Two in Odessa set on fire, beaten

ODESSA (AP) — West Texas law officers are investigating a beating in which two people were doused in gasoline and intentionally set on fire by five assailants who mocked them. Police are searching for an 18-year-old man in connection with the assault Monday of Jennifer Enriquez, 23, and Adam Viera, 17, according to a prepared statement by police Commander Lou Orras.

The two victims suffered third-degree burns and remained in critical condition early Wednesday at Lubbock University Medical Center Hospital.

About 6 percent of Enriquez' body was burned but she's doing well, her mother Ofelia Enriquez told the Odessa American for Wednesday's editions. But burns covered about 35 percent of Viera's body, she said.

Witnesses told the newspaper that Enriquez and Viera were attacked by five men, who cheered as the victims were set on fire in front of a Odessa apartment complex.

Viera could be heard screaming as he tried to extinguish the flames under a nearby water spigot, witnesses said. When police arrived, the men fled in a light blue Chevrolet pickup.

One witness said the incident may have been payback for an earlier fight involving Viera.

A warrant for aggravated assault has been issued and police reportedly questioned a juvenile Tuesday about his role in the attack.

Big crowd turns out to hear about PEDC

Forum's intent: Effort to present 'cold, hard facts'

By DEE DEE LARAMORE Staff Writer

About 300 persons filing into the Heritage Room of M.K. Brown Auditorium last night were met with a carefully planned presentation of "cold, hard facts" concerning the Pampa Economic Development Corporation (PEDC).

While brief, to-the-point questions delivered in one minute or less were allowed in the second half of the public meeting, general comments from those attending were discouraged by Pampa attorney Phil Vanderpool. Vanderpool moderated the 2 1/2 hour forum sponsored by the Greater Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce.

The three remaining members of the PEDC — Jerry Foote, Lee Porter, and Darville Orr, and two Pampa City Commissioners, Jeff Andrews and Faustina Curry, sat on the panel. Prior to last night's meeting, Pampa City Commissioners accepted the resignation of two other PEDC members, Richard Stowers and Joe Mullenax.

On Nov. 6, Pampa voters will decide whether or not to dissolve the PEDC after hundreds of registered voters last month signed a petition asking for the matter to be placed on the ballot. "At a Chamber board meeting recently we got into a discussion (See PEDC, Page 3)

Commission makes no new PEDC picks Two bond issues get nod

By KATE B. DICKSON Associate Publisher

No new members were named by the City Commission to the Pampa Economic Development Corporation following a closed session Tuesday in which the resignations of two PEDC board members, Richard Stowers and Joe Mullenax, were accepted.

That came at the end of the meeting in which commissioners approved the refinancing, at lower interest rates, of a 1992 city street bond issue and approved a new bond issue to pay for improvements at the water treatment plant as well as some street repairs.

The refinanced bond issue totals $2,775,000, according to figures provided the Commission.

The new bond issue contains $400,000 for street repairs. That amount coupled with water plant improvements totals $2,848,930.

Pickens: CRMWA knowingly did not procure enough water

By DAVID BOWSER Staff Writer

I. Boone Pickens is accusing the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority of knowing it did not purchase enough water in Roberts County for the authority's Conjunctive Use Project.

In a letter to land owners in Roberts County this month, Pickens said that CRMWA has always planned to drain water from beneath neighboring ranches.

CRMWA, with more than 40,000 acres of water rights in Roberts and Hutchinson Counties, said it plans to pump water from the Ogallala Aquifer and mix it with the water it obtains from Lake Meredith in an effort to improve both the quality and quantity of water it supplies to 11 member cities in the Texas Panhandle and South Plains, including Pampa.

In a letter to land owners in Roberts County, Pickens said that CRMWA has always planned to drain water from beneath neighboring ranches.

John Williams, general manager of CRMWA, said this week that the water authority plans on beginning pumping from its Roberts County well field in mid-November.

Pickens, a Roberts County rancher and Dallas businessman, and several of his neighbors, operating as Mesa Water, Inc., have rights to about 150,000 acres and say they want to be able to pump underground water from beneath their ranches and sell it to thirsty cities down state.

Pickens says he and his neighbors have no choice if they wish to realize any financial benefit from the water beneath their ranches. Pickens said

DBA brings Circus Chimera to town this weekend

By KATE B. DICKSON Associate Publisher

Something different is coming to Pampa this weekend in the form of Circus Chimera which will put up its Big top at Recreation Park for two shows each on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Unlike traditional circuses with animals, this one features award-winning performers from nine countries who perform for two hours with acts similar to those seen in a cirque de soleil. Circus Chimera is being brought to town by the Downtown Business Association. Tickets may be purchased at the performances, by calling 1-888-ONE-RING or from Duncan Fraser & Bridges, Rheams Diamond Shop, Tarpley Music, Carousel Expressions, On Eagle's Wings, Kid's Stuff, Holmes Gift Shop, Driters and Best Finance. Tickets are $10 for adults, $6 for juniors and seniors over 65.

Show times are 4:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and Sunday performances will be at 12:30 and 3:30 p.m.

Circus Chimera is headquartered in Hugo, Okla., but performers see very little of that town as they are on the road, or across the ocean, performing from Feb. 1 through Dec. 1.

One of the founders, Jim Judkins, said Circus Chimera was formed four years ago by performers from a variety of of circuses who pooled their assets because they wanted to put together something different.

The big top for Circus Chimera will go up in Recreation Park where there'll be two performances daily Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Texas round up ...

Tug relief captain refuses to testify

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Crew members aboard the Brown Water V woke during the pre-dawn hours of Sept. 15 to the tugboat's relief captain frantically aiming a spotlight up at cars careening off a gaping hole in the middle of the Queen Isabella Causeway.

"He was flaring spotlights at the cars, saying 'I can't get them to stop, I can't get them to stop,'" Rocky Wilson, the tugboat's captain, testified Tuesday.

Wilson was one of two crew members to take the stand during a Coast Guard hearing into what caused the tugboat to lose course that morning, pushing a string of barges into the bridge and causing 240 feet of roadway above to plunge 85 feet into the water.

Eight people died, some of their bodies trapped under tons of concrete wreckage for more than a week before being recovered.

David Fowler of Mobile, Ala., the relief captain who was at the helm during the crash, invoked the Fifth Amendment and declined to testify.

Hearing Officer James Wilson described the proceedings as investigative and expected them to continue through Friday.

No threats, but workers on alert

AUSTIN (AP) — Jack Colley will tell you it's smart to have the Texas Emergency Operations Center activated, even if Texas has confronted no credible terrorist threat and the workers are spending much of their time preparing for the unknown.

"This is a unique activation in that we don't have an incident. At the same time, we'd need to be able to respond very quickly to it," said Colley, assistant state coordinator of the Division of Emergency Management. "With the heightened awareness of this and the sheer devastation seen in New York and Washington, D.C., no one wants to be unprepared to respond."

The Division of Emergency Management assists local government in planning for, responding to, recovering from and mitigating disasters. Its operations center was activated Sunday after the United States launched an aerial strike against military and terrorist threats inside Afghanistan.

"It is at its highest level of security and its highest level of operations and it will be that way for some time in the future," Gov. Rick Perry said this week.

Texas measures 268,000 square miles, with 254 counties and more than 1,400 jurisdictions. Plus, it has the world's largest petrochemical industry and shares a 1,200-mile border with Mexico.

In other words, Texas faces "the full spectrum of risk," Colley said.

The 22,000 square-foot center, housed three stories below the Department of Public Safety headquarters, is self-sufficient, with its own water and sewage system and generators providing backup power.

Texas firms speeding ration production

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Two Texas food companies are reportedly revving up their factory lines to churn out packaged rations for U.S. soldiers and hungry Afghans.

Officials at San Antonio-based Sterling Foods say they were asked to turn up production of bakery and snack foods to meet an expected increased demand for Meals Ready to Eat, called MREs. The high-energy meals are equipped with a heating element.

The factory is operating around the clock and has added 100 jobs since last month's terrorist attacks, John Likovich, president and chief executive officer, told the San Antonio Express-News for Wednesday's editions.

A Cincinnati-based company called HeaterMeals says it was also asked to speed up production. President Tim Zimmerman said the government gave no reason for the request.

The yellow plastic packets of rations dropped by air to Afghans this week contain a notation that they were made by McAllen-based Rightaway Foods, a division of The Wornick Co.

The company, which contracts with the U.S. Department of Defense, won't comment on the rations because of security concerns.

The Humanitarian Daily Ration packets contained peanut butter, strawberry jam, crackers, fruit pastries, and entrees such as beans with tomato sauce, and bean and potato vinaigrette.

The 20-year-old McAllen company has delivered more than 300,000 nonperishable meals to American soldiers.

Planners move toward using huge bunker bursting bombs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leveraging off the apparent success of strikes against air defenses, U.S. war planners are moving toward a new set of weaponry, including 5,000-pound laser-guided bombs to penetrate underground bunkers used by Taliban leaders, senior defense officials said Wednesday.

At the same time, helicopter-borne special forces teams are poised for what is likely to be a prominent role in the next phase of the war.

Air war planners have selected 5,000-pound "bunker-buster" bombs for use against underground command-and-control sites and other hardened bunkers of the Taliban leadership, three senior defense officials said Wednesday. The officials, who discussed the matter on condition they not be identified, said they did not know whether the bunker strikes had been carried out as planned Tuesday.

The GBU-28, whose inventory and performance characteristics are classified secret, was developed for the Gulf War to strike deeply buried targets. It was used on Feb. 27, 1991, against a bunker complex in Iraq.

The officials said U.S. warplanes also would begin dropping cluster munitions for use against moving and stationary land targets such as armored vehicles and troop convoys.

Special forces "will have a significant role in all the areas they are trained to perform in," said Army Col. Bill Darley, a spokesman for U.S. Special Operations Command.

The next phase of the U.S. strikes could include raids by small groups of Army Special Forces soldiers ferried in by low-flying helicopters to rout out terrorist or Taliban leaders, military analysts say. The forces would likely use Black Hawk helicopters, which can carry up to 14 commandos and their gear and have equipment allowing them to fly low and fast at night or in bad weather.

Small teams of British and U.S. special reconnaissance teams were already inside Afghanistan before this week's airstrikes began. But the next deployment is expected to be much larger now that the strikes have paved the way for freer movement of troops.

Aerial bombing will continue as well, Secretary of State Colin Powell said Wednesday.

"There are still targets that are being examined for restrike and there are additional targets" that military commanders are looking at, Powell said on ABC's "Good Morning America."

The air campaign continued for a fourth day Wednesday when jets dropped three bombs near the airport in the southern city of Kandahar in the second straight morning of daylight raids, Taliban sources said.

On Tuesday, the Taliban also reported strikes around Kandahar, the ruling militia's headquarters, and the northwestern city of Herat. Anti-aircraft fire and the roar of jets could be heard in the capital, Kabul, at night.

Pentagon officials said the Taliban's meager air defenses had largely been wiped out.

"Essentially we have air supremacy over Afghanistan now," Air Force Gen. Richard Myers, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said at a joint news conference with Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld.

That was disputed by the Taliban envoy to Pakistan, Abdul Salam Zaeef.

The "claim that they destroyed the defense capability of the Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan is not true," he said Wednesday. "American planes are flying very high, and the defense system that we have, they are not in the range of what we have."

Zaeef also said the fighters of Northern Alliance had failed to make advances against Taliban forces despite the U.S.-led air strikes. Rebels trying to topple the Taliban said they were being bolstered by the American-led air campaign.

Weather focus

PAMPA — Today, mostly cloudy and much cooler with a 20 percent chance of showers. Highs in the upper 60s. North to northeast winds 10 to 20 mph.

Tonight, partly cloudy with lows 40 to 45. Light and variable winds.

Thursday, partly cloudy with highs in the lower 70s. South winds 5 to 15 mph.

STATEWIDE — Strong thunderstorms, including the possibility of tornadoes, were forecast for Texas Wednesday as a strong cold front began moving through the Panhandle.

So far, only a thin line of showers has developed between Georgetown and Longview, along with scattered rainfall along the upper Gulf coast near Beaumont and Galveston.

The front stretched from near Tucumcari, N.M., to south of Amarillo and South Central Kansas.

Conditions in North Texas were muggy and warm.

Early-morning temperatures ranged from the upper 70s along the upper Texas coast to mid-50s behind the cold front in Dalhart.

Winds were generally south-east at 10 to 20 mph, except in the northern Panhandle where they were north at 10 to 15 mph.

The National Weather Service predicted rain totals of as much as four inches as storms move through the Houston-Galveston area later. Hail and isolated twisters could also result from storms in North and West Texas, forecasters said.

A chance of showers and thunderstorms, mainly in Northwest Texas, remained in the forecast.

Daytime highs before the front's passage should reach the mid-80s.

Behind the front, lows overnight should drop to the lower 60s along the Red River.

PICKENS

that unless the landowners pump their own groundwater, CRMWA and the City of Amarillo, who holds some 70,000 acres of water rights in Roberts County, will suck the water from beneath the ranchers' property, leaving them with nothing.

"It is now clear that CRMWA does not own enough water rights," Pickens said in a letter to Roberts County landowners, "and has known all along that it did not purchase enough water to support its Conjunctive Use Project in Roberts County. CRMWA always intended to drain the water from the surrounding ranches."

Mesa filed a lawsuit August 13, to stop CRMWA from pumping water in Roberts County.

The first arguments in the suit are scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 18, in 31st District Court in Miami.

"The main points to be addressed on the 18th will be the sufficiency of CRMWA's Takings Impact Assessment," Pickens says.

In their lawsuit under the Texas Private Real Property Rights Preservation Act of 1995, Mesa said CRMWA can't legally take water from beneath the ranchers' property without paying the ranchers for it. Mesa noted that no takings impact assessment had been completed by CRMWA in accordance with the private property act.

CRMWA is expected to adopt a takings impact assessment at their monthly meeting today in Plainview.

After the lawsuit was filed, Pickens said, CRMWA performed an assessment.

"But rather than doing what the law requires, CRMWA had their lawyer prepare a legal argument that they did not have to tell the public what its pumping is going to do to the water under neighboring lands," Pickens said.

CRMWA is protesting Mesa's pumping permit application now before the Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District.

The landowners involved with Mesa filed applications in September, 2000, for permits to pump one acre-foot per year per acre of water rights held, the same amount allowed in permits issued to CRMWA and Amarillo by the Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District.

CIRCUS

Judkins said Circus Chimera uses a single ring so the audience can focus on "one thing" rather than trying to take in what's happening in three or five rings.

Some traveling shows, he said "cut down" their performances for the smaller stops but not Circus Chimera.

"We'll give the same show in Pampa and Hereford that we'll give in San Francisco or Los Angeles," Judkins said.

About 100 people make up the cast and crew of Circus Chimera traveling and living together in what Judkins says "is a good life. We're all like family and it gives everyone a chance to learn about different cultures."

Judkins said each act is choreographed and set to music designed especially for that performance.

He said the Circus tells a story that unfolds in front of the audience's eyes, but also forms in the imagination and daring that created Circus Chimera.

Acts featured include those from Argentina, Brazil, Mexico, China and Russia.

Some of the acts include:

- The Rosales Family of Mexico performing the Wheel of Destiny on which four persons revolve at breath-taking speeds as well as individual performances by each

- From China, Xiaohong Wu will present the ancient art of foot juggling

- An ensemble of athletic performers will present high-paced jump rope routines

- The Chimal Family of Mexico performs an adventure on the teeterboard featuring a triple somersault to the chair and to a four-man high pyramid as well as individual juggling and suspended rings acts.

- And there's more ...

Hooters waitress wants to sue over beer selling contest prize

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — A judge will decide whether a Hooters waitress can sue over a toy Yoda she got for winning a beer selling contest instead of the Toyota car she says had been promised.

Jodee Berry contends the owners of a Panama City Hooters promised a new car to the waitress who sold the most beer. Instead Berry says she was blindfolded and led to the parking lot, only to find a toy Yoda "Star Wars" doll.

Lawyers for the restaurant argued Berry couldn't sue because she had agreed in writing when hired not to sue her employer without going to a mediator.

Berry's lawyer said Berry didn't realize what she had signed and had no option but to sign it.

about the PEDC. It became clear that the facts belied what both sides were saying," explained Chuck White, Chamber president, as he opened the meeting. "We decided that we ought to lay down for everyone what the facts are — the cold hard facts."

White said he hoped that the information presented would give voters what they needed to make an informed decision regarding the PEDC on Nov. 6.

The first part of the meeting was spent with panelists answering nine pre-determined questions: what is an EDC, how does it operate, how does it get its leads, what are its specific objectives, can the Chamber do the same thing as an EDC, what has our EDC done, what are the economics of this effort, what and where are the jobs, and what is the economic impact on Pampa.

In this presentation, officials pointed out that 21 economic development projects have been undertaken by the PEDC since it began eight years ago. Sales tax revenues presented at the meeting indicate a total of $6.058 million from the half-cent sales tax has been collected for the PEDC during this time.

As a result of these projects, the PEDC offered total financial incentives of $6.7 million to the 19 businesses involved and has incurred a total debt of $2.8 million — currently paid down to $2.3 million.

Also as a result of its work, panel members said the PEDC has brought in or retained 260 jobs in the community with a total payroll of $28.5 million, and increased taxable property values by $5.4 million.

"I feel like that's what we're all about," said Foote.

Panelists spoke candidly about problems that have arisen with certain projects — particularly U.S. Bus, Fork Stork Manufacturing, Promise Land Park Models, and the Coronado Inn.

"I may be naive about this issue, but what I would like to know is, what are the procedures you go through to determine if these companies are okay? Do you check their backgrounds? Do each of you go out and check on these loans?" asked Jeannie Mitchell.

Porter replied that the PEDC director checks out applications through credit checks, criminal history, financial information provided to them.

"You know, though, that anything written down can be changed," he said. Applicants also go through a series of interviews with the board and they must present a business plan.

"Everybody needs to understand that these are usually not bankable projects," Foote interjected. "There's been some projects to me that as a banker I'm uncomfortable with, but they remind me that this is different. It's more of a venture capital. That's the way we look at it. We know most are not bankable deals, but they're close to bankable."

Andrews added, "One of our problems is we can't provide $40 million to bring in a company like Textron. The level of company that comes to Pampa EDC is not totally bankable."

Karan Son asked, "Why did you set this forum up where we can't make comments, where we can only ask questions?"

"There seems to be some frustration out there. We wanted to give an opportunity to ask questions in a timely manner and an appropriate manner," Vanderpool answered. "These people (indicating the panelists) have come up here on their volunteer time to answer these questions."

He pointed out that the public has had opportunities to make comments at the PEDC Board and City Commission meetings. Curry added, however, that the officials cannot legally respond to these comments.

"By law, the board is not allowed to answer questions unless it has been placed on the agenda and given proper notice," she explained.

"If the petition on the ballot for doing away with the PEDC is passed," asked Lilit Brainard, "will Pampa ever have another EDC?"

"The way the wording is, it is mandated by state law that if the EDC is dissolved, the tax will continue until the (debt) obligation is met," Andrews replied. "The city could call another election to create a new 4A or 4B (EDC), but it would have to start up after the end of the debt."

"If the EDC is defunct in 30 days, what time frame are we looking at to get out of debt?" asked Charles Smith.

"We haven't put a pencil to that, but I would guess from four to six years," said Foote. "It will take several years to get all of that debt paid off."

"How do the major corporations feel about the absence of an EDC?" asked Dr. Joe Lowry, past Chamber president and pathologist at Pampa Regional Medical Center. "I know my answer is, 'Damn negative!' How do you think the others feel?"

"I will say a major corporation coming into an area looks at the results of the United Way drive and if a community is user-friendly to incoming corporations," Foote replied.

Andrews added that Celanese had been active in looking for and recruiting businesses that would benefit the local chemical plant, as well as having two Celanese executives — former plant manager Riley Kothmann and Mullenax, human resources leader — serve as PEDC board members.

NPD

"I suspect we'll hear from them around the first of November. By the first to mid-November, we'll know something," he said.

NPD is in the "early stages" of preparing to build the facility, he said.

"We're talking to business leaders and setting up the bidding for dirt work. As soon as we're able to, we'll be letting bids," he said.

"Shortly after the first of the year would be a reasonable date (to begin building)," he said.

Carter said he hasn't considered the possibility of not receiving TNRCC approval.

"I've not given much thought to that. I just feel there are so many factors that are so positive," he explained. "We're bringing good to the community, our environmental responsibility. I'm confident we don't need a contingency plan."

"This is the only site we're looking at. We went through quite an in-depth search before deciding on Pampa. We looked through the whole Southwest and everything pointed us to Pampa," he said.

Despite Carter's assurance, a group of local citizens fear that establishing a swine facility in this area will endanger the Ogallala Aquifer. On several occasions, local citizens have voiced their concerns that the proposed facility will have adverse effect on the community.

Carter, who has attended several public meetings where these citizens have spoken, said his company isn't daunted by the negative reaction to their project.

"I know the group is small, but it has been vocal," he commented, adding, "but I continue to meet so many people who are open-minded and so encouraging. There are a lot of people that are in favor of us coming here but they've just not spoken out.

"There's a lot that are willing to listen to science and when it's presented in that manner, they understand what we're trying to do," Carter said.

As NPD general manager, Carter brings a keen interest in the science of agriculture balanced with a strong business acumen drawn from his father, a certified public accountant. Educated in animal science and business at the University of Georgia, Carter said he became interested in farming while a college student.

Now, after 25 years in the farming industry, he said he's seen "great progress" in farming and greater environmental awareness.

Carter said he and his wife Allison and their four children — Nathanael, David, Stephanie and Johanna — have a small contract farm in Virginia where they raise pigs for NPD — a prototype genetic nucleus research facility run by his 15-year-old son.

"We've shipped pigs to Utah, Missouri, and other locations in North Carolina," he said with pride.

It's a family affair, Carter said, with David taking on most of the responsibility during the week. Carter's two daughters also help, he said.

His wife Allison home-schools the children, who are active in 4-H and recently competed in the state fair with their beehives and livestock.

NPD holds a "very good environmental record" and is a leader in the genetic research field, he said, adding, "I know we'll be a good corporate citizen. I have a lot of confidence in the people of Pampa being able to see that."

Carter said he wants to emphasize to the community that NPD wants to make a long-term commitment to the area.

"I see such a strong association and ultimate good to both (NPD and the community) being possible," he said.

COMMISSION

The street work, mostly sealing and some reconstruction, is currently under way.

Because the refinancing was done at lower interest rates as well as how the new issue is structured, annual city debt payments will not rise, said Ken Smith of SWS Securities in Dallas.

The bond issues have been under discussion for months after the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission cited the city for problems at the water treatment plant.

One problem related to the amount of organic particles (turbidity) in the water and the other to detention time — how long treatment chemicals stay in contact with the water, officials said previously.

A new system, which will allow the city to use its full six-million-gallon capacity while meeting all treatment requirements, will be installed soon, according to city officials. Bids on the active system, called Acti-Flo, are due this week. Tests to see if the system would work properly here were run last winter.

Commissioner Jeff Andrews cast the lone no vote against the bond issues although he said later there really is no option but bonds in order to have the needed money.

After the meeting, Andrews explained it was his way of protesting TNRCC edicts. He said for about the past seven years the city has had to pay about $1 million a year in order to meet various TNRCC directives.

In other action, the Commission unanimously approved an ordinance relative to backflow prevention as it relates to water lines.

Public Works Director Richard Morris told commissioners the city is now abiding by the regulations which primarily affect sprinkler systems. He said the ordinance is necessary to comply with a TRNCC requirement.

Discovery told of large dinosaur remains in Australia

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — Scientists on Wednesday revealed they have uncovered fossilized fragments of a large dinosaur which may be unique to Australia.

The giant animal has been named "Elliot" after a family member of the rancher who first discovered its fossil in central Queensland state in 1999. The find was kept secret until Wednesday so paleontol-ogists could excavate the site without disturbance.

Queensland Museum paleontologist Steve Salisbury said Elliot is the largest dinosaur ever found in Australia and belongs to the sauropod group.

Researchers believe the vegetarian would have been between 48 and 63 feet long and would have weighed more than 30 tons.

Florida anthrax may be linked to Iowa strain

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — FBI agents wearing white moon suits and gas masks scoured the newspaper offices of two men whose exposure to anthrax has prompted heightened fear of bioterrorism across the country.

The search turned up no further sign of anthrax in Robert Stevens' office since traces were discovered on his computer keyboard. Stevens, 63, a photo editor with the Sun tabloid, died last week of inhaled anthrax, a rare, particularly lethal form of the disease.

Preliminary testing at the federal labs on the anthrax that killed Stevens has found a possible match to a strain connected to an Iowa lab, a law enforcement official said Wednesday. The official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said further testing to definitively make the match could take several days.

Anthrax spores also were found in the nose of mailroom worker Ernesto Blanco, 73. He remained in good condition at an area hospital, Florida health department spokesman Tim O'Connor said.

Years Of Resentment Washed Away By Decision To Forgive

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing in response to "Controlled and Trapped," the 18-year-old woman who was forbidden by her mother to visit "Tom" in Tennessee unless she took a chaperone. She never did go, and she regretted it for the next 40 years. She finally got her own apartment, but continued to feel deep resentment toward her mother. You recommended counseling.

I am a 67-year-old retired M.D. who happens to be gay. I, too, felt controlled and trapped by my parents when I was younger. Over the years, I was counseled by two psychiatrists and three psychotherapists. Even after all that psychiatric help, I still felt great resentment toward my folks. However, after I moved to Los Angeles, I was fortunate enough to find a mentor.

One day, my mentor said something that forever cracked my shell of resentment and anger. He said, "Armand, your parents behaved the way they did because they didn't know any better!" I suddenly realized that both my parents had only sixth-grade educations, and had they known better, they probably would have treated me differently.

When I asked my mentor if I should forgive my parents, he said, "You got it! You'll have to forgive them every time they come to mind."

You know what? It took quite a while, but I persisted and it paid off. Finally, all my anger and resentment dissipated. I cried tears of joy for my newfound freedom and peace of mind. Then I actually began feeling love in my heart toward my parents.

Softly, slowly ... love heals. I read your column faithfully. Keep up the good work.

ARMAND AUGER, M.D., LOS ANGELES

DEAR ARMAND: Your mentor led you to a beautiful realization. Sometimes difficult situations are resolved by simple truths.

DEAR ABBY: I am in love with "Errol." But he has one big flaw. He has a habit of staring at other women's bodies. Specifically, their chests. I'm not talking about just a glance at a well-endowed female. Errol literally stares until the lady is out of sight.

I find it annoying and embarrassing. We have discussed it many times, but he refuses to admit there is anything abnormal about his behavior. He says all men do it. I have dated other men and have never experienced this problem.

Errol says he loves me, and I believe him. Other than his staring, our relationship is wonderful, and I don't want to leave him. However, I'm afraid his obsession will eventually come between us. What are your thoughts on this?

IN LOVE WITH A LEERER

DEAR IN LOVE: Glancing at other people is normal. Staring is considered rude, inconsiderate and a sign of immaturity. It's also demeaning to one's companion.

Since your boyfriend knows how his staring makes you feel and has made it clear he has no intention of altering his behavior, I'd say your relationship with him is already a bust.

Notebook CROSS COUNTRY

CANADIAN — Pampa's Lady Harvesters scored 52 points to win the Canadian Cross Country meet by one point over Berger last weekend.

Rebecca Fatheree led the Lady Harvesters with a first-place finish in a time of 12:06. T'Andra Holmes was sixth (13:08) and Carly Mathews eighth (13:12) for Pampa.

FOOTBALL

CANADIAN — Canadian, a 42-21 loser to Highland Park last week, is favored by 32 points over Clarendon Friday night, according to the Harris Ratings.

Kickoff is 7:30 at Clarendon.

Canadian is 2-3 for the season and 1-1 in district. Clarendon is 2-3 overall and 0-2 in district.

The Wildcats trailed WT High by only 14-6 at halftime last weekend, but the Commanches scored four straight touchdowns to pull away for the victory.

Scoring touchdowns for Canadian were Brian Carr (10-yard run) and Jay English (31-yard run). The Wildcats scored a touchdown through the air on Riley Morris' 15-yard strike to Anthony Newcomb.

VOLLEYBALL

PAMPA — Pampa defeated Caprock 15-7, 15-5, in District 3-4A volleyball action Tuesday night.

"It was an unselfish effort on our part. It was a great team victory," said Pampa coach Carmen Pennick.

The Lady Harvesters are now 2-9 in district play.

Pampa plays at Canyon on Saturday.

PAMPA — The City of Pampa's Recreation Department will be holding an organizational meeting for adult volleyball leagues Tuesday, Oct. 16, starting at 8 p.m. in the Pampa High School fieldhouse.

Anyone interested in playing, coaching or officiating adult volleyball games, is welcome to attend the meeting.

If enough interest is generated, leagues will be formed and games will be played at Pampa Middle School.

For more information, contact the Recreation Department at 669-5770.

HOCKEY

DALLAS (AP) — Ken Hitchcock made an example of Donald Audette. Jere Lehtinen is sure Dallas Stars teammates got the coach's message.

Lehtinen scored two second-period goals, and Ed Belfour made 25 saves as the Stars beat the Los Angeles Kings 2-1 Tuesday night to remain unbeaten in the American Airlines Center.

Dallas' victory came on the heels of a lackluster 3-0 loss at Carolina on Sunday, a performance so poor that Hitchcock benched Audette, who signed with the Stars as a free agent in the offseason.

Lehtinen is convinced the Stars are rounding into form.

"We didn't play well at Carolina, then we didn't play well tonight in the first period," Lehtinen said. "But Eddie kept us going, then we picked it up in the second period."

Beating the winless Kings (0-2-1) was not enough to convince Hitchcock.

"Belfour and Lehtinen were terrific," Hitchcock said. "But there are still too many people playing below the pace of the game."

Flashback

1952: Woodrow Wilson and Sam Houston had victories in the Pampa Peeewe Basketball Leagues.

Woodrow Wilson, led by David Marlar's 22 points, defeated Horace Mann 52-16.

Gary Green had 16 points in Sam Houston's 32-25 win over Baker.

Home win streak at 27 for Pampa team

PAMPA — The 10th-ranked Pampa Harvesters extended their home win streak to 27 in a row by defeated Caprock 17-2 in a fall tennis match Tuesday.

The Pampa netters swept doubles to take a 7-0 lead. Pampa was led by seniors A. J. Smith and Jared Spearman.

"I was so proud of the way A.J. and Jared bounced back from their disappointing losses at Dumas. They are winners, so I knew they would bounce back," said coach Carolyn Quarles.

Pampa boys won all nine of their matches to lead the team to victory.

"I love coaching this team because they compete so hard and love the game," Coach Quarles said.

Pampa plays Canyon on Saturday for the District 3-4A championship.

"Our seniors have won district every year and we'll need their leadership this week to get ready for Canyon," Quarles said.

The Harvesters lead the district with an 11-0 record.

Players of the week are the girls doubles team, and also Smith and Spearman. Girls doubles won all three matches with three-set victories.

LYON, France (AP) — Top-seeded Gustavo Kuerten, No. 1 in the ATP Champions Race, started his indoor season with a 7-6 (1), 6-2 loss to Ivan Ljubicic in the first round of the Lyon Grand Prix.

Also, third-seeded Marat Safin beat Franco Squillari; Jonas Bjorkman topped Christian Vinck; Julien Benneteau defeated Gianluca Pozzi; and Sebastien Grosjean beat Julien Boutter.

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Carlos Moya became the third seeded player to lose at the CA Trophy when he was beaten by Thomas Enqvist 2-6, 6-3, 7-6 (3) in the first round. Moya was seeded eighth in the $800,000 tournament.

Jan-Michael Gambill pulled out of the event because of a shoulder injury and was replaced by Nicolas Massu.

Those other Cowboys have a perfect record

PAMPA — Operating Company Cowboys claimed a 26-0 win over the Raiders in Tiger League football action last weekend.

Jerrold Bivins had an outstanding game both offensively and defensively to lead the Cowboys to their fourth win in a row in the 5th-6th grade division. Bivins had 6 solo tackles, 4 coming in the Raiders backfield. He also had 7 assisted tackles, broke up a pass, and caused a fumble that was recovered by teammate Drew Williams.

The Cowboys started the scoring on their first possession as Bivins broke loose on a 25-yard touchdown scamper to make the score 6-0 in the first quarter. The Cowboys offense was moving deep into Raider territory in the second quarter, but Colby Greenhouse was stopped at the 4-yard line as time ran out the first half.

The Cowboys received the second half and moved to their own 23. From there, Williams went up the middle for seven yards, followed by a 10-yard run by Greenhouse and a 20-yard run by Adam Estrada using some nifty moves. Bivins then broke loose for a 40-yard touchdown run and Estrada added the 2-point conversion run.

The Cowboys defense stopped the Raiders at their own 35. It took just three plays for the Cowboys to score again with Jack Ware going over from the 15. That made the score 20-0 after three quarters.

The Cowboys Thomas Fraser caused a fumble that was recovered by teammate Josh Mulkey, at the Raider 40. The Cowboys again moved quickly to score in just three plays as Bivins scored on a 12-yard run to make it the final 26-0.

The Cowboys are leading the league with a 4-0 record. They meet the 3-1 Packers next weekend.

Pampa games are played at the middle school field.

Indians take playoff opener

SEATTLE (AP) — While closing in on history last week, the Seattle Mariners couldn't escape hearing about their unbelievable record.

They still can't. They're 0-1.

Just days after tying a 95-year-old record with their 116th win, the Mariners lost Game 1 of the AL playoffs on Tuesday as Bartolo Colon pitched eight shutout innings in the Cleveland Indians' surprising 5-0 win over Seattle.

This wasn't the way it was supposed to be. The Mariners came in as heavy favorites to beat the Indians, who weren't given much of a chance despite winning their sixth AL Central title in seven years.

Until now.

"The postseason is real weird," Indians first baseman Jim Thome said. "We would for sure have taken a split when we came out here."

Ellis Burks went 3-for-4 with a homer as the Indians outplayed the Mariners, who ran away with AL West.

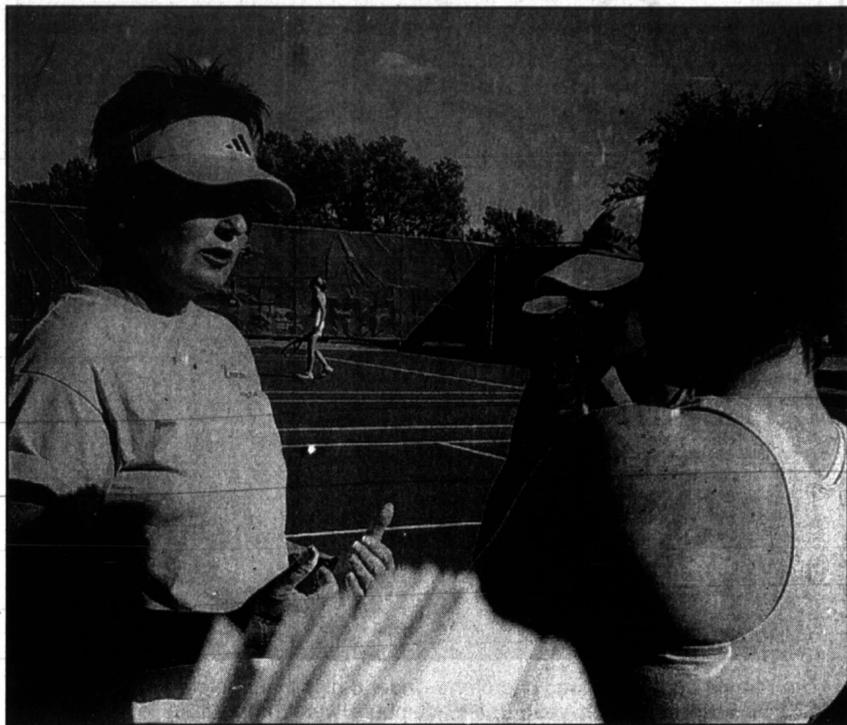

"There's no reason to panic," second baseman Bret Boone said. "We've come too far, and this club is too good to panic at this point."

Colon dominated the Mariners, who led the league in batting average, runs and virtually every other offensive category. He gave up six hits, struck out 10 and allowed only one runner to reach third base — and that was on a throwing error.

"He told us on the flight, 'Give me a couple runs and I'll do the job,'" Burks said. "He did. He was just overmatching those guys."

The Indians won a playoff opener for just the third time in 11 series since 1995.

"We're here and we deserve to be here," Burks said. "We didn't sneak in. We won our division by seven games."

Jones lifts Braves past Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Greg Maddux thought he pitched one of the best games of his career and was losing when he left. Rey Sanchez, the shortstop acquired for his glove, made an error that put his team behind. And closer John Smoltz gave up a ninth-inning homer.

All those things went wrong for Atlanta — and right for Houston — and the Braves still beat the Astros 7-4 Tuesday in Game 1 of their best-of-five series.

"It's always good to get off to a good start," said Brian Jordan, who put Atlanta ahead 2-0 with a sacrifice fly and a solo homer. "It takes a little pressure off."

The Braves have yet to know the meaning of pressure against the Astros. Atlanta swept a first-round series in 1997 and won three straight after losing the opener in 1999.

"You can't say things like we're a jinxed team," Houston star Jeff Bagwell said. "Someone still had to make the error and someone hit a three-run home run. You have to give credit to them. It was a tough situation."

The Braves trailed 3-2 going into the seventh even though Maddux said he "pitched about as well as I can pitch." He allowed three runs, two earned, on four hits with five strikeouts and three walks, his most since June 15. He ended two innings with double-play grounders.

Houston was boosted by a great start from Wade Miller and a two-run homer by Brad Ausmus. Sanchez's error put Julio Lugo on first base to open the sixth inning, and Moises Alou later drove him in with a groundout.

The Braves' eighth-inning rally was started by pinch-hitter Keith Lockhart, who doubled and scored on a single by Marcus Giles. Then Julio Franco hit a grounder to Lugo at shortstop that should've been an inning-ending double play — but wasn't.

Lugo's error led to a pitching change, setting up a showdown between Astros closer Billy Wagner and Braves slugger Chipper Jones.

Jones was 0-for-8 with six strikeouts in his career against Wagner and was hitting right-handed, the side that produced only eight of his 38 homers this season.

It didn't matter. Jones sent the first pitch just over the wall in left field for the go-ahead homer. It was the seventh straight playoff game in which the Astros blew a save.

Smoltz pitched the final two innings for his first playoff save as a full-time closer; he had one in his days as a starter. Andruw Jones gave him an insurance run with a leadoff homer in the top of the ninth, then Smoltz allowed a leadoff shot by Vinny Castilla in the bottom of the inning.

Harvesters favored by 10

PAMPA — Pampa enters Friday night's District 3-4A clash with Dumas a 10-point favorite according to the Harris Ratings.

Both teams have 2-3 overall records, but Pampa is 1-1 in district play while Dumas is looking for its first loop win after two setbacks.

One of those losses was a 34-15 shellacking last week at the hands of Palo Duro, who barely got past the Harvesters 10-7 two weeks ago.

The Demons' offense was hampered when tailback Jose Vargas left the game with an ankle injury in the third quarter. Vargas, a 168-pound senior, has been the workhorse in the Demons' backfield this year.

"Vargas is their top running back," said Pampa head coach Dennis Cavalier said. "We're not sure what his situation is now."

Pampa is currently in a four-way tie for third with Berger, Canyon and Hereford in the district standings. Palo Duro and Randall are tied for first at 2-0. Caprock and Dumas are both winless at 0-2.

The Pampa-Dumas kickoff is at 7:30 in Harvester Stadium.

Shilling hurls masterpiece at Cards

PHOENIX (AP) — The Arizona Diamondbacks played the first of their pair of aces and came away a shutout winner.

Curt Schilling picked up where he left off in his last post-season appearance eight years ago, pitching a three-hit, 1-0 masterpiece against the St. Louis Cardinals on Tuesday night in Game 1 of their NL playoff series.

It was the most impressive performance thus far in what has been Schilling's greatest season.

"Given the circumstances and everything that was riding on this ballgame, that was about as good as I've seen him," Arizona manager Bob Brenly said.

The Diamondbacks planned to send Randy Johnson to the mound Wednesday in Game 2. "I feel bad for the Cardinals," Luis Gonzalez said.

Schilling won a dramatic duel with Maft Morris, a matchup of baseball's only 22-game winners this season.

Eight years apart, Schilling has thrown consecutive post-season shutouts. He pitched a five-hitter for Philadelphia in the 1993 World Series, and nights like this are why Arizona acquired him from the Phillies in July last year.

"The no-hitter through eight innings in San Diego was good, but I think tonight was even better," catcher Damian Miller said. "For him to come out in this atmosphere in the first game of the playoffs and just completely dominate a team, that's what separates tonight from that game in San Diego."

He completed his victory by retiring one of the toughest trios any pitcher can face — J.D. Drew, Albert Pujols and Jim Edmonds — in the ninth inning. Schilling gave up 37 homers this season, tied for most in the NL.

"I knew I had three guys up that could tie the ballgame, and unfortunately I've learned some lessons giving up home runs late in a ballgame," Schilling said. "My concentration was on location, and mentally, Damian and I were together. It was just a good flow late in the game."

Steve Finley was 3-for-4, including a two-out, RBI single in the fifth inning after Arizona squandered scoring threats in the first and fourth.

"Usually when a team misses their chances, it comes back to haunt you," St. Louis manager Tony La Russa said, "but Schilling was just masterful. He is just a real pitcher. He did everything he had to do with the baseball."

Schilling's 5-6 record for the stretch last year is a distant memory.

Schilling, overcoming a sore hip that started stiffening in the early innings, improved to 2-1 in the post-season in five starts with a 2.45 ERA.

He baffled batters with a fastball that hit 97 mph, a split-finger fastball, backdoor slider and a few slow curves. He struck out nine and walked one.

"From the beginning of the game, watching Curt from center field, I had a real good feeling we were going to win," Finley said. "I had a good feeling that if we put at least a run on the board, with his stuff it could have a chance to be lights out."

Edgar Renteria got two of the hits, a leadoff single in the third and a one-out double in the fourth. Jim Edmonds doubled with one out in the seventh for the other St. Louis hit.

Morris allowed one run and six hits, three of them doubles, before being lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth. He struck out six, walked two and, in what turned out to be a crucial play, hit one batter.

"I don't know how many pitches I threw — 120 or something," Morris said. "One or two of them decided the ballgame. You know Curt's going to go out there and put up zeros. All I can do is go out there and try to keep stride with him."

Morris grazed Miller, the leadoff batter, with a pitch in the fifth inning, then Schilling put down a sacrifice bunt with two strikes to move Miller to second.

"It nipped off his leg, and they end up moving him over, and a single scores him with two out," Morris said. "Two-out hits decide these ballgames. I almost wish I'd hit him in the back, if he's going to take first. But who knew that run was going to decide the game?"

After Womack fled to left for the second out, Finley lined a shot up the middle to drive in Miller from second.

Gonzalez nearly added to the damage with a fly to deep right-center, but Edmonds made a leaping grab at the top of the fence in front of the swimming pool to end the inning.

The Diamondbacks stranded four runners in the first four innings, three of in scoring position with less than two outs. In all, they left 11 runners on base.

Wright is No. 1 Dallas QB again

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Anthony Wright is the starting quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys again. But it's unlikely to stay that way — no matter how well he plays.

Rookie Quincy Carter is out 4-to-6 weeks with a torn left hamstring. He has played less than five quarters, but Cowboys coach Dave Campo says he'll start again when he's healthy.

"It really doesn't change the plan at all. The commitment is the fact that we feel that he's the guy that's going to be the next excellent quarterback in the league," Cowboys coach Dave Campo said Tuesday. "We want to see that develop."

Wright will be the starter Monday night when the Cowboys (0-4) play Washington. The third-year player started two games when Carter was out with an injured thumb, then finished last Sunday's 28-21 loss at Oakland after the rookie tore his hamstring in the first quarter.

Wright is 33-for-70 for 352 yards with five touchdowns and four interceptions and has been on the field for 44 of Dallas' 66 points this season. But Campo said Wright is only filling his role, that of a backup quarterback.

"He's an excellent team player. The thing I like about him the most, he's probably upset. And rightfully so," Campo said. "I like that because I think what he's doing, he's showcasing his talent, for us and for anybody else that's looking at him. And that benefits both of us."

Wright still plans to view the next few weeks as a chance to prove to somebody — if not the Cowboys — that he can lead teams to victory.

Then again, Wright is 0-4 as a starter. His only starts before this season were the last two games of 2000, when he lost both while replacing concussion-prone Troy Aikman, who retired during the offseason.

The Cowboys want to get a true evaluation of Carter, their top pick in the April draft (second round, 53rd pick overall). He was anointed as the starter when veteran Tony Banks was suddenly released midway through the preseason.

Carter's only full game was a season-opening 10-6 loss to Tampa Bay. He was 9-of-19 passing for 34 yards with two interceptions, but the game plan for the rookie's first start was very limited.

"I want to see him handle the game," Campo said. "I want to see him execute a full game plan, throw the ball down the field, handle all situations. That's where the evaluation comes in."

No surgery will be required, but it will be at least three weeks before Carter will have enough mobility to begin even moderate workouts. The best-case scenario for playing in a game again is early November.

Carter sprained the thumb on his throwing hand in practice the week after his first start. He missed two games before returning as the starter in Oakland.

"Both of these injuries have been weird to me. It didn't look like I was that hurt," Carter said. "I'm going to take it in stride like I've taken everything else in stride."

Clint Stoerner (4-for-7 for 44 yards and two TDs) will be the backup.

Campo said the Cowboys could go into Monday's game with only two quarterbacks, but they have renewed talks with Ryan Leaf, the 1998 first-round draft pick.

Leaf was prepared to join Dallas right before the season, but failed a physical because of a tendon injury in his right wrist.

PHS theater students recently performed a program for local and area school children. The play was entitled, "The Trial of the Big Bad Wolf." Above: (back row, left-right) Lindsay Smith, Ashley Freeman, Zach Rogers, Ben Briscoe, Chelsie Powers, A.J. Swope, Keelei Braswell; (middle, l-r) Chris Johnson, Jessica Hill, Amber Bowers, Richard Conner, Luke Dyer, Chelsea Dyer; (front) Vanessa Orr, Kasey Presson and Sarah Fraser.

PHS Theatre Department holds Children's Program

Approximately 1,000 local and area elementary students attended Pampa High School Theatre Departments children's program, "The Trial of the Big Bad Wolf," recently.

An adaptation of the story of "The Three Little Pigs," the tumbling, high-jumping wolf, played by Richard Conner, had to endure a trial witnessed by a deceitful press.

The "jury" included Cinderella, Humpty-Dumpty, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sprat and Little Miss Muffet, all of who managed humorous distortions of their roles in nursery rhymes. The dancing three little pigs added their own quarrels.

During the course of the lively performance, the judge pronounced he would write a book and part of the proceeds would go to charity — until it was discovered that "Charity" was his money-spending, high school teenager.

In the end, the newspaper reporters along with the town crier learned to report factually, concluding with the rest of the characters that honesty was the best policy.

AAUW to host public forum on gender discrimination in higher education

AMARILLO — Amarillo chapter of American Association of University Women (AAUW) will host a public forum at 10 a.m., Saturday, Oct. 13 in the Southwest Neuroscience Center, 1000 S. Coulter, Amarillo. Refreshments will be served.

The forum will deal with discriminatory practices in colleges and universities such as sexual harassment, denial of tenure or promotion, pay inequity or inequality in women's athletic programs.

These issues are of great concern to members of AAUW, and the AAUW Legal Advocacy Fund provides legal advice and financial resources for women involved in discriminatory lawsuits against colleges or universities.

Sonya Letson, a lawyer and a member of the AAUW Amarillo Chapter, will serve as coordinator for the meeting. She will present a short video dealing with AAUW Legal Advocacy Fund's services. Special guest will be Dr. Lucinda Miller of Amarillo who has served as professor of pharmacy practice at Texas Tech Health Sciences Center.

Dr. Miller is currently a plaintiff in a lawsuit dealing with a denial of tenure, and she has been the recipient of services provided by AAUW Legal Advocacy Fund. She will explain the procedures involved in applying to the Legal Advocacy Fund and what sort of assistance is available.

After the video presentation by Dr. Miller, the audience is encouraged to ask questions concerning legal issues involved in gender discrimination.

AAUW was launched in 1881 as a professional membership organization for women who were college graduates. The organization now accepts men into membership as well; the only requirement is a degree from an accredited college or university in any field.

The first major endeavor AAUW undertook was in 1884, when it inspected sanitary conditions of a school in Washington, D.C., and presented its findings to Congress. A year later, for its second project, it published a report debunking the popular notion that higher education impaired a woman's health.

In 1920, members of AAUW provided a financial gift of $156,413 to Mme. Marie Curie, Nobel Prize winner for physics, so she could purchase one gram of radium for her research. And in 1975, Judith Resnik was awarded an AAUW Foundation Fellowship. She later became the second woman astronaut and was a crew member of the ill-fated Challenger flight.

Now 120-years-old, AAUW boasts approximately 1,950 branches and nearly 200,000 members around the United States.

For more information about the upcoming meeting or to learn more about AAUW, contact Letson at (806) 358-214 (voice mail).

LaNella Hensley and Pat Winkleblack of Magic Plains Chapter of the American Business Woman's Association recently presented a scholarship on behalf of the local ABWA to Melody Seele, top, and to Charity Natchigall, bottom.

Chat event to address student financial aid, scholarship search issues

AUSTIN — An upcoming online chat event will give students and families an opportunity to ask counselors about financial aid or scholarship searches. Mapping Your Future (<http://mapping-your-future.org>), a public service web site co-sponsored by Texas Guaranteed (TG) and other student loan guarantee agencies, will host the event on October 11, 2001.

The live event, scheduled for 6 to 7 p.m. (Central), is designed to help students navigate through what some consider a maze of career, college and financial aid information—all from the privacy and convenience of a personal computer.

Financial aid professionals from across the country will participate and answer questions about:

- Determining eligibility for federal student aid
- Completing the FAFSA application
- Figuring financial need and expected family contribution
- Considering the various options for paying for school
- Conducting scholarship searches.

Anyone with Internet access can join in the chat by visiting mapping-your-future.org on the World Wide Web. On the evening of the chat, visitors will go to mapping-your-future.org and select "chat session." Simple instructions will guide participants on how to join the event.
