North Texas will be calm, clear and chilly today, with highs in the 40s. Highs Saturday will range from the mid 40s in the northeast to mid 50s in the southwest. Sunday's highs will warm another 10 degrees over the region, and Monday's highs will be slightly warmer than Sunday. Skies will be mostly clear all weekend, with no precipitation forecast.

Texas Association of Business under scrutiny

AUSTIN (AP) — The Travis County district attorney is investigating which corporations financed a $2 million advertising campaign to influence 24 hotly contested legislative elections in November.

The prosecutor also wants to know whether the Texas Association of Business illegally coordinated the efforts with Republican campaigns.

District Attorney Ronnie Earle's office on Thursday issued three grand jury subpoenas seeking records related to the advertising blitz.

The subpoenas request communications between the business group, its corporate donors and the legislative campaigns the association endorsed.

The association, which has touted the effectiveness of its ads in last year's campaigns, has declined to disclose the sources of the money for the television commercials and mailings. The group said it was educating voters but not electioneering.

State law prohibits the use of corporate money in political campaigns.

"According to its (own) press release, the Texas Association of Business collected millions of dollars in political contributions from various sources, including corporations, and then used that money to influence elections," said Rosemary Lehmburg, Earle's chief assistant.

The widening investigation now draws the spotlight to the association's corporate members and to the political campaigns set up to help elect members of the Legislature.

Andy Taylor, the business group's lawyer, said his clients will cooperate with the investigation.

"We feel confident that after they review the documentation, they will conclude we acted within full compliance of the law and everything was constitutionally protected free speech," Taylor said.

State law prohibits candidates' campaigns from coordinating with outside groups that release issue ads. Taylor said that didn't happen.

The grand jury subpoenas were issued for Association President Bill Hammond; Don Shelton, the group's director of information systems; and Bob Thomas with Thomas Graphics, an Austin company that printed the mail pieces.

The subpoenas require them to provide all records since Nov. 1, 2001, including correspondence, mailing lists, memos, journals, copies of the advertisements and other related information.

Grand jury proceedings are closed. Jurors will weigh all the information to decide whether criminal charges should be pursued.

The subpoenas come in the wake of the business group's Christmas Eve filing in U.S. District Court in Austin.

Economy: Trade deficit swells to $40.1 billion in one month

By JEANNINE AVERSA
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit bulged to a record $40.1 billion in November, reflecting Americans' ravenous appetite for foreign-made goods, especially toys, TVs and clothes.

The Commerce Department reported Friday that the imbalance between what the United States sells abroad and what it imports swelled by 13.9 percent from the October deficit of $35.2 billion.

A second report, from the Federal Reserve, showed that the nation's industrial sector stumbled in December, a victim of the uneven economic recovery.

Production at the nation's factories, mines and utilities dipped by 0.2 percent in December, more than erasing a 0.1 percent gain the previous month, the Federal Reserve reported.

December's performance was weaker than analysts were expecting. They were forecasting a 0.2 percent increase in industrial output.

Factories, which account for the lion's share of overall industrial output tracked by the Fed, saw production drop by 0.2 percent in December. That largely reflecting a sharp decline in the production of automobiles and parts.

Production at utilities fell 1.2 percent, while output at mines went up 1.6 percent.

For all of 2002, industrial production at factories, mines and utilities dipped by 0.6 percent, following a 3.5 percent decline in 2001. That represented the first back-to-back annual declines in industrial output since 1974-1975.

On Wall Street, stocks fell. The Dow Jones industrial average was off 71 points and the Nasdaq index was down 32 in the first half-hour of trading.

On the trade front, November's deficit was bigger than the $36.4 billion imbalance analysts were predicting.

Economists were forecasting a big widening in November's deficit as trade returned to more normal patterns following the resolution of a West Coast dock worker labor dispute last year.

The brief lockout had disrupted shipments in early October before President Bush used federal law to get dock workers back on the job. The dispute had cut into both imports and exports.

In November, both imports and exports rebounded. Imports grew more than three times faster than exports, thus propelling the trade deficit to an all-time monthly high.

"The trade deficit ... in November was simply incredible. No, make that incomprehensible," said economist Joel Naroff of Naroff Economic Advisors. "No matter what, it happened. ... Oh well, I guess we really like foreign products."

To combat the deficit, the Bush administration says the United States should seek to boost American exports by attacking foreign trade barriers, rather than raising barriers to imports coming into the country.

On Wednesday the administration announced it had cleared away the last hurdle to a free trade agreement with Singapore, wrapping up a deal a month after a similar one with Chile.

The administration hopes these agreements, which must be approved by Congress, will serve as a springboard to an even bigger prize, a free trade agreement covering 34 nations in the Western Hemisphere.

In the trade report, imports of goods and service jumped by 4.9 percent to $123.3 billion in November as the U.S. economic recovery help boost consumer demand for foreign-made goods.

Imports of consumer goods rose by $2.7 billion to a new monthly record of $27.8 billion in November.

And, imports of foods, feeds and beverages also reached an all-time monthly high of $4.4 billion in November.

Exports rose 1.1 percent to $83.2 billion in November. Although national economies around the globe are still recovering from a worldwide slump, they are healing more slowly than the United States and that has restrained demand for U.S. products.

Sales of U.S.-made consumer goods to other countries climbed to $7.3 billion in November, the highest level since July 2001.

Exports of cars slipped in November to $6.3 billion. Exports of capital goods also lost ground, declining to $24.5 billion, in November.

The United States' deficit with China widened to $10.5 billion in November, the second highest level on record.

Bush declares college plans discriminate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Policies that give minorities a leg up on white college applicants are unconstitutional discrimination and should be struck down by the Supreme Court, the Bush administration argued as it formally weighed into a politically charged affirmative action case.

In twin filings to the high court late Thursday, President Bush's top Supreme Court lawyer said policies at the University of Michigan and its law school fail the constitutional test of equal protection for all under the law, and ignore race-neutral alternatives that could boost minority presence on campuses.

The admissions policies also cannot be reconciled with previous Supreme Court rulings that severely limit the use of race as a factor in government decisions, Solicitor General Theodore Olson wrote, saying the university's current policy "operates as a disguised racial quota."

"If the university genuinely seeks candidates with diverse experiences and viewpoints, it can focus on numerous race-neutral factors, including a history of overcoming disadvantage, geographic origin, socio-economic status" or other factors, Olson wrote.

The friend-of-the-court filing breaks little legal ground. It restates the constitutional case against quotas, but skirts the larger question of whether race may ever be considered as a factor in government decisions.

Thursday's filings do not go as far as some of Bush's most conservative supporters had hoped. The president is in the position of trying to please both his conservative political base and the Hispanic and black voters the Republican Party hopes to attract.

In announcing Wednesday that his administration would file briefs in the Michigan case on Thursday, Bush said he strongly supported diversity, including racial diversity in higher education. But, he added, "the method used by the University of Michigan to achieve this important goal is fundamentally flawed."

Applicants for Michigan's undergraduate classes are scored by points, with minorities or some poor applicants receiving a boost of 20 points on a scale of 150. At the law school, admissions officers use a looser formula that tries to make sure that each class has a "critical mass" of about 10 percent or 12 percent minority enrollment.

"On its face, the 20-point race-based bonus automatically added to the selection index scores of all preferred minority applicants, without regard to their background, academic performance or life experiences, is plainly unconstitutional," the administration said.

Olson pointed to admissions systems in Texas, Florida and California as alternatives. Those states do not use affirmative action yet have assembled racially diverse student bodies, he said.

The Texas plan, which Bush championed as Texas governor, offers public university admission to the top 10 percent of graduates from each high school. That assured a stream of minority applicants, because many Texas high schools are largely black or Hispanic.

Affirmative action backers say such plans do not work across the board, because not every state or community has majority-black or Hispanic high schools.

Max Factor heir's lawyer says women knew of drugs

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — A defense attorney told jurors the fugitive Max Factor cosmetics heir charged with raping women at his beachfront home didn't secretly administer them a date-rape drug, they took it willingly.

Andrew Luster is charged with slipping gamma hydroxybutyrate, also known as GHB, into the women's drinks, then having sex with them when they were either unconscious or too weakened by the drug to resist. Facing 87 criminal counts, including rape and poisoning, he could be sentenced to life in prison if convicted. The Ventura County Superior Court jury was expected to begin deliberations Friday.

"The evidence is that Andrew Luster always asked whether the women wanted to use GHB, always, because they would say yes, so what's the point of sneaking it in when they readily accepted," defense attorney Roger Jon Diamond said during his closing argument Thursday.

Luster, 39, wasn't in court to hear the argument. He jumped his $1 million bail on Jan 3 and has been declared a fugitive.

On Wednesday, prosecutor Tony Wold told jurors during his closing argument it is obvious Luster is guilty.

"Innocent people don't run," Wold said, standing in front of a poster-sized projection of Luster's face that bore the red words "missing in action."

Luster was arrested after a young woman alleged he gave her GHB in 2000, then had sex with her while she was too weak to resist.

After she contacted authorities, they searched his home and found videotapes that show him having sex with other women who appear to be unconscious.

According to the defense, the women consented to sex and pretended to be asleep while Luster filmed them for his homemade collection of porno movies.

The videotapes were aired for jurors, and one showed a 17-year-old girl snoring on a bed while Luster addressed the camera before having sex with her.

"Some people dream about Christmas, Thanksgiving," he said. "I dream about this. A strawberry blonde, beautiful girl passed out on my bed and basically there for me to do with whatever I chose."

Luster, who lived in the beach-front community of Mussel Shoals, supported himself with a trust fund and real estate investments while pursuing his hobby of surfing.

IRAQ

On Friday, Saddam vowed to beat back any invasion.

"The people of Baghdad have resolved to compel the Mongols of this age to commit suicide on its walls," Saddam said, referring to the United States. "Everyone who tries to climb over its walls ... will fail in his attempt."

He said the Iraqi nation was fully mobilized against the threat of a new conflict and told President Bush to "keep your evil away from the mother of civilization."

"The whole nation will rise in defense of its right to live," Saddam said. "Their (aggressors') arrows will go astray or backfire, God willing."

"Long live Palestine, free and Arab, from the (Mediterranean) sea to the (Jordan) river," Saddam said, in an appeal for Arab support.

Saddam didn't refer to Bush by name but alluded to him as Hologu, the grandson of Genghis Khan, who destroyed Baghdad and killed its ruler in 1258.

Repeated references to Baghdad, rather than Iraq, appeared to be a sign that Saddam plans to rally his troops around the capital for a decisive battle aimed at inflicting as many casualties as possible on U.S. forces.

On Jan. 17, 1991, a U.S.-led coalition launched devastating air attacks against Baghdad and other Iraqi cities, opening Operation Desert Storm, which drove Iraqi invaders out of Kuwait.

Saddam has depicted the events of 1991 as a victory because Iraq stood up to a superpower and his regime survived invasion and subsequent uprisings.

"The scheming of attackers backfired in that aggression, which they are continuing until the present day," Saddam said.

Immediately after the speech, several thousand Iraqis took to the streets of Baghdad to voice their support for the president.

The anniversary did not hinder U.N. weapons inspectors, who pressed on with their search for any clandestine programs to develop banned weapons. Bush has warned that this is Iraq's last chance to give up mass destruction weapons or face war.

The Iraqi government says it no longer has any chemical, biological or nuclear weapons and submitted a 12,000-page declaration to the United Nations last month that it said proved its case.

Blix and ElBaradei say Iraq's declaration is incomplete and fails to support its claims. The two travel to Baghdad for talks Sunday and Monday.

Inspectors visited military industry sites in the Faluga area west of Baghdad, and a farm near Juwesa, southwest of the capital on Friday.

They passed a protest by some 200 members of the Iraqi journalists' union demonstrating outside the U.N. staff's hotel.

Inspectors' spokesman Hiro Ueki said U.N. officials were checking to see whether Iraq had previously notified the United Nations about the existence of the 12 warheads found Thursday.

Blix said Friday he was unsure if the warheads were listed in Iraq's arms declaration. He said he did not think the discovery would lead the United States to attack.

"You better ask Mr. Bush himself. However, what I see from the American reaction is that they too would like to have a little further information about it, and so I'm not so worried," Blix said.

He said the rockets had "no chemical weapons inside them. However, clearly they were designed to carry chemical weapons. I think we should destroy them, that's the rules."

A number of European leaders expressed support for granting the inspectors more time. "It is only wise to agree to this request," Chirac said. "Give them more time to work to bring about a more detailed response."

Italian Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi, on a visit to Croatia, said the inspectors' work "is bearing fruit" and said they should be given "perhaps all of February."

Solana, the EU foreign policy chief, said "we must continue the road with U.N. inspections. Just inspections."

While many European leaders have insisted the Security Council must approve military action, Solana said he felt "it does not require a second decision, but a second debate."

Iraq appeared to be conducting its own diplomacy among fellow Arab nations who are seeking to prevent a war in the Gulf region.

Gen. Ali Hassan al-Majid, a cousin and confidant of Saddam, delivered a letter from the Iraqi leader to Syrian President Bashar Assad in Damascus. Syria's official news agency SANA gave no details about the letter.

Al-Majid is also to visit Lebanon, Jordan and Egypt.

Texas teachers' pension fund hit hard, loses $16.2 billion, auditor's report says

HOUSTON (AP) — The state teachers' pension fund, which an auditor's report says lost $16.2 billion in the value of its stock portfolio over the past two years, faces a potential freeze on cost-of-living increases for retirees the rest of this decade, according to reports.

The report by state Auditor Lawrence Alwin, obtained Thursday by the Houston Chronicle and television station News 8 Austin, also shows that the retired teachers health plan will be insolvent by Aug. 31, 2005, if state lawmakers do not pump an additional $720 million into the Teacher Retirement System of Texas during the next biennium.

The shortage, according to the report, could result in benefit cuts or premium increases for retired teachers.

"We could be looking at a double whammy with (retirement) benefits ... going flatline while they have to increase what they pay in premiums for health care benefits," Richard Kouri of the Texas State Teachers Association told the newspaper in Friday's editions. "That's tough for people on a fixed income."

Funds needed for the retired teacher health care system is not included in the $9.9 billion state budget shortfall predicted Monday by Comptroller Carole Keeton Strayhorn. If lawmakers try to fix the system, the TRS situation could drive the state shortfall up by as much as another $1.2 billion.

The system is paying out more in benefits than it is taking in as contributions. Alwin said financial problems could force a freeze in retired teachers' benefits if contributions are not increased from the state and active educators.

He said the $71.7 billion TRS is actuarially sound now. But lawmakers in 1995 decreased the state contribution to 6 percent of the active teacher payroll — the lowest amount allowed under the Texas Constitution.

The auditor told the Chronicle that benefit payments in 2002 exceeded contributions by $1.6 billion.

Last year, he said, sharp declines in the stock market pushed the TRS market value from $79.4 billion to $71.6 billion. In that year, the TRS reported it had lost $93 million in WorldCom stock and another $30 million with the collapse of Houston-based Enron Corp.

Investment losses totaled $16.2 billion over the past two years.

"While it has not yet categorized the plan as unsound, the system's actuary anticipates that unless the plan's contribution rate and/or investment returns increase, it might not be possible to provide benefit increases within most of the current decade," said Alwin.

The TRS has a million members, both active employees and retirees, with 201,000 receiving retirement benefits and 148,000 covered by the health care plan.

Although the investment decline offset many gains from earlier in the 1990s, TRS Communications Director Howard Goldman noted that the plan's value has grown by $34 billion over the past 10 years.

But even holding the line on benefits for retirees would effectively be a cut because of inflation, said Brock Gregg, with the Association of Texas Professional Educators. He said it took a decade of legislative benefit increases to raise some retired teachers out of poverty.

"They're on a fixed income and have just gotten caught up," said Gregg.

Police: Drugs in tank, but not enough gas

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — A sheriff's deputy who assisted two women and five children in a van after it ran out of gas here found there wasn't enough room in the tank because it was full of marijuana.

Eddy County sheriff's deputy Kelly Calicoat was dispatched to a location near the New Mexico-Texas state line on Wednesday to help a motorist who ran out of gas.

Calicoat arrived to find the women and children had been given some fuel. He decided to follow them to ensure they had enough to reach Carlsbad, Bobby Sullivan of the Pecos Valley Drug Task Force said Thursday.

Calicoat stopped the van after the driver exceeded the posted speed limit.

Calicoat contacted the drug task force after speaking with women and becoming suspicious.

The agents found a concealed compartment in the gas tank containing 72 pounds of marijuana. The also seized $700 in cash.

The compartment significantly reduced the van's fuel capacity, Sullivan said.

Leticia Guadian, 24, and Vanessa Chavez, 22, of Fabens, Texas, were arrested and charged with distribution of marijuana and conspiracy. Both were being held at the Eddy County Detention Center Thursday on $10,000 secured bonds.

Chavez's five children — ranging in age from 18-months to five-years — were kept in police custody until their father arrived to get them.

Sullivan said the investigation continues.

"At this point, we are expanding our investigation into who sent the marijuana and who was going to receive it on the Oklahoma end," Sullivan said.

TAXES

do that without raising new taxes," Perry said Thursday.

Texas, which does not have an income tax or a state property tax, ranks near the bottom, 48th in the nation, in the amount of state taxes paid per capita. The average Texan pays $1,059 in state taxes, compared to $1,515 nationwide.

Most of the state's revenue comes from property taxes — $22.5 billion levied in fiscal year 2001 — and sales taxes, which raised $14.7 billion.

Texas collected $2 billion in franchise taxes, the main business tax.

One way businesses avoid paying the tax is by changing from one type of legal structure to another, such as from a corporation to a partnership, which under state law is not subject to the franchise tax.

Such exemptions cost the state about $79 million in 2001. That is predicted to increase to $143 million by 2003.

The sales tax exemptions on items such as manufacturing materials, medicine, food and fuel were detailed in the report. Some of the items such as fuel are covered by other types of taxes.

The committee did not agree on one recommendation for the Legislature, but instead offered several options.

Among the options was re-evaluating sales taxes, including considering taxing items and services not now taxed.

Not taxing some services, the report states, will cost the state $9.9 billion over the next biennium — the exact amount as the 2004-05 budget shortfall estimated by the comptroller.

If Texas started taxing some services such as doctor's visits, legal services, child care and salon visits, an additional $7 billion in revenue would be collected in fiscal years 2004-05, according to the report.

Proponents of expanding service taxes say it helps spread the tax burden to all Texans and does not put too much of the weight on the poor. Critics say such expansion could hurt business growth and unfairly asks people to pay more for government.

The business property tax penalty bill is HB 395.

VA stops enrolling higher income, lower priority vets for health care

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Affairs Department will suspend enrollment Friday for higher-income vets seeking health care for non-military related ailments ranging from routine care to heart disease and diabetes.

The suspension, scheduled to last through 2003, goes against VA policy set in 1996 when Congress ordered the agency to open health care to nearly all veterans. The change is expected to affect about 164,000 veterans.

The chairman of the House Veterans Affairs Committee, Rep. Chris Smith, R-N.J., said the decision was disappointing but "underscores the need to develop long-term solutions to VA's health care funding problems."

In an interview with The Associated Press, VA Secretary Anthony Principi said the agency has been struggling to provide adequate health care to a rapidly rising number of veterans. The VA's patient population ballooned from 2.9 million in 1996 to 6.8 million today, Principi said.

"People might say, 'Well Mr. Secretary, what kind of message does this send to people who may deploy to the Persian Gulf?'" Principi said.

"I have a son in the Gulf, who may deploy to Iraq, who may fight a war if the president chooses. I think it sends a positive message that the VA is there for those who are disabled in uniform. The VA is there for men and women who come back and within the first two years need VA health care."

Veterans are eligible for benefits beyond two years after service, but Principi said the agency's priority should be those in most need of care, such as recent combat veterans.

Ronald Conley, American Legion national commander, agreed with Principi that Congress has not provided the agency enough money to fulfill its mandate to provide care to nearly all veterans.

"The Congress of the United States has to properly fund it and this is the bottom line. And the president has to go to Congress and tell them they have to fund it," Conley said.

Principi said he expects President Bush to propose a 7.7 percent increase in the VA's health care budget for 2004, but he said it would not be enough.

The enrollment suspension applies to those considered the lowest priority for benefits, veterans with the highest incomes and no military service-related health problems, known as Category 8 veterans.

How much a veteran can earn to be considered Category 8 depends on where the veteran lives and the size of the household. For instance, unmarried veterans making more than $38,100 in Atlanta or more than $29,200 in New Bedford, Mass., would be considered Category 8 veterans.

The 6.8 million veterans already enrolled in the VA, including 1.4 million Category 8 veterans, would not be affected by Principi's decision. The VA estimates that about 164,000 Category 8 veterans would have enrolled this year.

About 18.2 million U.S. veterans do not use VA health care.

Principi, who is mandated by law to review enrollments every year, had warned Congress last session that he might be forced to limit enrollments if lawmakers did not approve a proposed $1,500 deductible for higher-income veterans.

Congress balked at the proposal, which was heavily criticized by some veterans groups.

Principi said the VA needs the enrollment "time out" to get a handle on its current workload and reduce waiting times that can be as long as six months.

Sen. John Rockefeller, the outgoing Democratic chairman of Senate Veterans Affairs committee, said "blocking health care for our nation's veterans is not the answer. The answer is providing the necessary funding for VA, and the administration is going to have to make that a priority."

Monks resist eviction from holy mount

THESSALONIKI, Greece (AP) — Power and water have been cut, authorities have halted supplies of food and medicine, and a deadline for forcible eviction looms.

For now, though, more than 100 Greek Orthodox monks are resisting efforts to force them from their 1,000-year-old monastery on a remote peninsula in the Aegean Sea as punishment for their bitter opposition to reconciliation between orthodox Christians and the Roman Catholic church.

Holding up a knotted rope rosary, the monastery's abbot, who goes by the name Methodius, said the monks of the Esphigmenou Monastery would challenge the eviction order in Greece's highest administrative court.

Methodius also vowed to appeal to a higher authority.

"We will fight with our prayer beads," he told a news conference Thursday in Thessaloniki, a port city about 80 miles west of Mount Athos, a peninsula home to some two dozen monasteries.

The monks were ordered expelled for rejecting the authority of Eastern Orthodox leadership. Members of the monastery condemned church leaders for holding talks with Roman Catholics as part of a long-running effort to reconcile the two main branches of Christianity.

Mount Athos, known as the Holy Mountain, is considered a spiritual cradle of Orthodox Christianity, and its conservative monks are widely perceived as being guardians of the faith.

The inhabitants of Esphigmenou are considered the most doctrinal of all the 2,000 or so monks living on Athos.

For decades, the monks have shown their opposition to any reconciliation with Catholics by adorning their monastery with black flags and a giant banner reading "Orthodoxy or death." They have referred to the pope as a heretic.

Orthodox Christian Churches and the Roman Catholic Church have been separated since the Great Schism of 1054 in a dispute over papal authority and interpretation of their creed.

Ecumenical Patriarch Bartholomew, spiritual leader of the world's Orthodox Christians, on Dec. 14 declared the ultra-conservative monks at Esphigmenou as "schismatic." That decision allowed Mount Athos' Greek government administrator to order their forcible eviction by Jan. 28.

It would be the largest-ever known eviction of monks from Mount Athos since the community was founded more than 1,000 years ago. The last eviction, for the same reasons, took place a decade ago and involved five monks living in an isolated hermitage.

Since the eviction order was issued on Dec. 14, authorities have cut electricity to the monastery and prevented the supply of food, heating oil and medical supplies, Methodius said.

A legal adviser to the monks, Ifigenia Kamtsidou, said the men were not given an opportunity to respond to the charges before the eviction order was issued.

Mexican officials probe 27 infant mortalities

COMITAN, Mexico (AP) — Forensic experts have begun exhuming the bodies of 27 infants in an investigation into unusually high death rates for newborns at a hospital in southern Mexico.

With the parents of the newborns closely monitoring their progress, the experts began their grim task Thursday by removing the body of a week-old infant, Jose Guadalupe Ortega, from his grave.

The newborn's mother, Alicia Anzures Ortega, said she and other parents hope the investigation will provide answers about the deaths, which many suspect were caused by malpractice and unsanitary conditions at the hospital in the southern state of Chiapas.

"We mothers demand that they tell us what our children really died of, and that they punish those responsible," Ortega said.

Forensic experts from the federal justice department took tissue samples from the body of Jose and a baby girl whose body was also exhumed, but refused to comment on the investigation.

On Tuesday, Chiapas officials fired the top two officials at the Regional Hospital in Comitán, an impoverished rural area about 30 miles northwest of the Guatemalan border, after 25 infants died during the month of December. Authorities are investigating and have not ruled out criminal charges.

A team of investigators sent by the federal Health Department and by the Pan-American Health Organization said on Sunday that most of the deaths were due to an unusual number of premature births and a lack of prenatal care.

SE Texas sees church growth

By ANDREA WRIGHT
BEAUMONT ENTERPRISE

BEAUMONT — Church leaders were heartened by the upsurge of church attendance after the tragedy of Sept. 11, 2001 — but the increase didn't last long.

All across America, churches are scrambling to come up with new ideas for attracting members who will come for more than a Christmas or Easter drop in. Major studies show a whole lot of shaking going on, but growth is spotty.

Flying in the face of statistics that show Methodists and Presbyterians have been and continue losing membership, Marty Vershel, pastor of Wesley United Methodist Church says that "Here in Beaumont, we've seen incredible growth in the last four or five years. We've added nearly 600 members."

That's more than many churches of any denomination would see as a total number, on the roles, and seldom in the pews.

And, contrary to findings by U.S. Congregations, a national research group, that a mere 7 percent of new members are from the unchurched, Vershel says that's where United Methodist is getting most of its newcomers.

Ken Sanchagrin with the Glenmary Research Center of Nashville, Tenn., says while it's true that Presbyterians have been declining in numbers "for centuries," that since their split in the 1970s the Presbyterian Church of America branch is growing.

"That's the conservative branch, primarily in the South, but spreading out to different parts of the country," Sanchagrin said. "There certainly has been nationwide a growth since the mid to late seventies of both conservative politics and conservative Christian religion."

Denominations tend to cluster regionally, he said, and the Presbyterian USA branch is still the largest of the two. Considered as moderate to liberal, its membership is stronger in the north.

"I'm concerned about the decline denominationally but neither shocked nor afraid of it," said Harlan Merriam, senior pastor for 16 years at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. "I think it's an eye opener for us."

Churches are taking different approaches to filling the pews on Sunday, but four stand out: attracting former members into returning; reaching the unchurched; working from within to develop new directions (in services, presentation, music); and targeting youth, where attendance is even more down than years gone by.

"All four are on our radar and being worked," Merriam said. "All four are a challenge, for any church or denomination, and the issue is probably as complex as all of them."

River of Life to host revival

SKELLYTOWN - River of Life Assembly of God, 411 Chamberlain, is hosting the Rev. Nancy James, in a four-day revival beginning Sunday, Jan. 26.

Services are set for 10 a.m. and 6 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 26, and 7 p.m., nightly Jan. 27 through Jan. 29.

Rev. James survived a tragic accident involving hundreds when a bridge collapsed inside a hotel. Since then she has gone on to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ. This is the eighth time she has preached in Skellytown.

River of Life Assembly of God's pastor, Danny Trussell, invites the public to hear James during the four-day event. To get to the church, go to Taylor Convenience store, turn west on 5th Street, and go to Chamberlain Street.

For more information, call 848-2939.

Here's to the little-known Christian

Some people ride the course of history with dramatic and colorful lives, but there are others who change its direction through quiet, yet powerful, influences. Felix Kersten was such a man. Here's his story.

During those blood-filled days between 1940 and 1945 when names like Hitler, Himmler, and Goering struck terror in the hearts of millions, Dr. Felix Kersten rescued thousands from certain death at the hands of the Nazis. He was a personal physician and manual therapist to Henrich Himmler, and in this position he had an amazing power over Nazi Germany's number two man.

Dr. Kersten used his influence to keep many from becoming victims of the wanton killers who led Germany.

Minister's Musings

LELAND LEWIS
FIRST ASSEMBLY OF GOD

Week by week, Kersten snatched Himmler's victims from concentration camps and gas chambers. The world Jewish Council credits him with saving 60,000 Jewish people. The number of Dutch, Poles, Finns, and Norwegians he saved is impossible to estimate.

You can read his amazing story in the book, "The Man with the Miraculous Hands." The influence of this little-known and quiet man changed the course of destiny for many - maybe the whole world!

All of us recognize the impact of famous and influential people, but few of us understand the dynamics of quiet lives hidden from headlines and the bright lights of publicity.

Paul, the apostle, is familiar to every Christian. Yet, this great man frankly admits his life was influenced and refreshed and possibly changed by a little-known Christian with the strange-sounding name of Onesimus.

When the great apostle wrote his last letter, 2 Timothy, he spoke with warmth of Onesimus, because of his courage, faithfulness, and love; others had deserted Paul during this time of crisis. Onesimus, on the other hand, had sought him out and encouraged him. It might have been this very influence that helped Paul to go to his death unafraid and with the assurance that he had fought a good fight. Read 2 Timothy 1:16-18 for details.

Most of us will not have a great reputation or become well-known; yet all of us can be persons of compassion, ready to help others. So if you can't be another Paul, how about an Onesimus or a Felix Kersten?

DEAR ABBY

written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanna Phillips

Mom and Daughter's Distance Is More Than Matter of Miles

DEAR ABBY: I am 39 and never had a good relationship with my mother. I have known all my life that I am her least favorite of my siblings. Until recently, I accepted it.

The last time I visited Mom and Dad, I brought my children. Mother was so rude and mean to them that my 5-year-old refused to go into her house. We ended up staying at my grandmother's. My 5-year-old asked me why his grandma doesn't love him like she does his cousin. I wasn't sure how to answer.

When we returned home I wrote Mother a letter telling her exactly how I feel, and why. I said she could treat me as she pleased, but not to take it out on my children. I told her if she ever found it in her heart to treat us with the love and respect we deserve, she knows how to reach me.

A few months later, my father had open heart surgery. Mother never called to let me know. It really hurt. I have called and left several messages on their answering machine without a return call. Should I give up and accept the fact that my parents gave me life, but do not want me in their lives? Or should I keep trying? It has been eight months since we last spoke. We live 1,500 miles apart, and I know long-distance relationships are difficult, but I am their daughter.

DISTRAUGHT IN FLORIDA

DEAR DISTRAUGHT: The physical distance between you and your mother is not the problem. The "distance" between you was created long ago, and unless your mother is willing to cooperate, I see no reason to continue courting rejection.

Talk to your siblings and ask them to keep you informed about what's going on with your parents. If you expect nothing, you can't be hurt. You are a parent now, and it is your duty to protect and nurture your children. Please do not feel guilty. Perhaps through neighbors and friends you can "adopt" some loving grandparent substitutes who are closer to home. It might be a healthier solution for all concerned.

DEAR ABBY: Our precious mother passed away in 1983 and left me her mink stole. I didn't think I'd ever wear it, so I gave it to my older sister. This year for Christmas, my sister gave me the delightful gift of a teddy bear made from Mom's stole!

It arrived in a large box filled with packing peanuts. At the bottom of the box was a very worn penny. The date on it was 1997, the same year our brother passed away after a brief illness.

A few months before his death, he and his high school sweetheart had married after 40 years of marriage to other mates. They were like teenagers, so in love and so happy. Needless to say, his death was devastating. My sister swears she didn't put the penny in the box.

I can usually find a logical explanation for strange phenomena, but this really touched me. My sister and I believe the penny symbolizes a link between Mom and our brother, who are now with Dad — and together they sent us this "article of faith." I hope you'll print this, Abby. So many people need reassurance to help them through. I did, and now my faith has been restored.

LINDA L. JOHNSON, MIDLOTHIAN, VA.

DEAR LINDA: I'm not sure which I find more impressive — your finding the penny or your sister having found such a creative way to recycle the mink!

SPORTS

Titans: From Super Snub to Super Bowl?

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP) — Nobody in the AFC won more games than the Tennessee Titans this season. Nobody in the NFL has won more than Tennessee over the last four.

But nobody is sending fewer players to the Pro Bowl when the season is over. Why? Because you can't get any lower than zero.

Of course, the Titans are lucky. They still have a chance to show the voters how wrong they were. If they win Sunday against the Oakland Raiders in the AFC title game, they'll turn their Super Snub into a trip to the Super Bowl.

"We took it for what it was worth, and moved on," Titans running back Eddie George said of the snub. "We know we've got some great players here."

The list starts with Steve McNair.

With his career-high 3,387 yards and 22 touchdowns, McNair would have fit in well at the Pro Bowl. He finished third in the MVP voting. Yet he got beat out by Drew Bledsoe, Peyton Manning and, of course, league MVP Rich Gannon of the Oakland Raiders, who play Tennessee on Sunday in the AFC title game.

With 1,165 yards, George certainly wouldn't have shamed himself by going. But Priest Holmes, LaDanian Tomlinson and Ricky Williams all had better stats.

Keith Bulluck, Fred Miller, Frank Wycheck.

All had excellent seasons, as well, but found themselves part of one of the more surprising Pro Bowl snubs in NFL history. Heck, the expansion Houston Texans sent two guys and, yes, even the 2-14 Cincinnati Bengals will be sending one player, fullback Lorenzo Neal, to Hawaii.

The Titans? They'll be sitting at home.

"I think it's a slap in the face," McNair said.

When the news had just been delivered, Tennessee took it out on Jacksonville (with one Pro Bowl player) with a 28-10 victory, one of its most thorough performances of the season. The Titans wrapped up the AFC South title that day, as well.

"Fol this team to be one of the hottest teams in the NFL, and for no one to go to represent Tennessee in Honolulu is absurd," Bulluck said after that game. "People are just going to have to feel the wrath."

While the Titans keep searching for respect, the Raiders are dealing with almost the opposite emotion. They practically have too many stars to NOT make the Super Bowl.

Joining Gannon in Hawaii will be Jerry Rice, Lincoln

Kennedy and Rod Woodson. Gannon led the league with 4,689 yards passing. Kennedy is one of the best tackles in the game. The other two will be in the Hall of Fame when they retire.

With so much talent come expectations and the pressure to perform.

Asked a question with the words "Super Bowl" in it Thursday, Kennedy interrupted the reporter.

"You're getting way too far ahead now," he said. "I've got other concerns on my mind right now."

As he should.

The Titans are 11-1 since Oct. 13 and are turning into much more than the ball-control and field-position team they were during their first Super Bowl run in 1999.

Last week, Tennessee went to a no-back offense and McNair threw for 334 yards in a 34-31 playoff win over Pittsburgh. He ran the same offense in a rally from 12 points down against the Giants last month.

On defense, the Titans have proven they're much more than just Jevon Kearse, the fourth-year defensive end who had 14.5 sacks his rookie season when the Titans went to the Super Bowl.

"I've got concerns across the board about him," Kennedy said. "Part of it is because we don't have a lot of film on him."

BOOKER — White Deer came from behind to defeat Booker 39-35 in District 1-1A boys' basketball game earlier this week.

Brian Knocke paced the Bucks with 18 points.

White Deer rallied from an 11-point deficit (33-22) to pull out the victory.

Chase Reagan led Booker with 12 points.

Ashley Davis scored 18 points to lead White Deer by Booker 50-41 in the girls' contest.

TENNIS

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Andre Agassi bunted, blocked and even hit baseline winners off his shoelaces to fend off Nicolas Escude in the third round of the Australian Open.

Escude attacked Agassi's serve and rushed to the net 65 times. The Frenchman hit 60 winners and had 20 breakpoint chances, but still ended up falling 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 on Friday.

"My experience in these Grand Slam tournaments is you need to play well at the right time," said Agassi, a three-time Australian Open winner. "Today was a day that was pretty dangerous for me. ... It was a question of playing the big points well."

"I thought Nicolas was hitting the ball really well, timing it superbly on the returns, putting me under a lot of pressure. So it's good to get through."

The second-seeded Agassi, riding a 17-match winning streak in the event, will face Argentina's Guillermo Coria in the fourth round. Coria beat Finland's Jarkko Nieminen 7-5, 6-2, 6-2.

Venus Williams and Lindsay Davenport advanced to the fourth round of the women's event, with Williams beating Germany's Anca Barna 6-1, 6-4, and Davenport, the 2000 winner, routing No. 24 Tatiana

2002 Harvesters honored at football banquet

PAMPA — Senior middle linebacker Zack Cobb was named the Fighting Heart award winner Wednesday night during the Pampa football banquet in M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Cobb led the Harvesters in tackles this season with 111 solos and 101 assists.

He also had 25 tackles for losses, 4 sacks, 3 quarterback hurries, 7 caused fumbles, 3 fumble recoveries, 2 interceptions and 1 blocked kick.

The Fighting Heart award goes annually to the player who most exemplifies unselfish devotion to the team.

"Zack is an excellent player and an excellent person. It was very gratifying to present him with this year's award," said Pampa head coach Dennis Cavalier.

Other award recipients were strongside linebacker Curtis Pritchett (Kevin McKinney Memorial), cornerback Derrick Williams (Vance Bruce Memorial), offensive guard Aaron Burrows (Nick Hopkins Memorial) and free safety Tristan Brown (GT-El Norma).

KGRO radio's broadcasting crew of Donnie Hooper, Sam White and Ray Boring were on hand to present some new awards.

The Fourth and One award presented by Hooper went to center Brandon McElroy, and the Surprise Player award presented by White went to tight end Ryan Zemanek.

Also, Boring presented the One Heartbeat award to varsity sophomores Brittin East, Seth Foster and Tyrel Bolin in behalf of the 2002 team.

This season's seniors included Trey Curtis, Tristan Brown, Derrick Williams, Jered Snelgrooves, John Braddock, Curtis Pritchett, Robson Rodrigues, Joel Botello, Jordan Klaus, Landon Baker, Carlos Solis, Zack Cobb, Matt Murray, Aaron Burrows, Brandon McElroy, Michael McCormick, Brian Watts, James Lee, Ryan Zemanek and Tommy Abernathy. Juniors were Andrew Curtis, Jesse Tarango, Johnny Moore, Dannie Meza, Joe Merez, Max Vinson, Mac Smith, Derek Lewis, Paul Grimes, Jerrod Carruth, Alan Curry, Greg Wiley, Marcos DeLeon and Sergio Alva.

The 2002 season also marked a couple of milestones in Cavalier's career. He posted his 100th win at PHS with Pampa's 23-16 overtime victory over Amarillo High, and his 200th career win came in Pampa's 27-7 decision against El Paso Riverside in the Area playoffs.

Eagles looking to defend their home turf

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Minutes after St. Louis beat Philadelphia last year in the NFC title game, Eagles coach Andy Reid gathered his team and delivered a simple message: "Next year, home field."

The Eagles went out and fulfilled Reid's goal, finishing 12-4 and securing home-field advantage throughout the NFC playoffs. Then, they beat Atlanta 20-6 in a divisional playoff last week. Now, they're set to defend their home turf against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers today for the right to go to the Super Bowl.

How important is it to have the game at Veterans Stadium? Consider, the home team has won this game nine of the last 13 years.

"We lost to a very good team," defensive tackle Corey Simon said of last season's 29-24 loss to the Rams. "It made this team stronger. It taught us about ourselves and what we needed to do in the offseason to go out there and try to get home-field advantage."

"If we had been playing in front of a crowd like the Vet crowd, we would have been in a better position to win. Now we're in a position we want to be in. We've pretty much accomplished all the goals we set earlier in the season, there's only a few more left and this is one of them."

The Eagles were 7-1 at home this year, losing only to Indianapolis in November. They're 7-3 in playoff games at the Vet, including four consecutive wins. This will be the last game ever at the Vet, known for its boorish fans and hard turf. The Eagles move into the new Lincoln Financial Field in August.

Tampa has lost three in a row at the Vet, including first-round playoff games the last two years. But the Bucs made it clear this week that they aren't intimidated by the Philly crowd, or playing in the "Concrete Jungle."

"I don't really care if it's the Vet or the parking lot outside, the bottom line is getting to the Super Bowl," wide receiver Keyshawn Johnson said. "I don't think we're sitting around concerning ourselves with the football atmosphere in Philadelphia."

The championship-starved fans in Philly — this city hasn't celebrated a championship since the 76ers won the NBA title in 1983 — haven't witnessed a game of this magnitude since Game 5 of the 1993 World Series between the Phillies and Toronto.

The Eagles hosted just one other NFC championship game, beating Dallas 20-7 in 1981. The players remember how difficult it was facing the Rams in the Edward Jones Dome last season, and they expect it to be even louder at the Vet this week.

"That 12th man is going to be tremendous," cornerback Troy Vincent said. "It's going to be loud like last week. We expect that to magnify about 10 times. It's going to be crazy. We need it to be that way. We need it to be a hostile crowd like it always is."

Another factor in the Eagles' favor is Tampa's record in cold weather. The Bucs are 1-21 in temperatures below 40, and 0-9 when the mercury dips below 30.

Forecasts call for it to be in the 20s on Sunday, with a chance for snow.

Tressel has another win

HOUSTON (AP) — Ohio State coach Jim Tressel snapped another victory from Miami coach Larry Coker by winning the Bear Bryant Award as the college football coach of the year.

Coker won the honor a year ago and was a finalist again Thursday night but Tressel took the award this year after the Buckeyes ended Miami's 34-game winning streak with a double-overtime victory in the Fiesta Bowl for the national championship.

Tressel earlier was chosen the American Football Coaches Association coach of the year and he's still on the banquet circuit between recruiting jaunts.

"There are a few more obligations," Tressel said. "It adds a few things to the calendar but it's worth it."

The Buckeyes beat defending national champion Miami 31-24 in a thrilling double-overtime Fiesta Bowl for the title on Jan. 3.

The Bryant Award is presented by the National Sports Writers and Sportswriters Association.

The Buckeyes won their first national championship since 1968 in Tressel's second season as head coach.

"When you are at places like Oklahoma or Ohio State, you're expected to get it done your first day on the job," Tressel said. "I thought the first year that we had adequate talent if we did everything right we could be successful."

Pampa beats Dumas in 7th grade girls' basketball

DUMAS — Pampa defeated Dumas 37-30 in a 7th grade girls game earlier this week.

Leading scorers were Stephanie Polasek and Haili Kotara with 7 points each. Others who scored were Texi Schaeffer with 6 points, Sara Foster 5, Jasmine Moore 4, Trisha Moore 4 and Kayla Mendoza 4.

"They played a hard and great game," said coach Deanna Polasek. "It seemed like everything worked together. They have been working really hard in practice and it showed. Everyone did their part. It was an exciting win."

Polasek had 11 rebounds and 4 steals while Haili Kotara had 7 rebounds and 1 steal. Others with rebounds and steals were Krisha Henderson (3 rebounds), Texi Schaeffer (3 rebounds, 4 steals), Kayla Mendoza (3 rebounds, 2 steals), Jasmine Moore (2 rebounds, 1 steal; Sara Foster (2 rebounds, 3 steals), Trisha Moore (1 rebound, 2 steals).

Pampa lost the B team game 32-12.

This was a very physical game," Coach Polasek said. "The girls played hard. We had four girls get hurt in this game. We put up some good shots, but they just didn't fall for us."

Horoscope BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Jan. 18, 2003:
Make it a point to establish where you're coming from, not just for yourself but also for others. You know what you want, though you often find that others challenge your directions and long-term desires. Stay goal-oriented. Network as much as you feel necessary. Success becomes you this year. You'll find you're unusually lucky through August. Go for what you want in your heart. You're more than likely to create just that. If you are single, you will open a new door if you decide to let go of certain images or rigidities. You will meet someone totally new and different. Avoid getting into conflicts or dealing in terms of black and white. If you're attached, learn to defer to a loved one more often. Discussions are frequently about boundaries. LEO pushes you hard.
The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 Hold on tight, as the Full Moon animates your life. You might not be comfortable with what comes up. Realize your limits and just how much you can resolve. Creativity and detachment work together to meld differences. Tonight: Be a wild thing.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 Understand what it takes to satisfy someone close to you. Even if you're not exactly sure what needs to be done as you juggle others' wishes, think about what you want. Make decisions accordingly. Let the good times happen. Tonight: The party is at your pad.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 You make the right moves, though you might find it difficult to convince others of just that point. Loosen up in your dealing with others. Everyone might be slightly more reactive than normal. Full Moon energy can often be explosive. Tonight: Breeze into a favorite haunt.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 Extremes easily hit your finances, making you wonder what your enough. Be more playful in your dealings with others. Find solutions. Listen to others. Use your high energy to help someone feel better. Tonight: Your treat.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 The Full Moon in your sign might have you a bit crazy dealing with others and their needs. You could easily go overboard dealing with a partner, or even just friends who have their plates full. Your high-velocity energy helps those around you re-energize. Tonight: The world is your oyster.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 You find that someone has a totally different perspective. Consider your options carefully, refusing to be pressured by others, especially family members. Know when to say "no." Know when to say "yes." If you're not sure, say nothing. Tonight: Early to bed.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
 Friends remain active. You find that you're often not sure about what is happening within your immediate circle. You feel pressured by others. You can make the choice to not react as well. Just get into the fun aspects of the next few days. Tonight: Follow the action.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
 Everyone wants a part of you, or so it seems. Delegate as much as you can, realizing that you are only one person, only capable of doing one thing at a time. You will opt for a must appearance. You can and will juggle your different convictions. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
 Another's high energy might bowl you over, but on the other hand, you feel inspired. Chime in with someone, and you will be off and running. Consider your choices very carefully, especially if they involve travel. Tonight: Out and about.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 You might not be pleased with how someone views a money matter. You have difficulty coming to a decision as to what would be the most effective way to handle this issue. Use your instincts when making strong, needed decisions. Tonight: Let a partner take the lead.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 Others seem challenging, but don't even think that you have angel wings on, either. You're capable of unusual change, especially if you decide you need just that in order to get the results you desire. Laugh and enjoy those around you. Tonight: Follow the happening.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
 Deal with the basics, allowing yourself more flex. Someone whom you put on a pedestal pushes you very hard. You might want to react. You actually might start going off in your own particular direction. Know what you want. Tonight: Slow down and relax.
