Pampa Women Hear Address in Amarillo Tuesday

Four Pampa women, Mmes. W. H. Davis, J. W. Garman, H. W. Waddell, and Donald A. Powell, represented the local Council of Catholic Women at a meeting held in Amarillo yesterday for the purpose of discussing plans of the national campaign of the National Council of Catholic Women for the suppression of the sale of salacious literature.

"Much of this salacious literature is sold to mature persons," Judge E. C. Nelson Jr. told the assembly. "These people are more or less beyond control but the youth of America should be protected from the degrading influence of such magazines which glorify crime and the criminal and lewd magazines which undermine the morals of the young person."

The United States is proud of her freedom of the press, but freedom of the press should not be so construed as to permit the printing of indecent and unwholesome literature. If it is unlawful to print libelous matter which injures any person it should be unlawful to permit the printing of literature which degrades the reader.

Mrs. J. J. Lane, chairman of the meeting, told the group that the campaign had already been successful in many important cities throughout the United States. Mrs. Lane quoted Edgar Hoover, chief of the U. S. "G-men" in a statement that the greater part of all sex crime is due to the reading of badly written, sexy, literature.

To offset their lack of egotism, once they get into politics women are superior to men in at least one respect, if you take Mrs. Hamilton's word for it. They aren't likely to get lost in a tangle of cold figures.

For women as a sex have the trick of mind that lets them see problems as personal, not as statistics on a lengthy report. They seldom as men do so often, lose sight of the human beings that large words cover.

Physically they are no longer the weaker sex. Today women can stand the strain of politics about as well as men. So they aren't claiming any special indulgences because of their sex. Once they get into politics, they discard their feminine wiles—else they don't last long.

And, perhaps, as politicians, women are a little more truthful than men. Mrs. Hamilton was "man" enough not to hint at such thing. But she herself was elected to parliament over the men candidates for the seat because she answered frankly "I don't know anything about it" to a question that the men—who have always known everything—pretended to understand.

(All right, men, you may be right. Maybe that I "don't know" did just pop out as a result of woman's eternal willingness to let men "enlighten" them!)

FIRE WEEK TALK MADE AT ASSEMBLY PROGRAM

Pampa high school students during chapel program this morning were reminded that fire prevention week was from April 3 to 9 and that they were expected to "do their part" in making Pampa a safer place in which to live. The talk was made by Farris Oden.

Members of the fire department will visit all ward schools next week, making talks on fire prevention and explaining a contest to be held.

The firemen will speak at the following schools: April 4, 2:30 p. m.—Baker school; April 6, 9 a. m.—Sam Houston; April 6, 2:40 p. m.—Woodrow Wilson; April 7, 1:30 p. m.—Holy Souls; April 8, 3 p. m.—Horace Mann.

Mexico City that all was peaceful among the workers. The Tampico union ousted a capital-approved administrative council, demanded wage increases and other benefits.

All Tanks Full. "We are all disconnected. We were far better off before," Flores said. Tampico reports said every storage tank there was filled with oil, and there was no place to put crude or refined oil since the lack of foreign markets created by expropriation of the companies March 17.

Asphalt, packing, shipping, marine and other departments of all shipping termini were closed, and nearly 3,000 part-time workers were released.

From Poma Rica came reports that workers there were not paid Saturday or Monday, although the oil labor syndicate asserted "payments were effected normally throughout the industry" last week-end.

A permanent commission of congress was to meet late today to set a date for the congressional session, probably for the second ten days in April.

Cardenas' request for the session was coupled with a list of bills to be considered.

Duty Slash Urged. High among them was one for modification of import and export duties, increased as much as 500 per cent in January to the concern of the United States.

It was perhaps significant that Cardenas asked for tariff revision just after Ambassador Daniels' protest to Foreign Minister Eduardo Ray yesterday.

Daniels protested the expropriation on his first visit and expressed U. S. Secretary of State Hull's view of the "seriousness" of the situation.

nature of the Mexican government's reply. Hay replied to questioning about the discussions that his memory was "perhaps the worst in Mexico."

Daniels reported to Secretary Hull by telephone.

The protest, it was felt here, brought United States-Mexican relations to the most strained point since the 1927 conflict over control of the oil industry. A settlement was reached then by the late Ambassador Dwight Morrow.

Silver Situation Serious. The government still was gravely concerned whether the United States treasury could out the price of silver another cent an ounce.

Mexico produces about 80,000,000 ounces of silver a year, and a great many mines are "marginal," unable to operate profitably if the price is much below 40 cents an ounce.

STICKING OUT THE JAPANESE CHIN

The unpleasant news from Europe has pretty well obscured the equally unpleasant news from China the last few weeks.

Especially effective have been the guerrilla tactics of the Chinese. The farther into China the Japanese push, the longer their thin line of communication stretches out, and the Chinese have been making it very tough for the scattered garrisons in the territory claimed by the Japanese.

But the prize maneuver of all was the formation of a midget Socialist state 200 miles behind the Japanese lines.

Meanwhile hatred for the Japanese has become something of a fanatical religion among China's millions. True, the casualties on the Chinese side have been tremendous, totaling at least 12 fatalities to one for the Japanese.

So Japan finds herself in the middle. She cannot turn back. Further invasion costs dearly in men and money. And as her soldiers make their expensive gains, powerful Soviet Russia waits for the chance to settle an old account.

SWING VERSUS SENTIMENT

It was high time that steps were taken against the swinging of the old sweet songs, and Leo Fitzpatrick, manager of a Detroit radio station, has become something of a champion in the eyes of those who think the cats and the jitter-bugs should stay far, far away from "Home, Sweet Home," "Annie Laurie," and such.

Fitzpatrick, you will remember, became incensed when he heard the quaint strains of a highly disguised "Comin' Thro' the Rye" coming through the radio in what was indeed a very killer-diller arrangement.

Render unto swing the things that are swing, and unto sentiment the things that are sentiment's.

INGRATE ELK

You can lead an elk to hay—and he will stay right there. He will lose his initiative and his rugged individualism.

That sad commentary on elk nature comes from Thomas J. Allen, Jr., regional director of the National Park Service, who now states that he and his men are unable to solve a problem created by their own kindness.

Last summer they grew some hay to give to the elk when the snow got so deep the animals couldn't root for themselves. Now that the hay is gone the elk refuse to leave the place where it was stacked.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Pampa Daily News Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 30—Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy have invaded Latin America by radio and numerous officials of this government are trying to agree on what to do about it.

A government broadcasting station to send short wave counter-propaganda below the Rio Grande may be proposed by the recently appointed presidential committee to study international broadcasting.

That's why American broadcasting companies are falling all over themselves in a rush to put on special programs for South America. Although these companies have done little of this before, they don't want the government in the broadcasting field and seek to show that it isn't necessary.

"Flagrant misrepresentation" detrimental to American business, as well as propaganda which sneers at American culture and lampoons democracy, is charged against German and Italian government broadcasting stations—especially the former—by informed officials. Germany broadcasts to South America in Spanish and Portuguese six hours each night and uses a radio beam which can be directed toward any individual Latin American republic.

During the sitdown strike epidemic Latin Americans were told that Bolsheviks were taking over this country. German business representatives sometimes have been ordered to prepare to take advantage of special "news broadcasts" which alleged that large American firms were closed and unable to deliver orders.

One story current here tells how a German station burlesqued an alleged unveiling of a List statue at which the mayor of San Francisco was impersonated as a lout who bragged of neon lights and an electric piano beneath the canvas.

Highly colored news reports are broadcast to German legations and consulates to be turned over to local South American newspapers—free. Transcription records from Germany and Italy are showered on local broadcasting stations, some of which already are subsidized by funds from "dictator countries."

The only pleasant aspect of all this as seen here is the fact that much of the propaganda is crude. News broadcasts are considered the most important phase of the problem and American news broadcasts which will gain reputation for accuracy and command respect while showing "how democracy works" are thought to be the most valuable form of counter-attack.

The effectiveness of the foreign propaganda and extent to which both it and American programs reach the average Latin American are among questions being studied by the presidential committee, which is headed by Chairman Frank McNinch of the FFC. McNinch is understood to favor creation of a government station.

Such a station, operating six or eight hours a day and requiring a considerable organization, would cost between two and three million dollars a year. Private companies are unwilling to spend that much without some return and thus far they have been barred from making advertising profit on their short wave frequencies.

Recently the FCC "loaned" both General Electric and the non-profit World Wide Broadcasting Foundation two of the so-called "Pan American frequencies." These and other broadcasting agencies are now trying to stagger and co-ordinate programs so there will be "something on, all the time, for South America."

Government Action Certain

This government's chief propaganda effort has been the Office of Education's "Brave New World" series of 26 long wave broadcasts dramatizing Latin American history and culture. This is in English and hasn't been heard in South America much, but the idea is to build good will for Latin America in this country and at the same time to make the Latin Americans feel good about the attention they're getting.

The Chavez-McAdoo bill for a "U. S. Pan-American Broadcasting Station" which would be operated under State Department supervision from San Diego will be up for a hearing soon. (Florida is beginning to promote a similar proposal for Key West.)

The radio-telephone lobby probably can block government station proposals, at least for awhile. The outlooks as to a substitute plan is confused. But some form of government operation, subsidy, co-ordination, co-operation or other participation seems fairly certain.

Every Silver Lining Has Its Dark Cloud

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Gino DiVico, a slim, olive-skinned Italian from the lower East Side, became a bootblack in the vicinity of City Hall last week. He is 14 years old and wants to grow up and become the head of a shipping company.

Well, I think he's got something there. The Horatio Alger heroes weren't all shadow-fiction. It may surprise you to know that fortunes have been made by men who wield the little flannel rag.

In past years the most successful shoeshine kings have been Tony Asti, who gobbled up the concession in the big office buildings, just as corporations now buy the hat checking concessions in hotels and night clubs, and Tony Lauria. Asti is dead now but in his time he was a money titan and owned a string of fine race horses.

Joseph thinks a good boy can earn $25 a week, counting tips, which isn't a vain, half-garrulous old dude with fine airs and spends an aggregate of $40,000 a week having his shoes shined. He has approximately 22,000 boys working for him.

The current Mussolini of bootblackening is Joseph Policastro, who began his career in Brooklyn on less than $2 capital. He started out with a box slung over his shoulder and worked himself up till he had others working for him. Finally he acquired the rights to a small building and installed half a dozen boys shining shoes for him there.

And so perhaps young Gino DiVico is on the right track in his quest for success and economic security. On behalf of the Horatio Alger heroes who triumphed over adversity through sheer pluck, ambition, and stick-to-it-liveness, I salute him.

Around Hollywood

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 30—All over the lot: William Haade has helped erect the steel of many a New York skyscraper. He has raced against death in removing mangled men from the wreckage of a collapsed building.

Just about the worst job a Hollywoodman could think of, short of slapping Shirley Temple, would be the committing of mayhem upon the person of a Great Lover. Of course Mr. Taylor is by no means fragile, but he is very, very valuable.

Of course there were no make-up men to assist the four hunkies by painting on the contours, and abrasions, including Taylor's magnificent shiner. But although Haade pulled his punches, he nevertheless gave the Great Lover a strenuous knocking around.

After filming the fight, Director Frank Borzage set about shaking the cause of it—an automobile wreck. An old Minerva was pushed on the set, and four laborers with sledge hammers were called in.

While overtaken by a motorcycle cop, she explained the emergency and was pleased when he nodded understandingly and said "Follow me."

3. Insist on changing him.
4. Refuse to be friends with his friends.
5. Try to show him off.
6. Make him into an extra servant.
7. Insist on constant entertaining when he is tired and prefers a good book and his pipe.
8. Run down his mother or other relatives.
9. Get into debt.
10. Refuse to have children if he wants them provided there is no medical reason for not having them.

The Capital Jigsaw

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL

AUSTIN, March 30 (AP)—The securities division of the state department, watchdog in Texas against fraudulent securities operations, has mounted extra guard against a racket that has become increasingly active in recent months.

This racket, which with other security frauds annually fleeces Texans of millions of dollars, is the exchange of worth less, so-called securities for valuable ones. It has developed largely because of what is known as a "thin" securities market, that is, a market when securities are selling slowly and may be depressed in price.

In battling this racket and others, D. Leon Harp, state securities commissioner, and his inspectors, located at district headquarters over the state, have received death threats, but there is to be no relaxation in the war.

It is a war, incidentally, which is being won. Evidence is the decreasing number of complaints from citizens who have been swindled in Texas as well as from officials of other states where in past years many frauds rooted in Texas, especially all stock schemes, flourished. Some states even complained that renegades driven from Texas seemed to be flocking to them.

Suppose you want to dispose of stock and you are told the market isn't good," said Harp, explaining the latest security racket. "You may be a fine prospect for victimizing."

"The professional swindler, both in the exchange security and other security rackets, usually works by means of a suckers list, which has been painstakingly prepared and sometimes sells for large sums. I know of a list which sold for $150,000.

"You may have received a postcard asking whether you would be interested in a proposition to make $2,500 out of a $25 investment? If you answered the card, your name probably went on the suckers list.

There are classifications to such lists, usually first, second and third. Persons who are believed to be susceptible to buying worthless securities will be in the third group, those who have bought once will be in the second and those who have purchased more than once will make up the first.

"Buyers of this sort are addicts and they can't seem to stop. There are cases of repeaters as many as 30 times.

"In any event, if your name is on the suckers list you will receive some lurid advertising, which is skillfully prepared and probably will tell how John D. Rockefeller became rich from small investments. Perhaps it will name persons in your state who became wealthy in a short time by oil developments.

"Some of the world's best copy writers prepare these 'come on' advertisements, which may be copyrighted and one who has studied the psychology of such appeals, their value has been proved by returns.

"One kind of return, a contemptible type, may have a religious theme. The writers may inform a prospect he walked a good thing but needs a little money to cash in on it, that as he walked down a street on the way to church one Sunday, hearing the bells ringing, it occurred to him some kind stranger would be willing to invest a small sum in helping them both on to riches and success.

"If you respond to the literature, you may be visited by a 'bird dog,' whose duty is to get further information, and finally you will be contacted by a high-pressure, skilled salesman, who will try to sell you some stock.

"If you say you do not have the money, but do have other securities, it will be explained how much better are the securities the salesman has, and that, as a special favor to you, an exchange will be made.

"In due time, comes the dawn, that is to say, comes the acknowledgment and realization you have been defrauded.

How's Your Health?

By IAGO GALUSTON, M. D.

The Mental Hygiene Problem
Nearly 60 per cent of all hospital beds in the United States are occupied by patients suffering from one form or another of mental disease.

The care of this large group of patients costs $271,000,000 a year and the annual economic loss, statisticians say, amounts to slightly more than a billion dollars. These figures show the size of the mental hygiene problem.

During the last 50 years we have become increasingly aware of the challenge of mental disease. In 1850 there were 81.6 persons in mental hospitals per 100,000 population.

Now the hospitals admit 208 per 100,000 for mental disease—almost four times the 1850 figure. But there is no warrant for concluding from these figures that the ratio of those mentally sick to those in good health has substantially increased since 1850. It is more likely that the mental health of this community has not changed, but that more of those who are sick are brought into institutions for treatment.

Certain phases of the mental health problem are definitely understood and intensive efforts are being made to deal with them. Thus, syphilis is responsible for about 10 per cent of mental disorders. The elimination of syphilis will relieve us of that portion of the burden and probably more, for syphilis accelerates physical degeneration and is also responsible for a good deal of mental feebleness.

Over-indulgence in alcohol accounts for about 9 per cent of the first admissions to New York state hospitals for the mentally ill—probably a fair example of nationwide experience. The alcohol phase of the mental hygiene problem, at least in theory, subject to elimination.

Mental cases which may be attributed to the specific poisons encountered in industry, and to abuse of drugs are not very significant numerically, but they too can be substantially reduced if not entirely eliminated.

The mental disorders associated with senility are also likely to be reduced when we learn to control and retard excessive physical disintegration.

commission wide powers for weeding out the crooks. One of Commissioner Harp's earliest moves was to ban completely the sale of any mining stock issued on properties in any other state or foreign country. He also will allow sale in Texas of whiskey warehouse receipts, as is permitted in some states.

"We acted on the mining stock after searching records in the state vaults for 15 years back," Harp said, "and never found such a mining issue where the investor got his money back. I know of instances where the sellers had no title to property at all, perhaps at most had an option. Also we have no facilities for checking up on distant mining properties.

"We have turned down countless millions of dollars worth of proposed mining stock issues.

Whiskey warehouse receipts are receipts for liquor stored in federal warehouses and, legitimately, are intended to permit distillers to borrow money on large stocks, in other words, to raise capital. Swindlers often operate with fraudulent receipts however, or receipts for whiskey not worth what it is claimed, perhaps whiskey improperly barreled or made of poor grain.

In one case, he said, "worthless receipts were sold to an invalid in Dallas, who was cleaned out of everything he had saved."

Texas closely cooperates with officials of other states and the federal government, in preventing stock swindling and catching the swindlers, exchanging information almost daily.

At this time, Texas has nearly three times as many licensed security dealers as any other state, or 1,400, the nearest competitor being California with 400.

Street Sees Dynamite In Explosive Brown Lineup

By FELIX MCKNIGHT SAN ANTONIO, March 30 (AP)—Manager Charles (Gabby) Street, an imaginative person, can't quite stretch his vision to actually seeing his St. Louis Browns in the first division—but he points at all explosive "paper" lineup and suggests what could happen. Brand new guardian angel of a team that has never won a pennant, Street, a man who has had 38 years in baseball, a top sergeant's turn in the world war and a suppressed desire to join the French Foreign Legion, has some experiments on his mind to convert the 1937 cellar-dwellers into 1938's most troublesome nine.

OUTLERS TO BE HARD FIGHTERS SAYS MANAGER

By BRUCE CONNATSER, Manager, Tulsa Oilers. SEGUIN, March 30 (AP)—It would be nice to know now just what a proposed lineup would do for the first six weeks of the season. Then a manager would know whether to pet and humor the outfit like "prima donnas." There are so many things that can happen to the personnel of a club—accident's, injuries and unforeseen situations. There are a lot of "ifs."

20 Boys Out For Track; Grid Practice Continues

Only three lettermen—Claude Heskell, J. P. Mathews, and J. W. Graham—reported to Coach Odus Mitchell for track and field practice yesterday afternoon. Several newcomers, some up from junior high, swelled the ranks to nearly 20 boys who will compete in the district meet here April 9. Starting position for dash men and hurdlers, the get-away for the distance men, form for the field men and the art of stopping were discussed and demonstrated at yesterday's practice after which boys eligible for football next fall did a little passing, punting and running interference.

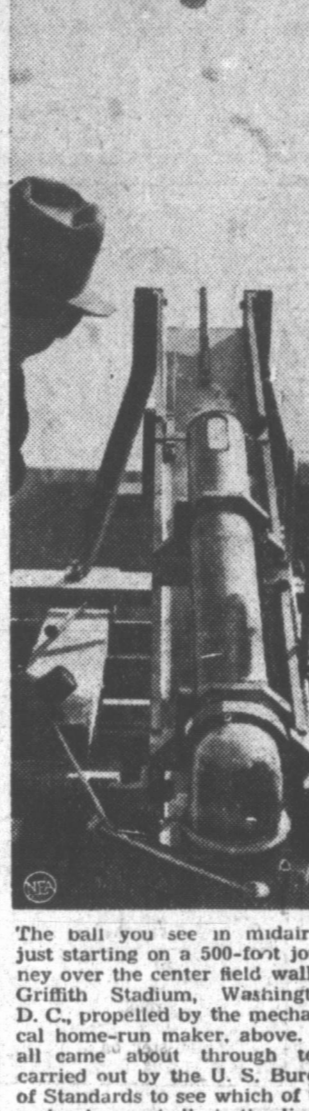

FAVORITES COME THROUGH IN HOUSTON TENNIS TOURNAMENT

By OLEN W. CLEMENTS HOUSTON, March 30 (AP)—Little Betsy Grant of Atlanta and Bobby Riggs of Chicago today moved into the fore as the men to beat in the eighth annual River Oaks tennis tournament with Wilmer Allison of Austin, trying for a comeback, hanging on gamely. Grant, playing at top form, yesterday sunk Fred Royer of Dallas, 6-1, 6-0, and volleyed and bounced as only the Georgian can on a court. He had a comparatively easy time of it but was taking no chances on being eliminated in this tournament, which he has won for the last three years.

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

The ball you see in midair is just starting on a 500-foot journey over the center field wall in Griffith Stadium, Washington, D. C., propelled by the mechanical home-run maker, above. Contrary to current belief, the National League pellet proved to be just as lively if not livelier than the American League ball.

LOVE LAUGHS AT THE DOCTOR

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.

Yesterday, Derek begins to apologize for postponing the wedding. He says that Thorvalde, for an alibi and Connie interrupts "but in the meantime—"

CHAPTER XVIII

"WELL, in the meantime," Derek floundered on, "why can't we just slip out this way sometimes without anyone—I mean, do you really think, darling, that as things are now, we ought to make our own happiness so conspicuous? ... Damn it all, I know this sounds—"

"I see," Constance said.

She got up slowly and drew her wrap about her, shivering a little, although the evening was warm.

"I'm tired, Derek," she said gently. "Do you mind if I go in now?"

He sprang up, all charming concern.

"Darling, I'm sorry. What an inconsiderate brute I've been. Of course you're tired. We'll talk this over again. ... Of course, daytimes, unless I can be useful to the family, I really should be in the studio. After all—he laughed deprecatingly—"that's what I'm here for. ... Tomorrow night, then, here—about the same time, shall we?"

Constance said with a little piteous smile. "I think I'm going to be terribly tired tomorrow evening, too, Derek."

After a taught silence, Derek said to himself his teeth. "I'm not sure that I understand you this evening, Constance."

Then he came and stood over her. Even by moonlight he saw how the pupils of her eyes widened with emotion, very black in their clear irises.

"You are so lovely, Connie," he said, his hands finding her shoulders. "Your face in the moonlight is so soft and young and shining, like—I shall paint you this way some time—in white, with—"

"I'm terribly sorry, Derek," Constance went on steadily. "But I want to be quite clear about this. ... I'm afraid I shall be tired all the other nights, too. You reminded me that we are guests here. That's not entirely true. This is a job for me. It may not last long, but while it does, my time is bought and paid for; and I feel that the work may be rather exacting." She smiled a little twisted smile. "Perhaps, she finished, "there's something to be said for this business of going to bed early, after all, shouldn't be surprised if I tried it."

Derek's hands dropped from her shoulders; but his voice was still tender.

"You are devilish tired," he repeated. "Yes, do go to bed, darling. You'll feel differently tomorrow."

Derek, Constance remembered, had an unquenchable intuition for knowing when it was not wise to press a matter—a feminine gift for appearing to accept defeat gracefully only to reorganize his forces for ultimate victory. She had often succumbed to it before; and had even found it endearing. Now she hardened herself.

"I'm going back to the house now," she said. "And it is rather late. Don't you think it would be—wiser—if we went in alone?"

"Nonsense. Of course I'm going with you. There won't be anyone—"

"He caught himself up, glanced at her swiftly, and finished. "There wouldn't be any danger of course. This country is perfectly safe; we never lock our doors. But I'd rather—really—"

"He was going to say, "There won't be any one about," Constance thought drowsily.

But if he were, he was mistaken.

On the rose-hung gallery just outside the door of the main sala, they almost ran into Dr. Rogers.

Derek said shortly, "Evening, Dr. ... Sweet dreams, Miss Maidwell," and went quickly through the house towards his own suite.

"Well, I see you took my advice," Mark Rogers said with an ironic lift of one eyebrow. "But it's rather fortunate as it turns out. Would you mind running in to Mr. Thorvalde's room again for a few minutes? He's not sleeping well. He has an idea you were just another hallucination."

He spoke lightly, but his eyes were worried.

Constance tried to say, "Of course—"

He cleared her throat and stood silent, biting her lips and trying desperately not to cry.

He glanced at her; then apparently oblivious of her quivering lips and piteous eyes, he leaned against a pillar of the gallery and began to toy with an overhanging spray of roses.

"Do you know," he said in a matter-of-fact voice, "I've often wondered why it is that of all the people in the world, the ones who have plenty of time to sleep are the ones who never want to go to bed. You'd be amazed to know the variety of excuses a doctor runs into for not going to bed at a reasonable hour. There are the people who have to sit up for their favorite radio programs; the ones who sit up to finish books, the ones who sit up to—er—look at the moon; and, of course, the one's who just don't like to go to bed."

at all. ... Damn it, I've seen times when I'd have sold my soul for a chance to sleep an honest eight hours—and all the radios and best sellers and moons in the world wouldn't have kept me awake."

He glanced at her bent head, and went on plaintively. "A doctor can't do his best work when he falls into bed at midnight, dog-tired only to be routed out at two-thirty for the rest of the night. It's nothing short of criminal negligence to turn up at the bedside of a patient groggy for want of sleep. I have nightmares sometimes in which I find I've written hundreds of wrong prescriptions, and that my patients have all died horrible deaths as a consequence."

There was something so matter-of-fact and sturdy about him as he stood there, just quietly talking, that Constance found herself steadied and helped to self-control.

She took a final wipe at her eyes, and found that she could say almost naturally, "Thanks. You—you run grand interference, Doctor. I'm ready now."

So Constance sat again by George Thorvalde's bedside, soothing and cajoling him until he drowsed comfortably off.

"Well," Constance said with a flippancy she felt to be her best safe-guard against making another exhibition of herself, "Why don't you say, 'I told you so?'"

"With you all set to jump down my throat the minute I open my mouth," he said with a sardonic grin. "Thanks. I'm not courting self-destruction."

He stood looking down at her for a moment, one eyebrow faintly cocked, his hands in his pockets, whistling an inaudible little tune. He seemed about to speak; then he turned, picked up his bag, and went abruptly out into the night.

CONSTANCE was sitting up in bed with a breakfast tray across her knees next morning when her hostess came in.

"Please don't move, Miss Maidwell," Hildegarde Thorvalde begged. "You look so lovely. You're one of the few women I know who seem to like to have breakfast in a fluffy negligee."

She was in her riding clothes—brown breeches and boots, and a tawny shirt of soft silk that toned sweetly with the amber of her eyes and hair and the gold of her skin.

"It's no use trying to apologize for yesterday," she began in her warm, leisurely voice. "Or is it? Perhaps you don't know Mark Rogers as well as we do."

Was there a faint question in her long amber eyes?

"I'm beginning to understand at least," Constance smiled, "that when he says 'Go to bed,' you're supposed to do it and like it."

Hilda Thorvalde laughed. Then suddenly she was serious.

"What I really came for," she said, her voice dropping to a husky note, "was to thank you—no. To try to thank you—"

"Please—no!" Constance cut in quickly.

But the other girl went on. "I—George is pretty important to Father and me. Miss Maidwell. And Mark sold us you—well, worked a miracle last night."

"I wonder how much more he told you," Constance thought.

"It was such an amazing piece of luck—Mark's finding you," Hildegarde Thorvalde's long brown fingers were playing idly with a paper knife

KING CAROL CALLS FOR NEW RUMANIAN CABINET

BUCHAREST, March 30 (AP)—The government headed by the Patriarch Miron Cristea resigned at noon today for reorganization. The Cristea cabinet was formed Feb. 11 following dismissal of the ministry of Octavian Goga by King Carol.

Cristea, eighty-year-old, Patriarch of the Rumanian Orthodox church, was commissioned by King Carol to form a new government and it was expected the formalities would be completed before evening.

It was stated at the palace that Rumania's cabinet of "old men" had served its purpose and that, at the request of many members of the ministry, the King was gathering new leaders about him.

In informed quarters it was said George Tatarescut, the Foreign Minister, and other members of the Liberal party would be excluded from the new government.

The same sources said it was likely that several members of Juliu Maniu's now inactive peasant party would receive portfolios.

It was emphasized, however, that Rumania is no longer ruled on a party basis and that parties while existent were dormant.

Modern furniture is particularly adaptable to sectional treatment. Love seats, divans and chests are often fashioned to be grouped together as one piece, or may be used separately, whichever is most suited to the size and contour of your room. With care it may be combined harmoniously with other periods of furniture if you wish to add a single new piece to an already furnished room.

First Baseman Successful As College Coach

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—Joseph Ignatius Judge—long one of professional baseball's great first basemen—can be mentioned today as one of the most successful college coaches.

A record-breaker as an active player for 21 years, little Joe is setting up some fancy marks as the mentor of the fast-travelling Georgetown University Hoyas.

For instance: His team has won 12 college games and lost none.

He's developed a fireball pitcher in Mike Petrovsky, whose loss can knock down a board fence.

He's got a firstsacker in Harry Bassin that a dozen major league teams would like to sign today. Bassin hit .526 last year.

Judge's first year of coaching was the 1937 season, and the Hoyas really went to town.

Georgetown met Western Maryland one day and at the end of the fifth inning the game was called. At that point Judge's boys had piled up 31 runs. Western Maryland had none.

When there is an interesting trial going on in district court, the gathering will usually break up to attend the hearings, adjourning as the court does, and sometimes reviewing a play-by-play account of the doings in the "Blackstone Bowl."

As no court is now in session, there are few who frequent the first-floor "bleachers," and crops and weather replace the churches and pensions as conversational pieces.

"How juk like 't rain? Mighty fine," was the total of one brief meeting of two men this week.

Nearest approach to the vigor of the arguments heard was one in which a man vehemently protested to a friend that he had told another man: "The next time I pick bollices for you, I'm gonna know what you are goin' to pay before I work for you."

AGE OR CLASS MEAN NOTHING TO SYPHILIS

In speaking of syphilis, it is well for us to face the fact that no one is immune to this disease unless he has already had the infection. There is no known means of artificial protection as there is against diphtheria, typhoid and smallpox.

Called the "Great Imitator", because it makes its presence known, syphilis is not a respecter of age, class or creed.

Sometimes it reveals itself in the early stages through a sore. Frequently it gives no evidence if its existence until, late in its development, it attacks a vital organ and results in serious incapacity, loss of life, blindness, insanity or locomotor ataxia.

Persons are often born with the disease, having acquired it from mothers who never realized they were infected. In fact, 60,000 infants are so born in the United States each year.

Widespread, multifarious and ravaging it is by nature; yet the greatest pity of its existence is its needlessness. If the disease is discovered early enough, and treated faithfully until the doctor himself releases the patient, syphilis would be a well-nigh "lost" disease in a single generation.

The link yet to be supplied in the chain is unwavering public determination to stamp out this disease. As it is mainly an enemy of youth, today's youth will best be able to judge, as tomorrow's citizens, the extent of their willingness to join the fight.

ADMINISTRATION URGES UTILITY CONSTRUCTION

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—The administration set out today to encourage the utility industry to proceed with its construction programs, free of any immediate threat of compulsory reorganization.

The securities commission, following its victory in the Supreme Court yesterday, said holding companies would be given a "reasonable time" to simplify their structures.

This attitude by the commission was considered in line with recent White House conferences on means of encouraging construction by the utility industry.

SEC officials have estimated that the utilities are spending more than $1,000,000,000 less annually on construction than they have in the past. Utilities leaders have explained that fears of regulation and governmental competition have retarded their programs.

The court decision, upholding constitutionality of the registration provisions of the public utility act of 1935, revived discussion of the simplification of these companies, often called "the death sentence" provision.

The court approved that part of the law requiring holding companies to register with the securities commission and file detailed information. In effect, the court said utilities could not complain about simplification orders until such orders were issued.

Hutchinson Farmers Receive AAA Checks

STINNETT, March 30—Another bunch of checks in payment of the 1937 AAA program completed by Hutchinson county farmers and ranchmen have arrived at the office of the county agent, Clyde L. Carruth.

Yesterday afternoon all the range program checks were received. These checks were in payment of 33 applications totaling $18,271.92. The check for the largest amount was written $5,761.55 and the smallest allotment was written for $27.67, with the majority of the payments ranging from four to five hundred dollars.

Mrs. Brooks Given Farewell Party

McLEAN, March 30—Honoring Mrs. Claud Brooks on the eve of her departure to make her home in Vernon, Mrs. C. O. Greene and Mrs. S. A. Cousins were joint-hostesses Saturday to a lovely morning coffee. Guests were members of the Pioneer Study club of which Mrs. Brooks has been an active member for several years.

Mrs. C. A. Cryer bade her farewell and presented her, in behalf of the club two lovely bird plaques painted by Mrs. Alma Turman.

Present were: the honoree and Mesdames: Thurman Adkins, C. A. Cryer, H. W. Finely, J. B. Hemmings, T. A. Massey, W. B. Swim, Jim Back, Eric Cublin, Roger Powers, C. J. Magre, Creed Bogan, W. E. Bogan, Travis Stokes, Bob Thomas, C. B. Batson, Bob Black, Carl Jones and the hostess.

Butter Ball Hints

Rinse butter paddles in boiling water, then in cold water and place them in a bowl of cold water—before you start to make butter balls. Cut butter into pieces an inch thick. Chill the squares in water. Put one pat of butter on a paddle. Shape it by rolling it with other paddle. Chill until serving time.

Complaints that meat was being delivered in an unsanitary condition to some of Pampa's retail stores were made Monday night by Bo and Jimmie Barretts of Barretts Brothers Packing company, when the two men appeared before the city commission at its regular meeting.

Although the complainant said he had seen numerous cases of meat being delivered in unsanitary condition, he named only one store in citing a specific example.

Claiming that their only interest in the situation was a desire to see that others complied with state laws requiring proper sanitary precautions in the handling of meat, as they did, the two packers asked that the commission enforce compliance.

Although some of the members of the city commission were of the opinion that the city had an ordinance covering the situation, a hasty check-up failed to reveal any law that would directly apply.

Inquiries will be made of ordinances covering the subject in Childress and Sweetwater, and it was also suggested that data be obtained from the League of Texas Municipalities. Any ordinance or part of ordinance of the city of Pampa that might be applicable, may be dovetailed into any new ordinance providing for delivery of meat in sanitary condition, it was suggested.

Discussion of the meat situation led to another on the possibilities of having a sales pavilion to be located at Recreation park. Advantages of a weekly sales days were cited. Details of the operation of sales markets at Amarillo, Higgins, Perryton, and Guymon, Okla., were mentioned.

It was suggested that only a small expenditure would be necessary to convert the stables into a structure suitable for holding sales. Lack of water connections and the problem of getting cattle to and from the pavilion were seen as the principal difficulties.

Operation of the market by a private concern, and not by the city, was the method suggested for the project. No action was taken on the matter by the commission, this proposition merely being discussed.

BIG INCREASE IN TEXAS FIRE LOSSES SHOWN

Texas fire loss during the month of January 1938 was $170,753 more than during the same loss last year, according to a report compiled by the Texas Fire Insurance department and received by Fire Chief Ben White. The 1938 loss in that month was $463,726 compared with $292,973 for the same month last year.

Thirty-three Texans lost their lives as a result of fires during the same period. Fourteen were men, 10 women and nine children. Seven lives were lost by standing too close to an open flame, six by being trapped in dwellings, five from gas explosions and others from burns, washing clothes in gasoline, playing with matches, etc.

There were 518 fires in the state in January 1938 compared with 391 last year or an increase of 24 per cent. Incendiary fires have shown an alarming increase this year, according to the report. However, much headway is being made in apprehending those who burn for "profit."

Too many fires of "unknown origin" continue to occur, and the report shows that too many of these occur between 11 a. m. and 4 p. m.

Pampa has been fortunate in its fire loss record and Fire Chief Ben White attributes the small loss to cooperation of citizens in seeing that their premises are free from fire hazards. Next week is Fire Prevention and Chief White urges everyone to "clean up and prevent fires."

BLUM WOULD CLOSE FRENCH STOCK BOARD

PARIS, March 30 (AP)—Premier Leon Blum planned today temporarily to close France's stock exchange, the Bourse, unless his new program for financial reconstruction is adopted over the week-end.

The premier emphasized to a delegation of radical-socialist deputies yesterday that new finance bills, which he is expected to introduce in parliament after the closing of the Bourse Friday, must be passed before Monday. Otherwise he was prepared to keep the Bourse closed to prevent excessive speculation.

He told the deputies trading would be stopped during protracted debate or until a solution could be found to the cabinet crisis that might result from rejection of his proposals. Details of the bills were kept secret.

Large yellow posters appeared on billboards throughout Paris appealing for re-establishment of the monetary stability and international prestige. Henri's posters declared the republic won the World war but "is losing the peace"—echoing the growing popular opinion that Germany is reversing the verdict of the Versailles treaty.

Europe, the posters warned, is on the brink of war and France lacks a united government because of political differences.

"Only the monarchy can unite the French people and save the country in its present grave danger," they said.

He overshadows mere "oil-changers" . . . because ONLY YOUR MILEAGE MERCHANT OIL-PLATES YOUR ENGINE

It's past the first signs of Spring, so you don't want to go past another Red Triangle sign, with its three big points for you. Drive in today and CHANGE TO YOUR MILEAGE MERCHANT CHANGE TO HIS GERM PROCESSED OIL

CONOCO

CHANGE TO AN OIL-PLATED ENGINE

OIL-PLATING forms throughout your engine as soon as you leave the pit with your Conoco Germ Processed oil—the patented oil that metal attracts. Thus every working surface is lastingly glazed with oil, or OIL-PLATED. Indeed like any perfect plating, OIL-PLATING actually IS the working surface. Like a barrier that's forever commanding wear to "Keep Off," OIL-PLATING is maintained without a break, though your OIL-PLATED engine speeds all day and stands all night.

Even the very first piston-stroke, at every start, has to take place on slippery OIL-PLATING that can't drain down "between times," or simmer all off under Summer sun. So you can well understand what's keeping up your oil level and your OIL-PLATED engine. Continental Oil Company
