Speeding stop yields $51,000 hidden in panel

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
 Staff Writer

A McLean highway patrol officer confiscated more than $50,000 and arrested two California men on charges of money laundering following an early-morning traffic stop Sunday on Interstate 40.

Michael Stephen Vrenon, 25, of San Diego, Calif., and Robert Phillip Sanchez Jr., 25, of Newport Beach, Calif., remained in Gray County Jail this morning. Both were charged with money laundering. Justice of the Peace Curt Kurfman set bond at $25,000 each in a bond hearing Sunday.

At about 1 a.m. Sunday, Trooper Jason Henderson, of the Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS), saw a 2001 Buick Regal traveling at 71 miles per hour in the westbound lane of Interstate 40.

He stopped the speeding vehicle at the 151 mile post inside Wheeler County, according to DPS records. The night-time speed limit on the interstate highway is 65 miles per hour.

During the stop, the two men inside the Buick reportedly told Henderson that they were unemployed and gave him conflicting stories about where they were going and what they were doing.

Henderson asked for, and received, a verbal consent to search the vehicle. In the search, he discovered more than $50,000 in cash hidden in the rear quarter panel of the rental car. A total of $51,770 in cash was seized following the search, records show.

The report stated the driver of the Buick told officers that the two suspects had hauled a load of narcotics to Kansas and the money was from the sale of the narcotics.

According to the DPS report, the man said he was taking the money back to California.

Henderson was assisted in the search and arrests by Texas DPS Trooper Daimon Jones and DPS Sgt. Don Cameron, officials said.

Canadian musical season to start

CANADIAN — Jay Godwin of Prairie Rivers Musical in Canadian announced the opening performance of the musical's 2001 season will be at 7 p.m., Oct. 20 at Canadian Middle School.

"The show really grew in popularity the last few dates in the early spring of this year and we are getting lots of requests to get the show started this fall," Godwin explained. "We have a number of area musicians and singers lined up for the opening performance which wraps up the busiest day of our annual Fall Foliage Festival."

Prairie Rivers Musical begins its third season with shows scheduled for the third Saturday of each month, October through March. Admission is free and each performance offers theater-type seating. "The atmosphere of our shows is totally family oriented," said Godwin. "Having it on public school property really insures an enjoyable time for all ages. We do lots of old country, rockabilly, gospel, and, on occasion, sing-a-long songs with the audience."

10 years later - still worst U.S. mass shooting

By KELLEY SHANNON
 Associated Press Writer

KILLEEN, Texas (AP) — It can be something as simple as seeing a pumpkin or autumn leaves. Or as terrifying as watching the World Trade Center towers tumble down.

A distant tragedy, a seasonal reminder, the anniversary date — all can re-ignite the horrors of Oct. 16, 1991, for those who were inside a Luby's Cafeteria in Killeen when a gunman shot and killed 23 people, then himself.

"It's something that you live with, but you go on. Somehow, you go on," said Kelley Fitzwater, 55.

George Hennard crashed his pickup truck into the restaurant during the lunch hour. Then he stalked the customers, a pistol in each hand, firing randomly and at close range. If someone moved, he or she became a target.

Pressed to the floor in the cafeteria serving line with her husband nearby, Fitzwater saw two women shot in the head. "It was just constant. He just constantly walked and talked and shot. He didn't stop, except to reload," she said.

It remains the worst mass shooting in U.S. history.

Over the years, some who survived the restaurant rampage and others who lost loved ones have stayed in touch, partly to heal and partly because they've formed lasting bonds. Some speak of a deep appreciation for life.

But the 10th anniversary, this week may be particularly difficult for them because of the nation's recent terrorist-inflicted tragedies.

Mass violence — whether the Branch Davidian fire in Waco, the Oklahoma City bombing, or school or workplace shootings — can trigger memories of the Luby's violence, said Jill Hargrove, the victims' assistance coordinator for Bell County.

"When you see massive amounts of people running from something, that's a triggering effect," Hargrove said. "They can relate so much to what's going on in New York. But each incident is unique."

Some Luby's survivors plan to commemorate the 10th anniversary together at a private ceremony and dinner organized by Hargrove.

"They are precious people," Hargrove said. "They're not just victims."

Arlia Davis, 78, wasn't at Luby's that day, but he rushed to find his wife at a hospital at nearby Fort Hood. He remembers Kitty Davis' 8 1/2 hours of surgery, her transfer to another hospital, her kidney failure and, three days after the shooting, her death.

Today, Davis catches big catfish, has five grown children and enjoys family fish fries. He likes to make jam, and he helps deliver flowers as a favor to a daughter-in-law.

"I made up my mind that I was going to live my life," he said.

Kitty's first name actually was Kneibild. They met in Berlin during one

Disputed water pumping permits deemed complete

By DAVID BOWSER
 Staff Writer

WHITE DEER — In what was termed a procedural issue, the Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District board of directors passed a resolution last week declaring disputed water pumping permits administratively complete.

During their regularly scheduled meeting Thursday, the board of the Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District passed a resolution drawn up by the district staff saying that the applications for high impact pumping in Roberts County by a group of landowners operating as Mesa Water, Inc., were administratively complete.

The landowners, I. Boone Pickens, Susie Reynolds, Timothy A. Johnson, Mary E. Kneisely, Robin E. Morse, Jenny E. Sullivan, David Whitson and Katy E. Wilde, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Reynolds plus the Courson Family Land Partnership, Ltd., and Quixx L.P. had filed applications in September, 2000, to pump water from beneath their lands in Roberts County.

Clarendon College announces the schedule for partial GED testing.

Clarendon College will be offering a number of opportunities for GED testing during the next two months at both their Clarendon and Pampa campuses. Tests will be partial, meaning persons will not be able to take the complete 5-part test at one time, but take individual parts to include no more than four partial tests at one setting.

PERMITS

Pickens, speaking for the group, indicated that the water they wanted to pump from the Ogallala Aquifer beneath the 150,000 acres they collectively held would be sold to thirsty urban areas down state.

The Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District, on Feb. 22, tabled their applications, saying they were administratively incomplete.

District officials said the applications, under district rules, had to list the end user and include conservation plans.

Pickens said the group had no buyer, but he also said that they would not be able to get a buyer until they had a permit that guaranteed they could pump the water they wanted to sell.

Negotiations between Mesa and the water conservation district resulted in a draft permit that the district staff said was adequate to protect groundwater resources while allowing the applicants to develop potential buyers.

That draft permit, however, was contested by the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority, who said that while they weren't against granting a permit to Mesa, they wanted to ensure that Mesa's pumping plans did not interfere with the water authority's plans in Roberts County.

CRMWA has over 40,000 acres in Roberts County from which they plan to pump groundwater to supplement the water they take from Lake Meredith and provide to their 11 member cities, including Pampa.

The $83.5 million Conjunctive Use Groundwater Supply Project is expected to go online in mid-November.

In July, the Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District hired Judge John Forbis of Childress as a hearing examiner to hear the contested application case.

District officials said that the steps to go forward with the contested case hearing essentially meant that the applications were administratively complete and that the resolution passed Thursday was a step taken to clear up the procedural issue.

During the meeting here, however, CRMWA officials offered a substitute resolution saying that the applications were still administratively incomplete and if they were not completed within 45 days, the applications would be dismissed.

The board, however, declined CRMWA's proposed resolution and passed their staff's resolution unanimously.

A hearing on the contested application is set for January.

C.E. Williams, general manager of the Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District, said that Judge Forbis will gather the facts of the case and take testimony and make a recommendation in the case to the board. The final decision on whether to issue Mesa's permit lies with the district's board of directors.

The resolution passed by the board, Williams said, will simply allow the contested hearing to continue. It does not mean that the district has approved the permit.

Celebration planning

Helping plan Gray County's Centennial celebration during 2002 are Winston Holt, left, who is planning some special exhibits in Pampa's oldest banking site at the Bank of America; Carolyn Smith, noon luncheon; Marie Smith, telephone committee; and Tina Holt, Boy Scout director, in charge of Boy Scout exhibits. The next meeting is at 5 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 18 in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. The public is invited to attend. Additional reports will be made.

Area performers are featured at each show. Towns represented by musicians and singers in addition to Canadian include Wheeler, Higgins, Wellington, Alanreed and Lipscomb. Other performers have come in the past from Joshua and Burleson, Texas, and Leedy and Tulsa, Okla.

"Scheduled for October 20th are three fiddle players who really create a lot of excitement and great fiddle harmony," added Godwin. "Frankie McWhorter of Lipscomb, Harold Studebaker from Alanreed, and Lee Hibler of Wheeler are all professional musicians who play with bands that perform regularly. Everyone knows Frankie's fiddle playing! Harold and Lee are just as comfortable playing steel guitars as fiddles. What a treat it is to jam with these guys!" Godwin exclaimed.

"But, don't sell any of our other performers short, especially lead guitarist Scott Campbell, a self-employed businessman here in Canadian. His Fender Telecaster leads can keep us and the audience in awe. Also, the singers who appear regularly, in my opinion, represent a group far above average in a venue like this."

Refreshments are also made available to the audience during intermission.

"Canadian is an exciting community, especially for events such as the annual Fall Foliage Tour. Make Prairie Rivers Musical your stop to conclude a wonderful day. We never guarantee perfect colors of the trees but we do have a money-back guarantee that you will enjoy our show," Godwin concluded.

U.S. foils four bombing plots; says terrorists could strike again

By JOHN SOLOMON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. authorities have foiled four bombing plots overseas since Sept. 11, but evidence grows that loosely knit terrorist cells are agitating to strike again, government officials say.

Over the last month, 225 people overseas have been rounded up in about 40 countries based on U.S. and foreign intelligence indicating they were involved in plotting or assisting terrorism, the officials said.

The officials, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said intelligence reports on potential new threats to U.S. interests have grown in quality and quantity over the last week, prompting some of the starkest warnings to date to the American public.

Most of the evidence doesn't point to specific targets, but rather to "a clearer picture of several terrorist cells looking to strike," one U.S. official told The Associated Press.

The FBI believes several people involved in plotting remain at large in the United States and across Europe and the Middle East, the officials said.

On Monday, Attorney General John Ashcroft met with Mariano Rajoy, Spain's interior minister. The FBI and Spanish authorities have been investigating suspected hijacker Mohamed Atta's visits to Spain. Atta traveled to Spain in January and July, spent several days in a resort town south of Barcelona and was suspected of meeting with Islamic extremists.

Atta also met in Spain with a Tunisian man now in Spanish custody who is believed to have been sent from Afghanistan to supervise Osama bin Laden's terrorist operations in Europe, Spanish authorities said.

Concerning the averted bombing strikes, officials said the plots involved attacks on the U.S. Embassy in Paris, an American building in Yemen and a NATO building in Brussels, Belgium.

At a news conference Monday, Francis X Taylor, the State Department's top counterterrorism official, declined to discuss details of any thwarted attacks, but said: "Our efforts are focused on preventing terrorists from conducting their operations and we've had some success and hope to have many more in the future."

Yemeni authorities have been searching for a dozen Arabs, several connected to bin Laden's al-Qaida network, who entered the country from Afghanistan after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, officials said.

Ashcroft said Sunday the FBI still is searching for about 190 people it believes may have involvement or information.

"We have a watch list of individuals that we want to apprehend and question and to ascertain with more specificity the extent to which they have knowledge of, or might be in some way related to, either the groups or the actual incidents," Ashcroft said.

The FBI is seeking a Saudi pilot who bought two planes in August from a small Tennessee airport near Fort Campbell, Ky., where some of the U.S. elite special forces are stationed, officials said.

Asked about the scope of the threat now, one U.S. official compared it to the millennium celebrations in December 1999 when the CIA and other intelligence agencies identified and disrupted between five and 15 potential attacks. Those plots included a hotel in Jordan and the Los Angeles airport, and several bin Laden supporters, were rounded up in different countries to thwart the activities, officials said.

Officials said much of the evidence suggests various loosely knit terrorist cells — from Algerians to Afghans — are agitating to attack again. They're united in their admiration for bin Laden and his calls to attack Americans, but there is no evidence they are being coordinated in a single master plan, the officials said.

Law enforcement officials said they have evidence — some vague, some more specific — that Middle Eastern men have been surveilling targets from nuclear power plants and airports to embassies overseas and tourist locations.

UW helping The Bridge help victims of child abuse across the panhandle

This article is one in a series of articles of profiles on the agencies and organizations supported by Pampa United Way. This information is being provided by Pampa United Way as part of its 2001 "The Way America Cares, Community by Community!" fund-raising campaign.

The Bridge Children's Advocacy Center began when a group of community individuals dreamed of a way to give area children in crisis situations a better chance for a future.

Since its inception in 1989, more than 7,500 children from across the panhandle have utilized services of The Bridge, which uses a multidisciplinary approach to tackling the investigative and prosecutorial aspects of child sexual abuse.

"Our staff provides videotaped forensic interview services to Pampa area children on a mobile basis through their rural outreach program," said Roxanne Carter, executive director of The Bridge. "Whenever a law enforcement or Children's Protective Services investigator calls, the mobile equipment is loaded and our interviewer travels to the child, eliminating the need for the child to travel to our office in Amarillo."

According to Carter, the United Way of Pampa, Inc., and Calvary Baptist Church are the two main organizations in Pampa providing resources to make this program a reality for children in the Gray Co. area.

"We began the outreach program in Pampa first because the largest number of rural interview requests come from the Gray County area, but we needed some help funding the program and a place to interview children."

The United Way in Pampa provides almost 30 percent of the funding necessary to keep this program active in the rural communities, directly corresponding to the percentage of children from the Pampa area who receive services through this mobile program.

"Calvary Baptist Church also

of his military tours of duty. They married June 5, 1951. To this day, Davis wears his gold wedding ring. He has her wedding dress.

A gold-framed photograph of Kitty is displayed in his dining room. "Every morning I sit up here and eat breakfast and look up at her and see her," he said.

State Rep. Suzanna Gratia Hupp of Lampasas lost her parents in the Luby's shooting. She was there, too, but escaped unharmed. She since has married and laments that her children, ages 5 and 3, will never know their slain grandparents.

Al and Suzy Gratia had been married 47 years. "Obviously, it stinks, and we would have rather lost our parents 20 years later and in a non-violent way," said Hupp, 42.

To this day, Hupp believes that if she had carried her gun inside Luby's, instead of leaving it in her car, as was required by law then, she could have stopped Hennard.

"Dad and I were on the floor. We had the table turned up in front of us. This guy was maybe 15 feet in front of us," she said. "I can't tell you how frightening it is to just sit there and wait for it to be your turn."

She became an outspoken advocate for the right to carry concealed handguns. The law took effect in January 1996, months before she won election to the Texas Legislature.

"I would like to think that I was able to help change the law here in Texas," she said. "Now people in Texas can legally protect themselves."

Killeen police officer Ken

Olson arrived at the cafeteria after Hennard's shooting spree began. He remembers the day vividly.

Olson first stood by a pillar at the restaurant entrance. He saw Hennard pointing a gun down at someone, and Olson fired with his 9 mm pistol.

"It hit him. It stopped him from injuring any other people," Olson said. "What I did had to be done."

Olson moved in and took cover behind Hennard's truck. Hennard retreated to an area by the restrooms and kitchen and continued to fire at Olson. Another Killeen officer, Alex Morris, also took part in the gun battle. Highway patrolmen assisted.

Ultimately, Hennard shot himself in the head and died.

Witnesses said it was clear Hennard, a 35-year-old son of a doctor, was mentally disturbed. "Is it worth it? Tell me people, is it worth it?" Fitzwater recalls him saying over and over.

Among those slain were Suzann Neal Rashott, who left behind a 14-year-old daughter; Venice Henehan, who was passing through town while traveling to her granddaughter's wedding in Houston; and Michael Griffith, who liked taking his children camping and canoeing.

And there were so many more. Their names are carved on a granite memorial stone at the Killeen Community Center. At the top is the date, Oct. 16, 1991. The attack is not specifically mentioned.

Immediately after the shooting, Killeen residents wore white ribbons to honor the victims. Townspeople still talk of someone they knew, or a relative of someone they knew, who was killed.

Survivors say they still feel the lingering effects: They make mental notes about the location of restaurant exits. Fitzwater didn't want to stand in lines for quite some time. Hupp pays special attention to men who enter public places by themselves.

"It's like something that you never forget where you were when it happened," said Killeen Mayor Maureen Jouett. "That day the community came together. There was a lot of outpouring of support."

After the tragedy, the cafeteria was remodeled and reopened. Survivors and their families were invited back to dine. Struggling to improve its bottom line, Luby's closed the cafeteria in Killeen a year ago for financial reasons.

Today the building stands empty. Its serving line is still intact. Its menus remain, advertising fried okra, buttermilk biscuits and au gratin macaroni.

Townspeople dine at the new restaurants that have popped up nearby along U.S. 190.

And survivors of the shootings count their blessings.

Husband's Numerous Affairs Have Cheated Wife Of A Life

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 50 years. I am 70, my husband is 73. We have eight grandchildren and are active in our church and community. Everyone thinks our marriage is a happy one. However, they are mistaken.

My husband has had seven affairs that I know of in the last 40 years. Each affair lasted from six months to seven years. His current affair is now in its sixth year.

Abby, his mistress calls me and lets me know every time they meet. She tells me to leave him so they can be together. You can't imagine the pain of hearing a young woman say: "Old goat! We are in love. Leave him so he can have a life with me." I am devastated, but I fear loneliness. I don't know where to turn. Please tell me what to do.

LOST IN CHICAGO

P.S. I wrote you in 1984 about the same problem. You gave me two choices: Leave him or tolerate his behavior, because he wouldn't change. You were right. He did not change. You said personally you would have chosen the first option. I'm sorry I didn't follow your advice then.

DEAR LOST: I, too, am sorry that you didn't follow my advice. It would have saved you 17 years of pain and humiliation.

I hope you'll take my advice this time. Some things are worse than loneliness, and in my opinion, living with a chronic cheater is one of them. Make an appointment with a lawyer — and this time, follow through.

Dear Abby

Is written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanne Phillips.

say, "Good to see you." The bereaved do not need to be reminded of their loss, but do welcome smiles and cheery greetings.

KEN ALBRECHT, SEA ISLE CITY, N.J.

DEAR KEN: Please accept my sympathy for your loss. Many people feel awkward and do not know the proper words to offer when someone has suffered the loss of a spouse or relative. It is for those people I am printing your letter. I hope they will save it for future reference. Sooner or later, we're all going to encounter someone in that situation, and it's best to be prepared.

Dear Abby is written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanne Phillips.

DEAR ABBY: I recently lost my wife to cancer. I could not believe the kindness and consideration of so many family members and friends. However, some people said and wrote things that were thoughtless or hurtful.

My wife entered hospice care when it was apparent she would not win her battle. One woman sent her a greeting card that included the message, "Just think — when you die you can be my guardian angel!" Believe it or not, that was topped at the visitation prior to the funeral, when a widow told me: "You think it's bad today? Just wait. Every day will be worse than the day before."

Instead of rushing to "open mouth and insert foot," people should just offer sincere condolences, shake hands, and hug or kiss the bereaved.

Weeks after the funeral, wherever I went — including church — people would either try to avoid me or give me a pained look and ask, "And how are you?" Instead, they should

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Mike Tyson won't say where he's going to set up a temporary training camp.

But one thing seems sure: His ultimate destination should be a bout against the winner of the Nov. 17 match between WBC-IBF champion Hasim Rahman and Lennox Lewis.

The Rahman-Lewis winner must make a mandatory World Boxing Council defense against the top available contender, and Tyson is ranked No. 1 despite not having fought in 51 weeks before Saturday.

The former undisputed champion hit Denmark's Brian Nielsen with a barrage of punches that few others could have taken. Nielsen, his bloody left eye nearly swollen shut, gave up while sitting on the stool just as the seventh round was about to start.

Tyson, a native New Yorker, wants to remain temporarily in Europe, but said he won't be staying in Denmark. He denied he's setting up camp in France.

"Incorrect," he said when asked about France. "But I'm not telling you."

"I have no idea right now. I'm just taking a week off and then I'll go back into training."

Tyson verbalized the message his punishing victory over Nielsen delivered.

"I'm back," Tyson said.

Beefed up to 239 pounds on Saturday — by far the heaviest of his career — the 35-year-old Tyson was more powerful, slower and "rusty." He still put the defiant Nielsen on the canvas for only the second time in his pro or amateur career.

"I felt pretty good," Tyson said. "I felt pretty rusty and unsure a little bit. I need to train a little bit harder to fight for the championship. Two more fights and I'd be ready."

He'll may get one more bout — probably in December — before a title fight.

Tyson was restrained in and out of the ring. American referee Steve Smoger, who stopped the scheduled 10-rounder, praised Tyson for his conduct.

Tyson, in turn, saluted the 36-year-old Nielsen — a national hero in Denmark where he is affectionately known as "Super Brian" and "Danish Pastry."

"I have to take my hat off to Brian," Tyson said. "I had no idea he was that tough of a fighter. I went in there for an easy night and was surprised. I was just trying to hit him anywhere I possible could."

Nielsen, who has never been knocked out, hugged the Tyson warmly after the bout and made a quick offer that Tyson declined.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Oakland's offense kept Peyton Manning off the field late in the game. When the Indianapolis Colts quarterback finally got back in, the Raiders' defense sealed the victory.

Rich Gannon led a drive, capped by Sebastian Janikowski's 37-yard field goal, that lasted 6 minutes, 49 seconds, and the Raiders (4-1) beat the Colts 23-18 on Sunday night.

Indianapolis (2-2) had to go 80 yards for the winning score with just 2:23 left, but the Colts' chances ended when Manning was intercepted by Tory James.

The Colts thought they had closed within a field goal early in the fourth quarter when officials ruled that Edgerrin James scored on a 2-point conversion run. But after the Colts lined up to kick off, the officials reversed the call.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Trung Canidate, subbing for the injured

Marshall Faulk, scored on 1-yard run with 4:16 to go, and St. Louis held on to beat New York.

The Giants (3-2) forced a pair of rare fumbles by Faulk and knocked him out of the game late in the third with what an MRI exam showed to be a bone bruise in the right knee.

The Giants were driving for a possible game-winning field goal before Grant Wistrom's fumble recovery with 1:04 to go clinched the victory for the Rams (5-0). Adam Archuleta hit Joe Jurevicius just as the ball arrived at the St. Louis 27, popping the ball into the air for Wistrom.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Laveranues Coles caught two touchdown passes, and Curtis Martin rushed for 120 yards as New York rallied from a 17-point deficit to extend its winning streak over Miami to seven.

Last year, the Jets (3-2) stormed back from a 30-7 deficit in the fourth quarter to beat the Dolphins 40-37 in overtime in a Monday night game dubbed the Miracle at the Meadowlands.

The maligned Jets defense rose against the Dolphins (3-2) in the final moments with interceptions by Marvin Jones and Victor Green.

Seahawks 34, Broncos 21

SEATTLE (AP) — Trent Dilfer, playing for the second straight week in place of injured Matt Hasselbeck, made it 13 consecutive victories as a starting quarterback as Seattle beat Denver.

Dilfer, signed by the Seahawks as a free agent in August, was 12-for-18 for 110 yards with no touchdowns and no interceptions.

Packers 31, Ravens 23

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Brett Favre shredded Baltimore's vaunted defense for 337 yards and three touchdowns on 27-of-34 passing as Green Bay beat the defending Super Bowl champs.

Antonio Freeman had nine receptions for 138 yards and a touchdown for the Packers (4-1), who forced four turnovers and scored more points against the Ravens (3-2) than any team since Jacksonville in a 39-36 loss to Baltimore on Sept. 10, 2000.

Baltimore's Elvis Grbac sustained a mild concussion in the first half but didn't leave until 6:51 remained. Randall Cunningham replaced him and led Baltimore on two scoring drives.

Titans 31, Buccaneers 28, OT

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Joe Nedney kicked a 49-yard field goal in overtime as Tennessee beat Tampa Bay after blowing a 14-point lead in the final 7:53 of regulation.

Brad Johnson rallied the Buccaneers (2-2) by tossing two of his three touchdown passes in the fourth quarter, including a 5-yarder with 54 seconds left that tied it at 28.

Steve McNair, who threw for a touchdown and ran for another, was 15-of-23 for 230 yards and added 54 yards on nine carries for Tennessee (1-3).

49ers 37, Falcons 31, OT

ATLANTA (AP) — Jeff Garcia threw his third touchdown pass of the game to Terrell Owens, a 52-yarder, with 6:16 left in overtime to give San Francisco a victory.

The 49ers (4-1), rallying from an early 14-0 deficit, tied it at 31 when Garcia hooked up with Owens on a 17-yard TD with 17 seconds left in regulation.

Garcia was 27-of-41 for 332 yards, duplicating a Week 1 comeback that led to another overtime victory over Atlanta (2-3).

Pampa, Dumas battle to 14-14 deadlock in freshmen football

PAMPA — Pampa and Dumas fought to a 14-14 tie in 9th grade football action last week.

Pampa's first touchdown, a 1-yard run by Q.B. Cobb, was set on a 40-yard pass from Marcos Campos to Brittin East.

The final touchdown came on a 32-yard pass from Tyler Doughty to East. Seth Foster kicked both extra points.

Foster, Cam Seger and Shea Brown played an outstanding defensive game, according to coach Dennis Doughty.

Thursday's game with Palo Duro has been canceled. Pampa plays next on Oct. 25 against Amarillo High Black with the game starting at 4:30 p.m. in Amarillo.

Pampa's record is 6-0-1. The freshmen's last two games will be played at home — Nov. 1 vs. Tascosa Red and Nov. 8 vs. Hereford.

In junior varsity play, Dumas shut out Pampa 39-0 last week.

"We've had a bunch of injuries, so we're just a little undermanned right now," said Pampa coach John True.

The junior varsity's next game is Thursday at 7 p.m. against Caprock in Harvester Stadium.

The formula hasn't changed for world champs

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

The formula hasn't changed.

The Yankees didn't need Mariano Rivera to close out Oakland's brash A's in Game 4, which was almost like winning twice. Besides evening the series at 2-2 and putting New York's nose in front as the teams fly across the country, it means a fresher Rivera for Game 5. Which just happens to be the first in a long line of reasons why the Yankees will win another World Series.

Try and come up with somebody better.

Ever since Derek Jeter made that ridiculously calm relay to the plate to get Jeremy Giambi and save Game 3, you could see it coming.

Every team that reaches the playoffs can pitch. Arizona may have the best two starters in Curt Schilling and Randy Johnson. And Oakland's Mark Mulder, Tim Hudson and Barry Zito are probably the best three.

No team has come back to win a best-of-five series after losing the first two games at home. But no team, save the Yankees, will pay to carry a No. 4 starter with Orlando Hernandez's mastery of the post-season stage. They already employ the best manager, the most experienced lineup and now they have the momentum and Roger Clemens, maybe the best big-game pitcher around, comes back Monday night in Game 5. If he gets a lead to Rivera, it's a sure bet as baseball offers.

Still, it's their vulnerability that has made this Yankees dynasty interesting. New York has won the last three World Series and four of the last five, but the only time they managed it with ease was 1998, after compiling a then-record 114 regular-season wins. Joe Torre wasn't the shrewdest manager in baseball when he took the New York job at the start of the run in 1996, probably because most of his time was spent trying to keep owner George Steinbrenner off the ballclub's neck. But by the end of the 1999 season, there were no doubts.

Those Yankees' tribulations began in spring training, when Torre was diagnosed with prostate cancer, and didn't end with the last game. Right fielder Paul O'Neill played the final with a heavy heart, having lost his father, Charlie, to a continuing heart problem some 18 hours earlier. Those were the bookends, but hardly the only misfortunes the club had to deal with. The way Torre held that team together forced John Smoltz, the Atlanta Braves starter and loser in Game 4 of the 1999 World Series, to praise his archrivals through clenched teeth.

"For years, they bought the highest-priced talent and couldn't quite put it together," he said. "But now, the last three or four years, there's no selfishness."

Last year offered further proof. The Yankees won the New York, New York finale with ease, but that was the only easy stretch in their season. They turned the roster over more than any defending World Series champion ever. They had to travel to Oakland to win Game 5 in the first round, then beat Seattle in the American League Championship Series in a Game 6 at home. Naturally, the key blows in that one were struck by Jose Vizcaino (since departed) and David Justice, two of the 10 players, general manager Brian Cashman brought in to cover for the wounded or replace the heroes with all-too-familiar flaws.

The one constant has been the starting pitching, a lesson the Yankees learned from the Braves. Two years ago, Steinbrenner swapped David Wells to get Clemens, a move that proved The Boss wasn't crazy, just fickle. This year's high-priced addition was Mike Mussina, who could have gotten big dollars from any number of teams, but chose New York because he wanted to pitch in October with something on the line.

For a while, it didn't look like he would get the chance. The night two weeks ago when a Boston loss handed New York the AL East title, they got clobbered by Baltimore 13-2. It was their 13th loss in 16 games.

Oklahoma coaches evaluating Hybl and White

By OWEN CANFIELD
AP Sports Writer

For the second straight week, Oklahoma coach Bob Stoops finds himself answering questions about who will be his quarterback.

The answers this time aren't as clear cut as they were a week ago, when Stoops said Nate Hybl was the No. 1 quarterback and Jason White was the backup.

For the second game in a row, White came off the bench, played very well and helped keep the second-ranked Sooners unbeaten. His performance Saturday night at Kansas — four touchdown passes, 117 yards rushing in a 38-10 victory — has heightened speculation about whether a change will be made for this week's game against Baylor.

"We'll work on that tomorrow," Stoops said Sunday. "We'll watch the tape with the players, visit with them along with the rest of the team. We'll work through that as we get with them tomorrow."

Hybl has started all six games for the Sooners (6-0, 3-0 Big 12), but has failed to finish the last two. He was knocked out of the Texas game with an injury to his left shoulder, then was removed from the Kansas game after a lackluster performance.

In both cases, White played well in Hybl's place.

Offensive coordinator Mark Mangino said the position is being evaluated, and that the starter will be in place "no later than Monday afternoon, Tuesday morning."

Stoops and Mangino each said they weren't sure whether Hybl's performance against Kansas — 5-of-11 passing for 15 yards — was due to lingering soreness from his injury or the rustiness from only playing one quarter in the previous game. Regardless, Hybl's play warranted a change.

"He just didn't look sharp. He just didn't look crisp. He didn't look himself," Mangino said.

White responded by going 18-of-29 for 151 yards, although he was intercepted twice and lost a fumble. His running ability is superior to that of Hybl — he needed just 12 carries to gain those 117 yards.

"Jason does some good things, there's no doubt about that," Mangino said. "He brings another dimension to our offense with his speed and athleticism. He made some real good throws, and he made some decisions he probably shouldn't have."

Mangino repeated what he has said often — that the Sooners will not rotate quarterbacks. The starter gets about 70 percent of the snaps during practices, something Mangino said is needed to develop confidence and a comfort level for the offense.

He said the players are accustomed to Hybl and White, so the question of leadership won't be a major concern as a decision is made. Mangino also said the attitude of both quarterbacks makes any decision easier.

"There's never been any indication at any time that they're not both team players and they care about our program and the success of our program. We're fortunate to have kids of that caliber," Mangino said.

"For us, it's a very positive situation. We think we've got a good problem. Most coaches wish they had our problem."

Seattle forces a game five

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Seattle Mariners stared down elimination, packed their bags and headed home to play at least one more game.

Safeco Field will never have looked so good, or been so loud.

Nine outs away from their magical season ending in an early postseason exit, the Mariners rallied for a 6-2 win over the Cleveland Indians on Sunday in their AL division series to force a decisive Game 5.

Rookie Ichiro Suzuki provided the key hit in Seattle's three-run, seventh-inning rally, which underscored the Mariners' resolve.

"There was no panic," Seattle second baseman Bret Boone said. "The feeling was we were going to find a way."

Suzuki's RBI single came in the seventh when the Mariners, shut out for the first six innings by losing pitcher Bartolo Colon, displayed their uncanny ability to do the little things right.

"There was a little sigh of relief with each at-bat," Jay Buhner said. "We got a walk. The error. A sac fly. A hit. Each one was bigger and bigger and then we just knew."

The win enabled Seattle, which won 116 games during the regular season, to avoid the same fate as the 1906 Cubs — the team whose wins' record the Mariners matched. Chicago did not win a World Series title that year.

"We battled back from adversity all season," Mariners manager Lou Piniella said. "We weren't going to lose because of the pressure. We were going to lose because the other team outplayed us."

Suzuki went 3-for-5 and Edgar Martinez hit a two-run homer in the ninth for the Mariners, who were blown out 17-2 and played possibly their worst game of the season in Game 3 on Saturday.

"We got our butts kicked," Boone said. "But remember, I said this team is ready."

Freddy Garcia (1-1) pitched 6 1-3 innings for the win.

Jamie Moyer, who beat the Indians in Game 2 and went 2-0 against them in the regular season, will start Game 5 for the Mariners on Monday at Safeco Field against Chuck Finley.

"I'm elated about getting to pitch in a fifth game," said Finley, who waited 15 years to make his first postseason start in Game 2 and gave up a pair of two-run homers in the first. "I had the feeling we might be back in Seattle anyway."

Before Game 4, which was delayed two hours, 20 minutes by rain, a relaxed Piniella was confident his team would go home to play another day.

"We have to take that long ride back to Seattle," Piniella said. "So we may as well make Cleveland take the same plane ride."

For six innings it looked like the Mariners would fly solo, but the Indians are headed to the airport, too.

"I didn't want to take that ride," Indians manager Charlie Manuel said. "But that's the way things worked out."

Juan Gonzalez's second-inning homer looked like it might stand up as Colon handled the Mariners with ease for six innings.

But he walked John Olerud to open the seventh, and Stan Javier threw his bat at an outside pitch for a single to left.

The Indians tried to pick Olerud off second, but Colon's wild throw allowed the Mariners to finally get a runner to third. Mike Cameron walked to load the bases, and pinch-hitter Al Martin grounded into a force at the plate.

to win the golf tournament, I was going to have to try and pull that shot off somehow," he said. "I didn't know if I could make contact with the ball or not."

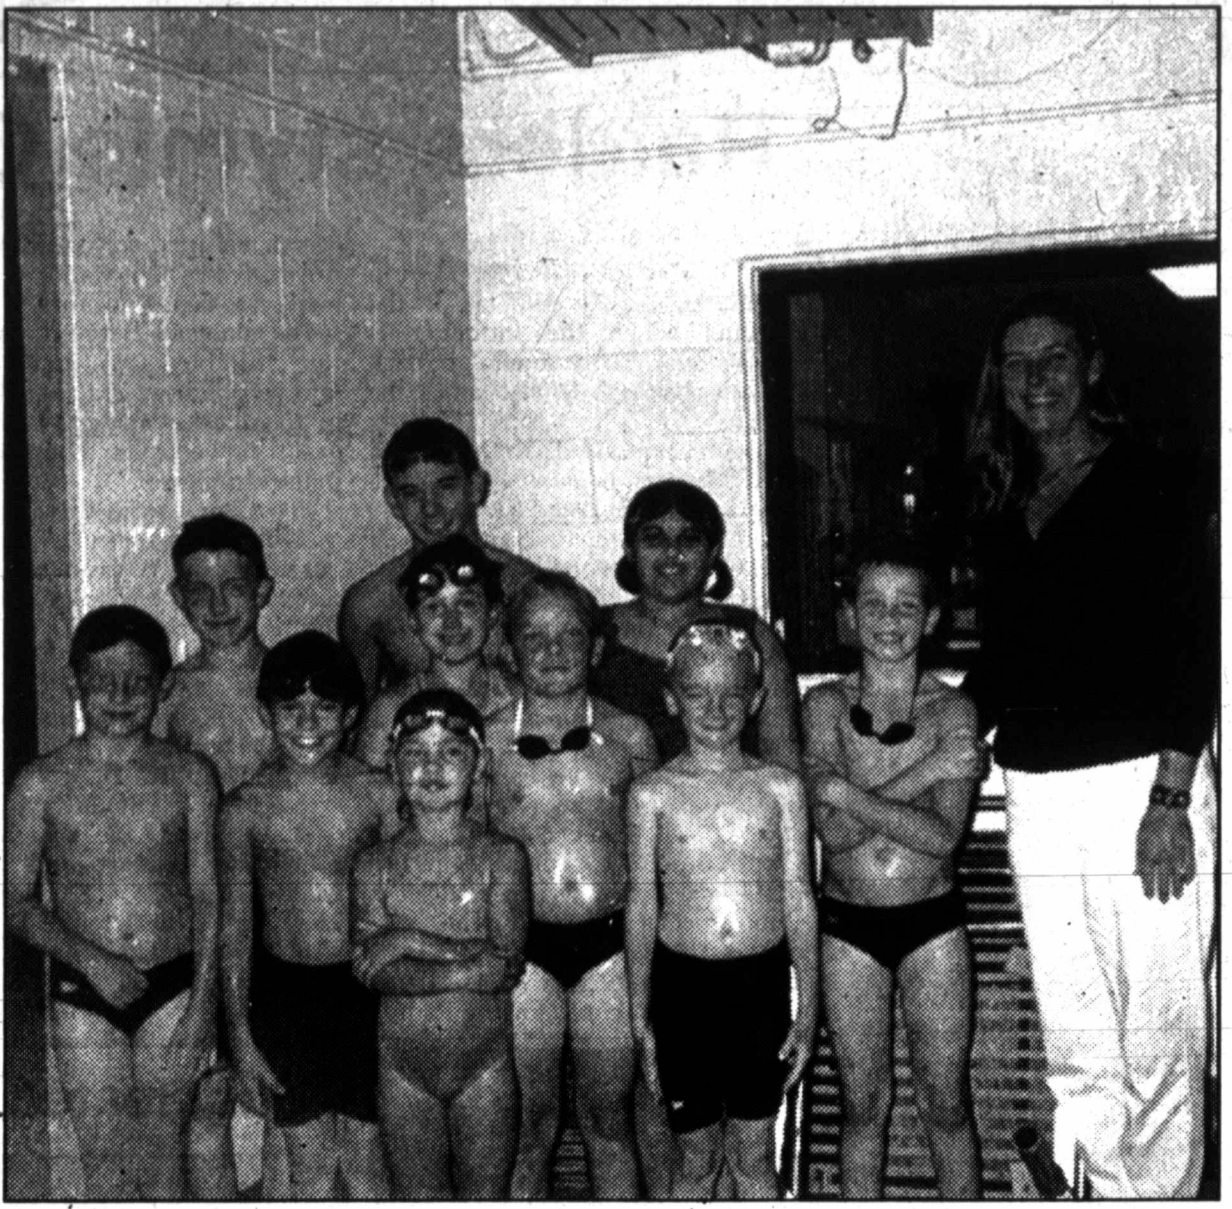

Estes pulled out his driver, choked up and swung at the bush. The ball dribbled out over the cart path into the rough. From there, he hit a 9-iron under one tree and over another to 45 feet, then made the curling downhill putt for par.

"I'm not even positive I hit the ball," he said. "I think the bush just propelled it forward."

Estes went on to take the lead for good with a two-putt birdie on 16, taking advantage of a mistake by Lehman on the same hole for his second win of the year.

It was the 17th consecutive round in the 60s for Estes, who

D-Backs edge Cards in 9th

PHOENIX (AP) — When things go wrong for the Arizona Diamondbacks, the fans often turn their wrath on Matt Williams and Tony Womack.

The boos were transformed to delirious cheers in the ninth inning of a 2-1 victory over St. Louis on Sunday night as Williams and Womack came through with the dramatic hits that sent the Diamondbacks to their first NL championship series.

"Very fitting," Curt Schilling said. "Both Matt and Tony have been on the edge with everybody except us, his teammates, all year long."

Schilling was awesome again in another duel with Matt Morris that matched the intensity of their showdown in Arizona's 1-0 victory in Game 1 five days earlier.

"I was probably a lot more nervous tonight than I was in Game 1," Schilling said. "I'm not sure why. I've never pitched a clinching game. That probably had something to do with it."

Arizona will face well-rested Atlanta in the NLCS. Game 1 is Tuesday in Phoenix.

Reggie Sanders' 447-foot home run had given Arizona a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning, then J.D. Drew's homer with two outs in the eighth tied it at 1.

Schilling, still throwing 98 mph, struck out the last two batters he faced, then watched his teammates come through.

With Dave Veres relieving

Morris, Williams doubled off the bullpen fence in the right field corner. He was replaced by pinch runner Midre Cummings, who advanced to third on Damian Miller's sacrifice bunt.

Womack, who already had singled twice, came to the plate against reliever Steve Kline and tried to lay down a suicide squeeze bunt. But the pitch was in the dirt, and Womack couldn't connect. Cummings was easily tagged out.

"This guy made one of the toughest pitches I've seen to squeeze," Womack said, "so I just put it away. I had to put it away real quick and try to do what I do best. I knew I still had a strike left and just did the best I can."

Four pitches later, Womack slapped a single to left field over the outstretched hands of shortstop Edgar Renteria and Bautista raced home from second, sliding in well ahead of the Albert Pujols' throw.

"This guy was hot all night and playing out of his shoes, diving, making snags," Kline said. "I pitched pretty well against him all year. He got something on his hands and blooped it over Edgar's head."

Schilling got the victory in two of Arizona's three wins in the best-of-five series. He threw a three-hitter in Game 1.

Williams and Womack resisted any temptation to strike back at their critics.

"Everything's magnified now," Williams said of his 0-for-15 slump. "If you have a stretch like that, it's not like the regular season where you can take a day or two and work and try to figure it out."

Womack said he and Williams never lost confidence, despite their struggles.

"When you believe in yourself, things can happen, and I think we both believed in ourselves," Womack said. "We took the long road, but we believed in ourselves."

Morris, winless in the series despite two outstanding starts, allowed seven hits, struck out six and walked three.

"I'm not a betting man, but 16 innings, two runs, and you would thought he would have won them both," St. Louis manager Tony La Russa said. "He was great."

Morris threw 130 pitches in eight innings, but again Schilling was just as good, or maybe a little better.

"He stepped it up again," Morris said. "We were able to get one off him, but I made a mistake to Reggie Sanders. I threw him a curveball for a strike, and I'm sure he was sitting on it."

Drew's homer on an 0-1 pitch ended a string of 25 consecutive scoreless innings in the postseason for Schilling. The streak began for Philadelphia against Toronto in Game 5 of the 1993 World Series, and continued in Schilling's three-hit victory Tuesday.

Schilling got his third consecutive postseason complete game.

Simms tosses five TD passes in Texas win

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Chris Simms threw a career-best five touchdown passes, two to Roy Williams in the final 25 seconds of a 31-point second quarter, and No. 11 Texas rebounded from its first loss of the season to beat Oklahoma State 45-17 Saturday.

The Longhorns (5-1, 2-1 Big 12) lost 14-3 last week to Oklahoma, a game that crippled their conference title hopes, and they started slowly against Oklahoma State (2-4, 0-3). But the offense began clicking late in the first quarter and rolled over the Cowboys, who faltered after a fast start.

Simms finished 18-of-30 for 235 yards. His five TD passes tied the school record set by James Brown against Baylor in 1994.

Cedric Benson, who played only one snap against Oklahoma, had 131 yards on 31 carries. It was the first 100-yard game by a Texas freshman since Ricky Williams in 1995.

Oklahoma State drove 65 yards for a touchdown on the game's first drive, then recovered Benson's fumble and converted it into a field goal for a 10-0 lead seven minutes into the game. It was all Texas after that.

The Longhorns intercepted Aso Pogi's pass to start their first scoring drive, which lasted 16 plays — including 10 runs by Benson. Simms capped it with a 1-yard sneak early in the second quarter, then Texas then turned a fumble by Tatum Bell into a short field goal that tied the score at 10.

About three minutes later, Simms threw a 27-yard touchdown pass to tight end Brock Edwards, ending a 46-yard drive that gave Texas a 17-10 lead with 6:13 left in the half.

The Cowboys drove to the Texas 36 on their next possession, but turned the ball back to the Longhorns when Pogi was stopped a yard short on a fourth-and-3 option keeper.

Simms then led Texas 64 yards to a touchdown, completing 6 of 9 passes for 61 yards including a 5-yard TD pass to Williams with 25 seconds left before halftime. The Cowboys then muffed the kickoff and Texas recovered at the 16. On first down, Simms again hit Williams for the Longhorns' fourth touchdown of the quarter.

Simms' other touchdown pass went to Sloan Thomas, a 27-yarder in the third quarter and a 23-yarder in the fourth.

Estes gets second win of year with final-round 63 at Vegas Classic

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Bob Estes thought he had to shoot 63 to win for the third time on the PGA Tour. He did, but not before an adventure with a desert bush and a par he never expected.

Estes made nine birdies and nine pars, rallying from five shots back Sunday to win the Invenys Classic at Las Vegas. The birdies were routine, but the par at No. 6 will be something he'll remember just as much as the win.

"It was one of the most amazing holes I've played in my life," Estes said after beating Tom Lehman and Rory Sabbatini by a shot.

Estes punched a choked-down driver out of a bush in the desert to keep alive his slim hopes, then played nearly flawless the rest of the way for a 9-under 63 that was good enough for a one-stroke win.

"I don't think anybody can call me conservative anymore," Estes said. "My tournament was one shot away from being over when I hit that shot."

Estes had made three birdies to get in contention when he hit a 3-wood off the tee into the desert to the left of the sixth fairway. When he got to his ball, he found it perched waist high in the middle of a bush.

If he declared it unplayable and hit another tee shot, he was looking at least at a double-bogey. If he tried to play it, he might whiff or leave it in the bush.

Estes figured his only chance was to give it a try.

"If I was going to have a chance to win the golf tournament, I was going to have to try and pull that shot off somehow," he said. "I didn't know if I could make contact with the ball or not."

Estes pulled out his driver, choked up and swung at the bush. The ball dribbled out over the cart path into the rough. From there, he hit a 9-iron under one tree and over another to 45 feet, then made the curling downhill putt for par.

"I'm not even positive I hit the ball," he said. "I think the bush just propelled it forward."

Estes went on to take the lead for good with a two-putt birdie on 16, taking advantage of a mistake by Lehman on the same hole for his second win of the year.

It was the 17th consecutive round in the 60s for Estes, who played four of five rounds — including the final two — without a bogey. Before the round began, he said he thought a 63 was his best chance of winning.

Estes, who won the FedEx St. Jude Classic earlier this year and finished fourth and second in his last two tournaments, finished at 30-under for the five rounds.

"I'm finding my game," Estes said. "I've always been known for my consistency. Now, I'm getting more consistent shooting lower scores."

Playing in the next-to-last group, Estes birdied nine of his first 16 holes to get the lead, then made two routine pars to win the $810,000 first prize, the biggest check of his career.

Lehman stood in the fairway watching Estes two-putt on the par-5 16th for his final birdie, which put him a shot ahead. Lehman had a chance to tie, but hit a 4-iron thin from 218 yards and it landed some 20 yards short of the green in the water.

"It was like the club slipped in my hand," Lehman said. "It was pretty bizarre."

Lehman salvaged par, then missed birdie putts of about 20 feet on the final two holes at TPC at Summerlin to finish with a 66.

"I just didn't play good enough," he said. "You have to tip your hat to someone who shoots 63."

Scott McCarron, who began the final round with a three-shot lead, gave all three back with a quirky triple-bogey on No. 4.

McCarron had a 9-iron to the green from the middle of the fairway, but the ball hit a gust of wind and rolled back off the front of the green. He putted up the hill and the ball came back twice before his fifth shot stayed on the green. He then two-putted for a 7.

"It's a little disappointing," said McCarron, who shot a 71. "It was a gust of wind, just one of those things."

Davis Love III finished fourth with a course-record 61, which might have been even better. Love was 10 under for the day and had two possible eagle holes in front of him in the reachable par-4 15th and the par-5 16th.

Love parred both holes, though, before making a birdie on 18 to shoot the course record.

Buy at Home Support America Now

The attack on America is not just a strike at people and buildings, it is an attack on our economic way of life.

Our enemies want to steal our optimism. They want us to approach the future with fear, uncertainty and hesitation.

If we do, they win.

Americans have responded quickly with generous support for rescue and relief efforts.

We also must invest in our freedom by investing in our local economy.

A strong economy could be our strongest defense against the forces of terror and destruction.

We must show the world our confidence in our own economy is high.

We must bolster that confidence with strong, bold economic actions.

Instead of cutting back, we should push forward boldly with investments in our community.

Buy at home, support America now.

Buying something now is a way to stand up for our country.

There are many ways to make your investment, but we all must act now to keep our economy strong.
