The R.R. Eats Turkey With Harvesters, Listens To Doc Hicks Rib Business Men

By THE ROVING REPORTER The Roving Reporter has attended every banquet given the Harvesters by the business men in the last seven years, and Dr. H. H. Hicks has been toastmaster at every one of them. There was one year when the business men did not give the Harvesters a banquet and Dr. Hicks said, that year, 1931, was the only time the Harvesters beat the Sannies.

The Hicks blast of wit is to bare your chest and say nothing as did Frank Cuberson who asked, "now that I'm up what do you want me to do?" "Sit down!" ordered the doctor. "Some Speech Good" "You can change the subject entirely, like Principal L. Sone did, and by the way Mr. Sone has a good speech that he makes at such affairs. It deals with the "unbeatable combination of fans, students and schools." Mr. Sone has developed to the point where he has become the R R's favorite speaker. There is a sincerity about him that is more entertaining than a joke could be.

Doc then referred to Fred Cullum as "one of the younger boys." He said J. P. Matthews had a "maid on his knee." "When Matthews' knee was worn, Mitchell called up Frank Brown and whispered, 'The Eyes of Texas.' Then Mr. Brown sang so much louder than anyone else they all clapped for him after they sat down. Doc mentioned that Dan McGrew, the mayor of Kingsmill, and Dick Hughes, got up the banquet. He sprung the old one on Dan about his blood testing 90 per cent chili and 10 per cent crackers. Doc always enjoys riding Coach Mitchell. Last night he declared that the Armistice Day heart-breaker was due in part to an invention on which the coach has been working. Doc said Coach is trying to invent a luminous lipstick which will illum-

I SAW - - -

Mrs. Lillian Blythe of the high school hunting a job for a good boy 14 years old. He really has to have a steady job. This boy has no bad points at the present time, except that he does not want to go to school. Of course, he's poor. His mother is a widow who works for a small salary. His father is dead. He needs things to go to school. Earlier in the fall he ran off to Wheeler county and picked cotton. He earned enough money to buy him some second-hand boots. He says he couldn't earn much money picking cotton. His mother was almost frantic when he came home. This boy needs help now. Mrs. Blythe said he's a good citizen, but she doesn't know how long he'll be one. Somebody please call Mrs. Blythe and give him a job. Don't wait until it's too late to help him. He needs help now. It's all right to help them after they get in trouble but it's better to help them before.

I HEARD - - -

Emmett Gotcher, who can remember dates and baseball data probably better than any man, reminiscing that 31 years ago today the Panhandle of Texas witnessed the worst snow storm in history. He was in Alameda and couldn't get home.

YOUTH ADMITS KILLING MAN

DALLAS, Nov. 18 (AP)—Detective Inspector Will Fritz today said the body of Harry Leon Helfman, 32-year-old Brooklyn, N. Y. merchant, who had been missing since Monday, had been found in a watery pit with a bullet through his heart.

Robert Lacy, 22-year-old automobile mechanic, Fritz said, admitted killing Helfman last Monday during ostensible negotiations to buy Helfman's new $1,100 car.

Lacy and his wife were arrested early today in a tourist camp where officers, Fritz said, spotted Helfman's automobile.

Fritz, leading a squad of five detectives, said the young mechanic led them to the body after they had questioned him for several hours. Previously, the officer said, Lacy steadfastly maintained he knew nothing of Helfman's whereabouts.

Fritz said Helfman came to Dallas from Brooklyn 60 days ago to set up a small business. He drove down in a new (Buick) automobile, which figured in a crash near Dallas, Fritz said Helfman took the car to a Dallas garage for repairs, which cost $300.

The Brooklyn merchant, able to pay but half the repair bill, entered into negotiations for the remainder with Lacy, who worked at the garage. For several days, Fritz said, Helfman and Lacy dickered over sale of the car to the mechanic.

Last Tuesday Isadore Angrist reported to police Helfman had not returned to his residence in Dallas. Shortly afterward police questioned Lacy but obtained no information. The officers returned again to question the mechanic but learned nothing, Fritz said.

When the Helfman automobile was seen at the tourist camp, however, Lacy admitted he slew Helfman last Monday night in a park near Dallas, hauled the body five miles and dumped it into a pit at a municipal sewage treatment plant.

Police took Lacy and his wife to jail for further questioning.

Charles B. Duryea won the first automobile race ever held in America in 1895. His gasoline buggy easily defeated the puffing steamers and the electric autos of the day.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 million of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 5 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acid or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorder, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 million of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

JAPS CAPTURE ONE GATE OF WALLED CITY

By LLOYD LEHRBAS.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 18 (AP)—Japanese army spokesmen announced tonight Japanese troops driving to break through China's "Hindenburg" line between Shanghai and Nanking had captured one gate of the walled city of Kaohing, southern keystone of the line.

Both Chinese and Japanese reported heavy fighting in the area around Kaohing, 60 miles southwest of Shanghai and 30 miles south of Soochow, main point of Chinese defenses.

News of the Japanese push against the southern wing of the defenses came a few hours after an unofficial government warning spurred mass migration of civilians from Nanking.

For 24 hours, Chinese had held their own along the length of the defenses to which they retreated after Shanghai fell.

Although the Japanese received reinforcements for the new onslaught today, their only advance apparently was on the southern front.

Chinese reported their troops, aided by 20 warplanes, had counter-attacked and pushed the Japanese back toward Cheni. They also asserted Chinese had repulsed three Japanese attempts to effect a landing at Fushan.

Nanking technically was still the seat of government, but Chinese senior officials who remained were ready to leave on short notice. The fleeing civilian population almost engulfed columns of soldiers moving in the opposite direction to the front.

Japanese troops in North China pushed on the north bank of the Yellow River for an attack on Tsinanfu, Shantung province capital, some five miles to the south.

A part of a force of 70 Japanese warships was said to have bombarded Fieshan, which is about 30 miles downstream from Kiangyin, where Chinese have erected a barrier of sunken junks across the Yangtze. Kiangyin is approximately 90 air miles from Nanking.

The Chinese government cautioned all civilians whose presence was not necessary for defense or public service to leave Nanking. No definite arrangements had been made for evacuation of United States citizens, but gunboats were on hand to move them upstream to safety if necessary.

Autos rank second only to food in family budgets in 24 towns of the western states, the department of agriculture reports.

CHAPTER I.

The postmaster at Blanco canyon peered over his spectacles in order to study Robert Barry.

"Looks like you'd oughta come in every week, young feller," he remarked. "Here's a passel of 'em. More'n all the rest put together." Bob smiled in acknowledgment, but his interest was centered on the armful of mail. There were nearly 20 magazines; two or three, concerning archaeology and prehistoric people, the postmaster had never heard of before. Several Sunday editions of the New York newspapers added bulk. And neatly tied by the postmaster for convenience was a stack of letters three inches high. Bob took these and grunted "Huh!" in surprise.

They were mostly long business envelopes with typed addresses. They were not entirely unexpected but—

"Yes! Yes sir!" Bob remembered to be cordial. "Guess I ought to, at that. But I have to ride horseback for 20 miles just to come into Blanco Canyon. Can't you and Jim Farley arrange to send me rural delivery?"

They laughed over the joke and Bob went inside. He stored the bulk mail in his car, then thumbed the letters. He opened the first one, and for the next half hour sat on the running board of his sedan and read his mail, oblivious of Arizona's autumn sunshine which still retained much of its summer power.

Eight of the letters were answers to a long classified advertisement which he had mailed to New York newspapers a month ago. Of these, one instantly excited him:

"Dear Dr. Barry: You have advertised for a partner to explore the ancient cliff dwelling on your ranch. That sounds great; I think I am the partner you need. I will leave New York day after tomorrow, and so should reach Blanco Canyon, Arizona, by Tuesday, according to the schedule. I note your warning that we will be isolated in a wilderness, miles from any town. That won't matter. I know older people think we younger ones can't Illustration by Ed Gunder. He fumbled with his hat. "You—you—" he stammered. "What's your name?" She smiled, rather beautifully but in amused surprise too. "Why it's Lane. I'm Mary Melissa Lane."

be happy without a crowd, but I will prove it isn't so. My father was like that, too. You may have heard of him—Elworth C. Lane—because he went to Harvard too. Class of 1898. Father didn't study archaeology, though. (You see I know you are a Harvard graduate because my lawyers reported that. I had them investigate you before writing.) Also I expect to do some of the work. I mean, something besides just putting up the money. I know a little about archaeology already. And I'm reading books. You can investigate me to be sure you are satisfied as to my financial rating. (My lawyers said you would probably want to do that.) I enclose cashier's check for $5000, in good faith, and will pay the remainder when I arrive. Cordially yours, M. M. Lane.

P. S. I will wait for you at the leading hotel in Blanco Canyon. Bob reread the letter hastily, and in some alarm. He hastened back into the postoffice.

"Say, Mr. Withers," he called to the postmaster, "when does that motor stage come in from Tucson?"

"Tuesday and Saturdays. Today's Tuesday, you know."

"Yes, but when's the next?"

"Due 'bout 1 o'clock. They have grub here, you know, then go on to—"

"One o'clock! Jimmy! Well, it's lucky I came in today, else—"

"Smatter, Mr. Barry? Bad news? You got to leave? The postmaster was a friendly soul, but

"No, no! Nothing like that. Just happens a man, a man named Lane, is coming out from the East to see me on business, and is due in today. I didn't expect him so soon. In fact, I didn't expect him at all, until about a week at a time some. He sort of took me off my feet. But his letter reads sensibly enough, I suppose. He went on—"

Bob Barry halted his talk. The inclination of a man who has been alone for weeks at a time to be highly sociable in town, but after all this was private business.

"—oh, it's just a little land matter," he evaded, and grinned good-naturedly at the postmaster.

He began thinking rapidly. If this fellow Lane believed in action, as he obviously does, maybe I'd better snap into it myself. Bob reasoned. This cashier's check proves it. "What a break!" he whispered to himself in elation. It was better luck than he had dared expect. The other letters in response to the advertisement were mostly cagey, cautious. But here was money actually in hand, far more than he needed. He could go ahead, at once, with a project that had intrigued him for almost a year. The scientist's mind was clicking delightedly now. He gave immediate thought to organizing the party which would explore the cliff dwelling in the Montezuma mountain range.

"We'll need a cook," he reasoned. "I'll go see old Three Horses."

Three Horses was an Indian who seemed to have lived forever, and who loafed eternally now around the village of Blanco Canyon. He was wise in his way.

"Need good cook," Bob Barry explained, patiently. "You ketchum me good cook, Three Horses. Savvy? Cook beans, bread, meat, everything outdoors. Me go long camping trip. You savvy? You send me Indian who can cook white man's grub. All right?"

Three Horses wouldn't be rushed. He had to be primed with a cigar, a bag of candy, and the purple silk neckerchief which Bob wore jauntily around his collar. But in the end he promised.

"Have the cook come to my shack over there," Bob pointed toward the distant hills. "And the next time I see you, it's a dollar for you. Good cook. White man's grub. Hurry!"

Bob next thought to begin buying provisions, but he decided to wait. Maybe this fellow Lane would have some ideas. At any rate he would be the financial backer, with a naïf interest in the entire proceeding. Courtesy atleast demanded that he be consulted, since he was due so soon.

Bob spent the remaining hour wondering what sort of fellow Lane would be. His letter sounded a trifle—well, childish. Hope the man isn't the dudish type. Or spoiled rich. That wouldn't do so well in the outdoors. Bob wanted a partner who could work as well as an enthusiasm for his trip. That old cliff dwelling—a remarkable prehistoric castle up 600 feet on the sheer side of a rock wall—was probably the most important ruin in North America. It would take long, lonely weeks, but Bob felt that he might excavate it thoroughly and solve the age-old problem of what became of the cliff people. They were, indeed, a forgotten race, a lost kingdom. No scientist knew what became of them. Any scientist would gain great fame and wealth if he could learn the answer. It fascinated Robert Wilson Barry, called Bob.

Dust down the highway heralded the coming of the motor bus, on time. Bob walked to the postoffice, where it would stop.

The driver threw out a bag of mail, and stood by the door to assist one passenger out. Bob strained to catch a first glimpse of his man, M. M. Lane.

No man got off, however. Bob felt let down. He'd have to wait until next Saturday now, and he had been thoroughly aroused about it all. His face turned long in disappointment.

But then the lone passenger, a woman, stepped out.

"Pardon me," she addressed Bob. "Is there a hotel? The town is much smaller than I expected."

A suspicion instantly struck Bob! He glared at her, almost fiercely. He fumbled for his hat.

"You—you—" he stammered. "What's your name?"

She smiled, rather beautifully but in amused surprise too.

"Why it's Lane. I'm Mary Melissa Lane. I am looking for a Dr. Barry, my business partner."

CHINESE RETREAT

Shanghai falls at last. Japanese troops flood into the shattered metropolis, their usually stolid faces bright with excitement and triumph. It is a great victory—but not a glorious one.

The winners have paid a great price. A Japanese army meted away in that siege of a city whose only fortifications were the flesh and blood of Chinese patriots.

The Chinese nation today knows, and the world knows, that the Japs are not better soldiers than the Chinese—that they are neither braver nor more intelligent—that man for man, given equal training, arms and opportunity, a Chinese officer or private is the equal of a Japanese.

Life is sweet, but life in Asia is cheap, and orientals seem to value it less than occidentals. Despite their vast losses, and the destruction of a great city, resulting from lack of modern arms and equipment and inferior training of the defenders, the Chinese command and the Chinese people are not downcast by their forced retreat.

To escape the invaders' pincers, they slowly withdrew toward Nanking, their ancient capital. General Chiang has steadily maintained that their "real defense" is in the west, and that China cannot be beaten there. We shall see.

OIL AND DIPLOMACY
For the past 10 years, or thereabouts, the United States has enjoyed unusually friendly relations with Mexico.

President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico is going ahead with his long-talked-of program for the nationalization of oil lands.

Most of the serious difficulties between the United States and Mexico during this generation have had oil at their base.

Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON—Hotel competition in this town is exceedingly keen. If one hotel snags a visiting prince while another gets only a count or a couple of visiting consuls, it is glory for the one and woe for the other.

So when a leading hotel (the Mayflower) found itself chosen by the Duke of Windsor for his brief stay here, its joy knew no bounds.

Management spared no expense in fitting up a nine-room apartment for the duke and duchess from which, if they chose, they could get a glimpse of the White House.

The apartment was refurbished from rug to rafters, and a special little hideaway was provided for the duke in another part of the hotel so visitors could be told honestly that "his highness is not in."

Tex's Topics

T. E. Johnson, the Amarillo scrivener never has quite recovered from the shock of several months ago when he read in this column a dissertation on milady's latest wrinkles in fashions.

But, this is the Thanksgiving season and too many writers are forgetting the fact. So, today I have decided to take over the reins of your favorite home economist and usher you right behind the scenes for the low-down on plain and fancy fixins' that should go with that Thanksgiving bird.

With the aid of Mrs. Alexander George, a paid spy, I have come to know that the well-dressed Thanksgiving dinner will boast a combination of old-time favorites and several culinary newcomers, about which even you haven't heard until this very minute.

Crunchy tid-bits will accompany cocktails and soups. Small salted wafers, cheese biscuits, bread sticks, melba toast or whole wheat crackers are all good.

If you'd like a change from white potatoes try a ring of wild brown or white rice filled with cream mushrooms or giblet gravy.

A sherbet course is a help in a feast of Thanksgiving dimensions. Spiced fruit, cranberry sauce, jelly, cider punch, carrot strings, celery curls, pickles and olives all come in the catalogue of light variations.

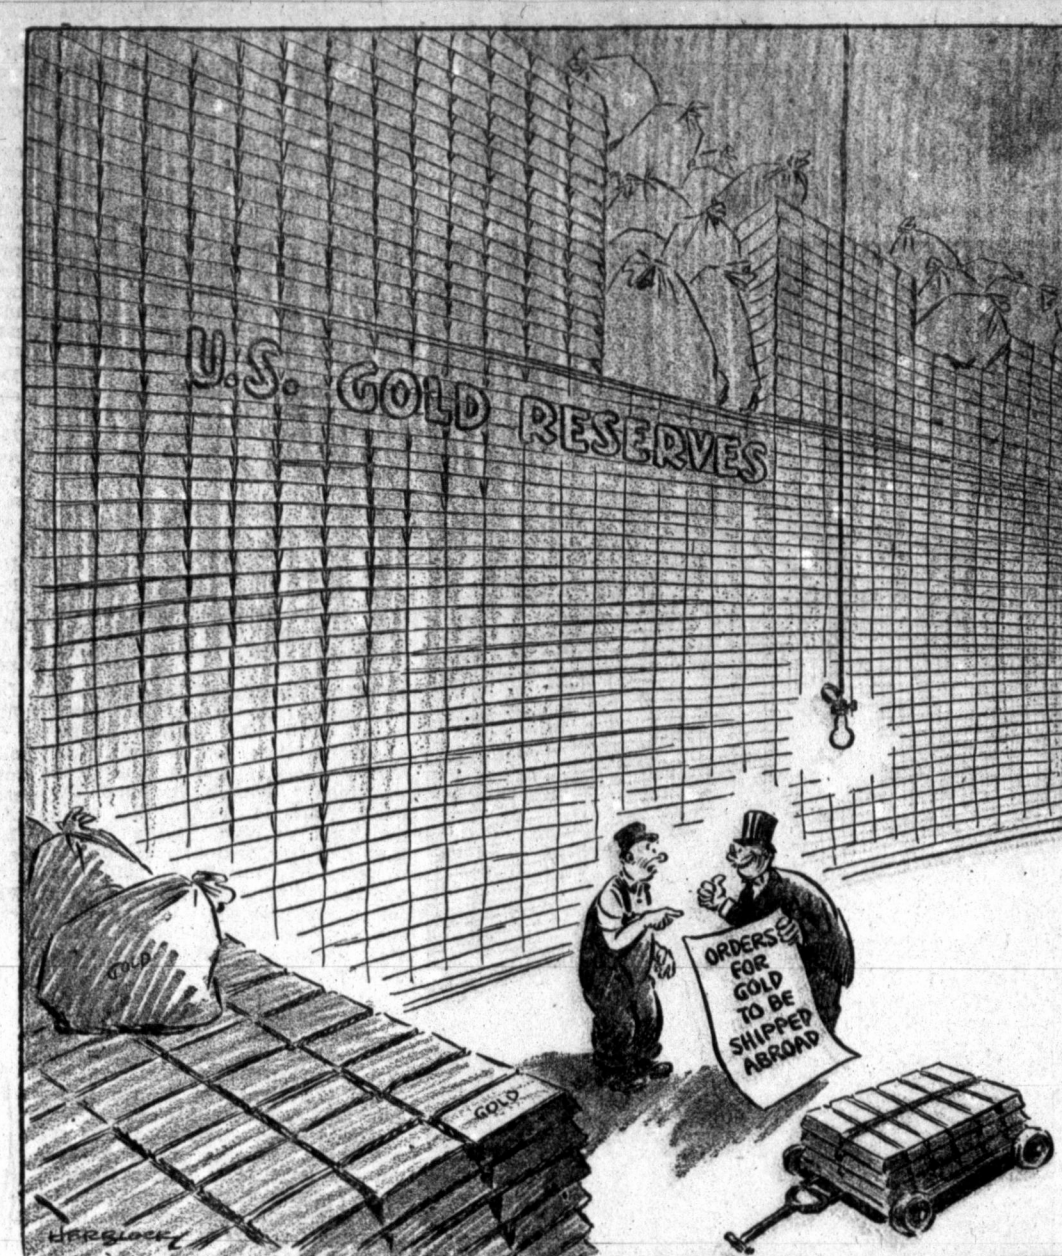

Goodness, girls—if that doesn't knock the slats out of your dining room table, I'll never roast another turkey! As has been explained from time to time on these little extra services that come with this column, there is no extra charge for them.

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY
Eighteen persons interested in the Red Cross roll call met at a luncheon at the Schneider hotel and set Pampa's goal to be raised at $10,000.

ABOUT 100 overall lassies, members of the high school pep squad, paraded the downtown streets to show the residents of Pampa that the girls of the school were behind their football team.

Fire destroyed 8,000 gallons of casinghead gasoline in a tank car on the Wilcox Oil and Gas company loading rack less than one mile east of the city.

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—Notes of the big town, jotted here and there on a quick round-up.

The newest Broadway hit is that satirical musical farce which sets a precedent by lambasting the daylights out of a president while he is still in office.

Written by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, Broadway's prime profaners of temples, it is, primarily, the Washington setup reduced to a daisy-chain of gleeful absurdities.

However, (to this corner's notion, at least) the best show in town is a lusty gallop with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in "Amphitryon 38," which is really a bedroom farce based on conubial razzie-dazzle.

Gertrude Lawrence is right much of the prankster off stage. She is one really famous star who likes to go places and dance after the final curtain.

Mary Boland has made 17 trans-Atlantic crossings. Skippers of the Atlantic lines, incidentally, are gratified that winter is upon us.

Teachers relax while machine works. AUSTIN (AP)—A robot that automatically grades students' papers is making life easier for professors at the University of Texas.

People You Know

It would be as hard to keep two Pampa women, Mrs. V. E. Fatheree and Mrs. Sam McCullough, from joining the Red Cross as it would be to get some people to join.

Mrs. McCullough, "I think of that verse in the Bible about the 'least of these.'" Mrs. Fatheree has been a member of the Red Cross since before the World War.

How's Your Health?
The cause of rheumatoid arthritis, the most serious of the different types of arthritis, is not known by medicine.

There is no specific treatment for rheumatoid arthritis and yet treatment which supports and corrects can yield the sufferer much benefit.

Many rheumatoid arthritis sufferers benefit by moving to a warm, even climate, preferably in the tropics.

A prescription easy to give but hard to fill is "freedom from worries and anxieties." And yet much experience shows that the mental and emotional state of the patient deeply influences the arthritis condition.

Around Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD—The seats sell for $5.50 (with tax) but it takes quite a few full houses subsequently to pay the cost of the glamorous one night labeled the "gala premiere."

When the stars went on parade the other evening to view the first showing of "The Hurricane," the setting for their display of finery and enthusiasm set Sam Goldwyn about $30,000 or more.

Flowers dig quite a hole into the premiere budget. They used 500 dozen callias, among other items, and real flower leis for the patrons and the grandstand-sitters.

By now movie fans who've seen "The Hurricane" will all be talking about the handsome youth who plays the lead opposite Dorothy Lamour. They'll speak of him as Jon Hall, the movie name Goldwyn tacked on him, and they'll talk about his looks and his splendid physique.

Patronage 'Price Tag' Hangs On Roosevelt Reorganization Plan

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Pampa Daily News Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov 18—Reorganization of the federal government, for decades a diverting topic of conversation, seems likely to become a reality as the 75th Congress assembled to act or not to act on the Roosevelt program.

The best reason for thinking so is the fact that reorganization bills designed to effect a portion of the recommendations of Roosevelt and his Brownlow-Merriam-Gulick committee of experts, carries an obvious price tag.

The price, payable to Congress, would be the removal of a thousand or more government career men—bureau chiefs, division heads and so on—in a process which would lay their jobs open to patronage raids.

The administration, with reservations, backs the omnibus reorganization bill which will be pushed by Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina.

The President would be authorized to bring about 300,000 now-empt federal employees into the civil service and to establish a new Department of Welfare under a cabinet secretary, who presumably would be Harry Hopkins of WPA.

The comptroller general's office would be abolished and a general auditing department—under executive direction—be placed with the Budget Bureau.

The President would be given six administrative assistants. The name of the Interior Department would be changed to Department of Conservation and a National Resources Planning Board would be set up to study "development and utilization" of the nation's natural and human resources.

Price Is Patronage
The House has passed bills with more or less similar provisions as to presidential reorganization powers and authorizing the six assistants.

Chief fight in the House, and probably the Senate, is expected to center on the provision which would put nearly all federal employees under civil service.

There is also sure to be a battle against abolition of the comptroller general's office, formerly held by Republican John R. McCar, who blocked expenditures as to whose legality he and New Dealers disagreed.

When primitive man ate meat he was eating so much larger and stronger than he was that he could not kill them. He had to wait until he found them dead.

Despite assurances from administration sources that the ways are greased for passage, a long history of refusals by Congress to act on presidential recommendations 'invites skepticism as to the likelihood of an important reorganization act now.

But there are few who won't agree that Roosevelt never said a truer thing than his description of the federal administrative set-up as "a highly pig-diddle patchwork of duplicating responsibilities and overlapping powers."

Book A Day
By BRUCE CATTON
Edgar Johnson has written a swift, fascinating story in "The Praying Mantis" (Stackpole Sons; $2).

Mr. Johnson offers us a successful, middle-aged New York publisher and his wife, the latter a grade-A hell-cat crossed with just a bread-taking detective story puzzle.

By sheer chance, the murdering mistress leaves a trail of evidence which points—not to her, but to the wife who egged her on.

So the wife sets to work; and at last, at a house party on their country estate, she succeeds.

RANGERS BEST INVESTIGATING BLANTON CASE

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL.
AUSTIN, Nov. 18 (AP)—Still shadowed by mystery, the Blanton disappearance case was one year old today.
 Officials admitted fate of Luther and John Blanton, father and son who on Nov. 18, 1936, left their farm near San Perita in southwest Texas to hunt ducks, remained unknown.
 Nevertheless these points stood out currently in efforts to find the key to what apparently was Texas' number one unsolved crime:
 1. The famous Texas Rangers seemed, for the first time to have a free hand in the investigation.
 2. There was widespread agreement the Rangers had an able man on the job.
 3. The Rangers believed the Blantons, last seen by their families walking toward a prohibited state game preserve on the world-renowned former King ranch, were dead.
 4. They had definite theories as to who killed them, but did not know where the bodies were and did not have evidence as yet to warrant arrests.
 5. The investigation was being pressed as vigorously as ever and Col. H. H. Carmichael, chief of the state public safety department, which includes the Rangers, declared it would never be relaxed.
 Carmichael, reviewing developments of the year, summed up the situation:
 "Yes, I have a theory. Rangers who have done intensive work on the case have theories. The theories are alike as essentials."
Blantons Believed Dead.
 "I believe the Blantons did not leave the country. I think they are dead, that they were murdered. The theories include who did the killings."
 "But I do not know where the bodies are, nor do I have sufficient evidence to warrant arrests."
 "In the last year we have left nothing in our power undone. . . . We have followed literally hundreds of rumors and threads."
 "We have had from one to six men on the case since the beginning.

 "I cannot say the case will or will not be solved. Some crimes never are solved despite the best efforts of officers. Solution to others is had after long years."
 "It would not be surprising if the 'break' comes, if at all, from the disposal of the bodies. If the killers had help, the helpers may tell some day, under the stimulus of reward. If they did not have help, there is a big question."
 "There are men in the world who would murder you calmly and lie down an hour later to sleep peacefully. . . . There are men who would do this and never breathe a word of it to anyone, drunk or sober."

Best In Charge.
 One of the more favorable aspects, others said, was that the investigation had been turned over almost entirely to the department and one of its shrewdest men, Ranger Ernest Best.
 These things have been noted in the case:
 Threatened mob action by citizens demanding apprehension of the criminals, a county court of inquiry assisted by the state attorney general's department, a contempt case against four officers involved in the arrest of an investigator numerous charges of inefficiency and politics in the investigation.
 Those taking the favorable view said the department and its Rangers had been so busy defending themselves and running down false reports handed them by others they hardly had had time to do anything on their own. Their attitude, in brief:
 "We've got a good man on it now. Let's keep still and give him a chance."

INDIVIDUAL MOTIONS REQUESTED BY JUDGE

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 18 (AP)—Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone called upon defendants in the government's price-fixing case today to argue individual motions for dismissal of charges.
 The judge denied yesterday a general motion to drop charges against all 19 oil companies and 45 individuals.
 Arguments on individual motions began yesterday, but the judge did not rule at once. He said, though, Archie Gray, Houston, Tex., Gulf Refining company and Gulf Oil corporation attorney, had made a "very persuasive statement."

FOUR DISPUTES DISTURB PEACE IN AMERICAS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—Four international disputes are disturbing the placidity of the Western Hemisphere less than a year after the 21 American republics signed peace pacts at Buenos Aires.
 In each controversy, the United States has assumed or sought to assume a mediatory role.
 The latest dispute is that between the Dominican Republic and Haiti over the alleged wholesale slaying of Haitian laborers employed in the former country.
 President Roosevelt has joined the governments of Cuba and Mexico in offering the services of the United States as a mediator.
 His proposal received an unexpected setback when the Dominican President, who had not requested outside mediation, asked for a "clarification." The Dominican Government had contended the situation was a domestic matter.
 On another front, the United States is engaged with Costa Rica and Venezuela in an effort to mediate the "postage stamp" boundary dispute between Honduras and Nicaragua.
 This controversy, dating back to 1906, became critical recently when Nicaragua issued an air mail stamp picturing the map of that country as including territory which Honduras claims. Unofficial reports said troops were massed on both sides of the border.
 Still awaiting a settlement also are the long-standing disputes between Bolivia and Paraguay over the Chaco territory and between Ecuador and Peru over the location of their common frontier.

The government is trying to determine whether "redcaps" and similar employes of railway stations are subject to the railroad labor act.

OYSTERS SUBPOENAED.
PITTSBURGH—Three hundred and twenty-eight pints of oysters, "more or less," were listed today as defendants in a federal court suit.
 The government charges the oysters were adulterated, "water having been added to the product to reduce or lower its quality," a violation of the pure food and drug act. The oysters will be destroyed unless the owner intervenes.

NEW WASHING MACHINES ARRIVE AT THOMPSON'S

Washing machines that require only the placing of dry clothes in the dry machine, setting two control buttons, adding soap and bluing, and removing the clothes from the machine damp dry, ready to hang on the line, have been received at Pampa.
 Yesterday a shipment of 10 of these machines, called the Bendix Home Laundry, was delivered to Thompson Hardware company, 113 N. Cuyler. This is the original shipment of washing machines of this type to Pampa. Thompson Hardware company are exclusive Pampa agents.
 Home appliance dealers from 54 Texas counties were the guests of the C. M. Williams company in Amarillo, in a get-acquainted ceremony at the Capitol hotel.
 Officials and representatives of Bendix Home Appliances, Inc., South Bend, Ind., were present to introduce the new "home laundry."
 Three hundred years ago, Simon Stevin, a Dutch inventor, devised a "horseless wagon," a great boat-like wagon propelled by sails which caught the breeze blowing in from the sea.

RISK RATES ON SHIPMENTS TO SHANGHAI DROP

(By The Associated Press)
 War risk rates on international maritime commerce—one barometer of war tension—were reduced sharply today on cargoes for the Orient and the Western Mediterranean.
 The reduction announced in London by British Marine Insurance Underwriters was believed due to three developments:
 The transfer of Chinese-Japanese hostilities from the Shanghai area;
 An apparent end of "piracy" which developed in the Mediterranean as an outgrowth of the Spanish civil war;
 An easier political situation in Europe.
 The rates on cargoes to or from Shanghai were cut to $1.25 for each $500 of value, whereas a month ago the rate was $10. The Mediterranean rate was reduced from $1.87 to $1.25.
 But in Paris, Senator Henry Berger, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the French Senate, declared Japan had warned of probable retaliation for any arms shipments from French Indo-China to China. His statement appeared in conflict with previous denials of any such warning by other French officials and the Japanese embassy there.

 In the Spanish civil conflict, government forces harassed the insurgent troops of Generalissimo Francisco Franco with artillery and infantry attacks in the upper and lower Aragon sectors. The government operations apparently were aimed at frustrating a prospective insurgent drive eastward.

HOLY SOULS AND WILSON SCHOOLS WIN

At the regular meeting of the Kerley-Crossman post of the American Legion last night, members of the post voted to join the American National Red Cross annual roll call 100 per cent.

Legionnaires heard Earl Perkins, 18th district re-employment officer, urge cooperation in the unemployment census.

Bob Ernest was named chairman of an old time dance to be sponsored by the post, and to be given Thanksgiving night at the red brick school building on the Pampa high school campus.

Profits of the dances given jointly by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion on Nov. 11, were reported as $204. This sum is to be given to Pampa schools.

Holy Souls school and Woodrow Wilson school won the prizes in the attendance of parents at the schools during American Education week. American flags are to be awarded these schools.

The fourth grade room at Holy Souls was the only school room to have a 100 per cent attendance in the contest. Holy Souls school scored 90 per cent, while Woodrow Wilson with 53 per cent, was high in its division.

Sam Houston school was second with 46 per cent; Horace Mann, third, 39; B. M. Baker, fourth, 38.

DECEMBER OIL DEMAND ESTIMATED BY BUREAU

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Bureau of Mines estimated today a daily average supply of 3,491,300 barrels of domestic crude oil would be required to meet December market demands.

In its monthly forecast the bureau said this would be 17,000 barrels less than the daily average estimated for November. It would be 341,200 higher than the actual daily production for December 1936, and ten per cent above the actual domestic demand in that month.

Crude oil production from November 2 to October 30 averaged about 3,600,000 barrels daily. During that period stocks declined 1,896,000 barrels net, of which 1,603,000 was in domestic grades.

This decline in crude stocks, the bureau said, was offset by an unusual increase in gasoline stocks during October.

Stocks of gasoline September 30 amounted to 65,380,000 barrels. The bureau said these stocks increased about 1,650,000 barrels during October, the first time an increase has occurred in this month since 1931.

Crude oil exports are estimated at 5,800,000 barrels, or 400,000 less than November estimates.

21 Out of 1,108 Estate Claimants Remain in Fight

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—Only 21 of an original 1,108 claimants remained today in the long court fight for the $877,500 estate left by Mrs. Ida E. Wood, the cigar-smoking "little old lady of Herald Square."

Surrogate James A. Foley, who weeded out hundreds of litigants claiming to be relatives of the eccentric recluse, said hearing of the remaining claimants would be resumed December 20.

Attorney-General To Visit Higgins

By ISABEL DAUNER. HIGGINS, Nov. 18.—Attorney Bill McCraw will be the guest of Attorney Roy K. Sansing, at a luncheon to be given in his honor, at Higgins on Saturday, Nov. 20.

This marks the first time that an attorney-general or a candidate for governor of Texas ever visited Lipscomb county.

Heretofore Lipscomb county has been in the Republican party column, except in the general election last year when 80 per cent of the voting strength of the county was cast for the Democrats.

Democratic leaders of Lipscomb county plan on a strong majority at the next primaries and the friends of Bill McCraw feel that he will have paid them their first recognition from state officials.

Big Savings Seen As Oil Controversy Ends

AUSTIN, Nov. 18 (AP)—Attorney General William McCraw said today apparent termination of legal attacks on a railroad commission rule requiring measurement of oil storage tanks on a 100 per cent basis would have producers and royalty owners approximately $15,000,000 daily.

He said he had been advised the Texas pipe line company had dropped an appeal from a federal court decision upholding the rule and another company which was refused an injunction in Travis County district court did not appeal.

For years, pipe line purchasers computed the amount of oil on a 99 per cent tank table which meant the seller must deliver 100 barrels but was paid for only 99, the difference being charged to waste.

When the commission ordered 100 per cent measurement some months ago the rule was attacked and a federal court up held it.

DALLAS AND LUBBOCK SEEK P-TA MEETING

BEAUMONT, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers prepared to close their convention here today with Dallas and Lubbock vying for choice as next year's convention city. No officers are to be elected this year.

The 800 delegates, at the annual banquet last night, heard Mrs. J. K. Pettengill of Detroit, national P. T. A. President.

Miss Marian Telford, New York national P. T. A. Safety Chairman, had told delegates lack of social safeguards can be blamed for some of the troubles which beset modern youth.

Chili Poisoning Takes Lives of 5

TUCUMCARI, N. M., Nov. 13 (AP)—Airplanes rushed precious serum here today for a battle by local physicians and state health officials to save lives of five persons stricken with food poisoning that already has claimed lives of five others.

Two of those still alive were seriously ill and officials expressed the fear that the serum being flown from Denver and Kansas City might be too late even for the three others who so far appeared only "moderately" affected.

Physicians tentatively ascribed the deaths to botulism poisoning from eating spoiled home-canned chili peppers Tuesday.

Death followed the eating of home-canned chili peppers for members of three families and threatened four members of another. The ten were mourners who Monday gathered for the funeral of Joseph I. Gallegos.

"Have you seen my son?" He was referring to J. W. Harvester captain, son of Mack's brother, Bill. When Pampa gave Lubbock the safety Mack was saying, "Have you seen my nephew?" and after the game he was saying "He ain't no kin to me."

Coach Mitchell defended the quarterbacking of the Amarillo game by J. W. "Any play that works is the right play," said Coach Mitchell who also declared that the present squad "is the best bunch of boys he ever worked with."

Absent from the dinner were Claude Heiskell who doesn't like banquets and who refuses to attend them, and Harry McMahon who was in the hospital with an infected little toe. Harry was sent a plate heaped high with turkey, dressing, potatoes, string beans, pineapple salad, cranberry jelly. The dessert consisted of ice cream and cake. A huge cake, trimmed in green and gold was donated by Puritan bakery.

Hicks called on Mr. Showers, father of Roy, to stand up, and introduced him as the man who had the referee "before him" all over the field at Clovis last year. The most avid of all Harvester fans, Rley Morgan, was present, but Hicks must like him too much to razz him, if that is possible, because he alone of all the fans present escaped.

PLAINS SPIRIT THEME OF SPEECH BY SHEFFY

The Top O'Texas from the time of Coronado to Davenport; how the spirit of the plains arose and developed, was the theme of a speech by Prof. L. F. Sheffy of the West Texas State Teachers college at an inter-club meeting of the Canyon and Pampa Rotary clubs at noon Wednesday.

The meeting was held at Pampa's first Methodist church. The Canyon club, headed by President Bill Warren, was in charge of the program. Canyon club members present were 10. Forty-Five Pampanans attended the meeting.

Douglas Shirley, West Texas College registrar, and Dr. J. A. Hill, were among the Canyon Rotarians. Violin, piano and vocal solos were included in the program.

Three-fourths of all women professional workers in the United States are school teachers and nurses.

'GUIDANCE' WILL BE TAUGHT BY PROFESSOR

Second session of an advanced course in education called "guidance" will be held at 4:15 p. m. Monday at the Pampa high school.

The course, taught by Dr. A. M. Meyers of West Texas State college, is available to every teacher in Gray county able to attend the class. Sessions are to be held each Monday.

The course may be taken by any person who has had two or more years of work in education, and may be used for either undergraduate or graduate credit. It deals with administrative and advisory problems in connection with educational, vocational, and personal guidance.

Guidance courses are in great demand now wherever teachers assemble, Dr. Meyer said.

HARVESTERS TO PLAY PLAINVIEW TOMORROW WITHOUT HARRY MCMAHAN

BULLDOGS TO BE BATTLING FOR FIRST WIN

When the Harvesters take the field at Plainview tomorrow afternoon they will be without Harry McMahan, stellar end. McMahan, a letterman with one more year of eligibility, is in Worley hospital with an infected foot. Doctors have been battling against blood poisoning and believe they have won. McMahan, however, won't be able to play until Thanksgiving day and maybe not then.

At right end in place of McMahan will be either Bob Andis or Norman Cox, who have been battling all week for the starting assignment. Andis has the inside track because of the knee injury which has handicapped Cox all season. The big fellow has played only one game and a few minutes of two or three other encounters.

Taking their conference game with Plainview seriously, the Harvesters have been drilling doggedly on pass defense and on their own offense.

Since it is the last opportunity for the Bulldogs to chalk up a conference victory, they are primed for the supreme effort for that last chance, according to word from Plainview.

Cox Hilliard is prepared to send his charges into the game with a "nothing to lose, everything to gain" attitude. He is making an effort to paint a bright spot in an otherwise drab season.

Believing the district will be thrown into a tie, the Harvesters are determined to come through their last two conference games with flying colors. They are not pointing to the game with Berger on Thanksgiving day but are looking toward Plainview first.

Once again the Bulldogs loom as a real threat. Although battered around by both Class A and Class B teams early in the season, the Plainview team has been gradually coming to the front. Against Berger they ran up 13 first downs to Berger's three but lost the game.

Plainview is Big. Every team has one good game in the bag and to date the Bulldogs have not presented their best battle, is the belief of Harvester Coaches Ocus Mitchell and J. C. Frejean. They anticipate that one big game tomorrow. The Bulldogs will be fighting for a first conference victory.

In Crossland, Lovvorn, James and Shirley, Plainview has one of the best backfields in the district. It is big and fast with Crossland a long passer and a deadly blocker from a deep unit formation. Wheeler, Woodward, Schneider and Crossland lead a huge line that will outweigh the Harvesters at least 200 pounds per man. The backfield weight difference may be greater.

No Plainview starting lineup has been received here and Harvester coaches have not definitely named starters. J. P. Mathews, ace guard, will probably be able to play. He worked out yesterday afternoon and the knee felt pretty good.

Probable Harvester starters will be Reynolds and Andis or Cox, ends; Brown and Coshaw, tackles; Mathews and Nelson, guards; Harding, center; Graham, quarter; Smith and Heiskell, halves; Karr, full.

A special train carrying Harvester fans will leave from the Santa Fe station at 9 a. m., arriving in Plainview at 11:30 o'clock. The return will be at 5:15 p. m., reaching Pampa at 7:45 p. m. On board will be the 200 high school pep squad girls, 50-piece Harvester band and several hundred fans. The high school will be dismissed for the day with it to be made up at the end of the year.

The special will be operated under strict school supervision. Also on board will be many Pampa Kiwanians who will hold their meeting in Plainview as guests of the Plainview club. The local club will present the program, on safety.

MUST BEAT STANFORD. BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 18 (AP)—University of California, favorite to defeat Stanford Saturday and thereby win the Coast conference football championship and the Rose Bowl bid, hasn't given an official thought yet as to an opponent in the New Year's day game at Pasadena, Graduate Manager Kenneth Priestley said today. "First we must win from Stanford," he added.

Amarillo And Marshall Games Mark Schedule

DALLAS, Nov. 18 (AP)—Two games with all the chips down, one deep in the East Texas oil field and the other in the Panhandle, stand out in a comparatively light week-end of only 38 games in the schoolboy grid league.

Trying for its fourth straight state title, Amarillo's Golden Sandies tackle, on their home lot Saturday, a Berger team that is tied with them for the district 1 lead. Beaten only once Amarillo faces a Berger crew that has won three, lost three and tied one but scored in all.

At Marshall, on Friday, the Longview obsoles, East Texas' powerful undefeated team with its Dandy Dick Miller, prancing ball carrier, attempt to clear another hurdle in their district 9 race. Marshall, tied with the Lobos for the district lead has shown offensive strength that could provide an upset.

Other choice (final) games in the 16-district league have been held over until Thanksgiving day, but seven more Friday games could alter standings. Unbeaten Abilene, leader of district 3, travels to Big Spring to meet a club that has won only two games and dropped five; Sherman, heading the district 5 parade, stays at home to meet the challenge of an inferior Paris eleven and Vernon, the district 2 race settler, ranked a favorite over Wichita Falls in their meeting on the latter's field.

At Dallas, the city and district 8 title was at stake when Woodrow Wilson, only slightly favored, clashed with North Dallas. Luffkin, power of the district 10 battle, had Jacksonville, with two wins and three losses on its books, in a home game. A smashing Conroe team, unbeaten and untied, prepared to defend its district 13 lead against the invasion of John Regan of Houston while Jeff Davis and San Jacinto, two Houston teams deadlocked for second place and still in the race, clashed at Houston.

Beaumont, tied with the disputed Port Arthur Yellowjackets in district 14, had a rough assignment in Ball high of Galveston, a team that lost its first game to Port Arthur last week.

CHICAGO COACH WOULD GIVE ANYTHING TO WIN SATURDAY

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BREITZ

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—It cost the Fresh Meadow Country Club at Flushing $4,000 to repair the damage done by the John Montague-Babe Ruth golf match gallery.

Marshall Goldberg has replaced Gibby Welch as Coach Doc Sutherland's favorite football player of all time. The anti-Nazi society is warming up to blast the Max Schmeling-Harry Thomas fight at the Garden December 13. What Max can't understand is why the Nazi-haters didn't work on Baton Gottfried Von Cram when he was playing all that tennis at Forest Hills a couple of months back.

Cubs, Giants, Cards and Pirates all are bidding for Van Mungo, with the Cubs having the inside track. No wonder they call the Duquesne football team the night riders. Only games they've won this year have been under lights.

Here's a real golf story: Myron B. Thurrell, Torrington (Conn.) high school teacher, stood on the fifth tee at the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month and fired away with a No. 4 iron. The ball landed in the cup, 175 yards away.

Washington and Lee lost no time knocking down our yarn that Yale's Greasy Neale is in line for head coach. (We don't blame them if the announcement was a bit premature.) But brothers, we didn't reach up and pluck that story out of the ozone.

IVORY SALES TO BE LARGE AT MILWAUKEE

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—Baseball's big league managers are dusting off old but "swap-able" ivory and bringing bankrolls into the open for what may be the biggest buying and trading session in years.

Every pilot from Joe McCarthy of the Yankees on down the line in both leagues, is hoping Santa Claus is good to him. When they spring the barrier on the minor league meetings in Milwaukee on Dec. 1, and follow along with major league conclaves in Chicago, the buying and selling is going to resemble the stock exchange floor on a big day.

There isn't a team that couldn't stand improvement. McCarthy, despite his world champion wallpapers, could find a lot of use for another starting pitcher, and an infielder, in the event the Yanks sour on Joe (Flash) Gordon as second-base successor to Tony Lazzeri.

The Yanks' neighborhood rivals and world series opponents, the National league pennant winning Giants, have an eye out for at least one pitcher to back up Hubbell, Melton, Castleman, et al, and definitely need punch in spots particularly those spots at first base and center field.

Jimmy Dykes has shouted his need for a third-sacker, and it does not require a psychic hot-stover to see that his Chicago White Sox can't go on forever with their old-man pitching corps.

If the Chicago Cubs can get Van Lingle Mungo from the Dodgers, their only worry will be the outfield, or an outfielder. But Brooklyn, believing the Mungo market has dropped because of temperamental Van's dismal season, may hold off on any deal involving him.

Similar needs for talent were seen in a survey of the other big league clubs.

BAKER TO MANAGE TIGERS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18 (AP)—The San Francisco Examiner said today it had learned Del Baker would be named manager of the Detroit Tigers this season and Manager Mickey Cochrane would be given an executive position.

BOULDER, Colo.—This White family is concerning the market on individual point production this season. There's Bryon (Whizzer) White at Colorado, here, who has piled up an even 100 points so far, and leads the nation. While back at Brooklyn College, Sid of the White clan (and somewhat of a whizzer himself), has chalked up 93 points to date, and is second in the country.

Class B Games Headline Attractions Tomorrow

Ranger Coach

Class B football will hold sway in the Panhandle tomorrow and Pampa fans unable to go to Plainview will have an opportunity to see some of the best games of the season at Berger, McLean or Memphis.

The head-master of the Perryton Rangers who will meet the Panhandle Panthers for the championship of district 2-B in Berger tomorrow afternoon is Otis Burke, pictured above. Game time will be 2:30 p. m. on Bulldog field. Burke and his Rangers struck their stuff on Harvester field last year.

The heavyweight champion said so today, but he won't have his craving satisfied until Monday when he starts a ten-day span of gymnasium work. Louis will not fight until next February when he expects to make a defense of his title against a challenger in New York, but he is anxious to sharpen his punching eye, after being idle since defeating Tommy Farr in their 15-round bout August 30.

CHAPTER XXV

BY MARY RAYMOND
Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.

It seemed strange, Alan thought, to be in New York in America again.

Six months had past since his hurried departure that morning. It might have been yesterday. Things were so unchanged.

Rockefeller Center towering across the way, and early morning worshippers hurrying up the worn steps that led from the street to St. Patrick's Cathedral.

It was even stranger to be here in a new role. Not a penniless young man at odds with his father, seeking a foothold in a big, strange city. But rather, as an artist returning with his father's full approval, called back by an amazing turn of fortune.

"Sun Over Seville" had really been sold by the dealer this time, and to an authentic purchaser. The dealer had written. "This man is one of New York's important patrons of art. You must come to New York immediately."

And stranger of all—with the world suddenly so friendly—that there should be no thrill or happiness for him.

He had not wanted to return. He dreaded the rush of unhappy memories that would be brought back to him. He was afraid to open a paper, for fear Jill's face or her name would leap out at him.

Jill, by now, he was sure, had married Milo Montaine, and was living a luxurious life with him. During the six months he had been away, Alan had tried to put her completely out of his mind. He had told himself she was hard, unworthy, deliberately cruel.

Whenever he thought of Jill's loveliness, he would remind himself of that cheap, spectacular dance to the dreadful sound of the Wedding March in one-step time.

How could he think for a moment that he could love a girl who could do a thing like that!

mistie gentleman who said every day he was better and better." Patty said, speculative eyes on Jill's wan face. "But I can't. Every day you look worse to me. There's no need for you to be slaving in a downtown store, when I make enough to take care of both of us. And if you won't take help from me, there are Jack and Sylvia offering you a home. Jill, as much as I'd miss you, I wish you would go to them. You're not used to hard work. I'm awfully worried about you."

The two girls were at the breakfast table at Patty's home.

"You needn't be," Jill spoke in a cheerful tone. "It's very good for me to work. Millions of other girls have to work. Why shouldn't I?"

"But those millions of other have not been reared as you have," Patty countered. "You need time to become strong enough to take the tough breaks."

"I'm strong enough," Jill insisted. "Please don't bother. Patty, I don't know what I would have done without my job. It keeps me from thinking."

"Well, you certainly haven't much time to think, with all those frenzied females pawing over everything on the counter. Jill, I absolutely boil when I think of you behind a counter. Though, I'll be honest—I was absolutely delighted when Barry had to go to work and he and his mother moved into a dinky little apartment. I always felt she was trying to throw suspicion on you to keep the police from thinking—"

"Please don't talk to me about it," Jill broke in, her face white.

"I'm sorry, Jill. I'm no help at all," Patty said.

"I don't know what I could have done without you," Jill said. "If it hadn't been for your—finding the old woman with my scarf—the police would never have believed me."

"Hush!" Patty said. "We're not going to talk about that either." She was thinking: "How easy it was for them to decide that it was nothing but a heart attack when they couldn't move a motive that would implicate anyone else."

"Gracious," Patty said, now there's the bell. Who could be calling on us at breakfast time? You go, Jill, while I do things to my face."

Jill got up from the table and went into the small front room. She was gone quite a long time. Patty, now rouged and powdered, was giving the breakfast dishes a vigorous bath in hot suds.

"Whatever can be keeping Jill?" Patty thought, finally. "She'll be late for work if she does not hurry up. And if she wants to keep that job, she'd better watch the clock."

She dried her hands on the dish towel and started to investigate.

For a moment she stood quietly in the doorway—amazed eyes on two young people. Jill was standing near the door, close in some man's arms. He was kissing her! The young man lifted his head at last. Patty caught her breath. Alan Jeffrey!

She slipped back to the kitchen. After another long interval, Patty walked briskly into the living room. And this time Jill's radiant face was lifted from Alan's shoulder.

"Where, may I ask, did you find that?" Patty mocked, gently.

"I didn't find him," Jill's happy voice rang out. "He found me."

RED CROSS TOOK CHARGE OF NEW LONDON SCHOOL BLAST FEW HOURS AFTER EXPLOSION

Of all the disasters that occurred in the United States within the year, perhaps none shocked the entire nation as did the explosion at the New London, Texas, school, on March 18, 1937.

When the final count was made 297 students and members of the faculty had been killed in the explosion, including those who died from injuries received in the blast.

Within a few hours after the dreadful happening the Rusk county and other Red Cross chapters in Texas were in action rounding up doctors and medical supplies, and in dispatching assistance to the scene.

From Little Rock, Ark. where he had been directing flood relief work, the Red Cross dispatched a relief director trained by long experience in bringing order out of chaos.

The medical director of the American National Red Cross rushed to the Texas town by airplane. From Warm Springs, Georgia, President Franklin D. Roosevelt sent the following message:

"In the great disaster which has come to New London, Texas, I know the Red Cross will do everything possible. You have my authority to call on every agency of the government to aid."

Through the first emergency hours the Red Cross furnished sheets for improvised hospitals and morgues, searchlights for the workers among the debris, transportation for frantic parents who collapsed or grew weary while the gruesome search was carried on in the ruins, food for homes that were unprepared for such an emergency, and finally, flowers for the graves of the youthful victims of the holocaust.

Red Cross nurses, sent into the community by chapters in nearby towns as well as the National organization, found themselves called upon for unusual duties. So prostrated with grief were many of the parents and relatives or friends of the victims that nurses were frequently requested to accompany funeral processions to the grave, there to administer what aid they could under intensely emotional conditions. Nursing service was also made available to families before and after funerals to assist them in handling difficult family problems.

So shocked were many of the parents that, when nurses arrived, they were found to have been in their homes for many hours to distraught to think of eating, and in some cases medical assistance was necessary. It was, perhaps, only natural that practical needs should be forgotten by the grief-stricken survivors, and it was here that the Red Cross nurses, as well as the volunteer physicians, were able to render real service to those in need. Mothers wept on the shoulders of Red Cross workers; fathers took solace from comforting words they spoke, while at all times, during this great emergency, usual business-like case work procedure was tempered with all the tenderness possible.

The Red Cross placed a special nurse on duty in the community for an indefinite period following the explosion to continue the supervision of injured persons after their discharge from hospitals. In the words of the Red Cross medical director, speaking a few days after the terrible happening, "No children with any handicap or crippled condition resulting from this disaster will be left un cared for if such condition can be corrected by expert medical service. We will follow these children and help them as long as it is necessary."

Of those injured but whose lives were spared only one student will remain permanently crippled.

While no special appeal was made, funds were contributed by individuals and other organizations. The American National Red Cross contributed $30,447.29 of the $52,067.31 listed as receipts in a financial statement as of August 31, 1937.

For medical and nursing services, the Red Cross spent $21,380.24, $14,720 for burial expense, $4,198.98 for rescue, transportation, and mass shelter, $4,649.80 for food, clothing and maintenance, and made cash grants of $4,346.56. Field supervision amounted to $1,521.27. Household goods, $74.20, family service $314.25.

This work was made possible by annual membership contributions.

The world production of automobiles during the past 10 years totaled 42,146,000 units, of which plants in the United States and Canada accounted for 34,809,000, or about 82 per cent.

SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS

(Editor's Note: This is one of a series of questions and answers being published by this newspaper for the benefit of employers, workers, and others affected by the Social Security Act.)

Question: What should an employee do if he loses his Social Security account card? What should he do if he has been issued more than one account card?

ANSWER: If an employee loses his account card, he should report such loss to the nearest office of the Social Security Board. He will be requested to fill out another application for account number, Form SS-5, and should show at line 14 the place and date of filing his original application, and the reason for requesting a duplicate number. The application will then be forwarded to Baltimore, Maryland for issuance of the duplicate card.

If an employee received two or more account cards, he should retain one of the cards, preferably the one he has previously used, and forward the remainder issued to him to the nearest office of the Social

PUBLICATIONS TOOLS OF COMPANIES, CLAIM

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 18 (AP)—Prosecutors of the federal government's gasoline price-fixing case, fighting a defense move for a directed verdict of acquittal, advanced a contention today market publications were innocent tools of the major oil companies.

Attorneys for 19 oil companies and 45 individual defendants had contended the government's dismissal of charges against three trade journals created a "fatal variance" between the government's case and the indictment, which named the publications as co-conspirators.

Special Prosecutor John Henry Lewin asserted yesterday that John Steiger, 24-year-old Tulsa, Okla., checker for Platt's Oilgram, was "completely in the hands" of inde-

IT'S SMART TO ACT DUMB, BRIGHT GIRL SAYS.

FAIRBURN, Ga. (AP)—"Don't be a 'smarty,'" is Martha Bledsoe's advice to girls everywhere.

Martha is only 14 and has been pretty busy getting to be a high school senior and the Georgia spelling champion at this age but she has had time to figure out the following:

"It takes a pretty smart girl to know when to act dumb. The smarter she is the less she will exhibit it."

"There times when she might cultivate a mild stupidity."

"Boys don't like smart girls."

Safety measures on the Cairo-Alexandria, Egypt, highway include police posts equipped with two-way radio apparatus approximately every 25 miles and motorcyclists with first aid equipment who patrol the highway during the periods of heaviest traffic.

PLAINS COWMEN STILL KEEP 'RIVER HORSES'

CANADIAN, Nov. 18 (AP)—Many plains cowmen still keep river horses in their remudas.

Practically all the ranches along the Canadian and Red rivers have river horses, or those that can negotiate high water with safety.

Many horses "lose their heads" when they get in the water or shifting river sand, but the river horse is a steady animal with even temper and a level head.

The river horse is usually a large, trained animal that takes its time in the water or sand. Good river horses have been known to lie down when they encountered quicksand they couldn't negotiate on foot.

Ranches fronting rivers or having big streams running through them need river horses practically all seasons of the year.
