County gives blessing to airport taxiway expansion

By MARILYN POWERS
Staff Writer

Perry LeFors Airport's planned expansion of a taxiway received official support by Gray County Commissioners in the form of a resolution at commissioners' 9 a.m. meeting today in the second-floor courtroom of the county courthouse at 205 N. Russell.

The 300-foot expansion of the airport's southernmost taxiway, its widest and biggest, will extend to the east and allow for three to five more hangars to be built, said Paul Loyd, president of the airport board of directors.

The project will be funded with 90 percent federal and state funds and the remaining 10 percent from the airport budget.

"The actual estimated cost is about $375,000, but TxDOT is using maximum dollars available," Loyd said this morning concerning the funding.

Cost of the project was projected to be $374,410 at commissioners' Jan. 15 meeting. Commissioners approved the taxiway expansion at that meeting.

Texas Department of Transportation's Aviation Division, which distributes the state and federal funds for airport projects around the state, noted in correspondence with County Judge Richard Peet that the total amount of funding available for the Perry LeFors project is $466,149, of which $419,534 is federal and $46,615 is local funding.

The expansion project is not expected to begin until this fall, Peet said at the Jan. 15 meeting, with completion some time in 2008.

No action was taken on whether to hire an election administrator, and the issue was tabled until the next commissioners' meeting. County Clerk Susan Winborne, whose office provides electronic voting machines for all elections held within the county, said that from November 2007 through November 2008, there are 13 elections scheduled within the county.

"The work load is just phenomenal," she said of the elections.

Relay for Life

Pampa News Photos by KERRI SMITH
Relay for Life, an event to raise money for the American Cancer Society, was held at Recreation Park Friday night. The first lap was a "survivors lap," which involved anyone who is a cancer survivor. Individuals and businesses donated money for the event, which ran from 6 p.m. Friday through 6 a.m. Saturday. Trinity Fellowship Church had a climbing wall, left, at the event to raise money for the American Cancer Society. Enjoying the wall are Bryce Gordon, 9, right, Marcus Jernigan, 11, center, and an unidentified girl. Below, enjoying the bounce house that National Oilwell Varco brought out to the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life Friday, from left are Evan Myers, 3, Brody Reppart, 2, and Seth Reppart, 4.

'Dip in the Park' scheduled Saturday

By MARILYN POWERS
Staff Writer

Dog owners may wish to take their canine companions for "A Dip in the Park" which will be from noon to 3 p.m. Saturday at Hobart Street Park.

There will be no charge for the dipping, provided by Pampa Animal Control, according to Sandy Burns, animal control supervisor. Donations to Fund 12, which provides food and needed items for animals at Pampa's animal shelter, will be accepted.

The dip is effective against fleas and ticks, Burns said. Animal Control officers will perform the dipping. Another service available during the Dip in the Park will be microchip implantation. A fee of $15 will be charged per pet for the service.

Information on the pet's rabies tag is placed on a microchip which is then implanted under the skin of the animal. If the animal is lost and subsequently taken to an animal shelter, a scanner at shelters nationwide would be able to read the microchip information and enable personnel to get the pet returned to its owner, Burns said.

Nifong resigns again

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Disgraced prosecutor Mike Nifong submitted a new letter of resignation today, agreeing to leave office immediately.

The letter is a formality. Nifong has already been disbarred, suspended from office and replaced by his old boss as Durham County district attorney for his handling of the discredited Duke lacrosse rape case. He had also submitted a resignation letter last month that was to take effect July 13.

Superior Court Judge Orlando Hudson moved ahead last week with an effort to remove Nifong from office under a rarely used process established in state law. But he held off booting Nifong from office until today, allowing Nifong time to send Gov. Mike Easley a new letter of resignation.

Betty Lawrence, an attorney for the Durham resident who filed a petition in February asking Hudson to remove Nifong, pressed the judge to do so in spite of the revised resignation. Without such an order, she said, Nifong could potentially get his law license back and again run for office.

It was a suggestion Hudson dismissed without much of a discussion.

County

The county has the option of hiring an elections administrator who would be paid exclusively by the county to handle county elections, entering into an agreement with one or more of the other governing bodies in the county to fund a joint election administrator, or continuing the current practice of having county clerk staff handle the elections in addition to their current work load, with the possibility of adding a staff member to that office.

Estimated annual cost of having an elections administrator is $51,770.46, Winborne said, including salary, benefits, training and office supplies. The county would also provide office space, equipment storage and administration.

If a joint administrator is chosen, Gray County would pay 50 percent of that total, with the City of Pampa and Pampa Independent School District paying 20 percent each and the remaining amount to be divided among the other school districts and cities within the county who choose to participate.

Each of the school districts and cities would pay a 10 percent administrative fee in addition to the cost of their elections if an elections administrator is chosen but is funded solely by the county, Winborne said. If a joint administrator is chosen, the 10 percent would not be charged.

"I think one person can do the job," Winborne said of the election work load.

Bids for a 1986 Chevrolet pickup from Precinct 3 were opened at 10 a.m. Two bids were received, and commissioners accepted a bid of $656 by John Mark Baggerman for the vehicle. The other bid, by Chris Bridwell, was for $501.

Two vehicles in the sheriff's department were declared surplus property, with bids due at commissioners' first meeting in August.

A roster of election judges provided by Winborne was approved. Each voting precinct has a judge and an alternate with the exception of Voting Precinct 3. Winborne said she is still searching for an alternate for that precinct.

Six line item transfers were approved, along with payment of $157,291.32 in bills and $221,211.16 in salaries.

Benoit's doctor surrenders

ATLANTA (AP) — The personal doctor of pro wrestler Chris Benoit surrendered today to face a federal charge in connection with a drug probe, the physician's attorney said.

Attorney Manny Arora said Dr. Phil Astin will face a single charge involving improperly prescribing medication at a hearing later Monday.

Federal drug agents have taken over the probe into whether Astin improperly prescribed testosterone and other drugs to Benoit before he killed his wife and son and committed suicide in his suburban Atlanta home last month. State prosecutors and sheriff's officials are overseeing the death investigation.

Patrick Crosby, a spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office, said he expected to have a criminal complaint and an indictment in hand Monday afternoon.

Arora said Astin "is doing about as good as can be expected."

The cat traveled in the van from the East Coast to the West Coast, where it was discovered when the van was being unloaded, Burns said. The microchip implanted underneath the cat's skin enabled it to be returned to its owners, she said.

Pets such as cats and dogs are required to have current vaccinations for rabies, Burns said. They are required to wear their rabies tags at all times.

Energy IQ of most adults is non-existent

The world's energy situation is in a mess.

Venezuela demands that the international oil companies "renegotiate" their contracts so that Venezuela can get more and the majors get less.

Russia, the world's largest oil producer, squeezed several companies out of a lucrative Siberian gas project.

Gangs in Nigeria abduct oil field workers.

Iran threatens everyone.

Iraq ... well, its Iraq.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Congress passes laws that create criminal penalties for price "gouging" of crude oil, natural gas, and gasoline, but fails to define "gouging," and narrowly defeated a $29 billion tax bill on the U.S. oil industry to finance research and development on alternative energy sources.

Rex Tillerson, chairman and chief executive officer of ExxonMobil, told the Financial Times newspaper that the actions of the Congress "almost defies any sense of logical or rational thinking."

Instead of enacting laws aimed at increasing energy production, the bills actually would hinder the supplies of energy to consumers.

Somehow it's not surprising the actions of Congress, because the "energy IQ" of most adults is about nil. A new survey released on June 27 by the American Petroleum that Saudi Arabia is the largest supplier of oil to the United States, and only 10 percent correctly picked Canada.

Only 8 percent knew that ExxonMobil is not one of the top 10 largest oil reserve holders, 33 percent thought ExxonMobil was among the top three largest companies.

While the International Energy Agency projects that 81 percent of global energy demand in 2030 will be met by fossil fuels like oil, natural gas and coal, only 14 percent of respondents chose this answer. The majority thought it would be 61 percent or less.

The energy mess of today falls directly on the inaction of the petroleum industry to educate the public about its business. Now, it may have to suffer the consequences.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, July 2, the 183rd day of 2007. There are 182 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On July 2, 1776, the Continental Congress passed a resolution saying that "these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States."

On this date:

In 1807, in the wake of the Chesapeake incident, in which the crew of a British frigate boarded an American ship and forcibly removed four suspected deserters, President Thomas Jefferson ordered all British ships to vacate U.S. territorial waters.

In 1881, President James Garfield was shot by Charles J. Guiteau at the Washington railroad station; Garfield died the following September. (Guiteau was hanged in June 1882.)

In 1926, the U.S. Army Air Corps was created.

In 1937, aviator Amelia Earhart and navigator Fred Noonan disappeared over the Pacific Ocean while attempting to make the first round-the-world flight along the equator.

In 1961, author Ernest Hemingway shot himself to death at his home in Ketchum, Idaho.

In 1964, President Lyndon Baines Johnson signed into law a sweeping civil rights bill passed by Congress.

In 1987, 18 illegal aliens were found dead inside a locked boxcar near Sierra Blanca, Texas, in what authorities called a botched smuggling attempt; a 19th man survived.

'The American Revolution was a beginning, not a consummation.'

— Woodrow Wilson
28th President of the United States

In 1994, a U.S. Air DC-9 crashed in poor weather at Charlotte-Douglas International Airport in North Carolina, killing 37 of the 57 people aboard.

In 1996, electricity and phone service was knocked out for millions of customers from Canada to the Southwest after power lines throughout the West failed on a record-hot day.

In 2004, actor Marlon Brando died in Los Angeles at age 80.

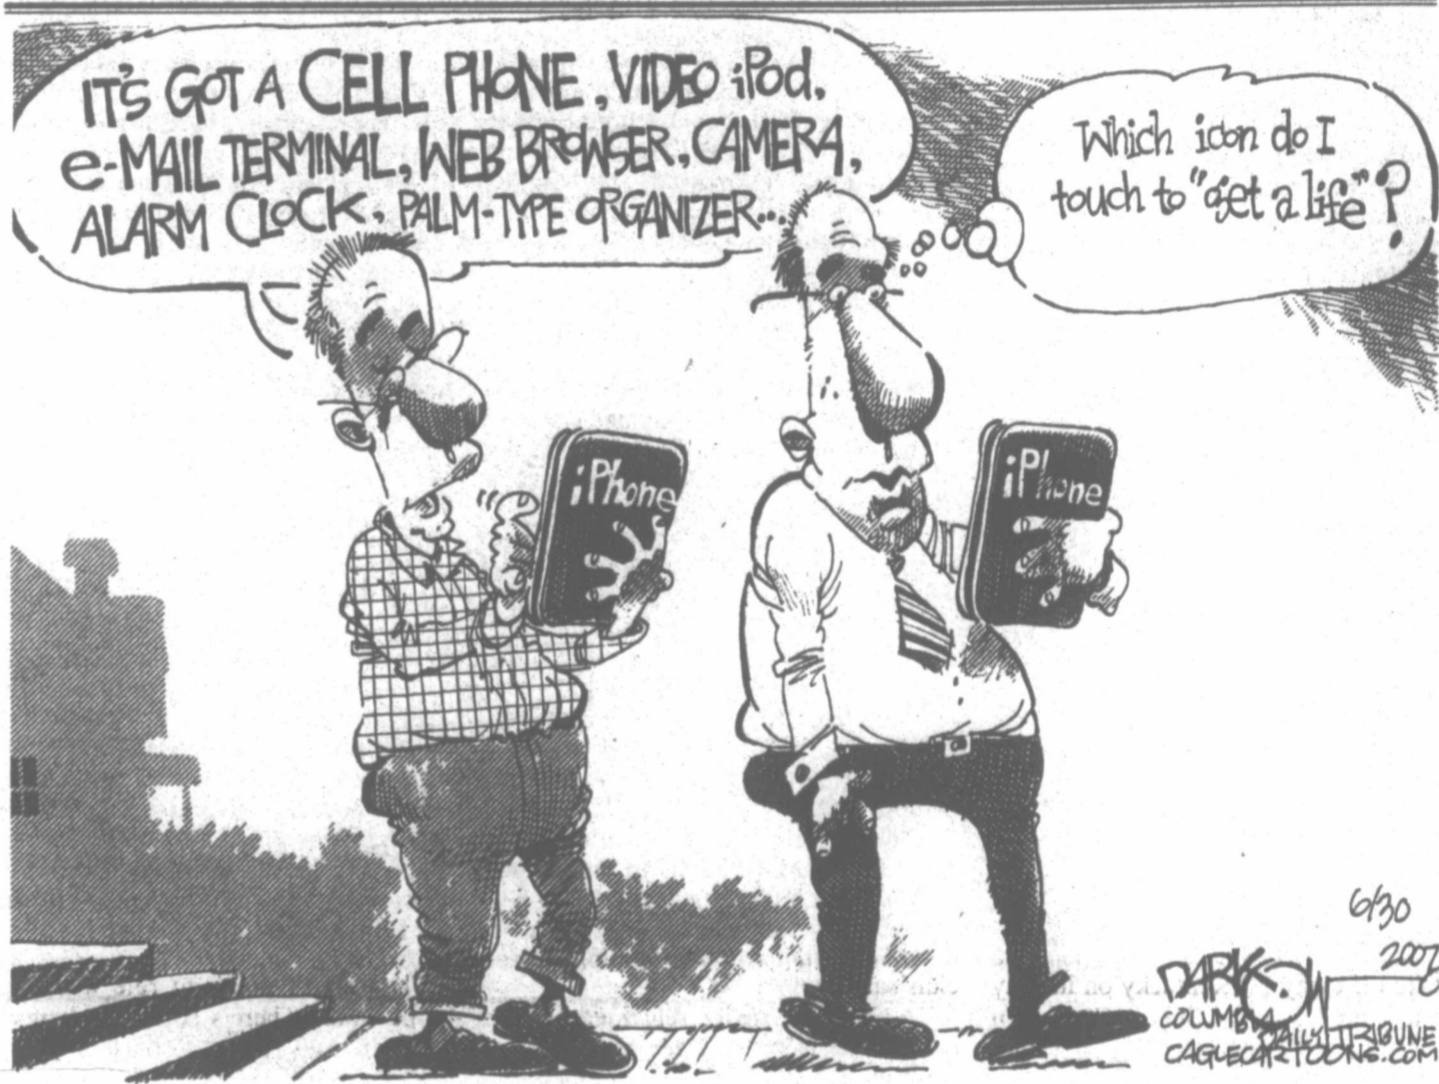

Ten years ago: Actor James Stewart died in Beverly Hills, Calif., at age 89.

Five years ago: American adventurer Steve Fossett became the first person to fly a balloon solo around the world as he returned to western Australia.

One year ago: Conservative free-trader Felipe Calderon defeated leftist Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador by just 234,000 votes in Mexico's presidential election. Comic Jan Murray died in Beverly Hills, Calif., at age 89.

Today's Birthdays: Country singer Marvin Rainwater is 82. Former Philippine first lady Imelda Marcos is 78.

Jazz musician Ahmad Jamal is 77. Actor Robert Ito is 76. Actress Polly Holliday is 70. Former White House chief of staff John H. Sununu is 68. Actor Ron Silver is 61. Writer-director-comedian Larry David is 60. Luci Baines Johnson, daughter of President Lyndon Johnson, is 60. Actor Saul Rubinek is 59. Rock musician Roy Bittan (Bruce Springsteen & the E Street Band) is 58.

Cyber crimes unit helps keep kids safe

Texas' greatest resource is its children. From toddlers to teenagers, young Texans are truly the future of our great state. As concerned citizens, we must do everything in our power to protect children from sex predators. While law enforcement agencies across the state work together to arrest and prosecute criminals who prey on kids, parents and guardians must teach their children not to trust individuals they meet online.

Since 2003, the Office of the Attorney General's Cyber Crimes Unit has aggressively cracked down on sex predators who use the Internet to sexually solicit children. Cyber Crimes Unit investigators work undercover, posing as underage teenagers in Internet chat rooms and social networking Web sites. These highly skilled officers have one goal: to catch would-be sex predators before they harm a child. Within minutes of going online, undercover officers are sexually solicited by prowling adults seeking young children.

In less than four years, the Cyber Crimes Unit has arrested more than 90 predators that used the Internet to arrange a meeting where they planned to sexually assault a child. Another 63 offenders have been convicted for posting or trading online child pornography.

Many of these sex predators lurk on Web sites that are prominently used by children and teenagers. During a two-week operation in June, our law enforcement officers investigated and arrested several previously convicted sex offenders who had activated online profiles on the wildly popular social networking site, MySpace.com.

While our Cyber Crimes Unit will continue cracking down on online sex offenders, parents and guardians must help us keep their children safe.

The most important safety tip is simple: parents must be involved with their child's Internet habits. Parents should educate themselves about cyber safety and speak openly with family members about online activities. Children and teens are more likely to come to an adult that they feel is calm and comfortable discussing the subject matter. Parents can contact the Office of the Attorney General for a copy of our Cyber Safety Brochure, which offers valuable information on chat room "lingo" and provides online security tips for both children and adults.

Parents with teens who visit social networking sites should be especially cautious. Our investigators encourage parents to have the passwords necessary to regularly monitor their child's account. According to the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, teenagers are more likely than younger children to get into trouble online. Teens are more likely to explore and reach out to strangers. Sadly, sex predators often exploit the anxiety and confusion that comes with adolescence.

Parents should keep the computer in a common room and limit the use of Web cameras. Digital images are easily captured online and are difficult, if not impossible, to retrieve once they are circulated on the Internet.

Teens and children who are approached by a stranger online should immediately inform a parent, guardian or any other trusted adult. They must not reveal personal information, including photos, video, last names or telephone numbers to strangers. Teens should never, under any circumstance, arrange a

The Dallas Morning News on Guantanamo Bay:

The war on terrorism since 9/11 has raised persistent legal problems for the Bush administration, particularly regarding the makeshift prison at Guantánamo.

The president declared war knowing this was not a traditional nation-versus-nation conflict but a fight against an amorphous band of non-state actors.

Ever since the CIA and military began seizing enemy combatants, debate has centered on whether prisoner-of-war rights under the Geneva Conventions should apply to them.

We believe they should. The Bush administration has spent far too much energy devising convoluted legal arguments to justify imprisoning hundreds of suspects at Guantánamo but denying them all of the protections of Geneva.

Now the administration is considering Guantánamo's closure, but this won't solve the broader problem. The issue isn't Guantánamo. It's human rights and the rule of law, and it won't disappear just because the prisoners are moved to other venues.

To sidestep Geneva, the administration labeled detainees as "unlawful enemy combatants" and argued that international human-rights obligations apply only to lawful (that is, state-sponsored) fighters.

Unlawful combatants qualify for heinous interrogation methods, including the simulated drowning technique known as "waterboarding." But this is not torture, the White House insists. The Pentagon describes the conditions at Guantánamo as exemplary and complying with the "spirit" of Geneva, as if this were sufficient to answer human-rights concerns.

Enough. This is a war, and these are prisoners of war.

What we're fighting for goes to the heart of who we are as a nation. Do we abide by a system of laws? Do we honor our treaty obligations? Do we follow a code of conduct regarding the Space shuttle makes stop in Amarillo

OFFUTT AIR FORCE BASE, Neb. (AP) — Clear weather allowed a jumbo jet carrying the space shuttle Atlantis to take off today for Kentucky on its way back to Kennedy Space Center in Florida, NASA said.

NASA officials decided the shuttle could leave Offutt Air Force Base following a 6 a.m. weather briefing, spokeswoman Jennifer Tharpe said.

A modified Boeing 747 with the shuttle mounted on its back left from Edwards Air Force Base on Sunday morning and landed at Offutt that afternoon following a refueling stop, officials said.

The jet's destination remained confidential until it was in the air for security reasons. It was to land at Fort Campbell, Ky., for refueling, 1st Lt. Matthew Miller with Offutt said.

The jet, which stops to refuel at undisclosed locations, could still arrive at Cape Canaveral on Monday as planned, but a Tuesday arrival was possible if bad weather intervened, Tharpe said.

"They aren't going to rule it out," Tharpe said. "There's so many things playing into it."

The jet made a refueling stop earlier Sunday in Amarillo, Texas, making an unusual stop on a commercial runway. Amarillo is about 500 miles south of Offutt.

treatment of fellow human beings, inconvenient as that might be?

Applying the Geneva Conventions does not increase the vulnerability of U.S. personnel to war-crimes prosecution. In the Military Commissions Act of 2006, Congress decriminalized forms of degrading or humiliating treatment. But it retains Geneva's "cruel and inhuman" torture prohibitions. Geneva applies in those cases, like it or not.

Some say the Guantánamo prisoners don't deserve Geneva protections because al-Qaeda uses swords to lop off the heads of its detainees.

Nobody expects model behavior from al-Qaeda. The world is, however, watching us.

Our behavior sets the standard. The torture methods America uses today will be revisited upon our captured troops in future wars. Washington has lost the moral high ground to lecture China, Cuba, Syria and Zimbabwe about human rights.

We are troubled by the administration's record at Guantánamo. Some prisoners are being held on flimsy legal evidence. Others have been flown to countries willing to torture on our behalf.

The Pentagon deems 50 to 75 detainees to be hardened, committed al-Qaeda members who are so dangerous they cannot be freed or imprisoned elsewhere. Fine. The reality is, this group isn't going anywhere and probably will never see the inside of a courtroom.

Under U.S. law, their status will be subject to constant challenge because our legal system cannot permit indefinite detention without trial. But the Geneva Conventions do. Simply stated, Geneva allows nations at war to keep POWs until hostilities officially end. In this case, it could take decades.

We cannot simply take it on faith, because a few military and civilian officials say so, that the current process humanely dispenses justice to the guilty and grants freedom to the innocent.

The state of limbo at Guantánamo is unacceptable. It violates what this country stands for.

According to Alan Liotta, the Pentagon official in charge of detainee affairs, about 380 prisoners remain at Guantánamo out of the 800 detained since 9/11. Not all were captured on the battlefield, and some are accused merely of having associated with terrorists. There are three major detainee groups:

About 60 to 80 prisoners, face trial by military commissions. Currently, only three detainees have charges against them.

Another 50 to 75 are so dangerous and committed to al-Qaeda that they face indefinite detention, possibly until the end of the war or al-Qaeda dies out.

About 80 others have been approved for transfer home but cannot be released because of U.S. concerns about human rights or security conditions in those countries.

Khalid Sheikh Muhammad, Pakistan: In a Pentagon transcript, he confessed to masterminding the 9/11 attacks, the Richard Reid "shoe bomber" attempt on an airliner over the Atlantic Ocean, the Bali nightclub bombing in Indonesia, the 1993 World Trade Center bombing and the beheading of journalist Daniel Pearl.

Majid Khan, Pakistan: One of 14 "high-value" detainees, he claims through his attorneys that he was tortured at one or more CIA "black sites" around the world. An associate of Mr. Muhammad, he allegedly helped plan terrorist attacks against the U.S. and Israel, possibly to include blowing up gas stations and poisoning water reservoirs.

Ramzi Binalshibh, Yemen: Alleged to be among the original group of 9/11 hijackers. Accused of helping plan, finance and execute the 9/11 attacks.

We must speak openly with our children about making good decisions in life, including safely using the Internet to interact with others. We thank all parents and guardians for their commitment to the safety of their children and the future of Texas.

POINTS TO REMEMBER: Internet Safety

FOR TEENS:
• Never post revealing information online, including personal photos, addresses, telephone numbers or school information, which would enable a stranger to locate you.

• Report unwanted solicitations, harassment or bullying to a parent or trusted adult.

• Do not trust a stranger you meet online. Remember, a person who says they're a 14-year-old girl from another state may really be a 55-year-old man from your hometown.

FOR PARENTS:
• Educate yourself and encourage open discussions about online safety.

• Keep the computer in a common room of the house and limit the use of Web cameras.

• Establish rules restricting children from displaying personal information, including

• their name, address, phone number and pictures online.

• Get involved. Keep passwords handy and regularly monitor your child's account.

To report online child pornography or unwanted sexual solicitations, contact the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children at (800) 843-5678 or online at www.cybertipline.com.

For more information on Attorney General Abbott's ongoing efforts to fight online sex predators, visit the agency's Web site at www.oag.state.tx.us or call (800) 252-8011.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were trying to park our car in a crowded downtown lot. The line of cars trying to get in wrapped around the block. Each car in line had to circle around until someone left because no parking spaces were available. When we finally got to drive in, we drove to the only open spot. However, a woman had jumped out of a car that was still on the street and was standing in the spot to save it for her companion. My husband lowered the window and reminded her that because she did not have a vehicle, she was blocking traffic. She angrily told him that her car was "just around the corner" and threatened to call the cops if we didn't keep driving. My husband didn't raise his voice. He once again asked her to move because she had cut in line. Finally, after she began to go into a tirade, we gave up and circled for another 10 minutes until another spot opened. Was my husband out of line for asking her to move? What would you have done in that situation? — UNSURE OF THE RULES, BEASLEY, TEXAS

DEAR UNSURE: Your husband was not out of line in asking the woman to move. She was nery and wrong to block traffic and take advantage. And if the police had been summoned, they probably would have backed you up. What would I have done in that situation? Had I been behind the wheel, I would have been tempted to very ... slowly ... continue ... parking my car ... until she either moved or I squashed her like a bug against the wall or the car in front. (That's why my husband does most of the driving when we're together.)

DEAR ABBY: My mother is 68, financially stable and living alone. She has had emotional problems throughout her life and has ended up alienating most of her children. I'm the only one who checks on her regularly, and I'm worried sick. Mom is withering away. She's 4 foot 11 and admits to weighing only 76 pounds. She's not eating right, and a lifetime of smoking has caught up with her. She has difficulty breathing, but won't see the doctor. Most days she doesn't have the strength to even carry in a bag of groceries. I call her often, and the neighbors watch out for her, but her house is falling down around her, trash is piling up, and it's not a healthy place to be. I have never gone against my mother. I tried an intervention with one of my sisters; it only alienated Mother. Someone has to step in before the fire department has to break in and finds her dead on the floor. Can I legally step in and take care of her? We have an extra room she could live in. We could move her to assisted living. No one wants to make the first move, and if I don't do this right, Mother may never speak to me again. — WORRIED DAUGHTER, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

DEAR WORRIED DAUGHTER: Which would be worse -- a miffed mother or one dead from neglect? Contact your nearest senior services center and talk to a social worker who has geriatric training. In many communities, these social workers can contact and befriend isolated seniors, and see they get the help they need to remain independent as long as possible. If the senior citizen centers can't help you, get in touch with your local Area Agency on Aging to determine what other services might be available to help your mother. Only as a last resort should you try to become her conservator because the process can be difficult, and you might not succeed.

Pampa, Plainview to play for championship

After 3 days of intense baseball action, it's come down to Pampa vs. Plainview tonight for the tournament championship at the Optimist Club field. Pampa must defeat Plainview twice to bring home the championship trophy. The first game is at 6 p.m. and the second game will begin 30 minutes after the first game ends.

Pampa has gone 4-1 so far defeating the Canyon 9-year-old team by a score of 11-9 on Friday Night. On Saturday they lost to the NRC 10-year-old team by a score of 6-2, but then rebounded to defeat the Canyon 10-year-old team by a score of 8-6. On Sunday, Pampa crushed the NRC 9-year-old team by a score of 17-9, then backed that up with a win over the NRC10-year-old team by a score of 7-5.

In the first game against the Canyon 9-year-old team, down by a score of 7-3, Pampa exploded for 6 runs in the 4th inning to take a 9-7 lead. They would add 2 runs in the bottom of the fifth and then hold on for an 11-9 win. Leading hitters for Pampa were Aaron Allen who went 3-3 and a walk and also scored four runs and Thomas Haley who went 3-3 with two doubles and a single and a walk. Haley also came in to pitch in the third inning and recorded the win. Haley gave up 3 runs on 1 hit, walking 5 and striking out 6. Ethan Hunt came in with the tying run on 2nd and two outs in the top of the sixth and recorded a strikeout to end the game.

On Saturday, against the NRC 10-year-old team, Pampa fought hard but came up short in a 6-2 loss. Ethan Hunt pitched four innings, giving up five runs on four hits, walking three and striking out seven. Casey Martindale pitched two innings, giving up one run on two hits, walking one and striking out three. Cade Engle scored both of Pampa's runs and got Pampa's only hit of the game, a single in the bottom of the sixth inning. Pampa's defense committed four costly errors.

On Saturday evening facing elimination, Pampa played solidly defeating the Canyon 10-year-old team by a score of 8-6. Pampa scored all of their runs during the first three innings, before their bats went cold. Casey Martindale pitched four innings for the win, giving up five runs on four hits, walking two and striking out six. Ethan Hunt gave up one run on two hits, walking one and striking out four to pick up his second save of the tournament. Leading hitters for Pampa were Cade Engle who went 2-3, and Jonathan Doyle who went 2-3 with a double and a single. Also recording hits for Pampa was Hunt and Martindale, both of them singles.

On Sunday, Pampa would trounce the NRC 9-year-old team by a score of 17-9. Ethan Hunt pitched the first, fifth and sixth innings giving up three runs on three hits, walking none and striking out two. Casey Martindale pitched the second, third and fourth innings giving up six runs on four hits, walking two and striking out none. Jonathan Doyle had two doubles for Pampa. Thomas Haley and Ethan Hunt also recorded doubles. Also recording hits for Pampa were Aaron Allen, Cade Engle, Casey Martindale and Nathan Ferguson. Colton Thompson walked twice and scored two runs.

On Sunday night, it was time for a grudge match as the NRC 10-year-old team came calling again. Pampa would jump out to a quick 3-0 lead as Cade Engle, Aaron Allen and Thomas Haley would score on singles by Casey Martindale and Nathan Ferguson.

Pampa would add one run in the second as Allen alertly scored from third on a wild pitch. Pampa would not score again and found themselves down by a score of 5-4 heading into the sixth and final inning. Jacob Nelson started the inning with a walk. After a strikeout, Engle and Allen had back-to-back singles to load the bases. Haley hit a fly ball to right that scored Engle easily from third but the NRC catcher tried to throw Allen out at third and threw the ball into left field. That error allowed Allen to score an insurance run and put Pampa on top by the eventual final score of 7-5.

Ethan Hunt picked up the win by pitching the first, fifth and sixth innings for Pampa giving up one run on three hits, walking none and striking out three. Casey Martindale pitched the second and fourth innings, giving up one run on two hits, walking none and striking out two. Thomas Haley pitched the third inning giving up three runs on two hits, walking two and striking out two. Aaron Allen went 3-4 with a double and two singles, Ethan Hunt and Jonathan Doyle had doubles and Casey Martindale, Cade Engle and Nathan Ferguson recorded hits also.

Throughout the tournament the Pampa outfielders, consisting of Nathan Ferguson, Josh DeLoach, Cory Chidester, Jonathan Doyle, Colton Thompson and Colton Lesly have made big plays that saved several runs. They have caught several fly balls and on several occasions alertly backed up a play that could have resulted in runners moving up to the next base. Jacob Nelson at second base has made several big plays for Pampa, including helping out in the bottom of the sixth against the NRC 10's by recording the first out by going way behind first base to catch a ground ball and throwing the runner out. He also made the last out of the game by ranging to his right and snagging a hard line drive that would have scored a run and put the tying runner on base.

The Pampa coaching staff, Chris Engle, Jeff Haley and Johnny Ferguson encourage the public to come out and support the Pampa All-Stars as they battle Plainview tonight beginning at 6 p.m.

Pampa has already secured a spot in the State Tournament next weekend that will be held in Seminole.

Pampa All-Stars salvage a tie

CANYON --The Pampa Optimist Cal Ripken 11-12 All Stars donated their opponents eight runs by virtue of 11 errors in two game here Saturday in the Cal Ripken 11-12 All Star Pool Play Tournament but managed a win and salvaged a tie.

Pampa bested Canyon 4-2 in the first game. Reid Miller allowed no runs or hits in three inning to pick up the win. He walked one and struck out six.

Zach Graves relieved in the fourth inning and was credited with a save. He allowed no earned runs and three hits. He walked one and struck out three.

With one out in the third inning of a scoreless game, Brandon Yates drew a four-pitch walk. Miller hit the next pitch over the center field fence to open the scoring. After two were out, James Thompson doubled and tallied the third run of the inning on a single by Graves.

Pampa added an insurance run in the fifth inning. Miller led off with a single, stole second and third and scored on a ground out hit by Bobby Haley.

Canyon got a run in the fourth on two hits and a throwing error. They got their other run in the fifth scoring on an error after a single and a wild pitch.

Thompson, with three hits including two doubles, was the leading hitter for Pampa. Outstanding defensive plays for Pampa included a catch of a high fly ball to center field by Haley and a pickoff and hot box out from Miller, to Graves at third and to Jordan Lemons at home.

Against Plainview, Pampa committed eight errors resulting in six unearned runs in an 8-8 tie.

Behind 3-0, Pampa manufactured a run in the third inning. Riley Douglas doubled and went to third on a wild pitch. Miller walked and was picked off first but a bad throw allowed Douglas to score.

In the fourth inning Pampa loaded the bases on walks to Schrade Thompson and Cody Parks sandwiched around Kyle Smith's reaching base on an error. Yates walked in one run. Miller singled to bring in another narrowing Plainview's lead to 6-3.

Down 8 to 3 in the bottom of the fifth inning, Schrade Thompson started another rally by drawing his second walk of the game. Smith and Parks also drew walks to loaded the bases for Lemons. Lemons lined a single down the third base line scoring Schrade Thompson. Miller followed with a single which chased Smith and Parks home. He took second on an error. Lemons and Miller both scored on a single to right field by Rudy Rodriguez tying the game at eight.

In the top of the sixth, the first batter walked. Miller came in to pitch. He left the winning run on third by striking out two and catching a pop up in between.

James Thompson started for Pampa. He allowed no earned runs and four hits in three innings. He struck out one and walked one. Rodriguez was touched for two earned runs on two hits in two plus innings. He struck out one, hit two batters and walked four.

Miller, with three hits, three RBI and a run scored was Pampa's leading hitter. Lemons made the defensive plays of the game for Pampa by hauling in two long fly balls in center field in the fifth inning to prevent additional runs from scoring. Haley also made a catch near the center field wall for Pampa. James Thompson threw to Miller at short catching a runner off second base. Miller completed the pickoff play by running the runner toward third and throwing to Schrade Thompson for the out.

Pampa was to play Seminole and North Randall County on Sunday.

Venus Williams rallies to win

By STEVEN WINE

AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Venus Williams made it to the fourth round at Wimbledon despite a performance so filled with errors she drew criticism from her father.

The three-time champion rallied past Akiko Morigami 6-2, 3-6, 7-5 Monday in a match suspended Saturday. And she did it even though she faced 23 break points, double faulted 14 times and trailed 3-5 in the third set.

Williams will next go against 2004 champion Maria Sharapova, one of only two players to win Saturday in the rain-plagued tournament. Williams trailed 1-4 in the second set when her match was halted, and when it resumed two days later she struggled from the start, losing the first seven points.

"If Venus moves up to the ball and takes it off the bounce instead of waiting behind the baseline, she'll be the only one here, including Sharapova," said Williams' father and coach, Richard. "She's not going to beat anyone if she's not moving into the ball."

Venus saw the match as a positive.

"When it was time, I did what it took. I definitely would like to do what it takes earlier," she said. "But I think on the other hand, that kind of competition is invaluable in this kind of tournament. So either way it's good for me."

Top-ranked Justine Henin, seeking the only Grand Slam title she has yet to win, became the first woman to reach the quarterfinals by beating No. 15-seeded Patty Schnyder in 56 minutes, 6-2, 6-2.

"I was a little bit surprised that the match was that quick," Henin said. "I was ready to have a good fight."

Henin has lost 15 games in four rounds.

"I did my job perfectly until now," she said.

In the completion of third-round matches suspended Saturday, No. 5-seeded Svetlana Kuznetsova beat Agnieszka Radwanska 6-2, 6-3; No. 6 Ana Ivanovic defeated Aravane Rezaï 6-3, 6-2; No. 11 Nadia Petrova swept Virginia Ruano Pascual 6-3, 7-6 (3); and No. 14 Nicole Pietrangeli beat Victoria Azarenka 6-4, 6-2.

No. 12 Elena Dementieva lost to 16-year-old Tamira Paszek of Austria 3-6, 6-2, 6-3. Paszek, the runner-up in juniors at Wimbledon in 2005, was thrilled to pull off an upset in her favorite Grand Slam event.

"The strawberries with cream, playing all in white, the grass courts, covering, uncovering the courts, rain delays, rain delays — just everything is so special," the teen said.

In men's third-round play, No. 7 Tomas Berdych beat Lee Hyung-taik 6-4, 7-6 (2), 7-6 (3).

The start of play was delayed nearly an hour by showers — the sixth time in seven days there has been a rain interruption, and another delay began in the early afternoon.

Only three players had Monday off — Sharapova, defending champion Amelie Mauresmo and Roger Federer. The four-time defending men's champion received a bye into the quarterfinals when his fourth-round opponent, Tommy Haas, pulled out with a stomach muscle injury.

Williams, seeded 23rd struggled with her serve in windy weather and double-faulted for the final time to fall behind 3-5 in the last set.

"I was coming down too quickly on the second serve," Williams said. "So I made the correction."

Morigami then lost serve at love, and Williams hit four big serves to hold for 5-all.

With Williams serving for the match at 6-5, rain began to fall and umbrellas popped out in the stands, but play continued. Williams erased two break points — making Morigami 4-for-23 on break points — and closed out the victory on the first match point with a service winner.

Baseball managers: one is burned out, another is fired

Hargrove walks away in Seattle

By GREGG BELL

AP Sports Writer

SEATTLE (AP) — One of the most bizarre days in Seattle Mariners history ended with Mike Hargrove heading into sudden retirement while in search of a new, red pickup truck to drive down the Pacific Coast.

Hargrove, 57, left in the rear view mirror as many conspiracy theories as questions as to why he had resigned as manager Sunday while peaking at Seattle's highest point in more than four years.

"I don't expect people to understand it, I really don't, because at times I don't understand it myself," said Hargrove, who's been in major league baseball since 1972.

As Hargrove abruptly and stunningly resigned — citing an inability to muster the daily dedication he has demanded from players for his 15 1/2 seasons as a major league manager — his Mariners won their eighth consecutive game, 2-1 over Toronto on Sunday. He became the first big league manager since at least 1900 to depart while on a winning streak of more than seven games, according to the Elias Sports Bureau.

Seattle was soaring at 12 games over .500 entering Monday night's debut of new manager John McLaren, Hargrove's bench coach, at Kansas City. The 55-year-old McLaren, who said the startling events were tough for him to comprehend, hasn't been a full-time manager since 1985, when he was at Knoxville in the Southern League. He rejoined the Mariners this season, after 15 years working on the staffs of manager Lou Piniella that included 1993-2002 in Seattle.

"This is not a perfect scenario to take over a ballclub," the 12th manager in Mariners history said, his right arm in a sling following rotator cuff surgery last week. "But I'll run with it."

Narron fired by struggling Reds

By JOE KAY

AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jerry Narron's final act as the Cincinnati Reds' manager was to change relief pitchers. Again.

Ultimately, he knew all those trips to the mound could be his downfall.

The Reds fired Narron on Sunday night, a few hours after an 11-7 loss to the St. Louis Cardinals left them with the worst record in the major leagues at 31-51 and convinced ownership that change was needed.

Although ownership and general manager Wayne Krivsky declined comment after the firing was announced late Sunday, Narron had already singled out the bottom line during the weekend series.

"We feel like we're in every ballgame," he said, after the Reds' only victory of the series on Saturday. "It comes down to if we can get some outs after our starters come out of the game."

Most often, they couldn't. And that's the biggest reason why Narron was gone.

Advance scout Pete Mackanin, who managed the Reds' Triple-A team in Nashville from 1990-92, was chosen interim manager. He was the Pirates' interim manager for the final 26 games of the 2005 season after Lloyd McClendon was fired.

The switch came a few hours after Seattle's Mike Hargrove resigned, saying he no longer had a passion for the job.

Narron was the second big league manager to be fired this season. Baltimore's Sam Perlozzo lost his job on June 18 after the last-place Orioles couldn't shake another losing streak.

The Reds have been far worse, setting a pace for their first 100-loss season since 1982. With no improvement in sight and attendance starting to lag, the club decided to

Kerr finally wins a major on LPGA tour; Ochoa waits her turn

By JOEDY MCCREARY
AP Sports Writer

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP) — Cristie Kerr can finally relax. She isn't 0-for-the-majors anymore.

Meanwhile, Lorena Ochoa can only look to her next chance to snap her string of major futility.

Kerr shook off 12 years' worth of frustration in consistent, cool fashion. During their compelling duel along the back nine of Pine Needles, she stared down the world's No. 1 player and forced her into a series of mistakes that resulted in a two-stroke victory Sunday and Kerr's first U.S. Women's Open championship.

"There's a natural progression between winning and winning a lot of tournaments and when are you going to win a major," Kerr said after her 1-under 70. "I definitely wanted to win one this year."

Because she finally snapped that pestering 0-for-41 slide, those nagging questions now fall to Ochoa — who was left to wait for the Women's British Open at St. Andrews.

After having trouble keeping her drives in the fairway, Ochoa fell to 0-for-23 in the four biggest events in women's golf. "I've been in worse places. It hurts, but I just did everything I could," Ochoa said.

Kerr did more. She drilled an 18-foot birdie putt on the 14th hole to take the lead, then stayed composed and watched Ochoa fall apart down the stretch. After Kerr's birdie, Ochoa never hit another green in regulation.

Kerr had just two bogeys during her final 45 holes and had only one three-putt all week in claiming her first Open title at Pine Needles, where she has played well in two previous Opens. The high amateur in its first visit in 1996, Kerr was 3 over and tied for fourth in 2001.

"I knew since the last time I came here ... it was going to be my week," Kerr said. "When I stepped on the grounds this week it was just magic."

Ochoa was left with a familiar feeling, too.

With a chance to capture her first major and remove any doubt about who's the best in her sport, Ochoa struggled again with a quick swing under pressure and failed to hit a green in regulation over the final five holes.

"For sure, you don't want to be thinking, 'Oh my God, I'm in the last group, in a major championship, I'm playing the U.S. Open, maybe I'll win,'" Ochoa said. "If you think that, it's no good."

Ochoa, a 25-year-old Mexican star in her fifth year as a pro, shot 71 and tied for second with Angela Park, an 18-year-old rookie who birdied the final hole for a 70.

Morgan Pressel, who won the Kraft Nabisco Championship in April, was two shots behind with five holes remaining until playing them in 5 over for a 77, leaving the course in tears.

American League roundup

By The Associated Press

The Seattle Mariners never saw it coming. Not in the middle of a long winning streak.

Mike Hargrove stunned his team Sunday when the manager resigned hours before the Mariners rallied past the visiting Toronto Blue Jays 2-1 for their eighth consecutive victory — the longest current run in the major leagues.

"To see a manager step out like this, you kind of still don't understand what's going on," outfielder Jose Guillen said.

Hargrove managed the team Sunday and then yielded to John McLaren, his bench coach. McLaren's first game will be Monday night at Kansas City.

Guillen hit a tying homer in the eighth inning and a game-ending single off third baseman Troy Glaus' glove in the ninth for the Mariners, who got another strong outing from a rejuvenated Jeff Weaver.

In other AL games, it was: Los Angeles 4, Baltimore 3; Detroit 1, Minnesota 0; Cleveland 3, Tampa Bay 2; Oakland 11, New York 5; Texas 2, Boston 1; and Chicago 3, Kansas City 1.

Angels 4, Orioles 3
At Baltimore, John Lackey (11-6) outpitched rookie Jeremy Guthrie (4-2) to earn his 11th win, and Casey Kotchman and Mike Napoli hit slump-breaking home runs for the Angels, who improved to 51-31 — the best record in franchise history after 82 games.

Tigers 1, Twins 0
At Detroit, Jeremy Bonderman beat Scott Baker in an old-fashioned pitchers' duel, and Marcus Thames homered with two outs in the eighth to help the Tigers avert a three-game sweep.

Indians 3, Devil Rays 2
At Cleveland, Cliff Lee (5-4) struck out nine to win for the third time in four starts, and Joe Borowski gave up Delmon Young's sacrifice fly in the ninth before recording his 24th save in 26 chances and 12th in a row since May 13.

Athletics 11, Yankees 5
At New York, Jack Cust and Dan Johnson homered off Andy Pettitte (4-6) in Oakland's seven-run second inning.

Rangers 2, Red Sox 1
At Boston, Kameron Loe (5-6) beat Julian Tavarez (5-6) to win his fourth consecutive start, and hasn't lost since being sent to Triple-A after winning once in his first 15 starts. Eric Gagne got four outs for his 10th save.

White Sox 3, Royals 1
At Kansas City, Mo., Jon Garland (6-5) went seven innings to improve to 15-5 in 28 starts against the Royals. Bobby Jenks pitched the ninth for his 22nd save in 24 chances.

National League roundup

By The Associated Press

Barry Bonds is headed back to the All-Star game. If Tim Lincecum keeps this up, it won't be long before the rookie right-hander is there, too.

Lincecum struck out a career-high 12 batters and got a key hit — and rare praise — from Bonds as the San Francisco Giants beat the Arizona Diamondbacks 13-0 on Sunday.

"It's something that's expected. He has the talent. He has the ability," Bonds said of his 23-year-old teammate. "We told him, 'It's not how hard you throw it, it's where you throw it.' Today, he located great."

In other NL games, it was St. Louis 11, Cincinnati 7; Washington 3, Pittsburgh 2; Philadelphia 5, the New York Mets 3; the Chicago Cubs 5, Milwaukee 1; Houston 12, Colorado 0; the Los Angeles Dodgers 5, San Diego 0; and Florida 6, Atlanta 5 in 10 innings.

In other news, the Reds fired manager Jerry Narron after falling to 31-51, the worst record in the majors.

Cardinals 11, Reds 7
At Cincinnati, Ryan Ludwick hit a solo shot off Homer Bailey (2-2) and a three-run homer off Ricky Stone to help make a winner of reliever Troy Percival (2-0), who pitched out of a threat in the fourth for his second win of the series.

Nationals 3, Pirates 2
At Pittsburgh, Jesus Flores' homer off Paul Maholm (4-11) gave Washington a three-run lead in the seventh, and Chad Cordero pitched the ninth.

Phillies 5, Mets 3
At Philadelphia, Jimmy Rollins hit a two-run homer, Kyle Kendrick (3-0) pitched into the seventh and the Phillies salvaged the finale of a four-game series.

Cubs 5, Brewers 1

At Chicago, Jason Marquis (6-4) allowed four hits in seven innings to win for the first time since May 9, and the Cubs won for the eighth time in nine games.

Astros 12, Rockies 0
At Houston, Lance Berkman homered and had four RBIs, and Wandy Rodriguez (5-7) won for just the third time in eight starts.

Dodgers 5, Padres 0
At Los Angeles, Matt Kemp and Rafael Furcal homered to help Chad Billingsley (5-0) win for the first time as a starter this season. The right-hander's four other wins came in relief.

Marlins 6, Braves 5, 10 innings
At Miami, Josh Willingham had a career-best five hits, including a game-ending single in the 10th inning to make a winner of reliever Lee Gardner (2-2).

'Tremendous underachiever' Bateman breaks through at Buick Open

By LARRY LAGE
AP Sports Writer

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Brian Bateman enjoys relaxing with his pregnant wife at their new house, where he cooks about four nights a week, while collecting cook books and guitars.

What does he plan to do with the $882,000 check he earned Sunday at the Buick Open after winning for the first time on the PGA Tour?

"I'll invest in a few pots and pans," he said.

Before describing himself as a simple guy, Bateman said he has been a "tremendous underachiever" during his six seasons on the Tour.

He came to Warwick Hills 204th on the money list and became the improbable winner with a birdie on the final hole that broke a four-way tie.

"I feel a lot better now about my career," Bateman said.

His best finish previously was third before he closed with a 3-under-par 69 to finish 15-under 273 and win by a shot with the highest winning score at Warwick Hills since 1997.

A perfect drive and approach at No. 18 — the tournament's third-toughest hole — set Bateman up for his 12-footer that kept him out of a playoff, earned him a two-year Tour exemption and an invitation to the 2008 Masters.

"I've been out here for six years and I've only played in one major," said Bateman, referring to the 2004 PGA Championship. "I've been close to playing at Augusta."

The 34-year-old native and resident of Monroe, La., earned a check that surpassed his total earnings in all but one of his previous five years on the PGA Tour. He made just more than $900,000 in 2004, when he finished a career-best 86th on the money list.

Bateman shot up to 59th on the money list and 44th in FedEx Cup points.

"It's a life-changing week," he said. "A life-changing putt."

Bateman's victory came in his 151st PGA Tour event.

"Every player from Tiger Woods to Brian Bateman has to win their first one," he said.

Bateman's chances of winning were boosted when Woods and Vijay Singh didn't make their usual appearance.

Woods (home with his wife and baby) and Singh (resting a sore elbow) didn't play at the Buick Open for the first time since 2001 after combining to win four of the previous five.

In a tournament that started in 1958, Bateman was just the second player to birdie 18 for a one-shot victory. Rocco Mediate did it in 2000.

"I teared up in the fairway on 18, knowing I was finally giving myself a chance," he said.

Jason Gore (67), Justin Leonard (67) and Woody Austin (69) tied for second. Jim Furyk (70) and Scott Verplank (71) were in a group of five that were two shots behind Bateman.

The greens at Warwick Hills usually draw rave reviews, but dry conditions baked the greens and frustrated the field.

"I would say they're right there with the U.S. Open in that they're really crusty and firm and bumpy around the hole," Austin said.

While Bateman's final stroke will make the highlights on TV, a putt he made at No. 17 made the win possible. He made an 8-footer, avoiding a costly bogey, after missing the green on the par-3 hole.

"My putter really bailed me out," Bateman said.

For the first time since 1999, the Buick Open winner didn't play in the final group. Third-round leader Tom Pernice Jr. shot a 75, finishing in a tie for 20th at 10 under. Jesper Parnevik, who was also in the final group, didn't fare much better with a 73 and finished tied for 16th at 11-under.

Divots: John Daly, finishing a season-best 16th, attracted the largest gallery and it included one of his famous friends, musician Kid Rock, who invited Daly to stay at his Detroit-area house during the week. ... Bateman's winning score was the highest since Singh (15 under) won his first of three Buick Opens in 1997. ... Bateman became the eighth player to win his first PGA Tour event this year.

Hargrove

Why would Hargrove leave after enduring six consecutive losing seasons in Baltimore and Seattle, just when his last three years of growth and teaching and roster purging were paying dividends?

—Did Hargrove get forced out by Ichiro Suzuki as a condition set by the superstar to ownership, a prerequisite to the seven-time All-Star staying in Seattle beyond this final season of his contract?

"Please don't ask questions about that right now," Suzuki said, with a stare, through a translator.

The franchise cornerstone acknowledged again on Sunday they did not get along when Hargrove arrived in 2004, but that relations had since improved.

"At the beginning, there were complications between us," Suzuki said. "Since then, I've honestly expressed my feelings to him. He listened to them honorably and very gentleman-like. That's a strong memory I'll have."

—Are there unknown health issues or family emergencies that are forcing Hargrove away?

No, Hargrove said, "just an accumulation probably of 35 years."

—Was Hargrove angry that the Mariners have not announced a status on his contract beyond its end this fall? Was he fed up with constant criticism? Still mad that Seattle fired his best friend, Ron Hassey, as bench coach late last season? Or that team chief executive Howard Lincoln proclaimed last September and reiterated in February that Hargrove and general manager Bill Bavasi "are on my hot seat" for 2007, following three consecutive last-place finishes in the AL West?

Hargrove resigned just as Seattle was beginning to think perhaps he might deserve a contract extension. The Mariners entered Monday four games behind the Los Angeles Angels for the division lead.

"It's not a problem with players, the front office. It's not a problem with a contract," Hargrove said.

But the Mariners have reason to wonder. "We're not happy about this, not one bit," Bavasi said, while stating he was happy for Hargrove personally. "This is an important, hurtful move for us."

Bavasi said that on a scale of one to 10 on being caught off-guard, Hargrove's departure was "an 11." Hargrove first told Bavasi of his intentions June 20, after a six-game losing streak. The two then agreed to wait and see if Hargrove's inability to muster motivation for the game continued for a couple of weeks.

It did, even through Seattle's longest winning streak since 2003.

"To see a manager step out like this, you kind of still don't understand what's going on," said Jose Guillen, who was screaming at his teammates in the dugout to rally for Hargrove Sunday — then hit a tying home run in the eighth and winning single in the ninth.

Hargrove said he simply lacked drive.

Narron

make a change before an off day.

Narron gave no indication either before or after Sunday's game that his job was on the line. A bullpen that has been a work-in-progress for two years made some sort of change inevitable.

The 51-year-old Narron tried to set a take-charge tone early in the season, when he moved Ken Griffey Jr. to right field and dropped him out of his accustomed spot at No. 3 in the batting order. Griffey didn't like it, but Narron went ahead with the moves.

He also benched third baseman Edwin Encarnacion during an April game for failing to run out a popout.

Narron couldn't do much about a bullpen that led the NL in losses and repeatedly failed to hold leads in the late innings. Reds relievers have lost 18 games, most in the league.

With the franchise headed for its seventh straight losing season — its deepest slump in a half-century — the Reds made another move to shake things up. They've had three general managers and now four managers in the past five years, an instability that makes it difficult to succeed.

Since winning the World Series in 1990, the Reds have had seven managers and made only one playoff appearance — in 1995 under Davey Johnson.

The Reds expected a return to prominence when they moved into Great American Ball Park in 2003, but it didn't happen. They fired general manager Jim Bowden and manager Bob Boone midway through the season.

Dave Miley got the next chance, but was fired midway through the 2005 season. Narron, his bench coach, took over on an interim basis and kept the job after leading the team to a 46-46 finish the rest of that season.

The Reds went 80-82 last year, their first under owner Bob Castellini. It was their best result since 2000 and earned Narron a two-year extension through 2008.

Castellini allowed the payroll to rise $10 million to $69 million this year, hoping to contend in the weak NL Central. He also allowed Krivsky to give $71 million in contract extensions to starting pitchers Aaron Harang and Bronson Arroyo, the franchise's biggest spending splurge since it brought Griffey home in 2000.

It all fell apart fast.

The rotation started strong but faded. Arroyo has yet to win a game since May 6, left-hander Eric Milton has had reconstructive elbow surgery, and highly acclaimed rookie Homer Bailey has been roughed up in his last two starts.

Bailey failed to make it through the fourth inning of Sunday's loss that highlighted the Reds' shortcomings. They made three more errors and their bullpen turned a close game into another drubbing.

It became the prelude to Narron's firing.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday, July 3, 2007:
Consider your options with an open mind this year. Often your knee-jerk reaction could be wrong. If you hang in there and look at the possibilities, the answer very well might be yes. You have unusually close and dynamic interactions. For many, a key partnership will star in your life this year. Caring emanates from you in many subconscious ways — a smile or a look. If you are single, consider waving goodbye to that status. You could meet that special someone by this time next year. If you are attached, your romantic life could sizzle, as you might find a newfound closeness. Excitement will fuse your bond. AQUARIUS has unusual money views!

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Friends get the show on the road. All you really need to do is be present. How nice is that for a change? Insecurity could mount if a key loved one acts contrary. Perhaps what he or she sees as perfect plans could be different. Tonight: Explore others' ideas.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ Stepping up to the plate is more than natural for the Bull. Yet getting caught in the crosswinds of differing opinions might not be very appealing or instinctual. If you feel irate or as if you have to proceed differently, do so. Tonight: March to your own drummer.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ You might need to filter out some confusion or try a totally different approach. Your ability to move a situa-

★★★★ Others really want your opinion, even if they act weird once you share it. Knowing what is plausible is important. Others will tap into your good ideas with a little stronger presentation. Tonight: So what if someone changes his or her mind?
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Easy does it. You might be prone to extravagance right now. Whether encouraging yourself or someone else to be more expressive, the end results will be positive. Openness breeds openness. Tonight: Happy as a cat.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Express yourself and let others think whatever they want. Your imagination and caring emerge. A few people have good, original ideas. Someone lets you know how much he or she cares. Enjoy this person's attention. Tonight: Now it's time to choose: What would make you the happiest?
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Know when to pull back. Take your time and visit with a special friend. Make time for reverie and dreaming. What comes up could be rather dynamic. Someone lures you into joining him or her. You like this person's style. Tonight: Know that you don't have to be the main event.
