothing but the crime news and that the medium could be used to advantage in reaching millions of Americans who read nothing but sign boards.

Adair was a classmate of Gov. Dan Moody, at the University of Texas. Since the war in which he served, he has edited newspapers in Mexia, Abilene, Breckenridge and McCamey. For some time his editorial feature "Citizenship Thought for the Day" was carried in dailies and weeklies in five states, this service being suspended when he was engaged to write the life story of Col. A. E. Humphries, discoverer of Mexia, Wortham, Currie, Nocoona and many other oil fields of the southwest. Citizenship has been a sort of hobby with him.

HAS FOUR GAMES

AUSTIN, Oct. 18. (AP)—The University of Texas freshman football team has four tilts scheduled this season. The yearlings will meet San Antonio Junior college at Austin, October 24; Hillsboro Junior college, November 7 at Hillsboro; Seguin Lutheran college, November 21, at Seguin, and Allen academy, Thanksgiving day at Austin.

Decorator

Interior decorations at the new Worley hospital were planned by Mrs. W. A. Duerr, who used a Spanish scheme in clever fashion.

Mrs. H. F. Mitchell and daughter, Pauline, of Amarillo, are visiting Mrs. F. M. Carter, Albert Combs and Mrs. P. A. Worley during the week-end, at their country home southwest of Pampa.

LARGE STAFF OF EXPERIENCED NURSES AT NEW WORLEY CLINIC

A full staff of nurses of recognized skill and technical training is on constant duty at the Worley hospital operated by Dr. J. C. McKean.

Among these are Miss Jewell Lovelace, superintendent of nurses, Mrs. Stella Bastin, Miss Ada Sands, Miss Edith Crites, Mrs. Audrey Covey, Mrs. Inez Hunt, Mrs. R. E. Adams, Miss Rose Mills, Miss May McPherson, and Miss Bernice Davis.

Miss Lovelace is a former public health nurse and student of nursing in Fayetteville, Ark., and the Michael Reese hospital in Chicago. During the last summer she took a course in hospital administration at the University of Texas. She also attended the national nurses' convention in Milwaukee.

Miss Bastin, who is a technician, is from the Gradwohl laboratories in St. Louis.

Miss Sands, Miss Crites, Miss Hunt, and Miss Mills are graduate nurses of the Tisdal hospital at Elk City. Mrs. Covey is another Oklahoman, from Fargo. Mrs. Adams is one of the veterans with the clinic, and is a floor nurse at the Worley hospital.

Miss McPherson is from Toronto

Western hospital and Miss Davis is a graduate of Johnson hospital at Chanute, Kans.

An integral unit of the hospital is the department of pharmacy, presided over by F. C. Conwell.

Miss Ruth Johnson, stenographer at the Worley hospital, will be remembered as the young lady who was runner-up in the Daily News' "Summer Smiles" contest. She has occupied her present position for the last three and one-half years. She began working at the clinic when it was located in the White Deer Land building.

Dr. McKean says that Miss Johnson does as much work in six and one-half hours as the average stenographer does in 10, so she works six and one-half hours at the office per day. Miss Johnson has been living in Pampa four years. She is a native of Kansas where her mother lives at the present time. Books and music are the hobbies of Miss Johnson. She plans to complete a graduate course in piano begun several years ago at a Kansas City conservatory.

AMARYLLIS AND GREAT WEST FLOUR WILL BE USED EXCLUSIVELY IN THE NEW WORLEY HOSPITAL

In the preparation of diets and meals for hospital patients, the selection of only the very best and purest foods is essential. Great West and Amaryllis Flours were the choice of DR. McKEAN for this fine new hospital because he knows these two blends to be dependable, scientifically made, and absolutely pure—flours which would assure appetizing meals and contribute to the quick recovery of patients. BEGIN HERE TODAY
CELIA ROGERS, lacking one month of being 18 and just out of high school, spends a hot and weary July day looking for a job. Her mother, MARGARET ROGERS, is a widow and employed as a seamstress in a dress shop. They live in Baltimore and the mother's earnings are their only income.

Celia is unsuccessful in her search for work. Mrs. Rogers arrives home with a letter which she conceals from the girl. The letter, signed JOHN MITCHELL, is an offer to provide Celia with every advantage of education, travel and social position if the mother will give her up. Margaret declares she will never do this.

Celia goes for a drive with BARNEY SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer who lives next door. Shields kisses the girl and tells her he loves her. They discuss marriage, but agree it must be a long time off. Next day Celia continues her search for work. She goes to the shop where her mother is employed and learns Mrs. Rogers has been taken ill.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IV

"Where is she—my mother? Oh, has anything happened?" Celia demanded, her voice rising hysterically.

"The doctor held up a warning hand. 'Quiet!' he insisted. Then, eyeing the girl kindly, went on:

"Are you Mrs. Rogers' daughter? She's resting quietly but you must not disturb her! No cause for alarm. Your mother is suffering from a heat attack—brought on, I should say, by exhaustion."

"Can't I just see her?" the girl begged.

"After awhile."

Dr. Williams turned to one of the women who seemed to be in charge of the fitting room. "There's nothing further I can do," he said. "She's comfortable. Let her rest where she is as long as you can. By 5:30 her daughter can take her home. What she needs is rest and quiet for a few days—particularly in this hot weather lasts. Ought to stay home tomorrow by all means. Well, I'll be on my way—"

Celia caught the doctor's arm. "Please," she begged, "tell me what's happened!"

Patiently Dr. Williams reviewed what he had said. The intense heat had caused Mrs. Rogers to collapse. Emergency measures had been applied with satisfactory results. In half an hour Celia could go into the little rest room where her mother lay and could stay with her providing she promised to be perfectly still and not to talk.

He added instructions for the patient's care that evening.

"Just keep her quiet and comfortable," he said. "She'll probably feel weak for some time. Don't let her worry about anything. Of course she'll have to be very careful to avoid hot sunlight the rest of the summer. Ought not to exert herself in the least during hot weather. You look to me like a pretty good nurse. Take care of her!"

With a smile Dr. Williams departed. He had been called in because his office was just two doors from the dress shop. He had done all that he could for the sick woman. As he strode into the street the doctor shook his head, muttering something unintelligible, and paused to wipe perspiration from his forehead.

The other women who worked with Mrs. Rogers were sympathetic.

They tried to comfort the girl and Mrs. Foster, who was really "Margot" and owned the shop, came in to tell Celia her mother should remain home next day.

Finally the half-hour was up. Celia tip-toed down the hallway and peered into the rest room.

Her mother seemed to be sleeping. She looked little and tired and her face was pale as she lay on the low cot. An ice bag covered Margaret Rogers' forehead. Her clothing had been loosened. The breeze from an electric fan swept and pered into the rest room.

Celia crept silently to the only chair and sat down. Her eyes were misted with tears. It was all she could do to keep from kneeling beside the cot and slipping an arm about her mother, begging to be reassured that everything was all right.

It seemed incredible. Celia could not remember when her mother had ever been ill before.

Once Margaret Rogers moved restlessly. Her lips twitched but she did not open her eyes. The slow rise and fall of her chest continued regularly.

The dress shop closed at five o'clock but Mrs. Foster and one of the other women stayed after that. Presently they told Celia that a cab was waiting at the door. They helped her rouse Mrs. Rogers, helped the woman to rise and get ready to go home.

"Celia!" Mrs. Rogers whispered softly. That was all she said until after they got into the cab and Celia had given the driver the address. Then the mother leaned back against her daughter's arm and gave a long sigh.

"So tired," she murmured. "Glad you're here, darling."

The driver of the taxicab helped Celia take her mother up the two flights of stairs leading to the flat. He volunteered and the girl could scarcely have managed alone. The driver was a thick set, red-faced man who by no chance would ever have been taken for a good Samaritan, but he tipped his hat, mumbled something and hurried off down the stairs as soon as he had received his fare.

Lying on the bed before the open window Margaret Rogers looked up into her daughter's face and managed a wan smile.

"I'm—all right now—dear. See about your dinner—I'm all right."

She refused to be waited upon. Celia pushed the window high as possible, brought ice wrapped in towels for her mother's head, but nothing the girl could do could keep the room from feeling like a bake oven.

After Mrs. Rogers closed her eyes and seemed to doze, Celia went into the living room. She sank into a chair, fanning herself with a folded newspaper. She was hot, tired and still frightened. The early afternoon seemed years away.

Presently she arose, found cold food and nibbled at it. She had no appetite and soon cleared away the dishes.

At eight o'clock she heard footsteps on the stairs and knew they were Barney Shields'. Celia hurried into the hall to meet him.

Barney's bright smile flashed at her as he reached the top of the stairs. Immediately he saw something was wrong.

"Oh, Barney," the girl said in a low voice. "I'm glad you're come. It's—I've been so frightened!"

"The youth was beside her, his face as grave as hers now.

"What's happened?" he asked. "What's the matter?"

Celia told him. They stood in the hallway talking in whispers so as not to disturb the woman in the bedroom. Celia's words came in a flood, interrupted once or twice when tears got the better of her.

Emotion, held in check for hours, suddenly gave way.

Barney tried to comfort her.

"But honey, don't cry! Everything'll be all right tomorrow. I'm sure it will. Gosh, on a hot day like this anyone's liable to go to pieces!"

"Oh, but—I don't know—!"

He slipped an arm around the girl and patted her shoulder. "Your mother'll feel better in the morning," he said reassuringly. "I'm sure of it."

It was good to confide in Barney. He seemed so protective. It was wonderful, too, to see the same tender, worshipful look in his eyes they had held last night.

Celia, remembering, brushed a hand across her misty lashes and smiled back at him.

"That's the girl," said Barney. "Well, I suppose you don't want me around here any longer!"

She would like to have him stay, Celia admitted, but it probably was best for him to go.

For a moment Barney Shields held her close, touching her lips with a quick kiss. Then he let her go.

"Night, dear," he said, and disappeared down the steps.

Celia Rogers had gone into Margot's dress shop that eventful day with exciting news. It was afternoon of the following day before she confided this news to her mother.

True to Barney's prediction, Mrs. Rogers awoke the next morning to pronounce herself rested and entirely recovered from the collapse. A pale face belied these words and Celia insisted on keeping her mother in bed, bringing her food that was tempting and nourishing and generally indulging her.

"But how," Margaret Rogers asked shortly after lunch, "did you happen to drop in at the shop yesterday?"

Celia remembered the doctor said there should be no shocks and no excitement. She was cautious.

"Well, I wanted to see you." "I wanted to see me about what?" It was—well, I know where I can get a job."

"Celia! What kind of a job? Why didn't you tell me?"

It had really been the most marvelous luck. Celia's eyes grew wide as she talked. It had all happened so suddenly. She had been on her way to see a prospective employer the day before when she met Sally Roberts on the street.

Sally had finished Western the year before and stopped to ask what Celia was doing. As soon as she heard Celia was looking for a job she volunteered to help.

Sally was one of the stenographers in the office of the Ridgeway Contracting company. One of the other girls in the office was leaving to be married in 10 days. No one else had been hired yet to take her place.

"Well—I went right over to see Mr. Porter—he's the man in charge —and Sally told him I had a good record in school. Mr. Porter talked to me a while and then he asked me to take some dictation. Thank goodness, I got it right! After that he said I could have the job. Isn't
