Small private plane ordered to land in vicinity of Bush ranch

WACO (AP) — A small private plane flying unauthorized in the vicinity of President Bush's ranch near Crawford was ordered by the military to land Thursday, a sheriff's deputy said.

The 71-year-old pilot and his son were detained for routine questioning by the U.S. Secret Service, said Chief Deputy Randy Plemons of the McLennan County Sheriff's Department.

The incident, which occurred shortly before 10 a.m., may have been a misunderstanding, Plemons said. "I can't even confirm if he was even close to the ranch," Plemons said. From what investigators have conveyed, Plemons said, the pilot went up for a "joy ride" in his small Cessna.

"Obviously, bad timing," he said.

The FAA declared that the plane was unauthorized and ordered the plane's occupants detained, Plemons said. At that point military officials got on the pilot's radio frequency and ordered the plane to land.

Terrorist pilots had U.S. training

■ ...It's believed 27 suspected terrorists received flight lessons

WASHINGTON (AP) — At least one hijacker on each of the four planes in Tuesday's terrorist attacks was trained at a U.S. flight school, the Justice Department says. Well over 50 people may have been involved in the hijackers' well-financed operation.

A number of people that could be involved in the plot were detained overnight for having false identification, Justice Department Mindy Tucker said early Thursday. She declined to say how many were detained or where they are being held.

No arrests had been made as of early Thursday, she said. Authorities have not yet recovered black boxes from downed planes, but hoped Thursday to find the black box from the jet that crashed in Pennsylvania, Tucker said. Officials are close to releasing the names and possibly the country of origin of the hijackers. Nearly all have been identified, Tucker

Meanwhile, the FBI has received over 2,000 tips on an 800 number set up early Wednesday. Some of the calls have produced helpful

"Both cash and credit cards were used" by the hijackers "to purchase tickets, hotel rooms and other things," Tucker said Wednesday. The FBI's massive investigation stretches from the Canadian border to Florida, where some of the participants learned how to fly commercial planes before the attacks. Tucker said flight schools in more than one state were involved in the training of the hijackers, several of whom had pilots' licenses. The investigation also reached into the Midwest — one person was taken into custody on an immigration issue in Minnesota, said a law enforcement official, speaking on condition of anonymity. Authorities wanted to question the individual about the plot, but the person refused and requested a lawyer, the source said. Authorities are also requesting information from a Minnesota flight school where those suspected in the attacks may have trained.

Multiple cells of terrorist groups participated in the operation and the hijackers had possible ties to countries that included Saudi Arabia and Egypt, said law enforcement officials, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Officials said authorities were gathering eviinvolvement in earlier plots against the United States, and may have been involved with Saudi exile Osama bin Laden. That includes the USS Cole bombing in Yemen and the foiled attack on U.S. soil during the millennium celebrations.

The identities of more than a dozen of the men who hijacked the four planes with knives and threats of bombs have been ascertained, the officials said.

For some suspected accomplices, "we have information as to involvement with individual terrorist groups," FBI Director Robert Mueller said.

Attorney General John Ashcroft said 12 to 24 hijackers commandeered the four planes, and a government official said another two dozen or so are believed to have assisted them. At least one of the suspects receiving advanced flight training in Florida was a commercial pilot from Saudi Arabia.

Ashcroft said the investigation was complicated by "the destruction of those who perpetrated the crime and much of the evidence being destroyed."

Some of those involved in the plot left suicide notes, but they are not believed to have been the hijackers, a government source told The Associated Press. It's unclear whether those who left the notes actually killed themselves.

The Times said authorities believe 27 suspected terrorists received pilot training.

"This could have been the result of several terrorist kingpins working together. We're investigating that possibility," one law enforcement official speaking on condition of anonymity told The Associated Press.

Sen. Charles Grassley of Iowa, the top Republican on the Senate Finance Committee, said the briefing he received Wednesday from law enforcement left him with the same impression.

"Most of it today points to Osama bin Laden, but the speculation at the end of the road is that he and his network were very much involved with Hezbollah, Fatah and other" terrorist organizations, Grassley said.

The senator said authorities told him all the hijackers were of Middle Eastern descent and that they had "a tremendous amount of ground support for each hijacker."

PHS students experience largest tragedy in lifetime

By MIRANDA G. BAILEY For The News

Just as there was a time lapse before the World Trade Center's twin towers came crashing down, it took hours for Pampa teens to fully grasp the seriousness of Tuesday's U.S. terrorist attacks.

"Ithink it's kind of freaky and I really didn't think about it until everyone talked about it," Pampa High School senior Doug Warren said. After the high school's principal John Kendall announced what was happening over the school's sound system about 9:30 a.m., the campus community stayed tuned as the events of the day unfolded.

"It reminds me of something that would happen in a third world country, not something that would happen in America," sophomore Michael Ellis said.

And despite the long distance between the terrorist attacks on the east coast and the plains of the Texas panhandle, Pampa students were cancellation of many after-school games, practices and activities.

As airlines were shut down around the coun-

"I was really scared because I couldn't find my son and he was flying in from that direction," teacher Gaylene Skaggs said.

After the initial shock in the morning, students slowly began to understand the magnitude of the crashes by the afternoon.

"Everyone thought Oklahoma City was bad this is three times worse," Ellis said.

Teens buzzed with talk of potential war, boyfriends being shipped off to fight,, draftdodging and the likelihood of a nuclear explosion if Amarillo's federally-owned Pantex nuclear plant were hit.

"People are panicking too much. I think All eyes glued to classroom television sets, they're blowing it out of proportion," Ellis said. However, it was discussions of a possible World War III that worried some students the Still other students said they did not care that the World Trade Center was hit nor believed did not have television access gathered in the Pampa would be greatly affected by the event.

"I think that America is stupid and the other people are stupid for fighting over stupid things," student Ashley Helm said.

By mid-afternoon, PHS student journalists on both the Little Harvester newspaper and Harvester yearbook staffs did not take much time to reflect on the day's events before things could happen ... but we have a younger spreading out on and off campus to document community reaction.

In addition to Porter's comments, teen reporters came back to school with reports that also directly affected by the situation with the banks had closed, city hall was not busy, and grocery stores were not quickly selling goods off the shelf as had been expected because of "Today should be a day of reflection and fam-rumors that highway 60 was being closed down ilies should be together," counselor Starla due to the closing of Pantex earlier in the day.

In an effort to quell fears and concerns of the younger children, Doug Rapstine, principal at Travis Elementary talked with them about the attacks in an all-school assembly before school

Cheryl Robbins, counselor at Wilson Elementary, said, "I've not observed a lot of reaction from the children." She said the school has depended upon the parents to take the primary role to explain Tuesday's attack to the students.

"If there comes a time for us to give more support to the children, we will," she said. "If parents come to us and tell us a child is having bad dreams or similar behavior, we will be glad to

Elementary students at Austin Elementary seem to be aware of what is going on following the attacks, said Linda Olson, counselor. "There is an awareness among the students," said Olson. "They seem to be doing fine, and it's been school as usual."

Lamar Elementary students haven't been upset by it, said Tori Kelley, counselor. "There hasn't been a big reaction among the students," said Kelley. "So many of them are so young they aren't able to grasp what has occurred."

Kelley said the students have been asking the teachers questions about the attacks.

O'Quinn arrives at settlement

HOUSTON (AP) — A prominent attorney who earned millions in the Texas tobacco settlement and a former employee have reached a confidential settlement of a lawsuit seeking more than $400 million in damages and legal fees.

John O'Quinn was accused of reneging on an agreement to pay Kendall Montgomery more than $100 million for work on the state's $17 billion tobacco settlement and other cases.

During opening statements, Ernest Cannon, O'Quinn's lawyer, said Montgomery had sought $30 million to settle.

Montgomery testified that his oral contract called for him to receive 25 percent of the court awards and settlements from cases on which he did substantial work. But Cannon said the oral contract called, for Montgomery to get an annual salary of $110,000 plus bonuses at O'Quinn's discretion.

Lawyers said the terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington on Tuesday helped put the trial in perspective and motivated them to reach a settle-

"When we see what happened (Tuesday), we see how meaningless our possessions are, Cannon said.

The trial was in its second week. Montgomery has testified that O'Quinn's alcoholism in the late 1990s prevented him from fulfilling assignments on major cases that pulled in huge court awards.

Earlier, investigators working under tight security had apartments combed Hamburg looking for any evidence connected to two men believed linked to Tuesday's attacks.

A total of eight apartments in the city were checked and four searched overnight, said Olaf Scholz, the Hamburg state official in charge of security.

Hamburg officials declined to elaborate on what role the pair may have played in the attacks, but a former employee at a Florida flight school said two students — Mohamed Atta and Marwan Alshehhi — had arrived from Germany in July

At a news conference, Olaf Scholz, the official responsible for security in Hamburg's state government, said people with those names — both from the United Arab Emirates - had registered as Hamburg residents, and had been studying at the Technical University in the suburb of Harburg.

Both were believed to have lived at the same address at some point, Scholz said.

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — An official Iraqi news agency accused U.S. and British warplanes of dropping bombs in southern Iraq on Thursday — a claim denied by the Pentagon.

The official Iraqi News Agency said an attack on villages in Wasit province, 115 miles south of Baghdad, caused no casualties, but "led to the destruction of several houses and the frightening of children and citizens."

At the Pentagon, spokesman Navy Lt. Cmdr. Jeff Davis said the United States had not attacked Iraq. British officials did not immediately comment.

U.S. and British planes started enforcing a "no-fly" zone in southern and northern Iraq following the 1991 Gulf War. Iraq disputes the legitimacy of the zones and regularly contests allied patrols by firing missiles and artillery guns.

tain disputed land in Bastrop County. The amendment would confirm legal title to that land, excluding any mineral interests, to the individuals who hold a disputed title to the land. The amendment would prevent a loss of title by people who bought and paid for property that was never transferred by the state because of faulty surveys.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment providing for the clearing of land titles by the release of a state claim of its interest to the owners of certain land in Bastrop County.

PROPOSITION 2

Proposition 2 would amend the constitution to establish the process for issuing up to $175 million of state general obligation bonds and notes to provide aid to counties for access road projects to serve border colonias. Generally, a colonia is an economically distressed geographic area with inadequate public services (such as water supplies, sewer services, or paved roads) in a county without adequate resources to provide such services. These projects could include the construction of access roads, the acquisition of materials used in maintaining those roads, and projects related to the construction of those roads, such as road drainage. The Texas Transportation Commission, in consultation with the Governor, would be authorized to determine what constitutes a border colonia for purposes of selecting the counties and projects that would receive assistance.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the issuance of state general obligation bonds and notes to provide financial assistance to counties for roadway projects to serve border

Under current law, when the people vote for a particular candidate for president, in reality they are voting for that candidate's electors who will meet to cast their votes for president. Family Political Debate Opens Chasm Between Daughter, Mom

DEAR ABBY: At our Halloween party last year, which included both parents and children, my brother and I somewhat jokingly debated the two presidential candidates. My brother was for Bush. I was for Gore. Sometime during the evening, my then 11-year-old daughter asked me why her uncle was for Bush and I was for Gore. I explained why I was for Gore and gave her four or five reasons. She asked again why her uncle was for Bush. I told her to go

During the merriment of the evening, I forgot about the subject until we were on the way home and my daughter asked me how I could think that killing a little baby was OK. I was speechless! I asked her where she had gotten such an idea. She said her uncle had told her that Gore thought it was OK to kill babies, and if I was voting for him, so did I. I tried to explain about a woman's right to choose - and that I DO think a woman should have that choice, but I was so shocked I hardly knew how to defend myself.

It has been nearly a year now. Ever since that night my daughter has been very distant toward me. I have tried to talk to her about it several times, but she refuses to discuss

I'm at my wit's end. My daughter is now 12 and our closeness has been destroyed. I found out her class made Mother's Day cards, but my daughter never gave hers to me. There are no more hugs and kisses at bedtime — just "good night." What can I do? I love my daughter with all my heart. I'd give anything to have her the way she was before. DESTROYED MOTHER

IN DALLAS

Dear Abby

Is written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanne Phillips.

DEAR DESTROYED MOTHER: Sit your daughter down and tell her that the subject of a woman's right to choose is a controversial one, and that it is OK if she disagrees with you about it. It's a topic about which everyone has to make up her (or his) own mind. Her uncle thinks the way he does, and you love him in

Explain that you are not in favor of killing babies, but that you feel it is important for a woman to have the right to choose. Some women's lives have been saved because they were legally empowered to make that choice. It wasn't always the

Tell her that as she grows older, you want her to examine her reasons for feeling the way she does about this subject but you also want her to be open to different points of view, because there are more than one, and people have a right to their own opinions. It may not heal the breach your brother has caused, but it's a beginning.

And finally, I urge you to talk to your daughter's uncle about this entire situation. He could help a great deal by reinforcing what you have said - and he should. He was out of line from the beginning for having given your daughter his inflammatory answer to her question.

AUTO RACING

But this isn't a driver bitter about losing his ride with the team he drove to an Indy Racing League championship just two years ago.

"It's just all for the better, nothing that wasn't unforeseen or anything I'm unhappy with," Ray said. "Even before I left Team Menard, one of my biggest focuses was already working toward next year." Since that 1999 title, Ray has won 10 more poles and had three other front-row starts. But the master of IRL qualifying has only been able to translate that into two wins — both at Atlanta - and two other top-10 finishes.

There had been crashes, gearbox failures and other mechanical problems. And even though he considered it a good team, Ray said there was a lack of vision and chemistry.

"It seems like the more problems we encountered, the more mechanical problems we had and the more failures we had, the more questions I asked," Ray said. "The more I asked, the more they didn't like it."

The end finally came last month after the Kentucky race. There were still three races left in the season, but the team was out of contention for the IRL title and Ray's enthusiasm had disappeared. So driver and owner decided to split ways and forgo the final two years of their contract.

Jacques Lazier, a promising driver as was Ray three years ago, won the Delphi Indy 300 in his second race with Team Menard. Ray wasn't surprised, because the new Chicagoland Speedway is a 1 1/2-mile track similar to ones the team has run on well in the past.

Despite widespread reports that Ray was fired by Menard, Ray insists it was an amicable split both personally and financially.

Attacks could lead to November Series games

By JOSH DUBOW AP Sports Writer

Kenny Lofton isn't concerned when his Cleveland Indians will resume playing. He's not worried about the possibility of the first World Series games in November.

Baseball is secondary in the wake of the terrorist attacks that rocked the nation this week.

"Baseball don't mean nothing right now," Lofton said Wednesday. "To me, baseball is just another part of life that doesn't exist at this point. You have people who have to deal with the loss of family in tragic death."

Games through Thursday were called off, raising the total to 45, the most postponed since 1918. There was no decision on this weekend's series.

There's a good chance the regular season would be extended beyond its scheduled finish on Sept. 30 to make up the postponed games.

"Whether we start Friday or whether we start Monday, I think that's how it will play out," Arizona Diamondbacks owner Jerry Colangelo said.

That would lead to the possibility of the October Classic producing its first Mr. November.

It also means that Cal Ripken and Tony Gwynn could finish their Hall of Fame careers at home instead of on the road. Ripken and the Baltimore Orioles were to end the season at Yankee Stadium, while Gwynn and the San Diego Padres were set to finish in San

"Obviously, there are some issues that come up because of people who bought tickets to the last series, and now it wouldn't be the last series," Gwynn said. "Other than that, I'm really not that worried about it."

Charles Steinberg, the Padres' vice president for public affairs, said even if the Padres play at home in October, they would keep plans for the "Thanks Tony Weekend" on Sept. 21-23.

Some players weren't even looking that far ahead, worried instead about security in ballparks. "If you could pull off hijack-imagine you could bomb a stadium," Astros first baseman Jeff Bagwell said. Said the Braves' Brian Jordan: "If I were a fan, I would not be Baseball commissioner Bud Selig consulted with his security staff and had no such concerns. "They've assured me we can play and be safe," he said.

With teams unable to fly, many chartered buses to head home: the Minnesota Twins from Detroit, the St. Louis Cardinals from Milwaukee, the Cleveland Indians from Kansas City, the New York Mets from Pittsburgh and the Toronto Blue Jays from Baltimore. After speaking with many teams throughout the day, Selig wasn't sure when play would

"What I'm trying desperately to do here is be as sensitive as I can and do what's right for the country," he said.

National Football League still pondering weekend schedule

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Football Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Neil O'Donnell, the probable starter at quarterback for Tennessee on Sunday if the NFL decides to go on with its games, is not yet ready to think about football.
