Mosquito offensive

City spray truck fights the night feeders

By JULIE ANN THOMPSON The Pampa News

The City of Pampa is on the offensive in the fight against mosquitoes. The city began spraying the product Biomist this Monday in three, six hour shifts.

Superintendent of Public Services Ed Turner said. "They're most active from dusk till around nine or ten at night and then again between four in the morning and seven o'clock. Those are the ones we have the most problems with."

Biomist is dispersed through an ultra low volume sprayer and is sprayed directly from the street. The trucks the mist is sprayed from are equipped with on-board computers and a radar to calibrate speed.

"If the winds are in excess of 10 miles per hour we can't spray or if it's over 80 degrees outside we can't spray either. The mosquitoes are suspended in the air between eight and 16 feet, so if it's too hot, the chemical will rise into the air and won't be effective."

The driver of the truck must be careful to watch for pedestrians, Turner added, which they are careful not to spray around. Drivers must also avoid any open water such as Recreation Park Lake.

Vandals strike football field

By MARILYN POWERS The Pampa News

Pampa High School's football field was the target of vandals who left behind an estimated $5,500 in damages to the property sometime before 8 a.m. Wednesday.

At 8:04 a.m. Wednesday, Pampa Police Department received a call from a resident in the 400 block of East Louisiana who stated that a vehicle he did not own had been left in his driveway.

The vehicle was a green Ingersoll-Rand Club Car with chrome bed, used to move equipment on the PHS football field. The Club Car is valued at $4,500. At the time it was found, a front tire had been punctured, according to a police report.

On Vacation with The Pampa News

Heading out on a much-deserved, much anticipated vacation? Whether it is to Greece or Groöm, Dublin or Dallas, grab your latest copy of The Pampa News and take it along for the ride!

Snap a photo of your group in front of some recognizable landmark - whether it is the Acropolis or the Dumas city limits sign, Lake Michigan or Lake Meridith - and make sure The Pampa News' front page is also recognizable (along with the faces of family and/or friends) and we will publish it in your hometown newspaper.

Plus, we will automatically enter your photograph into an informal contest to be judged by The Pampa News staff at the end of the year. There is no contest criteria - we just pick the photo we like the best and the winner will receive a nice desk globe (or something similar) as a prize.

"It is a just for fun contest," said Pampa News Publisher Randall Pribble. "We love to see our friends' smiling faces at famous landmarks or anywhere they like to visit."

Email your snapshots to rprbble@thepampanews.com or mail a photo to: Read All Over: On Vacation with The Pampa News, P.O. Box

CENTRAL BAIL BONDS

Kenneth Knowles Owner

Area Manager Larry Ingram

Central Bail Bonds is a privately owned company providing bail bonds service for the Panhandle, North Central and West Texas area. Owner Kenneth Knowles founded the company in 1978.

Larry Ingram has been the area manager for the Pampa area since August 1997. The Pampa office covers 9 counties, which include Hansford, Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Hutchinson, Roberts, Hemphill, Carson, Gray and Wheeler. On average, Larry drives over 50K miles yearly. Barbara Brogdon, secretary/agent since November 1999, handles the paperwork and backup for Larry. Together they make a great team to serve all your bail bond needs.

Forty offices and seventy agents makes Central the largest private surety in Texas. Central provides jail release, assistance, supervision, and guidance to those who Qualify for bail under the eighth amendment and can secure the release of defendants in every state on all types of bonds. Central will put up the total bond and charges a fee. The fee is set on percentage of the bond amount.

Central has bilingual agents, which service the non-English speaking citizens. All area agents are equipped with cell phones to provide the fastest possible release 24 hours a day.

As a privately owned company Central Bail Bonds provides this public service at no cost to the taxpayer. The use of our service reduces your taxes.

Father/son, mother/daughter relationships

Please don't let Father's Day sneak past you this year. Give your father a big hug Sunday, and let him know he is important. As I consider the significance of the coming holiday, I can't help but contemplate mother/daughter, father/son relationships.

Though my father passed on a number of years ago, for some reason he's been on my mind a lot lately. When I remember him, I am reminded of my great good fortune to have one parent still living. I treasure each day I have with my beloved mother and pray daily for her continued well-being.

I once thought it a terrible coil to share so many of my mother's character traits and so few of my father's. As a teenager and young adult, I winced every time I did something that put me in mind of my mother. These days I catch myself wishing I could be more like her, not less. Life is chock-full of irony, isn't it?

Although I must say lest I get carried away, the woman is not perfect. As a matter of fact, her nurturing instincts lag far behind other mothers. 'Tis a hard, sad truth that has confounded me my entire life, but Mother is not one to offer much in the way of sympathy. She is lamentably stoic and does not know the meaning of the word coddle.

Case in point: The other day I foolishly disclosed to Mother my desire to take up crocheting. The family matriarch's response? She pooh-poohed the notion without the slightest forethought or hesitation, projecting through mere body language a most discouraging mien.

She practically rolled her eyes.

Really, you would have thought I'd suggested selling all my worldly goods and moving to Maui to become a beach-comber or something instead of merely voicing a zeal to learn a new project. She immediately scoffed at my plan to take lessons through a book called "Crocheting for Dummies." I suppose I should at least be grateful that she refrained from making any wisecracks or correlations between the title of the book and me.

Okay, so perhaps she is somewhat justified in her negative approach to my recent revelation. It is true that over the years I have intermittently cultivated and abandoned a hobby or two ...

Skyla Bryant

or three ... or — well, never mind. The mere fact that I and flightiness have a history in no way substantiates her surly and unsupportive attitude. After all, the last hobby I took up and cast off was years ago. Besides, since she no longer bank-rolls these innocuous enterprises, what difference can it make? I mean, would it hurt her to give me a little encouragement? Would it, Mom?

Then, too, my mother loves to argue ... with ME. There are days, for instance, I assure you that if I were to say the earth is round she would beetle her eyebrows at me with grave suspicion and ask who told me THAT?

She even gets testy when I agree with her. Some people might surmise we don't communicate well, but my belief is she simply doesn't listen, and if, in the face of her unprovoked crankiness, I solicitously inquire into her health or ask if she slept all right, she gets thoroughly riled. I tell you I can't win for losing!

And just because I may call her a dozen or so times a day is no reason to get upset. She should be thankful I require her opinion on so many miscellaneous and sundry matters.

Why, she doesn't even know how to appreciate a good gift. I won't even go into the fit she had the year I gave her a brand new iron for Mother's Day. The woman will never let me live that lesson in gift-giving down. I tell you, she has no nurturing spirit at all.

Er, I intended this column to be somewhat warm and fuzzy, but, um, it appears likely that I have failed. Anyhoo, the relationship between mothers-and-daughters and fathers-and-sons is sometimes complicated, often mystifying, and at moments no doubt heart-breaking, but is, nonetheless, uniquely special. And if you believe me, please don't ask Mom.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, June 12, the 164th day of 2008. There are 202 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 12, 1963, civil rights leader Medgar Evers was fatally shot in front of his home in Jackson, Miss.; he was 37. (In 1994, Byron De La Beckwith was convicted of murdering Evers and sentenced to life in prison; he died in 2001.)

On this date:

In 1665, England installed a municipal government in New York, formerly the Dutch settlement of New Amsterdam.

In 1776, Virginia's colonial legislature became the first to adopt a Bill of Rights.

In 1898, Philippine nationalists declared independence from Spain.

In 1939, the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum was dedicated in Cooperstown, N.Y.

In 1963, one of Hollywood's most notoriously expensive productions, "Cleopatra," starring Elizabeth Taylor, Richard Burton and Rex Harrison, opened in New York.

In 1967, the Supreme Court, in Loving v. Virginia, struck down state laws prohibiting interracial marriages.

In 1971, Tricia Nixon and Edward F. Cox were married in the White House Rose Garden.

In 1978, David Berkowitz was sentenced to 25 years to life in prison for each of the six "Son of Sam" .44-caliber killings that had terrified New Yorkers.

In 1981, major league baseball players began a 49-day strike over the issue of free-agent compensation. (The season did not resume until Aug. 10.)

In 1987, President Reagan, during a visit to the divided German city of Berlin, publicly challenged Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev to "tear down this wall."

Ten years ago: A jury in Hattiesburg, Miss., convicted 17-year-old Luke Woodham of killing two students and wounding seven others at Pearl High School. Space shuttle Discovery returned to Earth, bringing home the last American to live aboard Mir and closing out three years of U.S.-Russian cooperation aboard the aging space station.

Five years ago: U.S. fighter jets bombed a suspected terrorist camp and troops stormed through Sunni Muslim towns in Iraq, seeking Saddam Hussein loyalists in one of the biggest American military assaults since the war began. Israel killed seven Palestinians in its third rocket attack in 24 hours.

'It is easier to love humanity as a whole than to love one's neighbor.'

Trick of the trade: Simple 'Web' designs

Are you an aspiring Web designer? If so, you've probably done a little research into the field and had to make some important decisions. For instance, "Should I use Microsoft Expression Web or Adobe Dreamweaver?"

—Introduction
Both Expression Web and Dreamweaver are tools that facilitate the design and maintenance of Web sites. While a Web site can be built using any text editing program, including the free Windows Notepad, true Web design programs pay for themselves through a variety of time-saving features.

For instance, both programs have built-in file synchronizing modules, negating the need for external FTP programs. (I know that last line may have lost some of you, but stick with me ... Once you design a Web page on your computer, you have to transfer it up to the server hosting your site. In the old days, you had to use a third-party FTP program.)

In addition, both programs can check the validity of all of your hyperlinks. This feature, alone, is worth the price of either program. Remember, customers hate broken links and will question the professionalism of your company if they run into too many problems.

So, what are the primary strengths and weaknesses of these two products?

—Expression Web
When Microsoft sees a developing software niche, they quickly create a product to fill it; as is the case with Expression Web. If you've used any of Microsoft's Office products (Word, Excel, PowerPoint, Access), you'll instantly recognize the interface that confronts you when you load this program. Most of the toolbar buttons are direct copies from other Microsoft programs. While this consistency lessens the learning curve, it can hide some of the more important features specific to

Eric Spellmann
Columnist

Expression Web. Luckily, Expression Web allows the user to customize these toolbars to their liking.

Expression Web's primary strength lies in a feature called, Server Extensions. One of the hardest tasks for new Web designers is "form building." Without complex scripting knowledge, new designers often out-source this vexing project. Well, Expression Web makes form design a matter of drag-and-drop simplicity.

There's only one drawback, though. Did you notice the name of this feature? SERVER Extensions. In order for these remarkable features to be available, your Web site must be stored on a server with those extensions

Texas Thoughts

By The Associated Press

A sample of editorial opinion around Texas:

■ May 29

Victoria Advocate on the 2008 hurricane season:

From June 1 all the way through Nov. 30, meteorologists all along the Atlantic Seaboard and, more important to us, the lengthy Gulf Coast from Florida to Brownsville, are watching the open water as it warms to the dangerous degree in which these wicked storms are born.

And their birth places are many the West Coast of Africa, the open Atlantic, the Caribbean even right off our front porch in the nearby waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

This 2008 season of tropical storms has experts believing it has a 65 percent chance of being busier than the "normal" season. Forecasters are calling for 12 to 16 storms strong enough to be given names, six to nine getting strong enough to be hurricanes, and two to five "major" storms carrying winds well over 100 mph and deadly storm surges that can raise the sea level by as much as 20 feet in a matter of minutes, cutting off all chance of escape.

Every year, then, the question becomes: If one of these monsters heads our way, toward the Coastal Bend, do I grab the family and the dog and get out, or do I "ride it out?"

That is a decision no one else can make for you.

When Hurricane Rita threatened our area three years back, an "evacuation order" was issued for Victoria, but in reality that is more of a request or warning than an actual order.

Therefore, some heeded it, others did not.

Rita was a monster, officially one of the most vicious storms ever recorded in the Gulf, but it veered away from us at the last minute, weakened somewhat and then made landfall along the Texas-Louisiana border.

If providence is with us, no Ritas will appear this year, roaring toward our homes with a terrible resolve for destruction and death.

But what if one does come our way? What if the "order" is given again by public safety officials who want nothing more than to get us out of harms way?

What will you do? URL: <http://www.victoriaadvocate.com> installed! Expression Web 2: $ 2 9 9 (http://www.microsoft.com/expression/)

—Dreamweaver

Adobe's focus on the needs of professional Web designers has made it the "one to beat" in the Web design software battle. Their newest version, Dreamweaver CS3, contains so many features, I could fill two more columns with them. Suffice to say, these features revolve around ease-of-use and "drop-in" scripting.

As I mentioned, Expression Web's primary strength is its use of Server Extensions. Dreamweaver's answer to that feature is called, similarly enough, "Dreamweaver Extensions." These user-built add-ons give Dreamweaver new features not originally installed with the software. Everything from connecting back-end databases to form design has been automated with these little programs. In fact, Adobe's Web site lists over 700 free, downloadable extensions, yours for the taking.

In addition, Dreamweaver is much more "Firefox-friendly" than Expression Web. Often pages designed in Expression Web contain components only viewable in Internet Explorer. Dreamweaver avoids such browser-specific features and, instead, opts for industry compliant code viewable in both programs. Dreamweaver CS3: $399 (http://www.adobe.com/dreamweaver).

—Conclusion

Microsoft has spent a lot of money to gain market-share in the Web design industry. However, in their quest to simplify the Web building process, they've neglected the needs of professional Web designers. I only recommend Expression Web for true Web design neophytes. For all others, Dreamweaver is the way to go. But ... if money is a consideration, check out Amaya (http://www.w3.org/Amaya). It does much of what the other two do, but costs nothing. See you in Cyberspace!

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: Our kids have decided not to have kids. Although we have no choice but to accept it, and would never express our disappointment or lay a guilt trip on them, we still have feelings about it. It's our biggest sadness. All the people we know have grandchildren. At holidays they have toys to buy, cookies to bake, dinners to plan. Our friends and relatives tell us that because we won't have grandkids we can buy ourselves something extra-special. It doesn't make us feel any better. An entire chapter of our lives will be missing. No one will call us "Grandma" or "Grandpa." Are our feelings legitimate, or are we whining about nothing? — NOBODY'S GRANDMA

DEAR NOBODY'S GRANDMA: You are whining about something. However, if you feel left out because you won't be buying toys at holiday time, baking cookies and being called "Grandma" and "Grandpa," I have a suggestion for you. "Adopt" a needy family with small children and assume that role. You need only look as far as your nearest homeless shelter, program for abused women, or ask someone in Social Services to find one for you. I guarantee you'll be greeted with open arms and open hearts.

DEAR ABBY: My mother is a hardworking farm woman in her early 60s who never bothered to take care of her skin. She recently went through menopause, and now her face looks much older than her years. Mom is a good person. Every wrinkle and laugh line has been well-earned. However, several people have made comments to her like, "What happened to you? You look terrible!" How should Mom respond to this? I suggested she say with smile, "I'm getting old, and I look it!" She feels that would be too harsh. Do you have a more subtle answer for these insensitive people? — PROUDLY AGING, READING, MINN.

DEAR PROUDLY AGING: There's an old saying: "It takes an enemy and a friend to hurt you to the core. The enemy to slander you, and the friend to get the 'news' to you." Your suggested response to the tactless individuals who would say such a thing to your mother isn't "harsh" -- it's right on target. If your mother tried for something more subtle, the people wouldn't get the message.

DEAR ABBY: My brother "Albert's" in-laws charge him and his new wife to attend family events. Example: When they are invited to the in-laws' lake house, they must bring $20 to cover the gas for the boat. Last Christmas they were charged $10 apiece for the family's annual shrimp boil, and $50 for a grandparent's birthday party. The in-laws are not poor. They could well afford to host these events for their relatively small family. Albert and his wife, however, are newlyweds. They don't have a lot of spare cash. Nevertheless, their attendance at these family events is expected. I believe to charge a guest money to attend a gathering like this is a social blunder. Albert says that's the price of marrying into the family. What do you think, Abby? — PROTECTIVE SIBLING, NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

DEAR PROTECTIVE SIBLING: Considering the fact that the in-laws have money, the practice is certainly unusual. However, your brother knew what he was getting into when he married into this family, and you should M.Y.O.B.

toes that the city is targeting right now are Anopheles Quadrimaculatus and Culex Tarsalis. Anopheles prefer permanent pools of water. They deposit their eggs on the water's surface in a spot that is sheltered from the wind and wave action and near plants that can protect the larvae. Their flight range is usually within one mile of their breeding area. These mosquitoes are generally found in the fields and parks. Culex prefer pools of a more temporary nature such as ditches and storm sewers. These pools are more likely to become fouled with decaying plant debris, animal and human waste and septic water ... often preferred by this breed. According to Turner, Culex Tarsalis are the kind of mosquitoes that get into a person's home and invade back yards. They complete several generations per year and breed continuously as long as water is present.

"The biggest thing people can do to help is to keep their grass mowed and weeds cut down," Turner said.

Turner added that homeowners should empty any containers of water around their property. They should dispose of any old tires that are on the property as well, as stagnant water and high grass areas are primary breeding grounds for mosquitoes.

Anyone who does not want their property sprayed may call 669-5760, extension 3 to get their home put on the no-spray list. When a truck gets within half a block of a home on the list they will stop spraying.

"This program has been going on for years and we've had really good results," Turner said. "We can spray the whole town in three, six hour shifts and we've had a good knock-down ratio in the past."

Worker killed, 6 hurt in Houston plant explosion

HOUSTON (AP) — A chemical plant worker was killed and six others injured during an early morning explosion and ammonia leak Wednesday at the Goodyear Houston plant.

The body of the worker, whose name was not released, was found under debris about seven hours after the 7:30 a.m. blast in a heat exchange unit at the plant, said Goodyear spokesman Scott Baughman.

Five of the workers have been treated and released and a sixth was being held for observation.

The explosion also caused a small release of ammonia, which is used as a refrigerant to cool processed liquids.

The six injured were treated on-site by the plant's medical team before being transferred to local hospitals. Baughman said the damage and small ammonia spill were contained in a small area of the plant, which makes synthetic rubber for the production of tires.

The plant was evacuated for several hours after the explosion. About 200 people were in the plant at the time.

There was no danger to the public, plant officials said.

The plant was given an "all-clear" around 11 a.m., when employees were allowed back in to the facility. The area near the explosion remained closed, Baughman said.

The blast happened in one of the plant's three heat exchanging units, which are about 2 feet wide and 15 feet long. The units use ammonia, Baughman said.

Plant officials were investigating the cause of the explosion and trying to determine how much ammonia was spilled.

What you can do

Mosquitos are an all too familiar summer nuisance. They are not only annoying, but they can be transmitters of encephalitis, malaria and yellow fever to humans and heartworm to pets. You can take simple, positive steps to reduce this menace right at home, since many generations of mosquitoes can breed right in your own yard.

- Get rid of old tires, tin cans, buckets, drums, bottles or any water holding containers.
- Fill in or drain any low places (puddles, ruts) in your yard.
- Keep drains, ditches and culverts clean of weeds and trash so water will drain properly.
- Cover trash containers to keep out rain water.
- Repair leaky pipes and outside faucets.
- Empty plastic wading pool at least once a week and store it indoors when not in use.
- Make sure your backyard pool is properly cared for while on vacation.
- Fill in tree rot holes and hollow stumps that hold water with sand or concrete.
- Change the water in bird baths and plant pots or drip trays at least once each week.
- Keep grass cut short and shrubbery well trimmed around the house so adult mosquitoes will not hide there.

was contacted about the vehicle, and in the course of investigating the incident, damage was found at the football field, according to the report. Both concession stands had been broken into, and one concession window was damaged. A gate north of the concession stand was damaged, and may have been rammed by the Club Car, according to the report. The track had been written on with chalk.

The investigation continues into the incident, which involves criminal mischief, burglary and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. Anyone with information concerning the case may call the police department at 669-5700.

Police say football coach pawned school items

DALLAS (AP) — A state champion football coach whose salary is among the highest in Texas allegedly pawned school laptops, cameras and other campus property before buying them back, a newspaper reported Thursday.

Mesquite High School's Steve Halpin has not been criminally charged, and his last day on the job is set for Friday after he announced his retirement in May.

The Dallas Morning News reported that Mesquite police found that Halpin pawned 270 items dating to last year, and began a case when $2,075 in cameras and a projector went missing from the school in May.

School administrators asked police not to pursue the matter, Mesquite police Lt. Steve Callarman said.

"Once we were made aware of the situation by the Police Department, we conducted our own internal investigation and we determined that at this time, all the items are accounted for," said Laura Jobe, a spokeswoman for the school district.

Halpin, who led Mesquite to the Class 5A title in 2001, declined to comment to the newspaper. He didn't immediately return a phone message Thursday from The Associated Press.

Halpin, who salary is $92,631, resigned Thursday as president of the Texas High School Coaches Association, said D.W. Rutledge, the group's president. His one-year term was to expire in July.

"We were shocked," Rutledge told The Associated Press. "I've got a mixed reaction. I've got a genuine care and concern for Steve as an individual."

Mesquite school administrators also did not promptly report the problem to state education officials as required, the newspaper reported. The Texas Education Agency said it plans to investigate.

A letter to the agency was sent June 5, about a month after police informed the school district of the evidence that tied Halpin to three Dallas pawnshops. All three had records showing that the district's property had come and gone multiple times from their businesses.

"They must report it," said Doug Phillips, TEA's director of investigations. "It's real serious."

Mesquite ISD Superintendent Linda Henrie said the district acted appropriately with its investigation.

"I don't want to be presented that we were trying to cover up something," Henrie said. "I do know that we reported it in what we thought was a timely manner." During his 13 years as Mesquite's head coach, Halpin's teams went to the playoffs eight times. His son, Luke, is expected to be Mesquite's starting quarterback in the fall.

Texas' secretary of state to resign

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Secretary of State Phil Wilson is stepping down to pursue other opportunities, he announced Thursday. His last day will be July 6.

Wilson, 40, was appointed by Republican Gov. Rick Perry almost a year ago. Before that, he was Perry's deputy chief of staff.

The secretary of state is Texas' chief elections officer. The secretary of state oversees business and public filings, acts as the governor's chief liaison for border affairs, and oversees international protocol for the state.

There is no set length of term for the position, said spokesman Scott Haywood. Wilson's predecessor held the position for about 2 1/2

Severe weather Scouts praised for response after tornado hits Iowa camp

BLENCOE, Iowa (AP) — Boy Scouts who came to each others' aid after a tornado that killed four of their comrades and injured 48 people were hailed as heroes Thursday for helping to administer first aid and search for victims buried in their flattened campsite.

Iowa rescue workers cut through downed branches and dug through debris amid rain and lightning Wednesday night to reach the camp where the 93 boys, ages 13 to 18, had huddled for safety through the twister. They and 25 staff members were attending a weeklong leadership training camp.

Lloyd Roitstein, an executive with the Mid America Council of the Boy Scouts of America, reminded reporters at a news conference Thursday that the Boy Scouts motto is "Be Prepared."

"Last night, the agencies and the scouts were prepared," he said. "They knew what to do, they knew where to go, and they prepared well."

Iowa Gov. Chet Culver praised the boys for "taking care of each other."

Tornadoes also raked Kansas on Wednesday, killing at least two people, destroying much of the small town of Chapman and causing extensive damage on the Kansas State University campus.

At the same time, The tornado through the camp killed three 13-year-olds and one 14-year-old, Roitstein said. A tornado siren went off at the camp, but the scouts had already taken cover before the siren sounded. There was no time to remove them from the isolated retreat, he said.

The boys had been in two groups when the storm hit the Little Sioux Scout Ranch in the Loess Hills. One group managed to take shelter, while the other was out hiking.

Boy Scout officials identified the dead as Aaron Eilerts, 14, of Eagle Grove, Iowa and Josh Fennen, 13, Sam Thomsen, 13, and Ben Petrzilka, 14, all of Omaha.

At least 42 of the injured remained hospitalized Thursday morning, with everything from cuts and bruises to major head trauma, said Eugene Meyer, Iowa's public safety commissioner.

Three were flown to Mercy Medical Center in Sioux City, Iowa, and a fourth was taken there by ambulance. All were listed in serious condition.

All the scouts and staff were accounted for, Meyer said, adding that searchers were making another pass through the grounds to make sure no one else was injured. The camp was destroyed.

Thomas White, a scout supervisor, said he dug through the wreckage of a collapsed fireplace to reach victims in a building where many scouts were seeking shelter when the twister struck at about 6:35 p.m.

"A bunch of us got together and started undoing the rubble from the fireplace and stuff and waiting for the first responders," White told KMTV in Omaha, Neb. "They were under the tables and stuff and on their knees, but they had no chance."

The nearest tornado siren, in nearby Blencoe, sounded only briefly after the storm cut power to the town, said Russ Lawrenson of the Mondamin Fire Department.

Taylor Willoughby, 13, said several scouts were getting ready to watch a movie when someone screamed that there was a tornado. Everyone hunkered down, he said, and windows shattered.

"It sounded like a jet that was flying by really close," Taylor told NBC's "Today" on Thursday. "I was hoping that we all made it out OK. I was afraid for my life."

Ethan Hession, also 13, said he crawled under a table with his friend.

"I just remember looking over at my friend, and all of a sudden he just says to me, 'Dear God, save us,'" he told "Today." "Then I just closed my eyes and all of a sudden it's (the tornado) gone."

Ethan said the scouts' first-aid training immediately compelled them to act.

"We knew that we need to place tourniquets on wounds that were bleeding too much. We knew we need to apply pressure and gauze. We had first-aid kits, we had everything," he said.

Ethan said one staff member took off his shirt and put it on someone who was bleeding to apply pressure and gauze. Other scouts started digging people out of the rubble, he said.

The injured were taken to Burgess Health Center in Onawa, Alegent Health Clinic in Missouri Valley and Creighton University Medical Center in Omaha.

The 1,800-acre ranch about 40 miles north of Omaha includes hiking trails through narrow valleys and over steep hills, a 15-acre lake and a rifle range.

Judge embroiled in porn tempest said to have distinguished career

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Alex Kozinski is more accustomed to appearing on lists to fill U.S. Supreme Court vacancies than headlines involving pornographic scandals.

But on Wednesday, the chief judge of the country's largest federal appeals court was forced to suspend an obscenity trial he was presiding over after sexually explicit images posted to his his family's Web site became public.

The Los Angeles Times reported that Kozinski had posted sexual material on his personal Web site and then blocked access after being interviewed about it Tuesday evening.

Kozinski, 57, told the Times he thought the material on his site, which included a video of a man cavorting with a sexually aroused farm animal, couldn't be seen by the public. The judge said he didn't believe any of the images were obscene.

"Is it prurient? I don't know what to tell you," he told the newspaper. "I think it's odd and interesting. It's part of life."

Yale Kozinski, the judge's film editor son, told The New York Times on Wednesday that the site is registered to him and he maintains it. Friends and family are able to post there, he said.

"The fact that it was publicly accessible actually is my fault, too," Yale Kozinski told the newspaper. "I made a mistake in configuring it."

Neither father nor son made clear Wednesday who posted the images in question. Judge Kozinski said earlier that he didn't believe any of them were obscene.

He suspended until Monday the trial of Ira Isaacs, who is charged with obscenity for selling movies depicting bestiality and extreme fetishes involving feces and urination. Appellate judges such as Kozinski occasionally handle trial court cases.

Kozinski told lawyers in the case he wanted to give them time to consider whether to ask that he be disqualified. Federal prosecutors were discussing their options, Department of Justice lawyer Kenneth Whitted said.

At best, the exposure of his Web site was an embarrassing turn of events for Kozinski, who reached the pinnacle of a long, illustrious and colorful judicial career in November when he was appointed chief judge of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which has jurisdiction over nine western states.

The appointment capped a 26-year career on the bench that began in 1982 at age 32 when he was named chief of the newly created federal claims court, which handles lawsuits related to federal contracts.

Three years later, President Ronald Reagan appointed him to the 9th Circuit, making him the youngest federal appellate judge in the country.

President George H.W. Bush seriously considered nominating Kozinski for high court openings in 1990 and 1991, though the jurist hasn't received the same considerations from the current Bush administration.

Still, Kozinski enjoys a sterling reputation as an eloquent opinion writer and a titan on the bench even while his off-the-bench eccentricities run the gamut.

Kozinski, 57, was born in Romania to Holocaust survivors and came to America when he was 12. Six years later, he won a date in 1968 while appearing on the TV show "The Dating Game" after greeting the contestant with "good afternoon, flower of my heart."

Fourth season of 'Top Chef' cooks up a winner

NEW YORK (AP) — It took four seasons, but a woman finally took the top spot on Bravo's "Top Chef."

Stephanie Izard, a 31-year-old, mild-mannered chef from Chicago, beat out 15 other contestants to win the popular reality show designed to test a cook's mettle.

Izard, a former restaurant owner with a fondness for seafood and pork, was among the last three contestants to make Wednesday's finale, along with Lisa Fernandes of New York and Richard Blais of Atlanta.

Going into the finale, Blais appeared to be the favorite, but it was Izard who impressed the judges in the end to capture the title and $100,000 that goes with it.

"I just made the best meal that night," Izard told The Associated Press. "It came down to who brought their A-game." The last episode took place in San Juan, Puerto Rico, following many culinary battles in Chicago.

The judges threw the trio a serious test. A four-course black-tie dinner for nine that had to include fish, poultry, red meat and dessert. The contestants did get a bit of help: each was paired with a big name New York restaurant chef, including Eric Ripert of Le Bernardin.

Izard described the show — won in previous seasons by Harold Dieterle, Ilian Hall and Hung Huynh — as grueling, and said the pressure mounted with each cooking challenge, especially those that involved working with a team.

"It definitely took a lot to get to the finals," she said. "It's definitely one of the hardest things I've done."

Ultimately, Izard prevailed with her dishes of sauteed red snapper filet with truffled white asparagus and clam broth; seared quail breast with butter poached lobster ravioli and mango; lamb medallions with maitake mushrooms, olives and braised pistachios; and ricotta pound cake with lime glaze, pineapple and salted banana cream.

At dinner, Ripert praised Izard's simple menu and the seasoning of the quail. Though he did call her cake "unrefined."

At the judges' table, opinions flew. "There were some missteps along the way," head judge and chef Tom Colicchio said. Some big. Some small. And some startling admissions.

Blais told the judges he choked. It wasn't his "best performance." Colicchio agreed. Blais had missed with a pork and scallop dish.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, June 13, 2008:

How you view situations and people in general might change dramatically through the year. Always work on detaching, though emotions would tell you to do the opposite! Your creativity emerges when dealing with problems, and also the need for hard work. You cannot escape the inevitable. Understand limitations and honor them as well. If you are single, romance will add sparkle to your days if you are open. Finding the right person could be a separate issue! If you are attached, re-create an old date or go on a second honeymoon. Remember to stoke the fires of love. LIBRA knows how to get your imagination fired up!

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19) * Recognize what makes others tick. In doing so, you will be able to relate on a deeper and more profound level. You might not always feel that you understand others. Today, take a lesson in better communication. Tonight: Let others make a choice.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) * Clear your desk, as you will want to be footloose and fancy free this weekend. What might surprise you is just how many options you have once you relax. Creativity opens doors. Which one do you want to go through? Tonight: Say yes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) * Your imagination might make it difficult to work from home and to really relax. Your vision of possibilities could take you to a whole new level of options. Focus on what is best in the long run. Tonight: Out with a pal or co-worker.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) * Sometimes you might want to listen more or open up to new possibilities. If you are wondering which way to go in a tense situation, ask others. The difference of opinion easily can be bridged. Tonight: Start the weekend well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) * Investigate possibilities. Be the ever-personable Leo, and life really will fall into place. Clear your desk and make time to return all calls and to-do's. You'll enter the next few days feeling great as a result. Tonight: Happy at home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) * Tighten up an expenditure, or check on a bill. Knowing when you have had enough or done enough could be very important. Make plans keeping in mind your budget. Sort through calls, knowing it is the end of the work week.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) * You still have energy and vaavoom. Don't kid yourself about how much you can accomplish, or else you could be very frustrated. Think "week-end" and "closing off," rather than "new beginnings." Tonight: Be budget savvy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) * Though it might take a lot to get yourself in gear or have what you need happen, don't think in terms of having to do everything right now. Lighten up on yourself, and you just might enjoy the next few days. Tonight: Time to wish upon a star.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) * Meetings could be important, be it in a personal or professional context. The line could be hazy as well. Take some personal time this afternoon, or at least close your door so you can concentrate. Tonight: You don't need to tell all!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) * Step up to the plate and be willing to handle as much responsibility as you deem necessary. Meetings and other people score high in your afternoon, whether planned or not. Remain confident. Tonight: Where the action is.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) * Your mind could drift to different ideas and unusual solutions. Your ability to take a stand and make a difference emerges. Listen to news with a grain of salt. Though this person means to tell the whole story, he or she might not be able to, not having all the facts. Tonight: A force to witness.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) * Work with one person rather than a bundle of many. You could be exhausted at all the news that heads your way. Stop and consider your options more carefully. You could be surprised by what life might offer. Tonight: Take off ASAP!

nents. Some may be wary of how their constituents will react to a black presidential candidate. Some, too, have made it a practice of distancing themselves from the national party, fearing the inevitable campaign ad that has their face morphing into Howard Dean, the party chairman, and Obama.

Rep. Dan Boren, the only congressional Democrat in Oklahoma, calls Obama "the most liberal senator" in Congress and says he has no plans to make a public endorsement.

"We're much more conservative" in eastern Oklahoma, Boren said. "I've got to reflect my district."

Dear Patients,

After almost 30 years in Pampa, I have decided to limit my practice to office based procedures during certain days. I had to make this decision due to the fact that I will be joining the Amarillo V.A. Hospital as a General Surgeon starting July 2008.

I urge my patients who are desirous to obtain copies or request transfer of their records to contact the office as soon as possible at 669-3303.

I would like to use this opportunity to thank you for the trust and patronage over the years.

Sincerely,
Vijay Mohan M.D.
