Officials hope lower speed limits improve North Texas air quality

DALLAS (AP) — North Texas transportation officials have created the country's first plan to lower speed limits as part of a plan to improve air quality. Texas Department of Transportation workers have spent much of June placing hundreds of new speed limit signs — 65 mph on state and interstate highways, 60 mph on freeways and toll roads — in hopes that lower speeds will improve the air quality. The North Texas Clean Air Coalition agreed to lower limits to reduce pollution-causing emissions because vehicles discharge disproportionately larger amounts of nitrogen oxide at very high and very low speeds.

Drug dealing gets woman 60-years

Witness: Woman used daughter, 13, to carry drugs for her

By KATE B. DICKSON
Associate Publisher

LIPSCOMB — A Darrouzett woman who turned down a 15-year prison term on a plea bargain offer was found guilty by a Lipscomb County jury and was sentenced to 60 years in prison by 31st District Judge Steven Emmert. Juanita Bewley, 38, was convicted last week of possession of a controlled substance (methamphetamine) with intent to deliver, said District Attorney Rick Roach. She did not testify.

The jury was out about five and one-half hours Friday in the trial that started Tuesday and ended late Friday night.

Roach said. Because the defense did not ask that the jury sentence that job was left up to the judge.

Roach said the lead prosecutor on the case was David Scott of Perrytown, assistant district attorney pro tem.

"He was the lead on this case," Roach said. "David works really well with law enforcement in that area. He did an excellent job ... there were so many exhibits to keep up with."

Bewley was indicted in February by a grand jury after a tip sent officers from the Panhandle Drug Task Force and the Lipscomb County Sheriff's office to Bewley's home with a search warrant in hand, the district attorney said.

"The drugs were right where the confidential informant said they would be," Roach said. "The officers recovered over 38 grams of methamphetamine. Some were bagged up into eight-ball sizes."

Officers found drug paraphernalia including bags, scales, razor blades and rolling papers in her home, Roach said.

Also found was a "designer drug" containing PCP, morphine and other illegal narcotics.

Roach had praise for the work of Lipscomb County Sheriff's department as well as that of task force officers Bo Lake and Bart Morris, both from the Pampa Police Department. Dallas Hardin, DA's investigator also worked on the case.

Bewley's attorney, Rosendo Rodriguez of Wichita Falls, used a defense which tried to "paint her as a victim of her husband," Roach said. "But we put on evidence they had been estranged for four months at the time of the arrest. Also one of our witnesses testified it was Bewley who dealt the drugs."

The case's most damning evidence, Roach said, came from a witness who testified she had previous drug dealings with (Bewley) who, the witness said, had recruited her to be a drug dealer.

The witness said Bewley called her drug buyers "my guppies," meaning that "they were basically hooked and would keep coming back," Roach said. The witness also said Bewley had used her own 13-year-old daughter as a "mule" to carry drugs in her underclothing. She also said that she had seen Bewley give cocaine to the girl.

The penalty range for the crime is from five-to-99 years or life in prison, Roach said.

When the defense attorney didn't ask for the jury to set the sentence putting that in Judge Emmert's hands, Roach said he and Scott looked at each other and grinned.

"Judge Emmert has made it crystal clear that if someone deals drugs he or she will face the music," Roach said.

The conviction marks the third drug trial this year since Roach took office and it is the third conviction. All have had stiff sentences. The other two were sentenced to 36 years in one case and 60 in the other.

"This is in line with our promise (during the campaign) that we were going to get tough on drugs," Roach said.

Collections Center will open in City Hall

By KATE B. DICKSON
Associate Publisher

When City Manager Bob Eskridge sees people walking the corridors of City Hall all the while looking up at signs above doors, he knows what they are looking for — the hard-to-find water department office.

But that won't last much longer as a new collections center will open on the south end of City Hall that will headquarter the collection duties of the water department, code enforcement and municipal court. The entrance is via the steps next to the drive-in payment window.

The center should open in a couple of weeks and within about two months, with the help of a new, networked computer system, cross-trained employees will be able to conduct the financial business of the three offices, Eskridge said. Vickie Horton, utility billing supervisor, will oversee the center's operation as its cash collections manager.

On Thursday, Horton had her sleeves rolled up as she was staining wood amid the work in progress.

Eskridge said city employees are doing the work they can on the project while the rest has been contracted. It's a job that will cost about $25,000 which will be recouped soon due to the reduction in staff made by combining the offices.

Meter reader Sherry Wallace opens the new door that will be easy to see for citizens coming to the new Collections Center on the south end of City Hall. It will be managed by Vickie Horton, left in background. With her are city staffers Roxie Powers and Mary Kay Nickel.

DA will seek death penalty in deputy killing

When the man charged with killing Hemphill County Deputy Jim Bruce Graham comes to trial, District Attorney Rick Roach will seek the death penalty.

Christopher Chad Britton, 27, who is behind bars in the Gray County Jail, is charged with the June 17 capital murder in the slaying of the 54-year-old officer who wanted to serve Britton with a misdemeanor warrant.

"The grand jury did return an indictment on capital murder," Roach said Thursday afternoon. "This is purely a death penalty case and that's what we intend to do. There's just no way for me to view it as anything but a death penalty case."

Hemphill County Sheriff Dean Butcher said previously that Deputy Graham was on his way to a residence on Red Deer Street in Canadian to arrest Britton when the deputy apparently met Britton's blue 1985 Blazer on the street.

Butcher said the two vehicles stopped, and as Graham got out of his patrol pickup, he was shot in the head by a sawed-off weapon.

Area law enforcement officers searched for Britton who was found that afternoon hiding in a pond on land that was once farmed by his grandfather, the sheriff said.

Britton was moved to Gray County Jail last week for what officials said are safety reasons.

Posters throughout Pampa beckon the public to attend the special tribute.

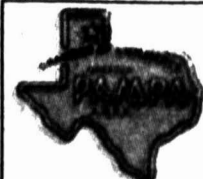

'Men of Valor' ...

Central Baptist Church, Starkweather and Browning, will present "Men of Valor - A Patriotic Celebration," at 11 a.m., Sunday. The public is invited.

The Sunday morning service will be a Tribute to World War II veterans but all veterans are invited. Representatives from the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines will post flags and the United States Air Force Color Guard will present "Colors" and "Old Glory."

The Sanctuary Choir, under the direction of Zan Walker, will sing several selections including "I Pledge Allegiance to the Lamb," "Salute to the Armed Forces" and "God Bless America." A video of colorful landscapes, rivers, mountains, deserts and shorelines will be accompanied by a solo of "America the Beautiful."

The highlight of this year's celebration will be a digital imaging accompanying the song "Fallen But Not Forgotten." Dr. Derrell Monday is Central's pastor.

The center serves two purposes, Eskridge said. "It is part of our looking at cost cutting last year and in looking for ways to improve services."

Originally the center was to go on the second floor, Eskridge said. That would have made it necessary to run a pneumatic tube from the payment window downstairs.

That plan was nixed because it would have damaged the character of the structure that is designated as a historical building.

By moving the offices of code enforcement permits and municipal court downstairs, it meant more space was needed for the combined center.

The center is utilizing some space that belonged to the police department which, in turn, is getting space upstairs where the code enforcement and court offices have been, the city manager said.

That's something that makes Sgt. David Lee happy as the police department's evidence collection now has a lot more room in which to be housed.

"We have plenty of room for evidence now," Lee said, as he pointed to storage in the rooms that are secured and monitored by hidden cameras.

To that, Eskridge quipped, "No matter how much room you have for evidence you will never have enough."

Roger Clinton refuses to answer questions on travelers checks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton's brother is refusing to answer questions from Congress about how he got $250,000 in travelers checks from banks in Taiwan and Venezuela. The investigators are looking into the former president's last-minute pardons in January.

In a letter, Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind., said Roger Clinton had deposited travelers checks of $125,000 on Dec. 15, 1998, $25,000 on July 12, 1999, and $100,000 on Nov. 30, 1999. The travelers checks were mostly from Taiwan and Venezuela, wrote Burton, chairman of the House Government Reform Committee.

"Who purchased these travelers checks?" Burton asked Roger Clinton's lawyer, Bart Williams of Los Angeles.

Burton has been investigating whether there was a money for pardons deal involved in President Clinton's pardons last January hours before he left office.

Roger Clinton's lawyer wrote back that the president's brother was declining to answer the committee's questions. Williams complained about the congressional probe, saying that "something more than an inquiry by the committee into presidential clemency decisions is afoot."

Democrats have accused Burton for years of having a vendetta against the Clinton. Burton has denied the accusations.

Roger Clinton, who has denied soliciting or receiving payments for helping to arrange White House pardons, has refused Burton's request to talk to House investigators.

The committee has also asked for explanations of payments from Anna Gambino, the daughter of Rosario Gambino, a convicted heroin trafficker, to Roger Clinton.

Anna Gambino wrote Roger Clinton a $50,000 check in Sept. 27, 1999. Prosecutors say Rosario Gambino is an associate of the Gambino crime family.

The White House counsel's office told the Justice Department that Rosario Gambino was under consideration for a pardon and asked the department to review his criminal record. Gambino never received a pardon.

The controversy over whether the Clinton administration offered pardons for money began in the weeks after the president's final day in office, when he granted 177 clemencies and commutations.

Three cases drew instant criticism: the pardon of then-fugitive commodities broker Marc Rich, commutations for four Hasidic Jews convicted of fraud and an allegation that Roger Clinton received up to $200,000 for promising to help a Texas man win a

More heart trouble for Cheney; pacemaker may be implanted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Dick Cheney disclosed Friday that he has been experiencing irregular heart rhythms and will check into a hospital on Saturday for tests that he expects will lead to the implant of a pacemaker to restore normal rhythm.

Cheney, who has a history of heart disease, told a briefing at the White House that a "pacemaker plus" could be put in after the tests.

"I look on this as an insurance policy," the vice president said. He said the odds were that he would need the pacemaker to be implanted, and he appeared resigned to it.

He said the condition would not hinder his ability to do his job. If he learned further information suggesting "I would not be able to perform, I'd be the first to step down," Cheney said.

It will be his third hospitalization since last year's election.

Cheney has been suffering from coronary heart disease for a quarter century, beginning with a heart attack in 1978 when he was a young congressman. He had quadruple bypass surgery in 1988.

Last November, doctors treated Cheney for a mild heart attack by implanting a stent, a little metal scaffolding, to prop open an almost completely blocked artery. In March, Cheney underwent an angioplasty to clear a clogged artery.

In a statement released by the White House, Dr. Jonathan Samuel Reiner said Cheney will undergo an electrophysiology study "for the purpose of determining the vice president's risk of developing a persistent, abnormal heart rhythm."

The decision to go ahead with the test was made after doctors found, in two weeks of monitoring Cheney, "four brief, asymptomatic episodes of abnormally fast heart beats," Reiner said.

BMV warns consumers to watch for flood-damaged cars

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Cars damaged by the recent floods in Texas and other southern states are being shipped to Indiana for sale to unsuspecting buyers, the Indiana Bureau of Motor Vehicles said.

The cars often surface in the Midwest following major storms, such as the recent tropical storm that swept through Texas and other areas near the Gulf of Mexico, BMV Commissioner Gary Gibson said Thursday.

Gibson said the water-damaged automobiles are declared total losses by insurance companies, but they often fall into hands of dishonest salesman who sell them on abandoned land or in unattended parking lots.

Flooded vehicles are likely to have substantial engine and body damage that might not be easily seen.

Most of the illegal sales are occurring in southern Indiana, especially in Monroe County, but the damaged cars could soon make their way into central Indiana, BMV spokesman Alvin Hayes said.

"It moves north," Hayes said. "This is a consistent pattern."

Consumers should conduct a full inspection of the vehicle to look for water damage before buying a used car, the BMV said.

Things to look for include checking for sand under floor mats and under the trunk lining; test driving the engine as a flood-damaged engine will have trouble starting; checking for standing water or rust in the spare tire well; checking for a mildew odor in the passenger area.

Delta to retire planes

ATLANTA (AP) — Delta Air Lines plans to remove 10 older jets from its fleet and trim 1.4 percent from its seat capacity by the end of the year, citing high fuel costs and a weak economy.

The carrier plans to permanently retire seven Boeing 727s this year, including six to be removed from the fleet Sept. 1. The airline will remove two more planes Nov. 1 and two on Dec. 1.

Atlanta-based Delta plans to retire its 72 Boeing 727s by 2005. The company said its system capacity will grow only 0.3 percent for 2001.

"High fuel prices, the slowing economy and the higher costs of maintaining older aircraft have led to our decision to reduce capacity by removing these aircraft," said Frederick W. Reid, Delta's president and chief operating officer.

Delta said it expects to report a $140 million to $160 million loss for the second quarter because of weak demand among business travelers and the effects of a strike at its Comair regional unit.

Delta shares were down 25 cents to $43.40 Friday morning on the New York Stock Exchange.

Some postage rates go up on Sunday, July 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sending a post card will cost a penny more in July. The bank will pay a bit more to send mail. So will newspapers and magazines.

But it still will cost 34 cents to send that favorite relative a birthday card.

Facing the possibility of a $2 billion shortfall, the Postal Service is imposing a second rate increase this year.

The agency already has frozen construction projects and hiring. There also has been talk of applying for an additional increase late this year.

Many rates went up in January, including a 1-cent increase in First Class stamps. That did not include all the raises sought, because of limits placed by the Postal Rate Commission.

Minister's musing

"Rejoice O young man in thy youth!"
 These are the wise words of King Solomon. They contain an exhortation for young people to enjoy their youthfulness. But how many of them do so properly? A popular song that is often sung and repeated in various ways laments: "If I knew then, what I know now!"
 When we look at that through the veteran eyes of spirituality, we can see many of the spiritual mistakes we made. We can see where we have pushed and broken the boundaries of what is God-pleasing and beneficial to our soul.
 Much of this comes in the forms of entertainment that we participate in or subject ourselves to. How do we determine what is good and bad entertainment? To find an answer to this relevant question for both parents and young people, I have reached back to an article written at the turn of the last century. The advice, though dated, still applies

By Rev.
Leif Haaskarl

Lutheran Church

and maybe even more so today than then.
 "Ask if they (amusements) draw you nearer to Christ or remove you from Him, if they increase or diminish respect for Christian manhood and womanhood, if they increase or lesson love for virtue and purity, if they make resistance to temptation easier or harder, if they redound to the glory of God."
 When this test is applied to many current forms of entertainment, the answer, especially in the electronic medias, is that many of them, but not all, are to the harm of our spiritual life. It is acceptable, and God even requires us, to distance ourselves from those things that can tempt us into a sinful or immoral life.

 Our children and we parents are under a tremendous amount of pressure to "loosen up." The degradation of our society is ample evidence of what happens when we do just that. Violence, teen and out-of-marital pregnancies, and substance abuse are just some of the results of our modern "looser" society.
 Let us test all things to see if they are pure and have the God-pleasing virtues of Philippians 4:8. "Whatever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are gracious; if there be any virtue and if there be any praise, think on these things."
 If they don't meet this test, let us be wise and avoid those pitfalls. If they do, then let us use them to our joy and spiritual benefit.

Dyess First United Methodist pastor in coming year

First United Methodist Church of Pampa recently announced the appointment of the Rev. Todd Dyess as pastor for the coming year.
 The announcement of this appointment was read by Bishop D. Max Whitfield during the 92nd session of the Northwest Texas Annual Conference in Abilene.
 The Rev. Dyess brings many gifts to the ministry of Pampa First United Methodist Church including an ability to relate to people, a compassionate heart and a willingness to serve.
 Asked to sum up his vision for ministry, the Rev. Dyess said, "I want the church to fulfill its mission to continue to make disciples for Jesus Christ."

 Focused on the Great Commission to make disciples, Dyess believes Biblical literacy is the greatest task to which the church should address itself as it seeks to "make disciples for Jesus Christ" in the 21st Century.
 Congregational goals for the coming year are to build on current strengths, which include missions and outreach, and to foster a more all-inclusive attitude, targeting older adults as well as youth.

 The Rev. Dyess has been in the ministry for 29 years, formerly serving churches in Dumas, Sunray, Shamrock, Spearman and Perryton. Completing undergraduate work at West Texas State University, the Reverend did seminary work at The Iliff School of Theology.
 Dyess and his wife, Shyrie, are the parents of two grown children, Laura and Wesley. Both are married and live in Amarillo and both work in the field of education.

Vacation Bible School keeps up with the times

By KELLI LEVEY
Bryan-College Station Eagle

BRYAN, Texas — Vacation Bible school, that old standby of summer, is changing just enough to keep up with the times.
 Churches still open their doors for one- and two-week sessions and still welcome youngsters from all denominations to play games and do crafts as they learn Bible verses and stories.
 But more and more of the programs are shifting from daylong sessions to a few hours in the evening to accommodate working parents and Bible school teachers.
 "We have to do it during the evening because some of the parents work and have to come after they finish," said Barbara Williams, vacation Bible school coordinator at Lily of the Valley Church of God in Christ in Bryan. "And we do something different: We like to offer classes for the adults at the same time. That gives the parents a chance to come and relax and be taught while their kids are in class."

 The shorter evening hours have caused the teachers to plan more precisely and somewhat pare their offerings, said Clinton Everitt, pastor of Beacon Baptist Church in Bryan.
 "If I had it during the day I'd have to staff it by myself because most of our parents and volunteers have full-time jobs," he said. "This way, more people can be involved."
 Everitt said he hopes a more aggressive promotional campaign this year, which included radio advertisements, and the purchase of a specific curriculum will triple the usual 30 or 40 children at Beacon Baptist's summer program.
 Beacon Baptist was one of at least two Brazos County churches that bought the "Veggie Tales" curriculum, which uses animated vegetables to teach lessons on virtue.

 Lily of the Valley church personnel put up fliers throughout the surrounding North Bryan neighborhood and sent a church van to pick up children from around the community for its June program.
 Other than the hours and the availability of more structured programs, Everitt said, not much about vacation Bible school has changed.
 "Back when I was going, I went to the Church of Christ one for a week and the Presbyterian one for a week and the Methodist one for a week it pretty much filled up my summer," he said. "Looking back, I think it was a way for Mom to keep me busy. It helped me to learn and have fun, but it helped her, too."
 Trinity Baptist Church in Bryan, near Jane Long Middle School on North Harvey Mitchell Parkway, attracts about 90 youngsters each summer from around the community. Longtime church member Carol Loehr said the church has an open-door policy year-round, but she said vacation Bible school is a specific activity in which visitors can become involved for a designated period of time.

 "We accept anyone into our church at any time," she said. "It does not matter what religion you are, or if you even have a religion. It does not matter what color skin you have, either. In fact, we have a melting pot of America happening at Trinity. We just want to share the hope of Christ with whoever will hear the message."

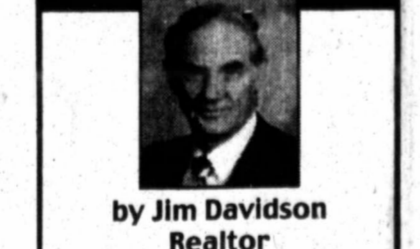

Denied chance to build church, pastor sues

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A Christian pastor has sued Volusia County claiming his religious freedom was violated when a county board barred him from building a church near a community where many spiritualists live.
 The Rev. John Ferro and Dunamis Community and Outreach Ministries filed a federal suit against the county on May 31, asking a judge to overturn a land commission ruling that kept the congregation from building a church in Cassadaga, about 35 miles northeast of Orlando.
 The proposed site was near the homes of members of the Southern Cassadaga Spiritualist Camp Meeting Association, prompting some spiritualists to express concern church members would try to convert them. About 150 people who live in and near the community signed a petition against the proposed church.
 Spiritualists believe the dead survive as spirits, which can communicate with the living.
 County Council Vice Chairwoman Ann McFall said her decision to vote against the church's request was based on opposition from the community, and was unrelated to religion.

Mormons celebrate 200th anniversary of Brigham Young's birth

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Brigham Young, the man who took the Mormon church to Utah and made it thrive, was remembered by church members on the 200th anniversary of his birth.
 Born June 1, 1801, Young was the second president of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He led the first party of Mormons to settle Utah in 1847, and later directed the emigration of 70,000 who came to Utah along the Mormon Trail.
 The Brigham Young Family Society, which tracks his descendants and holds annual gatherings in his honor, dedicated a statue to commemorate Young's birth near his downtown Salt Lake City grave site.
 Young directed church members to settle as many as 400 communities throughout the West, including Las Vegas and San Bernardino, Calif.

 Realtor
MORE THAN A PLACE TO PARK
 According to a recent online survey, 74% of all respondents named the garage as the most desirable amenity in a home. To begin with, a garage offers homeowners a secure entrance; however, it's desirability involves much more. It is also a repository for bicycles, gardening equipment, tools, and worksheds, which are so important to our lifestyle choices. Beyond that, in homes where there is a dearth of storage space, the garage stands ready to handle any overflow. For prospective homeowners with an eye toward cost-effective expansion, the garage represents the potential for an extra bedroom or den. Sellers should bear these selling points in mind and rid their garages of accumulated possessions when showcasing their homes.

When selling a home, it is important to consider what buyers find attractive. ON LOVING AMERICA
 "I love my country. To say that is like saying I love my family. I did not choose my country any more than I chose my parents, but I am her daughter as truly as I am the child of my mother and father. What I am, my country has made me. She has fostered the spirit which made my education possible. Neither Greece nor Rome, nor all China nor Germany nor Great Britain has surrounded a deaf-blind child with the devotion and skill and resources which have been mine in America."
 "But my love for America is not blind. Perhaps I am more conscious of her faults because I love her so deeply. Nor am I blind to my own faults. It is not easy to hold a steady course in a changing world."
 "It need not discourage us if we are full of doubts about America. Healthy questions keep faith dynamic. In fact, unless we start with doubts we cannot have a deep rooted faith. One who believes lightly and unthinkingly has not much of a belief. He who has a faith which is not to be shaken has won it through blood and tears and has worked his way from doubt to truth as one who reaches a clearing through a thicket of brambles and thorns." — Helen Keller.
 It is so true, even in this year of 2001!

Couple Run Both Hot and Cold Though Their Love Is Constant

DEAR ABBY: I have finally found the love of my life. (I'll call her Muriel.) We spend almost all our time together. We share similar interests; we laugh and cry together. Muriel and I do not live together, but we have a sexual relationship and believe we are soul mates.

There's one big difference between us that's causing a major problem: We have different "body thermostats," which makes sleeping together difficult. When I am comfortable, Muriel is shivering. When she's comfortable, I am too warm.

When I visit her apartment, it's overly warm and stuffy with little ventilation. Muriel in turn complains about how chilly I keep my house.

I am at my wit's end about how to solve this. I care enough for Muriel to want to spend the rest of my life with her, but if we can't be comfortable sleeping in the same bed, how can we possibly last? Your thoughts, please.

SLEEPLESS IN TOLEDO

DEAR SLEEPLESS: Your beloved is the kind of woman for whom flannel was invented. Please don't let it come between you.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing about the letter you printed from the woman whose mother wants to celebrate her 50th anniversary surrounded by family and friends, even though her husband has been dead five years.

You stated that she hadn't properly dealt with the death of her husband and could be in a stage of dementia. You advised a medical and psychological evaluation at the time of her next annual physical — if not sooner.

Well, Abby, I personally think the mother's idea is wonderful! Why anyone would condemn her idea and say it would look foolish is beyond me. It's romantic and wonderful that this woman wants to celebrate a lifetime of love and memories — after all, that's what anniversaries are all about.

Yes, it's sad that her husband will not be there in body. But it seems to me that Mom's intent is that he be there in spirit. Placing a photograph at his place setting to honor his memory is not exactly saying she expects him to walk in, sit down and dine. A family portrait that includes Mom holding his picture is hardly something to get hot and bothered over, either. I think it's a thoughtful way of saying her husband is still in her heart and memory.

Abby, I'm sure that woman is well aware that her husband is dead. She probably cared for him while he was dying, and now lives every day in an empty house surrounded by memories of their life together. I see no crime in wanting to share this memory with family and friends. For you to say the mother may be suffering from dementia because of this is insulting.

In my opinion, the family and friends should be more supportive. Perhaps her 50th anniversary celebration is a last-ditch effort to get those around her to acknowledge her husband's life instead of dwelling on the tragedy of his death.

MOURNING FOR MOM IN TEXAS

DEAR MOURNING: Your letter is not the only one I received from readers who disagreed with my answer. And you could be right. Perhaps I analyzed the letter too much with my head and not enough with my heart. After all, by marking what would have been her 50th anniversary with a celebration of her marriage, she would be hurting no one. And if it brings her comfort — why not?
