Marine biologists at park baffled by whale's death

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The oldest of SeaWorld San Antonio's five killer whales died this week, leaving park marine biologists baffled as to what killed her.

SeaWorld staff performed a necropsy on Haida (pronounced hide-uh) on Thursday but do not expect to know a cause of death for at least a month. Tissue samples and various organs were sent to independent laboratories, park spokesman Bob McCullough said.

"This was very unexpected," McCullough told the San Antonio Express-News. "She showed some change in behavior, but nothing to suggest she was seriously ill."

Animal rights activists have long sought a ban on using orcas in marine parks, complaining that confinement causes psychological, physical and developmental problems that shorten the lives of the mammals.

Marine park officials say captivity has not been proven harmful and can protect the whales from disease, predators, pollution and fishing nets.

Haida was estimated at about 21 years old. She was captured in 1980 and lived at a Canadian marine park before being moved to San Antonio in 1993.

McCullough said the normal life span for a killer whale is 25 to 35 years.

County eyes redistricting protest

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

Disappointed and frustrated that Gray County was removed from the 31st Senate District in the redistricting by the five member Legislative Redistricting Board (LRB) in Austin, the county commissioners authorized County Judge Richard Peet to draw up a resolution expressing their feelings.

Gray County has been a part of the 31st Senate District centered in the Texas Panhandle for 80 years but, as a result of the LRB's decision, the county will be moved to the 28th Senate District on Jan. 1, 2003. Sen. Teel Bivins currently represents the 31st District.

Sen. Robert Duncan of Lubbock represents the 28th District.

'There's no sense in rolling over and playing dead.'

— Joe Wheeley
Gray County Commissioner

Howard County officials also felt the effects of the redistricting in the 3-2 LRB decision as it was switched with Gray County in the redistricting change. Located 100 miles south of Lubbock, Big Spring is the county seat.

Howard County Judge Ben Lockhart said this morning in a telephone interview that his county will be closely watching lawsuits filed contesting the legality of the redistricting.

Democrats said in a court filing on Tuesday that Gov. Rick Perry conspired with Republican lawyers to gain an advantage in a race to find a friendly judge to draw the state's 32 congressional districts, according to the Associated Press.

Perry, a Republican, did not call the Texas Legislature into a special session to distribute the state's population following the release of the 2000 census figures.

"Howard County is only 100 miles from Sen. Duncan in Lubbock, and now we will be 210 (miles) from Bivins in Amarillo," said the Howard County judge. Howard County has a population of 33,627 people while Gray County has 22,744 resident, according to the 2000 Census.

Lockhart said the outcome of law suits already filed will determine whether or not Howard County files a lawsuit contesting the redistricting. "We were very surprised with the redistricting change," said Lockhart. "We also lost our state representative, Dave Counts, in the changes. Pete Laney will be our new one."

Representative Warren Chisum will continue to represent Gray County, but had several changes. One county he will not be representing will be Carson County, which is adjacent to Gray County.

Officials waiting for autopsy results in death of man, 55

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

Officials continue to await the results of an autopsy as they investigate the death of a Pampa man found in his home on Hughes Street late Thursday.

According to Pampa police reports, Ronnie Blair Campbell, 55, 433 Hughes, appeared to have been dead several days when a friend discovered him Thursday afternoon.

Police were called to the residence at 5:57 p.m. The body was taken to Lubbock for an autopsy ordered by Justice of the Peace Joe Martinez.

Martinez said he ordered the autopsy approximately an hour after he arrived on the scene.

"It's uncertain, him being found by himself at home," Martinez said. "We had to make sure we didn't overlook anything."

He said he had not received a preliminary autopsy report from Texas Tech Health Sciences Division of Forensic Pathology where the autopsy was to be conducted by press time today, but added he expected to receive an initial report by telephone this afternoon and the formal autopsy report in about two weeks.

Jimmie Davis, who listed his address on the police report as 433 Hughes, told officers that he had last seen Campbell about 10 a.m. on Tuesday, July 31. He said Campbell had said at the time that he felt sick. According to the police report, Davis said that he went to stay with another person for a few days. When he returned to the Hughes Street residence, he found Campbell lying on the couch in the main living area of the home, dead.

The cause of death could not be immediately determined. Blood found at the scene appeared to have come from an earlier injury Campbell had suffered, police reports stated.

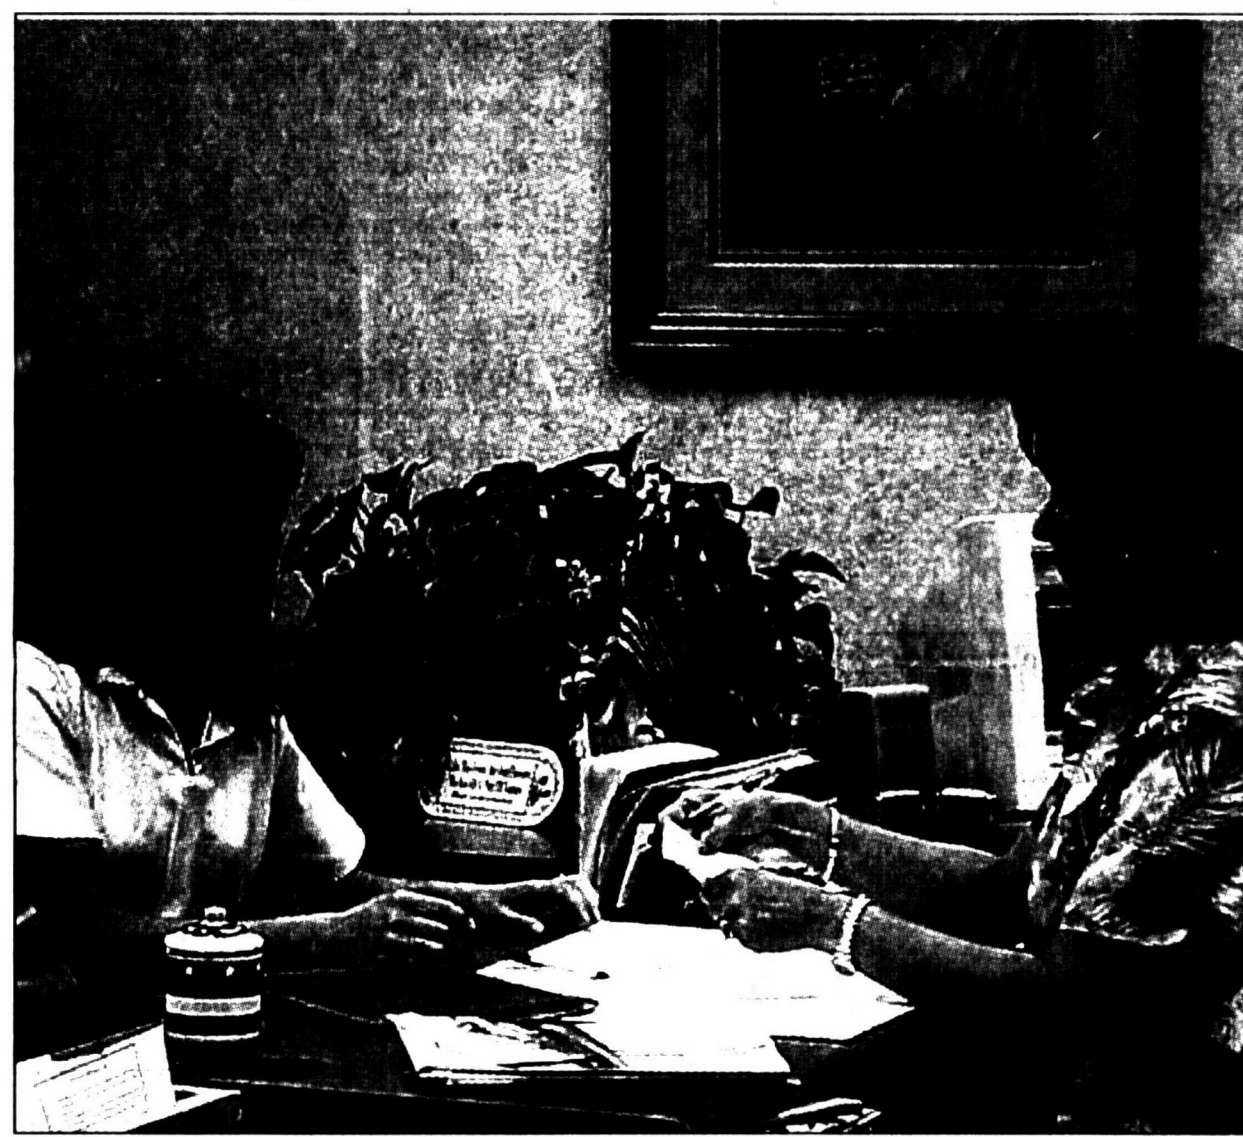

Martinez said the home on Hughes Street did not appear to be cooled by air conditioning.

"There was an air conditioner blower going in the room he was in that was not really cooling," he explained. "It was just blowing air around."

A U.S. Marine Corps veteran, Campbell had lived in Pampa most of his life.

Graveside services are set for 1 p.m., Saturday, at Memory Gardens Cemetery.

Unemployment rate holds steady at 4.5%

By LEIGH STROPE
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate held steady at 4.5 percent in July as the yearlong hemorrhaging of manufacturing jobs slowed and service jobs posted a small gain.

The Labor Department reported Friday that the unemployment rate was unchanged, surprising analysts who thought it would climb to 4.7 percent because of the economic slowdown. Businesses cut payrolls for the second month in a row, eliminating 42,000 jobs in July after a loss of 93,000 in June, a smaller decline than the government previously reported.

"The economy remains weak, but hints of stabilization are emerging," said Bruce Steenberg, chief economist at Merrill Lynch.

The report didn't boost Wall Street. In morning trading, the Dow Jones industrial average was down 111 points.

To avert a recession, the Federal Reserve has cut interest rates six times this year, totaling 2.75 percentage points. Many analysts believe the Fed will order another rate reduction at its next meeting Aug. 21.

Some economists fear that if the employment climate seriously worsens, consumers might sharply cut back spending and tip the country into recession.

The deteriorating job market and slumping stock prices helped to erode consumer confidence in July after two months of consecutive gains, a private research group reported Tuesday.

The Bush administration hopes the tax rebate checks many taxpayers started receiving in the past two weeks will fuel continued consumer spending and jump-start the economy.

"I think there also will be some improvement in the economy as Americans begin to receive their tax cut refund checks this summer and this fall," Labor Secretary Elaine Chao said, calling the new jobless report positive news.

Manufacturing continued its yearlong slide, losing 49,000 jobs in July. That brought the total job loss to 837,000 during the past year. The loss in manufacturing jobs in July was less than half the size of the losses in each of the prior three months.

A sign of eventual stabilization in that sector was the slight uptick in the manufacturing workweek by 0.1 hours to 40.8 hours, said Paul Taylor, chief economist for the National Automobile Dealers Association.

Pit fire damages local restaurant

A popular eatery sustained minor smoke damage throughout the building early today after the restaurant's barbecue pit caught nearby cardboard on fire.

At 4:32 a.m. today, five units and nine firefighters from the Pampa Fire Department responded to a report of smoke coming from Dyer's Barbecue, at U.S. 60 and Price Road. Deputy Chief Randy Dunham said a sheriff's deputy passing by the restaurant saw the smoke and called the emergency dispatcher.

"The (barbecue) pit fire got a little too large and caught at least one cardboard box on fire that was stacked next to the wall of the pit room," Dunham said. "The fire melted a water line which shorted out an electrical box, so there was a bit of an electrical fire with it, too."

The pit room, located in the south end of the barbecue restaurant, is where the meat served by the restaurant is cooked.

Dunham said the fire damage was contained to the pit room, and the remainder of the building sustained light smoke damage.

Gray County being considered for drought disaster declaration

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

Lack of much needed rain and record high temperatures for the month of July has caused Gray County to possibly be declared a drought area.

Gray County is one of 17 counties in Texas to have filed "flash reports," the first step toward seeking a federal drought disaster declaration. The report is filed through the state, and no drought declarations have been issued yet.

Matt Street, of the local Farm Service Agency (FSA), is in the process of completing the necessary forms to get the designation, said a spokesman in the FSA office.

County Judge Richard Peet said this morning he will be contacting all the Gray County Commissioners, inquiring about the need of declaring a county-wide burn ban due to the intense heat and lack of moisture.

"The commissioners are the ones out in the precincts," he said. "They know what their needs are," said Peet. He said the matter will possibly be considered at the next county commission meeting on Aug. 15.

Wheeler County was also listed as seeking the designation, according to the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Other counties are Blanco, Brown, Collingsworth, Cottle, Foard, Gillespie, Howard, King, Kleberg, Martin, Mitchell, Motley, Taylor, Wilbarger and Willacy.

RATE

"That has been a trend in recent months. Manufacturers first utilize overtime to expand production before calling back a shift or hiring new workers, so this is a positive sign," he said.

The biggest declines in manufacturing last month continued to be at electrical equipment companies, which lost 24,000 jobs, and in industrial machinery, which cut 21,000 jobs. Those two industries produce high-tech equipment.

One of the reasons the Fed has cited for cutting interest rates is its concern about slumping investment by businesses in computers and other high-tech equipment, which was the fuel of the economic boom.

In the service sector only 5,000 jobs were added in July, the weakest showing since August 2000. A major factor has been large job losses at temporary employment companies. Employment at those businesses declined for the 10th straight month, totaling a job loss of 429,000 during that period.

Large employment gains were posted in the health services industry, which added 25,000 jobs, and in engineering and management services, which gained 13,000 jobs last month.

Job gains at bars and restaurants, which totaled 40,000 in July, were partially offset by losses at clothing, food, building materials and gardening supply stores.

Construction employment was little changed in July following a decline the month before. Monthly job growth has averaged 11,000 so far this year compared with 18,000 per month in 2000.

COUNTY

Peet told commissioners court Wednesday he talked with Bivins Friday concerning the redistricting change, and said Bivins was apparently just as surprised as the people in Gray County.

Precinct One Commissioner Joe Wheeley said he felt it would be good for the commission to express their displeasure because Gray was removed from the 31st District.

"There's no sense in rolling over and playing dead," said Wheeley.

Commissioners Jim Greene, James Hefley and Gerald Wright agreed with Wheeley.

Peet said Bivins will still be representing Midland. Districts added to the 31st District were Martin, Glasscock, Crane and Ector County.

Amarillo is 55 miles from Amarillo.

The LRB is composed of five elected officials. Voting in favor of the change were Land Commissioner David Dewhurst, Attorney General John Cornyn and State Comptroller Carole Keeton Rylander.

Speaker of House Pete Laney and acting Lt. Gov. William Ratliff voted against the way the lines were drawn in the redistricting.

Texas Round Up ...

Jurors seated for escapee's capital murder trial
DALLAS (AP) — Jury selection for the trial of prison escapee George Rivas is now complete, with 12 jurors and two alternates to hear arguments beginning Aug. 13.

The jury includes six women and six men. Both alternates are women. Jurors range in age from 22 to 68.

They were selected Thursday after four weeks of questioning.

Rivas faces trial on capital murder charges in the Christmas Eve shooting death of Irving police officer Aubrey Hawkins, who was responding to the robbery of a sporting goods store.

Five other members of the gang of escaped convicts also will be tried individually for the slaying. District Attorney Bill Hill said he will seek the death penalty against all six.

If spared lethal injection, they face life in prison if convicted.

The defendants broke out of a maximum-security prison in Kenedy, about 60 miles south of San Antonio, on Dec. 13. A seventh man committed suicide rather than surrender when captured in Colorado six weeks later.

Rivas, who confessed to police and reporters after his capture that he shot Hawkins, offered no plea when arraigned in June, so Judge Molly Francis entered a plea of innocent on his behalf.

The jurors, selected from a pool of 420 candidates, were asked their opinions on the death penalty and for details of what they knew about the case through the media.

Report: Two Dallas police officers settle claims over demotions

DALLAS (AP) — Two demoted police commanders will reportedly get a total of $1.65 million from the city to settle claims they filed as result of the department's actions.

City officials who spoke on condition of anonymity told The Dallas Morning News in Friday's editions that police Capt. Will Rollins will receive about $750,000 and Manuel Vasquez will get about $900,000.

Both commanders once held the department's second highest rank.

The settlements must be approved by the City Council on Wednesday.

To date, the city has paid a total of more than $6 million to settle similar claims. Deals made in June with six demoted police commanders were between $4 million and $5 million.

Two other demoted commanders, Robert Jackson Jr. and Willie Taylor, are still suing the city. Each has demanded $2.6 million; the city has offered Jackson $1 million and Taylor $850,000, officials said.

A mediator was used to hammer out the latest settlements with Rollins and Vasquez, officials said. Assistant City Attorney Janice Moss told the newspaper that she could not discuss the terms of the settlement. Moss and the attorney who represents Rollins and Vasquez could not be reached early Friday by The Associated Press.

Vasquez and the eight officers had challenged their demotions by Police Chief Terrell Bolton in October 1999. They said they were denied due process.

High bills stall design of transportation projects

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas transportation officials will take some different roads in coming years, shelving designs for some highway improvement projects and even avoiding the construction of some frontage roads.

Cost that have come in higher than expected are an issue with some improvement projects.

But the Texas Department of Transportation's finance director said the delays will only effect projects that were scheduled to start over the next several years, not those where construction is already under way.

"Construction projects that are already in progress, where you see motor graders on the ground moving dirt or pavers laying down asphalt will not be affected," said James Bass.

Evangelist combines 'a little bit of Jesus, a little bit of Elvis'

By JOE MILICIA
Associated Press Writer

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — Evangelist Leroy Jenkins sings like Elvis and has the king's hairdo.

The stage at his church looks like a set for a community theater production: White stage lights shine on statues of elephants, camels and giraffes, surrounded by palm trees and three waterfalls.

Jenkins says Liberace called him flamboyant. After 30 years, Jenkins' Healing Waters Cathedral has grown into an enterprise that includes nationwide TV broadcasts and steady sales of his "healing water" at $1.40 per plastic gallon jug.

This, despite his conviction for arson conspiracy in 1979, and his controversial marriage this year. The bride was a 71-year-old millionaire widow whose relatives accused Jenkins of trying to steal her money.

"He took a little bit of Jesus and a little bit of Elvis and meshed them together," said Damian Chapa, who will play Jenkins in a movie the evangelist is producing about his life.

Brodmon Drakeford, 47, a Cincinnati relative of the widow, Eloise Thomas, has a different view.

"Leroy Jenkins is in it for Leroy Jenkins," Drakeford said.

Jenkins, 64, said he is the illegitimate son of a Cherokee woman who abandoned him in a field. His grandmother gave him to a couple, who raised him in Greenwood, S.C., he said.

At age 15, Jenkins ran away to Texas, then Atlanta, where he got married for the first of three times. An accident that nearly severed his arm led to his life of evangelism, he said.

His doctors told him that if his arm wasn't amputated, he would die of gangrene. Instead, he said he went to a tent revival where her heard audience members speaking in tongues, typical of Pentecostal worship. Jenkins said he was "filled with the Holy Ghost" and his fingers began to move.

The "Man with the Miracle Arm" then launched his own tent revivals.

"I started the next night and never stopped. Not knowing one thing about the Bible," Jenkins said. "The Bible just came to me through experiences."

He fathered seven children in two previous marriages before his travels brought him to Delaware, Ohio.

"I lived five lives," he said. Jenkins says he has counseled celebrities such as Liberace, Mae West and Elvis.

He arrived in Ohio in 1968 and opened his Holy Hill Cathedral on 80 acres of farmland north of Columbus. Twenty years later, Jenkins said God told him to drill a well, whose waters, he claimed, have since cured people of leukemia, diabetes and other diseases.

He renamed the site Healing Waters Cathedral and began mailing free samples of water to followers. Jenkins would not reveal financial details of his ministry, which has a staff of 13.

At a recent Sunday service, the crowd of about 200 filled only part of the auditorium, singing gospel songs and dancing until the evangelist emerged, wearing a white jacket and black shirt with a crucifix hanging around his neck. Worshipers rose from their seats, shouting praise for Jesus.

Jenkins sang "How Great Thou Art" in the style of Elvis, before audience members came forward to be healed by the well water.

After 30 years, Jenkins' Healing Waters Cathedral has grown into an enterprise that includes nationwide TV broadcasts and steady sales of his "healing water" at $1.40 per plastic gallon jug.

"I'll always be grateful to Leroy Jenkins because he was the cause of me finding Jesus," Pam Perez shouts, as a band plays the Doobie Brothers' "Takin' It to the Streets."

Perez' husband, Rudy, 61, of Columbus, said he was skeptical until Jenkins cured him of colon cancer. Rudy Perez and his wife drink the healing water regularly.

"He told me, 'Young man you've got cancer in the worst way. You're an alcoholic. You're going out on your wife.' He just pointed his finger at me. A hot sensation just came over my body," Rudy Perez said. "I didn't have no more pain."

Jenkins said Perez' doctors were baffled. Chapa, who grew up in Ohio, first saw Jenkins at the Ohio Theater in Columbus.

"I'll never forget this man in a red jacket touching this lady who was crippled and she got out of the wheelchair and walked," he said.

The evangelist is still rebuilding his ministry after his conviction in South Carolina in 1979 for conspiring to burn down the home of a businessman who allegedly owed him money and the home of a South Carolina state trooper who arrested Jenkins' daughter on a traffic charge.

The evangelist claims he was framed. The case dramatically reduced support for Jenkins' ministry. The number of families on his mailing list dropped from 444,000 to 42,000 by the time he was released from prison in 1984, he said. Jenkins said about 300,000 families are now on the rolls. The state pardoned Jenkins in 1993.

The evangelist had more troubles this year. His Las Vegas wedding to Eloise Thomas on Jan. 12, 16 days after her husband died, drew accusations from her family that the evangelist wanted access to her fortune, estimated to be about $4 million.

Jenkins said he married Thomas, a member at Healing Waters for 20 years, to protect her from greedy relatives and attorneys. However, Jenkins agreed to annul the marriage in July after Thomas was declared incompetent by a court.

"He's not in love with my aunt," Drakeford said. "She's got dementia. She don't know what she's doing. He's using his influence as a preacher over her. She looks at him like a god."

Jenkins said he is misunderstood by those outside his ministry. He will get another chance to explain his goals with his biographical film, "The Calling," scheduled to be released next year. Actress Faye Dunaway, a friend of Jenkins', will play Mae West.

"I'm a nice person and I love people and I would never do anything to harm anybody," he said.

Heavenly message easy to understand

Sometime back, I was asked to give a talk to our young people in language they might not understand and would cause confusion as to what had been said. I don't remember all the lesson that was being taught, but thinking back on that experience, I realize how often religious talk is so confusing that folks can't experience the truth that is trying to be taught.

I said something like this to those youth: Due to the eschatological significance of our times and the total depravity of mankind it is quite essential that one have full understanding of the dispensation of grace as experienced through the vicarious atonement.

In light of the Calvinistic/Armenian debate, soteriology and ecclesiology must be comprehended through one's millennial view — as to whether a post-millennial, amillennial or premillennial viewpoint (as understood in the light of the historical dispensational distinctives) can rightly bring one to justification by faith.

al in light of predestination or does the free will of mankind through the substitutionary death of the Godhead in Christ absolutely clarify kingdom principles of election and thereby guarantee fall salvation and acknowledgment of the priesthood of all?

Th: phenomenological revelation found in numerology progressively leaves a duality affixation and provincial enlightenment so as to dispel apocryphal psychopannychia in relation to final judgment.

All that and nothing was said. Sometimes it seems like religion is like that. The more we hear, the less we understand. It is totally irrelevant to life today and beyond comprehension.

I'm sure you would agree with me in being glad that is not how God communicates with us. In the first place, God is not interested in religion or its jargon. He is deeply interested in a relationship with each of us. How do I know that? He said it and He said it simply.

"For God so loved the world (you could put your name in the place of world) that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believes in Him will not perish, but will have eternal life." (John 3:16)

The language of heaven is so simple that a child can understand and respond to it, and yet so profound the wisest of all will never fully comprehend or explain it. The wonder of it is that we don't have to explain it, just experience it. I truly hope you have not been confused by religion and missed the love of God. It is really very simple. God loves you, gave His Son for you, and desires an eternal relationship with you. It's really pretty simple.

Despite persecution, believers still endure

At a press conference in London on Feb. 12, 1988, Latvian Baptist Janis Rozkalns, a former prisoner of conscience who emigrated from the USSR in 1987, stated that there were still at least 250 people imprisoned in Soviet camps for their religious activities. He himself was released in March 1987 after serving 4 1/2 years of an eight-year sentence.

During his imprisonment in a camp for political prisoners he had become acquainted with many well-known religious prisoners of various denominations. He spoke with particular respect for Orthodox deacon Vladimir Ruskak, who was still serving a 12-year sentence for "anti-Soviet agitation."

According to Rozkalns, Ruskak's guilt consisted largely of writing a "truthful history" of the Russian Orthodox Church and its gradual subjection to the KGB. His fellow prisoners were all people who had criticized the Soviet government in some way, scientists, journalists, clergymen. He had smuggled biographical details about them out of the camp by writing them on bits of thin paper which he rolled up tightly and put inside his nose or under his tongue.

The prisoners were punished for religious activities such as prayer meetings. For celebrating Christmas, some prisoners, including Rozkalns himself, had been kept without underwear in isolation cells in outside temperatures of 40 degrees below zero. On that occasion, he had survived without even catching a cold, for which he thanked God (although earlier he had caught pneumonia and almost died).

The Christians in the camp had a secret Bible which they passed from one to another. The camp authorities were unable to find it though they tried to do so. One time a prisoner who had the Bible was summoned for interrogation and had to sit in front of the guards for an hour with the book in his hands but none of them had thought to ask what it was!

A number of prisoners were converted to Christianity in the camp and he had baptized some of them himself. This is one reason why Rozkalns regarded these years as the best of his life despite his hardships.

Rozkalns thanked Western believers for their support, to which he felt many prisoners owed their recent releases. He concluded by appealing to Westerners to finance the sending of religious videocassettes and literature to the Soviet Union.

Even though Eastern Europe is now experiencing a new freedom, don't forget there are others around the world who are persecuted for their faith. Pray for them. Support them in whatever way you are able.

U.S. missionaries compete for souls in Mongolia

By MICHAEL KOHN
Associated Press Writer

ULAN BATOR, Mongolia (AP) — Shaun Rosemann and Drew Wallace call it their "portafont."

The two young Mormon missionaries took along the plastic baptismal font, the size of a large bathtub, when they went to rural Mongolia looking for souls to save.

The clean-cut, blue-eyed pair are part of an influx of foreign missionaries engaged in a struggle to win believers in this traditionally Buddhist country of 2.4 million people.

For nearly a year, the two missionaries taught English by day and held weekend services in a rented discotheque. They filled the portafont and baptized dozens of new Mongolian Mormons by immersing them in it.

"We had the services in the morning and when we left, the room became a bar again," said Rosemann, who has moved back to the Mongolian capital of Ulan Bator with Wallace to continue their missionary work.

A decade has passed since the end of 70 years of officially atheist communism, and today visiting preachers find a ready audience as Mongolians search for spiritual meaning amid worsening poverty.

Seventeen U.S. Protestant mission boards have 60 workers in Mongolia, according to the new "Mission Handbook" from the Billy Graham Center at Wheaton College in Illinois. No U.S. Roman Catholic missionaries are listed.

More traditional Mongolians complain that foreign missionaries threaten their Buddhist traditions.

"We are worried that Mongolia will become a Christian country," said Jamynsharaviin Ganzorig, one of 800 monks at Gandan Monastery, Mongolia's biggest.

Western churches help the poor in a society where communist-era social services have collapsed.

"The missionaries give money and food to poor people and draw them to their church," Ganzorig charged. "Some missionaries are generous, but most just want to get members. It is hard to tell how many are real Christians, because many just go to church so they can study abroad."

But a native evangelical Protestant pastor, the Rev. Yadamdorjin Bold of the Crown of Love Church, calls Buddhism a scourge that his homeland should discard.

"Buddhism makes people lose their motivation," said Bold, 26. "Before Buddhism came we were fierce warriors and ruled many countries."

Many Mongolian Buddhists are disillusioned with a religion that has monks chanting services in Tibetan, a tongue no ordinary believers understand. Christian pastors, by contrast, preach in Mongolian.

Others have lost faith in monks who have a reputation for drinking and ignoring their vows of celibacy.

"They recite scriptures as a business," said Adrian Feldman, an Australian Buddhist monk who is trying to teach Mongolians their forgotten traditional faith.

An exception is Betub Danjai Choinkhorlon Monastery, which maintains strict discipline for its young class of about 35 monks. It was set up by a former Indian ambassador in a two-story traditional building with white-washed walls and ornately painted wooden eaves.

Prime Minister Nambariin Enkhbayar has endorsed this and other Buddhist projects, including a planned Buddhist TV station. "In order not to lose our identity we need to keep the Buddhist traditions," he said.

Among the most active foreign workers are Mormons, members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. This distinct faith, based in Salt Lake City, Utah, is now building a five-story center in Ulan Bator.

"Satan's temptations are everywhere in Mongolia," said recent convert Dolomjaviin Zogselmaa during a visit by Wallace and Rosemann to the canvas tent where she lives in Ulan Bator.

"My family joined the church to avoid smoking, fighting and drinking," she said.

Wallace, 21, from Dallas, and Rosemann, 20, of Salt Lake City, spend their days visiting Mormon converts at home. Between visits, they chat with taxi

Commuters Keep Their Seats As Pregnant Woman Stands

DEAR ABBY: What is this world coming to? I live in an affluent suburb of Boston, and commute by subway to my job in the city. This morning I boarded a full train and took the last empty seat. Just as the doors were closing, a blind woman and her guide dog got on. I waited about 10 seconds (count it, Abby — it's a long time). No one offered the woman a seat, so I gave her mine. She graciously accepted.

What the woman couldn't see — but everyone else on the train could — is that I am eight months pregnant. For the next half-hour, I stood with aching back and swollen ankles, jerking and swaying with every movement of the train, while college kids and well-dressed executive types in their 30s watched, sipped their coffee, read the sports section and offered zilch.

A pregnant woman gives up her seat on the train to a blind woman, while everyone else sits contentedly? If their mothers only knew! Sign me ...

ONE MONTH TO GO IN HINGHAM, MASS.

DEAR ONE MONTH TO GO: If their mothers only knew? Dear lady, if their mothers had taken the time to teach them manners and empathy for others, someone in the passenger car would have given you a seat.

If any of your fellow passengers were young women — what goes around comes around. As to the men — it shows that living in wealthy suburbs doesn't guarantee that the residents have class.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am currently in my fourth month of survival following a fight with cancer.

When I was first diagnosed, I consulted an oncologist recommended by my general practitioner. Even though the doctor was obviously not busy, I was kept waiting in a dark, quiet, depressing room. When he finally did see me, he hadn't reviewed my file. He didn't call me by my first name or know my test results. He made me feel unimportant. I didn't go back.

A second oncologist was recommended. He answered every question my wife and I had. When he was satisfied that all the questions were answered, he asked what I wanted from him. I said, "Save my life." He immediately put me on chemotherapy.

During the next five months, when I visited his office, his staff knew me by name, greeted me with a smile, and were emotionally supportive. The nurses administering the chemo were upbeat, encouraging and made me feel they cared about me.

Being surrounded by positive energy was extremely important to my recovery. Attitude is a vital element in the recovery process.

Bless the doctors, nurses and staff who helped me. They realized I was a person, and more than a printout of lab results.

A CANCER SURVIVOR, NORTH HILL, CALIF.

DEAR SURVIVOR: I'm pleased that your cancer treatment was successful. You were wise to switch oncologists after that first consultation. Not all physicians have a good bedside manner, but if they don't, the smart ones hire support staff that can create an atmosphere that's warm, personal and reassuring to patients.

Medicine is not only a profession, but it is also a business. And people in business must be sensitive to customer relations if they're going to be successful.

SUNNINGDALE, England (AP) — Janice Moodie birdied the 17th hole to take a one-stroke lead in the rain-disrupted opening round of the Women's British Open on Friday, then went out for the second round and stretched her lead.

The Scot, in her sixth season on the LPGA Tour, is still searching for her first major. She was tied at 4 under with clubhouse leaders Laura Davies and Johanna Head when darkness halted play Thursday.

She had just two holes to play and took the lead when she rolled in a 10-foot birdie putt for a three at the 17th. A par at the last completed a 5-under 67.

"It was very tough yesterday with all the stopping and starting," Moodie said in a reference to a three-hour rain delay in mid-afternoon.

"I had to get up at 4:45 this morning, but it's well worth it. I'm delighted with the start."

Davies also had to resume her round early Friday. She regained the lead with birdies at the first and third. But Moodie, playing behind her, responded with birdies at four, six and eight to reach the turn at 7 under, two ahead of the field.

Also moving up the leaderboard was Mi Hyun Kim, a rising star from South Korea, who started her second round at level par, but picked up five birdies in the first 10 holes.

Astros edge by Mets in 10th on Alou's infield single HOUSTON (AP) — Pedro Astacio gave the Houston Astros quality innings, just what they hoped he would provide when they traded for him.

Astacio didn't get a decision, but he kept the Astros close until Orlando Merced tied it with a two-run double in the ninth and Moises Alou's infield single brought home the winning run in the 10th for a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets on Thursday night.

"The thing we have stated over and over is that he is a workhorse who is going to give us a lot of innings," Houston manager Larry Dierker said.

Astacio made his first start for the Astros since being acquired Tuesday from Colorado in a trade for Scott Elarton.

He gave up three runs and 10 hits in 7 1/3 innings.

"He may not be in that elite group of pitchers who never give up runs, but he's in that elite group who don't give up many runs and who pitch deep in the game," Dierker said.

Astacio is aware of what is expected of him.

"If I can make my pitches and take my team into the seventh or eighth inning, then I have done my job," Astacio said.

Going into extra innings against each other for the third straight game, the Astros handed the Mets their first loss in 41 games in which they led after eight innings.

The last time the Mets played three straight extra-inning games against the same team was May 7-9, 1980, at home against Cincinnati.

Merced's two-run double off Mets closer Armando Benitez made it 3-all in the ninth, and Alou's single drove in Craig Biggio with two outs in the 10th.

Mets second baseman Edgardo Alfonzo made a diving stop on Alou's hit up the middle, but was unable to make a throw to second in time for a forceout.

Biggio reached third on a single, a sacrifice and a fielder's choice.

Mike Williams (3-4) pitched a perfect 10th for the Astros. Jerrod Riggan (0-2) took the loss for New York.

"It's frustrating. I can't get anything to go the way I want it," Riggan said. "A roller here and a roller there and they win, but I should be strong enough to get it done. The bottom line is I didn't get it done."

After Merced's double in the ninth, an intentional walk loaded the bases with one out, but left fielder Tsuyoshi Shinjo caught pinch-hitter Jose Vizcaino's fly ball and threw out Alou at the plate to force extra innings.

The blown save was the second in 27 chances for Armando Benitez, both in the last five days.

"He's been so great for us, but tonight he missed with a couple of pitches," Mets manager Bobby Valentine said.

Steve Trachsel held Houston to three hits in seven innings. He retired the first 12 Astros before Lance Berkman led off the fifth with a single. In the sixth, Biggio's RBI single closed the Astros to 2-1.

"I felt pretty good. I had an extra day of rest, and that always helps," Trachsel said. I tried to be aggressive and work off my fastball."

Benny Agbayani's RBI double in the second started the scoring for New York. Desi Relaford followed with an RBI double to make it 2-0.

Alfonzo's second double of the game drove in Matt Lawton for a 3-1 lead in the seventh.

Downing named associate AD at Tech

LUBBOCK (AP) — Steve Downing, a former Indiana basketball player and administrator, has been named associate athletic director for sports programs at Texas Tech.

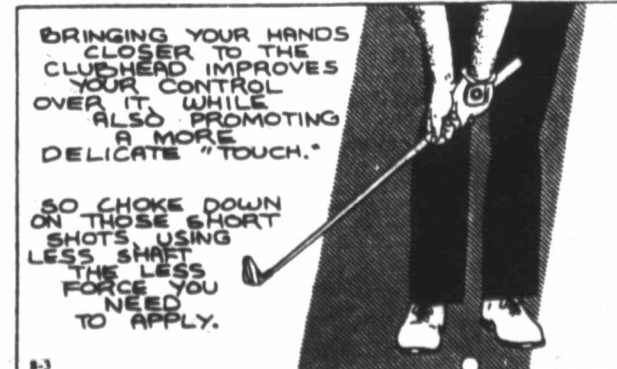

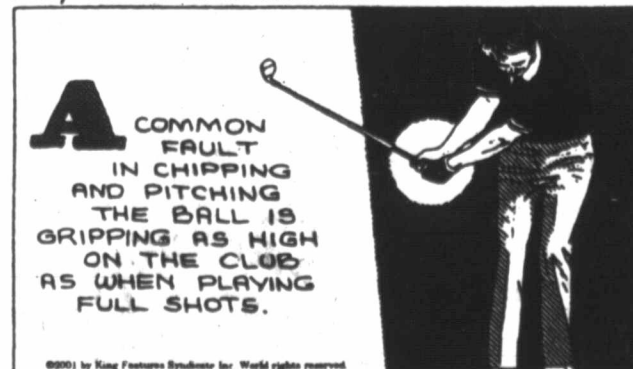

Downing's addition to the Tech staff makes him the latest in a line of former Bob Knight proteges to be hired there since Knight was named basketball coach March 23.

Athletic director Gerald Myers announced Downing's hiring earlier this week.

Indiana announced he was leaving in June.

Rookie hurler shuts down Tigers as Mariners post 78th victory

By The Associated Press

Joel Pineiro got the better of fellow rookie Adam Pettyjohn to give the Seattle Mariners their 78th victory in 108 games.

Pineiro (2-0) allowed one run in seven innings as the Mariners beat the Detroit Tigers 2-1 Thursday night.

Pineiro, who won his first major league start last Aug. 8 against the White Sox, allowed four hits without walking a batter. In his last two starts, Pineiro has allowed one run and five hits with no walks in 13 innings.

"In a close game like that, you are a lot more focused than when it is a four- or five-run lead," he said. "I just wanted to keep us in the ballgame for six or seven innings, and then the bullpen can come in and finish it."

Jeff Nelson struck out the side in the eighth on 11 pitches, and Kazuhiro Sasaki pitched a 1-2-3 ninth for his 34th save in 38 opportunities.

In other AL games, it was Minnesota 9, Toronto 4; Texas 12, New York 2; Tampa Bay 3, Baltimore 2; Anaheim 13, Boston 4; Oakland 17, Cleveland 4; and Kansas City 6, Chicago White Sox 3.

Pettyjohn (0-2) failed again to get his first career win despite allowing only two runs and six hits in seven innings.

Seattle jumped in front with runs in the second and third innings.

Ed Sprague led off the second with a single, took second when Pettyjohn hit David Bell, then scored on Stan Javier's single.

Bret Boone led off the third with a double, moved up on John Olerud's grounder and scored on Mike Cameron's lineout.

Jose Macias homered for the Tigers in the third, breaking a 0-for-10 slump. But Pineiro came back to strike out the side in the fourth and two more in the fifth.

Twins 9, Blue Jays 4

Rick Reed won his first start for Minnesota despite giving up a career-high-tying 12 hits, and the Twins stopped a five-game losing streak by winning at Toronto.

Reed (1-0) allowed two runs on 11 singles and one homer in six innings. He walked none and struck out two.

The Twins scored three unearned runs on two errors by Alex Gonzalez. But Gonzalez also set a team record for shortstops with eight putouts.

Chris Carpenter (7-9) lost his fourth straight start, allowing eight runs — five earned — in 3 1/3 innings. He is 0-5 in his last seven starts.

Rangers 12, Yankees 2

Alex Rodriguez and Gabe

Kapler hit three-run homers in Texas' six-run third inning against Mike Mussina (11-9) as the Rangers won their first series at Yankee Stadium in eight years.

Frank Catalanotto and Ricky Ledee added solo homers, and Aaron Myette (1-1) earned his first career victory for Texas. The Rangers matched their season high with 18 hits.

Mussina gave up eight runs, nine hits and a season-high three homers in four innings.

Devil Rays 3, Orioles 2

Tampa Bay won its first road series of the year against an AL club.

Tanyon Sturtze (6-9) pitched seven strong innings and Steve Cox drove in two runs for the Devil Rays, who took two of three from slumping Baltimore.

Poor baserunning proved costly to the Orioles. Trailing 3-1 in the seventh, Baltimore scored a run, but missed a chance to get another when Brady Anderson was called out after running into third base coach Tom Trebelhorn on an RBI single by Chris Richard. Richard then overran second base after a successful steal.

Angels 13, Red Sox 4

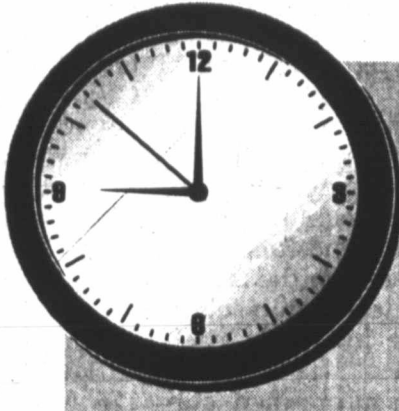

Garret Anderson drove in four runs with two homers and a double as Anaheim stayed within five games of Minnesota in the AL wild card race.

Olajuwon is traded to Raptors

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets and Toronto Raptors completed a sign-and-trade agreement that sent future Hall of Famer Hakeem Olajuwon to Canada in exchange for first- and second-round draft picks.

Olajuwon has two NBA championship rings from the Rockets' back-to-back titles in 1994 and 1995.

In his 17 seasons with the Rockets, Olajuwon averaged 22.5 points and 11.4 rebounds. He is the NBA's career blocked shots leader with 3,740 and a 14-time All-Star.

Let's Talk Real Estate

by Jim Davidson
Realtor

MATTERS OF TITLE

In order to ensure that the people selling you a home actually have full and legal title, the party conducting the closing will research the history of ownership of the local property records office. What happens, though, if the records are wrong, or the person conducting the title search is in error? To protect against these possibilities and the other issues that can "cloud" the title, lenders will take out a form of title insurance, known as "lender's coverage, which is designed to protect the lender in case title problems arise. But, who is protecting you, the buyer? "Owners' coverage is also available to protect the buyer's equity stake in the property.

AUGUST 2001

Horoscope

SUNDAY, AUG. 5, 2001 BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)  Communication tests Aries' pioneering spirit. What you have come to count on could become a problem. Stick with it, and find a friend who can help. Make a call and reach out for a family member. Someone shows his caring side. Tonight: Get a good night's sleep. This week: Until Wednesday, much might not be to your liking. Tuesday, sit down and talk through a problem. By the end of the week, you'll have a lot to smile about.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)  Financial matters and responsibilities test the Bull's patience. You might want to tell someone where to go. Initiate discussions to clear the air. Others feel a lot better, as you do. Your family appreciates a caring gesture. Tonight: Where your friends are. This week: You are goal-directed, but you keep tripping over others. By Wednesday, you opt for the life of a recluse. You might emerge Friday afternoon.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)  The ever-diverse and witty Gemini could be tested to the limit. You actually might clam up under another's manipulation or pressure. The best thing you can do is open up discussions and work through a problem. Ultimately, you will be rewarded for assuming a leadership position. Tonight: A must visit or appearance. This week: You aspire to get a lot done, but roadblocks appear. Play it nice and easy through Tuesday afternoon, when you opt for a tête à tête. As you zero in on some of your goals, you'll have a lot to smile about Thursday and Friday.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)  How you feel in the morning could greatly change by afternoon. A tip that could impact your finances needs to be weighed, as does an investment. Your Cancerian sensitive ways mixed with insight and intuitiveness help you home in on what you want. Tonight: Let your mind wander. This week: Understand that some of the info you get might not be totally legitimate. Check out facts, and you'll build on hard realities. Wednesday and Thursday take the helm of your life. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)  You could be disappointed by another's behavior. Be the open and sunny Lion and discuss feelings. You quickly clear the air and resolve a problem. Good will and closeness surround a special relationship. Tonight: Quality time with a loved one. This week: Dealing with partners might not be particularly agreeable Monday and Tuesday. Start up talks late Tuesday, and you cruise on smooth waters from Wednesday on.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)  Others prove to be testy. Nothing you do this morning will settle a problem. Give up nurturing others, for now. Nurture yourself. Speak your mind about a day-to-day matter that affects you. Respond to overtures in the afternoon. Tonight: Delight in another's attention. This week: Others go with the moment. You might shake your head at what goes on. By Tuesday afternoon, you'll speak your mind. All the better, as you will see from Wednesday on.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)  A misunderstanding or another's revocation of plans upsets the morning. By afternoon, you'll relax. Getting together with friends helps you clear your mood. Join in a favorite game or sport. A loved one lets you know where you stand in his book. Ah, romance — what a delight for Libra. Tonight: Start thinking in terms of work. This week: You have the best of intentions on Monday, but you might not be able to hit a home run. Still, Wednesday shows improvement, if you cut back.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)  You and a partner could get stuck over a financial matter. It seems as if never the twain shall meet. Creativity surges forth when you help someone open up and talk. Together, you'll find solutions. Open up, Scorpio! Make a special call expressing your concern. Tonight: Add that extra spark to a relationship. This week: Your wild spirit emerges, but you trigger strong reactions from associates. Calm down a bit, and you'll accomplish a lot more.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)  A problem comes to a head early. You naturally upbeat Sag mood plunges as you feel a need for control. Your best bet is to reach out for someone who will help you gain perspective. Talks open up feelings and allow for a greater sense of well-being and caring. Tonight: How 'bout a barbecue? This week: Pull yourself out of uproar and present circumstances. By Wednesday, a gesture comes back multi-fold. Start talking and agreeing!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)  The Goat wakes up on the wrong side of the bed. Everything might seem like an effort! Let a loved one coax you out of bed or bring you your first cup of coffee. Discussions help you understand your reactions better. Tonight: Bathe in another's caring. This week: While others cause a commotion, which does affect you, you do a pullback. Hop on the Net, speak to experts and you'll come up with the solutions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)  Conflict arises between a desire and a relationship. What seems like an either-or situation can be resolved if Aquarius responds to another's efforts to talk. You can't control yours or anyone else's thoughts, but you can be caring anyway. Tonight: Treat someone to dinner. This week: Finances seem to crumble, if you're not careful. Tighten up organization. Strong actions Tuesday afternoon set the pace for the rest of the week.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)  The Fish could get caught in another's struggle if he's not careful. Others might ask you to take sides. Explain what you see in the most neutral terms possible, and express understanding for both parties. A loved one lets you know just how much you are appreciated. Tonight: Ask for what you want. This week: You start with the Moon in your sign on Monday, although there are problems at work and at home. Charisma only does so much. On Wednesday, you'll see an improvement!

One letter stands for another. In this sample, A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
