Administration opening door to dialogue with North Korea

By BARRY SCHWEID AP DIPLOMATIC WRITER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration has opened the door to dialogue with North Korea, but said Wednesday Pyongyang should not expect U.S. incentives, such as new financial aid, to drop its nuclear programs.

North Korea has not responded. White House spokesman Ari Fleischer said the offer to talk should not be seen as "a negotiation to give them any inducements, when previous inducements that were given to them were disobeyed."

"They dropped their end of the agreement and they should certainly not expect the United States to give them additional inducements to honor old agreements," he said.

"The ball is in their court," Fleischer said. "They are the ones that created this situation by reneging on agreements that they made, and we will continue to work closely with our allies."

The offer to talk is unconditional, but the administration is standing by its position that North Korea must give up its nuclear weapons programs.

"We are not going to pay again for North Korea to live up to its obligations," State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said Tuesday. He referred to a pledge North Korea took in 1994 to freeze the programs in exchange for fuel oil and two light water reactors, a deal financed mostly by Japan and South Korea.

The hard line the administration had taken toward an increasingly bellicose Pyongyang eased with the offer of a dialogue.

"If the North Koreans are prepared to reverse course and stop their aggressive pursuit of greater nuclear weapons capabilities, they know how to reach members of the international community," said Sean McCormack, spokesman for President Bush's National Security Council. "We are prepared to listen."

Boucher said, "It's an unconditional offer to talk to North Korea about how it can meet its international obligations."

Among them is an accord with South Korea that the Korean peninsula would be kept free of nuclear weapons.

"We will obviously be looking to see how North Korea responds and what they say, either in private or in public, what they are willing to do," Boucher said.

There was no immediate, direct response to the U.S. offer, but the official news agency, KCNA, said Wednesday there is an "increasing danger of a nuclear war on the Korean Peninsula" because of the United States and urged the two Koreas to "pool their efforts and condemn and frustrate the U.S. nuclear policy for aggression."

The U.S. offer was included in a statement issued jointly with South Korea and Japan after two days of meetings at the State Department. A copy of the joint communique was sent to the North Korean mission to the United Nations.

South Korean Deputy Foreign Minister Lee Tae-Sik said the participants in the talks agreed that North Korea should take the first step by giving up its nuclear weapons program. "Only after this can we imagine serious discussions or dialogue taking place," Lee said.

He said the United States, Japan and South Korea did not set a timetable for North Korean action, "but the situation is getting worse and worse and we all have to assume not much time is left." South Korea would continue its contacts with North Korea to stress the importance of resolving the problem, he said.

The offer of dialogue was backed by Bush, who again offered assurances in a Chicago speech that "we have no aggressive intentions, no argument with the North Korean people. We're interested in peace in the Korean peninsula."

North Korea has demanded a nonaggression treaty with the United States.

In Pyongyang on Tuesday, thousands of North Koreans rallied in support of a stronger military. And the government said U.S. economic sanctions would lead to war.

The joint statement in Washington said Japan's and South Korea's dialogues with North Korea "serve as important channels to resolve issues of bilateral concern."

Dynegy holding out greater expectations for new year than Wall Street predictions

HOUSTON (AP) — Dynegy Inc. officials are optimistic 2003 will bring profits larger than Wall Street had expected and a smaller debt load as the energy company continues revamping its business.

Dynegy also plans to jettison its money-losing trading and communications businesses this year, officials said Tuesday. The company expects to earn 8 cents to 15 cents per share, or $31 million to $54 million this year, exceeding analysts' consensus estimate of 3 cents per share.

Dynegy was among the energy companies battered by fleeing investors and squeezed credit ratings in the fallout of former rival Enron Corp.'s December 2001 failure.

"Our credit standing and the economy have created a challenging environment for Dynegy," Chief Executive Bruce Williamson said.

Dynegy's forecast assumes the company will successfully renegotiate $1.3 billion in bank agreements due in April and May, despite its low credit ratings, which are below investment grade.

Dynegy will continue paying down debt and rely on its generation and natural gas liquids businesses, as well as its Illinois utility, to provide an estimated $1.2 billion to $1.3 billion in 2003 cash flow.

The company has access to $1.47 billion, either in cash on hand or in bank credit, after paying $850 million of the company's total $7.7 billion debt last year. It plans to pay another $100 million this month.

Gordon Howald, an analyst with Credit Lyonnais, said Dynegy's outlook may be "a little bit rosy" when it comes to anticipating gas and power prices and successful renegotiations with banks. But the company's future isn't as bleak as it appeared a few months ago, he said.

"The key point here is, it appears that they are going to make it through at least November 2003," Howald said. "Going from a company that appeared to be very likely to file bankruptcy, Dynegy is now a company that has a pretty good shot at surviving 2003."

Throughout 2002, Dynegy replaced top executives, shut down its Enron-like online trading platform, announced plans to scrap its trading business, laid off more than 1,100 workers and sold about $2 billion in assets.

"The communications business should be sold or shut down by the end of the first quarter," Williamson said.

Dynegy is the only energy company so far to settle regulatory probes into trading or accounting practices, without admitting wrongdoing.

The company agreed in September to pay $3 million to the Securities and Exchange Commission regarding a natural gas deal that forced Dynegy to restate financial statements for 1999-2001.

Then Dynegy agreed to pay $5 million to the Commodity Trading Futures Commission last month regarding fake trades reported to industry publications to skew natural gas prices in Dynegy's favor.

cent of taxpayers.

Many economists were perplexed by the plan's heavy reliance on the dividend tax elimination in a package that is supposed to jump-start a sputtering economy, given that taxpayers won't even see this relief until next year when they file their 2003 tax returns.

The administration, however, is counting on the tax dividend proposal to lift spirits on Wall Street, where investors have been battered by a $7 trillion drop in stock valuations over the past three years. Some advisers estimate that stock prices could rise by 10 percent with an elimination of the dividend tax.

Of course, Bush may also be using the size of his package as a bargaining ploy, intending to trade away some elements later for items more favored by Democrats.

There are already competing Democratic proposals in both the Senate and House that have far smaller price tags and offer much more relief to lower-income workers and cash-strapped states.

Two potential Democratic presidential rivals, Sens. Joseph Lieberman and John Kerry, blasted Bush's package on Tuesday as a giveaway to the wealthy at the expense of middle-class workers.

White House spokesman Ari Fleischer said Wednesday that many Democrats opposed Bush's 2001 tax plan "at first blush," but some were converted.

However, there was an early sign that moderate Republicans might balk at parts of Bush's proposal. Moderate Republican Sen. Lincoln Chafee of Rhode Island planned to join Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., to announce legislation on Thursday that would freeze the top income-tax rate at its current 38.6 percent until budget surpluses return.

In the House, where the rules give the majority Republicans more control over the flow of legislation, House Speaker Dennis Hastert, R-Ill., predicted the measure that is finally passed "will look very much like what the president has asked for."

While economists generally applauded the plan as carrying effective stimulus measures, they questioned why Bush had earmarked only a token $3.6 billion to states.

Mark Zandi, chief economist of Economy.com, said Bush's package will probably boost economic growth by 0.7 percentage point this year. But he said the spending cuts and tax increases states are being forced to enact to balance their budgets will probably trim 0.5 percentage point from growth, leaving a tiny 0.2 percentage point improvement for the economy as a whole from government actions.

Other analysts worried that Bush's plan might provide a short-term boost for the economy this year but turn into a long-term drag over the next decade by causing budget deficits to explode and send interest rates soaring.

"I am worried that we are giving away so much in tax cuts, that we will never get back to a budget balance," said David Wyss, chief economist at Standard & Poor's in New York.

they do younger ones.

Annual flu shots have been recommended for people 65 and older since the 1960s and for those 50 and older since 2000.

The flu death toll pales in comparison to that of the worldwide influenza epidemic of 1918, which killed more than 20 million people, including 500,000 Americans.

But the new numbers frustrate public health experts who had hoped the development of flu vaccine about 40 years ago would have had a greater effect.

Vaccination rates are also dismal — about 30 percent — for another target group, people with high-risk conditions such as diabetes and heart disease, said Dr. Keiji Fukuda, a CDC epidemiologist.

Thompson noted that flu shots are free under Medicare and said new federal rules should help increase vaccination rates by allowing hospitalized Medicare patients to get flu shots without a doctor's order.

For the study, researchers developed a new statistical model to create a more accurate estimate of flu deaths using session," he said.

Many school districts across the state are pushing for a change in the school finance laws. The present system takes money from wealthier school districts and gives it to the poorer districts.

One of every four school districts in the state has hit a legal limit on its property-tax rate, at $1.50 for every $100 in property value.

Costs of social services in Texas can be handled by better management, he said.

"We can be more creative in managing the growth of the program," said Duncan.

He said Texas had to approve an additional $2 billion to keep the Medicaid and CHIPS program "floating" because of the federal requirements.

Duncan said 80 percent of the health claims in the two state-furnished health care programs come from 20 percent of the people who are insured.

"We need to get better management of the programs to see costs go down," he said.

He added that there are several environmental issues coming before the legislature. "But I don't know how we will fund them all," he said.

Water will be a prominent issue of the upcoming 140-day session, he said. "The wisdom of the rule of capture has been raised and probably will be a topic," he said.

"It will be an interesting session," said Duncan.

A maintenance alert had been issued in August for the same model of airplane after attachment bolts for the vertical stabilizer were found loose on a plane during a scheduled inspection.

Maintenance records on the

The crash comes after a year in which there were no deaths aboard a passenger or cargo airliner in the United States. It had been the third time in a decade that a year went by without a fatality on a commercial plane, according to the FAA.

DEAR ABBY

written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanna Phillips

Freeloading Sons Must Begin To Shoulder Their Own Weight

DEAR ABBY: My husband left me two years ago. Since that time I have struggled financially with no help from him. I earn only half of what I need to pay my bills each month. Several times this past year I was sick and missed work with no compensation — so you can imagine the poverty level at which I live. My three children still live with me. They are 17, 19 and 22.

The problem is, my two oldest boys have full-time jobs, yet they refuse to help out financially. I ask only that they contribute $50 a week. I know I am doing them a disservice by allowing them to freeload, because they're not learning to take responsibility. However, I cannot handle the ultimatum of "pay up or get out."

Should my kids choose to leave, I would be sick with worry. I am worried now, too, but not nearly as worried as I'd be if they were to walk out of my life, as my oldest son did when I gave him that ultimatum a year ago. He has only recently started talking to me again, but our relationship is strained. He blames me for the hardship he experienced when he went out on his own.

Is there another way to make my children contribute to our household without taking drastic measures? Please help, Abby. I am too tired to get an additional part-time job in order to keep our heads above water.

AT A LOSS IN RIVERHEAD, N.Y.

DEAR AT A LOSS: Please do not tolerate this situation any longer. You're doing no one a favor — including yourself.

Your boys have a lot of growing up to do. Your request for $50 a week from the older boys is not excessive. They are young men now and should want to ease the burden you're carrying to give them a home.

Call a family meeting. Explain your financial situation in no uncertain terms. Then decide — as a family — what steps can be taken.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 32 years. I love my husband dearly, but last year I had a cancerous breast removed. I am doing well so far. The problem is my husband has not touched me since the surgery.

In the meantime, I ran into an old friend with whom I was very much in love when I was 17. He is also married. We see each other as often as possible — which isn't very often because his job takes him all over the country. I am not sure he would give up his present life, nor am I sure I would give up mine, but my husband is pushing me out the door.

I can't seem to get my high school sweetheart off my mind. He treats me so much better than my husband, who has a bad temper, has hurt me more than once and obviously can't stand to look at me. At my age, should I grab what little joy I have left, or forget it?

HURTING IN THE MIDWEST

DEAR HURTING: Before making any decisions that could affect the rest of your life, please pick up the phone and call the American Cancer Society. It sponsors support groups nationwide for survivors of cancer and their spouses. To find one in your community, call the toll-free number: (800) 227-2345. It is imperative that you and your husband start communicating again. As things stand, you are flirting with disaster — and the one who could be seriously harmed is you.

 Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanna Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

Optimist Club needs basketball coaches

First boys games are set for Jan. 26 week

PAMPA — A shortage of coaches has caused the Pampa Optimist Youth Club to postpone the opening of the boys' basketball season by a week, according to Ron Carr, Optimist second vice-president.

"Boys who are registered through the Internet before Saturday will be guaranteed a spot in our program," Carr said. Registration is being conducted on-line now. Parents may register their boys on the Optimist website: www.Optimist.Pampa.com. A special registration session will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at the Optimist Club, Carr said.

Tryouts will be held from 6 to 7 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday next week.

Practice will probably begin on Jan. 20 with the first games now scheduled for the week of Jan. 27, Carr said.

"We will assign boys to teams on a first-come, first-served basis," Carr said.

"If we run out of room, the boys will go on a waiting list. We need at least five or six more coaches if we are going to be able to serve the number of boys who participated last year."

People interested in coaching or refereeing may also sign up on-line or they may contact Carr at 868-5921.

"At our meeting on Tuesday, the coaches decided to limit teams to eight or nine kids so we can get more playing time for the boys," Carr explained. "Each boy will play at least half of each game unless he is being held out for not attending practice or some other disciplinary reason."

The games will consist of eight-minute quarters.

Substitutions may be made in the middle of each quarter in the third-fourth grade league.

Substitutions can be made at any time in the fifth-grade league.

"We have a new gym floor and are really looking forward to a fun season," Carr said. "We are going to bring one or two teams from Miami to play. Our kids are really looking forward to playing."

FOOTBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Tagliabue wants to ensure the officiating breakdown that occurred on the last play of the NFC wild-card game between the New York Giants and the San Francisco 49ers won't happen again.

The NFL commissioner said the league is reviewing the officials' failure to call pass interference on the Niners to see how the penalty was missed.

"What happened at the end, in terms of the breakdown of officiating, was totally unacceptable to us and it shouldn't have happened with the mechanics already in place," Tagliabue said in a radio interview on Sporting News Radio on Tuesday.

"We are going to be thoroughly reviewing how the breakdown occurred," he said.

If a flag had been thrown against the Niners for pass interference, the Giants would have had another chance to attempt a potential game-winning 41-yard field goal. Instead, the clock ran out and San Francisco won 39-38.

The pass interference penalty against Niners defensive end Chike Okefor would have created offsetting penalties — New York was flagged for an illegal man downfield — and given the Giants another chance to kick the field goal.

The Giants, who blew a 24-point lead in the second half, botched the first attempt because of a bad snap. Holder Matt Allen then scrambled out of the pocket and threw a pass to guard Rich Seubert, who was eligible on the play but got pulled down by Okefor.

"I'm sure that everybody feels that there were some breakdowns in that game and I'm sure Steve Mariucci feels that his club broke down in the first half and the Giants didn't perform in the second half like they did in the first and that's part of football," Tagliabue said.

"On the officiating point, it shouldn't have happened and we are reviewing it thoroughly."

Eagles' McNabb will start against Falcons

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Donovan McNabb won't be afraid to scramble in his first game back from a broken ankle.

McNabb will start the Philadelphia Eagles' playoff game against the Atlanta Falcons on Saturday night, his first action in nearly two months. The two-time Pro Bowl quarterback hasn't played since hurting his right ankle against the Arizona Cardinals on Nov. 17.

"According to everyone else, I'm not mobile, I'm not able to move anymore," McNabb said Tuesday. "I'll just let people continue to think that and when the time comes, make sure to showcase that a little. You run a lot faster when you don't want to get hit."

The Eagles were 7-3 with McNabb, who was having the best season of his four-year career. McNabb completed 211 of 361 passes (58 percent) for 2,289 yards, 17 touchdowns and six interceptions in 10 games. He ran for 460 yards and six TDs.

McNabb was injured on the third play of the Eagles' win over Arizona, but stayed in and tied a career-best with four TD passes. And, he didn't scramble once the entire game.

Despite his success staying in the pocket, coach Andy Reid doesn't want McNabb to hesitate to run.

"I want him to execute the offense just like he's been doing over the years, and probably be a little more mobile than he was in the Arizona game and just be Donovan. That's all I need," Reid said.

Without McNabb, Philadelphia went 5-1 behind Koy Detmer and A.J. Feeley, captured its second consecutive NFC East title and earned home-field advantage for the playoffs.

"When Donovan was hurt, I'd be foolish to say we didn't miss Donovan," Reid said. "You're talking about a guy who was right there as the top player in the NFL. To say you don't miss a guy like that is silly. On the other hand, the other guys came in and did a great job. But to have him back, that's a positive."

McNabb practiced for the first time with the team last week, taking all the snaps in practice Thursday and Friday. He was supposed to miss six-to-eight weeks, and it will have been eight since the injury when the Eagles play the Falcons at Veterans Stadium.

Standing on the sideline watching Detmer and Feeley helped McNabb.

"Just putting the ball in different spots and letting the receivers work, Koy definitely did that," McNabb said. "And A.J., to go in and let the running backs work, get it to the receivers and let them work and get the tight ends involved, that's something when you sit back and watch, knowing you're going back in there, you can use it to your advantage."

The Falcons had a mixed reaction when they heard that McNabb will start. Cornerback Ray Buchanan believes McNabb will be limited.

"We'd probably rather see McNabb because he's not as mobile right now," Buchanan said. "I think if we play McNabb, we have a better chance."

Atlanta coach Dan Reeves disagreed, saying, "That's Ray's opinion. That isn't my opinion."

The Falcons have some experience with scrambling quarterbacks. Their own starter, Michael Vick, is one of the best running quarterbacks in the game.

Portis proves point with rookie honor

DENVER (AP) — Clinton Portis felt like he had something to prove after watching five of his former University of Miami teammates — and 46 other players — go before him in last year's NFL draft.

He certainly made himself stand out.

Despite not starting until the fifth game of the season, Portis finished with the league's third-highest rushing total and the second-highest yards per carry by a rookie. On Tuesday, he edged former Miami teammate Jeremy Shockey as The Associated Press NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year, becoming the second Denver player in three years to win the award.

"He's more dangerous when he's scrambling around," free safety Keion Carpenter said. "I think he's at his best when he's scrambling around and he gets guys off their coverages and he hits people deep."

"You can't have a lot of confidence when you see 50 guys go in front of you," Portis said.

Stars enjoy big offensive night

DALLAS (AP) — This is how things are going for the Dallas Stars: On the night when goalie Marty Turco struggles, the team scores its most goals in nearly two years.

Jere Lehtinen recorded his second career hat trick and Darryl Sydor scored twice on the power play, sending the Stars to a 7-4 victory over the Los Angeles Kings on Tuesday night.

The Stars stretched their unbeaten streak to a season-best seven games, regained the NHL point lead from idle Ottawa, and improved their Pacific Division lead to 16, easily the largest in the league.

And it could get bigger. This game opened a stretch in which Dallas plays 14 of 18 games at home — and the Stars are 13-1-3-1 at American Airlines Center.

"The last couple of weeks we've been concentrating on playing like a unit and we want to stay on this roll," Turco said. "It's just a matter of working hard and staying positive."

He came in having allowed only seven goals in his last six games. He got off to a rough start as the Kings bombarded him, scoring when Brad Chartrand redirected a shot just 5:21 in.

Then Dallas came alive. Sydor and Lehtinen scored late in the period, putting the Stars ahead for good. Lehtinen scored twice more during a four-goal second period, which matched Dallas' best of the season.

The Stars had their most goals since beating Anaheim 8-0 on March 21, 2001.

"It was a special night," said Lehtinen, who upped his goal total to 18. "Every guy had a good jump. It was very fun out there."

With five wins and two ties in their last seven games, the Stars have given first-year coach Dave Tippett a chance to lead the Western Conference in the All-Star game.

Price is right for Oklahoma in victory over Connecticut

By The Associated Press

Oklahoma's biggest win of the season was also Connecticut's first loss.

Hollis Price scored a career-high 33 points and carried the ninth-ranked Sooners to a 73-63 victory over the third-ranked Huskies on Tuesday night.

The senior guard was 10-of-10 from the free-throw line in the final minutes and stepped in to run the offense when point guard Quannas White went down with a sprained knee midway through the first half.

He also outplayed Connecticut's sophomore star Ben Gordon, helping to hold him to 12 points, 10 below his average, on 5-for-18 shooting.

"It was one of those nights where everything that's happening for you is right on time," Price said. "All the guys just did a great job of getting me the ball."

The Sooners won their 30th straight home game, the second-longest streak in the nation behind Brigham Young's 42, and the Huskies' loss leaves No. 1 Duke and No. 17 Wake Forest as the only unbeaten teams in Division I.

In other games involving ranked teams, it was: No. 11 Florida 74, No. 7 Mississippi State 66; No. 10 Illinois 76, Minnesota 70; No. 13 Missouri 88, Centenary 58; No. 17 Wake Forest 98, Elon 56; Richmond 67, No. 21 Xavier 59; and No. 24 Marquette 60, Saint Louis 54.

Connecticut, which lost 69-67 to Oklahoma last season, came in leading the nation by averaging 90.1 points. The Sooners were able to hold down the Huskies by taking Gordon out of his game.

"Our goal with Gordon tonight was to make him drive," Oklahoma coach Kelvin Sampson said. "That was the key, making Gordon drive the ball, not giving him the 3-point shot."

Gordon, shooting 50 percent from 3-point range, was 2-of-7 from behind the arc. He got several good looks in close in the first half, but missed most of them and Oklahoma took a 20-7 lead and led by 13 at halftime.

Price had three field goals in the opening 4:13 of the second half, including a 3-pointer that gave the Sooners their biggest lead at 51-31. His short jumper off a turnover made it 53-35 with 13:33 left. The Huskies then went on an 11-0 run, but never got closer than five as Price was perfect from the line.

"What I really liked about Price is early, he didn't look for his shot. He looked for his teammates, which I reminded some of our kids of," Huskies coach Jim Calhoun said. "When we did a better job on (guard Ebi) Ere, he took over. He certainly looked like a first-team All-American tonight."

Tony Robertson had 16 points and Emeke Okafor had 15 points and 10 rebounds for the Huskies, who were playing just their second road game.

White left at the 11:22 mark of the first half after banging his left knee. He didn't return until 3:41 left, and promptly hit two free throws to give Oklahoma a 59-52 lead.

"I knew he was a tough guy who was going to try to come back," Price said of White. "That's what he did. He knocked down those two free throws, which we needed."

No. 11 Florida 74, No. 7 Mississippi St. 66

Justin Hamilton scored a season-high 22 points and fellow seniors Matt Bonner and Brett Nelson made key plays in the second half to lead the Gators (12-2) to their eighth straight win in the Southeastern Conference opener for both teams.

Bonner had all but two of his 16 points in the second half, and Nelson had all eight of his after halftime for the visitors.

Mario Austin had 22 points and 16 rebounds for the Bulldogs (10-2), who had their 10-game winning streak snapped.

No. 10 Illinois 76, Minnesota 70

Brian Cook scored 25 points and Sean Harrington added 22 for the visiting Illini (11-1), who beat Minnesota for the ninth straight time.

Michael Bauer had 17 points for the Golden Gophers (8-4), who were held to 31 percent shooting (18-for-59) in the Big Ten opener for both teams.

No. 13 Missouri 88, Centenary 58

Rickey Paulding scored 21 points to lead the Tigers (9-1), who shot 51 percent in the easy home win.

Aaron Moseley had 13 points for the Gents (5-9), who closed a winless five-game road trip by being outbounded 57-22.

No. 17 Wake Forest 98, Elon 56

Josh Howard scored 18 points and Eric Williams added 15 as the Demon Deacons (10-0) won in their last game before playing at top-ranked Duke on Sunday.

Sean Newton had 11 points for visiting Elon (4-7), which lost to Wake Forest for the 19th straight time.

Soccer practice

Rockets tame Timberwolves, 94-86

HOUSTON (AP) — Maurice Taylor can usually tell what kind of game he'll have by how he performs at the morning shootaround.

He felt great on Tuesday morning. Taylor scored a season-high 18 points to help the Houston Rockets beat the Minnesota Timberwolves 94-86 later that night.

Taylor missed all of last season with surgery on his right Achilles' tendon that has been slow to heal. But he scored six points during a 19-0 run in the second quarter and added seven in the final 2:03 to help hold off a late Minnesota rally.

"That's Mo right there," Houston coach Rudy Tomjanovich said. "He had a great game. He hit the big shots in the middle of their comeback. That's what he gave us a couple of years ago."

Taylor knows early how much the foot injury will affect him — at the shootarounds. "If it feels good then, I'll have a good game," Taylor said. "It's coming around."

Kevin Garnett scored 25 points and had 16 rebounds, but the Rockets still felt they played good defense on him and that Garnett had scored most of his points off rebounds. Garnett shot only 6-of-18 from the field.

"We kept them from getting the ball to him a lot," Taylor said. "They're not as comfortable as a team when they can't do that. When he gets the shots, they get into a comfort zone that is unbelievable."

Tomjanovich added: "He can almost will them back into a game. But basically, I'll take that defense on him any time. Our guys did a great job of fronting him."

"People say, 'He's so big, why would you front him?' But it takes him out of his rhythm. When he catches the ball in rhythm, he just shoots over people."

Steve Francis added 14 points, 11 assists and seven rebounds before fouling out for the first time this season with 3:34 to play.

Murray, Carter elected to Baseball Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Gary Carter could hardly contain himself, as always. Hearing that he'd finally made the Hall of Fame, he shouted and punched the air.

"I got overly excited and screamed," he said Tuesday. "Now we can do a little celebrating." Eddie Murray's reaction was much more muted after becoming just the 38th player to be elected in his first year of eligibility.

The steady, silent first baseman of the Baltimore Orioles was the only switch-hitter with 500 home runs and 3,000 hits. But he could not enjoy the moment — later in the day, he was to attend the funeral of his sister, who died Jan. 2 at 38.

"Unfortunately, I cannot speak with you today because of the passing of my younger sister, Tanja, after her long-fought battle with kidney disease," Murray said in a statement from Southern California. "Although I dedicated my professional career to the game, I have dedicated my life to my family."

"The elation I feel by being recognized for my achievements on the field is overshadowed by the anguish of losing someone so dear to me."

Murray easily exceeded the 75 percent necessary for election, being chosen on 85 percent of the ballots (423 of 496).

Carter finally made it on his sixth try. An 11-time All-Star catcher with Montreal and the New York Mets, he might become the first player inducted with an Expos cap on his plaque.

Carter got in with 78 percent, getting 387 votes when it took 372 to make it. He fell 11 votes short last year at 72.7 percent.

Murray and Carter played together for Los Angeles in 1991. They became the sixth set of teammates to be elected together; Minnesota's Kirby Puckett and Dave Winfield made it in 2001.

No one else came close in voting by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Carry-over candidates Bruce Sutter, Jim Rice and Andre Dawson were right around 50 percent, and first-timers Ryne Sandberg and Lee Smith didn't even reach that mark. Darryl Kile, the St. Louis pitcher who died last season, got token support.

Pete Rose, ineligible for the ballot because he's on baseball's permanently banned list, got 18 write-in votes — the same as last year. Rose and commissioner Bud Selig's aides have been negotiating terms of a possible reinstatement for the career hits leader.

The Veterans Committee, which is considering Gil Hodges, Roger Maris and many others, will announce its voting results Feb. 26.

Induction ceremonies will be July 27 in Cooperstown, N.Y. Murray and Carter bring the Hall's total to 256 members.

Carter's father, Jim, turns 85 three weeks before the festivities.

"He was beyond words," said Carter, the 13th catcher to make the Hall. "I know how much it means to him."

Murray, the Cleveland Indians' hitting coach, was an eight-time All-Star and finished with 504 homers and 3,255 hits in 21 seasons. Hank Aaron and Willie Mays are the only other players in the 500-3,000 club.

He hit 19 career grand slams, second in major league history to Lou Gehrig's 23, and played a record 2,413 games at first base. Murray batted .287 overall.

Murray was never popular with media members, some of whom who did the Hall voting.

"He didn't want all the accolades," Carter said. "He just wanted to go about his business."

But there was no mistaking how much he meant to his teammates. When Cal Ripken broke Lou Gehrig's consecutive-games streak, he singled out a very few people to thank, and Murray was one of them.

"Eddie was not only a great teammate, but he was a great friend as well," Ripken said in a statement. "When I first came to the big leagues, he really helped me out and showed me the way."

"It makes me sad to see how Eddie is misunderstood by some of the fans and members of the media. The Eddie that I know always put his team ahead of everything else and went about his business in a manner that all players should follow."

Hall of Fame pitcher Jim Palmer, who played with Murray for eight years in Baltimore, echoed those sentiments.

"He was a private guy. He didn't wear his emotions on his sleeve," Palmer said. "If people got to know and see the Eddie Murray that I knew, they'd understand he was a terrific guy."

Palmer was among several players who called Carter earlier in the day to wish him good luck. Carter found out his wait was over after finishing a round of golf with friends, including former big leaguer Tommy Hutton.

"Even though the six years seemed long, they shortened it up by the call today," Carter said. "It was like all the other years were blended in and forgotten."

Carter played his first 11 years with the Expos, a team whose future is in doubt. He later helped the Mets win the 1986 title.

Though players can express a preference as to which cap will appear on their Cooperstown plaque, the final choice rests with the Hall of Fame.

"Maybe they might wind up splitting the hat," Carter said from Palm Beach Gardens, Fla.

Carter, a three-time Gold Glove winner, hit .262 with 324 homers and 1,225 RBIs in 19 seasons. He holds the major league record for putouts by a catcher and played an NL-record 2,056 games at the position.

His average is among the lowest among Hall members — Reggie Jackson, Ozzie Smith and Luis Aparicio also hit .262, and only Rabbit Maraville (.258), Harmon Killebrew (.256) and Ray Schalk (.253) were lower.

Sandberg got 49.2 percent (244 votes). A 10-time All-Star second baseman for the Chicago Cubs, he holds the record for most homers as a second baseman (277) and highest fielding percentage at the position (.989).

"I have to remember struggling through the minor leagues and struggling that first year as a rookie," he said. "I just have to keep things in perspective, that it's just great to be considered."
