About 350 cotton farmers are affected.

SCHOOLS CAN COMPEL STUDENTS TO TAKE 'MILITARY'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The supreme court refused today to interfere with the conviction of Oscar M. Hartzell of Iowa for collecting funds from people on representation that they share in a vast estate supposed to have been left by Sir Francis Drake, the celebrated British admiral.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The right of the University of California and other land grant colleges to compel students to take military training was in effect upheld today by the supreme court.

The unanimous decision was delivered by Justice Butler. It sustained the action of the university in suspending two students who declined to take the course because of conscientious objections.

Albert W. Hamilton and W. Alonzo Reynolds, Jr., entering the university in 1933, asked to be exempted from military training on the ground that they believed training for war was immoral, in violation of the tenets of the Methodist Episcopal church and violated the Kellogg-Briand pact to outlaw war.

Counsel for the university insisted it was entirely within the jurisdiction of the school whether to require such training and that no federal question was involved, even though the national government had granted land and money to aid in founding the institution.

In a similar case last term, the court refused to review a controversy between the University of Maryland resulting from the refusal of students to take military training.

Quail Rather Plentiful Now

Quail in the Panhandle is more plentiful this year than during the last few years, local hunters report. Several hunters took advantage of the cool weather Saturday, opening day of the season, and yesterday and returned with the bag limit.

South Gray county around McLean and Alanreed and much of Wheeler and Roberts counties appear to be the most favorable places to find quail. The birds are said to be fat and healthy this year despite the light crop and dry season. It will be legal to hunt quail thru January 16. There are no closed counties in the Panhandle this year so hunters will not have to worry about getting into forbidden counties.

The bag limit on quail is 12 per day and not more than 36 in one week. Hunters must have license to hunt outside their home county.

Kenamer Youth Pleads Not Guilty; Sweetheart Says He's Shielding Someone.

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 3 (AP)—Holly Anderson, county attorney, today asked Dr. Felix M. Adams, superintendent of the Eastern Oklahoma Hospital for the Insane, to come there tomorrow and question Phil Kenamer, son of a federal judge, who is accused of the slaying of John Gorrell. Dr. Adams was reached at Oklahoma City by telephone and said he would stop here tomorrow en route to Vinita, where the hospital is located, to view young Kenamer and observe his reactions with a view to establishing his mental competency.

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 3 (AP)—Philip Kenamer was arraigned here today on a murder warrant, pleaded not guilty and was remanded to jail to await preliminary hearing December 17. The 19-year-old son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kenamer did not speak during the proceedings. His attorney, Flint Moss, waived the reading of the information that accused the youth of slaying John Gorrell, '23, a dental student, and pleaded "not guilty" to him.

He was arraigned before Pleas Judge John B. Woodward in a small room that overflowed with curious. Some of the women and girls in the crowd were brought to the door of the court arcade in chauffeured closed cars.

The proceeding lasted a minute and young Kenamer was hustled through the crowd by two deputies to go back to the matron's room in the barred fourth floor of the county court house where he has been held since surrendering Saturday. County Attorney Holly Anderson said young Kenamer admitted he killed Gorrell "because I had to do it."

Roommate Guarded. Meanwhile, Richard Oliver, a roommate of the slain youth, was guarded overnight by two detectives at his home here and left for school this morning in the company of two detectives.

He was guarded after police said they received threats against his life. Oliver came from Kansas City.

OLD SANTA TO ARRIVE IN CITY ON WEDNESDAY

He and His Reindeer Can Travel Fast As Lightning Santa Claus will leave the North Pole with his magic team of reindeer for Pampa tomorrow night, and will arrive here Wednesday morning in time to ride in the Santa Day parade at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Dick Hughes announced this morning. Mr. Hughes has been appointed by the Junior chamber of commerce which sponsors Santa Day every year, to keep Pampa children informed about Santa Claus.

"Children, and as for that matter any other, are not supposed to know anything definite about Santa Claus except that he comes down the chimney and deposits presents," said Mr. Hughes. "Santa has been a mystery and a miracle for almost 2,000 years and he will continue to be."

"Everybody knows that he lives in the frozen north in a shining castle of snow and ice, surrounded by thousands of reindeer, gnomes and fairies, his mighty workshop, his pal, Jack Frost, his nearest neighbor, the Eskimos. Sitting on the north pole he can watch the children of the world, but he prefers to make a trip south and all over the world just before Christmas every year to get a close view of the children he will visit on Christmas eve."

Tickets On Sale For Industrial Banquet Tuesday

Tickets went on sale at the Board of City Development today for the industrial banquet to be held tomorrow evening at the Schneider hotel. Committees also had tickets for distribution at 75 cents each.

Railroad and utility executives will be here to consult business men about the future of city and to give valuable suggestions. They will meet members of the B. C. D. at 6:30 o'clock before going to the banquet.

B. C. D. members hope that a representative group of business men will attend the banquet to show the visitors what backing is available to make Pampa a permanent and aggressive city. The Board will energetically follow up the suggestions made, using the influence of the visitors and soliciting that of other persons interested in Pampa because of having investments here.

The banquet will be the first of several such occasions.

FRANCE SELLS SAAR TO NAZIS IN AGREEMENT

FRENCH WILL GET 59 MILLION, MUCH COAL

BY ANDRUE BERDING, Associated Press Foreign Staff. ROME, Dec. 3 (AP)—France and Germany today signed "an agreement of peace" over the Saar basin territory.

By the terms of this agreement, which is expected to end the grave controversy over the future sovereignty of the district, Germany will pay France 900,000,000 francs (approximately $59,400,000) and 11,000,000 tons of coal for France's mines and private credits in the Saar basin and, furthermore, Germany guarantees equal rights to voters and non-voters among all the inhabitants of the Saar regardless of race, religion, or language.

Receiving the foreign press this afternoon the Spanish delegate to the committee of three, Lopez Olivan, told the correspondents that the agreement was divided into two parts, political and economic.

The political accord, he said, is divided into three parts, as follows: (1) Germany guarantees to extend to non-voters the same standing as to voters; (2) All have equal rights to social insurance and state assistance; (3) The inhabitants of the Saar have equal rights regardless of language, race, and religion.

The financial accord, said the Spanish delegate, calls for the payment by Germany of 900,000,000 francs for the mines, which are the property of the French government, and for the private credits held by France, as well as a payment of 11,000,000 tons of coal from the Saar mines.

France and Germany, by the accord, reached an agreement on a method of payment which will not interfere with Germany's foreign exchange.

The Spanish delegate paid warm tribute to the spirit of cooperation manifested by France and Germany during the committee's meetings and paid personal tribute to the other delegates.

PARIS, Dec. 3 (AP)—Despite assurance from Berlin that Germany does not hold warlike intentions, France continued today a program of bolstering her military defenses.

A special period of training for reserve soldiers was announced. Some have been called for duty in January, when the Saar basin territory plebiscite will be held.

Joachim von Ribbentrop, personal representative of Chancellor Hitler, in a 40-minute talk yesterday with Pierre Laval, the French foreign minister, attempted to allay fears here of German rearmament.

Insisting that Germany's intentions were misunderstood, the Hitler aide said she simply seeks equality of rights with other nations and not with hostile designs.

Four classes of special frontier reservists have been called upon to take a training course which may be spread over much of 1935, although usually the reserves are called during the summer months.

Couple Is Slain; House Set On Fire

HERMET, Calif., Dec. 3 (AP)—A double killing of a prominent couple here, and the setting of their residence afire apparently to conceal the tragedy, was reported today by Coroner Ben F. White. The victims were Dr. H. O. Miller, 66, and his wife.

Firemen, summoned by a passer-by, extricated the bodies, and retrieved a note which the coroner said was written by Dr. Miller, telling of his intent to slay his wife and himself.

Dr. Miller had practiced medicine here for a quarter of a century. Friends said that he had been in ill health and in financial straits recently.

WILD BUCK ATTACKS 10-YEAR OLD BOY SOUTH OF CANADIAN

The predatory instinct of human hunters has been matched by the father-protector instinct of a haughty 6-point buck, which yesterday knocked down 10-year-old Charles Leroy Thomas, slashing the boy's wrists and tearing his clothing.

The lad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thomas of Pampa, was with his parents on the Alexander ranch south of Canadian when a doe and two fawns were seen. The boy was excited by the sight of wild game. Soon thereafter, a buck walked out of some bushes and stood glaring at the party, antlers held high.

SENTENCE OF DEATH GIVEN LAKE SLAYER

LAST CHAPTER IN NEW 'AMERICAN TRAGEDY' MAPPED OUT

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Dec. 3 (AP)—The sentence of death in the electric chair was imposed today upon Fred Edwards, who was convicted of murdering Freda Mae Kechnie, his friend and neighbor, at Harvey's lake a few months ago.

Edwards said nothing and manifested no emotion. The sentence was imposed without any previous announcement because of Judge W. A. Valentine's determination to prevent crowds from congregating as they did at the trial in October. Less than a dozen persons were in the courtroom. None of those was a member of his family.

When Edwards informed the court he had nothing to say before sentence was imposed, Judge Valentine tersely sentenced him to die in the Rockview penitentiary electric chair at a time to be fixed by the governor.

Edwards was convicted of the murder of Miss McKechnie during a night swimming party because her physical condition interfered with his plans to marry Margaret Crain.

Chief defense counsel Frank McGuigan said the defense may be unable to appeal to the supreme court for a new trial because of lack of funds. He declared friends of the Edwards family in Edwardsville, however, had started a move to raise a fund to carry the case to a higher court. A new trial was denied last week.

HUGE CROWD IS EXPECTED AT FESTIVAL

Business men and the Junior Chamber of Commerce prepared today to welcome thousands of excited youngsters Wednesday when Santa Claus comes to town.

First signs that all would be fitting when the hoary St. Nick rode down streets lined with children and their parents appeared this morning. During the night, street decorations were strung over a section of the business district. By Wednesday the streets will be appropriately dressed for the triumphant entry of Santa Claus.

Floated were a-building this morning, too. Schools, churches and clubs are planning to enter floats in the parade. The school bands will play, and Santa Claus riding a-top one of the floats will fling handfuls of candies to the happy youngsters.

Old Santa is going to get a chance to learn something about Texas history at the parade. For one of the floats, will be entitled "Texas Under Six Flags," and will be entered by Woodrow Wilson school of Mrs. Annie Daniels is principal.

Children of that school will be working today and tomorrow, and perhaps a little at night, to win the cash prize for their float—but so will the children of other schools all of which voted to enter floats in the parade. H. L. Polley, chairman of the float committee, today said that the beauty of the floats will be on a par with those of other years.

Bill Jarrett, general chairman of the Santa Day committee, said that practically every window in the business district would be decorated in the Christmas manner by Wednesday. All in all, Mr. Jarrett said, the Christmas theme will be so apparent in the city that Santa Claus is bound to be so pleased that he will undoubtedly return Christmas eve with toys galore. More than a fourth of a ton of candies will be distributed by Santa Claus as he rides down the street Wednesday.

Tonight and tomorrow will be busy ones for the Jaycees. Today they were collecting contributions to finance the event. Merchants who will benefit more than any other class are being visited.

The parade will start about 2:30 o'clock on South Cuyler Wednesday afternoon and will move north over the principal streets of the business district.

Reports were received today that children over this territory—from Wheeler, Gray, Roberts, Hemphill, Carson counties—would flock to Pampa Wednesday to see Santa Claus, to give him the proper welcome, and prove to him that they not only adore him but have been good boys and girls in the last year—that, as is good as boys and girls usually are!

NEBRASKA SETS EXAMPLE FOR OTHER STATES

One of the most significant points of the recent election was an event which has drawn relatively little notice—the adoption by Nebraska voters of Senator George W. Norris's plan for a one-chamber state legislature. It is significant because it is the first real step taken by an American state to bring long-needed reform into the machinery of state government.

In any democracy, the machinery of government is bound to be more or less cumbersome. No legislative body designed to reflect the people's will can function without some last motion. But it is hard to think of any place where the last motion is quite as great as in the average American state legislature.

The legislature is patterned after the national Congress—two houses chosen on different representational schemes, operating under a governor whose national counterpart is the president. And because attention usually is focused on the national campaign, on the gubernatorial contest and on the fights for local offices, members of the legislature are usually chosen on a hit-or-miss basis.

What the state legislature may do is extremely important in the life of the citizen. Its actions may affect his business, his taxes, his public institutions far more closely than do the actions of the national Congress. Yet it is a safe bet that the average citizen could not tell you the name of half a dozen members of his legislature if his life depended on it.

The thing has got out of his reach. It is clumsy and unwieldy. Selfish interests find it easy to seize and hold an unfair advantage. Small blocs can exercise an influence out of all proportion to their size.

The people of Nebraska have begun a bold reform. Hereafter they will have a small and compact legislative body. Not only will it be able to function much more efficiently than the two-chamber group; it will be possible for the voter to keep in touch with it, to know who is who in it, to interest himself directly in its actions and get the kind of representation in it that he deserves.

We have passed the time in which we could afford to put up with inefficiency and unresponsiveness in a law-making body. The reform which Nebraska has begun might very profitably be examined with great care by the voters in Texas and other states.

WASHINGTON.—Some of the best friends of the president's wife are urging that she think twice—or even three or four times—before jumping actively into another political campaign.

Mrs. Roosevelt escaped from the New York campaign with only a couple of scratches. But the scratches were enough to show that when a First Lady takes the stump, she can expect to be a target for ripe tomatoes just like any mere politician.

Many of us do not like to have ripe tomatoes thrown at our First Ladies. And even if Mrs. F. D. doesn't mind, some of her friends and admirers worry lest her warm-hearted enthusiasms get her into actual trouble.

This hasn't anything to do with the argument between those of us who think it's perfectly swell for a president's wife to take an active interest in social problems and the life around her, and those who think it's unseemly or something for her to go galloping around in the public eye and "why doesn't she stay home?"

Entering a political campaign isn't just like taking an interest in subsistence homesteads or the Woman's Trade Union League. Mrs. Roosevelt's honest idea that she can campaign as an ordinary citizen, divesting herself of her White House position, just doesn't go down with most people. She exposes herself to the dangers of politics and anything unpleasant that happens to her affects the prestige of all the Roosevelts. It's been demonstrated that a candidate's wife can be used against him, but few wives are any good at getting votes for the family.

The female of the species is more deadly than the male, and what happened in New York when Mrs. R. campaigned for Caroline O'Day was that a couple of other female candidates got some good publicity at Mrs. Roosevelt's expense.

Whether Mrs. Roosevelt's speech benefited or hurt the victorious Mrs. O'Day is a question, because no one can measure the size of the "cat vote" which resented the First Lady's venture. But Mrs. Roosevelt was used as a springboard to the limelight by Miss Dorothy Fooks, whose candidacy would have remained a dark secret if she hadn't been able to make the front pages by challenging Mrs. Roosevelt to debate. Mrs. Roosevelt's acceptance of the challenge was so hedged that the incident ended in general embarrassment and probably a few more votes for Dorothy.

Then Miss Natalie Couch, the other female candidate, hurled her tomato in a public message to Mrs. Roosevelt which called attention to divorce troubles in the Roosevelt family. She promised to challenge any ballot presented by daughter Anna Dall, since the latter had established Nevada residence.

Think what you like about this sort of thing—it's likely to lead to all kinds of complications. That's why so many of Mrs. Roosevelt's friends are glad the campaign didn't last any longer.

The liberal republicans who are criticizing their party for its losses in the recent election seem to think that its allotment of ivory isn't confined to the elephant's tusks.

So many young zealots have just been elected to Congress, the older Democrats there may be in for a "liberal" education.

MASONIC HOME AND DALLAS TECH QUARREL OVER BI-DISTRICT GAME SITE

TOSS WON BY MASONS THEN TECH OBJECTS

ROY HENDERSON WILL TAKE UP MATTER WITH BOARD

DALLAS, Dec. 3. (AP)—Dates and sites for six bi-district games in the Texas interscholastic football league had been selected today, but details on two other games had not been worked out.

Although the Masonic Home team of Fort Worth won a toss with Dallas Tech and elected to play at Fort Worth next Friday, Tech officials protested to league officials on the ground that no Dallas high school team could play an out-of-town game on a school day. A Saturday date would conflict with the Texas Christian-Santa Clara game. Roy B. Henderson, secretary of the league, said the matter would be taken up with the executive committee immediately.

Officials of Athens and Corsicana schools, champions of districts 11 and 12, respectively, planned to select a site today.

ALABAMA RELIES UPON SPEED AND DECEPTION--NOT POWER

Line Is Just As Heavy As Previous Forward Walls; Coordination Perfect.

BY T. M. DAVENPORT.
UNIVERSITY, Ala., Dec. 3. (AP)—A new type of Alabama football team will invade Rose Bowl at Pasadena on New Year's day—an eleven that relies on speed and deception, instead of the power of its predecessors.

The line is just as hefty as those previous forward walls, using its power to smother the attack and to give the backfield a chance to form interference and get underway.

In every maneuver there is coordination, and the squad as a whole is one of the most willing to aid a teammate, even though it means headlines for "the other fellow."

End runs, reverses, fake reverses, triple passes, an end around end, long and short passes and just straight football go into its repertoire of plays.

The spearhead of the attack is Millard (Dixie) Howell, speedy and elusive triple threat halfback. He is the marked man in every game, a large part of the deception that gives Jimmy Angelich, his halfback teammate, Joe Demmanovich, fullback, and Riley Smith, quarterback, a chance to get underway.

Howell, slender and almost fragile looking, has taken more punishment than any other man on the squad, but so well have his teammates blocked that he has been able to maintain his average yards of more than six yards per try this year.

Not quite so fast, but a little heftier, Angelich slants off tackles and around ends from reverses and direct plays and has developed into an excellent blocker.

When Demyanovich matriculated, he showed natural ability and this year as a senior he is ranked as one of the best fullbacks in Dixie.

Alabama's line is flanked by the best pair of ends in many years with Don Hutson, 190-pound, All-American, on one terminal and Paul Bryant who weighs near 200, at the other.

Tackle berths are held by two big husky fellows with tremendous strength. One is anchored by Captain Hill Lee, and the other by Jim Whaley, almost as big as Lee who tips 222 pounds.

As for guards, Charlie Marr has developed into one of the finest guards in the south this year, weighing 214 pounds.

MORRISON IS REPORTED TO BE RESIGNING

REPORT SAYS HE WILL BECOME COACH AT VANDERBILT

By FELIX R. M'KNIGHT
Associated Press Staff Writer
Persistent reports that Ray Morrison, athletic director and crafty "ringmaster" of the Southern Methodist "aerial circus," would vacate his post to teach his passing puzzlers to Vanderbilt's Commodores, headed post mortem Southwest conference talk today.

Rice Institute has tucked away its first conference title in 21 years, the conference has landed two stars on the all-America team and after next Saturday's three post season games the season will be officially buried, but the prospect of Morrison, veteran of 15 years at the Dallas university, deserting the fold, now is of chief interest.

Also holding attention was the possibility that Rice would receive a bid to play in the first annual Sugar bowl classic at New Orleans New Years day. Warren V. Miller, president of the New Orleans mid winter sports association, informed Lloyd Gregory, sports editor of the Houston Post, that "the association is giving Rice every consideration."

Rice's great season, which ended with only one defeat, was expected to be seriously studied by the association before announcing participants in the classic at a meeting tonight.

TV reports from Nashville, Tenn., that he would accept the Vanderbilt coaching position, succeeding Dan McGugin, "provided the conditions are right," Morrison remarked he had no comment to make. He refused to talk of the matter and would not say when he would make a definite announcement.

"I would prefer to let Vanderbilt officials know what conditions I have in mind," Morrison said.

His Mustangs, powerful in a 19-0 victory over Texas Christian last Saturday, will play their final game at St. Louis Saturday against Washington university.

On the same day Texas Christian, only team to knock over Rice during the season, will have the potent Santa Clara university team from the Pacific coast to contend with in a Fort Worth game. The Frogs were below form in the Methodist game, despite fine work by Darrell Lester, named as center on the Associated Press all-America team.

EAST TEXAS TEACHERS HAVE PERFECT RECORD

NEW YORK, Dec. 3. (AP)—With the football season virtually over, a final checkup today found nine college teams with undefeated record although ten of these suffered at least one tie.

The last week saw the elimination from the list of Louisiana state, nosed out by Tulane, and Utah State, beaten by Utah, thus leaving only Alabama, Minnesota, Stanford, Western Maryland and Temple, among major colleges, still unbeaten.

Alabama, Stanford and Temple alone finished with a perfect defensive record.

Alabama, winding up its regular season Thanksgiving day with a 34-0 rout of Vanderbilt, leads the undefeated list in scoring with 287 points. Minnesota tallied 270; James Milliken of Illinois 228; Stanford 211 and Temple 206.

Furniture 200 Years Old Owned At Port Arthur

PORT ARTHUR, Dec. 3. (AP)—A suite of French furniture more than 200 years old is the property of a Port Arthur family and still is serviceable.

About 100 years ago a Frenchman named Castanie wooed and won an Indian girl of the Chitamacha tribe in what now is lower Louisiana. Probably as a wedding gift, he brought with him a set of hand-carved furniture, consisting of two straight chairs, two rocking chairs and a settee.

The suite, a trifle worn and tattered but still sturdy, is now owned by William Castanie, a member of the sixth generation of the family. He received it recently from Louisiana where it had been since it arrived from France in the eighteenth century.

An accurate history of the furniture is lacking, Castanie said, but the family traditions insist it came into the family about 1760. Castanie, who is 67, said he remembers being told that the suite became part of the Castanie line when his great-great-great grandfather intermarried into the Chitamacha tribe.

How old the pieces were before that is a matter of conjecture.

Hamilton Hunted Near Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La., Dec. 3. (AP)—The trail of Raymond Hamilton, one of the few nationally known desperadoes still roaming the nation, was sought in Shreveport today.

The hunt was spurred yesterday when police discovered an abandoned automobile in which Hamilton and two of his lieutenants, Julius Bohanan and Chester Elliot, were believed to have flown from Maud, Tex., where they wounded a night watchman.

The watchman, Gene Mills, had walked up to a parked car to question the occupants and was ordered to get inside. He turned and started to walk away, but a gun barked and a bullet hit him in the side. The gunman fled.

The license plate was torn from the automobile, but police said the engine number corresponded with that of a car stolen recently in Houston.

ALL BUT THREE GRID CHAMPS LOST CROWNS DURING SEASON

Outstanding Upset Was The Defeat Of Princeton By Great Yale Eleven.

By HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK, Dec. 3. (AP)—Except for sporadic firing in the south and far west leading up to the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena on New Year's day, the football season is over but the thrills it produced with linger on for many weeks.

Navy's contest of Army, 3-0, in the mud and rain at Philadelphia on Saturday—the Tars' first victory over West Point since 1927—furnished a dramatic and fitting climax to a campaign that saw sectional title-holders in 1933 swept from their thrones almost without exception.

The sensational upheavals of the past season saw Alabama's Crimson Tide, Rose Bowl nominees, and Minnesota Gophers alone among major schools wind up their regular schedules undefeated and untied. It witnessed, too, the collapse of such former powers as Southern California, Michigan and Utah.

Alabama, Stanford and the Colorado Aggies, alone were able to negotiate the championship heights for the second year in succession. Alabama's 34-0 trouncing of Vanderbilt Thanksgiving day enabled the Tide to share the Southeastern conference crown with Tulane's Green Wave, which eliminated Navy's Louisiana State Tigers, 13-12, on Saturday. L. S. U. had been champion with Alabama a year ago.

Stanford's Indians, who will represent the far west against Alabama in the Rose Bowl game, annexed clear claim to the Pacific coast title this year where they had been forced to share it with Southern California and Oregon last year. The Colorado Aggies finished in a triple tie for the Rocky Mountain championship for the second year in succession but their co-titlists this time are Colorado university and Colorado Teachers. Last year the co-holders were Utah and Denver.

Otherwise, the dethroning of 1933 champions was complete. Minnesota, generally ranked the most powerful eleven in the land, swept to the Big Ten crown Michigan's Wolverines held a year ago. Kansas State placed Nebraska as Big Six king by walling the Cornhuskers, 19-7, on Thanksgiving day.

In the Southwest, Rice buried Baylor, 32-0, on Saturday to win the conference championship to which Arkansas's Razorbacks were entitled in 1933 although they didn't get it officially because an ineligible player was in the Arkansas lineup in several games. Washington & Lee's Generals, outpointing South Carolina, 14-7, last Thursday ascended the Southern conference throne occupied jointly by Duke and South Carolina last season.

In the east, Jock Sutherland's Pittsburgh Panthers, beaten only by Minnesota and only opponent to give the Gophers a real battle, generally were regarded as the outstanding team in the section. They defeated all eastern rivals handsly and gave Navy's fine eleven, otherwise undefeated, a 31-6 trouncing. Last year Princeton, undefeated and untied, finished with the best record among major eastern schools.

The principal disappointments of the season were Michigan and Southern California. Undeafated Big Ten champions in 1933, the Wolverines won only one game in eight—a 9-2 triumph over Georgia Tech's Engineers, themselves walloped nine times in ten games.

Trimmed by Washington, 14-7, on Saturday, Southern California wound up its Pacific coast conference schedule with one victory, one tie and four defeats, the worst record any Trojan team has made since Howard Jones became head coach.

PIONEER COUPLE CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING AT McLEAN

MR. AND MRS. ABBOTT GIVEN DINNER FRIDAY

FAMILY AND FRIENDS GATHER FOR THE OCCASION

McLEAN, Dec. 3.—On Nov. 30, in the parlors of the local Baptist church a special dinner was given honoring Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Abbott on the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding.

The entertaining rooms of the church were fittingly decorated in gold, white, and bronze crepe ribbons. Chrysanthemum bouquets with autumn leaves adorned the tables. A three-tier wedding cake decorated with orange blossoms and topped with 50 candles gave an added touch to the festive occasion.

The most interesting features of the day were: the cutting of the cake by the bride, giving of appropriate toasts and songs, the reading of congratulatory letters and telegrams, and the opening of the gifts.

At the table with the honorees were seated the immediate families: M. D. Abbott of Amherst, Miss Agnes Abbott of Oklahoma City, Mrs. Frank Stockett of Bethany, Okla., Homer Abbott, Mrs. Lee Wilson, and Miss Lillian Abbott, all of McLean.

Other out-of-town relatives and guests who attended the celebration and dinner were: Mrs. Zudie Abbott and daughter, Miss Marnie, of Pampa; Mrs. Kate Fields of Abernathy, Mrs. M. D. Abbott and son, M. D. Jr., of Amherst, Frank Stockett and son, Bobby, of Bethany, Okla., Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Allmond, Mrs. Nannie Kitchen, and Mrs. J. T. Stanford of Childress.

Mr. and Mrs. Abbott belong to the pioneer families of the Panhandle, having moved here from Hamilton county in 1891. They settled on a claim in the present confines of the old Shoe Nail ranch near Olympus in Childress county and lived there until 1903 when they moved to Childress. In 1920 they moved to McLean where they have been one of the leading families in church, social, and school life for a number of years.

LAKETON CLUB GIVES DINNER; EXHIBITS WORK

HUSBANDS HONORED BEFORE OPEN HOUSE

"And now when in late November Our Thanksgiving feast is spread, 'Tis the same time-honored custom Of the Pilgrims, long since dead!"

This verse marked the dainty silhouettes of the guests of the Laketon Home Demonstration club when its members entertain their husbands Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Lawton Hoffer, food supply demonstrator.

It was a big day, and a record one for the club. Members with their "chief co-operators" arrived early, and at noon a bountiful feast, with turkey and all its accompaniments, was served cafeteria fashion.

Present were the host and hostess, Miss Ruby M. Adams, Mmes. Jap Johnson, Tom Bailey, Ernest Moore, Ed Moore; Mr. Henry Johnson, all club guests; Messrs. and Mmes. Clyde Gray, Leo Paris, Edgar Gray; Mmes. Nettie Attaway, E. L. Tackett, C. V. Talley, Chess Terry, M. L. Roberts, Ode Gatlin, Harry Cunningham, H. I. Gillespie.

Visitors who braved the weather in the afternoon to accept the open house invitation of Mrs. Hoffer and her co-hostesses were greeted with a number of songs by club members, and served spiced punch and wafers upon their arrival.

They were conducted to the well-filled and spotlessly white cellar-pantry of the hostess. Back in the living room two attractive displays greeted them.

One was the gift table with a varied collection of dainty and useful articles. Two hooked rugs made by Mrs. Attaway were outstanding. The patterns of these two rugs provoked much discussion among club members and guests all afternoon, as to their comparative beauty.

The other display attracting much attention was the wardrobe achievement of Mrs. Roberts, of which the whole membership is proud.

In the 4-H pantry poster guests found one answer to "What do Laketon club members gain from home demonstration work?" Members have since November 14, 1934, canned 541 quarts of fruit valued at $106.30; 1,312 quarts fruit juice valued at $208.18; 659 quarts of meat valued at $229.25; 200 quarts of sweets valued at $82, a total value of $625.23.

In addition they have cured 5,289 pounds of meat valued at $793.45, made 230 pounds of lard valued at $18.42, 293 pounds of cheese valued at $37.20, and 856 pounds of soap. They added household linens valued at $156.40 to their homes, and made 312 garments valued at $399.50.

Laketon club is planning a bigger and better balanced program for the coming year.

New Presbyterian Pastor Begins Work

RECORD ATTENDANCE AT SUNDAY SCHOOL IS ACHIEVED.

A new minister assumed his work in Pampa yesterday when the Rev. L. Burney Shell preached at the Presbyterian church to unusually large crowds. He arrived last week with Mrs. Shell and their three daughters from Talequah, Okla.

His first sermon was on "The Cost of Discipleship." He stressed the fact that no individual or church fulfills its mission in the world by choosing the easiest way. A growing tendency to make religion easy has resulted in the substitution by many persons of a beautiful ritual, worthy in itself, for the more important hard work of cleaning dirty conditions, he said.

Sunday school attendance of 167 set a new record for the church, and announcement was made of tentative plans for a new building to house the classes which have been growing all fall.

Other pulpits here were filled by their pastors. An interesting service was conducted at First Christian church last evening, with a display of unique Bibles from Pampa homes. An important meeting of officers and teachers was announced there for Wednesday evening.

A week of prayer starts today for women of First Baptist and Central Baptist churches. Daily programs will be given at the former church, and Central Baptist women will meet today, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons.

Reports from the 13 young people who attended the state convention of Baptist training schools at Lubbock last week were heard in the training service assembly at First Baptist church last evening. There were 165 present then, 735 at Sunday school. Three new members were received.

Francis Avenue Church of Christ reported 168 in unday school and two additions to the church. First Christian church had 368 in Sunday school, First Methodist church 448 and three additions to church membership.

Increased Sunday school attendance, reaching above the 110 mark, was reported at Central Church of Christ. Two new members were baptized, and one received by transfer of membership.

Three Killed In Plane Crash In Brownfield Tank

BROWNFIELD, Dec. 3 (P)—In full view of several hundred spectators, a civilian pilot's plane stalled at a low altitude, spun to the earth and crashed into a dry earth tank, fatally injuring its three occupants, near here late yesterday.

Fatally injured were Manuel Klein, 24, of Littlefield, the pilot; John Alexander, 24, of Frederick, Okla., and James Benton, 26, living near Brownfield.

Three minutes after the plane took off on a pleasure jaunt for its occupants, witnesses said it stalled at an altitude of about 200 or 300 feet and roared to earth.

Benton died less than an hour after the crash. Klein an hour later and Alexander three hours later.

Herman Klein, brother of the pilot, said the plane had been bought second hand and that his brother, who had been flying about four and a half months, had 100 flying hours to his credit.

SLAYING

with a packet of letters addressed to Gorell and with other information, arriving, frightened, about dawn Saturday to be questioned at some length several hours before Kennamer came in.

Officers never have revealed the contents of the letters.

Dr. John Franklin Gorell, father of the slain boy, and L. W. Oliver, father of the roommate, denied any knowledge of the threats today, but the following story was told by police:

Young Oliver spent Sunday evening away from home and there were three unidentified telephone calls for him. Dr. Gorell then called and when told Oliver was out exclaimed: "Do you mean to tell me he had enough crust to go out tonight?"

The doctor was quoted as saying he had heard from "reliable sources" that they either are going to implicate him or kill him.

When seen at the court house during Sunday afternoon Oliver was plainly apprehensive and left there in the company of Floyd J. Huff, burly Kansas City airplane pilot, saying at the time he planned to return then to Kansas City.

Behind the scenes of the case are conflicting stories of friends and companions of the two young men. Some of the stories told to W. P. Gilmer Jr., assistant prosecutor, are characterized as "almost unbelievable."

"I'm afraid some of these youngsters have let their imaginations get the better of them," Gilmer said.

Among the stories heard is one that there existed among the socially and financially prominent younger set a clique that plotted kidnapping, extortion, and robbery, either for the money that crime might bring them or for the "thrill" of the deeds.

The self-defense explanation of the Kennamer failed to find response from Henry B. Madoux, police criminologist. He said, cryptically:

"I believe the slaying was the result of a disagreement between two parties as to how to carry out a plan."

Kennamer surrendered Saturday explaining that immediately following the shooting he had been too shaken to know just what to do. Two bullets were fired into Gorell's head from his own pistol. The weapon was wiped clean of fingerprints and returned to its holster.

Miss Doris Rogers of Pittsburg, Kansas, the fiancée of young Gorell, spent nearly half an hour with Kennamer in his cell yesterday.

"Phil," she said in a low voice, "I know you loved John, too. Why did you do it? Whom are you trying to shield?"

The officials did not give Kennamer's answer.

Among those questioned by the prosecutors was Floyd J. Huff, Kansas City airplane pilot, who said that Kennamer had detailed, more than a week in advance, almost the exact manner in which young Gorell would meet his death. The information was laughed off at the time.

From Huff, too, came the disclosure that Virginia Wilcox, elder daughter of H. P. Wilcox, wealthy oil executive, was their innocent target of an extortion and kidnap plot.

Marian Gordon

Chapter 48. FIGHT "Excepting the night I met Hamlin," Marian interposed with a wry laugh, "and of course I realized I was being watched; so I didn't try anything."

"Then you'll do this?" Silver asked and looked around the room. "Where do you keep your writing materials?" "You should know," retorted Marian, also arising, "you went through this house thoroughly, didn't you?"

"Silver flashed her a quick smile, walked across the room and into the bedroom. She returned with paper, pen and ink and motioned Marian to start writing.

"But Marian didn't move. "I'd advise you to hurry," ordered Silver in a hard, dry voice.

"And if I don't?" questioned Marian, sparring for time, trying to hear above their voices the sound of an approaching motor; which didn't come.

"You will," again the hard assured voice. "You're not going to take a chance on Lon's spending years in the penitentiary while you dry up into a scrawny, freckled old woman like your mother."

Marian felt a flush of red creep up from her neck to her cheeks. "If Lon goes to the penitentiary he won't go alone," she warned, "not while I live."

"You," cried Silver, bitingly, "what do you think you could do?" "I could go to court and prove that Lon was not drunk the night he was supposed to have raised that check, but I could put the doctor who attended him that night on the stand. I could have Murphy, the gas station man, tell of his condition when he came in to cash the check and how the three of them, Lon and your father's two henchmen, went into a huddle, so that Lon, dazed with the drug, wouldn't know when one of the henchmen changed checks on him, substituting one ready for additional figures to be made by Lon's fountain pen which he borrowed."

"Silver's eyes had dilated until they looked like jet black pools. "And you think Lon, loving me, would let you do this?"

"Lon doesn't love you," replied Marian with scorn. "If he had, would he have called me at two in the morning to escape you in Nevada? Would he have come to my apartment to show me the wire you sent and beg me to come along? Would he have laughed and called you 'Miss Cheerio' and 'Miss Hopeful'?"

"Yes, but since then," Silver was angry, "ridicule of her belief that Lon cared for her burned more deeply than any other factor."

"Since then," Marian continued, "he's played up to you for a purpose and forewarned me of his intentions."

"He did, did he?" Silver was trembling with anger. "And I tried to save him—"

"He doesn't need to be saved by you." "Then you think you'll go on with your plan to ruin me and my father?" "I will," returned Marian.

"Oh, you won't," countered Silver. She glanced toward the divan and Marian following her gaze saw the silver handle of the revolver protruding from among the cushions.

"Oh, no," continued Silver, "if you're here to testify, there won't be any wrecking of the Hondons and the McSwains."

"You wouldn't dare," Marian declared, "your finger prints are on that gun."

"There are ways of removing them," Silver was making a stealthy way towards the divan, "easily enough to make it look like suicide... reasons... disgrace of your husband."

"Silver," warned Marian, and then as the other woman made a sudden dash for the door she screamed:

"Fast on her scream came the crash of a door, a tumbling chair and Hero hurled his huge body through the room, teeth bared, straight at Silver.

Paralyzed with terror, Marian watched as the dog cleared everything between them. Silver wheeling, gun in hand to meet him.

"Guard," screamed Marian, as she saw the white tusks burrow into the left arm Silver had thrown up in terror. "Guard," she repeated.

Reluctantly the dog obeyed. Panting, quivering, he straddled the prostrate form of Silver, head hung low, his hot breath playing on Silver's bare arm.

Crawling, then stumbling, Marian released the dog, held it, then—"Release," she ordered. The dog looked at her. "Release," she snapped and slowly he backed away.

"Get him out of here," Silver begged, "he'll kill me. He hates me."

"Shut up, or I won't be able to handle him," Marian ordered, "and thank your lucky stars he's police trained or I couldn't have called him off."

Backing, she called Hero to her side, ordered him into the bedroom and closed the door securely. "Now get up."

"Silver sat up disheveled—"I wasn't going to hurt you," she insisted, breathlessly, "just... just frighten you. Thought I could force you to write that... that note."

"I'm not a mind reader," Marian replied, "and after what your father ordered the Kanaka boy to do to the Wakers I wouldn't put anything past you."

Slowly Silver arose, went to the divan and sank into it. "Now what?" she asked in the doleful manner which had followed her storm that night in Nevada.

"I don't know," Marian answered honestly. "I'm waiting for the district attorney, he telephoned that he was coming out after me. I don't know what has detained him."

"Are you... you going to tell him that I...?"

"Threatened to kill me?" asked Marian, and thought a moment. "No," she answered, "because I don't honestly believe you would have done that."

She sat a moment thinking, then spoke again. "Silver, now I'm going to bargain. Why don't you marry Elaine Kelly? Your beauty isn't going to last forever, right now you look forty, instead of thirty."

"Do I, Ian?" There was incredulous fright in Silver's voice.

"Go look in the mirror over the mantel and see for yourself."

"And you won't prosecute father?" Marian looked at her sadly. "I won't, Silver, but it's out of my hands."

"What do you mean?"

"I offered your father a chance to play straight. He answered by dragging my husband and framing him with a raised check. I went to the district attorney and told him everything I knew... so you see even had you used that gun, it wouldn't have checked an investigation."

"And now what?" asked Silver, wearily.

"I... wait, there's a car coming now, we'll both know shortly."

Marian went to the door and waited for the footsteps and voices which soon sounded in the patio. She opened the door and the first to enter was her father.

"You little idiot," was his greeting, "why didn't you send for me... what's that gun for... isn't that Silver Gordon?"

Marian looked at the gun in her hand stupidly. "I was just... just holding it in case anything—"

"What's that chair turned over for... and that end table. It looks to me like there'd been a fight in here."

"There was," Marian answered, and looked at Silver. "Hero, our dog, doesn't like Silver. I thought I had him blocked off in the kitchen and he... he evidently didn't like the idea and crashed the door and made for Silver. I grabbed this in case I couldn't call him off."

Silver smiled, then slowly she arose and faced Mr. Gordon. "Your daughter is the most accomplished liar I've ever met," she said.

"What do you mean?" began the elder Gordon.

"She told a magnificent lie to get me out of one scrape. And now this. The reason the dog crashed through after me was because I used that gun, threatening to kill her if she wouldn't do what I wanted her to do. She screamed and the dog came in. I tried to kill the dog but she grabbed my arm and the gun went wild. Then she called the dog off."

"But she didn't really mean it, Dad," Marian hastened, "she was only trying to frighten me, you won't do anything about it, will you?"

"No," answered Mr. Gordon, "if she's game enough to admit the truth, we'll let her off. Mrs. Gordon, I believe your car is down in the lower driveway; do you feel strong enough to drive on home alone?"

"Yes why?"

"I believe your mother is going to need you."

Lon and Marian come to a final understanding, tomorrow.

Another Typhoon Strikes Island

Manila, Dec. 3 (P)—North Luzon was battered tonight by a new typhoon while further belated reports from the area struck by the storm November 29 brought its toll to 28 known dead and 70 listed as missing.

The motor vessel Lindberg, of 136 net tons, sank at Abulog, in Cagayan province of northern Luzon, and five members of her crew were swept into the sea.

Tonight's tempest was the eighth to assail the Philippine islands in a period of less than three months, and threatened to carry the list of dead and missing to beyond the 400 mark. Damage to crops, public works, and buildings in the storm and resultant floods has run into the millions.

RADICALS WILL GROW IF DEMOS TURN TO RIGHT, SAYS NORRIS

POLITICIANS DISAGREE ON THIRD PARTY

EVERYTHING TO DEFEND UPON ECONOMIC CONDITIONS

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—There is sharp disagreement in Washington today as to what effect a new and more liberal party might have on democratic party prospects in 1936.

Comments on a third party shape like this:

A high democrat said that if economic conditions do not improve the "danger" from "the radical side" will grow.

A republican independent believes the democrats will have nothing to fear from right or left if they remain "progressive."

A regular republican took the stand that the party in power will have sturdier opposition from the republicans.

The farmer-laborite thought the democrats would have nothing to fear "but themselves."

It was Senator Adams (D., Colo.) who said:

"The democrats occupy a wide in the middle of the road, if you take the old guard as typical of the republican party and the radical progressives at the other extreme.

"The democrats occupy a wide belt. There is more of a possibility of growth of the belt to the left than to the right. I can see where the democratic belt can still invade further the republican in territory like Pennsylvania.

"Of course, economic consequences will have a great deal of say about it. If conditions improve it will lessen the hazard from the radical side. If they don't, it enhances the danger. There is a possibility of a movement of that kind in every state."

"The recent election shows the people turned out the conservative republicans not because they loved the democrats more, but because they had to get rid of those standard fellows. If the democrats turn to the right—and I have seen too many indications of it—it seems to me they have judged the elections all wrong and they will have more to fear from the progressives than from the republicans.

Senator Fess, of Ohio, conservative republican defeated for re-election by Vic Donahey, doesn't believe the republicans are "out, even though down."

"The democrats," he said, "have no more to fear from the so-called progressive or radical groups than from the republicans. You'll find the republican party will come back and probably in 1936.

"But if the democrats still Tammanize the American voters and buy the election we haven't a chance."

Negro Confesses He Slew Couple

CINCINNATI, Dec. 3 (AP)—Detective Chief Emmett D. Kirgan announced today that Theodore Blackman, 19-year-old Cincinnati negro, had confessed it was he who shot down and killed Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boyd today in the gasoline service station in which Boyd was employed.

Sergeant George Schattble of the homicide squad said blood was found on the negro's clothing when he was arrested at his home, and that he had in his possession blood-spattered money amounting to $11.35. Schattble said the negro claimed the money from the floor of the station while the murderer fled from the building.

The negro was registered as Theodore Blackman, 19.

Killed by shots through the head, Boyd, 37, and his wife, Edythe, 35, were found lying near the couch of automobile cushions which Boyd had prepared for his wife.

They had been killed by bullets fired from Boyd's own pistol, which had been dropped into an oil can by the door by the slayer as he fled.

Boyd, 37, and his wife, Edythe, 35, were killed by bullets from Boyd's own pistol during a quarrel over money the negro contended was due him for work on the home of the Boyds were building. Kirgan quoted the negro as saying:

WILEY POST

Post disclosed that he was forced to give up the attempt when the release valve on his reserve oxygen tank failed to function properly and he was unable to repair it at the 35,000-foot level.

His mechanic, E. G. Mollenkopf, after examining Post's plane, "The Winnie Mae," said "she looks as if she had gone higher than ever before." The highest previous altitude reached by the Winnie Mae was 42,000 feet in a test last summer.

Post could not be reached for comment at once as to the flight or his future plans.

Industry Proposes Recovery Methods

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Industry's proposed platform for recovery was laid before the National Industrial council today by C. L. Bardo, president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

"Industry stands on the threshold of public opinion," Bardo told the council in its annual meeting. "We will be praised or condemned as we measure up to a sound program of industrial recovery, based upon the precepts and experience of our established economic order, and out of which has developed the greatest and most successful industrial nation in the world."

The proposed platform, provisions of which were not made public, will be submitted to the congress of American industry Wednesday following its approval by the industrial council. Then it will go to the government for consideration.

MARKET BRIEFS

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Incentives for an immediate resumption of the advance appeared to be lacking in today's stock market and prices were inclined to drift moderately lower. Trading was relatively dull, however, and no section of the list was subjected to extreme pressure. The close was somewhat easy. Transfers approximated 740,000 shares.

Court Rules On Income Tax On Panhandle Gas

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Advance royalties received under oil and gas leases are entitled to a deduction of 27 1/2 per cent depletion allowance in making federal income tax returns, the supreme court today ruled.

The court ruled on a case sought by William E. and Edna D. Herring who held a 50 per cent interest in 1926 in the partnership of C. T. Herring and son.

The partnership that year granted oil and gas leases to portions of its large land holdings near Amarillo, receiving $683,792 as advance royalties.

No oil or gas had been produced on the land when the leases were made and none was produced in 1926.

In making out their federal income taxes for that year the Harrings claimed depletion deductions. The commissioner of internal revenue, taking the position that such deductions could not be allowed until there had been actual production, refused to allow them and imposed additional taxes of $11,337 on each of the Harrings.

The board of tax appeals and the fifth circuit court of appeals both sustained the commissioner.

Sister-In-Law Of Lindy Dies In California

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 3 (AP)—Mrs. Aubrey Neil Morgan, 30, daughter of the late Dwight W. Morrow and sister of Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, died at 2:30 a. m. today in Pasadena hospital after an illness of several weeks.

The death they had feared thru days and nights of constant attendance came swiftly as the young woman's mother and husband stood at her bedside.

Word of her death was immediately communicated to Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh. Plans for the funeral have not been made.

Mrs. Morgan's death came when hospital attaches said it appeared she was rallying from her illness. She was conscious until the end.

Mrs. Morgan was stricken with appendicitis last month as she boarded a liner for a cruise to Mexico. Shortly after she underwent an operation November 10 pneumonia developed, and it was then that her mother, widow of the late ambassador to Mexico, flew from the family home in Englewood, N. J., to the coast.

Her marriage to Morgan, whose home was in Cardiff, Wales, took

MANY men of the South have been "in tobacco" for years—growing tobacco and curing it—buying it and selling it—until they know tobacco from A to Izzard.

Now folks who have been in tobacco all their lives, folks who grow it, know there is no substitute for mild ripe tobacco.

And down in the South where they grow tobacco and where they ought to know something about it—in most places Chesterfield is the largest-selling cigarette.
