People in the news ...

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Oscar-winning actor Kevin Spacey has prevailed over an alleged "cyber-squatter" in a challenge over an Internet domain name.

The dispute, settled by the National Arbitration Forum, pitted Spacey against John Zuccarini, of Andalusia, Penn., the subject of dozens of domain name complaints and lawsuits. The decision was announced Friday.

In this case, the challenged domain name — kevinpacey.com — reflects a common misspelling of the actor's name, said Erin Thompson, spokeswoman for the National Arbitration Forum.

She said Zuccarini evidently profited from advertising directed at Web surfers who made the typographical error while looking for information about the actor.

The arbitrator who handled the case ordered the domain name transferred to Spacey. Zuccarini did not file a response in the proceeding. He does not have a listed phone number.

In other court proceedings, Thompson said, Zuccarini has admitted registering thousands of similarly misspelled domain names — such as gwenythpaltrow.com, rikymartin.com and britneyspears.com — which she said have earned him close to $1 million a year in revenues.

LONDON (AP) — Welsh-born Hollywood star Catherine Zeta-Jones is to produce a movie in her homeland, the Welsh Development Agency said Friday.

The film, "Coming Out," will be produced by Milkwood Films, a company established by Zeta-Jones, 31, and her younger brother, Lyndon Jones. Catherine's older brother, David, will act as co-producer.

The film, a comedy centered on the Welsh national sport of rugby, will be directed by Welsh filmmaker Sara Sugarman.

Lyndon Jones said his sister, who married Michael Douglas in November, was committed to maintaining her ties with Wales.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space station resident Susan Helms sent down a Mother's Day greeting to someone who has a tougher job than she does.

"It's hard to be an astronaut," Helms said Friday in a televised broadcast to Dori Helms of Albuquerque, N.M. "It takes a lot of work and dedication. But I've only been an astronaut about 10 or 11 years, and she's been a mom over 45 years and I think that that's probably a lot harder job."

Man, wife face bad check charges

A late night patrol last week led to two arrests on outstanding warrants, Pampa police said.

Amanda, 24, and Josh Lee Shelton, 25, both of 1120 Sirroco, were free on bond after being arrested on outstanding warrants charging them with issuance of bad checks.

Pampa Police Lt. Fred Courtney said he was patrolling in the 800 block of West Foster about 1 a.m. when he saw a Chevrolet Blazer parked in the alley.

Upon checking, Courtney said the driver, Josh

Shelton, was wanted on two warrants charging him with issuance of bad checks. The passenger in Blazer was not wanted, Courtney said, but there was a 3-year-old boy in the sports utility vehicle.

When officers called the mother of boy, Amanda Shelton, who was closing up a nearby business, to come get the boy, they found that she, too, was wanted on a warrant charging her with issuance of a bad check.

Gray County Justice of the Peace Joe Martinez set bond for each of the two at $200.

Pampa teen loses CDs, other items to thief

A Pampa teenager reported a loss of almost $2,000 in items taken from his car.

Michael Scott McCormick, 17, 1129 Sandlewood, told Pampa police officers that his car had been broken into and $1,700 in compact discs were taken. He also said two bottles of cologne, Candy's and Eternity, valued at $70 was missing along with a $100 radar detector and a $29 cell phone.

McCormick told police that someone broke into his green 2001 Chevrolet Cavalier four-door sedan some time last weekend between 6 p.m. Friday and noon Saturday.

Ouch! Dog bites officer

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

A Pampa policeman was warned a dog would bite while on a call early Friday. He learned the owner was correct.

Lt. Fred Courtney was investigating a burglary of habitation call about 1:30 a.m. Friday in the 900 block of South Summer when he pet a blue heeler upon entering the residence.

According to the police report, the owner warned Courtney the dog would bite. As Courtney re-entered the home, the dog was lying on the porch and bit the police officer on his lower leg.

The dog's owner immediately told the dog to stop and the dog obeyed the commands, said the report.

Courtney was not seriously injured but required several stitches in his lower leg from the Pampa Regional Medical Center Emergency Center. He returned to work Friday morning upon receiving medical attention.

Fortunately for Courtney, the dog was current on his rabies vaccination. However, the animal is under observation at the local animal shelter.

Dr. James Alexander, Zoonosis veterinarian with the Texas Department of Health regional office in Canyon, said when he was in Pampa Thursday that animals who have been vaccinated for rabies and bite humans are required to receive one booster shot. The animal is isolated for observation for 45 days.

He said animals who have not been vaccinated for rabies, and bite a human, will receive rabies immunizations immediately. The animal will receive additional shots again at three weeks and eight weeks later. Alexander also said the animal would be required to be isolated for 90 days if it did not have the rabies shot.

Heritage Tree leaves for sale

The White Deer Land Museum will be selling memorial leaves and rocks for the Heritage Tree as this Memorial Day weekend approaches. This holiday will be observed on Monday, May 28, this year.

The Heritage Tree is located in the Holland Wing of the Museum, at 112 S. Cuyler. There are two sizes of brass leaves for sale - the small leaf is $75 and the large leaf is $150. These leaves can be purchased as memorial to a family, a person, an organization, or in honor of a birthday or a wedding. They would make a wonderful tribute to a veteran at this special time. The tree will also hold small and large rocks, which sell for $500 and $1000.

The museum invites you to stop by and see the Heritage Tree at the museum and pick out a leaf for someone in your family this week. Business hours in the museum are 8 a.m. - 5 p.m., Tuesday-Friday, and 1-4 p.m. on weekends.

Officer IDs stolen car; makes arrest

A sharp-eyed Pampa police officer investigating a suspicious driver Thursday discovered the vehicle the man was driving had been reported stolen from Clarendon.

Officer Cade Logue noticed the driver of a 2000 Ford Taurus pulling into the Coronado Inn parking lot about 3:30 a.m. Thursday acted suspiciously, according to police reports. As a precaution, Logue called in the license plate number which returned as a stolen from Clarendon.

"So he follows the car while he's waiting for back-up," said Col. Terry Young. "They stopped it in the 800 block of South Hobart."

Officers checked the criminal history of the driver of the bronze Taurus and learned that he was wanted on a warrant for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle out of Donley County, Young said, adding that he did not know if the charge was related to the theft of the Taurus or another incident.

"The suspect said he had borrowed the car from his girlfriend and had failed to return it in time," Young said.

A passenger in the vehicle was also arrested on drug possession charges, according to police records.

Billy Ray Houston, 48, of Clarendon, was arrested on a Donley County warrant for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. Judge Joe Martinez set bond at $10,000.

Tina Lynette Malone, 31, 610 N. Carr, was arrested for possession of marijuana under 2 ounces and for possession of drug paraphernalia. Martinez set bond at $500 on the marijuana possession charge and $200 for possession of drug paraphernalia.

Felony charge made in house trashing

A Pampa man is free on personal bond after being arrested on felony charges for allegedly destroying the interior of a rent house last December.

Gray County Sheriff's deputies served a warrant charging Andrew Anthony Ramirez, 28, 416 Perry, with criminal mischief over $1,500 and under $20,000 at his residence Thursday afternoon.

The felony warrant was issued by Justice of the Peace Kurt Curfman in connection with an allegation that a couple evicted from a residence at 2505

Charles destroyed the interior of the residence when they were evicted last December, according to sheriff's department records.

Deputies said Ramirez's wife, Patricia Ramirez, 22, also of 416 Perry, was arrested approximately 30 minutes later at the Gray County Sheriff's Office on warrants for criminal mischief, simple assault, permitting a person without a driver's license to drive, failure to appear, and no valid driver's license. She was also released on personal bond.

Man charged in crack cocaine case free on bond

A Pampa man remains free on $4,000 bond today after being arrested earlier this month on drug charges.

William David Wortham, 41, 1012 Prairie Drive, was arrested in the 1100 block of Varmon.

Authorities said, Pampa police officers Cade Logue and Chad Johnson stopped in the early-morning hours to talk to two men and a woman who were standing near the street. The officers said they saw Wortham throw away a small bottle when they approached him.

The officers retrieved the bottle which contained what appeared to be a small amount, less than one gram, of crack cocaine.

the proposed use saying, "I haven't even talked to the company." She did say the parcel involved is "something like" 2.5 sections about nine miles east of Pampa.

Cervi, who said she has not lived in the Pampa area for many years but returns to visit, said a drive through Pampa shows it needs an economic boost. "The town needs help," she said. "Just look at all the homes that are for sale. It looks as though the only one making any money is Wal-Mart."

One of those who live near the land, Jo McFall, wife of Billy Joe McFall, said the prospect of a swine farm for a neighbor "is a very sore subject. "There really are just about four families who live out here and people are definitely upset," she said. "Really all we know right now are rumors ... my husband saw surveyors [on the Stockstill property] last week."

She said she heard the facility would have 350 sows which she commented "can turn into a lot more ..."

An Internet search revealed that sows in hog farm operations produce an average of 20 piglets a year each.

Because of the susceptibility of pigs to disease, one source said the company wants to place its facility away from other ones.

A source said the company has pulled "core samples" from the Stockstill property to check the soil's suitability for waste lagoons. (See related story)

A check with the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission shows that no application for registration (permit) is pending for a proposed swine facility within Gray County.

Asked about core sample reporting, TNRCC spokesman Dick Lewis said Friday core sample reports as prepared by a certified engineer "typically accompany applications."

Lewis did say an application for registration has been filed by Seaboard Farms for an 88,300-capacity hog farm in nearby Hutchinson County. He said the 30-day public comment period regarding that application is still open and will close at the end of the month.

Typically, Lewis said, hog operations start at a lower number of pigs then build toward the permit capacity.

Seaboard Farms is the same company that worked with the PEDC when the firm considered, then rejected, Pampa several years ago as a potential site for a large hog processing plant.

FDA panel recommends over-the-counter sale of Claritin, Allegra, Zyrtec

GAITHERSBURG, Md. (AP) — A federal advisory panel has decided that three popular allergy drugs are safe enough to sell without prescription, but experts say the path to over-the-counter sales may be strewn with legal and other problems.

In an action Friday that narrowly focused on the safety of Claritin, Allegra and Zyrtec, members of a Food and Drug Administration committee overwhelmingly voted in support of the drugs' marketing without doctor approval. The FDA will make the final decision.

Some of the 23-member advisory panel urged that strong warnings be included in the labeling of the allergy drugs if they are sold over the counter. "My 'Yes' vote is a cautious vote," said Julie A. Johnson, an associate professor of pharmacy at the University of Florida.

Although he voted for the change, Dr. H. William Kelly, professor of pharmacy at the University of New Mexico, noted: "I am concerned that so many professional organizations oppose this."

FDA officials said they would have to carefully consider their next actions and that more research data and the comments of the panel members will be evaluated.

The vote supported a petition by WellPoint Health Network, a California insurance company that stands to save millions by not having to pay for the prescriptions for clients.

Manufacturers of the drugs opposed the action, claiming that unsupervised sales of the allergy drugs posed a health risk for some patients. They were joined in opposition by members of the American Academy of Asthma, Allergy and Immunology and several other physicians' organizations.

Schering-Plough Corp., maker of Claritin, said there also were "legal and public policy issues" to be raised if the FDA switches the drugs to non-prescription status. Executives of Aventis Pharma AG, makers of Allegra, quickly left without comment after the vote. Pfizer Inc., which makes Zyrtec, did not participate in the hearing.

The vote was 19-4 each for Claritin and Zyrtec, and 18-5 for Allegra. The FDA is not required to follow the recommendations of the panel, but usually does so.

Dr. John Jenkins of the FDA said he did not have a time frame for a decision in the "very unusual" case. Traditionally drug companies, not insurance companies, ask for a change, he said, and the agency will now have to determine the next move.

Robert Seidman, a vice president of WellPoint, argued during his presentation that the allergy drugs were safe and that the price of the drugs would come down if they were available for over-the-counter sales.

He admitted that his company, too, would benefit. WellPoint now pays for much of the prescription costs of its clients, and Seidman said his company last year paid out $45 million for the allergy drugs.

In a statement, Schering-Plough repeated a claim

The vote supported a petition by WellPoint Health Network, a California insurance company that stands to save millions by not having to pay for the prescriptions for clients.

by Dr. Robert J. Spiegel, its chief medical officer, that "prescription status of these medications is necessary to protect and optimize public health."

The company also said that "it believes there are significant legal and public policy issues that would be raised if the FDA were to require a switch without drug-sponsor support."

Switching Claritin to nonprescription status over the objections of the company, the statement said, "would constitute an unprecedented departure from past agency policy and implicate the sponsor's (Schering-Plough) statutory and constitutional rights."

Earlier, Spiegel said allowing non-prescription sales of the allergy drugs would force consumers into a "risky trial-and-error gamble with their health, their quality of life and their money."

The drug companies said that if the medicines were available over the counter, selling even at gas stations, as one official noted, then many people would self-diagnose and treat conditions that need the attention of a doctor. They repeatedly noted that symptoms of asthma, a serious respiratory disorder, are frequently mistaken for a simple allergy. Claritin, Allegra and Zyrtec last year generated about $4.7 billion in sales.

Seidman said that although the drugs sell for up to $2.49 a pill on the U.S. prescription market, a month's supply costs $11 in Canada, one of 17 countries where they are sold over the counter.

Jenkins said the FDA cannot force the companies to continue selling the drugs and he was uncertain if the agency could compel the companies to sell them over the counter.

The allergy drugs are known as second-generation antihistamines because they dry up allergy symptoms without causing the drowsiness so common with first-generation over-the-counter drugs.

Claritin was approved in 1993, Zyrtec in 1995 and Allegra in 1996.

In response to the decision, shares of Schering-Plough finished trading on the New York Stock Exchange up $1.20 to $38.20. Shares of Aventis fell $1.22 to $75.53, while Pfizer was off 74 cents to $43.00.

APPRAISAL

The appraisal notice includes current year information on exemptions granted on the property and last year's value, also.

Homeowners that qualify for property tax homestead exemptions have a limitation on their homes' appraised value, beginning with the second year that they qualify their home for homestead exemptions. The Appraisal District may not increase their home value by more than 10 percent for each year since the last reappraisal year. A homeowner's notice gives both the market value for the home and the limited home value.

Notices to property owners whose values increased more than $1,000 will include estimated taxes, officials said. Estimated taxes are based on the new taxable value and last year's tax rates. Taxing units will set final 2001 tax rates in August and September. Final tax amounts may vary from these estimated amounts, officials said.

Bagley asks property owners to check the legal description and mailing address for errors.

"If the notice has an old address, please let the Appraisal District know. The post office forwards mail to a new address for a short time, and tax bills do not go out until October," Bagley added. "It is important for the Appraisal District to have the correct address," he said.

A property owner is responsible for informing the Appraisal District of the correct mailing address. Property owners are also liable for additional penalties and interest on a tax bill that is not paid on time.

Bagley encourages property owners to contact the Appraisal District with any questions they may have.

"If you did not get a notice and want 2001 information about your property, please call the Appraisal District at 665-0791," he said, adding, "The general deadline for protesting to the Appraisal Review Board is May 31 for this year."

Police: Man charged in parents' deaths had been taking drugs

DALLAS (AP) — A man charged with gunning down his elderly parents on their Kaufman County farm had taken dozens of sleeping pills and antidepressants while drinking wine earlier that day, authorities said.

Andrew Niles Gordon, 46, was charged Thursday with capital murder in the deaths of former Waco jewelry store owners Dorothy Andrews Gordon, 77, and Harrell Edwin Gordon, 80.

Deputies discovered the bodies late Tuesday in front of their home in Terrell, about 35 miles east of Dallas, after receiving a 911 call from Andrew Gordon.

The son was arrested Tuesday on a weapons charge and public intoxication. He remained jailed without bond Friday in Kaufman County.

Andrew Gordon first told deputies he found his parents dead after returning from a store, but he later said he shot them after arguing with his father, according to a police affidavit.

Gordon said he had been depressed the past two weeks, drinking heavily and taking cocaine, according to the affidavit. He said he considered suicide after shooting his parents, police said.

The elderly couple owned and operated Gordon's Jewelers in Waco for 35 years before retiring and moving to a farm east of Terrell about five years ago. The couple attended Calvary Baptist Church in Waco, where Harrell Gordon was a deacon for 40 years and Dorothy Gordon was a Sunday school assistant.

The victims' other son, David Gordon of Waco, said Thursday that he was trying to cope with the tragedy.

"My parents were truly devoted Christian people," he told the Waco Tribune-Herald. "They were just very honest, and a lot of people in town ... trusted them in bringing them their stones and jewelry to have it repaired or to buy. They were just very trusting, honest people."

Kaufman County Sheriff David Byrnes said Andrew Gordon, who lived with his parents, has cooperated with authorities. The Texas Rangers and the FBI also assisted in the investigation.

I'm thankful to wear a red rose

A few days ago the subject of Mother's Day came up in the office.

Well, actually, it came up twice — once about a Mother's Day tradition and once about gift-giving ideas.

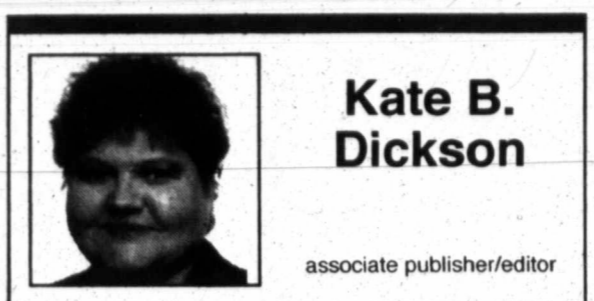

Somehow we got on the subject of wearing a red rose to church on Mother's Day to signify one's mother is living and wearing a white one if your mother had passed away.

There were three or four of us in the conversation and the youngest among us (not me, sadly) had never heard of that tradition.

At first I thought it might be just a Southern thing but Nancy Young said she had worn Mother's Day roses on her church dresses, too.

It seems like we had a few rose bushes one time ... and then, the flowers could have come from someone's else's yard.

There's one thing I'm sure of, though, the flowers didn't come from a flower shop ... they were always home grown. And, anyway, our

 associate publisher/editor

little town was too small to support a flower shop.

I can remember wearing a rose one particular Mother's Day when I was a little girl but I can't recall just where it came from. I do, however, vividly remember looking around in our small church to see who was wearing red and who was wearing white.

On the gift side of the conversation, I mentioned that we never give my mother — we call her Sugah — anything that has to be dusted. It's a rule that applies to birthday and Christmas, too.

Like most of us, she doesn't need any more stuff — especially stuff that has to be dusted.

So, we opt for clothes or gift certificates for such things as car washes, manicures, pedicures, etc. And, my brother always adds a big box of Millionaires that she promptly hides with no intention whatsoever of sharing a piece!

But the best thing about it all is getting together to share a day or two with Sugah and other members of our family.

Looking back, I know it's been many years since I've worn a Mother's rose. But if I should, decide today to do so again, I'm very thankful the color will be red.

Happy Mother's Day!!!

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, May 13, the 133th day of 2001. There are 232 days left in the year. This is Mother's Day.

Today's Highlight in History:

Twenty years ago, on May 13, 1981, Pope John Paul II was shot and seriously wounded in St. Peter's Square by Turkish assailant Mehmet Ali Agca.

On this date:
 In 1607, the English colony at Jamestown, Va., was settled.

In 1842, composer Sir Arthur Sullivan, who collaborated with Sir William Gilbert in writing 14 comic operas, was born in London.

In 1846, the United States declared that a state of war already existed against Mexico.

The opinions expressed on this page are not necessarily the opinions of The Pampa News.

Texas Editorials

By The Associated Press

A sampling of editorial opinion around Texas:

The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal on let's lose eight-liners: The state House of Representatives gave preliminary approval recently to a bill that would make eight-liner gambling machines illegal in Texas. We would be delighted to see the removal of the machines.

Vague state laws stymied the state crackdown on eight-liners two years ago. A more specific law was needed, and Rep. Will Hartnett, R-Irving, obliged by adding an anti-eight-liner amendment to a bill that would increase regulation of sweepstakes. The amendment was approved 96-45.

If eight-liners were regulated and the state got a share of the revenue they generate, they would be easier to take. But as it stands now, there are an estimated 40,000 "gaming" machines in operation now (about twice as many as there were two years ago); and they have added nothing to our state while taking away much.

The saddest thing about situations such as that of eight-liner machines is that the people who are dumping the largest amounts of money into them are those who can least afford it.

Mr. Hartnett says large numbers of working-class and elderly people are losing money in the machines. We have no doubt that he is correct but would venture to guess that other demographic groups are also foolishly throwing away money in them.

Casino gambling is illegal in Texas, but eight-liners are similar to machines found in casinos, and the "gaming" that is involved is indisputably gambling. If casino gambling is illegal, then so should be eight-liners.

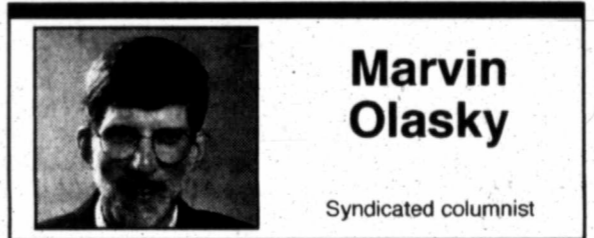

A tougher, more specific law was needed. Here it is. The legislature should pass it, and the governor should sign it as soon as possible. Eight-liners are hurting the quality of life for many Texans, and they need to go.

Thought for today

The corrosive arrogance of power

Marvin Olasky
 Syndicated columnist

Joseph Pulitzer's 15 minutes of annual fame arrived for another year. That's when hot journalists garnered the prizes named after and funded by the editor/publisher who ruled the press roost a century ago. But the unmentioned story about Pulitzer is this: His own life shows what happens when a nose for news turns into the arrogance of power.

Pulitzer, like some of today's press leaders, had a penetrating intellect and superb journalistic instincts, but he was described as a man who "exudes the venom of a snake and wields the bludgeon of a bully." From the 1880s through his death in 1911, as owner of the most influential newspaper in New York City, he thought he could do whatever he wanted. One fellow newspaper editor noted, "Absolute authority made Pulitzer a tyrant."

As a young man, Pulitzer had been a great reporter and editor, but as he gained power he became — as one biographer put it — a "helpless megalomaniac and egocentric." When Pulitzer gradually went blind during the 1890s, he called himself "the loneliest man in the world" — but that isolation was largely self-imposed. Pulitzer separated himself from his wife and children for most of his last 20 years because he wanted around him only "compliant attendants," whom he would swear at and occasionally whip.

Pulitzer's wife often wanted to join him, but Pulitzer raged at her, then complained that he had to eat dinner with "nobody at my table except paid employees." Many of those assistants admired him at first, but later or usually sooner he would turn on them. One reporter wrote, "When anything went wrong, and things seemed to go wrong with him very often, there would come from his office ... a stream of profanity and filth."

Pulitzer's essential problem is that he wanted to be treated as an infallible god. When Charles Evan Hughes, later to be the Supreme Court's chief justice, visited Pulitzer in 1903, he reported, "One would have supposed that Mr. Pulitzer was sitting as the judge of all the earth." Pulitzer spent many of his last years sailing in a yacht with 75 employees trained to cater to his whims. As one biographer put it: "The yacht represented the logical end toward which the eccentric despot, so concerned with democracy, had been working for decades. It gave him complete control. It was an absolute monarchy."

Pulitzer could have improved his disposition by understanding that he really was not in control, because a God far more powerful than any newspaper publisher is. Pulitzer's only bow in that direction displayed his arrogance: For a time he sent an atheistic employee to church every week to place a new $5 bill on the offering plate and then leave. Another of Pulitzer's assistants explained, "Mr. Pulitzer has then attended church."

Pulitzer ended his life agitated by what he called his "constant and manifold failures." Having forsaken God, he complained that he was "forsaken and deserted." History, however, has not forsaken him, because he had the foresight to use a bit of his fortune to set up awards that became the most prestigious in American journalism. Now, on the day Pulitzer Prizes are handed out, his name is remembered, and perhaps even loved by the winners.

Those winners, though, need to remember the danger they are in. A Russian folk tale tells of a warrior valiant on horseback who traveled to Moscow to receive the thanks of the Czar. His reward came in the form of heavy, jeweled armor, which the hero wore on his trip home. When fording a river, his horse stumbled and the warrior drowned, weighed down by what was intended to lift him up in the esteem of his countrymen.

Joseph Pulitzer drowned similarly, weighed down by his arrogance. So may some winners of his prize, unless they consider themselves public servants rather than press lords.

Radicals rule environmental groups

Charley Reese
 Syndicated columnist

It's too bad most of the major environmental organizations seem to have been taken over by well-to-do urban fanatics with tunnel vision.

It's too bad because everyone should be an environmentalist, if, by that term, we mean people who have a reasonable and balanced interest in preserving the natural environment.

Unfortunately, as you can tell by the rancorous and demagogic comments directed at President George W. Bush, the term "environmentalists" now means people with an ideology and damn-the-human-and-economic consequences attitude.

The present standard of 50 parts per billion of arsenic in drinking water has no known health consequences that are not infinitesimal. Forcing areas where arsenic naturally occurs to meet an arbitrary standard of 10 parts per billion would have quite measurable economic consequences — such as bankrupting some small towns.

Environmental Protection Agency risk assessments are based on a computer model, not on clinical studies. The assumptions are usually a 154-kilogram human being who drinks two liters of water a day for 72 years. The result is usually — mathematically computed, not clinically proven — an increased risk of cancer that is .00000-something or other. In other words, a risk too small even to consider.

It's easy to get hung up on the number 50. The number you should think about is 1 billion. To consume, over a 72-year period, 50 ounces of arsenic, you would have to consume 1 billion ounces of water. That, of course, is an impossibility. The average lifespan is only 26,280 days. If you drank 64 ounces of water per day, you would have consumed only 1.6 million ounces, a long way from 1 billion.

The fact is that we now have instruments that can detect chemicals in such minute amounts that we have no idea at all what, if any, effect on human health such infinitesimal amounts have.

Arsenic, by the way, is a naturally occurring, non-metallic element that is used, among other purposes, for making certain medicines. I feel rather certain these medicines would contain more than 50 parts per billion. George W. Bush did not decide "to poison people." He decided to save them from unnecessary and in some cases ruinous expense.

The decline of a rational environmental movement is a result of the rural-urban divide. Many people who are born in and reared in urban environments lose touch with the natural world. That's no surprise, because an industrial city is far from natural.

I would guess that many urban environmentalists do not fish, hunt, farm or ranch. Perhaps they camp occasionally in public parks or hike on man-made trails in national parks. Most of their contacts with the natural world are the pictures in magazines and on television.

Their "natural" environment is, of course, their homes, streets and offices — all products of a modern, fossil-fuel driven society that reeks with chemicals, toxic or otherwise, and petroleum by-products. Often, these urban environmentalists douse their homes and lawns with pesticides to avoid those "icky" bugs.

They seem to have, however, a total disconnect between their lives and their environmental positions as well as a disconnect between the food they eat and the products they use and the people who produce them and the processes necessary.

They do not seem to see the connection between farmers and ranchers, packinghouses and transportation and the food they casually toss into their baskets at the supermarket. They do not seem to understand that if they, with their regulations, put the farmers, ranchers, truckers and fishermen out of business, those supermarket shelves will be empty.

So many of these environmental outfits are run by wealthy people who simply don't give a hoot if a single mom's utility bills triple, if small businesses are forced into bankruptcy, if the poor in the Northern states freeze because they can't afford to heat their homes. Their interest seems not to go beyond their personal comfort and their ideology. Some, I think, want to turn the entire world into their personal park, and they resent the presence of the rest of humanity.

They are like the Hollywood socialists who drive to the workers' rally in their Rolls Royce automobiles.

But we can't go back to a pristine wilderness. We're 300 years too late for that in North America. We can't feed 6 billion people with subsistence agriculture. We can't feed them without fossil fuel and nuclear energy. We have to start where we are, and we have to base our decisions on sound science instead of junk science.

Americans should recognize that the traditional environmental organizations have been taken over by radicals. They should be dam glad there is a president who will not cater to fanaticism. What the natural world needs are people who will be good stewards of it because they know it and love it. It doesn't need urban intellectuals and left-wing lawyers.

USDA sees higher prices for wheat, livestock

By PHILIP BRASHER
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has mixed news for the nation's farm economy, predicting sharply higher prices for wheat and continued strong returns for livestock this year but flat to lower prices for soybeans, corn and rice.

In its first projection of crop and livestock prices, the Agriculture Department estimated Thursday that farmers will earn about $3.05 per bushel for wheat this year, up from $2.63 last year, because of shrinking U.S. production and tighter world supplies.

Because of a drought on the southern Plains, this year's harvest of winter wheat is forecast at 1.34 billion bushels, down 14 percent from last year. It would be the smallest crop in 23 years. Winter wheat is planted in the fall and harvested the next spring.

Fluctuations in grain prices generally have little impact on consumer costs, since the price of raw ingredients generally is a small part of the cost of processed foods. That isn't true of meat prices, however.

USDA expects cattle prices to average $74 to $78 per hundred pounds this year, up from $69.65 last year. Returns on hogs are expected to remain steady this year at about $44 to $46 per hundred pounds.

Prices for broiler chickens, eggs and milk all are expected to be higher.

Corn prices are expected to be flat, at about $1.85 a bushel, about the same as the return on last year's crop. Soybean prices are expected to decline to $4.20 a bushel, down from $4.40 in 2000.

USDA expects soybean production to hit a record 3 billion bushels this year, an increase of nearly 8 percent over last year. Farmers have been increasing soybean acreage steadily in recent years, partly to take advantage of favorable federal subsidies.

Rice prices are expected to drop to $5.50 per hundred pounds, down about 10 cents from last year.

The projected price declines likely will increase pressure on Congress to approve a fourth straight year of supplemental farm assistance. Congress has given farmers $25 billion in emergency aid over the last three years, mostly to compensate for a steep drop in grain prices.

Farmers have been cutting back on wheat plantings for several years and switching to more lucrative crops such as soybeans. This year, much of the nation's winter wheat crop is in relatively poor condition.

Oklahoma, which has been especially hard hit by drought, is expected to produce just 97.2 million bushels of wheat this year, down from 142.8 million in 2000. Production in Kansas is forecast at 285.6 million bushels, down from 347.8 million last year.

Farm storage facility service loans available

Executive Director Matthew Street, Gray County Farm Service Agency, recently announced Farm Storage Facility Loans are available through the local FSA to area farmers.

"At a time when commercial storage facilities are at maximum capacity and charging premium rates nationwide, on-farm storage provides producers with an attractive alternative," he said.

The FSA is offering seven-year, low-cost loans to grain producers desiring to build new or to upgrade existing storage facilities and related essential, permanently affixed drying or handling equipment. Eligible loan opportunities include, but are not limited to:

—New conventional-type cribs or bins, oxygen-limiting and other upright silo-type structures and flat-type storage structures designed for whole grain storage; —Perforated floors, safety equipment, quality improvement equipment, electrical equipment and concrete components considered essential for a fully functional storage facility;

—Remodeling existing storage facilities to increase storage capacity.

According to Street, marketing flexibility is the primary benefit gained from on-farm storage facilities. "Privately owned facilities give producers control over where and when they sell their crops, increasing their opportunity to get the best price for their crop."

Farm storage facility loans must be approved prior to site preparation, equipment purchase or construction, and must be secured by a promissory note and security agreement. Special real estate provisions apply for loans exceeding $50,000.

The maximum loan amount will be 85 percent of the net cost of the applicant's needed storage or handling equipment, not to exceed $100,000 per borrower. A minimum down payment to the supplier or contractor is required to bridge the gap between the net cost of the storage facility and the loan amount.

Fixed interest rates on farm storage facility loans are equivalent to the rate of interest charged on U.S. Treasury Securities of comparable maturity on the date the loan is approved. As of May 2001, the annual interest rate is 5 percent.

"Although we are in the early stages of 2001 crops, advance planning for storage will mean one less decision to be made at harvest, allowing time to develop progressive, potentially lucrative marketing strategies," Street concluded.

For detailed applicant and facility eligibility criteria regarding FSFLs or to schedule an appointment to file an application, contact the Gray Co. FSA office at (806) 665-6561 or visit <http://www.fsa.usda.gov> on the World Wide Web.

String of children killed in recent farm accidents

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — Tom Williams raised four sons on the dairy farm where he spent his own childhood. To him, injuries are an unfortunate part of growing up on a farm.

But Williams has mixed feelings about the criminal charges brought against the father of a 3-year-old boy who fell from the bucket of a front-end loader and was run over.

"It's a sad situation," said Williams, 64. "People have to do what's correct by the laws. And parents have to use an abundance of caution."

James Samuel Fisher was to be arraigned this month in Perry County on charges of child endangerment, reckless endangerment and reckless driving in the March 29 death of his son, John Wesley Fisher.

Fisher's lawyer declined to talk about the case, and Perry County District Attorney R. Scott Cramer did not return several calls.

While Williams and other central Pennsylvania farmers question the criminal charges, they are stunned by John Wesley Fisher's death and those of two other toddlers in recent farm accidents.

A 2-year-old boy was run over by a plowing disc in Chambersburg on April 25 as his father started a tractor attached to the implement. The same day, a 2-year-old boy in Lebanon County was crushed after falling from a horse-drawn wagon that his 6-year-old brother was driving. The boy's father and another brother had been walking alongside, clearing stones from a field.

"All the farmers have learned from these accidents," Williams said. "It's a tough way to learn."

Nationally in 1999, the last year for which there are complete statistics available, 104 children died in farm-related accidents, mostly involving machinery, according to the National Children's Center for Rural and Agricultural Health in Minneapolis. Of the 30 fatalities on Pennsylvania farms in 1999, about one-third involved children younger than 10.

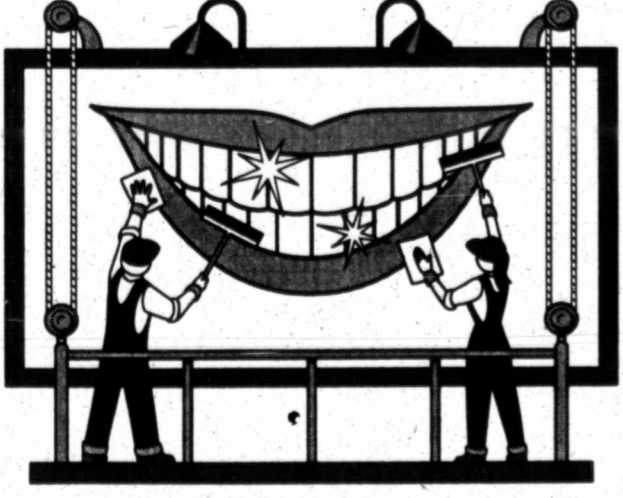

Ensuring the safety of children on farms is a matter that the law leaves mainly to families. While farm safety experts questioned about the Pennsylvania deaths stopped short of calling for new laws, they said parents need to keep the youngest children away from farm machinery.

The U.S. Labor Department classifies farming as a hazardous occupation, which bars children who have not reached their 16th birthday from operating machinery on farms not owned by their families. But no similar restrictions are imposed on children working on their families' farms, nor are there limits on the number of hours that they may work there.

"No other hazardous industry allows anyone under 18 years old even onsite, but because this also happens to be a place where people live, they're there," said Malcolm Legault, a research associate for agricultural safety at Penn State University.

Alan Eubank, vice president, and Dean Burger, director, both of Panhandle-Plains Federal Land Bank Association, display a $2.45 million stock retirement during a recent stockholders' meeting.

Panhandle-Plains FLBA convenes for annual stockholders meeting

AMARILLO — Panhandle-Plains Federal Land Bank Association recently held its annual stockholders meeting at the Ambassador Hotel in Amarillo. The facility was filled again this year with some 200 borrowers, family members, guests and staff.

Chairman Jerry Oswalt presented the Board's report which highlighted accomplishments for the association in 2000. The year began with a $1 million patronage payment and a 35 basis point reduction in interest rates. A reduction in stock to the minimum requirement of 2% or $1,000 per loan was approved in December. This resulted in a $2.45 million distribution to stockholders to be paid after the first of the year.

Another interest rate reduction was approved in December, also to be effective in January 2001. These rate reductions coupled with the recent drop in overall rates brought the six-month variable below 6 percent. CEO Robert R. Williams Jr. provided the association's management report for the year. He reviewed the financial reports and emphasized to the audience that the association was well positioned to weather the rough conditions facing agriculture.

Stockholders re-elected Oswalt of Abernathy to Place 7, Wayne Garrett of Gruver to Place 2, and Walter "Rusty" Henson of Quitaque to Place 9. Entertainment was provided by the Country and Western group "Blue Prairie" from Lubbock.

Headquartered in Amarillo, Panhandle-Plains FLBA is a member owned lending cooperative providing longterm mortgages in a 17 county region of the panhandle and northern south plains. The association has approximately $167 million in loans outstanding to farmers, ranchers, agribusiness and rural homeowners. Offices are located in Amarillo, Pampa, Perryton and Plainview.

BASKETBALL

TORONTO (AP) — Take that, Allen.

Vince Carter had an answer for what "The Answer" did in Game 2, scoring 50 points and setting a playoff record for most 3-pointers in a half with eight as Toronto beat Philadelphia 102-78 Friday night for a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal series.

Iverson scored 54 in Game 2, but Carter doesn't want this series to become a two-man shootout.

"Not at all, not at all," Carter said. "He's a great player. He can do it night-in and night-out. So I'm not going to try to get into a 50 contest. I don't think I'm ready for that yet."

He was, however, ready on this night.

Carter made his first eight 3-point attempts before pulling up and missing from 26 feet with about four minutes remaining in the second quarter. Carter had 34 points at halftime, five short of the NBA record for points in a half set by Sleepy Floyd of Golden State in 1987.

Flashback

1981: Pampa defeated Portales, N.M. 15-7, 15-3 in a high school girls' volleyball match.

Carla Rogers and Paula Fulton led the service attack for the Lady Harvesters, who improved to 12-3 for the season.

The team is coached by Lynn Wolfe.

DFB takes over first in Optimist 11-12 League

PAMPA — Duncan, Fraser & Bridges Insurance Agency moved into undisputed possession of first place in the Optimist Cal Ripken 11-12 League behind the pitching of Matthew Trusty by shutting out Glo-Valve Service 5-0 Friday.

Trusty struck out 13, walked five and gave up four hits, throwing 127 pitches in a complete-game masterpiece over previously-unbeaten Glo-Valve. Glo-Valve had runners on base in every inning, but left all 10 stranded as Trusty was tough with runners in scoring position.

DFB's Jerrod Bivins was the leading hitter in the game with two hits. Luke Raber, who had the only other hit for DFB, made the defensive play of the game by scooping up a bad throw to first base to nip a Glo-Valve runner.

In the bottom of the first inning, Chris Smith and Trusty walked. Bivins loaded the bases with his first hit.

A throwing error on a ball hit by Brandon Crook netted two runs for DFB. Raber singled home Bivins and Cody Wood walked to load the bases again. The fourth run of the inning scored when Colby Greenhouse was hit by a pitch.

Glo-Valve wasted hits by Jarron Clark, Aaron Carr, Craig Crowell and Jonathan Carr, leaving runners in scoring position during the game.

In the fifth inning, the winners added an insurance run when Trusty was safe on an error, moved to second on an infield out and scored on a throwing error.

Glo-Valve loaded the bases in the sixth, but Trusty struck out the last batter on a full count to end the game.

Robbie Dixon, Brett Ferrell and Jonathan Carr pitched for Glo-Valve. Dixon allowed two hits. He walked three and hit one, allowing three earned runs. Ferrell struck out six and walked one in two innings pitched. He permitted one hit. Jonathan Carr struck out four and walked one in two innings pitched. He allowed one unearned run and no hits.

DFB leads the league with a 4-0-1 record while Glo-Valve's season record drops to 4-1.

PAMPA — Duncan, Fraser & Bridges defeated Cyber Net by a score of 16-3 in 11-12 baseball action last week at Optimist Park.

Chris Smith led DFB hitters with two singles, a double, triple and a run-batted in. Matt Trusty knocked in five runs with a homer and triple. Others with hits were Drew Williams with two singles, a double, one RBI; Luke Raber two singles and one RBI; Colby Greenhouse two singles and two RBI; Jerrod Bivins one single.

Shavious Kelley led Cyber Net with a pair of singles. Jacob Davis, Kyle Wheat and Ryan Adams had one single each.

Winning pitcher was Brandon Crook, who gave up one run on four hits while striking out six in three innings.

Chase Harris pitched one inning and gave up two runs on two hits while striking out two and walking two.

PAMPA — Cabot defeated Rotary 14-6 in an 11-12 league game last week.

Shane Davis knocked in two runs for Cabot with a triple and two singles. Alex Torres and Bradley Johnson had three singles each while Aaron Pepper and Nick Dudley had two singles each; Dakota Gowin, Cesar Holguin and Skyler James one single each.

Rotary's leading hitters were Michael Robinson double and single, Marcos Campos double and single, and Daniel Heare two singles.

Bradley Johnson was the winning pitcher for Cabot. He gave up one run on one hit in three innings while striking out eight and walking two. Alex Torres and Dakota Gowin also pitched.

Torres pitched two innings, giving up four runs on five hits while striking out two and walking four.

Gowin pitched one inning and gave up one run on two hits while striking out two and walking one.

Copeland and Tanner Dyson combined to shut out Bill Allison Auto 10-0. Copeland, the winning pitcher, didn't allow a hit while striking out six in two innings on the mound.

Dyson also went two innings and didn't allow a hit while striking out four and walking two.

Justin Sealman led the Celanese hitting attack with two singles and two runs-batted-in.

Taylor Smith had a single and RBI; Colby Copeland single and two RBI; Michael Davis and Russell Dougless one single each.

PAMPA — In 11-12 action last week, Celanese pitchers Colby

'The Rookie' at The Ballpark

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Scenes are scheduled to be filmed today through Tuesday for the upcoming Disney movie, "The Rookie," that tells the story of Jim Morris, a former high school baseball coach in Texas who won a spot on a major league roster at the age of 35.

Fans attending the Rangers' game against Cleveland on Tuesday will have a chance to be in the crowd scenes, which will occur after the game and last about two hours.

The scenes filmed at The Ballpark in Arlington will portray Morris' major-league debut, which was made Sept. 18, 1999, against the Rangers. He faced one batter, Royce Clayton, striking him out.

Actor Dennis Quaid plays Morris. Quaid will be filmed running in from the visitors' bullpen to the mound during the middle of the seventh inning.

Morris missed most of the 2000 season because of injuries and retired earlier this year. He is scheduled to throw out the first pitch on Wednesday.

Free throw champion

SAN ANTONIO — Ashley Derington's accuracy from the foul line didn't go unnoticed this season. In fact, she received a state award for her marksmanship.

Texas Association of Basketball Coaches named Derington as the 2000-2001 State High School Girls' Free Throw Champion.

Derington, a member of the Pampa Lady Harvesters' basketball squad, was presented with the award during May 3 ceremonies in San Antonio.

The award was based on Derington's free throw percentage during the season, which was 87 percent. She averaged 7 points a game for the Lady Harvesters.

Just a junior, Derington has the opportunity to win the award again next season.

Derington is the daughter of Teresa Dyson. Her coach was Mark Elms.

Ashley Derington and Pampa coach Mark Elms display her free throw award.

Signups set for softball

PAMPA — City of Pampa Recreation Department will be offering Men's Open and Mixed Open Summer Softball Leagues this summer.

Entry fees or sponsor's fees for teams are $200 per team ($185 if team is currently sanctioned).

The player's fee is $12 per player with a minimum of 11 persons for Men's Open, Women's Open and Men's Masters, and 12 persons for Mixed Open.

Entry deadline is June 8 at 5 p.m. There will be no teams added after this date.

Schedules will be available after 1 p.m. on June 13 at the Recreation Office. Play begins the week of June 18.

Roster forms, fact sheet and by-laws are available at the Recreation Office at 816 S. Hobart between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

If you have any questions or would like information on the Summer Softball Leagues, please contact Shane Stokes at 669-5770 during business hours.

Astros' Hamisch goes on disabled list again

CINCINNATI (AP) — A persistent pain in his pitching arm has landed Pete Hamisch on the disabled list for the second year in a row.

The Cincinnati Reds put their No. 1 starter on the 15-day disabled list

Friday after he had pain on the inside of his forearm, just below the elbow, while throwing in the bullpen.

Long reliever Jim Brower will start in his place Sunday against the Houston Astros, who weren't sure whether the switch would be to their advantage.

Hamisch is 6-2 in 10 career starts against Houston, but was hit hard as he tried to work through the elbow tendinitis this season. Brower has never faced the Astros.

"If a guy is sore enough to be on the disabled list, you'd rather face him then," Astros manager Larry Dierker said. "He's been tough on us."

A couple of hours after Hamisch threw in the bullpen Friday, a thunderstorm moved in and forced postponement of the Astros-Reds game.

It will be made up Saturday as part of a doubleheader.

The Reds called up first baseman D.T. Cromer to take Hamisch's spot on the roster. There's no telling how long they'll be without Hamisch, who has had arm or shoulder problems each of the last three years.

He had tenderness in the elbow when the season started, but was feeling much better in late April. The pain returned this week and was worse Friday.

"Today, it was really bad when I threw on the side," Hamisch said. "It's the same thing."

Galveston answers desperate call for good fishing

By DAVID SIKES
Corpus Christi Caller-Times

SAN LEON, Texas — I'll never look at brown water the same.

The Galveston Bay system, with its seven offshoot bays, is a study in contrast to most any Coastal Bend venue. Instead of shallow seagrass beds and green water, they have... well... they don't have much seagrass and green water.

But that doesn't mean waters of the mid-coast don't inspire optimism and pride.

And why not? Galveston-area anglers are adept at finding fish under conditions that we might consider discouraging, to say the least.

I noticed this attitude almost immediately upon meeting my hosts, Paul Marcaccio and his group of competent guides. My pickup had pushed against a headwind all the way to San Leon, a tiny community at the tip of a peninsula that separates Lower Galveston and Upper Galveston bays. At the end of my journey, I found Marcaccio and Bobby Elliot asleep inside a comfortable waterside trailer they use as a fish camp for clients. "Want some breakfast?" Marcaccio asked. "No thanks," I responded with mock-impatience. "I didn't drive four hours to break bread with you guys. Get up and let's go fishing."

I had met the never-shy Marcaccio about a year ago during a Port O'Connor TroutMasters tournament. He handed me a business card and an open-ended invitation to fish with him someday. I hadn't called until two weeks ago, when fishing was dismal in the Coastal Bend.

I was up front about why I called. I was desperate.

He said things were different in East Bay, where, for the previous week, he had had no trouble enticing big trout to engulf top-water baits in the soupy brine. And he assured me he could replicate this upon my arrival under most conditions. I bit, even though I suspected his pitch was as much salesmanship as it was confidence. What did I have to lose?

Once on his home waters, I was struck by the clamor of commercial fishing activity. Dense mud clouds trailed behind shrimp trawlers while oyster boats circled bamboo stakes, marking reefs, artificial and natural in this unlikely seafood mecca. I tactfully commented on the poor water clarity and asked if the commercial activity was to blame.

Not really, Marcaccio answered. The brown water, in part, was freshwater from the Trinity River, but mostly the result of a persistent six-day hard north wind, he said.

Whatever the cause, the effect did not seem conducive to catching fish this day. But I withheld judgment, as much as my guarded optimism would allow.

After crossing Galveston Bay, we motored along a cordgrass shoreline that from a distance looked a little like parts of St. Charles Bay. But this was East Bay, known as good trout waters.

A half-dozen boats and at least twice as many waders scattered along a two-mile stretch of this east-west shoreline sparked a comment from Marcaccio.

"It's never this crowded. Especially on a weekday," he said. "I guess the word's out."

He shoved the throttle forward and sped eastward toward idler waters. On the easternmost portion of East Bay's north shore is the Anahuac National Wildlife Refuge. We idled up to the Robinson Ditch/Robinson Bayou section of the Anahuac shoreline.

The water temperature was 56 degrees, which, for the Coastal Bend, is too cold for topwater action. But Marcaccio didn't seem concerned. Galveston trout are conditioned to start looking skyward for a meal when water temperatures reach the mid-50s, particularly in cloudy conditions we faced, he said.

Baitfish were present, but not plentiful. I wasn't impressed, because the mullet-rich waters of home hadn't paid off for me during several recent attempts. I probably wouldn't be waist deep in brown water if that weren't true.

For reasons I can't fully explain, muddy-water trout seem to rise most often on darker plugs. Maybe when visibility is low, fish are drawn to the rattle of a lure as much as the vague silhouette of a twitching shadow.

At the end of their lines were a Night Stalker Top Dog (NS), a Top Dog 54 (black with silver sides) and a Purple Demon Top Dog (PD).

Marcaccio said these colors had produced most of the fish for them that week. So I clipped off my Top Dog 808 and replaced it with one of those new Night Stalker Red Head Top Dogs (NSRH).

We lined up perpendicular to the shore and began wading westward. The bottom was semi-firm, with scattered soft spots and scant shell; comfortable to walk. The four of us, which also included Jim Vaughn, had the shoreline covered, from knee-deep waters to depths of 4 1/2 feet.

I lowered my hand into the water to test its clarity. My fingers disappeared quickly.

Before I could fully appreciate how discouraging this appeared, my gaze wheeled toward Elliot in time to witness a splashy replay of what had just happened. It was a good trout, well hooked, that measured about 25 inches.

The sweet sound visited Marcaccio's vicinity next, but it was not to be.

The next three blowups belonged to me, each followed by the sinking feeling that comes from missing three nice trout. Again, I believe the fish were attacking sound with fury, rather than exacting aim with precision.

Vaughn, the tallest of our group, found nothing in deeper water.

For the next two hours, I drew my pleasure - and inspiration - from watching Elliot catch fish.

Midway into this vicarious exercise, I began switching lures. I had decided to defy convention by tying on a bone/chartreuse Top Dog. I don't know the number. It's new.

I caught a respectable trout, just over 20 inches. I was vindicated.

By 3 p.m., we had an impressive mess of fish, none of which measured less than 20 inches.

The next day, Elliot picked up where he had left off. We were joined by Rocky Handrich, who also skunked Marcaccio and Vaughn by catching fish under their noses.

Later, we skipped around near-by Trinity Bay, where our day ended with me tripping over a big rock and soaking my clothes with the cool brown water I'd come to appreciate.

I believe Marcaccio secretly was grateful: My embarrassment had drawn attention away from my fish-lesst.

Rangers fall in 10th to White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — Jose Valentin didn't give up on switch-hitting. And he's not giving up on this season, either, despite his team's early-season struggles and the loss of Frank Thomas.

"Jose is probably the heart of the team," Chicago manager Jerry Manuel said after Valentin delivered his second game-winning hit in three nights as the White Sox beat the Texas Rangers 6-5 in 10 innings. "He's an important leader on the club."

Valentin is also an important power source. He supplied some rare right-handed punch Friday night, homering twice from that side of the plate, including a game-winning solo shot in the 10th.

Of his 123 career homers, Valentin now has eight right-handed.

But giving up on switch-hitting has never entered his mind, even though his batting average is 30 points higher from the left.

"I never said I would quit being a switch hitter," Valentin said.

"This is not the level to try it, especially with the way we've been playing. I've been a switch hitter for eight years. Why try something different?"

His game-winner came off Mike Venafro (1-1) as the White Sox won for the fifth time in six games.

The Rangers have lost 11 of 12 and six straight.

Since he took over as manager for Johnny Oates, Jerry Narron has a 1-6 record.

"For me it is a learning experience," Narron said. "I'm just getting into a routine. It's a change from coaching to managing with the responsibilities."

The White Sox hit four homers for the second straight game since learning that Thomas would miss the season with a torn triceps. The Rangers also had four, all off David Wells, including a two-run, game-tying shot by Ruben Mateo in the ninth.

"I wasn't looking for a homer, just looking for a strike," said Mateo, who's been bothered by headaches and missed four games.

It was Mateo's first homer in nearly a year, since last May 27. Six days later he broke his leg and missed the rest of the season.

Wells walked none and struck out a season-high nine but still couldn't get his first win as a member of the White Sox at Comiskey Park.

Wells, upset with media coverage after he went on his radio show and criticized Thomas for not playing hurt, declined comment on his 126-pitch performance.

Texas Parks and Wildlife launches water safety program

AUSTIN — Contrary to what's portrayed in the movies, drowning victims do not scream and slash when in distress. Like most of the 380 adults and children who drowned in Texas last year, they just go under. Keeping a close watch on persons in or near the water is one of the messages Texas Parks and Wildlife officials are emphasizing as part of an expanded water safety campaign this summer.

Known for promoting boating safety, TPW officials say they recognized the need to expand their awareness campaign to include general water safety. Education materials and public service announcements with the slogan "It Only Takes A Second" will be distributed this month focusing three messages: learn to swim, wear a life jacket, and watch over your family.

"When we encourage people to 'watch over your family' near the water, we're encompassing several messages, including never swim alone, keep a close watch on friends and family in the water, and keep a constant eye on children," said Steve Hall, education director for Texas Parks and Wildlife.

Hall recommends that groups or families assign one person as a lookout to keep a constant watch over both adults and children in or near the water. "It's especially important to be aware of hazards when you're on an open water body like a lake, river or bay," added Hall. "Someone who is a weak swimmer may be in the water at waist level and their next step could be a 10-foot drop-off."

TPW education staff and representatives from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the Texas Department of Health have joined water safety coalitions in Houston, Tarrant County and central Texas to develop consistent water safety messages and produce materials for distribution in each of the metropolitan areas.

"Our primary goal is to work with coalitions to get a consistent water safety message out to the public," said Tim Spice, boating safety coordinator for TPW. "We all individually work to promote water safety, so it makes sense to work together, share information and produce cooperative materials to reach more people."

Practical advice from water rescue experts includes the steps "reach, throw, then row." The first step is to use a rope, tree branch or other object to try to reach the swimmer from shore.

The next step is to throw something buoyant such as a life jacket, inner tube or a plastic foam ice chest. If the first two steps fail, put on a life jacket and row out to the swimmer with a boat or a raft.

"Unfortunately, we see many multiple drowning cases where folks go into the water to rescue a friend or loved one who is drowning and they end up becoming a drowning victim as well," says Dennis Johnston, chief of water safety enforcement. "It's essential that you first try to help the swimmer using the reach, throw and row method. If those steps don't work and you must go into the water because there is no other option, it's essential that you wear a life jacket, take a flotation device for the swimmer, and call for help or alert someone before you head into the water."

This report was submitted by Shelah Cisneros of Texas Parks and Wildlife.

Red Raiders beat Baylor

WACO, Texas (AP) — Kerry Hodges hit two home runs for Texas Tech, which beat Baylor 11-8 on Friday night.

Texas Tech (38-15-1, 18-9-1 Big 12) needs one more win to seal the No. 2 seed in the Big 12 Tournament next week.

Tech's Jason Rainey hit his first career grand slam in the top of the fourth, giving the Red Raiders an 8-4 lead. Baylor (34-19, 16-9) pulled within two in the bottom of the fifth off an RBI double by Chris Durbin and an RBI single by Kelly Shoppach.

But the Red Raiders scored three more insurance runs in the late innings.

Durbin hit his 13th homer for the Bears.

JoLynn Jones and Isaac Silva's mothers are certain to be pleased with the plants they will receive today from their children for Mothers Day. When the plants grow, hers will be able to watch the gift from their children continue to grow as does their love.

MOM is the BEST

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

There are all different kinds of mothers just as there are all different kinds of children. The love of a mother is a special love.

Today is the day when all mothers are honored—Mothers Day. On the second Sunday in May, special tribute is paid to mothers.

Some mothers receive flashy, expensive gifts while others receive homemade ones. No matter what gift is received by mothers today, it is sent with love from their children.

Lamar Elementary students worked very hard to get their homemade gifts completed in time for this special day. Very proud of their mothers, the small children learned from dedicated and caring teachers the importance of honoring their mothers on this special day.

First graders planted seedling plants in detergent scoops for them to grow into full-grown flowers for their mothers. The children's excitement was reflected in their flashing eyes as they described their projects.

Small wheels were attached to the scoops under the watchful guidance of the teachers to convey a wheelbarrow effect. Then, brightly decorated ribbons were attached to the handles.

Inked hand prints of third graders who are students at Lamar are finding their way to their mothers today. A poem for the mothers accompanies the hand print.

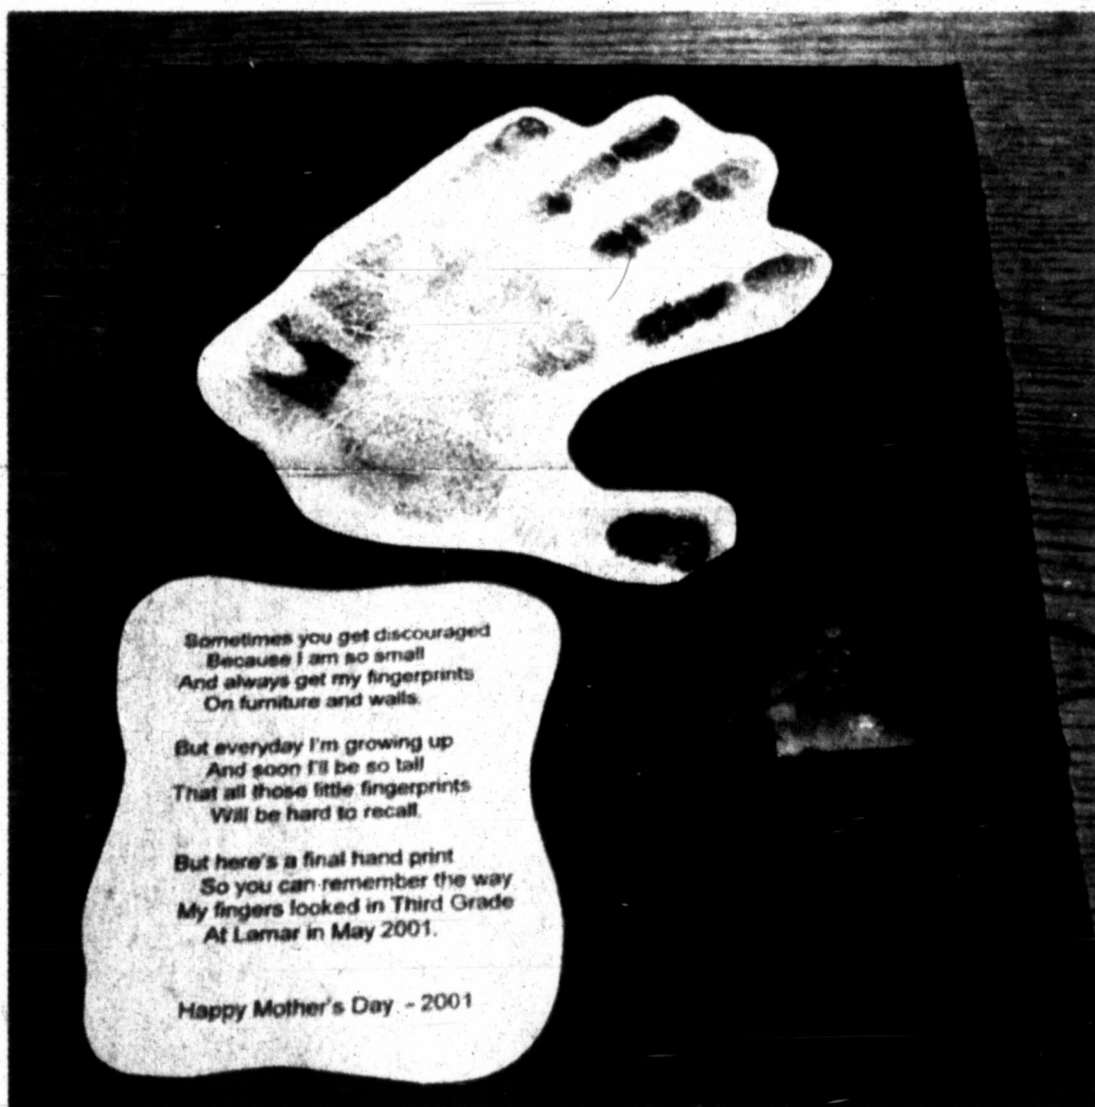

Children are learning how to give to the mothers and recognize their mothers. The wise mothers exclaim their appreciation of the gifts made by their children.

Mothers of all ages are getting phone calls, flowers, cards and many other gifts as they are recognized today. Hugs and an "I love you" make it all very, very worthwhile. No matter how old a child gets, that is the best gift a mother can have.

While many people no longer have their mothers, today is the day to pay tribute to show her that she performed her most important job so well—raising her children.

Happy Mothers Day to all mothers.

Sometimes you get discouraged
Because I am so small
And always get my fingerprints
On furniture and walls.

But everyday I'm growing up
And soon I'll be so tall
That all those little fingerprints
Will be hard to recall.

But here's a final hand print
So you can remember the way
My fingers looked in Third Grade
At Lamar in May 2001.

Happy Mother's Day - 2001

Shawn Hawthorne, a third grader at Lamar School, proudly displays his ink handprint and poem he made for his mother for Mothers Day. She is sure to always cherish the gift from him on this special day. At left is the poem which the third graders gave to their mothers to let them know of their love for them.

Family transplants rock collection, rose garden

My grandmother collected rocks ... little shiny ones, round river rocks and small boulders. My mother collects rocks ... garden variety, precious and semi-precious. I inherited the family rock collecting gene. Like my mother, when I moved from the farm I took my purse, makeup and the favorite spatula. An accumulation of 53 and two generations of stuff remained in the house. As a third generation prepares to call this house home, the day of reckoning arrived. The furniture and family treasures found new homes. The last and heaviest load remained. The family rocks. Armed with strong nephews and a flat-bed trailer, the hard work began. The rock garden, pathways and the pond's edge became just another pile of rocks. Stripped of their stone boundaries, the roses, sage and lilies looked naked. Picking up my spade, I broke all the rules of transplanting. Fear gripped me as I laboriously pried up roses with canes the size of half dollars. One rose, an engagement present from my husband, towered over me. Vicious thorns warned me to keep my distance. Long-handled loppers furnished protection from its huge thorns. In moments, the canes lay safely on the ground. The oldest rose, planted 80 years ago, worried me. Could it tolerate any more torture? Not willing to leave her behind, I released her hold to the earth. Shorn of her finery, she took her place in the transplant bucket. A tedious chore grew into a small family reunion. My mother's children, grandchildren and great-grandchild joined in the rock-totting, plant-digging melee. Water, frozen in plastic cola bottles, and cookies from the freezer satisfied our beverage and snack needs. The baby giggled and cooed at the wild bunch.

Pampa Retired Teachers
District 16 of the Texas Retired Teachers Association (TRTA) held its Spring Leadership Training Conference in Amarillo May 2. The purpose of the conference was to update members on business that was transacted during the 48th Annual TRTA State Convention held recently at Austin, and to train local unit officers for the upcoming 2001-02 year. Keynote speaker for the Leadership Conference was Dr. Myron Koehler, president of Texas Retired Teachers Association. Founded in 1953, TRTA is the largest association in Texas that works exclusively for public school and higher education retirees, and is composed of over 45,000 members who continue to be involved in local public school education and the continued well being of their communities. In the last 11 years, members of TRTA have contributed nearly 60 million hours of volunteer service in their communities in Texas. In addition, during the last three years, local units throughout the state have participated in a statewide TRTA project entitled "Children's Book Project." Working through various local channels TRTA has placed over 38,000 books in the hands of individual Texas children. These books — for children to take home as their own personal property — were given to those who otherwise might not have a book to call their own. Attending the conference from Pampa Retired Teachers Association were Willie Mae Mangold, Marjorie Penn, Lynn Harwood and Essie Mae Walters. Pampa Retired Teachers meets the third Monday of each month from September through May at Pampa Senior Citizens Center, 500 W. Francis. For more information, call Mangold at 669-7259. ## Thank You...

I would like to thank everyone who helped in my campaign for Mayor. Without your encouragement, commitment, and monetary support I could not have accomplished my goal. So many have shared in this effort. I will do my best to represent the citizens of this community with excellence. Let's work together to build a brighter future.

Sincerely,
Lonny Robbins

At the movies with 'A Knight's Tale'

By ANTHONY BREZNICAN
AP Entertainment Writer

You've gotta love a movie set during the Middle Ages that still works in product placement for Nike.

Sure, "A Knight's Tale" is set in the 14th century, but it takes its sensibilities from the 1980s, thanks mostly to a soundtrack filled with arena-rock songs like Bachman-Turner Overdrive's "Takin' Care of Business."

Hearthrob actor Heath Ledger plays William, a peasant squire to an aging knight. William dreams of competing in jousting tournaments, and when his boss drops dead from one too many lance-blows to the head, the squire donnes the ill-fitting honor and competes in his place.

The problem is that peasants are forbidden to participate in the competitions, so William must lie and make up evidence of aristocratic heritage. Most of the suspense and comedy comes from his desperate efforts to hide his real identity while his dimwitted squire friends keep forgetting to treat him like a knight.

The plot recalls another great tradition of the 1980s: the charismatic, scam-orchestrating youth undone by his own tricks. Think "Ferris Bueller Goes Medieval."

Whether you enjoy it depends on what you expect. Purists may roll their eyes to the ceiling minutes into the movie when tournament spectators begin dancing to Queen's sports anthem "We Will Rock You."

Then there's the scene where a blacksmith (Laura Fraser) inscribes the young knight's new armor with her professional mark — which happens to look exactly like a Nike swoosh.

But this is an ideal summer movie: lighthearted, action-packed and full of guilty pleasures.

The jousting scenes are staged with zeal and, unlike the grim fighting epic "Gladiator," the performances constantly aim for the funnybone.

Mark Addy of "The Full Monty" and Alan Tudyk are amiable as Ledger's fellow squires and confidants, now reduced to slaving for him. They're all furious bluster and slapstick, a sort of Three Stooges for the Dark Ages.

But it's Paul Bettany who steals the show as an unemployed writer who teams with the erroneous knight-errant to help perpetuate the fraud by forged documents and exaggerated tales of heroism. The writer's name? Geoffrey Chaucer, of course.

Here, the revered author of The Canterbury Tales is a kind of literary version of wrestling announcer Michael Buffer (known for his booming "Let's get ready to rumble!") introducing his knight to the audience before jousting matches, he tells bogus stories of William's battles during the Crusades and identifies him with titles such as "the defender of Italian virginity."

The film follows a recipe familiar to almost any Disney cartoon: Take one goodhearted hero, give him some odd-looking comical sidekicks and have him face off against a black-hearted villain (Rufus Sewell) for the love of a fair maiden.

In this case, Shannyn Sossamon is the maiden, a noblewoman who dresses like Jackie-O at a rave, in sexed-up retro suits, or like one of the Go-Gos, in ragged punk.

Writer-director-producer Brian Koppelman (an Oscar winner for his "L.A. Confidential" screenplay) sometimes derails his medieval story with the "Super Sounds of the '80s," but it's an interesting experiment.

Most of the time, it works — except when the characters sing along.

The Columbia Pictures release is rated PG-13 for bloodless violence and brief nudity. Running time: 132 minutes.

Motion Picture Association of America rating definitions:

G — General audiences. All ages admitted.

GARDEN

The trailer looked like a small mountain on wheels. As the last vehicle pulled out of the drive, I thought: The Beverly Hillbillies go rock hunting. A state trooper stopped his ticket writing and gawked at the stone caravan.

The fleet arrived at my house. Debbie, my sister-in-law, attempted to artfully place the stones. The young mob tossed out rocks faster than she could arrange them. Tired and starving, a promised hot meal sped their exertion.

Beaten headless by hail, two statues guard the mini-mountain in my front lawn. A lion crouches under the lilac bush. One more piece of statuary and the yard will look like a concrete zoo.

If the roses survive, Root Stimulator receives the credit. This magic potion is my planting mainstay.

Happy Mother's Day! To my sweet mother, I love you.

Mothers and Mothers-in-Laws, Step Right Up and Be Loved

DEAR ABBY: Although you don't know it, you were very much involved in making my Mother's Day special last year. My son's wife, Maureen, saw a letter in your column that inspired her to write one to me. Maureen and my son Tom met in high school and have been happily married for 33 years. Never in all that time have Maureen and I had a disagreement or argument of any kind.

I've enclosed the letter she sent to me. It brought tears to my eyes. "Dear Kate: When I saw Dear Abby's column on Mother's Day, I thought of you. I want you to know how blessed I feel to have you for a mother-in-law. In fact, I rarely use that term because of its negative connotations. I usually refer to you as 'my husband's mother.'"

"You have always shown me kindness and understanding, especially during some difficult times. You have never criticized me, even when we disagreed. And I surely appreciate the love you have shown me. I have always felt being a part of the Olsen family — as one of you, rather than an in-law."

"Even if I hadn't known you as well as I do, I would deduce how wonderful you are just through the dear, witty, generous son you raised."

"Thank you for every weed you've pulled, for every shirt you've ironed, every thoughtful note you've written, every kind word you spoke when my parents died, every hug you've given me, every day of baby-sitting Kristin and Tim, and for all you've done for me."

"Thank you for all of this, Kate, and most of all, for loving me as you do. Love and thanks. Maureen"

KATE OLSEN,

Dear Abby

Is written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanne Phillips.

INDIANHEAD PARK, ILL. DEAR KATE: You have a right to be proud. That letter illustrates the ideal loving relationship that can be shared by DILs and MILs. I hope it inspires others to emulate you. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: My 37-year-old daughter, Norma, sent me the following testimonial for Mother's Day. It touched me so profoundly that I wanted to share it with you. DORA BOYD, EDGEWATER, FLA.

DEAR MRS. BOYD: Thank you for sending it. I do, indeed, want to share it with my readers:

Dear Mother: As I grew up... You fostered my independence. You allowed me to decide what to wear, what friends to choose, what boys to date, what foods to eat — and how much. You trusted my judgment, even when it differed from yours. Although our views differ on women's issues, fashion, etc., you displayed confidence in my decisions.

... You never shamed me for being a bed wetter until I was 6 — and for that, I'll always be grateful. ... You worked backbreaking jobs to give my brother and me music lessons, concerts, plays and educational trips.

... You taught me about reproduction and birth control. I'm very proud of you for that. My girlfriends cannot say that about their mothers.

... You admitted that you were not perfect, enabling me to safely question your beliefs, opinions and actions — and draw my own conclusions.

And now that I'm an adult, I want to thank you for always being there for me. You are a wonderful role model, and I am lucky to have you for my mother. I love you very much.

NORMA

DEAR READERS: Does Norma's mother sound familiar? If the answer is yes, today's the day to express your appreciation to your mother. If you aren't comfortable composing a letter of your own to give to Mom today, clip this and take it to her. Tell her you recognized her in this column. Give her a big hug and a thank-you — and don't be surprised if you see tears of happiness in her eyes. Happy Mother's Day.

Liability causes schools to abandon senior trips

By JENARA KOCKS BURGESS
Wichita Falls Times Record News

WICHITA FALLS, Texas — Iowa Park Superintendent Mike Caplinger has fond memories of his school-sponsored senior class trip with 43 classmates to Colorado for a week in 1965 when he graduated from Idalou, Texas, near Lubbock.

He remembers having a lot of fun as they visited Colorado Springs and Denver.

But such trips are becoming rare for senior students at North Texas and Southern Oklahoma high schools.

"Now there are so many legal implications. Those were the good 'ol days when things were more innocent," he said.

Senior classes at Wichita Falls, Iowa Park, Vernon and Big Pasture, Okla., schools do not take school-sponsored senior trips. Meanwhile, Megargel and Byers seniors still take overnight trips, while senior classes at other schools such as Holliday take only a day trip.

Several school superintendents and principals said the main reason the trips have been phased out is the liability involved. Other school leaders said that as far as they know, they have never had a school-sponsored senior trip.

"Schools are unwilling to take liability of trips like that anymore. If they are not an educational need, it's hard to try to get sponsors who will accept the liability. I think a lot of kids are doing them on their own that are not school-related. When you consider what most high school students want to do, school rules are limiting factors," Caplinger said.

Administrators of schools that still do have school-sponsored senior trips said class members raise money from two years, starting in their junior year, or up to six years, starting in seventh grade, for their trips, and the trips are well-chaperoned by teachers and parents.

Megargel Superintendent Fred Farnsworth said the school's senior class, which is usually six students on average, takes a school-sponsored trip at the end of the school year.

Last year, Megargel students went to New Braunfels

Byers' senior class of 13 took a flight from the Dallas-Fort Worth airport to New Orleans for a few days during spring break, said Superintendent Mike Priddy.

Other senior classes have taken trips to the DFW area, Colorado, Disney World in Florida and Cancun, Mexico.

Priddy said the senior class has taken a school-sponsored senior trip for the past 22 years that he has been superintendent, and he is pretty sure they took trips before he started working there.

Even though most students over the years have participated in the trips, some opt not to because of their jobs or other reasons, Priddy said.

"Kids have more exposure to the world now. The novelty is not what it once was. Society has become more mobile," he said.

In Holliday, seniors take a day trip to various locations such as the DFW area or Oklahoma City area, said high school principal Kent Lemons. This year, more than 70 Holliday seniors visited Grapevine Mills mall, Joe's Crab Shack, the Omni Theatre and a minor league hockey game.

Officials of four schools that don't have senior trips — Wichita Falls, Iowa Park, Vernon and Big Pasture — all said they hadn't had school-sponsored senior trips for as long as they had worked there, and they said they didn't know why they didn't have the tradition at their schools.

But like Caplinger, Lemons, Priddy and Arbury Ritter, Big Pasture superintendent, all said they thought the amount of liability involved in taking a group of students on an overnight trip had a lot to do with why many schools have discontinued the practice.

Lemons said his class of 1980, which went to Los Angeles, was the last Holliday senior class to take an overnight trip.

"Liability has a lot to do with it. I don't know if the dangers are greater or it just seems like they are," he said.

The last school Seay worked for, Hamlin, Texas, High School, still took overnight senior trips when he left.

The last trip Seay helped with was to San Antonio.

"I worried every time we took a trip, but nothing bad ever happened. You get ulcers because you're so worried about what could happen," he said.

Farms seek answers from equine experts in foals' mysterious deaths

By STEVE BAILEY
Associated Press Writer

LXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — More than 1,000 farm managers, breeders and veterinarians gathered to hear scientists and equine experts offer the latest information on an illness that is killing foals and causing mares to lose fetuses.

They learned that scientists have given the baffling syndrome a name — Mare Reproductive Loss Syndrome — but left the meeting with more questions than answers.

"We're still just taking our best guess here as to what exactly is going on," said Claiborne Farm manager Gus Koch, who over the past week has had one stillborn foal and 10 early-term mare miscarriages on his Paris farm. "But we got some good information, and I'm hopeful that this thing is going to run its course sometime soon."

For the first time, researchers acknowledged the illness may not be limited to Kentucky's horse farms. Participants mentioned similar cases in Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania, though they may be occurring on a smaller scale, said David Powell, equine epidemiologist for the University of Kentucky's Gluck Equine Research Center.

The number of dead foals reported to the university's Livestock Diagnostic Center has decreased in recent days. Since April 28, a total of 382 dead foals or miscarried fetuses have been reported to the center. The numbers dropped from 28 on Tuesday to 15 on Thursday, said Dr. Lenn Harrison, the diagnostic center's director of veterinary pathology.

"Although it's premature to say that things are getting better, it is an encouraging sign," Harrison said.

Researchers theorize that Kentucky's warm, dry spring followed by hard freezes and subsequent drought-like conditions have fostered the growth of a fungus or toxin in grasses eaten by horses.

Several teams of researchers are focusing their efforts in that area, collecting samples of fescue, bluegrass and clover from area farms and testing them for high levels of several mold-based mycotoxins.

Scientists also will continue to collect and analyze blood, tissue, soil and hay samples until a cause can be determined.

"We're not ruling out anything until we build a better, more complete picture," Powell said.

Early estimates indicate Kentucky's $1.2 billion thoroughbred industry could see a 30 percent to 40 percent reduction in the number of horses born in 2002 and losses of hundreds of millions of dollars over the next several years.

Kentucky normally produces about 10,000 thoroughbred foals each year, about one-third of those born in the United States.

Senate compromise bill cuts top tax rate to 36 percent

By CURT ANDERSON
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal offered by the Senate's top Republican and Democratic tax writers would reduce the top income tax rate to 36 percent over several years instead of the 33 percent wanted by President Bush.

The bill by Senate Finance Committee Chairman Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, and Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., also would lower the bottom rate from 15 percent to 10 percent immediately, said congressional sources who spoke on condition of anonymity. Other income tax rates also would be cut gradually. The current top rate is 39.6 percent.

In his 10-year, $1.6 trillion package, Bush had sought to lower the top income tax rate to 33 percent — a key point for GOP conservatives. But the lower overall tax cut of $1.35 trillion over 11 years approved as part of the congressional budget, plus pressure from Republican moderates and Democrats, forced a more modest cut in the top rate.

President Bush said Friday he wanted Congress to have the final package on his desk by Memorial Day. "The Congress needs to act. I'm confident, if they have the will to do so, that they can get this done by Memorial Day," Bush told reporters at the White House. "Let's get the tax relief done and do it quickly."

The Senate Finance Committee planned to begin work Tuesday on its version of the legislation.

The Grassley-Baucus measure is likely to undergo changes in the committee, on the Senate floor and in negotiations with the House. But it represents the first real effort to bridge gaps between Democrats, who largely oppose Bush's tax cut as skewed to the wealthy, and most Republicans who favor the president's original plan.

According to the sources, the bill also includes a provision sought by Sen. Olympia Snowe, R-Maine, and other moderates to let lower-income people who pay no income taxes benefit from the child tax credit. The plan also would gradually double the per-child credit from $500 to $1,000, as Bush proposed.

The bill also would gradually reduce and eventually repeal the estate tax, another cherished goal of Republicans. But the measure would also quickly raise the current $675,000 exemption so the tax would affect fewer small business owners and farmers than it currently does.

In addition, the measure would ease the marriage penalty paid by millions of two-income couples, similar to another Bush proposal. It also includes a popular retirement provision that would raise contribution limits for 401(k) plans and individual retirement accounts, the sources said.

The budget just passed by Congress sets a May 18 deadline for the Finance Committee to send a tax relief bill to the Senate floor under rules that limit amendments and debate time. In addition, the budget measure forbids a filibuster on the tax bill, meaning it would take just 51 votes to pass.

The House, meanwhile, has already approved the bulk of Bush's $1.6 trillion tax package in virtually the same form as the president proposed. Differences between the two versions will have to be worked out in a House-Senate conference.

Newsmakers

Esther Marie Hudson will graduate from Pampa Christian School at 7 p.m., Wednesday, May 16 in the church auditorium of Bible Baptist Church. Her oldest brother, Philip Hudson, missionary to Uganda, Africa, will be preaching.

Esther was born March 18, 1984, at Farmington, N.M., and is the fifth child of Pastor Bob and Marilyn Hudson.

She has been involved in her school and church. Her honors, accomplishments and activities include student monitor, volleyball, piano, singing, bus ministry, nursing home ministry and Sunday School teaching. In addition, she delivers papers for The Pampa News.

After graduation, she plans to pursue a degree in world missions and elementary education at Oklahoma Baptist College in Oklahoma City.

The United States Achievement Academy recently announced United States National Award Winners from the area.

The following students were chosen USAA award winners in various categories: Kimberly Porter, Sarah Porter, Adam Wright, Doug Warren, and Leslie McWilliams, all of Pampa High School, "Honor Roll."

In addition, Kimberly Porter earned All-American Scholar, a USAA program open to students who achieve a 3.3 or higher grade point average.

The Academy bestows USAA awards upon fewer than 10 percent of all American high school students. The PHS students were nominated for the awards by Starla Kindle, a counselor at PHS. All USAA award-winners will appear in the USAA Official Yearbook, published nationally. USAA All-American Scholars are named in the All-American Scholar Yearbook.

The Academy selects USAA winners (and Scholars) based upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors and other qualified sponsors. Other criteria includes academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit and dependability.

Kimberly and Sarah Porter are the daughters of Rod and Kelly Porter of Pampa and are the granddaughters of Jim Porter of Granbury and Bill and Wynema Jackson of Wewoka, Okla. Kimberly is also an award winner in Leadership and Student Council and Sarah was named for inclusion in the 2000-01 Who's Who Among American High School Students. As a Who's Who student, she is eligible for a scholarship in the amount of $1,000. Who's Who is a publication dedicated to recognizing outstanding students and rewarding academic excellence.

Wright is the son of Tracy and Loyce Wright of Pampa and is the grandson of Virginia Cunningham and Rex Wright, both of Borger.

Warren is the son of Ron and Barbara Warren of Pampa.

McWilliams is the daughter of Betty and Dwayne Meadows of Pampa and Jim and Martha McWilliams of Amarillo and is the granddaughter of Georgia Lee of Tulia and Cecil and Jean Meadows of Wheeler.

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. — Shanna M. Buck, daughter of Mike and Shirley Buck of Pampa, is among 12 high school seniors from the panhandle selected to receive a college scholarship in the amount of $8,000 from the Education Fund for Children of Phillips Petroleum Company Employees.

This year Phillips awarded 44 scholarships and named 30 alternates based upon the total number of applications received. A committee of independent educators selected the winners based upon scholastic record, future promise and financial need.

tic record, future promise and financial need.

Each winner will receive a $2,000 award, renewable yearly based on scholastic achievement, for a four-year scholarship totaling $8,000.

The scholarship fund was established in 1939 to aid children of employees of Phillips and its subsidiaries in obtaining higher education.

Buck is a senior at Pampa High School.

CANYON — West Texas A&M University's Gamma Beta Phi National Honor Society inducted 85 students during the spring semester.

Membership in the campus-wide honor society is limited to students who have completed at least 30 semester hours, are in the top 20 percent of their class and have a declared major.

Gamma Beta Phi is a service organization that is active in the campus and community through various projects, according to Pamela Lockwood, Gamma Beta Phi adviser.

Students inducted into the honor society include: Kimberly A. Clark, junior nursing major; Kevin L. Coe, senior management major; Jamisen E. Hancock, senior management major; and Jinnifer L. Hogan, sophomore mathematics major, all of Pampa; Lisa R. Hill, senior generic special education major; and Shauna Wilson, senior kinesiology major, both of Canadian.

CANYON — Stefan Carlton Bressler of Pampa was recently awarded a scholarship during the University Honors Banquet at West Texas A&M University at the Alumni Banquet Facility on campus.

Bressler, a graduate student in general business-marketing, received a

Shanna M. Buck

Focus on Education Scholarship.

MANHATTAN, Kan. — Spring commencement ceremonies were recently held at Kansas State University.

Approximately 2,500 degrees were awarded. Students receiving diplomas include: Nathan Paul Yowell, bachelor of science degree, of Pampa; and Stacy Lynn Bertrand, master of science degree, of Groom.

CLARENDON — Clarendon College recently announced its honor graduates for the 2001 spring semester. The honor graduates were recognized during 97th annual commencement ceremonies recently.

The honor graduates include: Dara D'Ann Whatley of Groom and Melissa Krueger of McLean.

PORTALES, N.M. — Floyd H. White of Dallas is among 324 graduates at Eastern New Mexico University this spring. White was awarded a bachelor of science degree in biology.
