STATE
Senate fast forwards school finance issue
 AUSTIN (AP) — Though the Texas Senate is moving forward fast with a school finance plan led by Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst, House leaders said Thursday they want to take a careful approach that could take longer than the current legislative session.
 The Senate is meeting Friday to consider its school funding proposal. All 31 senators have signed on to the plan that would replace the existing share-the-wealth system with one that would cut property taxes in half and expand and increase the sales tax.
 House Speaker Tom Craddick, a fellow Republican, questioned whether the Dewhurst proposal takes a complete view of funding public schools.

Voters to pick local leaders

By NANCY YOUNG
 MANAGING EDITOR

Election day is Saturday. Voters in Pampa will decide tomorrow on who will lead their city and school.
 In the mayor's race, one of the five candidates must receive at least 51 percent of the vote, Saturday to avoid a runoff, said City Secretary Phyllis Jeffers. She said Pampa's charter provides that the winner must have a majority vote. If none of the five get 51 percent of the vote, a runoff will be held between the top two vote-getters in that race.

 An intense mayor's campaign is headlining the ballot at Pampa City Hall as the five candidates are campaigning down to the wire.
 Almost 600 voters cast ballots during early voting which ended Tuesday. Jeffers said the 591 voters casting their ballot during the early voting was a heavy turnout. The 2003 total of early voters more than doubled the 281 voters who voted early in 2002.

When current Mayor Lonny Robbins first ran in 2001 for the mayoral position in 2001, a record number of voters, 779, cast early ballots.
 Robbins is seeking to be re-elected to his first two-year term, but four candidates are seeking to unseat him.
 Challenging Robbins are Jeff Andrews, a current city commissioner, who is employed as an accountant at Bourland & Leverich; Mike Rummerfield, a field operations manager at Sidwell Oil and Gas; John Goddard, a self-employed businessman; and Norman Stephens, CEO of Pampa Regional Medical Center.

 Seeking to retain the Ward 1 City Commission spot is the incumbent, Jeff McCormick. He has served on the commission since 1995. McCormick is employed at Cabot Corporation. Challenging him is Pampa businessman Doug Locke.
 City Commissioner Bob Dixon, the local veterans' service officer, has been a city commissioner since he was elect-

Co. inmate found hung in jail cell

By NANCY YOUNG
 MANAGING EDITOR

A Gray County Jail inmate is in the intensive care unit at University Medical Center in Lubbock today after he reportedly attempted suicide at the jail Thursday evening.
 Jail personnel discovered Kenneth Fletcher Morgan, 41, of Boca Raton, Fla., shortly before 6:30 p.m. hanging from an improvised noose in his jail cell, officials said today.
 Texas Ranger Gary Henderson, who is investigating the incident, said Morgan appears to have made a noose from a piece of a blanket which was issued to him when booked into the jail Wednesday.
 He said there is a partition in each cell which gives prisoners privacy when they utilize the restroom facilities in the cell. Henderson said the strip of the blanket was placed between the top of the partition and the ceiling.
 Henderson said it is believed Morgan will recover. The ranger credited the quick action of jail personnel to the man's survival.
 He said that as soon as Morgan was discovered by jail personnel that first aid was administered and the ambulance was called.
 "That quick response is why he is alive, and possibly okay," said Henderson.
 Chief Deputy Kelly Rushing said Morgan was arrested Wednesday by Department of Public Safety troopers for driving while intoxicated near McLean on I-40.
 Rural Metro Ambulance responded to the jail and transported Morgan to Pampa Regional Medical Center. Rushing said sheriff's office personnel told him that no intensive care unit beds were available at PRMC nor in the Amarillo hospitals.
 Morgan was flown to the Lubbock hospital by LifeStar medical helicopter shortly after 8 p.m. last night.

PHS Band wins top honor

"Pride of Pampa" Symphonic and Concert bands were not only awarded first division ratings in sightreading but received the Sweepstakes trophy recently during UIL Concert and Sightreading Contest at Randall High School in Amarillo.
 The bands are under the direction of Bruce Collins and Jason Jones.
 Over the past 40 years, the PHS band has earned the sweepstakes award 33 times. This is the first time the concert band earned back-to-back sweepstakes.
 The Sweepstakes trophy goes to bands with first division ratings in marching, concert and sightreading contests.
 The bands were judged in two different musical areas. The concert competition consists of bands performing three prepared pieces with one being a march. The Symphonic Band performed "L'Inglesina (Little English Girl)" by Delle Cese, "First Suite in Eb for Military Band" by Holst and "Music for Prague 1968" by Husa.
 The Concert Band performed "Circus Days" by King, "Havendace" by Holsinger and "American Riversongs" by La Plante.
 Judges for the contest were Bonnie Anderson of Littlefield, Bob Ferguson of Allen and Cindy Bulloch of Odessa. Both bands received first divisions from all three judges in sightreading.
 The band is planning a trip to San Antonio and South Padre Island May 9 through 13.
 The annual Spring Festival, open to all bands in the district, is scheduled at 7 p.m. Thursday, May 15 for grades 5-12.
 The band banquet will be held Friday, May 23.

IRAQ

been an adviser to Saddam since the early 1980s.

Huwaysh was listed as No. 16 on the most-wanted list, Hadi was No. 41 and Marouf was No. 42.

Even with President Bush declaring an end to "major combat operations," the raid on regime loyalists in Saddam's hometown of Tikrit was the latest of many signs that daunting challenges remain for American forces in Iraq.

Almost daily, U.S. troops exchange gunfire with Iraqis, sometimes as a result of anti-American protests. Lawlessness is rampant, in a land abounding with well-armed citizens and divided loyalties.

Tikrit, the stronghold of Saddam's al-Tikriti clan, has been a center of pro-regime sentiment even as the former government collapsed. U.S. officers say members of Saddam's Baath Party are trying to reorganize to stage attacks on American troops, and one of the men detained Friday was described as a party official.

"Some of these guys are continuing to terrorize people out there, and that's going to take a while to work through," said Lt. Col. Phil Battaglia, commander of the infantry regiment that conducted the raid.

During the raid, troops found several weapons and about $3,000 hidden in various houses, and one Iraqi was killed when he tried to wrest a rifle from an American soldier, U.S. officers said.

The raid, the second in Tikrit in as many days, began shortly after midnight when six Bradley Fighting Vehicles sealed off a residential district. Soldiers broke down gates and doors, forced their way inside and emerged with about 20 men, blindfolded and hands tied behind their backs.

The U.S. military provided few details about the capture of the three officials.

Marouf was the only Kurd in the Baath hierarchy. He was appointed as one of Iraq's two vice presidents in 1975, but the position is seen largely as a gesture to the Kurdish minority and he had little real power.

President celebrates with troops before visit to defense contractor

ABOARD THE USS ABRAHAM LINCOLN (AP) — After declaring the Iraq war's heaviest combat over, President Bush is aiming to keep the nation firmly focused on national security even as he makes a feel-your-pain swing through the recession-plagued Silicon Valley.

Bush had breakfast with officers on the USS Abraham Lincoln just off San Diego on Friday morning, then traveled to Northern California, where opposition to his policies, particularly on the war, runs high. Silicon Valley is on the southern fringe of the San Francisco bay area, the heart of the West's anti-war movement.

The aircraft carrier moved steadily through the night off the coast of California. A ship spokesman said it is more efficient to keep the ship moving than it is to anchor.

Bush rose early and walked to the carrier's deck at 5:55 a.m. PDT. "He looked around and took in the scene," said spokesman Ari Fleischer. After his breakfast with the officers, Bush flew by helicopter to Naval Air Station North Island, where he walked in a line of well-wishers and shook hands with members of the military and their families.

Bush will steer clear of San Francisco, where hundreds of thousands of protesters took to the street during the war. He's instead visiting friendlier territory: United Defense Industries, developer of the Bradley Fighting Vehicle, in Santa Clara, Calif. The fast, high-tech troop transporters were heavily used in Iraq.

The visit followed a formula the president has developed in the period following the war and the run-up to his re-election campaign: He uses a defense contractor as the setting for a speech that bridges the seemingly disparate themes of the economy and national security.

Last month he did the same thing at a Boeing plant in St. Louis and at a tank manufacturer in Lima, Ohio.

Some of Bush's fellow Republicans have said Bush is shifting gears to focus more intensely on rehabilitating the economy. But White House spokesman Ari Fleischer dismissed talk of such a "pivot," saying both issues are top priorities for Bush.

"The war on terror remains an important national priority to protect our country and protect our people," Fleischer said. "Economic security is also at the heart and soul of what he is working on."

Bush was picking up Australian Prime Minister John Howard in Northern California and ferrying him back to Bush's central Texas ranch for a weekend summit. It was a highly visible thank-you gesture to a faithful ally in the Iraq war. In contrast, Bush scrubbed a visit planned for Monday with Canadian Prime Minister Jean Chretien, who questioned Bush's path on Iraq.

Instead of meeting with Chretien, Bush was making a quick pass Monday through Arkansas, a state he only narrowly won in the 2000 election.

Bush lost California, the state with the most electoral votes, in 2000. He has visited five times as president, most recently in August. California Republicans have pleaded for more appearances, insisting Bush can compete vigorously for the state next year. Some White House officials privately say Bush cannot capture California, though.

Thursday, off the California coast, Bush revealed in a fervently supportive crowd. Thousands of sailors greeted the commander in chief enthusiastically, their mood ebullient as they approached land after a nearly 10-month deployment.

Bush rode shotgun aboard a Viking refueling plane to the carrier about 30 miles offshore. He took the controls for a third of the flight, keeping the aircraft pointed straight ahead. "I miss flying, I can tell you that," he told reporters.

VOTERS

ed in 1989. Seeking to unseat him is local restaurateur Ed Robinson.

In the school race, incumbent Nancy Coffee is ending her first three-year term and she is challenged by two candidates. James Goode, a rancher, and Charles Smith, owner of an environmental, health and safety consulting and training company, are seeking the spot held by Coffee.

Veteran board member Lee Porter does not have an opponent in the Saturday election.

Voters will be able to vote in both races at M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. Saturday. The civic auditorium will be the only voting location.

To the Citizens of Pampa:

I want to thank the people of Pampa for allowing me to serve you as mayor for the past two years. As mayor I have represented the citizens of Pampa with integrity. Any position of leadership carries with it a learning curve, and I have found this to be especially true in city government. However, I believe what I have learned these past two years serves as a foundation to help me lead this community even more successfully and aggressively and to accomplish the goals I envision for this city.

Pampa's future contains difficult challenges, not easily solved. If re-elected as your mayor, I will use my experience and knowledge in city government to help Pampa move in a positive direction.

My prayer is that God will bless our city with His favor and give its leaders wisdom for the future. I would appreciate your vote on May 3.

Sincerely,

Mayor Lonny Robbins

Pakistan, India plan peace talks

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India and Pakistan said Friday they will soon hold their first talks in almost two years aimed at ending five decades of war and acrimony between the nuclear armed neighbors.

"This round of talks will be decisive," Prime Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee told Parliament, "and at least for my life, these will be the last."

Vajpayee, 78 and ailing, has indicated he would like to leave a legacy of peace between India and Pakistan.

"Talks will begin very soon," Pakistan's Information Minister Sheikh Rashid Ahmed told The Associated Press in Islamabad. "Things are moving very fast."

The two countries went on war footing last year after India blamed Pakistan for an attack by Islamic militants on the Indian Parliament in December 2001. Pakistan denied involvement. Tensions eased after intense diplomacy by the United States and Britain.

Last week, Vajpayee conditionally offered talks with Pakistan on the disputed Himalayan region of Kashmir and other issues. Pakistani President Gen. Pervez Musharraf has voiced some skepticism over the offer, but said it was a sign of improvement.

Pakistan's foreign ministry said Vajpayee's announcement was "a good step in the right direction."

It came four days after Pakistani Prime Minister Zafarullah Khan Jamali phoned the Indian leader in the first such high-level contact in almost two years.

"We are committed to the improvement of relations with Pakistan and we are willing to grasp every opportunity for doing so," Vajpayee told Indian lawmakers.

He said he is restoring civil aviation links that were broken last year, and will appoint a new ambassador to Islamabad.

Ahmed, the information minister, said Pakistan is likely to restore diplomatic ties with India.

BINGOL, Turkey (AP) — Clashes erupted between police and local Kurds over shortages of earthquake relief supplies on Friday as rescue workers kept searching for dozens of children in the rubble of a collapsed school dormitory.

Policemen fired into the air with automatic rifles after hundreds of protesters demanding more tents, food and water attacked police cars and anti-riot vehicles in the city of Bingol. Some protesters ripped large stones from the paved streets and threw them at the governor's building.

Two paramilitary police and three reporters were injured from flying stones, the Anatolia news agency reported.

The confirmed death toll from Thursday's quake stood at 105, the provincial government said. About 1,000 people were injured.

Police manning heavy machine guns on top of armored vehicles patrolled the streets of the city as clashes spread to the side streets with Kurdish youths stoning police vehicles.

Hundreds of paramilitary troops armed with automatic weapons were called in as reinforcements.

The crowds were demanding the governor's resignation and attempted to enter the governor's building, officials said. Several protesters were injured by a speeding police van that drove through the crowd.

There is deep distrust between Kurds and security forces in Turkey's east after a 15-year Kurdish rebel war and ensuing government crackdown left 37,000 dead and millions displaced.

Bingol Governor Hüseyin Avni Cos said Kurdish rebels were taking advantage of the quake to raise tensions, but said security forces may have overreacted. The Bingol chief of police was fired just after the clashes.

"We just came here to get tents. But they started firing on us," said protester Ramazan Yazarli. A Muslim cleric used his mosque's loudspeaker to appeal for calm, while police told the crowd to wait in front of their homes for aid to be distributed.

The Turkish Red Crescent has sent 3,700 tents and 13,000 blankets to the region, but Cos said he had only handed out 1,200 so far because he wanted the distribution to be fair. He said 20,000 more tents were needed. Food and drinking water are also insufficient, officials said.

In the nearby village of Celtiksuyu, rescuers continued to dig through the rubble of a boarding school dormitory that collapsed with 198 students inside.

One boy, Enef Gunce, was rescued Friday morning after spending more than 30 hours under the debris. Weary rescuers applauded as Gunce, apparently with only slight injuries, was carried out of the rubble on a stretcher and quickly put in ambulance.

By midday Friday, 117 children had been rescued. But hopes of finding more survivors were beginning to fade as the bodies of 44 children were found. Thirty-seven were still unaccounted for.

"I have been sitting here since yesterday morning," said Gazal Gunalan, whose 15-year-old son Mehmet was buried under the rubble. "At the beginning I was expecting him to come out alive ... now I'm waiting for his body."

Hundreds of aftershocks have hit the region since the initial 17-second temblor, and thousands of people were in the streets, afraid to re-enter their homes.

The quake's epicenter was just outside Bingol, a poor area some 430 miles east of Ankara.

The school building's collapse again focused attention on poor construction methods that have been blamed for heavy death tolls in previous quakes in Turkey.

Nihat Ozdemir head of the Turkish Contractors' Union said contractors were not being inspected carefully, while Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan vowed to prosecute those responsible for shoddy construction.

The primary and middle boarding school was built in 1999 mainly for the children of farmers from surrounding villages. For many, it represented the hope for a better future for the children of poor Kurds.

"My son always said 'I don't want to stay uneducated like you Dad. I want a different life,'" said Nihat Bezekci, whose 11-year-old son Ahmet was still trapped in the building. "If I had been able, I wish I had sent him to a better school, not here."

Much of the country sits atop the active North Anatolian fault and tremors are frequent. A 1971 quake in Bingol killed 900 people.

Palestinians bury 12 in mass funeral after Israeli raid into Hamas stronghold

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip (AP) — Thousands of Palestinians took to the streets Friday for the mass funeral of 12 Palestinians who were killed during a raid by Israeli troops on a Hamas stronghold.

Gunmen marching among the crowd called for revenge, and one armed militiaman speaking from a loudspeaker warned the new Palestinian government against cooperating with a fresh peace plan or trying to disarm Palestinian militias.

Palestinian officials and Israeli opposition leaders accused Prime Minister Ariel Sharon of using Thursday's raid in Gaza to undercut the new Palestinian prime minister, Mahmoud Abbas, before he has a chance to fulfill a promise to get armed groups to stop their fight against Israel.

The Israeli raid came just a day after international mediators presented the so-called "road map" to peace.

A Sharon adviser said Israel would not halt its anti-terror campaign and would not give Abbas, sworn in Wednesday, a grace period to crack down on militants.

A 13th person killed in the Gaza battle, 2-year-old Amer Ayad, was buried Thursday. The boy was hit by a bullet to the head while he was near a window in his home, his father said.

The other dead were eight gunmen and four civilians — two boys, ages 13 and 15, a taxi driver and a mentally handicapped man.

A crowd of mourners carried their bodies on stretchers from a hospital morgue and walked down a main street.

A gunman from the Al Aqsa Martyrs' Brigade, a militia linked to Abbas' own Fatah party, stood on the roof of a moving car and used a loudspeaker to shout a message for the new Palestinian prime minister.

"To everyone who can hear our bullets, our message is: our weapons are our dignity and any hand that takes our weapons will be cut off," he said, after firing off a few rounds.

He urged the new Palestinian government not to fight the militants: "Don't leave the trench of resistance. We are facing the same enemy."

On Wednesday, the Hamas militant group carried out a suicide bombing in a Tel Aviv cafe that killed a waitress and two musicians.

Israel responded with the Gaza raid, and more than 200 Palestinian gunmen fought back with anti-tank missiles, grenades and homemade explosives. Sixty-five Palestinians were wounded, including 15 critically.

Eight Israeli soldiers were wounded, including one who was in serious condition, the military said.

The peace plan aims to achieve Palestinian statehood within three years. The Palestinians have accepted the plan, while Israel has expressed major reservations.

The road map starts with a Palestinian crackdown on terror groups and an Israeli freeze on Jewish settlements in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. It also calls for a gradual Israeli pullout from the autonomous Palestinian zones its troops have reoccupied during 31 months of fighting.

Republicans frustrated by judicial filibusters consider suing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stymied now on two of President Bush's judicial nominees, Republicans are considering an attempt to change Senate rules or suing to ban judicial filibusters, even against long odds.

"It certainly could be taken to court," Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist, R-Tenn., said after Democrats on Thursday successfully blocked Texas Judge Priscilla Owen from getting a federal appeals court seat.

The discussions reflect frustration among majority Republicans that Democrats have been able to sidestep Bush's popularity and undermine one of his platforms:

Yale's grad students fight union

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — For graduate students at Yale University, the question was supposed to be elementary: Did they want to form a union that would fight for more money and benefits for them?

Instead of the resounding "Yes" that people on both sides of the issue had been expecting, the initiative was narrowly rejected.

Many students who banded together this week to oppose the union said that if they spoke as one, it was precisely to fight the requirement to speak in a single voice.

"Among academics, there is a lot more respect for differences of opinion," said art history student Claudia Brittenham. But with the graduate organizers, she said, "They feel if I have a different opinion, it's because I haven't been sufficiently educated."

The unionizing effort by the Graduate Employee and Students Organization has been more than a decade in the making. Graduate students gave huge backing to a 1995 union proposal, but Yale refused to recognize the union and the initiative has been in limbo ever since.

The latest vote, held Wednesday, was intended by organizers to attract such an overwhelming majority that Yale would be forced to reconsider its opposition. The strategy backfired — the measure lost 694-651.

Critics of the union said tactics that have served labor unions so well were a turnoff for them. They said organizers interrupted science labs and bothered students in the library, on the phone during dinner, even at students' homes.

putting more conservatives in key judgeships.

Bush called the Owen filibuster "shameful" and "unfair to this good woman and unfaithful to the Senate's own obligations."

"The Senate has a constitutional responsibility to exercise its advice and consent function and hold up or down votes on all judicial nominees within a reasonable time after nomination," he said in a statement.

Democrats are filibustering two nominees — Owen and Hispanic lawyer Miguel Estrada — and have promised more if divisive Bush nominees come to the Senate floor. It takes 60 votes to break a filibuster and Democrats showed Thursday with a 52-44 vote that they had a solid enough bloc to keep Owen off the bench. They say they will win again on Monday when Republicans try for the fifth time to force Estrada through.

"History will look kindly on us for doing so," said Sen. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., "because never has a president of the United States been more ideological in his selection of judges."

The White House, GOP senators and advocates aides have been saying for months that they think filibustering judicial nominees is unconstitutional, but to test that theory someone would have to sue.

Republicans admit that they've thought about it. "One option that has been floated is the idea of a lawsuit," said Sen. John Cornyn, R-Texas on Wednesday.

Frist said he didn't know whether a lawsuit would be the right way to go.

"I can't predict whether that will be done or not, but ultimately I think the United States Senate will decide for itself" how to solve the problem, he told reporters.

Some observers say resorting to a lawsuit to ban filibusters would be futile.

"Even the thought that the courts would get involved in Senate business is mind-boggling," said Sheldon Goldman, a political science professor at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst who studies the federal appellate nomination process. "If this isn't a separation of powers issue, what is?"

Cornyn, a former Texas judge himself, agreed. "Another branch of the government — the judiciary — cannot come in and tell Congress how it must function."

Frist and other Republicans are also looking at changing the Senate rules to eliminate filibusters of judicial nominees.

Cornyn's Senate Judiciary subcommittee plans a whole hearing next week called "Judicial Nominations, Filibusters, and the Constitution: When a majority is denied its right to consent" to explore the issue and plans to change the nomination process.

"If filibusters are going to be made part of the judicial nominee process, I think you will see increasing discussion over whether the rules should be changed," Frist said.

The fact that the GOP's November takeover of the Senate has not made it any easier for Bush's appellate nominees to get confirmed only stokes Republican fury.

Democrats last year voted down Owen and Mississippi Judge Charles Pickering in committee and didn't hold hearings for others. The U.S. Appeals Courts are some of the most important courts in America, one step below the Supreme Court and deciding most of the nation's law.

AP Poll: Almost half of Americans think U.S. likely to face SARS crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost half of Americans think that within months this country is likely to face a SARS epidemic similar to that in Asia, an Associated Press poll found.

Most people, though, aren't worried they will be exposed to the disease now.

A top federal health official responded that the public fears don't surprise him. If cases are mishandled, the disease could grow much worse in the United States, he said.

While almost half, 47 percent, said they thought it was at least somewhat likely the country would face such an epidemic, only 8 percent believed such a problem was "very likely," according to the poll conducted for the AP by ICR/International Communications Research of Media, Pa.

Dr. James Hughes, director of the National Center for Infectious Diseases, urged the public to be vigilant about the threat of severe acute respiratory syndrome.

"I'm glad that people are paying attention to what is going on," Hughes said Thursday. "This is a new disease — an excellent example of an emerging global microbial threat that has been recently recognized, has spread with stunning speed from country to country and continent to continent.

"All it would take is one of those cases not promptly recognized or isolated," said Hughes, whose center is part of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Still, he added, "I don't think it would get away from us" the way it has in some other countries.

Blacks were more likely than whites and women more likely than men to think an epidemic is likely in this country.

"If somebody comes into the country who's infected and they don't know it, they could spread it everywhere," said Katrina Firth, a 41-year-old wife and mother of three from Spanaway, Wash.

There are 56 probable cases of SARS in the United States, Hughes said, and another 233 suspected cases, most of which have not yet been tested. Cases have turned up in 38 states. No one in the United States has died from SARS.

Worldwide, there have been more than 5,600 cases of the highly contagious respiratory disease, with at least 394 deaths. Many of those cases have originated in China and other parts of Asia.

People in this country are not that worried they personally will be exposed to the disease, the poll found. About a fourth said they were worried if at they or someone in their family would be exposed to SARS, slightly less than in other recent polls. Only one in 20 was very worried, according to the poll of 1,014 conducted April 25-30. The poll has an error margin of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

In September 2002, a Gallup Poll found just over half of Americans were very or somewhat worried about the West Nile virus, twice the level of concern about SARS in this poll.

Indiana executes man for 1985 double homicide

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) — A man was executed by injection early Friday for the 1985 murders of two roommates who were shot during a robbery at their Fort Wayne home.

Officials at the Indiana State Prison pronounced Kevin Hough dead at 12:25 a.m., about eight hours after his final court appeals were rejected.

Hough, 43, was convicted of murdering Martin Rubrake, 56, and Theodore Bosler, 49. Hough also was convicted of murdering a Polish immigrant, Antonio Barkowiak, 11 days earlier.

"I hope the victims' families get some measure of satisfaction," Hough said shortly before he was put to death. "Hopefully, their grief won't be as much."

The U.S. Supreme Court rejected without comment Hough's final appeal and a request to stay the execution, and Hough spent much of Thursday visiting with family members.

Hough's lawyers argued he was improperly sentenced to death because the jury failed to list what aggravating factors it found in deciding to recommend the death sentence.

On Wednesday, the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago rejected a similar argument. Also Wednesday, Gov. Frank O'Bannon denied clemency, saying Hough's legal proceedings were fundamentally fair.

Hough was the 10th person put to death by the state since Indiana resumed executions in 1981 and the 82nd overall.

According to testimony at Hough's trial, Rubrake and Bosler were holding some belongings of Hough's cousin, who owed them money for a room he rented from them. Hough went to the home on Nov. 6, 1985, to get the belongings and shot both men after an altercation.

Weight regs concern regional carriers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Raising passenger weight estimates could prove costly to regional airlines, say carriers rattled by a Federal Aviation Administration re-examination of the averages used to determine safe flying weights.

Raising the figure — 180-185 pounds per adult passenger — by 10 pounds might require airlines to eliminate seats to comply. "The cost would be staggering," Debby McElroy, president of the Regional Airline Association, said Thursday.

An accident that killed 21 people last winter led the FAA to reassess air travelers' average weight. A US Airways Express flight that crashed at the airport in Charlotte, N.C., was estimated to be within 100 pounds of maximum takeoff weight.

After the crash, the FAA ordered 15 airlines to survey passenger weights.

The survey showed that passengers and their bags generally are heavier than the estimates now used, agency spokeswoman Laura Brown said.

Though any changes would affect all airlines, regional carriers are most concerned. They fly a higher percentage of planes with 10 to 19 seats than do the major airlines.

McElroy said adding 10 pounds per passenger would force her membership to carry fewer passengers or less cargo — if baggage estimates are raised — to meet weight requirements. She urged the FAA to study the issue further.

PISD School Board - Place 4
May 3, 2003

Hello, my name is Charles Smith and I am seeking your vote for Place 4 on the PISD School Board. I would like the opportunity to work with the parents, faculty and administration to provide our children the best possible education we can afford. I feel good communications and closer involvement are necessities in the process of the board and education. I also feel efficient use of funds is vital in our current system and in the future strength and vitality of our schools. If elected, I will work hard to improve communication and efficient use of our school dollars.

Thank You

Church poisonings shock Maine town

NEW SWEDEN, Maine (AP) — Residents of this potato farming community pride themselves on the safety of their close-knit town, many boasting that they don't leave their house doors locked at night.

Now many are scared and shocked after a fatal arsenic poisoning at a church function.

Homicide investigators said arsenic-laced coffee served at the church reception following Sunday's service killed a 78-year-old man and made several others sick.

"I just can't believe any of it. We watch TV and things like this happen," said Pam Landeen, whose uncle, Dale Anderson, was in critical condition at a Bangor hospital. "When something actually happens to you, it's hard to believe."

State police continued interviewing members of the congregation in the community of about 650 people, including more than two dozen who had coffee and baked goods at the church that has long symbolized the cultural fabric of a town settled by Swedish immigrants in the 1800s.

Residents had held on to hopes until Wednesday that the poisonings would turn out to be accidental, said Alton Ketch. Told that it was a homicide, he said, "That's what we were scared of."

Following the death of Walter Reid Morrill, officials said the investigation "has produced no evidence that ... the arsenic was introduced into the brewed coffee accidentally."

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

In 1886 (or '87), John Austin Paris, brother-in-law of Ben F. Williams, came to this area on an exploring trip and returned with his family the next year. They traveled in an 18-wagon train, driving 2,500 head of horses. The men of the Laketon area had begun to build a 20-foot by 30-foot schoolhouse, "Highwindy," which was nearing completion. Ben F. Williams was employed to teach at the salary of $65 a month.

By 1889, the group near Laketon included the families of J.C. Short, J.A. Boney, L.O. Boney, J.R. Henry and A.J. Jasper with two sons, his widowed daughter, Mary Walter (Susie) Brown and her daughter, Gertie. In 1890, J.R. Henry and Mrs. Brown were married.

The school building became the community house and church services were held there on Sundays. Permlia Jahns would load her organ into the wagon and take it to church. Sometimes Susie Henry, a music teacher, would bring her organ. Services were alternated by a variety of people representing several faiths. The Sunday schedule included morning classes, a picnic, then afternoon services.

Preachers came by buggy or horseback from Miami, Mobeetie and sometimes by train from Canadian. Often cowboys from south of the farming area attended the Highwindy services.

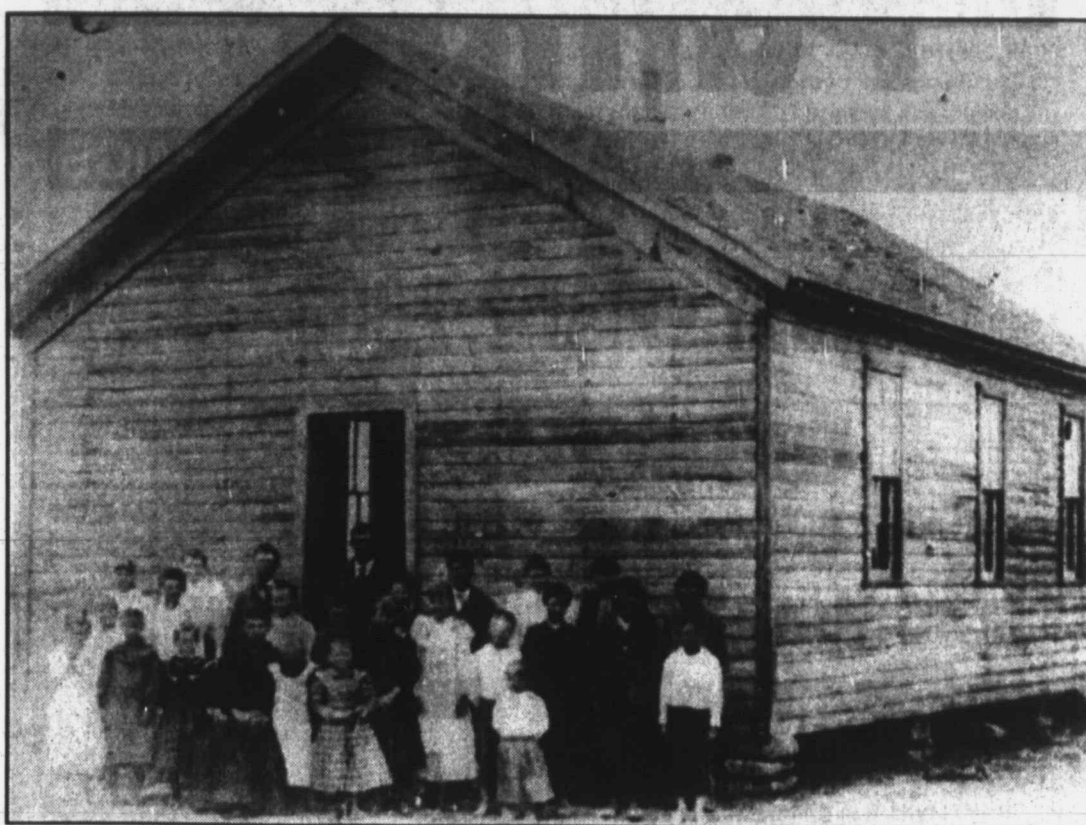

"Parson" John N. Stump came to the Laketon area and bought land near the Wheeler County line. His ministry took him to many schoolhouses widely scattered - often on horseback, then later with a buggy and team. "Parson" Stump also preached in the area in addition to his farming.

W.L. Gillis and his wife (formerly Mary Elizabeth Stump) moved to a farm near Laketon in 1896. The Stump family belonged to the Church of the Brethren, a German-Baptist sect sometimes called "Dunkards," because of their belief in triple face-forward baptism. In 1927, the Church of the Brethren moved to Pampa.

About 1910, a one-room frame building on John Stump's land was later located one mile north of Laketon, and community services were held there on Sundays. In 1929, at the present location, it was remodeled to become the Church of Christ.

Early church services were held in the Highwindy school building near Laketon about 1888-89.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Arizona governor vetoes bill
PHOENIX (AP) — Gov. Janet Napolitano vetoed a bill to expand religious exemptions under a state law requiring employers' health-insurance plans to cover prescription drugs including contraceptives.

The contraceptive coverage law, passed last year and signed by Napolitano's predecessor, allows exemptions for religious organizations that mainly hire people of the same faith and provide goods or services related to that faith.

The bill Napolitano vetoed would have expanded exemption to social-service agencies affiliated with religious groups. It was supported by Roman Catholic officials and opposed by Planned Parenthood.

Supporters said the bill enhanced constitutional protection of religious rights, but Napolitano, a Democrat, said the existing law's exemption was "carefully crafted."

N.C. Baptists expel church
CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — A Southern Baptist congregation was expelled from a regional association after the pastor baptized two gay men and welcomed them into membership.

Cabarrus Baptist Association, representing 81 member congregations, agreed in a closed meeting to sever ties with the 800-member McGill Baptist Church in a 250-11 vote.

Afterward, the Rev. Randy Wadford, association missions director, read a statement that said "the homosexual lifestyle is contrary to God's will and plan for mankind" so admitting members "without evidence or testimony of true repentance is to condone the old lifestyle."

McGill's pastor, the Rev. Steve Ayers said "the kingdom of Christ is about love, about God's grace and mercy...When a church becomes so judgmental that it can't accept people into their fellowship, it is a sad, sad day."

Ayers said the two gay men declined comment.

Virgin Mary statue weeps
SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A "weeping" statue of the Virgin Mary that attracted thousands of pilgrims in western Australia last year appears to be shedding tears again, a news report said Sunday.

The Australian AP said a member of the family that owns the 28-inch fiberglass statue claimed that on Good Friday the figure once again began shedding what appeared to be oily, rose-scented tears.

Mobeetie revival starts Monday

MOBEETIE - First Baptist Church of Mobeetie plans a revival services Monday, May 4, through Wednesday, May 7. Services featuring guest speakers, Pastors Cox, Ferguson and Perkins, begin at 7 p.m. nightly. Youth Night is set for 6 p.m. Tuesday, May 6, with a hamburger cookout. For more information call (806) 845-3661.

Rushing Wind Emmaus to meet May 3

Rushing Wind Emmaus community will meet Saturday, May 10, at the Booker Christian Church, 322 Eastern in Booker. A pot luck meal will be shared at 6 p.m. in the fellowship hall followed by a praise and worship service. Families, friends and those interested in the Walk to Emmaus are welcome. A nursery will be provided and a sponsors training will be offered.

Many battles can be fought with prayer

I am now 94 years old and both I and Marjorie, my wife of 70 years, are very sad at what has happened in the McKinley High School, Hawaii.

Mun Chee Chun, a senior in high school in 1927, wrote the school's code which mentions, "Love of God and all Mankind." In January 2003, the ACLU, acting on behalf of James Omellas, succeeded in making "Love of God" illegal. The plaque which was hung in the Hall of Honor in 1927 containing "Love of God," is only acceptable to the ACLU if the plaque is not highlighted in some way. All other materials must go. (Assemblies of God Pentecostal Evangel, March 23)

In religious circles across our land, we are taking comfort in the statement Jesus made in Matthew 16:18, "... upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." At the same time we could, through prayer, prevent some of the setbacks that the Devil, with his angels and servants, are giving Jesus' church.

In International Falls, Minn., 15 pastors that have had freedom to write their religious articles in the church column for nine years are now being asked by Editor Devlyn Brooks to refrain from using any biblical quotes in their articles for the church column in The Daily Journal. (Assemblies of God

Minister's Musings

REV. ARCHIE COOPER, RETIRED
PETECOSTAL HOLINESS CHURCH

Pentecostal Evangel, March 23)

Is it true that in these days, the gates of hell are prevailing against Christ's church? Not at all. But Christians have been lazy and careless.

Jesus taught the value of importunity in praying (Matthew 11:18). If we are satisfied with praying a universal prayer, "forgive us our sins and give us our daily bread," we make an easy prey for Satan. Let us evaluate our love for Christ and our commitment to him. He needs the best soldier that He can make out of you and I.

I have learned a lot about how to fight hard battles through prayers that only reach God through tears and fasting. The need of Christ's church and the need of our nation requires such prayers today.

I firmly believe that our good President George W. Bush is justified in the war that we are in, even as God justified many wars in Bible days. And President Bush needs much prayer.

DEAR ABBY

written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanne Phillips

Meddling Mother's Shadow Dogs Couple's Every Move

DEAR ABBY: My live-in girlfriend, "Penny," and I are in our mid-30s. We have two young daughters from previous relationships. My problem is Penny's mother, "Marge," who insists on being included in everything we do. We can't make a move without Marge demanding to know what we did, where we went, who we met, etc. She even wants to know what we ate if we go out for a meal!

Penny's mom invites herself on our shopping trips; to the movies and dinners out. If we do something without letting her know, we'll come home to multiple messages on the answering machine from Marge, using the excuse that she "worries" when she doesn't know where we are.

What I don't understand is the fact that this woman has a husband at home. Why she can't leave us alone, I'll never know. It's to the point that I am rethinking my future with her daughter, because I don't want to hang with "Mom" all the time. Please advise.

THREE'S A CROWD IN SOUTHERN IDAHO

DEAR THREE'S A CROWD: It appears that Marge's life has become so centered on Penny that she has no other social outlets. It is interesting to me that she and Penny's father do not seem to have a social life of their own, and makes me wonder what she could be running from. Penny and her mother could benefit from counseling together. While a close mother/daughter ter bond is important, you have described one in which the mother has become obsessive. Both of them need to understand that this behavior could cost Penny her relationship with you. Please don't end the relationship yet. Your lady needs to learn how to set boundaries, and she needs your support now more than ever.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter's preschool teacher sent the following letter home last week. If you think it would benefit your readers, would you please consider printing it?

A PARENT IN TEXAS

DEAR PARENT: The message in that letter is powerful. I hope other parents will heed it. Read on:

"Dear Parents: Today I attended the funeral of my 3-week-old niece. She died of suffocation in bed with her mother, her father and her 2-year-old sister.

"I don't need to tell you the shock and sorrow this tragedy has caused. As parents, we can only imagine such a nightmare. It will take a lifetime of healing and God's grace to get past this.

"Although my niece's death was tragic, she didn't die in vain if, through her death, other lives can be saved.

"I know it's popular and natural to gather your children into bed with you — whether for their safety and security, for bonding, or just to get a good night's sleep. We've all been there.

"So, it isn't out of judgment or criticism that I write this note but only out of caution — a warning. Be careful. It can happen. It happened to my family. Please, don't let it happen to yours."

Longhorns' Ford is on his way to NBA

AUSTIN (AP) — With T.J. Ford on his way to the NBA, the Texas Longhorns go from great team to good, from a pre-season national title favorite to a team trying to prove that it can return to the Final Four.

Ford was the star power behind Texas' two-year rise from a solid program to one that could contend for a national title. The All-American point guard won the Naismith and Wooden awards as the national player of the year while guiding Texas to its first Final Four in 56 years.

"He has done more in two years for Texas basketball than anyone who's come before him," coach Rick Barnes said.

It was Ford's speed, passing and penetration that kept defenses off balance. But with his announcement Thursday that he will leave Texas to enter the NBA draft on June 26, the Longhorns are left looking for someone to take over a lineup full of senior role players that suddenly lacks a floor leader.

Ford said it was a difficult to leave and didn't make up his mind until Wednesday night, although published reports as early as Tuesday had him leaving.

He said he struggled with giving up a college career he enjoyed but ultimately wanted to chase a life-long dream to play in the NBA. Ford had said during the season he was "110 percent" sure he would return but started wavering soon after Texas lost to eventual national champion Syracuse in the semifinals.

"I don't think I could have made a wrong decision," he said. "It was a no-lose situation."

Ford has not hired an agent, giving him time to change his mind, but he gave no indication Thursday that was likely. His lofty status as a projected lottery pick in the draft played a major role in his decision, he said.

"I feel like I'm making the right decision. I'm not shaky about it at all," said Ford. "I accomplished a lot of things in college. The only thing I didn't do was win the national championship."

Ford led Texas in scoring (15.0 points), assists (7.0) and steals (2.0) this season and led the nation in assists as a freshman. His 527 career assists rank second in school history.

Barnes said he expected this decision before the season even started.

"I knew all along that if he had the type of year he was capable of having, he would have to make this decision," Barnes said. "It's the right thing to do. This is his dream."

Ford said a recent injury scare, when he spent four hours in the emergency room after falling in a pickup game, was not a factor.

Before his freshman season at Texas began in the fall of 2001, Ford was diagnosed with spinal stenosis, a narrowing of the openings of the vertebra the spinal cord runs through. After consulting with doctors, he decided against surgery to fix the problem, and tests later showed that the condition had improved.

Texas returns four starters — James Thomas, Royal Ivey, Brandon Mouton and Brad Buckman — and top reserves Brian Boddicker and Sydmill Harris for next season. Barnes said the Longhorns will strive to return to the Final Four.

"This junior class that is getting ready to become the senior class, they're the foundation for this program," Barnes said. "They raised the bar."

To replace Ford, the Longhorns are likely to turn to freshman Kenton Paulino, who hardly played as a freshman, or junior college transfer Edgar Moreno. Another choice is Ivey, who played point guard as a freshman before Ford arrived.

Thomas said the team supported Ford's decision, even though Ford had taken back the promise to return.

"We're real happy for him," Thomas said. "We all support his decision, but we have to move on. We're very happy with the team we have now and hopefully next year we can do the same thing."

BASEBALL

TORONTO (AP) — Everything came together for Roy Halladay and Cliff Politte.

Politte saved Halladay's first win of the season in his first chance as Toronto's new closer and the Blue Jays overcame four Texas homers, including Rafael Palmeiro's 498th, to beat the Rangers 7-6 Thursday night.

After Politte got four outs for his first save, manager Carlos Tosca said closer Kelvim Escobar will be moved into the starting rotation. "Cliff will be our ninth-inning guy for right now," Tosca said.

Escobar has a 13.06 ERA and three saves.

"We're not giving him save opportunities," Tosca said. "We might as well give him the ball every five days and see what happens."

Halladay (1-2) allowed four runs and seven hits in seven innings for his first victory since Sept. 29. The 25-year-old right-hander struck out five and walked one.

He went 19-7 last year but was 0-2 with a 4.89 ERA in his first six starts this season.

"After going through some struggles early in the year, I was just going to give it everything I had," Halladay said.

Player to Watch

Pampa senior Tyson Moree was picked as one of the pre-season Class 4A Players to Watch by the Texas High School Baseball Coaches Association. Moree is the leadoff-hitter and the center fielder for the Harvesters. Moree and his teammates take on either El Paso Burges or El Paso Ysleta in the Area round of the playoffs next week.

Hidden Hills softball team now 3-0 for the season

PAMPA — Hidden Hills 10-12 softball team has a 3-0 record after a victory against Lefors earlier this week.

The Hidden Hills pitching staff in four innings allowed four runs on two hits. They walked two and there was one error.

Carlyn Teichmann pitched the first two innings, and didn't allow a run on no hits and no walks, while striking out six. Kelby Doughty pitched the third inning, and allowed two hits while not walking a batter and striking out three.

Brooklyn Barker pitched the fourth inning, and allowed four runs while striking out three and not walking a batter. She didn't give up a hit.

Hidden Hills was led by the three-hit performance of Liz Hammy, who was 3 for 3 at the plate with three singles.

Kelby Doughty, Emily Troxell, Brooklyn Barker and Kamie Doughty had two hits each. Kelby and Emily each had a double. Holly Winegeart and Senecia Decker each had a hit. Holly's hit was a triple.

Spurs slip by Suns, 87-85

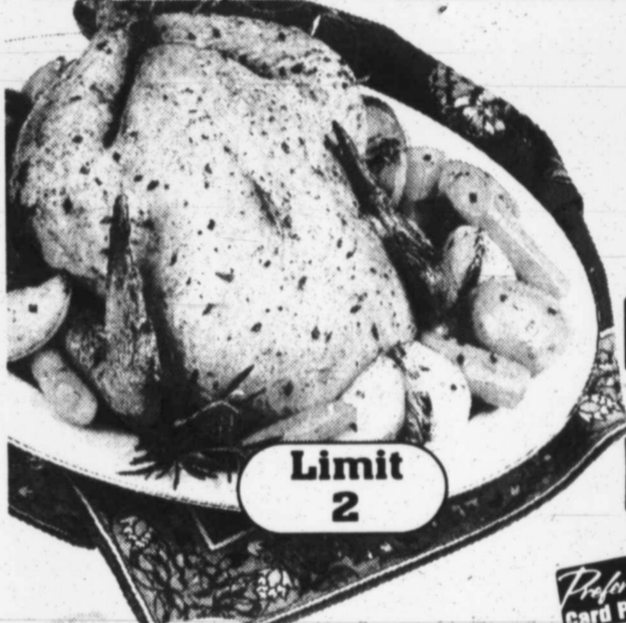

PHOENIX (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs thanked the Phoenix Suns for toughening them up in the first round. Now they're ready for their second-round showdown with the Los Angeles Lakers.

"It was a great experience for us," said Tim Duncan, whose second career playoff triple-double helped the Spurs eliminate the Suns 87-85

Thursday night. "It's a great experience to get to Game 6. It's a great experience to know what kills us, to know what we have to do."

Stephen Jackson and Manu Ginobili sank two 3-pointers apiece in a decisive 12-2 fourth-quarter run for a team that believes its much more prepared for the Lakers this year.

San Antonio mayor wants Cowboys back in Alamodome

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The mayor of this Central Texas city says the Dallas Cowboys have accepted one of two proposals to get the NFL team back to the Alamodome for training camp this summer.

Mayor Ed Garza said Thursday he believes a proposed agreement stands a good chance of passing when it comes up for a vote, even though such a deal still may draw criticism from some council members.

“Based on the direction we gave staff, these are the points they could support the most,” Garza, who has been a strong proponent of hosting the training camp, told the San Antonio Express-News in Friday's editions.

The Cowboys have not yet furnished city officials with anything in writing and Garza said he was uncertain which of the two proposals was preferred.

City Manager Terry Brechtel said options offered last week will get “closer to a fair deal for the city.”

Options differed primarily between how much the city would pay the team and whether the city would receive revenue from a scrimmage between the Cowboys and the Houston Texans, she said.

One option, Brechtel said, included the city paying $400,000 and receiving $2 per ticket sold to the Texans scrimmage at the Alamodome. Officials estimate 30,000 people will attend that scrimmage, which would earn the city $60,000.

Another option would not include the city paying $400,000 and receiving $2 per ticket sold to the Texans scrimmage at the Alamodome. Officials estimate 30,000 people will attend that scrimmage, which would earn the city $60,000.

Glo-Valve sweeps by Rotary, 19-4

PAMPA — Heath Skinner retired 11 batters in a row and Freddie Ramirez supplied the firepower as Glo-Valve Services swept by Rotary Club 19-4 Tuesday in an Optimist 11-12 Cal Ripken League game.

Ramirez had two doubles and a triple with five RBI and four runs scored to lead all hitters. Skinner relieved in the second inning with one on and no outs and did not allow a baserunner until the fifth inning. He struck out seven, allowed one hit and one unearned run without walking a batter in winning his second game of the season. Jose Ramirez finished up. He gave up a hit and a walk, but allowed no runs and struck out one. Hayden Skinner started for Glo-Valve. He allowed three unearned runs, one hit and walked four. He struck out two.

Heath Skinner started Glo-Valve's first inning with a line drive single to left. Kade Wilson and Hayden Skinner walked, and Heath Skinner scored on an infield out. Freddie Ramirez reached base on an error with Wilson coming home on the play. Hayden Skinner tallied on a throwing error. Mark Ruth was safe on a fielder's choice. Nick Riley continued his torrid hitting with a run-scoring single. Anthony Allen followed with a bunt single to the bases. Heath Skinner stroked his second single of the inning to score Ruth. Wilson walked for the second time in the inning to force in Riley. Anthony Allen scooted home on an attempted pickoff play that failed to give Glo-Valve a 7-0 lead.

Rotary came back with three runs in the bottom of the first. Jonathan Anguiano was safe on an error. He went to second on a wild pitch and made Rotary's first run when Alex Torres singled. Torres went to second and third on wild pitches and scored on a throwing error. Michael Anguiano walked, went to second on a wild pitch, to third on a fielder's choice and scored on a wild pitch.

Lane Douglass beat out a bunt to open Glo-Valve's second inning. He promptly scampered home on a triple by Freddie Ramirez. Ramirez sneaked home when Riley was safe on an error to push Glo-Valve's lead to 9-3. Glo-Valve picked up another run in the fifth inning when Heath Skinner walked, went to second and third on wild pitches and tagged up and scored on a sacrifice fly by Hayden Skinner.

With two out in the fifth, Jonathan Anguiano singled to become Rotary's first base runner off Heath Skinner. He took second on a wild pitch and came home when Garrett Fatheree reached base on an error.

Glo-Valve sent 13 batters to the plate in the sixth. Freddie Ramirez opened with his second double of the game. He Wilson drew his fourth walk of the game to load the bases again. Hayden Skinner was safe on an error with Allen scoring. Douglass drilled a single to center sending Jose Ramirez home. Freddie Ramirez cleaned the bases with a double. He came home when Ruth bounced a single off the fence.

Glo-Valve still was not through. Ruth thundered to second on a wild pitch and roared home when Riley got his third RBI of the game with a single to left.

Glo-Valve raised its league-leading record to 3-0. Rotary fell to 1-3.

Cabot plays Duncan, Fraser & Bridges Insurance Agency at 5:45 p.m. today. Celanese plays DOB at 11 a.m. on Saturday, the Official Opening Day for Optimist Baseball 2003.

Because of a scheduling error, the game won't count in the season standings. Glo-Valve squares off with Cabot at 1 p.m. and follows with a scrimmage game at 4 p.m. against Rotary.

Optimist baseball is made possible in part by a grant from the Pampa United Way.

Empire Maker faces challenge to win Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Empire Maker faces a difficult job trying to win the Kentucky Derby. He has a bruised foot and 15 rivals vying for him in the tracas into the first turn.

“It's a lot of horses trying to get good position,” said trainer Bobby Frankel, who is juggling Empire Maker's troublesome right front foot and his other powerful entry, Peace Rules.

The Derby field was reduced to 16 Friday when Arkansas Derby winner Sir Cherokee was scratched because of a small fracture in his right rear leg. The injury is not considered career-threatening.

A light gallop Friday only created more questions about Empire Maker's readiness. During his exercise, he suddenly veered to his right while coming around a turn and bolted toward the outer rail, not far from where Frankel was standing.

Exercise rider Jose Cuevas continued to have trouble gaining control of the colt, and another outrider reached over and grabbed his bridle and helped settle him down.

After that, Empire Maker went around the track once again with a pony by his side, and there were no further problems.

“He was just being himself,” Frankel said when the colt came off the track. “That's just the way he is. Maybe we'll get 3-1 now.”

DeRosa's two-run homer helps Braves complete three-game sweep of Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Not bad for a guy who failed to get a bunt down in the clutch.

After fouling off a bunt attempt for a second strike, pinch-hitter Mark DeRosa hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning to help the Atlanta Braves complete a three-game sweep of Houston with an 8-7 win Thursday night.

“That's my first pinch hit homer and it's a tough job,” DeRosa said. “I watch the guys around the league and other guys on this team and it's not an easy task.”

DeRosa was supposed to bunt Javy Lopez to second with the score tied against loser Billy Wagner (1-2). But after fouling off the bunt, he started looking for a fastball.

“If he had thrown me anything else, I would have screwed myself into the mound when I swung,” DeRosa said. “I got good wood on it but when a guy throws as hard as he does, you don't have to hit it hard.”

Gary Sheffield went 3-for-5 with two RBIs and hit a solo homer in the seventh that tied it at 6 and set the stage for DeRosa's homer.

Lance Berkman broke out of a season-long slump by driving in six runs and going 4-for-5, including a three-run homer off former Astros pitcher Shane Reynolds in the first inning. Berkman entered the game with four RBIs this season.

“I contributed more tonight than the entire month of April,” Berkman said.

“I'm not going to get too excited because that's my job. I felt better at the plate tonight obviously, but the main story is this was a tough loss.”

The Braves started the series already recovered from a 4-8 start to the season and they left in even better shape. They've won five straight games, seven straight on the road and 14 of their last 16.

Roberto Hernandez (2-0) pitched two scoreless innings for the win, and John Smoltz worked the ninth for his 11th save in 11 tries and 27th in a row dating to last season. The Braves won their 62nd straight game in which Smoltz has pitched.

“I wasn't at my best, but I felt so strong it was scary,” Smoltz said. “My pitches were more aggressive than I wanted them to be. My fastball was absolutely live. My splitter was probably too hard. I just want to keep it going as long as possible.”

Berkman hit a run-scoring single in the ninth, but Smoltz retired Ricardo Hidalgo and got Jose Vizcaino to ground into a game-ending double play with runners at the corners.

“We kept fighting back,” Astros manager Jimmy Williams said. “They went ahead and we went ahead. We certainly had the right people up at the end. We just couldn't quite do it.”

Sheffield went 8-for-12 in the three-game series and had seven RBIs and two home runs. On the season, Sheffield is hitting .519 (27-for-52) on the road.

Horoscope BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, May 3, 2003:

Learn to ask for advice and feedback from superiors. You find that others are a source of unusual and dynamic ideas, though you might be uncomfortable with what you hear. You will have an opportunity to increase your security and financial stability, especially in the first half of your birthday year. In the second half, allow your creativity and risk-taking more leeway. If you are single, in the fall you might come across someone who could cause you to stop in your tracks. Get to know this person. If you're attached, plan on a romantic trip during the fall. GEMINI values your efforts.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have:

- 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

- ★★★★ Play leader of the gang. Get out there and energize your friends, family and loved ones. Use a little more imagination, and everyone will smile. Whether scheduling a picnic or a day trip, you'll have a great time. Make sure to add a little music to the mix. Tonight: Hang out.

Taurus (April 20-May 20)

- ★★★★ Get in touch with others' expectations. Before you know it, you might find that you've blown your budget in order to make someone happy. Think before OK'ing an expense or major indulgence involving a family member or your home. Does this increase the quality of your life? Tonight: Your treat.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

- ★★★★ You're all smiles, as the Moon greets your sign. A growing friendship could punctuate single Gemini lives. If attached, conversations help draw the two of you together. Confusion surrounds your intimate or personal feelings. Flow with the moment. Tonight: Whatever makes the Twin smile.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

- ★★★★ Take your time and review your ideas before launching into action. You might want to discuss your financial limits. Someone needs to hear more from you about what you want. You might be facing a decision between a friend and a loved one. Tonight: Go on a retreat.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

- ★★★★ Visualize. Timing works as you zero in on what you want. You could easily go to extremes in order to make your presence noticed. A loved one comes through for you big-time. You might be surprised by what goes on.

Tonight: A loved-one creates hazy situations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

- ★★★★ Take charge, whether it's bringing your friends together or deciding on plans. Others will more than happily follow your lead. Evaluate a project before you decide you can do it. You might not be able to perform to your expectations. Tonight: Paint the town red.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

- ★★★★ Plan a trip. Detach from an emotionally charged situation by changing the scenery and gaining a new perspective. How you see a child or loved one might need to be revised. Understand another by listening and walking in his or her shoes. Tonight: Try something exotic.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

- ★★★★ A partner wants and needs your time. Do nothing halfway right now. Share yourself and your affection. Remember which side your bread is buttered on. Honor the key people in your life. You might need to curb some of your socializing and playing. Tonight: Let someone else choose.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

- ★★★★ Choice eludes you this week-end. Go along with plans and what others might need or want. You could be confused by what a friend says when his or her actions are exactly the opposite. Observe and give this person the space to declare his or her intentions. Tonight: Follow a partner's ideas.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

- ★★★★ Pace yourself as you handle the desire of a loved one or friend to spend way too much. You could feel pulled in different directions. Recognize your limits, knowing when to say you have had enough. Grab a nap or vanish with a good novel. Make this your day. Tonight: Take it easy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

- ★★★★ Whatever you do with a loved one, friend or child is perfect. You might encounter a little flak with a roommate or partner. Juggle these two different interests, and you'll meet success. Permit more laughter; cut negativity. Tonight: Be wild.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

- ★★★★ What you hear and what might actually be said could be distinctly different issues. In the long run, this distortion could affect a relationship or communication. Lie low and close to home if possible. Catch up on mail. Call a friend at a friend's. Tonight: Say what you feel.
