United Way check-in luncheon scheduled Tuesday

The United Way's first check-in free luncheon will be Tuesday.

Sponsored by Create-A-Beat, Latchkey and the Pampa Optimist Youth Club, the Tuesday luncheon will be at noon at the Pampa Optimist Youth Club, 601 E. Craven. The Pampa United Way announced its goal of raising $306,244 at its kickoff luncheon Sept. 12, in the M.K. Brown Room of the Community Building.

At the kickoff luncheon, John Warner, the 2005 United Way Drive chairman, told the assembled throng that pessimism and lack of enthusiasm were chains that bind the community. If those chains aren't removed, he said, they will leave lasting scars on the community.

Warner said that the funds raised by the United Way help fund 17 agencies in Pampa.

"Almost every person in Pampa is touched by one or more of these agencies every year," Warner said.

He said the Salvation Army, a United Way beneficiary, helped a husband whose wife was about to deliver twins with gas money so the husband could take his wife to a doctor in another community.

A mentally and physically challenged child in Create-A-Beat was flunking spelling tests until his teacher set his spelling words to music.

An Optimist baseball player came back from a fight with cancer to be the winning pitcher in the 11-12 Cal Ripken City Championship game.

Warner read a letter to the volunteers at the kickoff luncheon from a girl who turned her life around after a stay at Genesis House in 1998.

"You make this possible," Warner told them.

He said no one person is going to raise the $306,244 established goal, Warner said.

"It will take all of us," Warner said. "Together, we matter."

The 17 agencies served by the Pampa United Way are the American Red Cross, Boy Scouts, CASA of the High Plains, Create-A-Beat, Community Day Care Center, Genesis House, Girl Scouts, Gray County Child Protective Services, Gray County Latch Key, High Plains Epilepsy Association, Pampa Meals on Wheels, Pampa Optimist Youth Club, the Salvation Army, Samaritan Pastoral Counseling Services, Southside Senior Citizens Center, Texas Panhandle MHMR and Tralee Crisis Center.

City expected to pass Horse apples new budget, tax rate

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

The Pampa City Commission is expected to pass on final reading the city's budget and tax rate for their fiscal year that begins Sunday during their meeting Tuesday.

The city commission will have the second and final reading of the budget ordinance and the ordinance setting the total tax rate at 69.5 cents per $100 valuation when they meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday in the commission chambers of City Hall. It is the same tax rate as last year, but with increasing real estate values in Pampa, the city expects to collect six dollars more in tax revenue on a home with an assessed value of $100,000 than last year.

The total tax levy is the sum of 47.3271 cents for maintenance and operations, three cents for support of the Lovett Memorial Library and 19.1729 for interest and sinking funds.

The commission will also consider a resolution authorizing Mayor Lonny Robbins to execute a lease with ProPETRO Services, Inc. The lease is for a building at 1133 Price Road purchased by the old Pampa Economic Development Corporation that reverted to the city when the original PEDC was dissolved.

The building had been leased by Frac Services, which sold to ProPETRO. That lease expires at the end of the month.

The commission is expected to appoint members to the Lovett Library Advisory Board and will go into executive session to discuss appointments to the Pampa Board of Adjustment, Planning and Zoning and EDC.

EDC to meet Tuesday

A Web site will be the topic of conversation at the Pampa Economic Development Corporation when they meet at 11 a.m. Tuesday in the Nona Payne Room at the Pampa Community Building, 200 N. Ballard.

Dwight Fiveash, president of the EDC, said today that he'd like to have the logo being designed by Pampa High School art students for the Web site. Logo proposals, however, aren't ready yet.

Pampan graduates from DPS academy

Chad A. Brooks of Pampa graduated recently from the Texas Department of Public Safety's 131st Training Academy.

Brooks will be assigned to the Texas Highway Patrol in Pampa.

Brooks is a native of Piedmont, Okla., and has lived in Pampa three years.

He worked as a Gray County deputy before joining DPS.

His wife Shelly is a teacher at Lamar Elementary.

State Rep. Jim Pitts of Waxahachie, the chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, delivered the keynote address.

"It's an honor to join these troopers as they celebrate their graduation and begin their service on the front line of public safety," Pitts said.

Ernest Angelo Jr., chairman of the Texas Public Safety Commission, spoke to the graduates during the ceremony.

The 27-week school is the longest continuous training academy offered by any law enforcement agency in Texas, and one of the longest in the nation. The cadets entered the Academy in January and completed 1,214 hours of instruction — more than twice the training required by the Texas Constitution.

A strange-looking light green fruit appears this time of year on certain trees in the eastern Panhandle. The fruit, 4 to 6 inches in diameter with a rough surface and very milky center, grows on the bois d'arc, or Osage orange, tree. The fruit and tree are sometimes referred to as horse apple or hedge apple. Other names include bodark, bow wood, Naranjo Chino and yellow wood. In French, "bois d'arc" means "wood of the bow," and refers to the Osage Indians' use of the arched branches for bow wood, according to a Web site of Texas A&M University. These photos were taken in Wheeler County.

Wilma A. Jarrell Weston, 96

AMARILLO — Wilma A. Jarrell Weston, 96, died Sunday, Sept. 24, 2006, in Amarillo. Graveside services will be at 10 a.m.

Tuesday, Sept. 26, 2006, in the Garden of Beatitudes at Westlawn Memorial Park in Borger with the Rev. Don Boren, pastor of First United Methodist Church of Borger, officiating. Memorial services will be at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday at Park Place Towers in Amarillo with the Rev. Marty Hamrick, associate pastor of Polk Street United Methodist Church, officiating. He will be assisted by David Fraser and Lee Allen Jarrell, both great-nephews of Mrs. Weston.

Arrangements are by Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Directors of Pampa.

Mrs. Weston was born May 29, 1910, in Newlin, Texas, to Sarah Adeline Long Jarrell and Dennis Marvin Jarrell, and she was the second of five children. After a successful academic career, she began teaching in Collingsworth County in 1928. Mrs. Weston continued her education, earning her teaching certification from West Texas State College in 1937. From 1937 through 1947, she taught at Sam Houston Elementary School in Pampa.

After marrying D. Russell Weston in 1947, she moved to Phillips and taught at Phillips Elementary School until her retirement. For 46 years, Mrs. Weston taught hundreds of first and second graders whose lives have been enhanced by her love for each child and her exceptional teaching. Mrs. Weston was a member of Texas Retired Teachers Association, Beta Sigma Phi, and the United Methodist Women.

In 1995, the Westons moved to Park Place Towers in Amarillo. After their retirements, she and her husband found great pleasure traveling extensively throughout Europe, Asia, South America, and the United States.

Mrs. Weston was preceded in death by her beloved husband, Russell, by two brothers, Raymond Jarrell and Jack Jarrell; by a sister, Almeda Fraser; a nephew, John Jarrell; and a niece, Nicki Lyon.

Her surviving family members and friends will miss Wilma beyond measure. She loved us all unconditionally and forgave us before we knew we needed forgiveness. Wilma was the consummate aunt, godmother, and friend. She was a blessing to all who knew her.

Survivors include a sister, June Jarrell Atkins; six nieces, Linda Chilton, Anne Patin, Stephanie Stanley, Nancy Atkins, Sammie Jarrell, and Janis Parsons; two nephews, Lee Fraser and Bill Fraser; and a goddaughter, Laura Skalak.

Honorary pallbearers include Bill Fraser, Lee Fraser, Mike Fraser, Fabian Patin, Mike Skalak, Lester Wiles, and Ron Parsons.

The family requests memorials be to BSA Hospice, P. O. 950, Amarillo, TX 79176 or Frank Phillips Junior College, P. O. Box 5118, Borger, TX 79008.

Republicans fail on welfare reform

The decision by the Republican leadership not even to try to pass immigration reform before the election smacks of punting when they should have gone for a touchdown. America is begging for tough immigration reform and looking to the Republican Party to exercise its traditional role of leadership in law and order issues. But even without a real threat of a Democratic filibuster, the Republican Party has tripped over its own feet and given up its attempt to meet the needs of the country and of its constituents.

The Republican failure to pass immigration reform despite controlling both houses and the presidency reminds one of Hillary's inability even to get healthcare reform reported out of committee despite enjoying a similar advantage in 1994.

Republican voters are not likely to forgive GOP ineptitude and failure. With a 30-vote margin in the House and 10 in the Senate, they will find the lack of action inexplicable.

The release of "Border War," a film produced by the conservative grassroots group Citizens United, brings the issue home in a way that voters in general and Republicans in particular will not forget. One can only hope that congressional Republicans who have failed the country will watch the movie and reflect on their missed opportunity.

The film will have very wide distribution, by DVD and in at least 125 theaters throughout the country. (Disclosure: We are working with Citizens United on a film due out this spring on our old friend Hillary Rodham Clinton, but we had no involvement in "Border War.")

With more than 10 million illegal immigrants in the U.S., the GOP failure to pass a bill is hard to understand.

A compromise was practically begging to be reached. Republican voters supported the Senate bill's earned path to citizenship and did not see it as amnesty. They know it is not feasible to return 10 million people to their countries of origin, and they get it that a democracy cannot have a permanent lawless class living in its midst.

On the other hand, the Republican base and the rest of the country strongly support a border fence. And cracking down on employers who hire illegals is wildly popular on both sides of the political divide.

One cannot help but compare the cowardly refusal to work out a deal on immigration with the bravery on the part of President Clinton and Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott (R-Miss) in negotiating a welfare reform deal. In 1996, the two leaders got together to pass one of the most significant bills since World War II.

The Citizens United film documents how our porous border invited coyotes to exploit would-be immigrants and invites human trafficking. It emphasizes the risk to the immigrant and to the country of a border that can be breached, but only at great danger to those who try it.

But the Republican Party was scared by its talk radio acolytes into inaction. So fearful were they of aroused Hispanic-Americans on the one hand and angry white males — and females — on the other that they forgot their duty to lead and to compromise for progress.

Whether or not the Republicans keep control of Congress in the 2006 election, their numbers will be reduced. The chances of a good immigration reform bill will decline proportionally. A splendid opportunity will have passed, and will not soon return.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Sept. 25, the 268th day of 2006. There are 97 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 25, 1789, the first United States Congress adopted 12 amendments to the Constitution and sent them to the states for ratification. (Ten of the amendments became the Bill of Rights.)

On this date:

In 1506, King Philip I of Castile died.

In 1775, American Revolutionary War hero Ethan Allen was captured by the British as he led an attack on Montreal.

In 1890, Wilford Woodruff, president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, issued a Manifesto formally renouncing the practice of polygamy.

In 1906, Russian composer Dmitry Shostakovich was born in St. Petersburg.

In 1919, President Wilson collapsed from a stroke after a speech in Pueblo, Colo., during a national speaking tour in support of the Treaty of Versailles.

In 1956, the first trans-Atlantic telephone cable went into service.

'The richer your friends, the more they will cost you.'

— Elisabeth Marbury
American writer
(1856-1933)

In 1957, with 300 U.S. Army troops standing guard, nine black children forced to withdraw from Central High School in Little Rock, Ark., because of unruly white crowds were escorted to class.

In 1973, the three-man crew of the U.S. space laboratory Skylab 2 splashed down safely in the Pacific Ocean after spending 59 days in orbit.

In 1978, 144 people were killed when a Pacific Southwest Airlines Boeing 727 and a private plane collided over San Diego.

In 1981, Sandra Day O'Connor was sworn in as the first female justice on the Supreme Court.

Ten years ago: Stone-throwing protests by thousands of Palestinians angered by Israel's decision to open an archaeological tunnel near Jerusalem's Al Aqsa Mosque compound led to battles with Israeli troops in which seven people died.

Five years ago: Saudi Arabia formally severed relations with Afghanistan's hard-line Taliban government. Former Chicago Bulls player Michael Jordan, who'd left professional basketball after winning a half-dozen championship rings, announced he was returning to the game with the Washington Wizards. General Motors Corp. announced the 2002 model year would be the last for the Chevrolet Camaro and Pontiac Firebird.

THE NEW TV SEASON DEBUTS ...

It's the Palestinian problem, stupid ...

To paraphrase the rather rude slogan of Bill Clinton's first presidential campaign, "It's the Palestinian problem, stupid."

During the hearings the 9-11 Commission conducted, Lee Hamilton asked a group of FBI agents to explain the motivation of the 19 hijackers. Special Agent James Fitzgerald answered this way, according to the transcript:

"They identify with the Palestinian problem, they identify with people who oppose oppressive regimes, and I tend to believe they focus their anger on the United States."

That's logical. The U.S. has consistently supported Israel rather than forcing the Israelis to settle fairly with the Palestinians, and most of the oppressive regimes in the Middle East are American allies, including for some years Saddam Hussein's.

This somehow got lost in the 9-11 Commission's final report, and the American people were stuck with President Bush's false and ridiculous claim that we were attacked because "they hate freedom."

That the Palestinian problem is the core issue in the Middle East isn't news to anyone familiar with the region. At the meeting at Camp David during the Clinton administration, the Palestinians were asked to renounce the right of all

Charley Reese
Columnist

Palestinian refugees to either return or receive compensation.

The Israelis also refused to supply maps showing a definitive border for the Palestinian state.

Yasser Arafat, who had always been lousy at public relations, made the mistake of leaving without explaining the reason for rejecting the deal. That left Clinton and then-Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak to characterize the agreement to suit their propaganda purposes.

Nor did Arafat go home and start the second intifada. That's another propaganda ploy. Arafat went home intending to continue the negotiations after consultation with his advisers. In the meantime, Ariel Sharon took a thousand of his security people and marched up to the third-holiest site in Islam, the Dome of the Rock, and proclaimed it Jewish property forever.

That sparked a peaceful demonstration by the Palestinians. The Israelis shot dead a number of them, and that is what sparked the second intifada. It also propelled Sharon to the prime minister's office.

It was no accident that three Israelis were seen dancing on the roof of nearby building as the planes hit the twin towers. They had nothing to do with it, but they recognized that it would make the American government easier to manipulate. You can always count on Israel to keep you well supplied with enemies.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram on hospital economics:

The dispute between Adventist-based Huguley Memorial Medical Center and Aetna over reimbursement provides a look into the complex world of hospital economics.

At the risk of being oversimplistic, it works like this: Insurance companies or others who provide healthcare coverage negotiate rates with physicians and hospitals for services. Doctors try to pay their staffs and expenses and earn a living. Hospitals, depending on whether they are for-profit or not-for-profit, try to earn a profit or to at least cover expenses with a little reserve.

If you had insurance, generally there was a deductible either annually or on each individual service. But once that was satisfied, the coverage was total.

Back in the day, hospitals covered losses from those who could not pay with what they charged those who could. They accepted lower reimbursement for vacant beds that had to be kept open and properly staffed because something is better than nothing.

But as the pressure to control costs increased and the reimbursement from federal and state programs decreased, the equation changed.

Reimbursement went from a percentage of what was typically charged to a percentage of what it actually cost to deliver the service. For some hospitals, it became impossible to remain open, as we have seen in some parts of rural Texas.

This could be read as criticism of the insurance business, but it really isn't. Insurance companies seek to drive costs down to make coverage more affordable.

But if, as Huguley claims, its reimbursement is less than at other area hospitals (and perhaps by implication less than the cost of doing business), the future is dim for all but the largest medical centers.

We can't speak to the numbers, because nobody is sharing them.

Perhaps it is just the marketplace at work. But for some medical problems, the survival rate is directly related to the amount of time that passes until treatment begins. That's already an issue in rural Texas. Let's hope it doesn't become an urban Texas issue as well.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My son "Darren" is 13 and has been obese for several years. I have tried many ways to help him lose weight. He was recently diagnosed with sleep apnea and uses a CPAP machine at night to help him breathe. Darren's doctors have told me it's extremely important that our whole family be included in lifestyle and diet changes in order to help our son. My husband, Harry, however, refuses to be involved. He continues to bring home junk food and eat it in front of Darren and me. My son and I are going to an informational meeting about yet another program. I asked Harry to come with us. His answer was, "Why should I pay someone to tell me something I already know?" along with complaints about how hard he works and how he just wants to come home and not attend another meeting. Harry says he supports us, but he doesn't give us any real, meaningful support. Actions speak louder than words. This has been going on for too long. I'm tired of his arrogance and denial concerning Darren's health. I have told Harry this and suggested counseling -- but he just blows me off. Any suggestions? -- CAUGHT IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR CAUGHT: Go ahead with the counseling without your husband. You are not the person caught in the middle here; your son is. His physical problems are life-threatening and he needs all the support he can get. Obesity is a family problem, and you and Darren need to understand why his father is deliberately sabotaging him. It takes real effort to learn to make healthy food choices, prepare it in ways that may be different from how you learned to cook, and to present it in a way that is appealing. If your husband insists on bringing home junk food, you can't stop him. But he should not be allowed to eat it in front of you and your son. In order to accomplish what you must, you may need assertiveness training. And that's where the counselor comes in. Please don't wait. Start NOW.

DEAR ABBY: I ended a relationship with "Bill" after I discovered evidence that he was also sleeping with another woman. I later learned that Bill had had multiple relationships while he was with me. I also found out that almost everything he'd told me about his life was a half-truth.

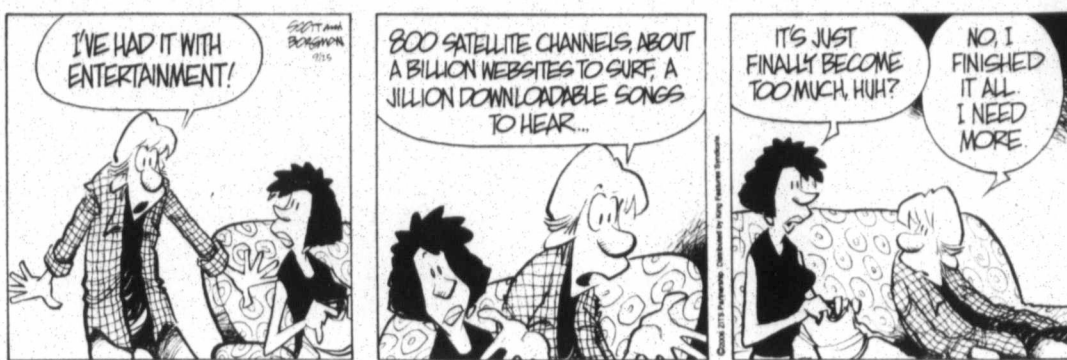

As part of a healing process, I apologized to Bill's ex-wife, "Donna," for any pain my relationship with him had caused her. She was generous and reached out to assure me I had been the victim of a diagnosed sexual psychopath. Donna told me she had discovered 17 victims during her marriage to Bill. Through therapy, she learned he was expert at taking control of women by making them at first feel needed, and later unstable when his facade began to crack. It took Donna 25 years to gain the courage to file for divorce against him. During my relationship with Bill, I transformed from a confident professional woman to someone who doubted all of her decisions. I'm happy to be rid of him, but I have learned that he has recently gotten engaged. I feel I should warn his new victim. She's a good woman, and I know she thinks he's a wonderful person. Friends and family tell me to keep silent because she won't believe me and I should not put myself at risk. Some guidance, please. -- NO LONGER A VICTIM IN NEW YORK

DEAR NO LONGER A VICTIM: Your family has a point. The woman may not want to hear, nor want to believe, what you are trying to convey. However, you, Bill's ex-wife, and as many of the women he has taken advantage of as the two of you can gather should arrange a get-together and let her know what she's in for. After that, to paraphrase Dorothy Parker, "you can lead a horse to water but you can't make her think."

Quick fix for America's athletes: money

By JIM LITKE
Associated Press

STRAFFAN, Ireland (AP) - Everybody thinks Americans can't beat the rest of the world at anything anymore because our athletes are too flush.

So think unconventional and get ready to throw even more money at the problem. The quickest route back to global domination - maybe the only one - is to convince them they aren't flush enough.

The Ryder Cup officially ended when Englishman Luke Donald rolled home a 10-footer on the 17th green Sunday afternoon to seal a tie for the current owners, and all those points the Europeans piled up afterward en route to an 18 1/2-9 1/2 thumping were just so much gravy.

A few hours earlier, a few thousand miles to the east, Andy Roddick went deep into the fifth set against Russia's Dmitry Tursunov before buckling 17-15, folding the U.S. tent in the Davis Cup semifinals behind him.

In what looks ominously more like a trend than a coincidence, those losses follow a year in which the U.S. women's basketball team followed the men down the drain at the World Championships; the U.S. didn't even sniff the semifinals after losing to Canada and Mexico at the World

Baseball Classic; and the U.S. soccer team couldn't climb out of pool play at the World Cup.

What all those events have in common - other than the word "World" in the title - is that our guys didn't get paid for playing.

Yes, they flew first-class and received jewelry, a week's worth of clothing, gourmet meals, courtesy cars, child care, music players and more - all free of charge. But most of them have garages so crammed with freebies that the second or third Mercedes gets left out on the driveway as it is. And while national pride might be reward enough to motivate the rest of the world's athletes, it no longer works on sound fundamentals of anybody who ever played basketball.

And long after bankrolling enough money to land his great-great-great grandchildren on Easy Street, Jordan remained the hungriest competitor in every game he ever played, whether it was the NBA Finals or pingpong in his own rec room.

'Maybe we don't play team sports well, because even in those, all you hear about growing up is how you can't ever count on anybody but yourself. Over here, they play one basketball game a week and practice for five. We play three nights out of seven, or more.'

— Michael Jordan
Former NBA Player

And he notched more than a few of them not by sinking the winning shot, but with a defensive stand or a deft pass. The problem is that Jordan was always the exception.

And too many of those other kids who grew up wanting to be like Mike went too light on substance and too heavy on style.

Instead of focusing on Jordan's six championship rings and the sacrifices that went into earning them, they zeroed in on his last two contracts.

Instead of understanding that Jordan's fearlessness was the byproduct of hard work, they worked on their scowls. He was never afraid to lose because he knew he'd already done everything he could to win.

Contrast that with Chris DiMarco's adventure on the 18th hole Sunday.

The Ryder Cup was already comfortably in European hands by the time he and Englishman Lee Westwood stood in the 18th fairway.

DiMarco hit his second shot into the pond fronting the green, while Westwood put his second on the putting surface, about 30 feet from the flag. The American then dropped another ball and hit his fourth shot into the water.

He then walked all the way to the green before conceding the match and shaking Westwood's hand.

DiMarco thought he was refusing to lose. All he was really doing was going through the motions. Like the rest of this team, and all those other U.S. teams that keep tripping on the world stage, maybe that was the problem all along.

SPORTS-A-PLENTY

What a weekend

Michigan State meltdown

What in the world happened to Michigan State Saturday night? The Spartans were all but manhandling Notre Dame, leading by 16 points entering the fourth quarter. Then the kids in green appeared to simply run out of gas.

Michael J. Stevens
Sports Editor

Nothing against the Fighting Irish but, I just don't like them. No reason really. They are just one of those teams I can't seem to cheer for. They are my Dallas Cowboys of college football. Which made watching them come back to beat MSU 40-37 even more painful. OK, the Spartans were also one of my picks and I was already struggling enough as it was.

Go Broncos

Though not a Fantastic Five Pick game, the horror of the Michigan State loss was nearly washed away Sunday night as I watched my beloved Denver Broncos expose the New England Patriots for what they really are this season - a team of mortals finally feeling the pain of free agency and rebuilding. The difference between the Pats and teams like Notre Dame and Dallas? I actually like New England.

Did you notice?

— Except for Dumas, who had the week off, the Pampa Harvesters (2-2) were the only District 3-4A team to register a win over the weekend. Palo Duro, Hereford, Randall and Caprock all lost. Pampa defeated Borger on the road, 14-7. Pampa running back Chase Harris had 140 yards rushing as well.

— Though now graduated, Evan Grice still supports his Harvesters. I also learned when it comes to the Fantastic Five, he is tossing his support my way. "Don't worry, you'll bounce back. I'm cheering for you, Michael J." he said as he shook my hand Friday night. You know Evan. You've seen him at many a Harvester sports event. Perhaps you know him better as his alter ego, The Green Monster.

— The Pampa High School varsity volleyball and tennis teams notched their first district wins of the season. Both defeated Caprock in Amarillo Saturday. The teams will each host Palo Duro Tuesday afternoon.

— The 'let's wait until the end of the season to come on and try to make the playoffs' Houston Astros wrapped up a four game series sweep over division leaders St. Louis Cardinals Sunday night. The Astros are now within 3 1/2 games of the Cardinals in the National League Central division.

— NASCAR Nextel Cup driver Jeff Burton brought a 175-race winless streak to an end Sunday by winning the Dover 400. Burton, who drives for Richard Childress Racing, now also finds himself atop The Chase points standings with eight races to go. Teammate Kevin Harvick fell to fifth after blowing an engine.

WT's Bullitt honored

CANYON — Pitted against one of the nation's top offensive units on Saturday night, West Texas A&M needed a sturdy outing by its defense to overcome Northeastern State. One of the many standouts on the defensive side of the ball was freshman linebacker Bradley Bullitt, who was honored as the Lone Star Conference South Division's Defensive Player of the Week today.

In a closely contested game, it was a big play by Bullitt that proved to be the margin of victory.

During the second quarter with the game tied 7-7 and 3:31 remaining in the half, the Garland native scooped up a fumble and raced 58 yards for what would be game-winning touchdown.

Bullitt was the Buffaloes' third leading tackler against the Redmen, making three solo and five assisted tackles.

Bullitt was not the only WTAMU linebacker to post an impressive performance against the Redmen as sophomore Jared Brock registered a career-high 20 tackles, while junior Steve Allen was second on the team with 10 stops.

Senior Lee Orr also contributed to the win as he intercepted his first career pass to derail a possible NSU scoring drive during the second quarter.

Indians drop Rangers, 11-6

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Grady Sizemore wasn't thinking about another home run when he hit a flare down the left-field line. Then Cleveland's speedy leadoff hitter saw the ball rolling behind the outfielder and his coach waving him home. Sizemore's first-ever inside-the-park homer, and major league-leading 90th extra-base hit, came an inning after he homered into the second deck of seats in right field. His first multihomer game highlighted the Indians' 11-6 victory Sunday and spoiled the Texas Rangers' home finale.

"It's usually those first two or three steps out of the box that give you a chance to do it or not," Indians manager Eric Wedge said. "He was getting after it like he always does. With the way the ball bounced, he was able to get it."

Sizemore said he had never had an inside-the-park homer at any level, not even Little League.

"It was definitely exciting," Sizemore said.

Carlos Lee made an unsuccessful sliding attempt to catch the looping fly ball in the sixth. The ball rolled past him into the corner, and Sizemore easily scored.

"A lot of guys would have been coasting to first base seeing if it was going to fall," Rangers manager Buck Showalter said. "He is probably one of the few guys that would have been going that hard out of the box to score on it."

When Lee came to bat in the seventh and ninth innings, the potential free agent was greeted with a chorus of boos.

"It's a play that we'd like to make, but we didn't," Showalter said.

Sizemore's conventional homer in the fifth made it 6-2 and chased Kevin Millwood (16-11), who had won his last four home games.

Aaron Boone had a pair of two-run singles in Cleveland's last road game.

The 90 extra-base hits by Sizemore are the most by a leadoff hitter since Alfonso Soriano had 89 leading off for the New York Yankees in 2002, which was then the most since 1957. Soriano also has 89 extra-base hits this season, the most in the NL for Washington. He has moved around the lineup some with the Nationals.

Sizemore leads the majors with 131 runs scored, to go along with his 52 doubles, 11 triples and 27 home runs.

"I don't know if I'm the typical leadoff hitter. I just try to make things happen," Sizemore said.

Tennis: Pampa defeats Caprock, 14-7

The Harvester tennis team earned its first district win of the season by defeating Caprock Saturday, 14-7.

Pampa is now 1-1 in District 3-4A moving into Tuesday's home meeting with Palo Duro.

The Harvesters jumped out to a 5-0 lead against Caprock Saturday before being tied 6-6. They two teams remained tied until Pampa was able to come away with all but one of the rest of the matches.

Coach Emily Laurence said afterward, "Fortunately we came out of doubles on top which is a major goal of this team." She continued, "The team played well in singles but will definitely need to pick it up for our match against Palo Duro on Tuesday."

Players of the match: Haley Acker, Rachel Lee, and Jareth Fortenberry.

The JV tennis team also defeated Caprock Saturday, 11-5. "I was so proud of these kids," coach Starla Kindle said. "They played hard and had a huge desire to win."

The girls team won every match, contributing to the overall team score.

Players of the week: The entire JV girls squad. Pampa will host Palo Duro Tuesday. Matches will start at 3:30 p.m.

The PHS tennis team will conduct its second annual Mini Tennis Camp Friday. The fund raiser is open to all kids from kindergarten through the 5th grade. For more information contact the athletic office, 669-4830, or Synda Foreman, 688-7772.

Astros sweep Cardinals; gain ground

HOUSTON (AP) - Roger Clemens waved to Houston's fans for the final time this season. Then, the rest of the Astros gave the sellout crowd even more to cheer about on Sunday night.

Clemens struck out six in five innings and Aubrey Huff hit a three-run homer in the seventh as the Astros beat the St. Louis Cardinals 7-3 to complete a four-game sweep.

"It was a great deal of fun," Clemens said. "I wish we could take these last four crowds we've had here with us on the road."

Clemens got a no-decision in his 689th career start. He left before the Cardinals batted in the sixth inning, with the Astros leading 3-1. The Houston infield gathered around the Rocket before manager Phil Garner replaced him with left-hander Wandy Rodriguez.

Clemens tipped his cap and waved to the cheering crowd in what may have been the second-to-last start of the season - and his 23-year career. The 44-year-old Clemens has not said whether he'll return in 2007.

Clemens said he was focused on pitching Sunday night, not his future. "I knew what was at stake," he said. "You don't want to be the one to drop the ball. Your energy and your concentration has to be at its highest."

Clemens had plenty of family in the stands, but said that's no indication that this was a farewell performance. Neither was his cap-doffing.

"I'm not going to say a whole lot right now," Clemens said. "I just threw my hands and really, tipped my cap to the crowd for them, not for me. I was tipping my cap to them for all they've done while we're at home."

Clemens walked off with similar fanfare Wednesday, which most expected to be his last start at Minute Maid Park. But after he threw six scoreless innings against Cincinnati, Garner asked Clemens if he could pitch again Sunday and Clemens said he'd be ready.

Fans bought about 4,000 tickets for the home finale on Friday to secure the 26th sellout of the season.

Sunday's crowd of 43,704 was the third largest for a regular season game at the seven-year-old ballpark. Clemens' first start this season, against Minnesota on June 22, drew the record crowd of 43,769.

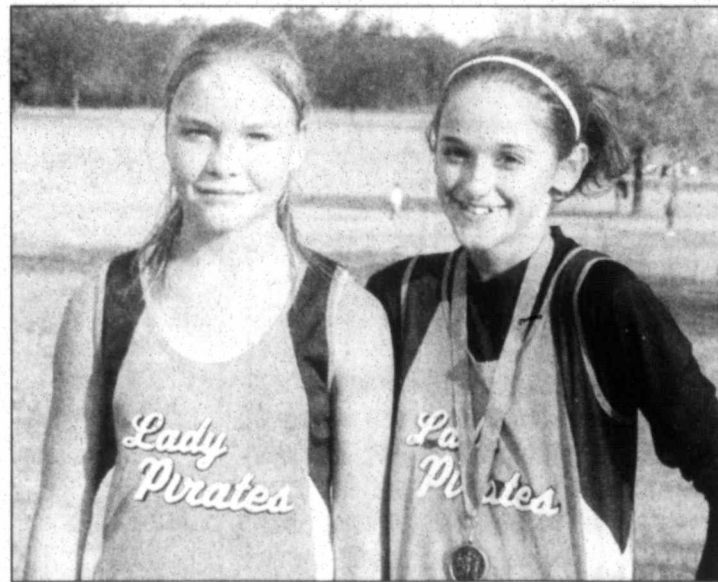

The seven-time Cy Young winner expects to pitch one more time this season, probably in Atlanta on Friday.

Clemens said his arm "felt a little heavy" early in Sunday's game and Chris Duncan, Albert Pujols and Scott Rolen hit three straight singles in the first inning for a 1-0 lead.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday, Sept. 26, 2006:

You have an unusually dynamic year ahead of you. You will want to incorporate different types of thinking, different methods and new technology into your daily life. The more open and innovative you are, the greater your success will be. Come December, you might decide that it is time for a new car or an item that makes communicating easier. Better communication is highlighted from the winter on. You will expand your circle of friends. Your popularity will increase as well. If you are single, meeting people happens very easily. You might choose to play the field. If you are attached, you express your warmth, which increases the strength of the bond that draws the two of you together. SCORPIO can cost you.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ Confusion sets in when dealing with others, a friendship or when in a meeting. Right now, your best bet is to get down to basics with one person at a time. A key person stands behind you. You might be touched by this person's support. Tonight: Make nice.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ You might not believe what is heading down your path. In fact, you might be 'stunned'. Clearly, you are not getting an accurate view of a community commitment, a boss or a higher-up. You could be dragging. Tonight: Accept an invitation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Continue the role of the work-horse of the zodiac. You could be overwhelmed by everything you need to get done. Do not allow interference. Keep your priorities in mind. You might be a touch negative or overworked. Tonight: As you like.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ Your creativity comes out, but at the same time, it could cost you a financial risk or gamble. Play it conservatively, and you will be much happier. Someone tries to pull you into his or her thinking. Logic, my dear Cancer. Tonight: Let off some steam doing what you love.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★ You might feel austere and as if it is all business right now. The problem might be that a family member or partner is not in the same space as you. You will tend to create uproar or try to do something very differently. Tonight: Happy at home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ Your choices might be colored by a strong need to cap an issue or problem. Because you will be driven, you might not make the perfect choices, involving both your long-term goals and a special partnership. Tonight: Touch base with a pal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ You might want to spend more than you have. Stop. Look at your goals and desires with a discriminating eye. Not everything has to be done the way you think. Open up to new technology in your work and daily life. Tonight: Indulge a little.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ Your personality makes even a severe disciplinarian smile. You will open up to new possibilities if you just flow with a situation. Good luck surrounds you, no matter which way you turn. Don't take a parent, boss or authority figure's comments personally.

Tonight: It's your time to howl!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ Know when to pull back or attempt another approach. You will be happiest if you keep your opinions to yourself until you get more facts or find an expert or two. You might be very tough on someone — an in-law or a distant friend. Tonight: Get all the sleep you can.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ A partner might not mean to rain on your parade. If you can bypass an issue, all the more power to you. Focus on what you want, steering key associates down the same path if need be. Friends are just plain lucky for you. Tonight: Where the fun is.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ You might want to think about your image. Right now you have a way about you that commands respect and draws positive results. You are lucky if you accept responsibility. Remain confident. Tonight: Out and about.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Reach out for someone at a distance. You might want to try something very different. Be willing to blaze a new trail and do something very different. You might be pushing yourself beyond your limits. Tonight: Walk in another's shoes.
