Lake Meredith, the water authority began looking for other sources of water. One of the ideas was to buy water rights or water from farmers along the aqueduct running from Amarillo through Swisher (Tulia) and Hale (Plainview) Counties and put that water into the aqueduct for communities downstream and taking the pressure of production of water at Lake Meredith and Roberts County.

Kent Satterwhite, general manager of the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority, said the member cities, however, indicated that they didn't want to spend any more money on water than water they're currently spending.

"All the infrastructure is in place," Satterwhite said. He said the operation and maintenance of the pipeline is going to be the same whether the water enters the aqueduct at Amarillo or Plainview.

The added costs would essentially be the energy costs to pump the water, and energy costs are rising.

Satterwhite also noted that since the water authority first considered the project, the farmers along the rightof-way have had excellent cotton crops.

"That adds value to the water," Satterwhite said.

Consequently, now is not a good time to proceed with the linear well field idea, he said.

"There are a lot of benefits to this project," Satterwhite said, "but I think we're going to put it on the back burner. We're not going to forget about it, but we're going to hold off on it."

He said the focus for now would be on the well field expansion in Roberts County, north of Pampa.

scramble our HD cable signals because we wanted our customers to have a positive experience with their new HD TVs by providing a multitude of programming options in HD, at no additional charge," said Terry Harris, general manager. "However, several cable networks have informed us tht we are required to scramble their channels. Programming is copyright protected and cable networks want to protect their syndication revenue. New technologies make it simple to duplicate and steal programming, therefore many cable networks are requiring scrambling in their programming contracts."

Harris said they've had problems before with people climbing polls to steal cable. Litterell said that often, when someone moves into an apartment where cable is already set up, the occupant doesn't realize it's considered stealing.

"It's just like anything else," Litterell said. "That takes money out of our pockets."

Cable One customers who would like to continue to receive the eight HD scrambled cable networks and don't have an HD receiver or a cable card can pick one up at the Cable One office.

"For about 22 dollars you can get a DVR that includes everything," Literrell said. "You can pause, rewind, all of that stuff, which I think is very cool. I couldn't live without mine now."

In addition, those who want to continue to receive the networks must subscribe to the standard definition feed of each channel. Cable One offers a total of four broadcast channels as well as 20 cable HD channels on their line-up. Most of the HD programming is free for customers who have an HD television set and rent a cable

Demand for pumpkins is at an all-time high, agriculture officials said, and it's mostly because there are fewer pumpkins coming from Floyd County this year.

Farmers planted fewer acres and yields are down. But there's good news, too.

"The quality was really outstanding," said J.D. Ragland, a Texas AgriLife Extension agent in Floyd County. "We had a really good growing season."

Farmers in Floyd County planted about 750 acres this summer, down from 900 or so last year. Ten years ago, they planted 2,500 acres.

This year's yields are averaging about 20,000 pounds per acre, meaning a harvest of about 7,500 tons in Floyd County alone. Crosby County and areas of East Texas also grow pumpkins but in smaller-acre plots.

Illinois typically leads the nation's top producer with Texas ranking seventh in acreage.

Morton, Ill., about 10 miles from Peoria in the central part of the state, bills itself as the world's pumpkin capital. About 80 percent of the world's canned pumpkins are packed at a plant in the town of about 16,000.

Texas tales: The many uses for water troughs

Water troughs, better convenient horse trough was as good as a creek or who had offended you in Every time he tried to get known in Texas as horse troughs, were intended for the hydration of livestock, but Texas ranchers and their families found far more use for these open containers of water than merely affording Old Dobbin a place to drink.

Horse troughs also played a role in many a Hollywood Western as a handy receptacle for bad guys in saloon the wooden troughs with brawls. Nothing like knocking a drunken cowpoke in a slimy horse trough to put him in his place, so to speak.

In the 1963 Paul Newman classic "Hud," the coldhearted, hot-blooded character played by the late actor in his salad days seemed to think the ranch's horse trough could sober him up if he splashed his face enough. In real life, many a ranch kid ran to the trough to stick an injured or burned limb in. Cartoon characters like could cure the effects of a shotgun blast or a hotfoot.

While the trough shown in "Hud" was a circular galvanized metal affair, the first generation of Texas troughs was made of wood. Later, ranchers made concrete tanks and eventually turned to the galvanized tank.

"They lined the inside of pitch," Merkel advertising executive and cartoonist Roger T. Moore recalled. "They always leaked a little, but not enough to make a difference."

Despite the pitch, the troughs eventually sprouted some form of vegetation. Wet wood made a nice growth medium for algae, and the constant water supply encouraged other plants as well.

But in a country where water was and is always at a Daffy Duck also found that a premium, a full horse trough

"This went on for some 10 minutes," she wrote. "She was determined that he have one good Saturday

Horse troughs made a handy place to keep minnows in anticipation of the next fishing trip. They ate mosquitoes, too.

You could even keep a creek-caught bass or mess of perch in the horse trough for a time. Moore remembers one friend who put gold fish in his family's trough.

On a hot day, dipping your hat in the trough provided a little natural air-conditioning for a while.

As long as a careful guard was kept, a horse trough made a great place to cool a watermelon.

Throw in a block of ice and a horse trough made an excellent beer and soft drink cooler.

In lake-shy West Texas, a horse trough could be as big as an ocean for a kid with a homemade toy boat.

Finally, troughs attracted wildlife, from quail to deer.

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Oct. 19, the 293rd day of 2008. There are 73 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 19, 1781, British troops under General Lord Cornwallis surrendered at Yorktown, Va., as the American Revolution neared its end.

On this date:

In 1765, the Stamp Act Congress, meeting in New York, drew up a declaration of rights and liberties.

In 1812, French forces under Napoleon Bonaparte began their retreat from Moscow.

In 1864, Confederate Gen. Jubal A. Early attacked Union forces at Cedar Creek, Va.; the Union troops were able to rally and defeat the Confederates.

In 1936, H.R. Ekins of the New York World-Telegram beat out Dorothy Kilgallen of the New York Journal and Leo Kieran of The New York Times in a round-the-world race on commercial flights that lasted 18 1/2 days.

In 1944, the play "I Remember Mama," by John van Druten, opened at the Music Box Theater on Broadway. In 1951, President Truman signed an act formally ending the state of war with Germany.

In 1960, President Eisenhower imposed an embargo on exports to Cuba covering all commodities except medical supplies and certain food products.

In 1967, the U.S. space probe Mariner 5 flew past Venus. In 1977, the supersonic Concorde made its first landing in New York City.

Keenly remembered for his visits to offices of public officials, Freund arrived with the predictability of a milkman.

Always smiling and with the warmth of a choir boy, he had a clever and unchanging opening question: "Is there anything I should be asking you?"

Often, there was. ...

The conscience of his community, Scott was able to secure a loan at age 20 to purchase an interest in ownership of the Review. Immediately he assumed the

His life invested in the community, Scott asked the right questions of the right people. Readers eagerly anticipated his weekly column, "The Hometowner."

He embodied the words of Lord

Byron: "Without or with offense to friends or foes, sketch your world

These friends lived when spades were called spades, not shovels, digging instruments or earth-moving tools.

They experienced the Great Depression, digging deep for faith to persevere.

Scott was proud of his hometown bank, now called Texas Heritage Bank. (It's had a couple of other names previously.) He delighted in bragging that for more than a century, the bank ended each year stronger than it began. He was also proud that no depositor ever lost a dollar. When some depressionclose their accounts, he took them to task in his column. He called them "yellow-bellied skunks."...

Maybe if they'd gone from a gourd to a tin dipper first, the paper cup purchase might later have sailed through without comment.

Memories of such conser-

Cotton harvest translates into economic loss

LUBBOCK - A new Texas Tech University Cotton Economics Research Institute study indicates that the economic impact of the cotton crop on the Texas High Plains economy will be sharply down this year.

Current estimates suggest a cotton harvest that is potentially 28 percent below average. With this reduction in the cotton harvest, economic losses between $302 and $517 million are expected in the region.

and late-season cool temperatures have worked together to limit the size of the High Plains cotton crop," said Darren Hudson, the Larry Combest Endowed Chair in Agricultural Competitiveness and institute director.

Since 1997, the High Plains has averaged 4.4 million bales produced each year. This year, Plains Cotton Growers, which serves a 41-county region, estimates the size the 2008 crop will be around 3.2 mil-

"If these production numbers materialize, the 28 percent drop in production will have significant impacts on the regional economy, especially in terms of a reduction of sales tax revenues," Hudson said.

Texas Tech researchers used a regional economic impact model known as IMPLAN to examine the crop's impacts, as well as provide estimates of the effects of the smaller-than-"Early-season high winds average crop. The model accounts for the direct impacts of lost gross income, and how these losses cause indirect and induced effects from decreased expendi-

> According to their results, the total economic impact of a 3.2 million-bale harvest is estimated to be $1.5 billion. A normal harvest of 4.4 million bales would have an economic impact of about $2.1 billion.

So what does these mean for you? The agricultural economists say the potential impacts of a smaller cotton harvest can be explained in either a "worst case" or "best case" scenario.

In the "worst case" scenario, there's a reduction in High Plains' economic activity of approximately $571 million for the region, with approximately $228 million of that falling on Lubbock County. The "best case" scenario calls for an aggregate loss of $302 million in economic activity, with $120.8 million for Lubbock County.

"Based on those same scenarios, a reduction of sales tax revenue of between $25 and $46 million is expected, with between $10 and $18 million of that loss falling on Lubbock County," Hudson said. "To keep these impacts in perspective, the loss in economic activity is between 0.4 percent and 0.7 percent of the total regional economic activity."

However, he pointed out that while lower than average, this year's harvest was certainly not the smallest cotton crop in recent history.

United Way Child Protective Services sees to welfare of children

The following article was provided by Gray County Child Protective Services and is one in a series of articles of profiles on the agencies and organizations supported by Pampa United Way. This information was submitted by Pampa United Way as part of its 2008 "Pampa United Way, Let's Rev It Up" fund-raising campaign.

More than 71,000 children suffered abuse or neglect last year in Texas, according to Gray County Child Protective Services. Of that number, 70 were in Gray County.

Many of these children suffer lonely lives of abuse and neglect at the hands of their parents or caregivers.

Among the people who have stepped forward to speak for these children are members of Gray County Child Welfare Board. The board consists of seven community members appointed by Gray County Commissioner's Court.

Members are appointed to three-year terms. The board meets the second Tuesday of each month.

"We might like to think that child abuse doesn't happen in a family-friendly community like ours, but we have to open our eyes to the truth," said one board member. "These children need all of us to stand up and say we are going to fight child abuse in our community."

The board's charter directs it to cooperate with all local, state and national agencies and authorities in coordinating and promulgating a community program for the welfare of all children; to work with the Child Welfare Unit licensing staff to promote good child caring and child placing practices in the community; to secure for the administration and maintenance of the work of the Child Welfare Unit; and to interpret the child welfare program to the citizens of Gray County.

The board meets its mandates by providing needed funds to foster children in Gray County. The majority of the funds are used at Christmas for gifts. The children in foster homes are not on any other list for gifts during Christmas; therefore, the board ensures that these children are supplied with some or all of the gifts that they put on their wish

The board also provides funds for the children to buy school

Jack Kent cooke Foundation funds target community college students, alumni

Cooke Foundation recently opened the nomination process for to scholarships for community college. Through the initiative, called the Undergraduate Transfer Scholarship Program, the private foundation will award up to $30,000 annually per recipient to help students and recent alumni from community and two-year institutions pursue four-year degrees at any accredited college or university in the United State and abroad.

Last year, the foundation received over 600 nominations for these attends. awards.

CLARENDON — The Jack Kent munity colleges, few private funds are available to help top community college students transfer to four-year institutions, in spite of their high levels of ability and need.

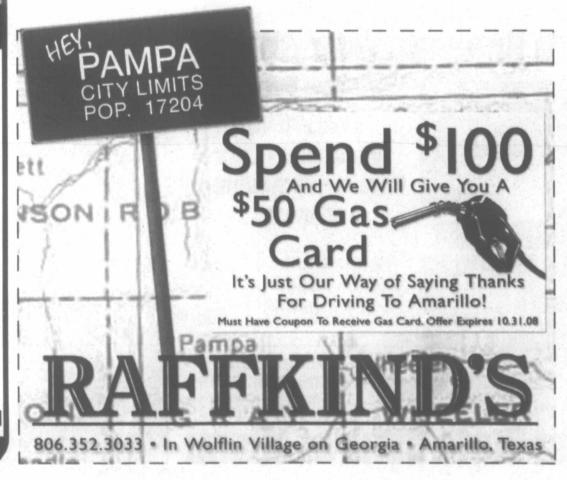

The Jack Kent Cooke Foundation scholarships can provide funding for tuition, room and board, required fees and books for the length of the undergraduate degree, generally two years. Each award can total up to $30,000 annually, though the amounts will vary based on such factors as the cost of the institution each recipient

Mary Jane Johnson to Perform in University Production

CANYON - It's a "Passport" to an international tour of music and dance when West Texas A&M University presents special guest Mary Jane Johnson in a musical presentation Oct. 25 and Oct. 26 in the Branding Iron Theatre on campus.

"Passport" represents a collaboration between the University's Department of Music and the Department of Art, Theatre and Dance and features the WTAMU Symphony Orchestra, Jazz Band, Percussion Ensemble and Dance Program.

The Harrington String Quartet also is on the program, and Johnson, an international opera star, will perform with the WTAMU Symphony Orchestra. Performances are at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 25 and 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 26.

Johnson, a Pampa native, has performed in venues around the world. She received her master's degree from WTAMU and served as artist in residence from 1998-99. She has received numerous accolades and awards throughout her career, including the top prize at the first Luciano Pavarotti International Vocal Competition.

"I met Mary Jane Johnson when she attended our production of Carmina Burana last spring," Dr. Mark Bartley, assistant professor of music and director of orchestral activities, said. "We talked about a collaboration, and this program has provided the perfect opportunity. We are very excited about performing with her."

"Passport" will feature the different performing groups "visiting" six different countries throughout the program. The Harrington String Quartet will perform the music of Argentina, while the Jazz Band will play "Night in Tunisia." The WTAMU Percussion Ensemble will play music by an American composer, and the Symphony Orchestra visits the music of Italy, Germany and Russia. The WTAMU dance program will perform throughout the program.

Tickets for the event are $10 for reserved seats and $7 for senior citizens and students. For more information, call the BIT box office at 806-651-2804 or Bartley at 806-651-2830.

clothes at the beginning of the school year as well as letter jackets, prom attire, senior rings and other fees that may be required such as fees for driver's education or other activities that come up during the school year. The board also provides monies to fund birthday parties and celebrations.

Unfortunately, a small percentage of children are not able to return home to their families after suffering abuse. For those children, the board helps offset the costs that arise when a kindly family steps forward to adopt a child.

In the future, the board will continue to carry out these activities and plans to implement a hope chest program to help these foster children get off to a good start after graduating from high school.

Although there are many kind people who donate their time and money, there is no way Gray County Child Welfare Board could possibly help as many children as it does without the financial support of the United Way. The board is extremely appreciative of the funds and efforts the United Way has bestowed in the past and looks forward in the future to a continued long-lasting partnership for the benefit of the children in Gray County.

Dear Abby.

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR WANTS: I understand the temptation to unload, but yield to it only if there is no other way. If you and your husband are on speaking terms -- and for your daughter's sake, I hope you are -- schedule some time for the three of you to get together and talk about the divorce. At that time, HE should reinforce to her that the divorce was mutual, and you should not be blamed for it. P.S. If there is one particular woman involved, your daughter will be meeting her pretty soon. Many 14-year-olds are quite worldly these days, and she'll likely draw the right conclusions herself.

DEAR ABBY: My grandmother died recently after being hospitalized for more than a year. My boyfriend, "Tom," has a sister who is a registered nurse at the hospital where Gramma was staying. "Gail" was one of my grandmother's nurses and would often tell Tom about the treatments. It bothered me because I felt it was a breach of confidentiality, and I sometimes wondered if she discussed Gramma's condition with others as well. The day Gramma died, I was working. Tom came to the restaurant where I work to give me the sad news. I became emotional and asked Tom how he knew. He explained that Gail had called him. I understand that Tom wanted me to hear the news in person, but my family had decided they would wait to tell me until after I got home from work that evening, which is what I would have preferred. Gail may not have meant any harm, but I don't believe what she did was right or fair. Should I report her to the hospital? I am still furious about it. -- SAD AND CONFUSED IN MASSA-CHUSETTS

DEAR SAD AND CONFUSED: Yes, you should. The administrators need to know that the patient privacy policies they have in place are being violated, since an employee who would do this to you is likely to be doing it to others, which could lead to a lawsuit. However, you should be prepared for the fact that reporting your boyfriend's sister will probably end the romance.

DEAR ABBY: I'm not a negative person, but I rarely laugh at anything. My husband of eight years is growing tired of the fact that I find nothing funny. Is it possible for someone to lack a sense of humor, and do you have any advice for me? ^- NO FUNNY BONE IN UTAH

DEAR NO FUNNY BONE: There are people who have little or no sense of humor. Others appreciate humor and will smile, but do not laugh out loud. This is why some television shows have laugh tracks. I'm sorry your husband is "growing tired" of the fact that you find nothing funny, but he should have known what you were like when he married you. Perhaps it's time he concentrated on developing his serious side. Tell him that -- but do it with

South Texas school district gets $1 million prize

BROWNSVILLE, Texas and 43 percent learning (AP) — One of the nation's poorest school districts, already tousled by a hurricane and nervously awaiting division by a fence being built along the U.S.-Mexican border, won a coveted $1 million prize Tuesday for making academic advances.

The Broad Prize for Urban Education is the nation's largest and will be divided among the district's graduating seniors for college scholarships.

"Brownsville is the best kept secret in America," said Eli Broad, founder of The Eli and Edythe Broad Foundation, announcing the decision in New York. "In the face of stark poverty, Brownsville is outpacing other large urban districts nationwide because it is all focusing resources on directly supporting students and teachers." Brownsville The Independent School District serves nearly 50,000 students — 98 percent Hispanic English. Ninety-four percent of students qualify for free or reduced lunch, a common measure of Surrounding Cameron County had the highest poverty rate for a county of its size in the country at 34.7 percent, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

"This is considered the Nobel Prize in education," an elated Hector Gonzales, the district's superintendent, said by phone at the award presentation in New York. "It will help us move to the next level where all our students succeed."

Brownsville, in the southernmost tip of Texas, beat out finalists from Aldine, a district in Houston; Broward County, Fla.; Long Beach, Calif.; and Miami-Dade County, Fla. Each finalist will receive $250,000 for college scholarships.

Brownsville's school district, perhaps best known as an unlikely cultivator of young chess phenoms, impressed the foundation's judges by outperforming other Texas districts with similar income levels in reading and math at all grade levels in 2007.

The performance was only the most recent success of students making greater strides than similar Texas districts. More Brownsville students are taking advanced placement courses and the SAT college entrance exam than years past.

Brownsville's Hispanic students showed more improvement between 2004 and 2007 in reading and math than their peers in other Texas districts, according to the foundation's analysis.

The district closed the gap between Hispanic students and the state average for white students by 12 percent in middle school math.

Some 2,000 new arrivals from Mexico join the district's classrooms every year. Alan Ponce, 18, was one of those new arrivals. Born in Monterrey, Mexico, Ponce moved to Brownsville in 2002 and became a U.S.

resident in 2006.

The senior at Gladys Porter High School was changing classes Tuesday morning when the prize announcement was made over the loudspeaker. "I heard two words: million dollars and scholarships," he said.

"It's a huge relief because my parents make very little money," said Ponce, who hopes to study physics and astronomy in college. "They don't have enough for a tank of gas. ... It makes me think I can go to any Ivy League school I want to."

Sauceda, Dora the school's principal, said the recognition is great bonus on top of the desperately needed scholarship money.

"We're just a little town on the border," she said. "It means something that someone in New York is recognizing our work and our students."

The district has been creative in trying to give more of its students a shot at higher education.

Earlier this month, the district partnered with the University of Texas at Brownsville and Texas Southmost College to welcome the first class of students in a dual-enrollment program that will allow students, who would be the first in their families to attend college, to earn college credits while in high school.

Also this month, the school district won the Annual Award for Urban School Board Excellence from the National School Boards Association's Council of Urban Boards of Education.

In May, the National Alliance for Hispanic Health announced Alliance/Merck Ciencia Hispanic Scholars Program, which over five years will give 50 Hispanic high school students pursuing science, technology, engineering and mathematics degrees, $42,500-scholarships. Brownsville was one of three districts in the country chosen for the program.

The Broad scholarships will go to graduating seniors who have financial need and improved academically in high school. The first-place money doubled this year.

The Agricultural Research Service (ARS) today posted a new issue of Healthy Animals http://www.ars.usda.gov/is/np/ha/han 35.htm This quarterly online newsletter compiles ARS news and expert resources on the health and wellbeing of agricultural livestock, poultry and fish.

Each quarter, one article in Healthy Animals focuses on a particular element of ARS animal research. The current issue examines efforts to control Bovine Viral Diarrhea Virus.

Other research highlighted in this issue includes:

The genetic characteristics of feral island cattle,

- A new method of measuring body fat of piglets,

- The benefits of year-round cattle

Professionals interested in animal health issues may want to bookmark the site as a resource for locating animal health experts. An index lists ARS research locations covering approximately 70 animal health topics. These range from specific diseases, such as Lyme disease, to broad subjects like nutrition or parasites. The site also provides complete contact information for the more than 25 ARS research groups that conduct studies aimed at protecting and improving farm animal health.

Farmers, ranchers should tighten management skills

by Blair Fannin Extension News

COLLEGE STATION — Farmers and ranchers are already feeling the effects of credit tightening across the country and need to take a hard look at their financial situation, said Texas AgriLife Extension Service economists.

Good planning is the key to finishing out the year heading into the next crop season as agricultural producers utilize sources of credit to purchase seed, livestock and supplies.

The following are some suggestions for producers: - Get more liquid.

"Make sure inputs generate sufficient income to justify the expense," said Dr. Danny Klinefelter, AgriLife Extension economist. "Remember that maximum profit and maximum yield are not the same thing."

Shoring up loans is another consideration, he said. This encompasses long-term loans such as land and real estate, intermediate loans that include equipment and short-term loans used for operating expenses.

"Make sure you've got your debt structured correctly," Klinefelter said. "You might even want to consider restructuring some of your current debt. It may be good insurance to convert some short-term debt to a fixedrate loan amortized over five years, even if it's at a

"The objective is to improve your working capital position and to become more flexible. You don't want to get caught with a lot of carryover operating debt for the next year."

Farm Service Agency offers a guaranteed loan program. Borrowers who expect to face restricted credit may want to get ahead of the curve and start looking into this program before crunch time this winter, Klinefelter said

Fixed-rate, long-term loans have virtually dried up since the cost of these funds for lenders is much higher and their ability to match-fund long-term debt may not even be possible in today's financial markets, he said.

Operating capital is also going to become more expensive, said Dr. Carl Anderson, professor emeritus and AgriLife Extension economist.

"I see farmers and ranchers now paying 7.5 percent to 8 percent for operating loans," Anderson said. "That's going to really hurt when you go up 9 percent to 10 percent.'

It's even more difficult during times of record fuel, fertilizer and other inputs to make a crop or raise livestock, he said.

- Now may not be the time to be making significant capital purchases.

"De-leveraging is another option to keep in mind," Klinefelter said. "Right now, unless farmers really get a good deal, they don't want to be going out and over-committing themselves. "Also, if they aren't on share rents, then try flex rents (adding flexibility to a cash rent basis) instead of cash rents," he said. "Another alternative to a straight-cash rent would be to try and build in bonus and disaster clauses." - Use options or buy puts as part of risk-protection strategy. "This can be a helpful strategy to mitigate exposure to price risk, especially with the volatility we've seen this year in commodities," Klinefelter said. - Evaluate your crop insurance program.

"Products that offer a revenue guarantee in case of lost production or falling prices are a vital component of a risk-management strategy in times of volatile prices and given the risky production environment we have in Texas," said Dr. Mark Welch, AgriLife Extension grains economist.

Evaluate alternative business models.

Klinefelter said producers should consider joining forces and pooling together to gain access to expertise and economies of scale.

"Producers could form an LLC (limited liability company) or a closed cooperative to combine their buying power or to spread the cost of acquiring greater technical expertise or risk management." - Have a complete and accurate set of financial statements ready before approaching a lender.

This can improve your ability to maintain access to credit and shorten the turnaround time on your request, economists said.

"It's an advantage for a producer who's going to a lender to already be accountable for what you are doing," Welch said. "That may put yourself at the front of the line. You better be planning ahead."

Overall, economists said, it's more important now than ever for producers to make operations as efficient as possible.

"No doubt, they're going to have to ratchet up their management skills," Klinefelter said.

Stolen wedding rings remade for 50th

By APRILL BRANDON Victoria Advocate

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) Bobbie Bullard was 21 when he noticed the cute girl working behind the vegetable stand outside of Nixon on Highway 80. For him it was love at first sight, so he bought a bushel of peas from her.

In the following weeks, he came back to buy some more vegetables. And then some more. And then some more.

"I just thought he really liked vegetables," the object of his affection, Velma, laughed. "I didn't realize he was interested in me until he finally asked me out."

They were married on Dec. 27, 1959. It was a beautiful ceremony, but it was the wedding ring set Bobbie had picked out for his new wife that held a special place in her heart. Throughout their 49 years of marriage, when times were tough and money was low, Velma Bullard would look down at her left hand and remember why she married her husband in the first place.

"The rings were beautiful. I always took pride in them, that Bobbie thought I was worth it and had picked out these rings for me," she said.

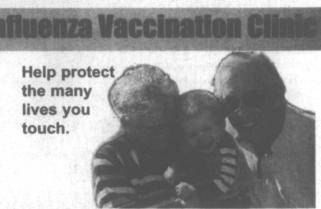

Unfortunately, in 1998 her wedding ring set was stolen out of her car while her back was turned at a car wash.

A limited edition set from Zales, the company no longer made them and so the couple scoured pawn shops and put up reward signs for the missing rings. They had no luck.

With their 50th wedding anniversary approaching, in late 2007 Velma decided to take matters into her own hands and wrote a letter to Zales, asking them if they could recreate the original set. She would pay whatever it cost, of course. She just wanted her ring finger to stop feeling so empty.

The letter eventually made it across the desk of the CEO of Zales, said Ralph Gardea, regional director for Zales. The company was so touched by the letter and what the Bullards had gone through that not only did it recreate did so free of charge. the rings from scratch, but

Armyworms attacking pasture, wheat in Texas

DALLAS (AP) — Texas farmers are once again battling armyworms and the voracious creatures are attacking fields and pastures in formidable numbers.

"There are probably more armyworms this year than in previous years," Allen Knutson, an entomologist with the Texas A&M University System, said Thursday.

The armyworm, which is actually the caterpillar or larva of the night-flying moth, do the most damage in the fall, when they're at their peak, nearly fully grown at about an inch-anda-half long. They'll chomp on any plant, but prefer grasses, especially the lush and well-fertilized hay meadows and pastures in North, East and Central Texas.

"Unless the farmer is looking very closely, he won't realize he has a problem" until it's too late, Knutson said. "Almost overnight a field can be consumed by armyworms. A farmer drives by and says 'Oh my goodness, I've lost my crop."

The armyworm gets its name from its method of operation. The larvae occur in large army-like numbers and when they eat all the food in one area they "march" en masse, across roads and fence lines, to the next field for feeding, unseen in the darkness and cool of the night.

"When small, they eat very little," Knutson said. "But after 10 days to two weeks, they turn into eating machines."

He said armyworms consume about 80 percent of all the food they will eat in the last two to three days of their 30-day life cycle as a caterpillar.

The cool temperatures in the fall and generally higher rainfall are favorable for armyworm outbreaks.

Brian Betts, who farms about 1,000 acres in East Texas for his beef cattle, has already been plagued with two generations of armyworms this year and fears a third infestation.

"We're checking every day because we've got oats and wheat planted," Betts said. "If they get in there, they'll destroy it. ... Catching them early is the key."

Pesticides are an effective counterattack, extension agents say, though it's possible to spend more on chemical controls then the pasture or harvest of hay is worth. Betts said if he loses his current crop he'll have to depend on grain and hay to get his cattle through the winter. The moths hibernate or winter in South Texas, then fly north in the spring and summer by the millions, looking for the perfect field to lay their eggs. "One moth can lay 2,000 eggs," said Kenny Rollins, an extension agent in northeast Texas, adding that the armyworms showed up earlier than in past years. "Every year, Mother Nature throws us a curve. When it's wet, we have disease and fungal problems. When it's dry, grasshopper problems."

When you think of an "oil company," do you think of ExxonMobil, Chevron or Shell? Yes, it's easy to think of just these companies, because they are very visible and provide a majority of gasoline today. But there's a whole different group of oil and gas producers in Texas and throughout America. These smaller companies are called "independents." There are thousands all over Texas - many right here in the Panhandle. These hard-working family and privately-owned companies actually drill 96% of the wells and produce 92% of the oil in Texas. Last year, oil and natural gas contributed nearly $300 million in production taxes to the economy of the 26-county region

Education: Experts question benefit of school time-out rooms

(AP) - After failing to finish a reading assignment, 8year-old Isabel Loeffler was sent to the school's time-out room — a converted storage area under a staircase where she was left alone for three hours.

The autistic Iowa girl wet herself before she was finally allowed to leave.

Appalled, her parents removed her from the school district and filed a lawsuit.

Some educators say timeout rooms are being used with increased frequency to discipline children with behavioral disorders. And the time outs are probably doing more harm than good, they add.

"It really is a form of abuse," said Ken Merrell, head of the Department for Special Education and Clinical Sciences at the University of Oregon. "It's going to do nothing to change the behavior. You're using it as an isolation booth.

Segregating children removes them from the positive aspect of the classroom and highlights that they're different from other children, said Stephen Camarata, director of the Center for Kennedy Behavioral Research at Vanderbilt University. And isolating an autistic child might be particularly counterproductive.

"They don't like being around other people so they might increase their negative behavior because they view it a reward," he said.

Though there is no data on the use of time-out rooms, Camarata speculates that they've become widespread as schools confronted a growing enrollment of children with behavior disorders.

"I believe it's because classrooms are much less flexible with more focus on compliance," he said.

The Disability Rights a restroom, he said. Education and Defense Fund in Berkeley, Calif., receives calls from parents across the country who complain about time-out rooms, said Cheryl Theis, an education advocate for the organization.

"Parents call and say their child's disability has been exacerbated by this and are traumatized by this," she said.

Merrell said he's encountered time-out rooms he felt were unsafe.

"I once consulted with a school in another state and had a weekly appointment with a child to do some counseling and when I got there they told me he was in a time-out room," he said. "He was in a janitor's closet with no windows, no ventilation, open cans of paint, a tant and he had been in there for over an hour."

(806) 688-9292

Merrell, who has published nearly 100 studies and 10 books on teaching social and emotional skills, said time-out rooms can be used effectively but seldom are. The key, he said, is to combine the time outs with social skills training.

Patti Ralabate, a special education analyst with the National Education Association, said time-out rooms are common but should be used sparingly.

"And when they are used, all of the educators involved need to have appropriate professional development to see how this is used and how to use them appropriately," she said.

Ralabate said a time-out room can be effective if it is intended to provide a space for a child to calm down and reflect on their behavior.

"If it is used to isolate the child, punish the child for a behavior, then we would view it as not productive and not positive," she said.

In Iowa, Doug and Eva Loeffler started to notice changes in their daughter in December 2004, soon after she began school in the Des Moines suburb of Waukee. It prompted them to take Isabel to University Hospitals and Clinics in Iowa City for evaluations.

"We laid awake at nights thinking we'd have to institutionalize her," Doug Loeffler said. "We went to three evaluations at the hospital and all of a sudden we find out she's being mistreated."

Loeffler said they weren't told in school evaluation reports that their daughter had been restrained and placed in a time-out room. During one incident in December 2005, Isabel wet herself because she was locked in the room for three hours and not allowed to use Loeffler said the time-out room rules required that before she could released, she must sit on the floor with her legs crossed without moving a muscle for at least five minutes.

"If she said something, grimaced at them, they would restart the clock and she was not capable of doing that," Loeffler said. "That's why it was three hours."

Loeffler said the couple homeschooled Isabel until he took a new job and the family moved last year to California. Isabel has shown signs of progress and is back in public school, he said.

David Wilkerson, superintendent of the Waukee school district, declined to speak about the accusations because of the pending lawsuit. But he said time-out

The Harvesters played the Eagles Canyon Kimbrough Stadium Friday night. The evening was a little brisk but felt like good football weather, maybe enough to cool a hot Eagle team.

Pampa received the opening kickoff, which didn't lead anywhere for either team on their first possession. Pampa fumbled on the next possession at the Canyon 31 yard line. Canyon scored on a short run to make the score 7-0.

The Harvesters and the Eagles traded punts again and Pampa took over at the Canyon 42 yard line. Harvester Alex Clendening (number 4) found Heath Skinner down the far sideline for a touch down and Jeremy Maxwell's scored the extra point that tied the 7-7.The score score remained 7-7 to close out the first quarter.

Canyon drove down and score on a touch down pass but missed the point after to leave the score 13-7 with 7:03 left in the second quarter. Pampa was not able to make any significant plays with the offense and resulted to punting to Canyon. The Eagles tooke over and drove 71 yards for another score and missed another point after, making the score 19-7. Gindorf, Chesser Wedding

Rebecca Anne Gindorf and Matthew Weldon Chesser, both of Austin, exchanged wedding vows in an Aug. 16 ceremony at First Baptist Church in San Marcos. The Rev. Mark Newton, of the church, performed the nuptials.

The matron of honor was sister of the bride, Melissa Harrison of League City. The maid of honor was Stacy Pepper of Fort Worth. The bridesmaids were Peggy Johnson and Brittany Arndt, both of Austin. The flower bearers or pages were Taylor Harrison of League City and Cooper Gindorf of Houston, both nephews of the bride.

Standing up as best man was twin brother of the groom, Phillip Chesser of Dallas. The groomsmen were Jonathan Chesser, brother of the groom of Round Rock, Rudy Reyes of Round Rock and Ruben Rosales of Austin. The ring bearer was Aidan Gindorf, nephew of the bride of Houston.

seats were Hank Gindorf, brother of the bride of Houston, Christopher Harrison, brother-in-law of the bride of League City, and Andrew Ainsworth and James Rock.

The candlelighters were Maegan Cook and Emily Cook, both cousins of the groom of Mesquite. The guest book was handled by sister-in-law of the groom, Amber Chesser of Dallas.

A reception for the couple was held at the church with Monica Moody of Kyle, Luciana Riojas of Austin, Amber Chesser of Dallas and Jennifer Gindorf of Houston acting as servers.

The bride is the daughter of Jack and Cindy Gindorf of Katy, formerly of Pampa. In 2005, she graduated from Akins High School in Austin and is currently pursuing a degree in exercise and sports science at Texas State University at San Marcos. She is employed as events coordinator at Cabela's in Buda.

The groom is the son of Douglas and Denise Chesser of Round Rock. In 2003, he graduated from Round Rock High School and earned a Bachelor of Business Administration degree from TSU in 2008. He is employed as front end lead at Cabela's.

The newlyweds intend to make their home in Austin.

"I've dreamt of going to the Olympics ever since I was 12, but I never really thought I would do it. The Army has given me the confidence I needed to make it go from a dream to reality," Hancock said.

He and Eller are part of an elite team made up of some of the best shooters in the world. As members of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit (USAMU), their mission was to bring home gold medals. Hancock, who is 19 years old, won his first gold medal while competing in skeet shooting. Eller, who is 26 years old, set an Olympic record en route to winning his first gold medal in double trap.

"To win an Olympic gold medal for the United States and see the flag raised for your country as an Army soldier is the ultimate honor," Eller

Six USAMU soldiers won seven slots on the U.S. Olympic Shooting Team. Since the unit was formed, Army marksmen have brought home 22 Olympic medals.

"Since I joined, I've had nothing but the best training facilities and the absolute best teammates to push and support me. It makes such a huge difference. I don't think this would have ever happened without them," Eller said.

Army Proud

"I'm very proud to be able to represent the Army and my country, which is why I'm dedicating my gold medal to my fellow soldiers. This is my mission and I've succeeded," said Hancock.

Troves Gilbert III, grandson of Carolyn Gilbert of Pampa, recently completed the Texas 4000 for Cancer bicycle tour from Austin to Anchorage, Alaska. Gilbert and 39 other participants biked 4,600-plus miles as part of the fundraiser and began their 70-day journey at the University of Texas. Gilbert raised $9,509.82, "riding for those who couldn't" and in memory of those who have lost their battle with cancer. "I was inspired by my aunt who turned to cycling after surviving breast cancer," Gilbert said. Texas 4000 is in its fifth year. For more information, log onto www.Texas4000.org on the Internet. Carolyn Gilbert attended a celebration commemorating the biker's successful completion of the tour. DAILY HOROSCOPE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Oct. 19, 2008:

Often, responsibilities will tumble on you this year. Staying on top of your game might be more important than you realize. Many people will be observing how you handle pressure and the choices you make. Whether in the limelight for a cause, personal reasons or your work will not make a difference. Others often will admire your people skills. If you are single, many would like to be yours. In 2009, romance knocks on your door in an unprecedented manner. The person you choose could be in your life for a long time. If you are attached, 2009 could cement your bond even closer. The embers of love could burst forward

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

again. CANCER admires you.

 Pressure comes from nearly every direction, testing your ability to relax. Confusion surrounds communication. Though you think you are saying one thing, another person could hear it differently. Tonight: Close to home. This Week: You might be slow starting, but you hit a home run by Friday. Aim for what you want. TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

* You will communicate even if someone puts his or her hands over his or her ears. You are determined to get through. A lack of understanding could be a problem; reiterate what you say until the communication is properly received. Tonight: Hang out with your pals. This Week: Communication points to greater solidity. Your creativity kicks in GEMINI (May 21-June 20)  Rein in spending before you get yourself in trouble. You know when enough is enough. Someone might present a wonderful "deal." Trust that there is more to it. Use today to be with a friend or loved ones. Tonight: Order in. This Week: Keep communication flowing as only you can.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

* Your smile settles down even the most touchy and difficult person. Understanding what ails this person puts a smile on his or her face as well. If you think what you are hearing is strange, confirm the message! Tonight; Smile and enjoy as if there is no tomorrow. This Week: The cards are stacked in your favor Monday. Lay back again until late Thursday. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

 Use today, just for you and no one else. Although a loved one or friend might have a difficult time understanding, ultimately you cannot worry about the reaction. You must take care of yourself to continue being you and giving. Tonight: Screen calls. This Week: Tuesday and Wednesday you hit your power days of the month. Use this gift of energy and magnetism well. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

* Zero in on what you want. You do not need everyone to understand why or what. Just let events fall into place. Do surround yourself with people. Some of you might end up at a happening where fun simply keeps on going. Tonight: Just don't be alone!

This Week: Monday and Thursday are prime time for you. Do needed thinking in between.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

*★★★ A must appearance, probably involving an older family member or friend, takes up a good part of the day. Others eye the way you handle this person even when he or she is demanding. Know how to say no. Tonight: Forget an early bedtime.

This Week: Others look to you for answers. You will find them midweek. Friends, people and meetings play key SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) * If you can be where there is music or take off on a ride, do. Let your mind wander and relax. You have a great time leaving your daily routine. Note that this practice helps you recharge your energy and perspective. Tonight: Off to a movie. Continue the escape!

This Week: Use Monday and Thursday

for action. Keep your opinions to yourself midweek

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

* Spend time with a favorite person. This type of bonding will strengthen your relationship. Whether you go explore a new art show or take a hike together, it does not matter; it's the fact that you are doing something together. Tonight: Dinner for two.

This Week: A partner pushes you. As a result, you see life quite differently. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) * Defer to others, realizing that you cannot always make all the plans or call the shots. What might be interesting is what others come up with. It might be much more fun than you anticipate. Tonight: Look at your many choices! This Week: Others will dominate. Just go along for the ride. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)  Getting a project completed does a friend or a loved one to join in. You could have difficulty making a point. Someone simply cannot grasp what you are saying. Tonight: Easy does it. Start thinking "tomorrow."

not necessarily mean being alone. Invite

This Week: Work hard and play hard. Monday and Thursday, accomplishment is highlighted.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) * Creativity floats up, no matter what you do. Your thoughts might be a little wild as well. Choose your audience carefully, or else you could be frustrated. In some way, you might want to frolic like a kid again! Tonight: You just cannot help yourself from adding more spice to

DAILY HOROSCOPE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, Oct. 20, 2008

You want to get past problems quickly this year. You will have a tendency to spend too much in order to make your perspective and value felt or take hold. Family, real estate and domestic matters are highlighted. You gain in this area, though you could be overwhelmed frequently. If you are single, you will meet people in your day-to-day travels or through your work. 2009 opens up new doors. If you are attached, together you focus on a key commitment, and you will become closer. CANCER pushes you into the limelight.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 You could see quite a difference in your focus and attention. Might you prefer to daydream? Only, that will not get your to-do list done. Focus on one item at a time, and stop worrying that you are acting like a turtle and not a hare. Tonight: Happily go home

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) * Speak to a necessary person, and follow through with care by confirming your discussion. Some people might not be focused. Though you might want to find the best solution possible, you will need to reach out for others. Tonight: Hanging out is fun.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)  Study and focus on one matter at a time. Finances flux, although you will get a handle on them if you are methodical and a little more careful. Certainly a partner has the inverse attitude of yours. What would be the best way to handle this person? Tonight: Balance your checkbook.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

* With so much zoom and getup-and-go, you might want to try a different approach. Communication is stifled; it could be easier if a partner or someone else could start talks. Be sensitive to other opinions. Tonight: As you come up with answers. Your fire and energy allow you greater freedom and energy if you stay untangled from others, maintaining a clear sense of direction.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)  Right now, back off, and you'll

Schedule meetings for tomorrow. Tonight: Some extra R and R. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) * Aim for more of what you want, especially in a meeting. Focus on reality, yet make a group effort. What you can accomplish could stun even you.

Absorb different ideas and praise others' ingenuity, and you'll get results. Tonight: Only what or whom you want. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)  Take a stand and be willing to let others put in their two cents, even if you don't want to hear what is being shared.

Energy pushes others as well as you. You might feel as if you are carrying the weight of the world on your back. Tonight: Easy does it. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)  Reach out for experts and seek more information. You might think you have your ducks in a row, but events in the near future could say otherwise if you do not tighten up a plan. Consider a seminar or trip. Both will open your mind. Tonight: Read between the lines.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)  Work with a key individual, and you'll achieve better results than you initially conceived. You will be challenged by a financial issue, though you can take the risk and land on your feet. Tonight:

Work as a team. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

* Defer to others, even though you might have the right answer. Though you might seek out someone at a distance, you could find a discussion difficult with that person. A male friend could play a strong role. Tonight: Sort through

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)  Little gets accomplished if you remain responsive to others. Ask questions when someone starts acting like a bully and takes charge. You will instinctively know which way to go. Get necessary projects done. Tonight: Put up your feet and rethink your day. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

* Your creativity flourishes if you allow it to. You have a strong emotional sense as to what to do. A partner might be a bit tight, but he or she can be helpful if you encourage it. Together you make a good team, a mix of emotions and intellect. Tonight: Let your hair
