3 arrested in 2 days

by Marilyn Powers
 mpowers@thepampanews.com

Gray County sheriff's deputies arrested three persons in two days' time on drug and other charges as a result of traffic stops.

At 3:03 p.m. Monday, Deputies Rhett Rollins and Robert Douglas made a traffic stop at the intersection of Hobart and Rham streets. Conditions of the stop prompted them to search the driver, Hugh Jackson Parman, 20, of Pampa.

"While patting him down, they found a bottle containing unidentified pills," said GCSO Lt. Joe B. Hoard. "He did not have a prescription for the pills."

Lab tests have not yet been completed on the pills, but they are believed to be hydrocodone, Hoard said.

Parman was arrested and booked into Gray County Jail on a charge of possession of a dangerous drug. Bond on the charge was set at $2,000, according to jail records.

Bond on two other charges against Parman, expired vehicle registration and possession of drug paraphernalia, was set at $1,000 each. He was released Tuesday on $4,000 bond.

At 8:40 p.m. Tuesday, Deputies Zach Kidd and Rollins stopped a vehicle in the 1800 block of Hamilton for a reported traffic violation.

"Suspicious behavior prompted a search of Daniel Craig Baker, 28, of Pampa," Hoard said. Baker was one of three persons in the vehicle at the time of the stop.

"While searching him, deputies found a baggie in his pocket containing a controlled substance believed to be methamphetamine," Hoard said. A search of the vehicle was also conducted after consent was obtained.

Baker was arrested and booked into Gray County Jail on a charge of possession of one gram or more but less than four grams of a controlled substance. Baker remained in jail as of Wednesday, awaiting arraignment.

A little more than an hour later, at 9:54 p.m. Tuesday, Deputies Rollins and Douglas noticed a vehicle parked in the 600 block of North Gray which was in violation of traffic laws, according to sheriff's office reports.

The vehicle was subsequently stopped by the deputies in the vicinity of the 400 to 500 block of North Hobart.

Election official reports on registration

Approximately 1,300 new voters have registered to vote in the Nov. 4 Presidential election, according to Linda Lewis, Gray County election administrator. Some 250 of them registered on Oct. 6, the last day they were eligible to do so.

"This election is such a different animal,"

Lewis noted. "Probably in the history of modern elections, this will be the biggest one we've had. The Secretary of State told us in March they expected it to be the biggest one they had ever seen."

There are approximately 14,700 registered voters in the county. — Early voting begins — on Oct. 20 and runs — See Election, Page 3

United Way off to good start

With the country's general economic downturn and the loss of some major contributors due to plant relocations, the Pampa United Way chapter began its current fund-raising campaign with the knowledge that it would have to make up at least a $25,000 shortfall from last year's total.

However, at the first "check-in luncheon" Tuesday, the volunteers found that the campaign, which runs through Nov. 4, is actually ahead of last year's numbers during the same period.

"Last year at this time, we had received about $44,000 in donations and right now we have received $63,208," said Katrina Bigham, executive director.

The donations will benefit many non-profit services organizations in the community. The campaign's goal this year is $307,364, and the initial response has given the volunteers some encouragement.

"I have found that where there is a genuine need, this community responds," said John Warner, the campaign's chair this year. "The heart of this community is large."

through Oct. 31. Voters can cast ballots at the courthouse from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the weekdays during that period. There will be no early voting on Saturdays.

"Normally, we have about one-third of the population voting in the early voting period," Lewis said.

Voters can choose a handballot or use an electronic voting machine to cast their ballot. Lewis said her office will also offer curbside voting for those who find it difficult to get out of vehicles.

She also noted that the office has 447 mailed ballots as of Oct. 8, with an additional 300 still not returned.

That is also an indication of the interest in this election.

"Normally, we have only 75-100 mailed ballots," Lewis said.

A sample ballot is found on the Classified Pages of today's issue.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Oct. 9, the 283rd day of 2008. There are 83 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
Fifty years ago, on Oct. 9, 1958, Pope Pius XII died at age 82, ending a 19-year papacy. (He was succeeded by Pope John XXIII.)

On this date:
In 1446, the Korean alphabet, created under the aegis of King Sejong, was first published.
In 1701, the Collegiate School of Connecticut — later Yale University — was chartered.

In 1776, a group of Spanish missionaries settled in present-day San Francisco.

In 1888, the public was first admitted to the Washington Monument.

In 1919, the Cincinnati Reds won the World Series, defeating the Chicago White Sox 10-5 at Comiskey Park. (The victory turned hollow amid charges eight of the White Sox had thrown the Series in what became known as the "Black Sox" scandal.)

In 1930, Laura Ingalls became the first woman to fly across the United States as she completed a nine-stop journey from Roosevelt

'All generalizations are dangerous, even this one.'

Field, N.Y., to Glendale, Calif.

In 1946, the Eugene O'Neill drama "The Iceman Cometh" opened at the Martin Beck Theater in New York.

In 1967, Latin American guerrilla leader Che Guevara was executed while attempting to incite revolution in Bolivia.

In 1968, the new military government of Peru seized the country's oil fields.

In 1975, Soviet scientist Andrei Sakharov was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize.

Ten years ago: Ariel Sharon returned to the center of power in Israel as the country's new foreign minister.

Five years ago: A suicide car bombing at a Baghdad police station killed eight people; Spanish military attache Jose Antonio Bernal Gomez was shot to death in Baghdad.

One year ago: Republican presidential hopefuls Mitt Romney and Rudy Giuliani clashed over tax and spending cuts, each claiming greater commitment than the other in a debate in Dearborn, Mich. Two Armenian Christian women were shot to death in Baghdad by security contractors working for Australian-owned Unity Resources Group. France's Albert Fert and German Peter Gruenberg won the 2007 Nobel Prize in physics for a discovery that lets computers, iPods and other digital devices store reams of data on ever-shrinking hard disks. Actress Carol Bruce died in Woodland Hills, Calif., at age 87.

Today's Birthdays: Actor Fyvush Finkel is 86. Former Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., is 67. Rhythm-and-blues singer Nona Hendryx is 64. Singer Jackson Browne is 60. Actor Gary Frank is 58. Actor Richard Chaves is 57. Actor Robert Wuhl is 57. Actress-TV personality Sharon Osbourne is 56. Actor Tony Shalhoub is 55. Actor Scott Bakula is 54. Musician James Fearnley (The Pogues) is 54.

The difference between charity, duty a canyon-breadth apart

Today, I'm contemplating my somewhat miserly view of time versus my so-called, self-proclaimed "Christian duty." Once I think upon it, those two words "Christian duty" seem rather un-Christian to me. After all, Christ loved without duty.

What a deity. Can we call "Christian" what we deem "duty"? Is there any charity to be found betwixt two nouns of such opposing values?

Many times I find myself "suffering" through the motions of doing what I suppose is my duty as a human being to do. I suffer through because, in general I am doing, not what I want to do, but what my conscience dictates. Such a soul-less task rather robs the good from the entire operation.

My fervent hope is that the focus of these rather hide-bound efforts does not feel equally robbed. It lately occurs to me that God is not glorified, nor even particularly pleased, by my lack of cheer in doing what good conduct behooves.

When I reflect upon the word "charity," I think in terms of an amalgamous collection of worthy causes or anonymous individuals who live in grave poverty and uncertain circumstances.

Alas, I APPLY the term — seldom do I genuflect the full-meaning of "charity" inwards.

According to Merriam-Webster online dictionary, charity is defined in the following ways:

"1: benevolent goodwill toward or love of humanity

"2 a: generosity and helpfulness especially toward the needy or suffering; also: aid given to those in need b: an institution engaged in relief of the poor c: public provision for the relief of the needy

"3 a: a gift for public benevolent purposes b: an institution (as a hospital) founded by such a gift 4: lenient judgment of others."

Pay particular attention to the first meaning of the word — "benevolent goodwill toward or love of humanity." I read KINDNESS into that particular description of charity — kindness and compassion.

Duty dulls benevolent good deeds and leeches joy from kindness. For example, what is the use of donating a few hours of my time if my heart takes a hiatus? Giving without the correct motivation is the antithesis of servitude, whether the focus be a friend or a worthy cause. It is pitance, mere duty. Is that really charity?

Duty has its place, but rarely do I associate duty with joy or love. No, I associate duty with honor, not Christian compassion, which takes me back to the beginning of this column and my reasons for writing it in the first place.

Though I cannot exactly say what led me to the "strain" of thought that served as grist for the current installment of this weekly word mill, I can say it is crucial to take stock of our busy lives with a daily priority check. Perhaps the proximity of November and December ('tis the eve of the giving season, after all) to the month now zipping past was the genesis of this column.

Possibly, I was led to the subject by self-condemnation, by my very own lack of cheerful servitude. Let me now say: A diagnosis doth not a solution to EVERY problem make, nor does self-discovery necessarily lead to instant self-transformation or self-gratification.

Thanksgiving and Christmas will soon arrive, and the holiday season is, or should be, marked by giving, by Christian charity and not Christian duty. Mayhap by Thanksgiving my heart and my head will be in the right place, and I will have learned that, when hoarded, time is terribly important but it's only precious when bestowed with love and grace and a decided absence of resentment.

Keeping track of the weather on-line

The recent, severe storms on the East Coast prompted me to update my list of weather-related sites. Until now, I didn't realize how much I depended on the Internet for up-to-date weather information. Did I say, "up-to-date?" I meant "up-to-the-minute!"

Today, you don't have to be a trained meteorologist to predict the weather; just an informed Web surfer. I have four Web sites that epitomize the best the Web has to offer in the weather arena — Intellicast, the Weather Channel, AccuWeather, and the National Weather Service.

No matter how many other sites I check out, I just can't seem to get enough of Intellicast (<http://www.intellicast.com>). Its comprehensive coverage of thousands (yes, I said "thousands") of cities allows any traveler to pack smartly. Their graphical 10-day forecast gives me an instant summary of upcoming weather trends. In addition, its radar images are some of the most colorful, accurate graphics I've seen on the Web. When you get to its site, type your zip code in the "Local Weather" blank at the top. If you're traveling and don't know the zip, just type the city and state for the same results.

Information for each city includes current conditions, a 10-day forecast graphic and a narrative forecast. Clicking on "radar" at the top of the page shows you a current image. Be careful, though. The radar images are only updated every 15 minutes or so. If you have time (and a fast Internet connection), click on "Radar Loop" in the left column. You'll see the last five hours of radar played like a movie, allowing you to determine the path of that large storm.

Another great site comes to us from the largest

Weather Network on Earth — The Weather Channel (<http://weather.com>). Besides its easy to remember Web address, the Weather Channel offers the fastest means of determining conditions in any city. As with Intellicast, you can enter your zip code to quickly find your city's forecast. Links to local and regional Doppler radar are also available, although they aren't as large and detailed as the ones on Intellicast.

The most useful feature of this site, however, is the Weather Glossary (<http://www.weather.com/glossary>). Next time my local TV meteorologist describes the radar picture as an ANOMALOUS PROPAGATION, I'll know what he means. Hundreds of terms are defined in normal English.

A relative newcomer to the on-line weather field is AccuWeather (<http://www.accuweather.com>). While it doesn't excel at Web-based weather delivery (at least not compared to my first two picks), its does offer a service I use every day — AccuWeather Alert. Basically, each morning when I get to work, a beautiful, fully graphical forecast is delivered to my e-mail box. You can set the delivery to be any time you want on any day. It is VERY flexible, and of course, FREE.

When severe weather strikes, knowing where the warnings and watches are can be lifesaving information. The National Weather Service (<http://www.nws.noaa.gov>) constantly revises this information, making it available on-line to any surfer. National, state and county weather watches can be viewed from anywhere. Another interesting link at

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I am writing regarding the letter from "Sniffled Out in Indiana" (July 18), who complained about the noises her co-worker made throughout the day. True, her co-worker may suffer from an allergy or chronic post-nasal drip, but it is also possible that he has Tourette syndrome. This is a neurological disorder, the symptoms of which can include excessive throat-clearing, sniffing and other vocalizations (verbal tics), as well as eye-blinking, facial-grimacing and shoulder-shrugging (physical tics). Most people know only the stereotypical Tourette image they see presented on TV shows and in the movies of someone shouting, cursing and thrashing about. The average person usually does not realize that most people with TS suffer from mild symptoms that are often misinterpreted as "annoying habits." This lack of understanding and education about Tourette syndrome on the part of the general public is one of the greatest obstacles for people who have this condition. -- JILL IN TITUSVILLE, N.J.

DEAR JILL: Thank you for educating me -- and, by extension, my readers. You and the other individuals who took the time to write have taught me some things I didn't know. Among them, that the Tourette Syndrome Association is a reliable resource for learning about this often misunderstood subject. Its Web site is www.tsa-usa.org. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: My son has Tourette. Any uncontrollable, repetitive sound or movement can be a sign of it. If people ask my son why he does what he is doing or have comments about it, he will explain what it is and that he can't control it. If a person with Tourette is asked about it, he or she can "stop" it for a while because he or she is concentrating. But once the person's attention is diverted elsewhere -- such as by work or TV -- it can start again. I hope "Sniffled Out" will help her co-worker. It's possible he does just need tissues and some medicine, but if it's Tourette, he will need her help. It's difficult to be a part of a group when you know you're annoying them. -- OPEN-MINDED IN LAS VEGAS

DEAR ABBY: The fact that her co-worker could suppress his symptoms for a time could mean the person has a form of Tourette syndrome. Tourette syndrome consists of both vocal and motor tics lasting more than six months.

Treatments are available, including medication and cognitive behavioral therapy (among others) that have been shown to be very helpful for some patients. However, other people's acceptance and understanding is perhaps the most important factor in their improvement. -- JOEL P. SUSSMAN, M.D., COLUMBIA, S.C.

DEAR ABBY: You and your readers should know that Tourette syndrome is a protected disability under the Americans With Disabilities Act, and requesting that he "stop it" would be discriminatory. His co-workers may not know about it because he isn't required to disclose his disability to them, nor can his supervisor, if he wishes it to remain confidential. No one should assume that it's a bad habit. Trust me in stating that a Tourette sufferer truly wishes it was, because bad habits can be broken -- tics cannot. -- T.S. MOM IN TEXAS

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

UNITED WAY

Meeting community needs one meal at a time

The following article was provided by Meals on Wheels and is one in a series of articles of profiles on the agencies and organizations supported by Pampa United Way. This information was submitted by Pampa United Way as part of its 2008 "Pampa United Way, Let's Rev It Up" fund-raising campaign.

Pampa Meals on Wheels delivers approximately 150 meals Monday through Friday within the city limits of Pampa. About 20 of these deliveries go to the Pam Apartments by a different volunteer each day.

Freddie Seitz is among the deliveries. Mrs. Seitz has a positive attitude and is a real joy to spend time with. She lost her husband 16 years ago and moved to the Pam Apartments shortly thereafter.

She started on Meals on Wheels in 2003 and has numerous health problems including being recently diagnosed with macular degeneration. She said she'd tried going back to preparing her own meals several times but returned to Meals on Wheels on each occasion because she felt too weak or too tired to cook for herself.

Mrs. Seitz is most appreciative of Meals on Wheels and especially enjoys visiting with the volunteers.

Freddie Seitz has been receiving Meals on Wheels since 2003.

She lost her husband in 1992 and a son in 2004. The joys of her life are her two daughters, five grandchildren, five great-grandchildren, three stepchildren and three stepgrandchildren.

She also has an older brother she enjoys seeing each day. He calls her every morning at 11:15 a.m. and again before she retires for bed each night.

He comes to see her every afternoon.

Some people might think that with all of the health problems Mrs. Seitz faces she would be depressed or moody, but instead she lifts up her acquaintances with her sunny disposition and thoughtful manner. The patrons and volunteers make working with Meals on Wheels a real pleasure.

The program requires a minimum of 16 volunteers each day. Volunteer opportunities are available, particularly from 9-10:30 a.m. in the kitchen. To learn how to become a volunteer, call 669-1007 between the hours of 8 a.m. and 12 p.m. Monday through Friday.

So many of the Meals on Wheels programs in the Panhandle have been experiencing difficulty maintaining their programs due to a lack of volunteers. The Pampa program has not only kept but acquired volunteers in 2008. However, the local MOW is constantly recruiting new volunteers and in need of more revenue. The success of the program is due in large part to both community support and the United Way.

Meals on Wheels affects the quality of life for many in the Pampa community. Program participants include the home-bound, the elderly, those who have been in the hospital due to illness or injury, and individuals who are just not able to prepare a meal.

In 2007, the local Meals on Wheels served 31,814 meals with a daily average of 126 patrons. Between the months of January and June of this year, MOW has served 16,576 meals with a daily average of 130 patrons.

Ike produces 76,000 damage claims thus far

AUSTIN (AP) — More than 76,000 damage claims from Hurricane Ike have been filed with the Texas-backed windstorm insurance association, which expects to pay billions of dollars to policy holders for losses.

Texas Windstorm Insurance Association general manager Jim Oliver cautioned Wednesday that the final figure will depend on whether claims are determined to be wind or flood damage.

The association says it will pay for wind damage, but not storm surge damage, which it considers to be flooding. "We are going to look at every single claim individually," Oliver said. "That is going to make the process slow."

The number of claims filed with the association has been slowing to 700 to 1,000 each weekday. That's down from about 6,000 daily in the two weeks after the Sept. 13 storm that struck Galveston and southeast Texas.

After private-sector companies largely stopped providing hurricane insurance in many coastal counties, following hurricanes Katrina and Rita in 2005, the state-chartered association became the wind damage insurer for 14 Texas coastal counties and part of Harris County. It's funded in part by insurance companies that do business in Texas.

Those companies were assessed a combined additional $430 million last month to help pay for Ike's destruction. The companies can recoup some of their association payments through state tax credits, so Texas taxpayers will end up picking up the tab over several years.

Association board members did not impose new assessments at their meeting Wednesday. Oliver said if additional company assessments are needed it probably will not be until 2009. Meanwhile, the association is tapping into its reinsurance policies to help foot the Ike bill.

The fund is still paying claims from Hurricane Dolly, which hit South Texas earlier in the summer. But that was a less costly storm, with 8,102 claims filed with the windstorm fund to date totaling about $280 million in losses.

The Texas Legislature is expected to debate the windstorm association's funding and other Hurricane Ike costs when it meets next year.
