PERRYTON -- The Texas Archeological Society will be digging in the dirt later this month.

According to Pam Wheat, Texas Archeological Society executive director, the group will conduct an archeological field school on the Harold Courson Ranch near Perryton from Saturday, June 1 through the following weekend.

While the week includes digging and laboratory work, there will be a dance in

It is the first time in 20 years that the Texas Panhandle has hosted the school.

Archeological excavations will focus on three archaeological sites, Wheat said. The first is a 700-year-old village inhabited by sedentary horticulturalists. The second is a mid-1800s historic Indian encampment, and the third is an 1868 U.S. military supply depot.

PISD Board to consider Jr. High golf program

By JULIE ANN THOMPSON
The Pampa News

The request for a golf program at Pampa Junior High is one item to be discussed at a special meeting of the Board of Trustees of Pampa Independent School District this Thursday, June 12. The meeting will begin at 5:30 p.m. in the Carver Center Administration Office located at 321 W. Albert.

Other items on the agenda is the possible approval to donate playground equipment to the Salvation Army as well as the possible donation of playground equipment to Pampa ISD from Wilson Elementary Booster Club.

The board will consider the approval of 802.11 wireless LAN and power-over-ethernet internal connections, discuss ongoing construction projects and a plan for athletic facility improvements. The board will also appoint a PISD representative to the Advisory Board for the Gray, Pampa Community Fund.

What happened to the customer is always right?

Not everyone is working their dream job, but that doesn't mean they can't take pride in their work and do their best to do a good job.

Business owners, especially, should display the good old-fashioned American work ethic which includes providing a good product or service in a timely manner and standing behind their work. After all, if they don't, their business will likely dwindle away as customers go elsewhere.

So why is it that I have had such a struggle in recent months with things like home repairs?

The first hurdle I have had to jump is to get the repairman's attention. If someone is booked solid for the rest of the decade and can't get to the work I need done within a reasonable time, it would be better for them to simply tell me that rather than leave me wondering by not returning my call. No one likes to be ignored, especially if they are ready and willing to part with some hard-earned cash that is apparently not enough to be worth others' while.

Once a service provider is finally contacted and agrees to take a look at the work to be done, there is the matter of making them understand precisely what I want done. In some instances, I have repeated myself so many times that the company representative ought to be able to recite my words verbatim.

Next is scheduling. This varies in importance, depending on the problem at hand. If water is gushing onto the floor or the roof has caved in, that is something that can't wait until after the company finishes with 15 other jobs. I understand that unless I have an emergency, I will have to wait my turn, but it would be nice to have some idea of where I am on the waiting list.

Even more aggravating is when the work is done but fails to fix the problem. I have experienced a roof that continues to leak after repairs were done, a tree stump that continues to sprout luxuriant new growth after it was supposedly treated to keep it from growing back, and problems with disappearing television channels even though I have called each time and explained the situation.

In the case of the disappearing and reappearing television channels, I have had a company representative come and look at their hookup at our house, and I have called and described the problem each time it occurs. Has it been resolved? Absolutely not.

Not all our home repairs and improvements have been bad experiences. Our new fence was built quickly and efficiently and with good workmanship.

I wish I could say the same for everyone else we have had to the house to do work.

I suppose it's time to go make the 134th call about that sprouting tree stump, leaky roof and temperamental television reception. Then I'm going to go find a book on how to deal with frustration and disappointment.

Lawmakers either dumb or ill-informed

What assumptions do congressmen make about the American people? Do they assume that we're dumb or ill-informed about the energy problems we are experiencing? Every time there has been a huge spike in gasoline prices, Congress hauls oil company executives before their committees to accuse them of greed, obscene profits and price-fixing. One federal investigation after another of supposed oil company misconduct turns up nothing to substantiate congressional allegations.

Unfortunately, the congressional hearings make front page news and lead the evening television news, but the results of federal investigations that follow are only casually mentioned deep in the body of newspapers and get little or no time on the evening television news. If news media people had an ounce of integrity, they would highlight the federal investigation findings that undermine congressional charges of oil company misconduct, and they would question the congressmen who made those charges.

Walter Williams

Americans might prefer heroes-and-villains explanations to problems to reality-based explanations. A politically satisfying explanation for today's $4 a gallon price, when it was less than $2 a gallon a couple of years ago, is because oil company executives have all of a sudden become greedy in their pursuit of "obscene" profits.

As such, congressmen, as our heroes, should call these greedy men on the carpet and take sanctions against them in the forms of windfall profits tax, price controls and other measures to take away their ill-gotten gains — never mind the effects of the 1980 windfall profits tax. According to the Congressional Research Service, the 1980 windfall profits tax had the effect of decreasing domestic production by 3 percent to 6 percent, thereby increasing

American dependence on foreign oil sources by 8 percent to 16 percent.

Controlling the price of anything is very difficult, and it can only be accomplished through the force of government, mostly by restricting supply. The U.S. Congress is a major player in oil supply restriction, and OPEC nations must be laughing all the way to the bank.

Congress has banned energy exploration in 85 percent of our coastal waters. Ironically, China, in conjunction with Cuba, is drilling for oil nearer to our coastline than U.S. oil companies are permitted. According to "We don't have to take $4 gas prices — we can drill," written by Sterling Burnett in the Houston Chronicle (5/21/08), "It is estimated that beneath America's coast lies enough oil to fuel 60 million cars in the United States for 60 years and enough natural gas to heat 60 million homes for 160 years. ... If allowed access to American oil reserves in Alaska and off our coastline, American oil companies could increase our country's reserves an estimated five-fold, taking the United States from 11th place to fourth among the countries with proven oil reserves."

You say, "What about the environmental impact?" Contrary to the hysterical claims made by environmental extremists, caribou and other wildlife have expanded and flourished in and around Alaska's Prudhoe Bay, unaffected by the oil and gas development. What's more, Burnett points out that the "two leading environmental groups, the Audubon Society and the Nature Conservancy, have allowed oil and gas production on several of their most important and unique nature preserves."

Environmentalists come to their senses when non-drilling philosophy costs them something. It's two-faced hypocrisy. At times, I've suggested that the best way to get oil exploration in the Alaska National Wildlife Reserve is to give the land to environmentalists. You can bet they wouldn't sit on billions of dollars of oil and gas.

The true villain in our having to cough up $60, $70 or $80 to fill our gas tanks is the U.S. Congress caught in the grip of environmental extremists. But if reality is too difficult to swallow, we can continue to blame and support the congressional attack on oil executives, turn food into oil and think of other crackpot "solutions."

Texas Thoughts

By The Associated Press

A sample of editorial opinion around Texas:

■ June 1

San Antonio Express-News on unity in Darfur:

Amid the acrimony of the campaign trail, the three remaining contenders for the White House took time out from politics as usual last week. In fact, they did something somewhat extraordinary.

Rather than attack one another or sharpen the distinctions between them, Sens. Hillary Clinton, John McCain and Barack Obama worked together to issue a joint statement about ethnic cleansing in Sudan's Darfur region.

A nearly full-page ad in the New York Times highlighted their position: "We stand united and demand that the genocide and violence in Darfur be brought to an end."

The statement sent a clear message to the government of Omar al-Bashir that in American politics, Darfur is not a partisan or ideological issue. Much will change in Washington in January. The policy of diplomatic and economic sanctions against the bloody regime in Khartoum will not.

No country has done more than the United States, no leader has done more than George W. Bush to alleviate the violence in Darfur. Still, it is not enough.

Sudanese soldiers and militiamen continue to perpetrate atrocities against civilians and attack aid workers.

A robust United Nations peacekeeping force is the only real hope to quell the violence and provide a decent measure of protection for the people of Darfur. The U.N. Security Council passed a resolution creating the 26,000-man force last July.

But contributions from the international community of men and resources to support this force have been inadequate. And the Sudanese government has consistently thrown up obstructions.

After 10 months, only one-third of the proposed force has been able to deploy.

Next month, the United States assumes the rotating presidency of the Security Council. That gives the United States an enhanced opportunity to use negotiations, cajolery and threats to get the United Nations and Sudan to fulfill their commitments and for the Bush administration to live up to its own rhetoric about ending genocide.

Presiding over the Security Council in June provides President Bush with his last, best chance to make a meaningful change in Darfur. He should not squander it. URL: <http://www.mysa.com>

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the reader (April 7) who was bothered by the use of youthful pictures of the deceased in obituaries. I have heard that criticism before, and it baffles me. People aren't just who they were at 84, the age when they passed. What offends ME are obituaries that describe the person as "lovingly tending her tomatoes" or "a bingo devotee." Why aren't they described as the sum total of who they were in each stage of their lives? All of us make a difference in the world each day because of our presence. And it's our whole lives that do it, not just the most recent few years. There are so many things on this Earth to criticize. A photograph that was chosen for someone's obituary should not be one of them. -- DONNA IN CONCORD, N.H.

DEAR DONNA: I agree. However, readers' views on this subject were varied. As one person pointed out, your obituary photo may be "the only time you get your youth back." Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I discussed "Just Call Me Snapshot's" letter with my mother. She suggested that maybe the people in those pictures were the picture-takers in the family. I know I rarely appear in family photos because I am the one behind the camera. Perhaps a more recent photograph of the loved one doesn't exist! -- SUSAN IN BLOOMINGDALE, GA.

DEAR ABBY: The use of photos of the deceased in their prime is nothing new. Look at the death masks and statues from ancient Egypt. No one was depicted ravaged by time or illness. -- ROBERT FROM COLUMBUS, MONT.

DEAR ABBY: Your reply to "Snapshot" was that this is the way for a loved one to be remembered in his or her prime. However, I have a more correct -- and cynical -- answer. It's a larger source of income for the newspaper. The fees for obituaries are exorbitant. A simple Sunday announcement can run more than $200. The "helpful" editors have all kinds of stock phrases they offer that increase the size of the ad -- and that's exactly what it is -- and bump up the cost. Grieving families often don't realize the cost until the bill arrives. Like "Snapshot," I find it ghoulish, just another way to soak the grief-stricken. -- PAID THE BILL, ST. LOUIS

DEAR ABBY: The reader who objected to people using old photos instead of recent ones in obituaries is obviously still young. When she looks at me she sees the white hair, the sagging skin and other signs of aging, but my image of myself is still youthful, dark-haired and fit. I would like to use a younger picture for my obituary -- it's who I am. -- SOMETIMES SHOCKED AT THE MIRROR

DEAR ABBY: The writer of that letter overlooks the 20-year-old photos of LIVING people that we see so often in print media. These people have also aged (as we all do), and frankly, the use of an outdated picture is an insult to our intelligence. I see as pure fraud putting forth an image that is not truthful. There oughta be a law. -- CANDID PHOTOGRAPHER IN THE PRESENT

DEAR ABBY: Wait a minute. I appreciate those old photos. They give me a glimpse into people's lives -- who they were, and who they became. It has also given me a sense of my own mortality. Those images remind me that I, too, am marching on, and I should spend time wisely and make every day count. -- ANOTHER PICTURE IN THE PAPER

Wellington to host tournament for junior players

The Wellington Tennis Association will host a tournament for junior players from June 19-22, 2008. Singles for boys 12, 14, 16 and 18 will be on Thursday, June 19. Friday, girls singles play will begin. Matches will start at 9 a.m. on both days. On Saturday morning, doubles for both boys and girls will be played and will also start at 9 a.m.

Cost for the tournament is $20 per player. The fee covers singles and doubles. There will be a free t-shirt provided for all contestants who have an application and entry fee in the tournament director hands by Saturday, June 14. The deadline for all entries is Tuesday, June 17 at 6 p.m.

On Saturday night at 6:30, a mixed doubles mixer will be played. This is open for all ages and is free. Each participant will play with a different partner each twenty minute round. The mixer will last until 8 p.m.

Players from Texas and Oklahoma will meet in Wellington to enjoy fellowship and competition. Between rounds, participants can go to the Wellington Activity Center ("The WAC") and enjoy bowling, rock climbing, arcade games, ping pong, a batting cage, etc for a small fee. Swimming is available at the city pool and the country club. The movie theater will be featuring "King Fu Panda" during tournament week.

"Wellington, like many communities, is experiencing a revival of tennis interest. The Altus tournament was played last weekend and experienced decade high participation. Elk City is hosting its first tournament in over twenty years this weekend. We anticipate a solid turnout at Wellington. Sign up by Friday and get a free t-shirt too," stated Jesse Stovall, one of the tournament directors.

To enter, please go to www.wellingtontxtennis.com and print an application or contact: Jesse Stovall, 2500 N Robin Street, Altus, OK 73521 or call 580-481-4190. You may also contact Terri Morris or Pam Hill in Wellington.

Bid to buy Wrigley Field hits snag

CHICAGO (AP) — Negotiations between Tribune Co. and a state agency that wants to buy Wrigley Field have again broken down over how to finance the deal, officials from both sides said Monday.

The problem is coming up with a transaction that would not involve taxpayer money and thus could gain approval from city and state officials, said former Gov. Jim Thompson, executive director of the Illinois Sports Facilities Authority.

Officials with Chicago-based Tribune told the ISFA its acquisition of the ballpark may require new taxes or the transfer of sales and amusement tax revenue from Wrigley Field for the next 30 years, Thompson said.

Tribune said it may also require moving money the ISFA has already promised for projects at U.S. Cellular Field, the Chicago White Sox's ballpark that the ISFA owns, Thompson said.

"ISFA cannot agree to this," Thompson said. "In our judgment, there are no votes in the City Council or in the Illinois General Assembly for transferred or new taxes for Wrigley Field."

Former NFL Quarterback Quincy Carter working to get back to NFL

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Never mind the three turnovers, the small crowd or a 50-yard playing field that must feel depressingly claustrophobic to a man who once marched the Dallas Cowboys into the NFL playoffs.

After nearly four years of career setbacks, personal disappointments and drug-related arrests, something positive has finally happened for Quincy Carter. He started, and completed, a game in the Arena Football League.

While the Kansas City Brigade sits miles beneath the NFL, it's at least one step above the Bossier-Shreveport BattleWings of arenafootball2, the quarterback's last port of call in a long and bumpy voyage that one day, he prays, will return him to the big time.

Since he was dismissed by the Cowboys in 2004, inching upward instead of spiraling downward has been all too rare for Lavonya Quintelle Carter.

"It feels good to be back on the field," said the lean and strapping 6-foot-2 athlete, who appears in excellent physical condition. "I'm a little encouraged."

But only a little.

While hitting 23 of 43 passes for 273 yards and four touchdowns, Carter also threw two interceptions and lost a fumble deep in his own territory as the Rattlers romped 73-34.

No one was putting all the blame on Carter, who hadn't played in a game in almost 10 months.

Several of his passes were dropped. His receivers almost never made any yardage after first contact. And a banged-up offensive line did not distinguish itself against one of the AFL's better defenses. The loss was the second-worst in the history of a team that dropped to 3-11.

"I'm going to be thinking about these three turnovers 'til I get back on the field," he said. "I just want to get back in practice and work hard. But it did feel good to be back."

On Monday, Brigade coach Kevin Porter still was not saying whether Carter would get a second start on Saturday when Kansas City visits the Los Angeles Avengers.

"You're asking a lot of him to come in and play," said Porter. "I don't think he had a lot of support around him. But he did throw two interceptions."

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Wednesday, June 11, 2008:
This year you could enjoy improved finances because of increased investment savvy. New opportunities for travel might appear this fall. Some of you might be considering some further education or specializing in your chosen field. Your bright ideas, bubbling creativity and sharp wit could cut daily stresses. If you are single, you've got the right stuff for settling down now! If you are attached, romance could bubble forth once more if you add more sensitivity to the blend. LIBRA challenges you.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have:
5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Compliments and admiration swim in the same stream as you. Challenges and nervous energy are best handled with exercise. Think about hiring a personal trainer or a life coach. Tonight: Feeling emotional, some serious pampering is in order.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ Chatty encounters and ringing telephones might interrupt your work. Do you really care? Try the role of social butterfly. You could be the life of the party (office) once in a while. Tonight: Dancing with the stars? Or at least with your friends.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Follow your hunches. Female friends and co-workers pay more attention to your words. If you are interested, consider upgrading your computer or phone. You are in high gear, and sitting might be close to impossible. Tonight: Ask for what you want!

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★ Are you busy or preoccupied choosing colors, patterns and furniture? (Maybe even a new house?) A sensual, comfortable home environment soothes your sensitive soul. Friends love giving feedback. Remember to keep a budget in mind. Tonight: Follow the music.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Bathe in the white-hot spotlight of success. Everyone seems to be watching and listening! You know you love it. Speak forcefully and get what you need. Tonight: A little relaxation is in order. How about a gourmet meal with a group of great conversationalists?

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ Your mind is like a lightning bolt. Volunteer for a pet cause or drum up friends and co-workers for a fundraiser. You'll be helping someone in trouble. Bask in the glow of appreciation. Tonight: Physical activity will quiet an overactive mind. What are you going to choose?

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ You're such a charmer, my dear Libra! Everyone seems ready to please you, especially women and children. Why not call in some favors, if need be? Don't forget to say thank you. Consider purchasing a new wardrobe. You do love the finer things in life. Tonight: Romance is in the air!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ Curb impulsiveness. Stick with the original plan. Irritability can trip you up if you don't process frustration and nervousness. Try some herbal tea and a good mystery novel. Look over long-term money plans. Make careful adjustments. Do you feel more in control? Tonight: Chill out by a lake, garden or out in nature for an hour. Solitude and blessed peace ...

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★ A lucky break heads your way at work today, but your head might be in the clouds! You're busy planning your next vacation! If you are feeling a little misunderstood, try another perspective. Think about a big city for your next trip abroad. Tonight: You go first, and others will follow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ Could you be unusually moody? What do you really want? Might you change your daily routine to make it happen? Start with small changes for now. Others demand you step up to the plate. Tonight: Take a chance on a new person or place. Break old habits.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ Feeling a little rough around the edges today? It's easy to annoy or insult someone by mistake! Musical events and artistic pursuits will bring out the talented and creative Aquarian. Really break for lunch. Tonight: Let a fantasy play out, especially if it involves a trip.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ A chance meeting with a blast from your past inspires one and all! In your mind, events carry a sense of destiny. All your senses are in high gear. Important talks with individuals happen naturally. Tonight: Sprinkle some magic and romance around.

with the Florida Department of Criminal Justice. "Five (of the mandatory standards) did not apply (to the local facility) and there was zero non-compliance - an outstanding score."

Other members of the inspection team were Richard McVicar, a retired deputy director with the Illinois Department of Corrections, and Jean Moltz, a corrections officer from Colorado.

"We scored very high," said Joe Nunn, who has been the facility's warden since May 2007. "They were very impressed with the professionalism of our staff and the quality of life for our inmates."

The local units were accredited in 2005. Every prison facility in Texas is required to undergo a re-accreditation process every three years.

"They inspect everything," Warden Nunn explained. "They make sure our records are being kept as they should and they interview the inmates as well as the staff."

Jordan-Baten is a medium security facility that employs some 300 people.

Nunn said the process leading to the team's visit has been an ongoing one since the initial accreditation.

"We want to maintain that quality of life throughout the year," he noted. "Preparing for the team's visit is not something we jam up on the last two weeks. They can tell we have people that take a lot of pride in their work."

"There was nothing on our end that was negative or needed to be addressed. Our goal is to maintain the high standards we have now."

The inspection team's findings will be delivered to the American Corrections Association as a recommendation. The ACA will make the ruling as a formal presentation later this year.

Among the special guests at the recent meeting to hear the team's findings were Tom Mechler, secretary of the Texas Criminal Justice Board and a former Pampa business owner, and James and Anne Davidson. Anne's father, Rufe Jordan, was a Pampa Sheriff for whom the Jordan unit was named.

The primary site that will be investigated is a 1.8 million square-foot village, complete with residential structures, storage facilities, activity areas and middens. One of the goals of the field school is to understand the layout of the village and activity areas within the site, Wheat said.

"Because of the quantity of artifacts that are expected to be found, a field laboratory will be set up at this site," she said.

Previous archaeological testing has uncovered stone tools, marine shell ornaments, ceramics, faunal remains and materials obtained from trade with the eastern Pueblos of New Mexico.

Dr. Scott Brosowski, a research archeologist for Courson Archeological Research, will be the principal investigator. The field school will be staffed with experienced professionals and avocational archeologists who will offer quality guidance and instruction for everyone from beginner to veteran, ages 7 through 97 years of age, Wheat said.

Volunteers may participate in either excavation or process artifacts in the laboratory. Participation is open to members of Texas Archeological Society and their families. The fees will vary from $75 to $100 depending on length of participation. Those interested in attending may join at any time and take part in the field school.

To sign up, Brosowski said potential participants can go to the Texas Archeological Society website, www.txarch.org.

"It has all the information on the field school, how to register," Brosowski said. "You can register on-line or print off forms and mail them in."

The website also has a list of equipment that will be needed, he said.

"They can take care of everything right on the TAS website," Brosowski said.
