County tables items on Carruth Pavilion, power-savers

By MARILYN POWERS
Staff Writer

Gray County commissioners took no action at their 9 a.m. meeting today on updating the rental policy of Clyde Carruth Pavilion or on purchase of power-saving devices on courthouse and jail electric motors. "I feel if a group makes money by using the facility, they should pay for it. If they had to pay, they'd be better stewards of the barn," said Precinct 2 Commissioner Gary Willoughby, in whose precinct the pavilion is located. "We need to look at who is non-profit and who is not."

In the past four years, approximately $41,000 has been spent to repair and improve the pavilion, Willoughby said.

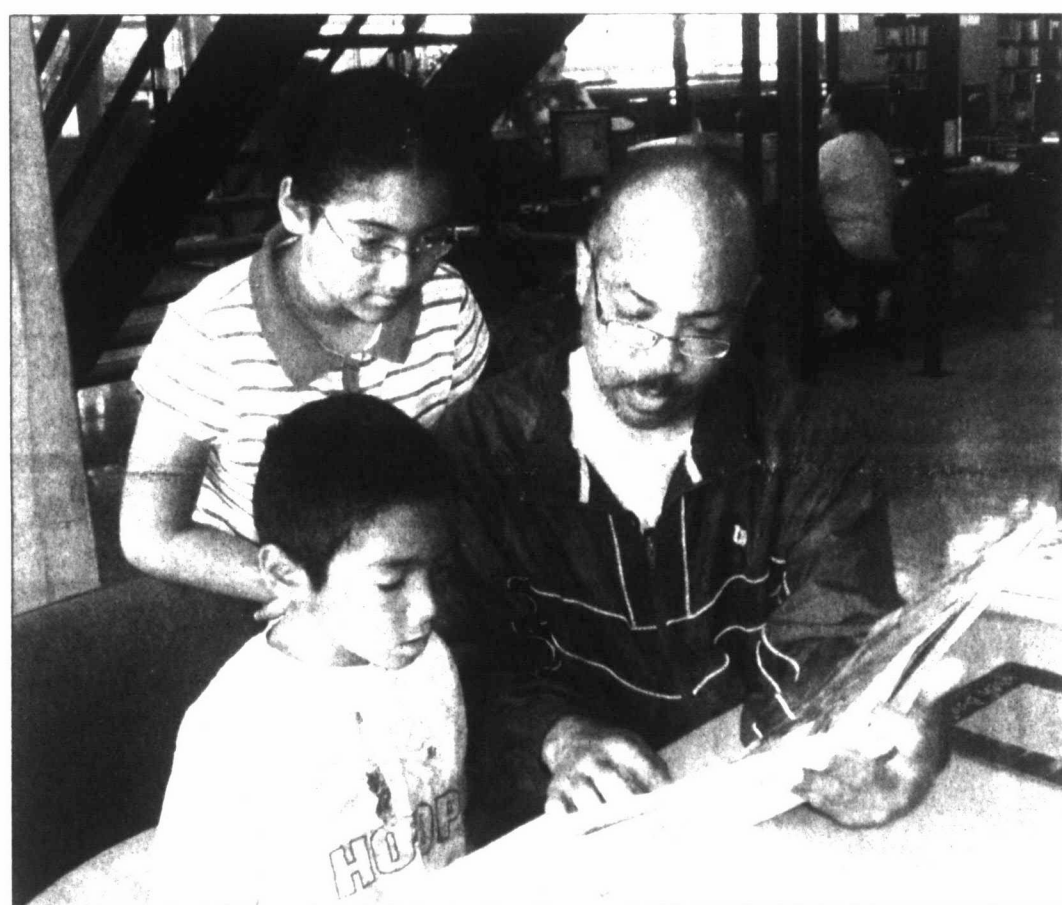

"It was originally intended for use by the FFA and 4-H," said Precinct 3 Commissioner Gerald Wright. "Maybe we should go back to letting them use it for free and have everyone else pay to use it."

About $38,000 in natural gas costs for the pavilion were incurred last December, January and February, Willoughby said. A stock show is traditionally scheduled at the pavilion during that time period, he said.

Income to the county from rental of the pavilion over the past three years totals $8,300, Willoughby said. "That's a service. You can't ever make that break even," said Precinct 4 Commissioner James Hefley concerning the pavilion rental. County Judge Richard Peet suggested revising the rental policy so that all organizations are treated the same, and imposing charges based on the group's usage of the facility. Willoughby moved to table the issue until he can do more research on the situation, and commissioners agreed unanimously. A proposal by Sam Johnson of Johnson-Aire, Inc. in Tucson, Ariz. to place energy-saving devices on electric motors at the county courthouse and jail was also tabled. Johnson had first spoken to commissioners about the devices, called Circuit Masters, in September 2006. He has since installed the devices on city of Pampa water well motors at a cost of $80,190 to the city. City commissioners approved the Kevin Costley took his children to Lovett Memorial Library Thursday to sign up for the summer reading program, which begins next week. Thomas Costley, who will be a second grader, reads aloud to dad and sister Tianni Costley, who will be a fifth grader.

Library offering reading program

By KERRI SMITH
Staff Writer

Do your children need something fun to do over the summer that is free? Lovett Memorial Library kicks off their summer reading program next week for children, ages toddler through fifth grade.

This year the theme of the program is "Sail Away With Books." It is a way to encourage children to read, make fun crafts, enjoy celebrations once a week and just let parents and children get out of the house a little bit this summer.

Starting Monday, and continuing over the next seven weeks, children will come to the library on a specified day from 10 a.m. to noon. Monday is toddlers, Tuesday is K-2nd grade, Wednesday is 3rd-5th grade and Thursday will be all ages for the end of the week celebration.

"We are having registration from 9 to 10 a.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next week," Children's Librarian Jo Sikes said. "Kids do not have to register because it is free, but I want to try and get a head count to make sure we have enough craft supplies and snacks for everyone."

Children can attend as many of the days for their age group as they would like.

"I want to make sure parents know the child is not committed to every week," Sikes said. "If they want to come once or every time, that is solely up to them. If they don't have anything to do, they might want to come

DPS urges motorists to be aware of motorcyclists

With summer vacations in full swing, DPS reminds drivers to always look for motorcycles. The most frequent cause of motorcycle crashes is the failure of motorists in other vehicles to detect motorcyclists. "More than half of motorcycle crashes occur because the driver of the other vehicle simply did not see the motorcycle coming," said DPS Director Col. Thomas A. Davis Jr.

"Do your part as a motorist. Look, and then look again for motorcyclists."

- What can you do? Drive aware:
- Look for motorcycles. They're smaller and easy to overlook. Be aware at intersections.
 - Anticipate a motorcyclist's maneuvers. They may change positions in the lane to respond to driving conditions. Expect and allow room - for such actions.

- Signal your intentions even if you don't see cars in front of or behind you. Be careful, especially while making left turns across lanes of approaching traffic.
- Respect a motorcycle as a full-sized vehicle with equal rights to the road. Give them a full lane.
- Allow plenty of space when following a motorcycle. The slightest contact can cause a wreck. Almost two-thirds of motorcycle-involved crashes are caused not by the motorcyclist, but by the other driver. The driver either does not see the oncoming motorcyclist or does not see him or her in time to avoid a crash. Automobile drivers also con-

Couple building dream house

By KERRI SMITH
Staff Writer

Tom and Mary Cantrell are building their dream house just north of Pampa. This home is a little different than most houses in the area because it's a 7,000-square foot Fold-Form concrete and styrofoam house. The Cantrells have lived in a trailer-house for the last 25 years and have always wanted to build their own home, so 16 months ago that process began. They decided to build a home out of ICF, insulated concrete form, so their home would be more energy efficient, not as vulnerable to tornados or fires and better for their overall health. "We are building this home to accommodate our needs as we grow older," Tom Cantrell said. "This home is wheelchair accessible and we are putting in an elevator. We hope neither of us will become disabled or need a wheelchair, but just in case we are building the house to suit those needs. We are paying for this house as we build it, so that is one reason it has taken so long."

purchase of the Circuit Masters after a three-month trial period in which the devices were installed on some wells and resulting energy savings of between 15 and 23 percent were observed.

The Circuit Masters come with a five-year prorated warranty and a 12-month money-back guarantee to reduce electric bills by 10 percent. Johnson said he also carries a $2 million insurance policy to cover all the customer's equipment in the event that a Circuit Master fails.

Johnson quoted a price of $16,198 to install the Circuit Masters on motors at the county jail, and another $18,256 for motors at the courthouse, for a total cost of $34,454. County Facility Coordinator Larry Andrus said that Johnson had not allowed for all air handlers in the courthouse, and Johnson estimated the extra cost to be between $1,500 and $2,000 to cover them.

"It is not budgeted for," said Wright concerning purchase of the Circuit Masters. "It is not an emergency, and it can wait until budget time."

County Auditor Elaine Morris agreed that there were currently no county funds budgeted for such a purchase. She said the average electric bill for the courthouse for one year totaled approximately $30,000.

"The consensus seems to be that we are interested in doing it, but we will wait until budget time," Peet said.

Commissioners asked Johnson to contact them again in July or August, when budget talks for the 2008 fiscal year will be conducted.

Approval was given to continue the VINE program with the state attorney general's office. The program provides information to crime victims on the status of their case, including release dates of perpetrators. The county receives a $5,728 grant to participate in the program through the district attorney's office, Peet said.

A request by the city of Lefors for the county to relinquish all interest in a piece of tax-delinquent property in that city was also approved. The property, a vacant lot which did not sell at a tax auction, will be used by Lefors Volunteer Fire Department for expansion.

The judge and commissioners were recognized for completing continuing education.

Teen arrested for shooting rifle in yard

BY KERRI SMITH
Staff Writer

Pampa Police Department arrested a Pampa teen Wednesday for deadly conduct with a weapon.

Anthony Dwayne Baston, 17, was arrested for shooting a rifle in a backyard in the 400 block of Magnolia.

According to Assistant

Police Chief Dennis Burton, Baston was shooting at a garage and fence when the house across the alley was struck with a bullet.

"Luckily, no one was injured," Burton said. "There were small children in the backyard prior to this incident, but fortunately the bullet just hit the house."

ery system which improves the indoor air quality. It brings outside air in and pushes inside air out. When the air passes each other, the temperature equalizes so the change in air should not be noticeable.

The Fold-Form system uses two styrofoam panels, each approximately two inches thick, that are connected with plastic ties. These interlocking panels are put together and stacked on top of one another. Concrete is then poured in the middle of these panels. The thickness of concrete can vary from four to 16 inches. The Cantrells chose to have the concrete five inches thick in their home.

"We decided to put radiant heat in the floor," Tom Cantrell, said. "Pipes containing hot water will run under the ceramic tile floor and heat the entire house. The air conditioning is just conventional central air."

The house has a full basement that will be used for a den, library, a place for company to sleep and storage. There is a bathroom downstairs and will also have a mini-kitchen so they do not have to walk upstairs all the time to eat a snack.

"I'm just excited to have a dishwasher in my kitchen," Mary Cantrell said. "I've been washing dishes by hand for 25 years, so that is what I'm most looking forward to."

often force the rider to over-brake, slide and fall.

The most common crash between other vehicles and motorcycles is at an intersection when the automobile driver is making a left turn in front of a motorcycle. More than 40 percent of all motorcycle crashes occur at intersections. In 2005 (latest statistics every week, but if they are busy or out of town, it's OK to miss a few also."

Sikes has come up with a different theme for each week. The book, craft and celebration will revolve around that subject each week.

The week of June 4 will be "sail away," with the children making boats and having boat races on Thursday June 7. The second week will be "sailing to the frozen north" and the celebration will be an ice cream party. The third week is "fun and games" and board games will be available for play on Thursday of that week. The theme for the fourth week is "sailing to the islands" and Sikes will have the children make leis and on Thursday June 28 the kids will have a Hawaiian Punch and watermelon party.

The fifth week of July 2 will be a little different because of the holiday. The craft will be patriotic, but third through fifth graders will come on Thursday instead of Wednesday because the library will be closed for the holiday. So, there will not be a celebration for all of the children that week.

The sixth week will be "sailing to pirates cove" and the children will make eye patches and treasure chests. On Thursday, children will follow clues posted around the library to find hidden treasure.

The last week, which is June 16, will be "making fish" and the celebration that Thursday will be an awards party.

"I'm so excited to do all of these activities with the children," Sikes said. "There are many businesses around town that are donating supplies or food and we really appreciate their support. I just want to encourage children to read and show them how fun it is to go to the library."

For more information on the summer reading program which is free and open to all children ages kindergarten through fifth grade, contact Sikes at Lovett Memorial Library, 111 N. Houston, 669-5780.

Moving around provided many colorful memories

Moving around with the military, my husband and I were privileged to live in some of the most beautiful places in the United States. One of our favorite places to live was Idaho. Even though we only lived there nine months while my husband went to a nuclear power plant training site, we tried to take advantage of the gorgeous landscape.

We moved to Idaho Falls in May and after we found a place to live (we rented a two bedroom house for $275 a month) we decided to spend a few days at Yellowstone National Park, which was just about two hours away.

We were very inexperienced campers. This was the first time to camp without our parents, and didn't think about Wyoming in May being cold. We loaded up our two-man tent and sleeping bags and headed north.

The park had just reopened for the season by a week or two so there weren't many people there to sightsee or camp (probably because, unlike us, they knew it was still cold). We drove through the park and found a nice campsite and clumsily pitched our tent in the dark. We rolled out the sleeping bags and went to bed.

During the night, we both got very cold and wished we had more covers or clothing.

It was a long night and when we finally got up the next morning, we realized how inexperienced we really were.

There was still some snow on the ground in the campsite. We hadn't noticed that in the dark the night before. The neatest thing though was waking up and seeing our neighbors in the next campsite. No, they weren't people, but instead a herd of elk. They were just lying around trying to get some sleep as well.

We realized that the camp consisted of only us and one other camper. It was so peaceful and serene and I'm sure that's why the elk were there. There were not enough people around yet to make them uneasy. We felt like we were exclusive guests in the national park and had been given an "opening day pass" to enjoy without any other people around.

As we drove around the park, we saw very few cars. This was nice because we saw so much wildlife during that trip. There wasn't any traffic or long lines to see the geysers and Old Faithful. When we sat around our campsite watching the animals and enjoying the beautiful scenery, it was so quiet.

We will always treasure this experience and remember how we got to enjoy Yellowstone National Park almost exclusively. We laugh because we just about froze to death and were not prepared to camp in those conditions, but it was so wonderful.

During those nine months, we returned to Yellowstone three or four other times. Even though we thoroughly enjoyed ourselves during those trips as well, it never compared to the opening week experience.

Later, it was so crowded that you have to worry about finding an open camping site in the hundreds of those available or find a vacancy at the motels close by. You had to deal with the traffic, noise and long lines everywhere and the wildlife was not out and visible as much.

Now, I think everyone should visit Yellowstone at least once in their lifetimes because it is a magical place. But, my husband and I will never forget and cherish the cold morning when we awoke to see our neighbors were a herd of elk.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, June 1, the 152nd day of 2007. There are 213 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 1, 1813, the mortally wounded commander of the U.S. frigate Chesapeake, Captain James Lawrence, said, "Don't give up the ship" during a losing battle with a British frigate.

On this date:

In 1533, Anne Boleyn, the second wife of King Henry VIII, was crowned as Queen Consort of England.

In 1792, Kentucky became the 15th state.

In 1796, Tennessee became the 16th state.

In 1801, Mormon leader Brigham Young was born in Whitingham, Vt.

In 1868, James Buchanan, the 15th president of the United States, died near Lancaster, Pa.

In 1926, actress Marilyn Monroe was born in Los Angeles.

In 1943, a civilian flight from Lisbon to London was shot down by the Germans during World War II, killing all aboard, including actor Leslie Howard.

In 1967, the Beatles released their album, "Sergeant Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band."

In 1977, the Soviet Union formally charged Jewish human rights activist Anatoly Shcharansky with treason. (Shcharansky was imprisoned, then released in 1986; he's now known as Natan Sharansky.)

In 1980, CNN made its broadcast debut.

Ten years ago: Betty Shabazz, the widow of Malcolm X, was fatally burned in a fire set by her 12-year-old grandson in her New York apartment. The Broadway show "Titanic" won five Tony Awards, including best musical. The Chicago Tribune published a column by Mary Schmich which urged the graduating class of 1997, among other things, to "wear sunscreen" (the tongue-in-cheek essay ended up being wrongly attributed to author Kurt Vonnegut on the Internet).

Five years ago: President Bush told West Point graduates the U.S. would strike pre-emptively against suspected terrorists if necessary to deter attacks on Americans, saying "the war on terror will not be won on the defensive."

One year ago: Six world powers, including the U.S., agreed on a package of incentives to persuade Iran to halt its uranium enrichment program. The Iraqi government announced its own investigation into reports that U.S. Marines had killed unarmed civilians in Haditha.

A contrite U.S. Army Corps of Engineers took responsibility for the flooding of New Orleans by Hurricane Katrina. Seven family members were shot to death in an Indianapolis house. (Two suspects were later charged.)

Clinton marriage: Strength to go again

It's early yet, but I'm already worried. I'm worried about Bill and Hillary's possible return to the White House — that their personal life may become front-page news again.

The first shot was fired across the bow one year ago. The New York Times interviewed 50 people who know Bill and Hillary. The reporter attempted to get a "grab" — a regrettable choice of words, I know — on the married life of the power couple.

That prompted columnist David Broder to call their marriage the "elephant in the room" (or, as he should have said it, the elephant in the bedroom). He said their personal life will be a hot topic if Hillary runs for president.

He was right. More news folks are beginning to probe the Clinton marriage. They're beginning to wonder if a "First Lady" Bill might do something to embarrass a President Hillary.

Please, God, no.

I don't want to know more about the Clintons' personal life. I'm still trying to forget the stuff I already know.

We've been busy since the Clintons left the White House. Our planes were hijacked and our buildings exploded, we shifted our focus from adolescent problems to adult ones.

We began a war on terrorism. We took out the Taliban in Afghanistan and Saddam in Iraq. The war has not gone well. The Republicans got creamed. Terrorists still hope to blow us up. And Americans are divided about where to go from here.

But where Clinton's peccadilloes are concerned, not a one of us wants to "go there."

I remember when Hillary kicked off her Senate reelection campaign in 2006. Bill came onto the stage and hugged her. It was a fine image, the power couple in a loving embrace. Hillary got a standing ovation when she said Bill was "an inspiration, a mentor, a partner."

And he is an inspiration, a mentor, a partner. He's inspired dozens of investigations, he's mentored an untold number of interns, and you couldn't find a Harvard CPA able to tally the number of partners he's had.

Admittedly, I like Bill Clinton. I'd love to have a beer with him — though only if my sisters are out of town. But I lack the mental, physical and emotional strength to go through this again.

If Hillary becomes the Democratic nominee, we all know the election will be painful. Bill will likely do something reckless, get caught, seek forgiveness, outline a plan for redemption, and then we'll see news footage of him and Jesse Jackson in intense prayer.

But I tremble at what will happen if he becomes first lady.

He'll stroll around the White House in a silk robe,

It takes a great deal of courage to live free

The sage of Baltimore, H.L. Mencken, once observed, "The urge to save humanity is almost always only a false-face for the urge to rule it."

We could even indulge that old habit of division by saying that people are divided into two classes — those who are willing to leave others alone to pursue their own happiness, and those who have a burning itch to tell others how they should do it and, if they don't listen, force them to follow instructions.

I've seen this in my own life. Even under the influence of spirits, I never imagined that disliking the flavor of brussels sprouts could spark anger in another person, but as it turned out, I married just such a person. She had a great many virtues, but it did upset her to find out that people had different tastes and opinions about things.

She thought, bless her memory, that her firm statement that brussels sprouts were good was a universal and indisputable fact. It frustrated her greatly when I insisted that it was merely a matter of opinion, and in my opinion they were not good and that their flavor resembled the smell of sewage.

My philosophy, no doubt a result of my Celtic genes, is that I will do what I like and other people are free to do what they like. Differences of opinion, tastes, even ideology don't bother me. I'm even reluctant to give advice when people ask for it.

In fact, since the traditional definitions of liberals and conservatives have been made obsolete by modernity and its muddy thinking, we can even redefine them. A liberal is person with a burning itch to run other people's lives; a conservative has no desire to do so.

Look at our current society. People who think smoking is bad are not content to quit the habit themselves; they wish to forcibly prevent others from smoking. People who think eating trans fat is bad are not content to avoid it themselves; they want to ban it. People who think

A Weekly Series Highlighting Pampa's Churches

Priest Park Church of God

Bishop Bob H. Kirk and wife Linda.

Church name: Priest Park Church of God, 1123 Gwendolyn, on the corner of Gwendolyn and Sumner, 669-6372.

Minister: Bishop Bob H. Kirk.

Services: Sunday — 9 a.m. nursing home visitation, 10 a.m. Sunday School, 11 a.m. Morning Service & Children's Church, 6 p.m. Evening Service; Tuesday — 11 a.m. Prayer meeting, 6 p.m. Lifesavers meeting; Wednesday — 7 p.m. Family Training hour.

Activities: Family Outreach is scheduled once monthly. The church provides a dinner and activity such as a movie, games, etc. that is open to all who wish to attend. Our next family outreach is scheduled for Saturday June 30 at 4 p.m. This will be a cookout with water games.

Members: 25-35.

Denomination: Church of God, Cleveland, Tenn.

How long here: Since 1938.

Goals: We are hoping to begin work on a garden/park in what is currently a corner parking lot of the church. It will be used for prayer, children's activities and church functions.

Main goal: The main goal of our church is winning the lost. We are also here to provide encouragement and healing for all those who are hurting with the message of Christ's salvation and by spreading the word of God through teaching, preaching, music and fellowship.

Church message: Jesus Christ is Lord, Savior and soon coming King. The Church of God stands now, as it has always stood, for the whole Bible rightly divided and for the New Testament as the only rule for government and discipline.

Responsible parties: Bishop Bob H. Kirk.

Information: We have recently elected a new pastor at Priest Park Church of God. Bishop Bob H. Kirk and wife Linda Kirk have been in the ministry in the Church of God for more than 40 years. They have come to Texas from Blue Field, W. Va., and they are very excited to be here working for the kingdom of God.

MINISTER'S MUSINGS

Believers a light in a dark world

Listening to sermons can be tedious. One weary pastor carried a tape recording of his Sunday sermon to a shut-in, and he went to sleep while listening to it with her.

Yet millions of people do sit through sermons. Week after week they come back. Why? What do they come for? For a suggestion of the answer, consider Peter's sermon on Solomon's porch.

Dr. Jimmy Flynn
Minister

The preaching answered questions raised by a demonstration of God's power. The healing of the lame man called for an explanation.

The New Testament pattern was for works to accompany preaching.

Jesus came doing mighty works and preaching with power. At Pentecost, a display of power drew people together, and then Peter preached.

Missionaries must give a demonstration of Christian living, and when the people begin seeking the secret, they listen to the preaching. This is the secret of effective teaching in our churches.

When God's power is evident in the lives of believers, others listen to the preaching to find the explanation. Only the gospel can explain a Christian life.

People tend to glorify the preacher. The success of the gospel is explained by a preacher's ability, and he is blamed for its failures.

The New Testament opposes this tendency. At Lystra, Paul and Barnabas protested the move to worship them. Only Apollos is called eloquent, and his ministry was marred by the praise.

The preacher's business is to hide himself behind Christ.

The preaching discovers the sin of the hearers. We mistakenly think of sin as primarily sensuality. Its crowning act is to reject the God-given Savior. We are not lost because we have committed adultery or stolen, but because we reject Christ.

What's society to do with drunken murderers?

Another life has been snuffed out right here in Pampa allegedly at the hands of an allegedly drunken driver. Well, one thing is for sure, there is no "alleged" to the death of this innocent little girl and to the agony of her family and friends.

In 1993, most of my family had gathered at my house and some of us were watching a news report concerning Bruce Kimball. He was the one-time Olympic diver who on Aug. 1, 1988, after consuming a dozen beers in just two hours, sped down a dark road in rural Hillsborough County with a buddy in his sports car when he missed a turn and crashed through a crowd of young people partying at a popular nightclub.

Nineteen-year-old Robbie Bedell and 16-year-old Kevin Gossic died at the scene and three others were seriously injured. Kimball's blood alcohol registered 0.20 — twice what was then the legal limit — and police estimated he'd been traveling at between 70 and 90 mph at the time he lost control of the vehicle.

Later he pleaded guilty to two counts of drunken driving-manslaughter and three counts of drunken driving in an accident with serious injuries. A judge sentenced him in 1989 to 17 years in prison and permanently suspended his driver's license.

Now the punch line: He was paroled in 1993 after less than five years in prison, now teaches and coaches diving at a public school in a suburb north of Chicago and has a perfectly legal Illinois driver's license.

At the conclusion of the news broadcast that day back in 1993, I said, "Bruce Kimball should be executed ASAP."

Want to know why I said that? Because I was enraged? I was enraged, but that wasn't why I said that he should be executed.

You see, I believe there is a book, the Bible, that God gave to humanity and it tells us how every significant life situation is to be handled. It deals very clearly with the taking of a human life when it is not in a military situation or selfprotection.

In Genesis 9:5-6, God told Noah that from that point forward if one man murdered another, he was to be killed. In Exodus 21:22-25 God told Moses who told the Israelites that even if two men were fighting and "accidentally" injured a pregnant woman and the baby died, then the two men were to be killed.

In the New Testament in Romans 13:1-4, Paul reminds believers that one of the main purposes of government is to provide security and peace. In order to do this Paul said that God wanted evildoers punished by government even if it required "bearing the sword." Numbers 35:33 reveals that in the eyes of God a murder pollutes the land, and only "the blood of him who shed it" can cleanse it.

Back to my living room in 1993, one of my relatives asked me, "But how would you feel if it had been your dad back when he used to drink and drive?" (My dad is a recovering alcoholic, PTL 22 years sober now and was sitting in the room.)

I turned and answered, "Then he should be executed too, ASAP. And that goes for me and for my children and for my wife. God's law concerning murder does not change. Take a life and your life is to be taken. Period!"

Officials handling this current situation, or another in the future, had better ask themselves what God expects. For it is before Him that they will one day stand and answer for how they handled their position whether it be as a judge, or a lawyer or a whatever.

First, God always expects identification and guilt to be accurately established when a life is taken. Second, He then expects the killer to pay with his life, and not live a life of incarceration (totally foreign to the Bible). The problem with God is that on many matters He is just too simple and direct for an age that specializes in vague, slip-around, political, drawn-out dealings.

Oh, and the next time you think about going out drinking, keep this in mind. God bless.

"Nearer, My God, To Thee"

It was reported that the band aboard the Titanic gallantly played this hymn as the great ocean liner sank to its watery grave on April 14, 1912. This song was written in 1840 by Sarah Flower Adams, an Englishwoman who only lived 43 years. She had great success on the stage playing "Lady MacBeth," but frail health forced her to direct her career on her literary talents. She wrote this hymn to enhance a Sunday sermon on the story of Jacob at Bethel in Genesis 28:20-22. Adams based her verses on the visualization of Jacob sleeping with a stone for his pillow as he dreamed of a ladder reaching to Heaven.

Angry atheist books seem to be hot item on today's charts

By RACHEL ZOLL
AP Religion Writer

The time for polite debate is over. Militant, atheist writers are making an all-out assault on religious faith and reaching the top of the best-seller list, a sign of widespread resentment over the influence of religion in the world among nonbelievers.

Christopher Hitchens' book, "God Is Not Great: How Religion Poisons Everything," has sold briskly ever since it was published last month, and his debates with clergy are drawing crowds at every stop.

Sam Harris was a little-known graduate student until he wrote the phenomenally successful "The End of Faith" and its follow-up, "Letter to a Christian Nation." Richard Dawkins'

"The God Delusion" and Daniel Dennett's "Breaking the Spell: Religion as a Natural Phenomenon" struck similar themes — and sold.

"There is something like a change in the Zeitgeist," Hitchens said, noting that sales of his latest book far outnumber those for his earlier work that had challenged faith. "There are a lot of people, in this country in particular, who are fed up with endless lectures by bogus clerics and endless bullying."

Richard Mouw, president of Fuller Theological Seminary, a prominent evangelical school in Pasadena, Calif., said the books' success reflect a new vehemence in the atheist critique. "I don't believe in conspiracy theories," Mouw said, "but it's almost like they all had a meeting and said, 'Let's counterattack.'"

The war metaphor is apt. The writers see themselves in a battle for reason in a world crippled by superstition. In their view, Muslim extremists, Jewish settlers and Christian right activists are from the same mold, using fairy tales posing as divine scripture to justify their lust for power. Bad behavior in the name of religion is behind some of the most dangerous global conflicts and the terrorist attacks in the U.S., London and Madrid, the atheists say.

As Hitchens puts it: "Religion kills."

The Rev. Douglas Wilson, senior fellow in theology at New Saint Andrews College, a Christian school in Moscow, Idaho, sees the books as a sign of secular panic. Nonbelievers are finally realizing that, contrary to what they were taught in college, faith is not dead, he says.

Signs of believers' political and cultural might abound.

Religious challenges to teaching evolution are still having an impact, 80 years after the infamous Scopes "Monkey" trial. The dramatic growth in homeschooling and private Christian schools is raising questions about the future of public education. Religious leaders have succeeded in putting some limits on stem-cell research.

And the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding a national ban on a procedure critics call "partial-birth abortion" — the first federal curbs on an abortion procedure in a generation — came after decades of religious lobbying for conservative justices.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: In light of the events at Virginia Tech, I need some advice on a situation I encountered at work. I travel to many retail locations each week, and sometimes I am "stationed" at one of them for several weeks, or even months. Two months ago, I was chatting with a young man I'll call "Ryan," and during the conversation he told me that when he was in high school, he had drawn up plans for a Columbine-type assault. The comment came out of the blue, and he laughed it off, saying it would make a good movie script. Ryan is now at a local community college, and I would not want to be a student at his school. He makes me very uneasy, and I don't like having to interact with him. After the Virginia Tech tragedy, I asked him his thoughts. His reply was, "I wouldn't have killed myself." The implication was that the murder of 30-plus people was fine with him, but suicide would send him to hell. This kid really scares me, and my gut instinct is to tell the store management about his comments. If he gets angry someday and snaps, I will feel terrible that I didn't say something, but I am a "visitor" in these stores, and I don't want to be labeled as a troublemaker by them or my employer. What should I do? — VERY TROUBLED IN ARIZONA

DEAR TROUBLED: It's too bad you didn't "remind" Ryan that committing murder would also send him to hell. Because the young man scares you, my recommendation is to go with your gut. However, rather than reporting the conversation to store management, you should bring it to the attention of the police in your community. They can -- and should -- check to see whether he has access to, or has purchased, any weapons.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are planning to attend my niece's wedding next month and, as usual, the prospect of being with my family has thrown me into a tizzy. We are simple people -- we are both teachers, and we have raised three great children but no superstars. My sister and brothers are all wealthy. Their children are excellent scholars and/or athletes, including two who play professionally. I feel fine about our accomplishments and am proud of our children and what they have done -- that is, until I am around my brothers and sister. Then I beat myself up thinking I wasn't as good a mother as I should have been. I am tempted to skip this wedding because this happens every single time, and I don't enjoy my visits with them. What do I do? — TEMPTED TO REFUSE IN THE U.S.A.

DEAR TEMPTED TO REFUSE: I see no reason why you should feel "second best" and compare yourself and your family to your siblings. You and your husband chose to go into one of the "helping" professions rather than one that would bring in more money. Many people would consider that a far greater contribution to our society than accumulating a pile of assets. As to comparing the accomplishments of these "superstar" athletes and scholarly nieces and nephews -- I can't imagine a greater waste of time. If your children are educated, employed and happy with their lives, then dear lady, you have accomplished what is most important. Skip the wedding if that's what you prefer, but please do not do so because you're ashamed of your life. From my perspective, you and your family are very successful people in your own right.

Miller picks up win in Glo-Valve's 13th straight victory

Glo-Valve Service pounded out 13 hits to win its 13th game of the season 12-2 against Cabot Corp. Thursday at Optimist Park. The league leaders in the Pampa Optimist 11-12 Cal Ripken League opened up a three-game lead over Celanese Corp., which lost to Rotary Club 13-2 in Thursday's late game. Reid Miller allowed no runs or hits while walking four and striking out five to win his ninth game of the season for Glo-Valve. Jordan Lemons pitched the third inning for Glo-Valve allowing two runs and two hits. He walked one and struck out one. Zach Graves hurlled a perfect fourth inning for Glo-Valve. Matt Arnold and Kyle Smith were Cabot's pitchers. Graves started a two-out rally in the top of the first inning for Glo-Valve by getting hit by a pitch. He stole second and third and scored on a throwing error. Lemons followed with a single and two stolen bases. He scored when Krysten Miller struck out but reached first when the ball got by the catcher. Krysten Miller stole two bases and came home on a single by Schrade Thompson. Glo-Valve led 3-0. Corey McCarn started a Glo-Valve rally in the second by reaching base on an error. He stole second base, went to third on a ground out and trotted home on a single up the middle by Reid Miller. Reid Miller stole two bases and tallied on a single by Sam Cain. Cain had two thefts and came home on a single by Graves. Graves stole second and third and made the fourth run of the inning for Glo-Valve on a ground out by Lemons. Thompson led off Glo-Valve's third inning with a home run high over the left field wall. McCarn singled and was forced at second by Nickie Wells. Wells went to second on Reid Miller's third hit of the day and took third on a wild pitch. Both runners scored on a double to right field by Cain. Cain stole third and was driven in by Graves, who singled to left field. Cabot's bats woke up in the bottom of the third inning. Brandon Yates slammed the first pitch to right field for a double. He stole third. Taylor Woods walked. Woods was picked off first, but he managed to get back safely. Yates scored on the fielder's choice. A balk sent Woods to second. He took third on a wild pitch and made Cabot's second run of the inning on a single by Arnold. Glo-Valve closed out the scoring in the top of the fourth inning. Thompson walked and stole second. A single to right by McCarn sent Thompson home. Cabot had several outstanding defensive plays. Arnold snared a hard line drive at pitcher and caught a runner off third for a double play in the first inning. J. T. Brown went back to the centerfield fence to haul in a long fly ball to end Glo-Valve's half of the third inning. Woods threw to Sheldon Reeve at third to catch a runner stealing. One of Glo-Valve's outstanding defensive plays came when Graves made a diving stop of a ground ball at second base and then crawled to the base to beat the runner from first to leave the bases loaded in the second inning. Krysten Miller went to her right in Cabot's half of the fourth inning to backhand a ground ball and throw the batter out at first to end the game. In the second game Cody Parks allowed no runs or hits in the first two innings to pick up the win for Rotary. Riley Douglas relieved in the third and permitted just two runs on three hits as Rotary won its first game of the regular season. The Pampa Optimist Youth Club is a Pampa United Way agency.

Mickelson out as another lefty thrives at Memorial

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — There's a lefty atop the leaderboard at the Memorial Tournament. No, it's not the one you might think. Nick O'Hern — the guy who knocked Tiger Woods out of the Accenture Match Play Championship earlier this year — shot a 7-under 65 to join Sean O'Hair and Rod Pampling for the opening-day lead. It was a day most notable for its departures than some sterling rounds. The ballyhooed duel between Woods and another lefty, Phil Mickelson, was put on hold when Mickelson withdrew with an injured left wrist after playing 11 holes. Masters champ Zach Johnson, battling strep throat, dropped out after hitting his approach on the 16th hole. Lucas Glover also left the course early, with back spasms. O'Hern, a soft-spoken Aussie who is happy to play in the shadows, had eight birdies and a bogey in his 65. His claim to fame is ending Woods' seven-tournament PGA Tour winning streak, beating him on the 20th hole in the third round in February. O'Hern had upset Woods two years earlier at the same event.

Cavaliers take lead in double-overtime

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — LeBron James grimaced, limped up to the podium and plopped into a chair behind a microphone. It was the only time he looked human all night. James had already used every ounce of energy to put together one of the most spectacular performances in playoff history, lifting the Cleveland Cavaliers to the verge of their greatest season. James' career playoff-high 48 points — including his team's final 25 and 29 of its final 30 — carried Cleveland within a win of the NBA finals for the first time in franchise history with a 109-107 double-overtime victory over the Detroit Pistons on Thursday night. After the breathtaking display of talent and will gave the Cavs a 3-2 lead in the Eastern Conference finals, the 22-year-old star said he felt terrible.

"I'm banged up. I'm winded. I'm fatigued," he said. "I've got all day tomorrow. It's going to be tough to get some rest when you got a crazy, 2-year-old running around the house. So hopefully, I can take him to one of his grandma's house." James has the playoff-tested Pistons on the brink of going home. Game 6 is Saturday night in Cleveland and if necessary, Game 7 will be Monday night back at The Palace of Auburn Hills. If James can come remotely close to what he did Thursday night, the series might not return to Michigan. The San Antonio Spurs, who eliminated Utah on Wednesday, have a week off before hosting Game 1 of the NBA finals. James made a go-ahead layup with 2.2 seconds left and Detroit's Chauncey Billups missed a shot in the lane on the ensuing possession. It was one of the many driving shots that James made look easy. "Why should I be surprised? I was making a lot of great moves," James said. "They are definitely a great defensive team, but I was determined to attack." The Pistons blew a seven-point lead with 3:15 left in regulation and lost the third straight game in the series after winning the first two at home. Detroit can only hope the series ends like its last postseason matchup with the Cavs. The Pistons won the first two games of the conference semifinals last year, then lost three straight and needed to win on the road and then at home in Game 7. Detroit, with four of the same starters, also advanced in the 2004 and 2005 playoffs after trailing 3-2.

Yesterday's Cryptquote: HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF; THAT'S ONE OF THE THINGS THAT'S WRONG WITH HISTORY. — CLARENCE DARROW

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, June 2, 2007:
Verify that your communications are received this year, as often misunderstandings happen out of the blue. Financial mishaps could also be the end result. The clearer you are, the better your year will be. Often, you might feel as if you don't have enough say. Others dominate this year. If you are single, curb a tendency to sit on your feelings, even if it might be uncomfortable to talk about them. Others often are challenging, yet an enticing suitor will enter your life. If you are attached, often you might not see eye to eye with your significant other. Agree to disagree. Be willing to take certain elements out of the realm of joint status! CAPRICORN understands your depth.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 You finally twist and turn an idea to the point that you find a new resolution and better idea. Take a solid stand and lead others in a new direction. Know what to do and when to do it. Tonight: Leader of the gang.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 Work with a partner, whether it is making plans or resolving a problem. Together you create unusual and dynamic plans. Do whatever you need to do to inspire relaxation and good times. You feel better than you have in a while. Tonight: Reach out for others.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Clearly, others still dominate and make strong choices. You can either cause yourself a problem or really get into the moment—the latter being far more worthwhile. Think less and enjoy more. Tonight: With that special person.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 Clean up a project. Confusion can ensue no matter what your choices are. Confirm where you are going with the person you are meeting. Don't forget about the correct time either! Tonight: Say "yes." Don't fight the inevitable.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 Your wilder side pops in the morning, yet a more conservative side emerges by the afternoon. Avoid being a stick-in-the-mud right now. A risk or change of plans might be just what the doctor ordered. Tonight: Still, don't make it too late.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 Getting going could take persistence. Yet once you are on a roll, you renew and add in your special brand of fun. Let the wild child in you out, even if you might be a tad uncomfortable. Tonight: Let the good times rock and roll.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
 You might want to use greater care rethinking a question that could impact your life. Don't take someone close to you for granted. Show greater appreciation, even if you are suddenly in an argument. Respect and honor this person. Tonight: Best close to home.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
 After you evaluate certain financial concerns, you might want to relax. Join a friend for a late brunch or get-together. Share news, fun and a joke or two. Conversations flow in many different directions. Tonight: Straighten out a misunderstanding instead of worrying about it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
 Use the morning for yourself and your desires. By the afternoon, your plans might demand more attention. Treat a child, friend or loved one to a special time, especially if he or she has trouble relaxing. Tonight: As you like.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 Use the morning for what you want, which could range from some extra sleep to catching up with a special person. By the afternoon, you are suddenly placed in a position of having many people and choices. Tonight: You are the cat's meow.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 Use the morning for what feels very important to you and/or a friend. By the afternoon, opt for private or quiet time. The last place you want to be is with a lot of people. Choose accordingly. Tonight: Choose quiet.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
 Take a stand and honor who and what you want. Touch base with someone you often give a lot of respect. Later in the day, accept an invitation that involves friends and people in general. Socialize. Tonight: Whether at a baseball game or a party, you have a great time.

chomping on roast beef sandwiches and winking at the staff. The White House Easter Egg Roll will ban children and invite coeds.

The White House kitchen will be outsourced to Hooters. Dominos will run a franchise out of the Blue Room. The Lincoln Bedroom will be leased to the Chinese in return for campaign dough and a lifetime supply of General Tso's Chicken.

Goodness knows what his "first lady" mission will be. Laura Bush promoted literacy. Barbara Bush promoted volunteerism. As part of her "Just Say No" campaign, Nancy Reagan discouraged drug use.

I think Bill will embrace "Just Say No," too — "Just Say No to Fidelity, Responsibility and Hillary."

With Bill as first lady, Congress will need to pass a new "don't ask, don't tell" policy — not for the military, but for the White House.

America will need to establish a special Secret Service detail — not to protect Bill from the public, but the public from Bill.

A disturbing new slogan will seep into popular culture: "What happens in the White House stays in the White House."

I don't have the strength to go through this. Please, God, don't make us have to go through this.

owning a gun is a bad thing want to prevent others from owning guns. People who think using certain drugs is bad want to prevent others from using them. People who dislike the Confederate battle flag wish to prevent those who like it from displaying it. And so on and so forth.

In every case, prevention is translated into a denial of choice, and what is freedom but the liberty of making one's own choices? The more areas of our lives in which we are denied the freedom to choose, the less liberty there is. Totalitarianism is the denial of all choices. We haven't gotten to that point yet, but we seem to be steadily marching in that direction, led, of course, by liberal reformers who wish to save us from ourselves. That's why I say that authoritarianism, not democracy, is the direction the world is headed toward.

Truly, I've never understood the psychology of those people who want to control the lives of other people. Granted, parents have to provide some guidance to their children, but even that, I think, should be limited to survival skills and a basic moral code. Children come into the world their own persons, and parents have no right to force them into some kind of mold. Whether a child likes sports or reading should be left up to the child, for example. All of a child's inclinations should be encouraged, and none discouraged. Conditional love is, in my opinion, not love at all. No child should have to earn his or her parents' love.

Alexander Solzhenitsyn said once that America had lost its civic courage, and that might be our core problem. It takes a great deal of courage to live free and to allow others to live free. Maybe I've answered my own question. People's itch to control others might be motivated by fear. That's at least worth thinking about.

The preaching is pointed to the Savior. It is Jehovah who provides Him. All scripture points towards him.

He is the author of life, the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world, the risen one who gives life and health through faith.

The preaching pressed for immediate action.

Life must be radically changed. Repentance was the challenge of John, the call of Jesus, the refrain of Paul.

Wonderful results were promised. Their sins would be blotted out. Times of refreshing would come, and Jesus Christ himself would be sent to them.

The alternative is dreadful: "Every soul, which will not hear that prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people." (verse 23)

The appeal was personal: "Ye are the children of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with our fathers." (verse 25)

The objective of the gospel is twofold. Firstly, to save and bless the hearer, and secondly, to bless others through Him.

The lives of church members not only attract others to the services, but determine the questions in their minds when they come. Happy the church that draws listeners hunting for the secret of the Christians they see.

Christ is the answer, and He is offered freely to everyone who will accept Him.
