'Expect Respect Date Night' scheduled April 5

Severe storms sweep area with tornadoes, hail

By KERRI SMITH Staff Writer

Tralee Crisis Center is sponsoring an "Expect Respect Date Night" on April 5 for parents and teenagers.

The goal of the event is for parents, or other positive role models, to take their teens out on a date and model what a respectful evening is all about.

Parents can call Tralee and have an invitation delivered to their teen at school and take them out for a meal at one of three local restaurants that are offering discounts to those who present the invitation.

Angie Cortez, receptionist at Tralee, said this is an important time for parents to "model" how teens should treat others and also how they should expect to be treated as

"Some teens don't know that they deserve to be respected by others," Cortez said, "Parents need to teach their kids by example and this is a great time to do that."

Parents can call Tralee now through Monday to have an invitation made up for their teen date. Students in Family Career and Community Leaders of America at Pampa High School will deliver invitations to the teens on Tuesday or Wednesday during school.

DPS issues warning of Internet job scam

The Texas Department of Public Safety has issued a notice for persons to beware of a scam that has been advertised in several small town newspapers up and down U.S. 287.

The scam suggests making up to $2,700 a week from home over the Internet. The company claims to be Internet based and tells people they can work from home on their computer. When people contact the company, they are told they only need to cash checks from overseas companies.

The checks vary in amounts but it always boils down to cashing a check for them, according to Trooper Daniel Hawthorne, public information officer for Texas

After the check is cashed, the person keeps 10 percent and forwards the remaining amount to the company, usually through Western Union.

Then the bank will call the person who cashed the check and tell them the check was bad. "Please avoid these scams, they are always too good to be true," Hawthorne said. "Anytime you are told you can make this much money at home on your computer for another company it is a scam."

Thornberry's office to host forum for service academies

Academy Forum in Amarillo to provide information to interested students and their parents about attending the U.S. service academies.

The Forum will take place from 9 to 11 a.m. Saturday at Amarillo Public Library, Southwest Branch, 6801 SW 45th Ave.

Representatives from West Point, the Naval Academy, and the Air Force Academy will give presentations and answer questions. Staff members from Thornberry's office will also be on hand to explain the application process.

The Forum is designed for potential nominees in their junior or senior year of high school, but all students, parents, and counselors are invited to attend.

"Graduates of the service academies are essential to the continued strength of our Armed Services," Thornberry said. "As we AMARILLO — U.S. Rep. Mac fight terror at home and abroad, we must Thornberry's Amarillo office will host an remember that the officers produced by the academies will be the future leaders of our troops. This is one of the reasons I consider nominating young people to service academies a very important part of my job.'

As a member of Congress, Thornberry is allowed to nominate a limited number of students for each service academy. Applications for nomination must be submitted to Thornberry's office by Dec. 1 of a student's senior year.

After reviewing Congressional nominations, final selections and offers of acceptance are made by the service academies. Nominees who are accepted by the academies receive a free education. In return, they agree to serve in the military for a minimum of five years after graduation.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

What should be done about the dress code for Pampa schools?

Jerry Miller Halliburton Pampa

"They should just enforce the policy they already have. Why make new rules when they don't even enforce the current rules?"

Paul Munsell Parole Officer Pampa

"Enforce the current dress code. It's pointless to make a new policy when you don't make the students abide by the one that is already in place."

Deborah Henson Nurse Lefors

"I didn't know they had a dress code. They should just strictly enforce the current policy. It's ridiculous to make new rules that they won't make the students follow anyway."

Karen Irons PHS teacher Claude

"I think simple uniforms would be much better. Just khaki pants and different color polos without emblems would be easy. This would cut down on a lot of the teasing and criticizing from students and they could concentrate on education. I know this has been done in the Dallas area and it has worked well there."

Randy Dunn PHS teacher Pampa

"Just leave it alone."

Michael Foreman Senior PHS

"I didn't know there was a problem with the dress code. The only distraction I've seen is when they get on to people for what they are wearing. If they adopted a standard of dress with polo shirts and jeans, that would be great. I would love that."

Research suggests blueberries, copper aid good health

Two recent reports, provided electronically from the Agricultural Research Service, seem to support the adage "you are what you eat." One of the articles is headed "Blueberry Skins Eyed as Cholesterol Busters." The other is titled, "Dietary Copper May Ease an Ailing Heart."

Both really make you well, both really made ME ponder the significance of diet to good health.

According to the ARS, blueberry skins have been found to greatly lower cholesterol levels even when combined with otherwise unhealthy foods – no doubt, foods I typically enjoy.

"ARS chemist Agnes Rimando and collaborators found that feeding hamsters a diet extremely high in cholesterol, but supplemented with freeze-dried skins of rabbiteye blueberries, produced plasma total cholesterol levels 37 percent lower than those of hamsters fed a control diet," the article reports.

The ARS found that bad cholesterol levels (known as LDL) were significantly lower in the blueberry-fed hamsters than in the control group. In fact, hamsters fed high-cholesterol diets in conjunction with doses of

The purest definition of junk e-mail is "any unsolicited sales message sent to your address." Most of these messages fall into three categories: 1) Make money fast!; 2) invitations to visit adult sites; and 3) offers to get YOU into the junk e-mail business.

Most people on the "junk e-mail" to describe this garbage. We call it "spam." Much to Hormel's frustration, the term, spam, has been used to describe junk e-mail. This maligned

A while back, I wrote a and a verb. For instance: A piece of junk e-mail is called "a spam." The person who sent it is called a "spammer." If you received it, you have been "spammed." I know that sounds funny, but trust me, you'll hear it described that way.

Spamming is definitely a no-no on the Net. In fact, most Internet Service Providers specifically outline this offense in their terms and conditions. Spam is a very serious issue with ISPs, but not for the reasons you assume.

Let's say I run a small ISP, EricNet, and I have 500 customers. If one of those cus-Internet don't use the phrase tomers decides to spam a million or so addresses on the Net, what will happen? Well, think about it.

Depending on the quality of the e-mail address list used, about 20 percent word can be used as a noun (200,000) of the messages will "bounce" back to the That's right. One bad spamsender as being bad addresses. Around 50 percent of the recipients will be so livid, they will write angry replies DEMANDING to be removed from the spammer's list. In fact, only about 500 or so offer. You may not think 500 is a very good return on 1 million messages. But remember: How much does it cost a spammer to send a thousand e-mail messages? A million e-mail messages? That's right, nada, nothing.

My point is this: Over 700,000 e-mail replies (most of them angry) will be dropped on EricNet within the course of a few hours. What do you think will happen to Internet Access at EricNet during that time? Can you say, "NO access?"

mer could make EricNet the enemy of every hacker on the Net. Going out of business is a very real possibility. When an ISP discovers one.

that one of it's customers is a spammer, they immediately cancel the user's account. In fact, the perpetrator is blacklisted from ever using EricNet again. Like I said, ISPs take spamming VERY seriously.

Perhaps the most-asked spam question I receive is, "How did I get on Satan's list in the first place?" The answer is more complex than most people realize. Let me start at the beginning:

Pretend you just discovered your uncle is on the Internet. However, you don't know his e-mail address. Is there a way for you to find it? You bet. Get a pencil and paper. You'll want to write this down. Are you ready? Pick up the phone and ask

San Antonio Express-News on the recent death of a critic of Russian President Vladimir Putin:

The Russian people, like all people, confront a variety of factors that can cut short their life expectancy: smoking, obesity, lack of exercise, excessive drinking.

But few things seem to have such a deleterious effect on their health as criticizing Russian President Vladimir Putin.

In October, journalist Anna Politkovskaya was fatally shot in her apartment building.

Politkovskaya had written scathing reports about the war in Chechnya and human rights abuses by the Russian military and its Chechen partners. Her murder remains unsolved.

Then in November, Alexander Litvinenko, a former colonel in the Russian Ministry of State Security the successor to the KGB mysteriously died in London from radiation poisoning. Litvinenko was investigating Politkovskaya's death when he was stricken. His murder remains unsolved.

Now Ivan Safronov, a retired colonel and military affairs correspondent for a Russian newspaper who had run afoul of the Putin government, has met an untimely end. According to authorities, Safronov fell from a fifth-floor window in the stairwell of his Moscow apartment building. He lived on the third

The International News Safety Institute ranks Russia as the secondmost deadly nation for journalists during the past 10 years, after Iraq. According to the International Federation of Journalists, close to 40 killings of journalists have taken place since Putin came to power seven years ago. None of them, says IFJ, has been satisfactorily resolved.

Elections for Putin's successor will take place in a year. Given the premature parting of his critics, will anyone be around or be audacious enough to write a negative assessment of his

You will not find a comprehensive list EVERYONE's e-mail address on the Internet. Nor would you want there to be one. If such a list existed, every cretin would harvest it, and you would be buried in junk.

So, once again, how does your address get on those lists? Remember that joke Aunt Edna e-mailed to you last week? Get ready for this. She sold you out, albeit unintentionally! Most people send jokes to more than one person at a time. They put copy) field. They will all still everyone's e-mail address in the "TO:" field. Usually, when someone receives the joke, they simply forward it to their friends, and so forth, and so on. After a while, these jokes have so many addresses on them, you have to scroll quite a bit just to see the funny story.

Many spammers have software that can extract email addresses out of messages. Even if you don't forward jokes to others, if anyone has sent a joke to you, your address becomes public knowledge. My advice: When forwarding jokes, put all of your friends' addresses in the BCC (blind carbon receive the joke, but their addresses will not show up on the messages. Not only are you protecting their privacy, you are preventing spammers from using their addresses.

Another technique used by spammers is called the 'Dictionary Harvest." A spammer will program his computer to send e-mail to every-word-in-the-dictionary@somedomain.com. In other words, if your user name is a dictionary word, you could get spam automatically. Common user names are also thrown into the mix. Trust me, everyone's address that begins with cooldude or superman will receive more than their share of junk e-

At this point, I need to make a very important clarification. Attention, jealous spouses: If your husband or wife receives a piece of adult junk e-mail, it DOESN'T mean they have been frequenting those types of Web sites. Everyone will receive adult e-mail at some time or another. It just goes with the territory.

As you've probably noticed, it's not a question of IF you will ever receive junk e-mail, it's just a matter of WHEN. So, how can you stop it? Find out next week! See you in Cyberspace!

Lopez promotes all-Spanish album

NEW YORK (AP) -Jennifer Lopez, who has proudly declared herself "just a girl from the Bronx," delighted fans in her old neighborhood Wednesday by appearing at a local record store to sign autographs and promote her first all-Spanish album.

A crowd of 500 gathered in front of the store to see Lopez, who was accompanied by her husband, Marc Anthony.

"I want to say thank you to everyone for coming to celebrate with me this very special day for me," Lopez, a New Yorker of Puerto Rican origin, said in Spanish. Continuing in English, she said, "It touches my heart to be able to bring this album back to my neighborhood, back to my home."

The album, "Como Ama una Mujer," or "How a Loves," Woman

Sacred Grounds
Coffee Studio

Are you one of those folks who just has to have their cup of coffee to make it through the day? If it's no ordinary cup of java you're after, why not check out Sacred Grounds Coffee Studio at 2145 B. North Hobart?

Sacred Grounds has 49 different flavors of coffee syrup with three to four different coffees brewed each day. It is a full-service coffee shop with a drive-thru window, PLUS a commercial production and recording studio as well.

Sacred Grounds is family owned and operated. Owners Brad and Pamela Mathis opened the studio in May 2006.

Sacred Grounds provides a comfortable seating environment. In addition to its assortment of coffees, the menu includes low-fat, sugar-free drinks, Italian sodas, fruit smoothies, muffins and cinnamon rolls.

Pamela is there Monday through Saturday, ensuring consistency of product.

"My goal," Pamela said, "is to offer you an excellent cup of coffee, tea or espresso based drink in a relaxed no-pressure environment."

Pamela has always enjoyed coffee but became passionate about the rich brew after a trip to Italy seven years ago. She "tortured" their poor family and friends, while honing the art of pulling espresso.

Pamela grew up in Lorenzo, Texas, outside of Lubbock, and attended Texas Tech University. She worked for the university for six years prior to moving to Pampa in 2005. She was also office manager for Digital Base Productions.

Brad grew up in Pampa and has been a lifelong Pampa resident. With many years singing and playing guitar in various bands, he performs now with Fencewalker. "With all Brad's musical knowledge is the desire to do more," Pamela said, "so be looking forward to the opening of our recording studio inside Sacred Grounds!" Brad attended the Hank Thompson School of Country Music in Claremore, Okla.

Dear Abby..

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the mother of the twins who have a current fascination for the U.S. military ("Cleveland Mom," Feb. 25), I must reply. As a veteran of the U.S. Air Force (1974-84), I am deeply grateful for the opportunities, training and mentoring I received under the great NCOs and officers I served with. Lessons they taught me have directly contributed to the success I enjoy today as a manager in a Fortune 500 company. Their leadership, professionalism and pride in a job well done have been examples I will follow for the rest of my life. Your advice to visit a VA facility and discuss the sacrifices that may be required by our service members is sound. I would also add asking the recruiters they talk with to arrange meetings with new service members to get a more realistic picture of the day-to-day life in whatever service they're interested in, and to look at each service thoroughly. The parents' concerns are real. Today's military members are more likely to be deployed to an area of conflict than in times past. I would hope that if the twins do decide to join after all this information is presented, the parents would feel a sense of pride that they have raised two children who want to serve their country in an honorable profession with fantastic people who deserve our praise and total support. -- WES M., GLEN ALLEN, VA.

DEAR WES: I heard from many readers who felt my response to "Cleveland Mom" was somehow disrespectful to people serving in the military, and taking me to task for not advising her that trying to encourage her children to carefully consider the decision was unpatriotic. I would like to go on record as saving that I fully support our troops and our veterans. However, I strongly feel that anyone who signs up for military service should understand all the realities beforehand. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: You should know that public high schools are now required to provide contact information for all students to military recruiters. This was a provision of the "No Child Left Behind" act. In my community, parents may opt to have their child's records withheld by filling out a form at the time the student is enrolled in high school. I do not want anyone from any organization recruiting my minor children without my consent. Stories are rampant about military recruiters giving misleading information and using forceful recruitment efforts. Once my children are of age, they will have the education and maturity to investigate and evaluate the information for themselves. Until then, it's my job to be the watchful parent. - TROY IN FREE-HOLD, N.J.

DEAR ABBY: When I joined the Navy in 1973, I was a college freshman, aimlessly going to school. Vietnam was waning, and it was with my parents' blessing. Today I have a college education (paid for by the VA) and a wonderful family and career made possible, in large degree, by the life education and training I got in the Navy. Yes, men who served with me were killed and maimed, but our highways and industries do the same thing every day. Abby, your answer wasn't wrong -- just onesided. I can't imagine my life without eight years in the military. - MACHINIST'S MATE AND PROUD OF IT

DEAR READERS: Stay tuned, because there will be more on this subject tomor-

lose Dirk Nowitzki

Mays get 60th victory,

By The Associated Press

Coming off an unbeaten road trip and with their star player hurting, it would have been easy for the Dallas Mavericks to have a letdown against the lowly Milwaukee Bucks.

Instead, Dallas continued its strong play and rallied to win its eighth straight game — 60th of the season — with a 105-103 victory over the Bucks on Wednesday night.

"To talk about 60 is pretty impressive, especially the way we started," coach Avery Johnson said. "These types of games, we could easily lose, but they refuse to

It is the third time the Mavericks have won 60 games, all in the last five seasons. The top team in the Western Conference has 11 games left in the regular season, which started with four straight losses.

"We just wanted to keep it going," Devin Harris said. 'We had a great road trip, but there were a lot of hurdles tonight we had to overcome."

Dallas had its first 6-0 road trip in franchise history and was poised to continue its winning streak until Dirk Nowitzki went down with an ankle injury in the first half.

After Nowitzki got hurt with 3:42 left in the second quarter, the Bucks went on a 14-4 run to take a 62-54 halftime lead.

Basketball banquet

Pampa News photos by Jordan Reagan

The Lady Harvester basketball players were recognized Wednesday night in a banquet held at the Knights of Columbus. Several girls were awarded individually for their efforts this season. Pictured here are (L-R) McKensie East, recipient of the Rebounding Award, Jasmaine Moore - Hustling Lady Harvester, Kelsie Wyatt - Fighting Heart Award, Tamara Trevathan - Defense Player Award, and Britteni Rice, who recieved the Offense Player Award and was recognized as the Most Valuable Player.

Underclassmen Krishna Henderson and Carlyn Teichmann take the time to share memories of the graduating seniors, Holly Owens, Britteni Rice, McKensie East, Kelsie Wyatt and Tamara Trevathan.

Players expect shootout in Houston

HUMBLE, Texas (AP) — like the Las Vegas Stuart Appleby set a course record in the first round, broke 70 on all four days and finished 19-under-par to win last year's Houston Open.

He thinks he'll have to go even lower to lift the crystal trophy this time.

The Houston Open is back at the Tournament Course at Redstone that drew mixed reviews from the players in its debut a year ago.

The tournament was moved from late April to the week before the Masters and organizers have tried to mimic the conditions at Augusta, speeding up the greens, trimming the rough and shaving down slopes around water hazards.

However, unless a stiff south Texas breeze blows all weekend, Appleby thinks the tournament will look more Invitational than a major championship.

"If this course stays soft, it will be very easy, which is not Augusta," said Appleby, who hasn't won since last year's event. "If it plays firm, fast and windy, it will make us think more Augusta thoughts."

Tournament officials were hoping the new date and their attempts to mirror Augusta would draw an Alist field.

Instead, most of the top players bypassed Houston and headed straight to the real thing, while the Houston Open was once again left without stars such as Tiger Woods, Phil Mickelson, Ernie Els and, now, even three-time champion Vijay

China blasts attempts to use Olympic Games to pressure Beijing on Darfur

BEIJING (AP) — China today blasted separate calls by a French politician and Mia Farrow to use the upcoming 2008 Olympic Games to pressure Beijing into doing more to stop the crisis in Sudan's Darfur region.

"We don't think it is appropriate to link the Olympic Games in Beijing with the Darfur issue and we don't think it will be popularly accepted or echoed by people around the world," said Foreign Ministry spokesman Qin Gang.

"It is a totally misguided approach for people to link the Darfur issue with the Games and try to tip the balance in their favor in order to enhance their own reputation. he said at a regular press briefing.

China, which buys twothirds of Sudan's oil and sells it weapons and military aircraft, has opposed sanctions against Sudan but urged the government earlier this month to follow through on a plan to deploy U.N. peacekeepers to beef up African Union forces in the troubled region.

An editorial by Farrow published in the Wall Street Journal on Wednesday called on corporate sponsors of the Beijing Games to pressure China to do more to help stop the bloodshed in Darfur. There is now one thing that China may hold more dear than their unfettered access to Sudanese oil: their successful staging of the 2008 Summer Olympics," said the editorial by the 62year-old actress and U.N. goodwill ambassador.

"That desire may provide a lone point of leverage with a country that has otherwise been impervious to all criticism." The editorial was coauthored by Farrow's son,
