DESPITE SENATE VOTE

Liquor Amendment Still Has Troubles

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A constitutional amendment legalizing the sale of mixed drinks is no closer to House approval than it was a month ago, despite Senate passage of the measure in only 20 minutes last week.

In fact, the House sponsor of the amendment said a Senate change in the proposal may have reduced its chances for approval—both by House members and Texas voters.

"They've gutted our bill," said Rep. Cletus Davis, D-Houston. "They've completely distorted what we're trying to do. But that's the only way we could get it out of the Senate."

The change Davis referred to is not in the amendment itself, but in the wording that would be printed on the ballot.

As it now stands, the ballot would require Texans to vote on a proposition "for or against the repeal of the constitutional prohibition against open saloons in Texas."

Davis would rather the ballot read: "For or against authorizing the legislature to enact a mixed beverage law."

The Houston lawmaker said the wording put in the amendment by Sen. J. P. Word, D-Meridian, will "make everyone think saloons can be open up all over the state."

"That's just not what we're trying to do," Davis said. He said the amendment would permit the legislature to enact laws legalizing liquor by the drink on a local option basis.

After checking with some House members last week, Davis said he is still "three or four votes short" of the 100 needed for approval—about the same margin he has needed since the session opened.

Backers of the measure had expected several "dry" representatives to succumb to a "domino effect" and vote for the amendment after their Senate counterparts supported it in the Senate.

So far, the Senate action has had no effect on the status of the amendment in the house.

One staunch dry said "what they do over there (in the Senate) is their business; what we do over here is ours." He said although the Senator from his hometown voted for the amendment, he will remain on the side of the "drys."

Davis said "we're going to be completely obvious and above-board in trying to pass it in the House."

"We'll have to take it with the encouragement the Senate put on and try to pass it like it is because we know we don't have a chance for anything else."

The House Constitutional Amendments Committee has scheduled a public hearing on the Senate version of the Amendment Tuesday night, and Davis said he expects it to encounter "no problems" in the committee.

Earliest that the amendment could come up for a House vote would be Thursday—and that is considered unlikely since lawmakers will adjourn that day for the long Easter weekend and are not likely to get entangled in any lengthy debate.

If the House approves the proposed amendment, it will be submitted to voters Nov. 2, 1970.

City and School Board Elections Set This Week

Two elections, one on Tuesday and the other on Saturday, are coming up in Pampa this week.

One of them — the city election—will create very little interest. It is the no-contest election scheduled Tuesday. The posts of mayor and commissioners in Wards 1 and 3 are to be filled. There is only one candidate for each place.

Milo Carlson is the lone candidate for mayor and George Cree Jr. and Leo Eraswell are running for the Ward 1 and Ward 3 commissioner posts, respectively.

So, for all practical purposes, Carlson, Cree and Braswell already are elected — unless, of course, somebody would decide to conduct a last-minute, whirlwind write-in campaign.

Political observers said Saturday that was unlikely.

Voting places in the city election will be open from 8 a.m. until 7 p.m. Tuesday at the following places: Ward 1—City Hall, Ward 2—N. Fire Station, 321 E. 17th, Ward 3—Optimist Boy's Club, 601 E. Craven, and Ward 4—S. Fire Station, 1010 S. Barnes.

There will be two candidates (See ELECTIONS, Page 3)

Americans Give Tribute To Dwight D. Eisenhower

Three-Day Funeral Set For Former President

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Flanked by men of the military he once led in battle and covered by the flap he served in war and peace, the body of Dwight David Eisenhower lay in a quiet cathedral chapel Saturday while thousands of Americans passed by in tribute.

On the first day of a three-day state funeral in the nation's capital, the former President belonged to his fellow countrymen. Young and old, they passed by his closed casket in the cold, dark Bethlehem Chapel of Washington National Cathedral, where it will remain until Sunday afternoon.

Although chill winds and occasional light showers swept the cathedral grounds dominating the city's northwest skyline, the mourners, less sad than solemnly respectful and affectionate, gathered in growing numbers to wait their chance to pay last respects to the man they all knew as "Ike."

After Mrs. Eisenhower and other members of a small family party attended a private, 10-minute prayer service before noon, the doors of the underground chapel were opened to the public for more than eight hours. The lines of mourners outside snaked around the cathedral and out four blocks at the start, and 90 minutes later the lines stretched six blocks long.

President Nixon remained at Camp David, the presidential retreat in western Maryland, giving thought to the five-minute eulogy he will deliver Sunday when Eisenhower's body is placed in the capitol Rotunda to lie in state.

World Leaders To Gather For State Funeral

By United Press International

Kings, statesmen and soldiers from every continent announced Saturday they would gather in Washington Monday for the funeral of Dwight D. Eisenhower, uniting old allies and old enemies alike in testimony to this epitaph for Ike: "We felt he belonged to all of us."

The Soviet Union, France, Britain, Germany and Japan headed the list of nations that announced official delegations to attend the services in National Cathedral. Similar announcements poured forth all day from every corner of the earth—Australia, Poland, Jordan and Yugoslavia among them.

President Charles de Gaulle of France, King Baudouin of Belgium, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi of Iran, Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, and President Ferdinand E. Marcos of the Philippines were among the ranking world leaders who will be there. So would Marshals Ivan Konev and Vasily Chuikov of the Soviet Union, old World War II allies and cold war foes of Eisenhower.

People Weep

Ordinary citizens the world over paid some of the most touching tribute to the five-star general and president. People wept openly as they read the news in the streets of Paris. Hundreds filed into the U.S. embassy in London.

"A great commander. I served under him," wrote one tall, white-haired gentleman. Then, like all the rest, he walked away through the scene of some of Eisenhower's finest hours — Grosvenor Square, where he and his allied general planned the World War II defeat of Nazi Germany and where they lived as heroes in those days.

U.S. soldiers at every command in Europe, Korea and other foreign bases assembled every half hour from dawn to dusk at saluting batteries and awaited the command, "Fire!" then, instantly, a single Howitzer report sounded tribute to the general.

Eulogies from world leaders mounted to the thousands of words all day Saturday, many directed to Mrs. Eisenhower, some to President Nixon, some to the world at large. Often, they fastened as much on the personal charm and moral strength of the man as they did on his achievements as a soldier and statesman.

Kerr Addresses Optimist Dinner For Anniversary

By RUTH LEWIS
News Staff Writer

Versatile, ebullient, a fluent speaker and a master of the guitar—all these are Dr. Walter Kerr, Tyler, who addressed the Pampa Optimist Club last night as the group celebrated 15 years of existence and of activity.

Dr. Kerr, whose forebears were Presbyterian and Baptist, and who for 20 years was himself a Methodist preacher, held his audience, transfixed or hilarious, according to his own mood, as he paid tribute to the work of the Pampa club and its influence on boys—and girls.

There is no such thing as time, Dr. Kerr told his listeners. "This is not the time of your life, it IS your life."

What you do with your life will eventually kill you, the speaker went on. "So be sure you give your life to something worth dying for."

Such a purpose is that of the Optimists, Dr. Kerr went on. "You never know what a boy might have been if Optimism had not entered his life. He could have slipped the other way," he said.

Dr. Kerr served as chairman of the Texas Youth Council, he noted, and was close to boys of varied backgrounds.

"I do not agree with the often heard maxim that 'There's no such thing as a bad boy,'" said the speaker. "There are definitely bad boys: one of these split the skull of a guard who was on duty. But the important thing is, what made him bad?"

Kerr added, "The next time an Optimist calls upon you for help, remember you have the time. There is nothing else in which you can so hopefully invest it."

E. I. Stevens, chairman, president and Newton Secrest introduced the evening's speaker.

Delegates Elect PHS As President For TASC Group

Delegates to the Texas Student Council Association's state meeting in Amarillo Saturday elected Pampa High School state president. Within the next three weeks, a PHS student will be selected as representative of the school to attend all state TASC meetings, according to John Karr, student council president.

"Plainview will serve with us as vice president with Monterey High School of Lubbock as parliamentarian for next year. The secretary will be appointed after the convention site is selected," Karr said.

"The entire Pampa High School will serve as state TASC president, but we have to have a representative of the school to attend state meetings with our student council sponsor, Jim Hulett. They will serve on the TASC executive committee which has 11 members, adults and student council officials," he said.

Hulett and the Pampa delegate may attend the national Student Council Convention in Baltimore in June, will have state meetings to attend in August and before January. These would all be executive committee meetings for TASC, he said.

Hulett has been named on a committee of three sponsors (See PHS, Page 3)

Cancer Crusade Due To Begin On Tuesday

Two Oklahoma University graduates, now Texans, have joined forces in the American Cancer Society's 1969 educational and fund raising Crusade, which gets under way Tuesday.

Royal stated, "We are confident the 75,000 Texas Crusade volunteers will easily reach the state Crusade goal of $2,100,000."

Lane also expressed the belief that the people of the area would be generous in their

Postal Receipts Indicate Area Towns Have Substantial Growth

By RUTH LEWIS
News Staff Writer

Since postal receipts are an index of community growth are commonly accepted as assessing its fiscal wellbeing, a comparison of such returns for the past decade indicates a substantial growth for the Pampa area during the years 1957 to 1967.

Checking the towns of Pampa, Miami, Wheeler, Skellytown, White Deer and Lefors, a survey of the years 1957, 1962 and 1967 shows a period of growth, in some cases exceptional, in others steady but sure.

The year 1967, latest for which full fiscal year figures are available, post offices of these towns did a total business amounting to $592,461.86.

For the year 1957 these same towns — with the exception of Miami, whose 1957 records were destroyed — had a total of $310,510.20. The gain indicated is $281,951.66.

Pampa Post Office figures provided by R.W. McPhillips, acting postmaster, show total receipts for 1967 as $416,570.61, a gain of $195,579.05 over 1957 and $98,644.05 over 1962 receipts.

Postmasters are agreed that increased postal rates over the past decade explain in part the rise in receipts estimating the amount as a possible 30 per cent. First class rates have gone from four cents to six and there have been two increases in parcel post charges, of 14 and 11 per cent.

But the general picture seems to be one of growing prosperity. The McLean report is especially interesting, showing a rise from $13,679.64 in 1957 to $50,529 ten years later. Between was the 1962 figure of $39,074.

According to Frank Simpson, McLean postmaster, the Sears plant, Marie's Foundation, just outside the city, has been a factor in this growth, as has the El Paso gasoline plant, established in 1958. Population of the city has varied little, and is currently about 1300, Simpson says.

Incidentally the McLean man defends the postal rate for packages, which, while 25 per cent higher than 10 years ago, "is still cheaper than our competition."

Eisenhower Won America's Affection

By United Press International
Dwight David Eisenhower won impressive victories in war and politics. But his greatest conquest was the affection of the American people.

Just about everyone liked Ike—even Democrats who voted against him in two successful campaigns for the White House. He enjoyed a wider personal popularity, and had fewer real enemies, than any U.S. President since George Washington.

Like Washington, Eisenhower became a national hero as a military commander. But his overriding concern as President was to win a stable peace for a world living in the shadow of the hydrogen bomb. He considered the ending of the Korean War the most important accomplishment of his first term. And his principal preoccupation from the start of his second term was to restore peace and stability to the Middle East.

Eisenhower spent the first half-century of his life in relative obscurity, growing up in a farm home at Abilene, Kan., attending West Point, and serving in routine assignments as a career Army officer. World War II brought him to national and world attention. Promoted rapidly through a series of important combat commands, he became a five-star general and Supreme Commander of the Allied Forces that smashed Hitler's "Fortress Europe."

After a war came a seven-year interlude during which he served as Army chief of staff, president of Columbia University, and commander of North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces.

Eisenhower's political career began at the top in 1952, when he yielded to a persistent demand from his admirers to seek the Republican presidential nomination.

He won the nomination in a rough convention battle with Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio and went on to defeat Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, the Democratic presidential nominee, by an overwhelming majority in the November election.

On Jan. 20, 1953, at the age of 62, Eisenhower was inaugurated as 34th president of the United States. He was the first Republican to occupy the White House in 20 years. His popularity with the voters grew steadily during his first term. Federal spending was slashed deeply, and a 10 per cent cut in income taxes took effect. Except for a brief and comparatively mild recession in 1954, the nation enjoyed unprecedented economic prosperity.

The end of the Korean bloodshed, the death of Russian dictator Josef Stalin and the emergence of a new regime in Moscow, the Big Four "summit" conference in Geneva in the summer of 1955, all contributed to the easing of public fears of a nuclear holocaust.

A heart attack which he suffered during his third year in office raised doubts about his ability to run for a second term. But he recovered from that attack, and from a subsequent abdominal operation, and was renominated unanimously by the Republican Convention in San Francisco in August, 1956. The Democrats again chose Stevenson to oppose him.

Campaigning on a "peace and prosperity" platform, Eisenhower won re-election by a landslide, polling the largest popular vote ever received by a presidential candidate to that time. But Democrats won control of both chambers of Congress.

The election results convinced Eisenhower that the republican party must be "modernized" and cast in a more liberal and internationalist mold if it was to win political power in the future. He began his second term by pushing the party in that direction with a federal budget that called for a substantial increase in spending to support a variety of social welfare and international programs.

This budget promptly came under heavy fire from the conservative wing of the party, as well as from Democrat Business organizations which had supported him during his first term. Eisenhower opened a sharp attack on his request for federal aid to schools and other measures of "modern Republicanism."

Dwight David Eisenhower was born Oct. 14, 1889, at Denison, Tex. When he was a few months old, his family moved to Abilene, Kan., where he and his five brothers grew up in a home where money was never plentiful and often scarce.

He became a professional soldier almost accidentally. He applied for entrance to the Naval academy in 1911, but was rejected because he was a few months over the age limit. So he took the West Point examination instead.

He won letters in baseball and football at the military academy and earned a passable, if not distinguished, academic record. He graduated as a second lieutenant in 1915, along with a large number of other future generals who won the class of '15 the nickname of "The Class the Stars Fell On."

Lt. Eisenhower showed his first flash of tactical genius at his first post—Fort Sam Houston, Tex. He met Mamie Geneva Doud at a post dance in October and asked for a date. The popular girl told him to wait a month. Instead he went into action with a barrage of telephone calls, spaced 15 minutes apart. He got a date for the following evening and appeared four hours early. Then he moved in on the Doud family's Sunday picnics. But December, he and Mamie were Denver on July 1, 1916.

When the United States entered World War I, Eisenhower thought his chance had come to win glory on the battlefield, but he spent the war as a captain, commanding a tank training school at Gettysburg, Pa.

The first real break in his military career came in 1933, when he was appointed aide to Gen. Douglas MacArthur to the Philippines, where he helped establish the Commonwealth Army that fought so gallantly at Bataan.

When war clouds gathered in Europe, he was called back to the United States and in 1940 became chief of the war plans division of the U.S. General Staff. He was a lieutenant colonel at the outbreak of World War II and by the time of Pearl Harbor was a brigadier general (temporary).

In March, 1942, he was appointed chief of the operations division of the General Staff (G-3) and was promoted to major general. He won a reputation at the Pentagon as a brilliant officer and became a protégé of Chief of Staff George C. Marshall.

He still was virtually unknown outside professional army circles when President Franklin D. Roosevelt announced his selection as supreme commander of the Allied forces for the invasion of Africa.

The choice, made at Marshall's suggestion, was based on the fact that Eisenhower had worked out the plans for the opening of a "second front" in Western Europe, and it was felt that he was the best man to put the plans into operation.

He flew to England in the summer of 1942 as a major general and began readying for the first step in the master plan—the invasion of North Africa.

His tenets of command were few and to the point. Apply the maximum force against the enemy, give him no rest, strike boldly and fight as a land, sea and air team without regard for nationality or division of glory.

From then on victories and promotions piled up swiftly for Eisenhower, despite his insistence that the credit for battles won should go to his field commanders.

Later, Eisenhower became commander of America, forces in Europe and military governor of the U.S. Zone in Germany.

During this period he was constantly confronted by ardent admirers and well-wishers who

Red Cross News

Executive Secretary, ARC

We talked with Bill Jean, our Field Representative for the Panhandle of Texas this week, and he has not had surgery yet. He is taking treatments at Brooks Army Hospital and is in good spirits. He urged our chapter to try and make up the balance of the budget so we can pay our total amount to National Red Cross.

Bill tells us that our Red Cross is paying an estimate of $9.75 for each man in the Vietnam front and that with the floods for our eastern and midwestern area that is expected that our Red Cross will be in a bad financial report this year.

Many people ask me if they can pay for their wives or the expense Red Cross is out for their boys, and we always say, "No, that is our work." This is true but now is the time for parents, grandparents and friends who have men in the service to come and assist Red Cross in this time of need.

Remember, $1.00 is a membership in Red Cross. Help us make up the deficit on our budget this year. Red Cross says thanks to you who have sent your checks to us this past few weeks.

Ken Interfelt, who is serving in the Panhandle of Texas for Bill Jean, was in the chapter this past week. Wednesday Ken and Ted Gikas went to Wheeler and Shamrock to check on their fund drive. Then Thursday Ken and Joe Mason and General Lee from Amarillo drove to Canadian to assist them in reorganizing their chapter. We are anxiously waiting to hear who their new chapter chairman is.

Horace Mann Elementary school made the tray favors for Easter for the Veteran Administration Hospital in Amarillo. The tray mats were so attractive as were the candy eggs and nut cups. Thanks to all the boys and girls who made these Easter favors for the patients in the VA hospital. We are sure they will enjoy them Easter morning. Mrs. De Ann Schaefer is teacher sponsor for the school.

Mrs. Eula Morris, teacher sponsor for Austin Elementary School, brought 26 bags to be sent to the children in Vietnam. These bags were filled with school articles, such as pencils, notebooks, colored pencils and scissors; comfort articles such as soap, toothbrushes and toothpaste, wash cloth and comb, and play articles such as jacks, balls, jumping rope, marbles, dolls, hair ribbons, small books and toy trucks and games. These were well filled and many thanks go to the school and to the teachers who worked on this project. Surely, better relations will exist from such programs as this through our schools and their children.

Letters have been sent out through our office to the Hospital Volunteers who are working each assigned day serving juice to the patients at the hospital. Also we have sent the letters to our girls who work in the hospital on Saturday and Sunday afternoon. Please mail the cards back with your hours listed on them. Help us keep our records straight in our office. We are proud of each one of you who work so faithfully for Red Cross.

Your executive secretary plans to go to Ft. Worth for Easter, but we will leave Mrs. R. D. Wilson and Mrs. Sam B. Cook to take care of any emergency that comes to our office during the week end. May each of you have a happy Easter and a safe one!

Are you interested in taking a Standard First Aid course? Call our office and register for one. We have new instructors and they are anxious to teach. If your son or daughter is planning to take Drivers Education this summer, wouldn't you like for them to take a Standard First Aid course before they take their Drivers Ed, so they can learn to be more careful with the car they are driving? Also, they will learn how to help others if they come upon a wreck while they are driving. Call our office and let us set this class up soon.

JERUSALEM (UPI)—Evangelist Billy Graham Saturday cut short a combination Holy Week visit and family reunion in Israel to fly back to the United States for the funeral of former President Eisenhower.

Graham left by jet from Jerusalem to attend the final rites for the man whom he described as "the greatest American since Lincoln."

The tall spiritual leader from North Carolina, en route home from a two-month crusade in Australia and New Zealand when he received word of the former President's death in Washington Friday, said "the Eisenhower years will be remembered as the golden years of the 20th Century."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission has dismissed complaints that WBAI-FM, New York, violated the Fairness Doctrine when it broadcast anti-Semitic sentiments including a comment, "More power to Hitler." The FCC said WBAI acknowledged the broadcast of material "patently anti-Semitic" but said it did so "to illuminate bigotry." In a letter to WBAI, the FCC said: "If there is to be free speech, it must be free for speech that we abhor and hate as well as for speech that we find tolerable and congenial."

TO MAKE LOAN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The International Monetary Fund says it is providing up to $4 million to help Guyana meet its bills and $2.5 million for Sierra Leone to draw upon. The fund, in making announcements Friday, said Guyana may have a smaller rice crop this year because of bad weather, but that Sierra Leone's finances showed "a major improvement" since 1968 because of a rise in exports, particularly diamonds.

Income Tax Questions, Answers

Editor's note — This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the Pampa office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published by the News as a public service to taxpayers.

Q — If a tax expert prepares your tax return isn't he responsible for mistakes?
A — No. You are legally responsible for the accuracy of your return. For this reason, check it over before sending it in to make certain there are no errors. To help avoid delays in processing your return, have your tax expert fill out the pre-addressed tax form you received in the mail. This form contains your name, address and social security number just as they appear in IRS files. If any of this information is wrong, correct it and send it back with your return.

Q — It's been more than six weeks since I sent in my return. Shouldn't I have my refund by now?
A — Yes, most refund claims filed early can be processed in five to six weeks. However, if there is a mistake on the return, the refund will be delayed until it is corrected.

Q — When I took my present job I was reimbursed for my moving expenses. Is that considered income?
A — Whether the reimbursement is taxable depends on the nature of the moving expenses you were reimbursed for. Certain distance and length of employment tests also have to be met. Page 6 of the 1040 instructions explains this in greater detail.

Q — Do you have to be 65 to claim the retirement income credit? I retired at 62 and the credit would help me.

A — If you received a pension or annuity under a public retirement system (one established by the Federal Government, a state, county, city, etc.) you may be entitled to a retirement income credit even though you are not 65. This credit, which is computed on Schedule B (Form 1040), is discussed on page B-3 of the instructions.

ENTERS SUIT
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department says it is making "a commitment on behalf of the federal government" to help end discrimination in private housing. Asst. Atty. Gen. Jerris Leonard said "Negroes have paid millions and millions and millions of dollars because of these transactions." The government entered a private suit in Chicago brought by Negroes against 82 local real estate dealers, and Leonard said investigations are under way in Washington, Detroit, Buffalo, N.Y., Baltimore, Md., New Orleans, La., Fort Worth, Tex. and Kansas City, Mo.

Some Nose Drops Can Be A Hazard

Do not use any oily drops unless prescribed by a physician and then follow his directions exactly. People who self-medicate themselves with oily nose drops are vulnerable to lung problems.

If an oily liquid is inhaled while "sniffing," it can form a pocket in the lungs. There is no way for the lung to get rid of the oily coating and tissue degeneration which occurs can spread. Then, surgery may be needed.

YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby or we will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we compound yours?

MEMBERSHIPS—The Pampa Youth & Community Center is a non-profit private corporation dedicated to the fulfillment of leisure time activities for the City of Pampa. It is in no way connected to the City government, but is a non-tax organization which operates on donations and the sell of memberships.

There are two types of memberships available for participation. One is the individual form for persons who are eight years of age or older. This sells for $8-per year or $5 for six months. The other is our family plan which includes all members of the immediate family no matter how many. This sells for $20 per year or $12 for six months.

To purchase any of these plans you need only come by the Center front office, pay your dues and membership cards will be issued. There is no other charge and you receive free swim lessons on a sign up basis.

S Q U A R E—DANCING—The Center is the stage for a square dance each Saturday night except fifth Saturday nights. The Calico Capers Square Dance Club meets from 8-11 p.m. on these nights and they do welcome new members and guests. They have visiting callers or club callers each Saturday night. The next dance is scheduled for April 5 featuring Roy Johnson of Amarillo.

The club is presently giving lessons on Tuesday nights at the Center and anyone interested should drop by at this time. Charles Scot is the present president and he would welcome your visit.

T E E N DANCES—Beginning April 11 the Center will try another experiment in its teen dance program. In view of the forthcoming indoctrination of the ninth grade into the high school, the Center will have teen dances for the 9-12 grade group.

This means that the freshmen through senior grades will be allowed to attend the Friday night dances. These will be run as same as the other dances in that if you come to the dance you do not leave unless permanently. There is no coming and going at our dances.

We still would like to hear from some more adults who would be interested in helping us chaperon our dances. You need only give Smith a call at MO 5-2012 after 4 p.m. If you can only occasionally chaperon, we still would like to hear from you.

SWIM LESSONS—The swim lessons for April, May and June are now being offered and the classes are quickly filling to capacity. If you have a child that does not know how to swim, we would encourage you to enroll them in our Red Cross Swim Program.

We offer a pre-beginner class for children 4-6 years of age not in school and who measure 33 inches tall to the chin, a beginner, advanced beginner, intermediate and swimmer class. If you do not know what class to enroll your children in, just give us a call and talk it over with us.

All classes meet for 10 meeting dates on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Fridays. Classes are one hour in duration each day either from 4-5 or 5-6 p.m. Mrs. Jackie Marlar teaches all the swim lessons.

ALCOHOL: ANTI-SOVIET
MOSCOW (UPI)—The Communist party newspaper Pravda said Saturday alcoholism is the Soviet Union's No. 1 social evil. It said drinking was the cause of 98 per cent of all murders, 40 per cent of all divorces and more than 50 per cent of all accidents.

EPIC DEMAND FOR COMPUTER PROGRAMERS

Miss Lain awards a Mercury portable, courtesy of the Royal Typewriter Co., to Vicki Fleetwood, Hearne, Texas, for her question:

"Are jobs like computer programmers a good choice for a girl?"

A.—Among the best. A good computer programmer can call his own "flow charts" in choosing jobs. The demand is epic and women are welcome. Hardly a decade old, the electronic data processing industry has shot up faster than any other major industry, ever. Only systems analysts (discussed in an earlier column) are more courted than programmers.

RATIONAL THINKING. The programmer first thinks through the logical progression of step-by-step instructions for the computer to follow: for instance, he makes flow charts of circles and squares with arrows that show what to do if x is greater than y, or vice-versa. Then the programmer expresses the logic to the machine in a special "language" which is usually at least semi-mathematical in form.

DATA ON DOLLARS. A 1968 survey of salaries made by "Business Automation" magazine shows low-average-high weekly earnings: JUNIOR PROGRAMMER, $70-$151-$290; SENIOR PROGRAMMER, $96-$180-$302; LEAD PROGRAMMER, $102-$203-$335; MANAGER OF PROGRAMMING, $125-$226-$415. Fringe benefits vary with the employer, but working conditions are usually modern and pleasant.

EMPLOYERS. Programmers are hired chiefly by large business organizations and government agencies. Insurance companies, banks, public utilities, all kinds of manufacturers, retailers and wholesalers are big users of computers. Other sources of employment are computer manufacturers service bureaus (sort of like computer laundromats) and colleges and universities.

SUPERMATH? Do you have to be a genius in mathematics? No, unless you're going into engineering or scientific applications—then you do need a math background. In general applications, logical thinking is more important.

FOR A FREE BRIEF PAMPHLET, "Your Career in Data Processing," and a list of other available materials from the Data Processing Management Association, send me a postcard in care of this newspaper before June 1st.

PROGRAMMING YOURSELF. How do you become a programmer? You may learn on-the-job (plus schools operated by equipment manufacturers), or you may train in school: high schools, technical schools, junior colleges, colleges and universities. The instruction ranges from introductory home study and extension courses to advanced work in computer technology at the graduate level.

TO BE SURE. There are some fine short-term, profit-making computer schools, and there are some worthless ones too. One reader wrote to complain that she had taken a six-months course and the promised job failed to materialize. Another sent me a copy of the "aptitude test" required for entering another profit-making school; it was so absurdly simple anybody could pass it! How many potential students do you think this particular school turns down on the basis of its test? The Data Processing Management Association strongly urges you to investigate carefully before plunging down your tuition and time.

SUBJECTS AND EXPERTS. Most programmers in scientific or engineering work are college grads with degrees in engineering, physical sciences or math—some have graduate degrees. Although in business, programmers may rise through the ranks, a programmer with no college training at all is at a disadvantage today. However, in the future, probably two years of training during or after high school will be enough as the analysis part of the job may be done by management people.

H. L. Hunt Set For Profile On CBS-TV

NEW YORK (Sp) — H. L. Hunt, a man so rich he says he'd "starve to death" if his income were only $1,000,000 a week, will talk about his fortune, the qualities that help a man make money, death, taxes and politics in a profile of the multimillionaire to be broadcast on "60 MINUTES," Tuesday, April 1 on CBS-TV.

Hunt was filmed in his office, at his country ranch, visiting one of his oil wells, and at home in Dallas, Texas, where CBS News Correspondent Mike Wallace interviewed him.

On "60 MINUTES," he will also be seen raising the flag in the morning on the grounds of his home, which is a replica of George Washington's home in Mount Vernon, attending a surprise party to celebrate his 80th birthday, and singing "Just Us Folks" at home with his wife. Hunt will also talk about women and philanthropy and tell why he feels the last first-rate President this country had was Calvin Coolidge.

Hunt claims he doesn't know exactly what he is worth, but agreed during the interview with J. Paul Getty's assertion that he is now richer than Getty, usually regarded as the richest man in the world.

Grass Fails For Variety Of Reasons

By STEPHEN QUALLS
Many Gray County farmers and ranchers have seeded grass over the past years. However many of these grass plantings have failed due to one or a series of reasons. Lets look at some of the keys to successful grass plantings.

First we must have adapted seed to our climate and soils. A good rule of thumb in selecting seed adapted to our climate is "climatic adaptation of native species is considered satisfactory if the origin of seed is not over 200 miles north, 300 miles south, 100 miles east, or 200 miles west from where the planting is to be made". The seed should have a high germination and purity rating, and in addition we should use an adequate amount of seed in our seeding rates.

Second, the method of seedbed preparation and type of cover present is important items to be considered. Native require a long period for germination. During this period they need protection from the pressures applied by mother nature in the form of hard winds and driving rain. The best method of grass planting is drilling the seed into a dead litter cover of sorghum or cane. This type of cover does not require any addition seedbed preparation in addition to the soil disturbance caused by the grass drill. We offer have a cover of so called "trash grasses". They need to be swept just below the surface of the soil prior to the grass seeding. This sweeping is needed for minor soil disturbance and to reduce the competition between the trash or sorry grasses and the new grass. Native grass seeding is recommended on a clean tilled seedbed only where the grass is planted in rows thereby allowing cultivation, or when the grass planting can be irrigated.

Thirdly, the need exist for careful management during the establishment phase. A key to successful grass planting is keeping the competition between the existing cover and new seeding at a bare minimum. Other grasses and weeds compete with the new seeding for moisture and nutrients. This competition must be controlled if the planting is to be a success. Competition can be controlled by mowing and, or spraying.

In addition to these items, proper grazing use after establishment is essential if the new grass planting is to maintain itself and continue to make adequate returns to the farmer or rancher.

Carrying out these items does not assure us of a successful grass seeding, however, it increases our chances many fold. Many farmers and ranchers in Gray County are receiving technical assistance from the Soil Conservation Service through the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District on problems such as those listed above. If you have any REJUVENATION — An area of old cropland with cover of trashy grasses has been swept and reseeded to more desirable native grasses. Not that the sweeping leaves adequate cover on the surface to protect the new seeding during establishment.

Agriculturally Speaking

FU Victor Ray Speaks at Tulia

Victor Ray, director of public affairs for National Farmers Union, Washington, D.C., will address the Swisher County Farmers Union April 1 in Tulia. It is disclosed. His subject will be "Corporate Invasion of American Agriculture."

Invitations have been sent to area farmers, ranchers and others interested in agriculture, according to Woodrow Bice, president of the sponsoring group.

"We know there is concern among rural leaders as to the impact on farming and ranching of large conglomerate corporations," Bice said, "as well as the effect upon the rural community."

Victor Ray is editor of several weekly and daily newspapers. He formerly edited a farm magazine and directed his own publishing company in Arkansas. He joined the staff of National Farmers Union last May.

Jay Naman, Waco, will accompany Ray on his visit to Tulia and will introduce the editor.

Tickets to the dinner are available at $2.50 each. Bill Davis, service agent, may be reached at 995-2733, Tulia.

six-state reports, "You ain't seen nothing yet."

CATTLE PRICE:

By FOSTER WHALEY

Several weeks ago the price of choice steers on the live beef cattle futures market on all trading months was somewhat behind the then current price of choice cattle on the Chicago Stock Yards. The February trading month was well over a dollar behind the then current price of choice steers on the Chicago Stockyards during much of January.

On Feb. 13 a six-state cattle on feed report came out that showed a sharp drop in number on feed from the preceding month. A more significant factor was the fact that placements on feed dropped 9 percent in January 1968 when compared to the same period a year earlier. This report put some strength in the futures market and all trading months started moving up.

When the extremely adverse weather continued in the Midwest it became pretty obvious that placements would be down again in February when the six-state cattle feeding report was released on March 13. In anticipation of this favorable report cattle futures on all months started gathering steam and advanced to very close to price of deliverable steers in Chicago on most months. When released this report showed placements in the month of February were down 14 percent from same period a year earlier. Numbers in feedlot showed a sharp drop from a month earlier. For several days after this report was released, cattle feeders started selling hedges heavily.

This kept a lid on prices for several days at about the price of a deliverable steer in Chicago. A deliverable steer is the term used to describe what it would cost an individual to purchase choice steers (on the Chicago Stockyards) that would meet specifications of future's contract.

Finally the market broke through this barrier and went into orbit. Many hedgers (some that were hedging for the first questions in regard to grass planting, the personnel of the you in any way possible.

(time) were called on for more margin money every day for two or three days. This was enough for many of them and they pushed the panic button. One broker with whom I visited said one fellow had hedged 20 contracts (800 steers). He told the broker with whom I visited, "Get me out whatever it costs." This same thing happened all across the country. This placed the hedgers or sellers a few days earlier over on the buying side again. This put the market into a blastoff.

Then came Black Wednesday — for the first time since the start of live beef cattle futures market (November 1964) the market dropped the limit on all months except the near by April. When the market peaked on Tuesday of last week it was as much as $1.50 above the price of deliverable steers on April. The market could have dropped up to $1.50 on April and June. The limit on all other months is $1. The price decline was triggered by an increased supply of cattle at the major markets. However, the cash market was strong to higher on the Chicago Stockyards. Dressed beef prices were steady. In the opinion of some of the experts the market was making an adjustment to cash prices. Profit taking and panicky hedgers also had an influence.

So much for what happened — now what are we in for the future. If I were sharp enough to foretell this I wouldn't be writing this column but just for the fun of it we will take a shot. This probably won't be as accurate as my projection a few weeks back when I said the futures market would line up with the cash market in Chicago.

On April 17 a 32-state cattle on feed report is due for release that will shed much light on the situation as of April 1. In my opinion this report will show a sizable drop of cattle on feed since Jan. 1, 1969. It will show a drastic drop of placements for this first quarter year. In anticipation of this report you will see the market strengthen over the next few days until April 17. The report will be released at 2 p.m. after the market closes. If you will tell me what is in this report then I'll tell you whether you should hedge your cattle on April 17 or wait until a few days after. If this report is as favorable as the January and February

Panhandle Water

The 1968 WATER DECLINE MAPS just completed by the Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District, south of the Canadian River in Texas, tells what the individual irrigation well owner already knew: the water level is declining faster. The reason is simple—there are more wells pumping now than ever before. The district office in White Deer has a limited number of the 1968 Decline Maps on hand. The 1968 Decline Map is needed by the irrigation farmer who desires to obtain water depletion credit on his 1969 Federal Income Tax Return. The Internal Revenue Office in Dallas has copies to verify the individual farmer's claims.

Having watched the static level of the wells throughout the District drop each year during the past 13 years, those of us who are closest to the situation are really beginning to understand and appreciate the value of the water before the well runs dry. Being very close to the actual situation has and lasting lesson — our Ogallala Reservoir is being depleted. Those of you who think that any of the recent snow and rain has soaked down to the underground water formation are invited to take a sharp pointed shovel or spade and dig down two or three feet in the soil. Underground moisture and surface moisture do meet in delta areas of the country but seldom in the West Texas-Panhandle area.

Knowing that our underground supply is going to run out makes the dream of water from the Mississippi River look better every day.

The appointment, by the board of directors of Water, Inc., of State Representative Bill Clayton as executive director, really places the organization on a firm basis. With Dean Rae and Tom Williams assisting him, we can look forward to rapid progress in the implementation of the Texas Water plan.

There are a number of questions that landowners of West Texas must solve if we are to get the needed water.

Integration of import water deliveries with pumpage of remaining ground water involves problems not easily solved. Will irrigators prefer to use ground water as long as it remains available to them and defer purchase of more costly import water until their ground water is gone? Or will they prefer to extend the life of their ground water supply by using import water to meet part of their requirements? In either case, how should canals and pipelines to serve such irrigators be sized and staged?

Other complex questions would be involved in using import water to recharge ground water reservoirs. These questions relate to both legal factors and the physical feasibility of such recharge, whether by individual irrigators or on a project basis.

These and other questions relating to design of the project distribution system will require much time, study and analysis

No Threat from Synthetic Meats for Next 20 Years

David Call, visiting professor of food economics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, told members of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association last week that synthetic substitutes would not seriously affect beef consumption within the "next 20 years." He urged the industry not to try to legislate against the use of such substitutes but rather to "let the consumer be the arbiter."

The speaker added, "We have been too concerned with trying to win the consumer in the halls of Congress rather than in the market place."

The FTC made the comment in announcing it would not press legal action against Lever Brothers for a commercial purporting to show the instant cleaning power of the detergent All. The objectional commercial showed a stained shirt being rinsed clean as water rose to the wearer's neck, but the FTC said the stains actually were removed in normal washing.

Bomb Pampa

LUBBOCK —The Pampa Harvesters spent a dismal weekend in Lubbock losing two baseball games, 5-4 to Lubbock Friday and then saw Monterey come off a one game losing streak and a 21-0 victory Saturday.

Monterey had lost 4-3 to Borger Friday and had its 10-game winning streak broken.

But the host Plainsmen bombed four Pampa hurlers for 15 hits enroute to the 21-0 shelling.

Pampa managed only four hits and contributed five errors to the Monterey cause.

Cliff Gage started on the mound for Pampa but lasted only two-thirds of an inning before he was relieved by Larry Yearwood. Ricky Harris came on in the second and Don Thompson relieved Harris in the fourth and finished up on the mound.

Glen Darnell went the distance for Monterey to gain the victory. Besides giving up just four hits Darnell struckout 11 Pampans.

Gage was clubbed for five runs on only two hits and walked three batters and had two balks called on him. Only three of the runs were earned.

Yearwood, making his first appearance of the season, was targeted for three runs, all earned, on three hits and Harris gave up three runs on three hits.

Monterey hit Thompson for 11 runs, only three of which were earned on eight hits.

All told 13 of the Plainsmen's runs were unearned.

Monterey is now 11-1 for the season and 1-1 in district play while the Harvesters fell to 2-5 for the season and 0-2 in league competition.

The Harvesters made three mild threats against Darnell.

With one out in the third Stevens singled and went to third on John Jenkins two out hit. But the threat died.

In the fourth Ross Holman walked with one out, went to second on a passed ball but could advance no further. Again in the seventh Holman doubled with two outs but died on second.

Holman, Stevens, Gary Parrish and Steve Scott had Pampa's only hits of the day.

Vittito paced the Plainsmen hitting with three hits and three runs batted in, two on a double.

Monterey scored nine runs in the first two innings and came up with a big eight-run fourth inning.

Ex-Yankee Ford Staying Busy

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. And lately, one can't tune into Lassi or Here Come the Brides without coming face-to-smiling face with Edward Charles Ford. He is the most prominent TV commercial personality since that other blonde who goes around asking people to take it all off.

He did a baseball commercial in conjunction with a soup company. In it, he plays a first-base coach who is reading a book about the centennial of baseball. A runner gets on, starts asking Ford about the book. The runner gets picked off, and asks Ford why. "Read the book, dummy," says the sage. The soup company has purchased time in the next four months to play this 2,770 times!

Ford's most joyous commercial, though, is the one for Braniff Airlines with Salvador Dali, the eccentric Spanish painter. Braniff is attempting a sophisticated, unusual advertising campaign. They have paired several diverse types—like Mickey Spillane and Marianne Moore, Andy Warhol and Sonny Liston, Dean Martin Jr. and Satchel Paige — and the pairs sit on a plane and get into a conversation of sorts.

At the end of each segment, one of the stars turns to the camera and says: "When you got it — flaunt it."

Before the commercial, Ford had never heard of Dali and Dali thought that Ford came in two types — automatic and stick shift.

"He had this terrific mustache and kept twirling the tips of it," said Ford. "He called me Vitee. I say to him, 'Now tell me the truth, don't you think a knuckleball harder to throw than a screwball?' He says, 'Oh no, no, no, no Vitee.' He mumbles something about how to pitch.

"Then he says, 'When you got it — flaunt it.' And I say, 'Tell 'em, Dali, baby.'" Ford laughed about it. "Actually, Dali wrote his line on a cheat card. He wrote it just the way he spoke it: 'Ven you god id — flaunt id.' Ron Holland, who's one of the heads of the advertising agency who did the commercial, took the card and had Dali sign it. He said he now has an original Dali."

Ford got up, he had to get to the ball park at nearby Ford Lauderdale, where the Yankees are in spring training. He asked Shoaff for a comb.

"For what?" Shoaff needed.

With a flourish Ford removed his golf cap and ran his hand through a thick head of white-blond hair.

"Ven you god id — flaunt id," he said.

Hollis Makes AAAA All-State Team

JIM HOLLIS

By United Press International
Houston Wheatley's Dwight Jones and Spring Branch Memorial's Wayne Howrdd were the big guns in the Texas Sports Writers Association's 1969 Class AAAA all-state basketball team that boasted a scoring potential of 145 points per game.

Jones, 6-9, and Howard, 6-4, powered their teams into the state finals, where Wheatley won its second straight title and handed Memorial its only loss of the season.

Jones, only a junior, averaged 21.5 points and 20 rebounds per game and had one contest in which he picked off 51 rebounds. Howard averaged 22.6 and 11 rebounds.

Both were outscored during the season by two other members of the mythical first team — Dallas Washington junior Sammy Hervey and El Paso Tech's Emilio Corral. Hervey, 6-6, up from the third team a year ago, averaged 41.3 points, while the 6-1 Corral averaged 32.3 points.

The fifth member of the select five was Norman Bacon, a 6-1 outside man from Dallas Pinkston, who averaged 24.1 points.

Sportsmen Pay Tribute To Eisenhower

By United Press International
Former President Dwight D. who championed the value of athletics throughout his military, educational and government career, will be honored and eulogized Sunday and Monday by the men in professional sports.

All major league baseball teams with exhibition games scheduled Monday will hold memorial ceremonies honoring the late President. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has directed that no games will start until at least one hour after completion of funeral services on the official day of mourning.

The American Basketball Association has called off three regular season games scheduled for Monday night. The National Basketball Association's Western Division playoff game between San Francisco and Los Angeles will go on as scheduled Monday night but all eight teams involved in the playoffs were instructed by league commissioner Walter Kennedy to observe appropriate ceremonies before weekend games.

Murphy Widens Margin To Three In Airlines Golf

MIAMI (UPI)—Chubby Bob Murphy's blade "kept talking" Saturday as he stretched his lead in the $200,000 National Airlines and finished 13 under par at the end of the third round.

The PGA's rookie of the year of 1968 takes a 3 stroke lead as the rich tourney moved into its final round Sunday.

Murphy, nicknamed "Mur the Turf" by fellow pros, wielded a hot putter as he sank birdies from 25 and 30 feet from the pin.

"The old blade spoke," Murphy said after a sensational three days on the greens. Friday he shot a 66 to tie the course record set a day earlier by Dewitt Weaver.

Louisianan Lionel Hebert, playing with Murphy held second place at 10 under par. The 40-year-old veteran, who's "feeling better" after a long bout with tendonitis fired a 69 Saturday to put him at 68-69-69—206.

At nine under par were California's Dave Stockton and Butch Baird, who has been making a good showing this year in the Caribbean circuit.

Stockton, the handsome 27-year-old five-year pro from West Lake Village, Calif., birdied five holes for a 67 that put him 68-72-67—207 for the three rounds.

"It's probably gonna take 13 or 14 under par to win this thing," said Stockton. "The greens are holding up well and, in fact, they seem to be easier to play every day."

Veteran Arnold Palmer, ending the day at five-under-par, 69-73-69—211, complained of the winds that have been busting up to 35 miles an hour on the tough par 72 6,927 West Course at the Country Club of Miami.

Yankees Still Hot In Grapefruit Play

By United Press International
The world champion Detroit Tigers finally found their batting touch again.

The Tigers, who had lost four straight and 10 of their past 12, exploded for a 10-7 victory over the Boston Red Sox Saturday with a 14-hit attack, including three each by Al Kaline and Mickey Stanley.

The Tigersrouted Mike Nagy with six straight hits in the second inning while jumping to a 7-0 lead.

Earl Wilson went six innings for the Tigers and struck out 11 and allowed 11 of Boston's 16 hits while collecting the victory.

Fritz Peterson and Lindy McDaniel combined on an eight-hitter as the Yankees topped Pittsburgh for their 15th victory in 21 games. The Yanks used a "B" lineup with catcher Frank Fernandez the only regular in the lineup.

Joe Coleman made a strong bid for Washington's opening day assignment. He pitched eight innings of five hit ball as the Senators topped the Houston Astros 5-1.

Alex Johnson socked a two-run homer and singled home a third run and another ex-Cardinal, Bob Tolan, got a pair of key singles as the Cincinnati Reds outlasted St. Louis 9-7.

Satch May Pitch Forever

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (NEA) — One flamingo-thin leg was wrapped around the other and two long leathery fingers cradled a cigarette in a V. Satchel Paige rocked back in his locker room chair, curled his lower lip into his anchovy mustache. He raised his eyebrows, nearly spilling a couple eyeballs over drooping hornrimmed glasses. His forehead furrowed like Venetian blinds.

"I couldn't have taken it the way Jackie done," he said. "No stree. The first time someone called me a black s.o.b., I would quite naturally have been a little peeved. There woulda been a fuss, sure.

"They wanted some youth, someone who wouldn't go feudin'. Jackie had a top education, too. Me, I didn't have nothin' then but the ninth-grade and mother wit and 20 years of throwin' a baseball all over the world every day for every one of them years."

So Satchel Paige was not the first black man to play in the major leagues. Jackie Robinson, in his 20s in 1947, was.

"Now you look at Jackie," said Paige, dangling his long, wide, flat baseball shoe, "and his hair's white and you'd think he was my great grandfater. And I'm 63."

Late last season the Atlanta Braves signed Paige, who started his professional baseball career in 1926 with the Chattanooga Black Lookouts, to a contract as a pitcher. He did not see game action. The Braves' move was mainly a good-will gesture. Paige had needed 158 days to complete five major leagues years, thus qualifying for the baseball pension.

The baseball strike hassle this winter resulted in, among other things, lowering the pension qualifying minimum to four years. But the Braves have kept Paige as a coach.

In 1962 Paige wrote a book entitled "Maybe I'll Pitch Forever." It did not seem out of the realm of possibility then.

"Forever is a pretty good white," said Paige. "And I'm like a fire horse in olden days. I hear the bell and I run under the harness. I can still get anyone out for three or four innings. My onliest problem is they bunt on me, and my wind's short. If I'd pitch, I might bring back the old lost art of bunting, all by myself.

"People here are doubtin' my vision, too. My eyes do give me some troubles now and again. And maybe I'm just too old and gentle to pitch no more.

"Besides here come another generation altogether. It's all changed over, saw it happen with my own natural eye. The colored man's accepted now like never before. But times are rough now, real rough. The world's in too big an uproar.

"Lotta things are bad, but some are good. I ain't heard the word 'Nigger' in 10 years, and I been from one end of the United States to the other.

"And these white boys here. Look 'round. Not a one would ever dream about a lynchin' or pourin' gas on a colored man. That's why I don't like to talk much about problems that used to be. Just let dead dogs lie.

"I think about other things. Like maybe some day get in the Hall of Fame. The whole world wants me in. But I didn't play in the ma leagues long enough — that's how it's wrote up, even though for years and years I was the world's greatest pitcher.

"I pitched in the Negro leagues and barnstormed against the best white hitters like Musial and Williams and

Astros Not Laughing About Who's On First

COCOA, Fla. (UPI)—As far as the Houston Astros are concerned, there's nothing funny about that old "who's on first" routine. They're not laughing.

All the Astros know is that they traded away Rusty Staub, their trusty first baseman, to the Montreal Expos and got back, they thought, Donn Clendenon to play first, plus Jesus Alou to play the outfield. But Clendenon retired and since then the Astros have been trying to get the deal nullified.

When last seen, commissioner Bowie Kuhn was allowing the deal to stand but was trying to get the Expos to give Houston another player.

All this leaves Manager Harry Walker with a sort of lost feeling as he tries to figure out a lineup that will boost the Astros up from their bad showing of 1962, when they were last in the 10-team league.

Surveying what's on hand, it's hard to see the Astros beating out anyone in the National League's new Western Division except the expansion San Diego Padres.

Walker is starting his first full season as Astros' pilot. He replaced Grady Hatton on June 18 last year and under "Harry the Hat" the Astros pulled themselves together for a nearly 500 performance the rest of the way, 49 wins and 52 losses.

Alou could be the most important new addition. The youngest of the three ballplaying brothers hit .263 for the Giants last year but, at 25, could come back to his .292 of the previous year. If he goes, he could team with Jim Wynn and Norm Miller to give Houston a fairly solid outfield.

Wynn is the big stick man on the club with a .269 average last year that included 26 homers. Miller, after hitting .306 at Oklahoma City, came up to the Astros for 61 games and batted .237. Bidding for outfield spots are Curt Blefary, who hit 15 homers for Baltimore and was obtained for three players, and Sandy Valdespino, ex-Brave who hit .259 at Richmond.

Gary Geiger, former Red Sox and Brave, was the Astros' No. 1 pick in the minor league draft after hitting .296 at Tulsa and could fill in at first base or the outfield.

Denis Menke had a good year at second base for the Astros and was voted the team's most valuable player in '62. Hector Torres is back at shortstop and Doug Rader at third base. But a number of rookies are fighting to break into the infield and Walker could wind up making numerous changes. One who will get a good look is first baseman John Mayberry, who hit .338 at Cocoa and .329 at Greensboro.

Joe Morgan, who played only 10 games last year before aknee operation, is the club's former regular second baseman and is looking to come back.

Johnny Edwards, 31-year-old former All-Star catcher with the Cincinnati Reds, was obtained from the St. Louis Cards and moves in as the Astros No. 1 reliever.

Lew Says He'll Sign With NBA Milwaukee

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Lew Alcindor has decided to join the National Basketball Association, and that decision might well bring an end to the rival American Basketball Association.

The 7-foot-1 1/2 inch center from UCLA made it publicly known Friday that he would sign with the Milwaukee Bucks of the NBA instead of the New York Nets of the ABA, thus ending speculation as to where the three-time All-America would play his pro ball.

Alcindor's decision, which he made last Wednesday, so irked the ABA that it filed a multi-million dollar antitrust suit against the NBA Friday on charges the NBA was monopolizing pro basketball.

Alcindor, who just six days ago led UCLA to an unprecedented third consecutive NCAA title, said the solid organization of the NBA and a sounder financial arrangement were the two major reasons affecting his decision.

Kuhn Sets Rules on Ike's Funeral

By United Press International

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has issued strict rules regarding the sport's observance of the death of Dwight D. Eisenhower. No games may be started on the day of the funeral services until at least one hour after the services have been concluded. Day games may be rescheduled as night games so long as any pertinent league regulations and player agreements are complied with or respectfully waived.

The American Basketball Association has postponed three games scheduled for Monday night.

Bobby Richardson, a former Yankee second baseman, will conduct a brief memorial service for Eisenhower before the New York game with the Mets on Sunday at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Dallas, Tulsa Go 1-up in CHL Playoffs

By United Press International

The Dallas Black Hawks, the Omaha Knights and the Tulsa Oilers all carry a one-game advantage into the second round of playoff games in the Central Hockey League.

Dallas scored three times in the second period Friday night and went on to defeat the Houston Apollos 4-1 in the opener of the playoff best-of-five series.

Tulsa dropped Oklahoma City 3-2 and Omaha routed Kansas City 7-2.

The winners of the Dallas-Houston and Omaha-Kansas City playoff bouts meet in another best of five series to determine who goes against the winner of Tulsa-Oklahoma City best-of-seven series for the CHL championship.

They will be played Tuesday and Wednesday. Kansas City and Omaha meet tonight in Omaha, and follow a similar schedule.

The second game of the Tulsa-Oklahoma City match will be played next Wednesday in Oklahoma City.

The Knights had six men score Friday to roll up the massive margin against the Blues. The game was rough and tumble with 14 penalties for 40 minutes, including fight calls against Bill Fairbairn and Mike Robitaille of Omaha and Ian Campbell and Norm Dennis of the Blues.

Tigers Look Like Anything But Champions

By United Press International

Mayo Smith is keeping busy these days pointing out that the results don't count in the spring.

But the manager of the world champion Detroit Tigers can't help but wonder where his club is going to find itself when the results do start counting—in less than two weeks.

The struggling Tigers lost their fourth straight and their 10th in the last 12 games in rather embarrassing fashion Friday when they were battered by the Montreal Expos 8-0. The heavy-hitting Tigers were held to just two hits by a trio of rather undistinguished hurlers—Billy Stoneman, Skip Guinn and Carroll Sembera.

In the other games Friday, Minnesota nipped Los Angeles 6-5, Houston beat the Mets 5-4, Atlanta drubbed Washington 9-4, Kansas City nipped Pittsburgh 2-1, the White Sox outslugged the Red Sox 10-8, the Cubs topped San Francisco 9-4, Cleveland routed Oakland 12-2, California drubbed San Diego 8-1, Philadelphia beat Cincinnati 9-2, Seattle nipped the California B team 4-3 and Baltimore nipped the Yankees 3-1.

Tips From Ted Has Made Yaz Great Player

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (UPI)—Carl Yastrzemski, who gets 125 big ones for all the things he can do with his bat, says he'd like to be the highest paid player of all time. He has a good shot at it because right now he's bracketed economically with such people as Willie Mays, Bob Gibson, Juan Marichal, Frank Robinson and Dan Drysdale, all of whom can claim they're in the same top drawer give or take a dollar or two. If Yaz ever does become baseball's biggest breadwinner of all time, he says he'll have Ted Williams to thank more than anybody else in the game. "Without a doubt he helped me more than anyone," says Boston's stylish 29-year-old left-fielder who made off with his third American League batting title last year. "It's impossible for me to measure how much Ted has helped me. He started when I was 19 and he was still helping me last season. I'll help you something else. He'll help the Washington players.

He'll make winners out of 'em, but only if they listen to him. You can't say 'yeah, yeah, yeah' to what he says, try it a day or two and then ditch it. If they stick with him, they won't be sorry." Golden Rewards Ted Williams manages the Senators now but Yastrzemski is still benefiting from some of the things he once told him. Yaz is standing up there at the plate differently these days, spreading his feet more and dropping his hands on the bat, and that's some of the Williams' influence. It can't be too bad. The Red Sox poop sheet shows Yastrzemski leading the club with a better than .400 average. "This is something Ted talked to me about two years ago," Yaz says about his new spread stance. "I was in a good groove then he won the triple crown that year and I didn't think it was an idea to change but I did this spring and so far it's working out fine." What impresses Yastrzemski most about Williams' batting instruction is that Washington's new manager never tries changing a hitter over, but helps him make adjustments off his own style instead. "He thinks ahead, too," says the present Red Sox leftfielder about their former one. "When I was a kid breaking in, for example, he impressed upon me the importance of hitting straightaway over and over again, 'up the middle, up the middle, up the middle, up the middle.' He knew when I was ready better than I knew." Yastrzemski has been middle," he'd keep telling me. Now Is The Time "All of a sudden when I was 27, he said, 'okay, you've got the experience now and you know the hitters. You should be advanced enough to pull the ball and do something more with the bat. It's about time.' Imagine following Williams' progress with the senators and realize they have been having trouble winning games down here in Florida. He thinks Ted eventually will straighten them out, however.

He has a comes to coach, too, in Sid (teaching won't be too long but start noticing a difference in the Washington club if Ted keeps man doesn't go up into office."

Vince Figures He's Still A Great Man

WASHINGTON, D. C. (NEA) — Now it comes out, Vincent Thomas Lombardi didn't return to football coaching at the age of 55, so he could show how him should be run in the national capital. He wasn't even tired by the money, a piece of Washington Redskins. He came back because he was sick and tired of hearing what a great man Vincent Thomas Lombardi WAS. "I never could stomach all that stuff," the great man grimaced. "Nobody else will ever win three world championships. Lombardi is a legend." And all that. "There was no way I could live with that kind of thing. "Someone said the reason I came back to coaching was to destroy a legend. That may be so. I'm going to destroy it. "A lot of people are anxious to see me fall flat on my face. You know that. I don't say it with malice. I think that's just a human reaction."

league, and all in ownership capacities, and ownership which is far superior to what I've got here, really. "Then why Washington, of all places? "The city of Washington, for one thing. It's not just the capital of the United States. It's an exciting town; it's a fascinating city, with exciting and fascinating people. "And it's in the East." Beautiful. And when he was in Green Bay, he said what difference did it make where he lived because all he did was look at football movies anyhow ("He's got those 16 millimeter eyeballs," Frank Gifford once said). But ego does drive a man; too, and it does something to Vince Lombardi when he walks into a Washington restaurant, and everybody gets up and applauds—although it's baseball season and Ted Williams is all they're supposed to be talking about. These are the busiest days of the year for Lombardi as he reorganizes the Redskins organization to suit his taste

Nicklaus To Play in Colonial Open

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Jack Nicklaus, who has often stunned the prestigious Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament because his type of game did not suit the Colonial course, will play in the tourney next May for only the second time in five years. Nicklaus was one of six players whom Colonial officials announced Saturday had accepted invitations to play in the $125,000 tournament. Also joining the field were George Archer, Rod Funseth, Johnny Pott, Bob Murphy and Bob Stanton. Nicklaus has complained in the past that the tight Colonial course does not fit his long-ball style of play. He expressed distaste at having to use irons off many of the tees. In 1963 Nicklaus placed third behind Julius Boros and Gary Player.

Harvesters

(Continued From Page 9) Darnell and Jones. WP—Darnell, LP—Gage. In Friday's game two first inning errors dealt the Harvesters a fatal blow. Pampa jumped to a 1-0 lead in the top of the inning when John Jenkins reached second on a two base error with two out. Gary Parrish then singled him home. But in the bottom of the inning with one out loser Sammy Heasley walked Jim Williams and Don Taylor. Both men were then safe on a double steal. Heasley then fanned Marvin Chapman but Mike Darden grounded to Tommy Hawkins who threw while scoring both Williams and Taylor with Darden going to second. Catcher Larry Kotara was then charged with a passed ball sending Darden to third and Billy Gibbs singled him home to make it 3-1. Pampa came back in the second to make it 3-2 when Vernon Johnston walked with one out. Jay Johnson walked and Johnston was picked. Heasley singled sending Johnston to third and Mike Stevens singled him home. Lubbock made it 4-2 in the third when Williams singled and with two out Darden doubled him home. Pampa tied it in the fourth on Holman's double, Johnston's run scoring single and Stevens second hit of the game to score Johnston. Lubbock won it in the sixth when John Lane opened with a double, went to second on a groundout and scored on Griffin's double. Pampa had a shot at tying it in the seventh when Hawkins opened with a single but Donnie Boyd then retired the next three batters. Boyd was the winner, giving up two runs on two hits. Watson started for Lubbock and was touched for two runs and five hits. Heasley, who deserved a better fate than he got, was the loser, giving up just two earned runs on four hits. Never Write Off Dodgers For NL Pennant

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—It's always dangerous to write off the Los Angeles Dodgers, who have an alarming habit of winning pennants just after a bad season, but all signs indicated 1969 will be another year of rebuilding for the Dodgers. Asked to name his regular lineup, Manager Walt Alton was forced to confess: "I don't know myself what I have from day to day or where I am going to play which players." Alton, dean of National League managers now starting his 16th year as Dodger pilot, isn't saying he doesn't have talent available. He does. But fitting the pieces together is going to be tough and even his skillful hand may not be able to do it. The Dodgers' problem is simply stated: Last year they were second in the league in pitching and next-to-last in batting. The combination was enough to put them in seventh place—the first time in Alton's career that the Dodgers have finished in the second division two straight years. Dodger Ye-Yo "Watch out for the Dodgers," warned Pittsburgh Manager Larry Shepard recently. "They go from first to seventh and back again very quickly." That's quite true: For instance, in 1957 they finished seventh and the next year they won the pennant. They won the pennant again in 1962, dropped to sixth the following year, and then bounced back to win two straight pennants in 1965 and '66. But that's when Sandy Koufax retired, and the Dodgers fell to eighth place in '67 was followed only by seventh place in '68. Alton must find a cure for the Dodgers' hitting woes someplace if the club is going to start climbing. Here are two of the key pieces in Alton's jig-saw puzzle: Ted Sizemore—a .314 batting average in the Pacific Coast League makes this 24-year-old righthanded swinger a key man. Sizemore originally was a catcher but was given second base instruction and now is being given a shot at shortstop. "We think he has the range to play shortstop," says Alton. Whether Sizemore makes the grade at short will determine whether several other pieces fall into place. Andy Kosco—like Sizemore, the ex-Yankee swings righthanded. That's important, because the Dodgers played almost 500 ball against righthanded pitchers last year but won only 21 and lost 30 against southpaws. The obvious remedy—more righthanded hitting. "We hope Kosco can give us some of the batting we need against lefthanders, and from the way he's been hitting in spring training, it looks like maybe he can," says Alton. Kosco, obtained from the Yankees for pitcher Mike Kekich, hit only .240 for the Yankees but had 15 home runs and 50 runs-batted-in. If Sizemore doesn't make it at short, he might make it at second. Whichever he doesn't play, Paul Popovich might play. Righthanded Wes Parker and lefthanded Ron Fairly are the first base candidates and third base could go to Jim Lefebvre, Bill Sudakis, or veteran Ken Boyer. Sudakis is the young man who came up late last season from Albuquerque, where he hit .294, and batted .276 in 24 games with three homers, including a grand slam. That merits him a close look this spring.

'Horns Take Twinbill To Move Into SWC Lead

By United Press International It's impossible to win games without runs and it's hard to get runs without hits and because SMU could not get any hits in one game against Texas Friday and precious few in the second the Longhorns are now the undisputed leader in the Southwest Conference baseball race. Texas whipped SMU twice by 5-0 scores Friday on the no-hit performance of Jim Street and a three-hit showing by Burt Hooten. Street's no-hitter was the first in a SWC game since 1955 and only the fourth in history in a league contest. The two wins boosted Texas' conference to 5-0 going into Saturday's round of single games around the conference. That is a half-game ahead of Rice's 4-0 mark and a full game ahead of Texas A&M at 4-1. Rice is idle this weekend and A&M fell from the undefeated ranks. TCU bumped off A&M 7-6 in the opening of their twin bill in Fort Worth Friday, but the Aggies came back to take the nightcap 8-5. TCU had pulled

Mrs. Stowers Presents Program For Twentieth Century Members

Mrs. R. W. Stowers presented the Twentieth Century Club program recently on "Frontiers in medicine". Members met at Mrs. Bob Andis' home.

Mrs. Stowers, in introducing her subject, stated "all areas of medicine are interrelated to a large degree, because all are concerned with the life and health of human beings. The bio-chemical field is the combined effort of many people — physicians, physicist, biologist, chemists, matematicians and chemical, electrical and mechanical engineers.

"The first great achievement in the bio-medical field was the heart-lung machine that was developed by Dr. John Gibbon and used in 1953. Since that time much improvement and refinement has taken place. Gravity has now been utilized instead of a pump and the machine has been made portable. Dr. Melrose perfected a surgical technique to inject potassium citrate into the heart and cause it to stop beating. This made it possible to do open heart surgery," she said.

Today's medical engineering has produced a dramatic new method to use oxygen under pressure in the treatment of blood poisoning, tetanus, strokes, heart defects and shock. Hot therapy applied within six hours of a stroke has proven to be greatly beneficial to the patient, but its effectiveness decreases in delay.

"Hot-radio therapy has been used effectively by Dr. Wilder-mouth of Seattle in destroying cancer tissue.

"The laser and Cold Knife are examples of a physical theory put to practical medical usage.

The laser is a beam of pure light which can cut through human tissue and blood vessels without causing bleeding. The beam can be focused to an area as small as one millionth of an inch. It is also capable of knocking off one gene of a chromosome, which may lead to the destruction of congenital defects in the future", she said.

"Cryo-surgery, the use of sub-zero temperature of medical cryogenics, also falls into the category of bloodless surgery. The extreme cold kills pain. Dr. Irving S. Cooper, inventor of the "Cooper Probe" in 1960, has been proven quite successful in the treatment of Parkinson's disease.

"The pressurized nitrogen flows through a long hollow rod, no thicker than a pencil lead at a temperature of 120 degrees. There has been much improvement in the development of the X-ray and Fluoroscopic equipment which aids in diagnostic procedure," Mrs. Stowers said.

"The human body contains a complex electric system. With the construction of sensitive electronic instruments capable of detecting and measuring the body's electrical action, it is possible to pin point the site of disease areas because of the electrical abnormalities.

"Electro-catheters and Procardiographs also have been perfected. The Electro-Encaphalograph is used extensively in measuring brain waves. Another frontier is the employment of Ultrasonics, the bouncing off of echoes from the body to determine an injury or defect especially in areas where X-ray can't distinguish between soft tissue and fluids. The research in the field of Thermography, which is the checking of the body for elevated temperature that denotes infection also is a recent development," Mrs. Stowers concluded.

Computers and monitors are becoming an important factor in the diagnostic field. By programming various symptoms, answers can be derived in minutes instead of hours. Blood testing is being simplified as the computer can run 12 different tests at the same time and process some 30 samples in one hour and turn up 50 percent more abnormalities.

Chemotherapy is the usage of drugs in medicine. Mrs. Stowers closed her program with the statement "This modern frontier in the field of medicine is so changing that it would take a whole study course year to even approach it. By May, what was true and useful in September would be obsolete and a new drug would have been substituted," she concluded.

Members present were Mmes. Bob Andis, F. M. Culberson, Jack Foster, Raymond Harrah, David McGaney, Fred Neslage, Rex Rose, R. W. Sanford, W. A. Skoog, R. W. Stowers, Jack Stroup, H. R. Thompson and Miss Elsie Cunningham. After Mrs. David Mc G a h e y, president, called the meeting to order, she led members in Pledges of Allegiance to American and Texas flags and Club Collect.

RELIGIOUS STUDY

Varietas Club Members Review Easter Morning

Mrs. H. Dewitt Seago and Mrs. Lee Harrah were speakers for the Varietas Study Club meeting recently in the home of Mrs. Luther Pierson, 1818 Christine. As Mrs. F. A. Cary, club president, presided at the business meeting, the club voted to send Mrs. H. Price Dosier Sr., incoming club president, to the district convention in Dalhart. She will be accompanied by yearbook committee members.

The afternoon's subject, "Religion" carried the sub-title, "He Is Risen". Mrs. Seago, the first speaker, used the topic, "The Hidden Treasure of Easter" and presented a reading from Peter Marshall's book, "The First Easter". She began her story with the death of Jesus and traced actions and reactions of the people associated with the crucifixion. In her story of Easter morning, she reported the theme of the day as it took place then and as it has influenced the civilized world.

Mrs. Harrah spoke on the topic, "The Trees of the Bible" and began her speech by telling her audience Palestine has 3,300 known trees and plants. About 30 of them are mentioned in the Bible.

"Bible trees are of three classes. The first group includes the costly timber trees, such as the ebony tree, which was used for jewelry; the gopher wood tree, which was used for Noah's Ark, and the algum tree which provided framework for such buildings as the Tabernacle," she said.

"The second group includes fruit trees such as carob, sycamore, fig, olive, and date palm trees.

Of these, the olive tree was the most important, providing oil, light, fuel, food, ointment, and medicine for the people and having a life of several hundred years.

"The third group included forest trees such as the acacia which was used for priceless items like the Ark of the Covenant, Cedars of Lebanon from which King Solomon built the Temple, and oak trees of which the Sacred Forests were composed," she said.

Following the program, Mrs. J. R. Spearman gave the Thought for the Day. There was one guest, Mrs. Hugh Blaylock. Members present were Mmes. W. E. Abernathy, F. A. Cary, Cecil Dalton, H. Price Dosier, Clyde Ellis, N. B. Ellis, S. C. Evans, Lee Harrah, J. E. Kirckman, R. W. Lane, Otis Nace, L. B. Penick, Luther Pierson, H. DeWitt Seago, J. R. Spearman, Ralph Thomas, W. A. Wagoner, and Sherman White.

High School Teacher Addresses Twentieth Century Culture Club

Twentieth Century Culture Club held the annual Guest Day Tea recently in Lovett Memorial Library with Mrs. Elaine Ledbetter, Pampa High School science teacher and author, as guest speaker.

Mrs. Ledbetter read poems from her latest published book, "Candles At Noon," and explained the setting or event behind each poem. She described poetry as having content, beauty and craftsmanship and said, "content alone is prose, content and beauty is still prose, content and craftsmanship is philosophy, and beauty alone is sentimentality."

"Technique is the best method for expressing inspiration in such a way that it will come through in a meaningful manner, not only to the poet but to those who read the poem. The real trick is not in experiencing but in translating the experience," she said.

Mrs. Ledbetter related her own method for translating it keeping a notebook. When she has a moment she wishes to preserve, she writes down her thoughts and feelings without regard for poetic form or technique and later re-works the fragments into a poem.

"Every person who lives and breathes and feels has experienced the essence of a poem, but the difficult task of the poet is to translate such an experience into the right words. Most people look but do not see, they live but do not feel, they float on the surface of life and never explore the depths. Because poets discard the superficial, they get more out of life than other people, more joy and more pain," she added.

Mrs. Ledbetter's poems encompassed many themes, including: inspiration, reality, seasons, devotion, hope, frustration, nature, courage, humility, companionship, disappointments, and laughter.

"Being busy is fine but once in awhile let us take time out to just sit and enjoy the beauty about us", she commented. "Life is pretty much what we make it. We must decide what is important to us and go after it. We may not always achieve our goal but it is certain that we will never achieve any goal unless we make an effort toward it. But it isn't what happens to us that is so important, it is how we take it," Mrs. Ledbetter said in summing up her philosophy of life.

Introducing Mrs. Ledbetter was Mrs. Wayne Irwin, who listed honors bestowed upon her including the latest one, the National Science Teachers Association Star Award for 1969. Mrs. Irwin listed the professional organizations to which Mrs. Ledbetter belongs including her most recent service of NSTA delegate to the Association of Science Educators in Bristol, England, in January, 1969.

She is listed in "Who's Who" (See Speaker, Page 15)

WATKINS-TINSLEY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have an 8-year-old son who comes home crying nearly every day. Somebody "hit" him. I tell him he should hit them back, but he says he doesn't like to fight. I have talked to other mothers on the block, and they say a boy has to learn how to protect himself, and if he does, the other boys won't bully him: so much.

I am not crazy about the idea of my kid getting beat up all the time, so I tell him to stay by himself. He doesn't listen to me. He goes where the other kids are, knowing he can't get along with them and is going to get up getting hit and crying. What is your opinion, Abby?

HIS MOTHER: I think every boy should learn how to defend himself, but yours must also have to learn how to get along better with the other kids.

DEAR ABBY: A cousin of mine made the mistake of putting a footnote on her Christmas card to the effect that they "miss their two children who are away at college this year." My husband is the vaguest free-loader, and he immediately figured that he had some spare room, so we would go there for our vacation.

I can just see the role I am going to have to play to compensate for the free rooms. I'm sure my cousin would not expect me to do all the cooking and housework, but what woman can move in on two people and not offer to do some work?

We have an 8-room house and, frankly, I'd like to get away from household chores on my vacation.

What do you suggest?

JUST THE HOUSEKEEPER: DEAR JUST: If you let your husband rope you into this kind of "vacation" — you'll deserve it.

DEAR ABBY: I hope this doesn't sound like I am bragging, because I'm not. I married when I was 16, and now, 19 years later, we have as happy a home as anyone could find anywhere.

These are some of the things I've done to make it so:

In the morning I wake my husband with a cup of fresh coffee and the morning paper. I've done this for years, but he always thanks me as though it is the first time.

When he comes home in the evening, I again have fresh coffee made and the afternoon paper. Regardless of what they are doing, the children always run to the door to greet him.

Before he gets home I make sure I have a fresh dress on, and that my face is nicely made-up, my hair combed, and when he comes in I leave all my problems of the day until he has had his dinner and had time to relax. And then I only bring them up if they are important.

Finally, after our evening meal, we read some passages of the Bible together and pray as a family.

When so many marriages are going on the rocks I simply offer these things as suggestions for a happy home.

MRS. R.S. SAN ANGELO, TEX.

DEAR MRS. S.: What a beautiful life you have. May it ever be thus. I'll print your letter as an inspiration to others.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for suggesting to a reader who wanted to express his appreciation to you by giving you money that, instead, he send it to his local Mental Health association. I am sure that any association would welcome this gift but if he really wanted to show his appreciation, he might offer the most valuable gift of all —

Your Horoscope
JEANE DIXON

SUNDAY, MARCH 30
YOUR BIRTHDAY today: — Conservative trends set in during this coming year. The earlier in the year you begin, the better. This is an excellent period to establish a permanent base of operations. Today's natives usually take some active share in the maintenance of public order. They have a special capacity for attracting cooperation from people with whom they hold close emotional ties.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): — Your associates now offer all sorts of comfort and perhaps a word of belated praise. Take it in the good spirit intended, and gather them for a little celebration.

YOUR BIRTHDAY Monday: — Prepare to change all your habits and opinions many times before the coming cycle is finished. All openings toward better information should be taken up promptly. Romantic interests thrive without competing with other activities. Monday's natives are often attracted to railroading, metals, manufacturing industries.

ARIES (March 21-Apr. 19): — Self-restraint today will save you quite a lot of trouble later with finances. The temptation is to get into a tumbling series of expenses by acting on a whim. One thing costs too much and requires a second expensive supplemental piece. Save your money for a better opportunity.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): — Your prestige ought to be well supported today. Put on your finest attire, go to church, then make the rounds in community meeting places afterwards. Business matters are better left out of today's considerations — you need the rest, and the goodwill is more important.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): — More details and errands develop than you had planned on. Otherwise, it's a day for family visits. Just do not go in such a rush that you tire and provoke tensions. Keep a watchful eye on any youngsters.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): — Today holds considerable material value. During the day you may come to an agreement with somebody who can later open a door for you. It's important to build human relationships first and all other problems fall into place.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): — Your peak of expression continues, and it begins to translate into improved potentials. The people you please socially and intellectually today tend to bring you earning opportunities later!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): — You are on the verge of very helpful self-discovery now. Meditation during the afternoon opens some surprising insights if you have the peace and courage to accept these gifts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): — Following up recent changes and incidents, most of them nice, your friends bring you many more surprises. Something happens that validates your basic faith in human nature, perhaps a slight incident with a deep sentiment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): — Keeping only your reticence about discussing business, go ahead about this Sunday as free and open as your nature will permit. Enjoy fluent rapport with other Scorpions and the more serious individuals of the other signs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): — Changes show up in your home and you need to watch closely for details nobody tells you about. There is both a strong temptation to mix into everybody's affairs and the urge to have them out of yours.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): — There are always ways and means of preserving what you have. This evening wind up chronic problems. This could also mean thinking ahead on medical or dental checkups.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): — Now that you have a good chance of developing your partnership or marriage into something more fulfilling, it is time to grow into the larger you, this talent is now at a peak.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): — Working conditions change again Monday, with no immediate explanations, accompanied by odd confrontations between other people. Since you do not understand the situation, stay out of their debates!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): — Just when you thought you had done your duty by relatives and their concerns, another matter arises. Your work load surges forward with new details to take into account.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): — A possible change of status is in store for you; perhaps an award, at least personal recognition. Speculative activities are tempting but not apt to be profitable. Romantic interests come more to your attention now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): — Where you can vision what the end result of the project might be, your self-assurance rebounds and a tremendous burst of energy carries you forward. The intelligent partner will see it too, and the work will be fascinating (if begun Monday).

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): — Your partners tend to be restless, your mate even more so. Moderate your plans enough to give them time to understand your goals and tactics. Then you have a better chance of finding them in agreement.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): — Monday you may find yourself sitting on the sidelines because your partners and mate are so busy running the show. Just do not let it go too far, as you would not like the long-range effects.

Most associations have volunteer programs where a lay person can spend practically any amount of time doing any number of things to aid the mentally ill. Perhaps even more important than the services provided for the patient, is the fact that the volunteer may come to realize that a "mental patient" is still a human being, and not someone to be feared. Mrs. J.R. Holloway Reviews Life Of Charles Goodnight for Forum Twentieth Century Forum met with Mrs. Neil Quattlebaum, 1828 Evergreen, in regular session recently as Mrs. Frank Stofa, president, conducted the business. Mrs. Aubra Carey was welcomed into the club as a new member. Mrs. Aubrey Steele reported on Texas Federation of Women's Clubs.

"Charles Goodnight, Cowman and Plainsman" by J. Evetts Haley was reviewed by Mrs. J.R. Holloway.

"Charles Goodnight was born in Southern Illinois March 5, 1836. Late in 1845 his family loaded their household goods and farming tools into two covered wagons and set out for Texas. Without saddle or blanket, Charles straddled a young white-faced mare and rode alongside the wagons. Early in life his spindly legs began to bow against the vibrant sides of a saddle horse, always thereafter to be at home against the sweat leathers of a stock saddle," Mrs. Holloway said.

"He was hunting beyond the frontier at 13, in the cattle business at 20, guiding Texas Rangers at 24. At 30 he was blazing cattle trails 2,000 miles in length, at 40 establishing a range 300 miles beyond the frontier. At 45 he dominated nearly 200,000 acres of range country. At 90 he was still active, an international authority on the cattle industry.

"That Goodnight chose wisely and well in pioneering on the Plains is seen in the fact that the JA Ranch continues today as one of the greatest ranges of the West, embracing nearly half a million acres, grazing 25 to 30,000 cattle.

"A reporter who observed not only the character of the JA Ranch but of the man who founded and directed it wrote 'It was constructed by a bold pioneer and a man of miraculous energy and industry. He had to be a ranger captain, his home for years a fort and cowboys his soldiers; he had made his rails, built his houses (about 50 of them), working as a laborer and carpenter; he has excavated his dugouts at his stations in early days; he had engineered his road-making along the gorges and mountain sides and handled the pick and spade; Winchester belted to his back he had built dams and made his tanks, shod his horses, and mended his wagons, made great land trades, parleyed with the Indians, and stood off the rustlers. The ranch has hundred of miles of wire fence, has a fine hay farm, enclosures separate for heaves, for bulls, and for horses.

"Even until today, Colonel Goodnight's benefactions to the cause of education on the staked Plains exceed those of any other man.

"For 40 years after his retirement people came to hear his stories and write his experiences. Usually they met with rebuffs, though he who sought information on cattle, Indians, buffaloes, trails, and other topics pertaining to Western life, were welcome.

"While in Phoenix, Goodnight planned a stew for Christmas dinner, then laid himself down upon his mattress, as hard as a cowcamp bed, with his head on the special pillow, as unyielding as the seat of a saddle, then died just at sadding — up time on the morning of Dec. 12, 1929," Mrs. Holloway said.

During the social hour refreshments were served to Mmes. M. McDaniell, Holt Barber, Hugh D. Barton, Michael Dunigan, H. Joe Franklin, J.R. Holloway, David E. Holt, Homer D. Johnson, Aubrey Steele, Frank Stofa, and Aubra Carey.

Mrs. Ben Sturgeon is serving as co-chairman and Mrs. Dean Copeland is in charge of publicity.

Mrs. Charles Walsh introduced Dord Fitz, who presented the program on Art Trends.

SUNDAY MORNING GRIST

From the Editorial Mill

THERE ARE a couple of thought-provoking letters to the editor elsewhere on today's editorial page and it is hoped you will take time to read them. . . One writer asked not to have her name published, but it is in our editorial files. . . She apparently is deeply concerned about teacher-student and parent-teacher relationships in Pampa schools. . . Of course, we have no way of knowing whether this is just an isolated case or whether the complaint is justifiable on a general basis. . . It is not the first time, however, that we have heard similar censure. . . One of the most important sentences in the letter (which expresses gratification that the school bond issue carried) reads: . . . "Good education facilities will do little good if we do not educate our children." . . . As stated before, it is hoped you will take time to read the woman's letter. . . It also should prove good reading for school board members. . . The other letter, from a man, takes a different slant on the adoption of the school bond issue. . . It has to do with what the writer says one voter can force upon another. . . And how one person who wants something and is willing to pay for it, can force another person (who doesn't want it and can't afford to pay for it) to shell out for it anyway. . . His is a letter that may jolt you a bit. . . So, read it and get jolted. . . If you start "em, we'll wager you'll read both letters through to the end. . . They may even stir the sediment in the bottom of your think-tank.

IN CASE you had forgotten about it, Pampa has another election coming up Tuesday. . . This time it's a no-contest election of a mayor and two city commissioners and it seems a downright shame that taxpayer money has to be wasted on holding it. . . For all practical purposes the election is already over. . . Everybody knows who's going to be elected because there is only one lone candidate for each post. . . It has been written before in this column that a no-contest election is kind of a bad state of affairs for any community. . . Not to take anything away from the three men who have filed (so far as we know they are all good men), we're still convinced that a no-choice election contributes nothing toward a healthy community

Apt Use of Biblical Phrase

Acceding to "many requests", the Post Office will include the words "In the beginning God . . ." on the forthcoming Apollo 8 stamp, which shows a view of the earth as seen from moon orbit.

The reading from the Genesis account of creation by the crew of Apollo 8 has become closely associated with the flight in the public mind, explained Postmaster General Blount and it seemed appropriate that this phrase should appear on the stamp that commemorates one of the most significant and dramatic events of our time.

There undoubtedly will be protests from the same people who are upset by religious themes on Christmas stamps. . . Rather than argue over whether the Apollo stamp represents one more crack in the wall of separation of church and state, however, perhaps we ought to ask ourselves whether the practice of public piety does not carry the danger of demeaning genuine religious feeling into mere religiosity.

The official proclamation, engraving or imprinting of pious words and quotations does not make a nation great. Indeed, there are historical examples to support the contention that the further a people advance along the road to decay the more punctilious they are about the hollow observance of religious ritualism.

There is no invocation of deity in the Constitution, although we know, of course, the attention the founding fathers gave the Creator, when they were busy with the task of writing the Constitution. America got along for half a century with the original Pledge of Allegiance before Congress ordered the words "under God" inserted. Interestingly enough, it is the first generation to grow up repeating the phrase every day in school that is causing its elders so much concern in the matters of morals and patriotism.

Instead of printing "Pray for Peace" across our envelopes in the belief that we have actually accomplished something, we might better remember that "God helps those who help themselves" — in the attainment of peace or anything else. "In the beginning God. . ." belongs on the Apollo stamp because the dramatic reading across 240,000 miles of space was part of the actual historical event.

Deepening Campus Disorders
The trouble at America's colleges and universities, far from lessening, has worsened markedly in the last few months. Virtual guerrilla warfare is in progress at San Francisco State University, where teachers have been assaulted and bombs have been planted. At the Berkeley campus of the University of California, it has been necessary to keep a large contingent of riot police at the ready for a lengthy period.

But the highly publicized difficulties at these institutions is only a small part of the story. Trouble is taking place or brewing at wide range in institutions, ranging from new urban colleges to famous old universities.

One of the most fantastic developments is taking place at Federal City College in the nation's capital. Black separatists are in a majority on the faculty, and normal academic life has been twisted into weird patterns. The college even teaches a course in "black mathematics," whatever that may be. Through the college has more than 30,000 books in its library, book circulation is running at only about 60 a week, indicating that little studying is taking place. Professors who want to teach are looking for other jobs. New professors are being recruited, not on the basis of academic credentials but on their records of involvement with black power groups.

The nation's institutions of higher education are paying the price for years of "permissiveness. Instead of cracking down on campus lawbreakers, college and university authorities have talked about establishing a "dialogue" with militant students. Naive administrators don't seem to realize that it is impossible to reason with anarchists and hoodlums. The word "hoodlum" is used advisedly, for some of the militants are raiding student activities fee accounts in order to finance their revolutionary action on campus. Investigation is underway at San Francisco State University that may lead to prosecutions for grand larceny.

In a few places, college authorities are beginning to take the stern attitude that is needed. The president of Notre Dame University has warned that law-breaking student demonstrators will be given 15 minutes to "meditate" and change their ways. Otherwise they will be expelled. If colleges had expelled riotous students, instead of suspending them for a short time, the situation would not be out of hand. No college or university should be a privileged sanctuary for anarchists and practitioners of civil disobedience.

In the case of the new Notre Dame policy, President Nixon hailed this policy as right and proper. Unfortunately, some college presidents and liberal commentators immediately criticized the President and Notre Dame. The Nixon Administration also has reported — and it is a highly encouraging development — that the Justice Department soon will take action against militant student agitators who cross state lines to foment riots. A sweeping investigation of campus militants is in order and overdue.

More than law is needed, however. What's essential is a reassertion of the rights and privileges of university authorities and a rebuke to self-important student radicals who presume to tell trustees and administrators what they should do. This kind of presumption was evident last month at the University of Virginia where something called the "Student Coalition" and a "human relations" chapter sought to dictate to the Board of Visitors at U.Va.

The leftist Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), in cooperation with the radical Southern Students Organizing Committee (SSOC), held a demonstration on the grounds of the university. Demonstrators presented a series of demands for removal of a member of the Board of Visitors, appointment of black faculty and administrators, and change in the university's pay scale for employees.

In short, the demonstrators made demands covering matters in which they have no competence or authority. The demonstration was followed up

Sino-Soviet Battle of Words The Significant Clash to Watch

ROBERT ALLEN JOHN GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — With its bombastic anti-China propaganda, based on recent Sino-Soviet border clashes, the Kremlin is trying to give another black eye to Mao Tse-tung and check his world ambitions.

That is the preliminary judgment of Kremlinologists here who have been carefully studying the recent border hostilities and their repercussions in Peking and Moscow. The experts are inclined to view the Kremlin propaganda as a part of Moscow's continuing attempts to downgrade Mao as a leader of world communism.

From the beginning it has been the propaganda that has engaged the experts here more than the border incidents themselves. Because of its scope and intensity, the propaganda has overshadowed the fighting as a matter of interest.

That is because animosities have ebbed and flowed for centuries along the Sino-Soviet border, but the publicizing of them by the two Communist giants with resulting massive demonstrations in both nations, is something new and different.

One theory is that Kremlin leaders, faced with hostilities of a size which could not be entirely hushed-up, simply decided to go the other way and stimulate public interest in the fighting — with appropriate commentary, of course, on "Mao Tse-tung and his clique" as the instigators of it all.

The Clearing House

Articles for this column are preferred to be 300 words or less in length. However longer articles may be printed. All letters must be signed.

Editor:
The voters approved a $900,000 bond issue to finance projects for the local school system. I wonder how much this will turn out to be. Anybody ever try to figure out what it will finally cost by the time the interest and original amount is paid in full? Isn't deficit financing wonderful?

More than two-thirds of the voters were for it, less than one third against it. (1,336 for, 575 against). Everyone had their freedom of choice, did they not? What choice had the 575 who voted against it? Absolutely none. Isn't freedom of choice wonderful?

God's law says, "Thou shalt not steal." But 1,336 voted to steal from 575 in the form of higher taxes inflicted on the 575 against their will, all in the name of "public good" (welfare). Isn't progress wonderful?

These people will continue to go to church as though they had done nothing wrong and they will continue to call themselves Christians and spell it with a capital C. Isn't Christianity wonderful?

Let a man steal a loaf of bread to feed his hungry children. What happens? He will be put away; he is not fit for Christian society! But the truth is, had the society been Christian and not robbed the man in one way or another to finance a government to control and regulate that Christian it is still news. Pot smoking is going on everywhere. What the FCC is trying to do is just get another foot in the door so they can suppress anything they don't like concerning news coverage or, more bluntly, "the truth."

They already have an ax over the head of broadcasting in the fact they can pull a broadcaster's license if they wish to. Stations should not, by constitutional right, be licensed at all, this being a direct threat to freedom of speech.

A lot of people are concerned about that set-up "Radio Free Europe." They ought to get more concerned about "Radio Free America."

Could It Be Natives Are Growing a Bit Restless?

By PAUL HARVEY
This column has considered criticism of the Nixon Administration premature, inappropriate.

President Nixon, campaigning, promised to resolve the wireless war, firm the dollar, counter increasing crime. There is no way any President could accomplish all these ambitious objectives in a few weeks.

Nonetheless, the natives are growing restless. Increasingly in my travels I am overhearing such intentional slurs as: "Richard Milhous Johnson. . ."

"He's just continuing the discredited Johnson policy in Vietnam!"
Rumbles of restiveness are heard on the Hill, too.

In the first 10 months after we curtailed bombing and started talking in Paris 10,000 more Americans were killed. Heretofore when anybody has criticized President Nixon's Vietnam policies, Sen. Mike Mansfield has tried to restrain the critics. Now he has joined them. Now Sen. Mansfield says the President "must do something to end the fighting."

President Nixon is not unkind of the dissent. "I can say from having campaigned this country that the American people are terribly frustrated about this war and they would welcome any initiative that they thought could appropriately bring it to an end on some reasonable basis."

Mr. Nixon wants the war to end. With the disengagement of American forces in Vietnam, our dollar drain would diminish with resultant tax relief and peace.

Much disruption of campuses and crime in the streets derive from the military draft; peace of Kremlin leaders. Peking attacks "the Soviet revisionist renegade clique."

An English language broadcast from Peking begins: "The Soviet Union today is under the rule of fascist white terror."

society, the man would not have been forced to steal the bread at all!
Take the whole bit called education. We lament the sad state of the uneducated. But I notice they are not so stupid as to fire all their wealth up into the sky and expend all their energies and resources running around through the atmosphere going absolutely nowhere and doing absolutely nothing. And I notice they are not expending all they can get their hands on trying to curb crime in their midst. Criminals are not born; they are "educated." Isn't education wonderful?
All the educated nations are armed to the teeth. Why? To protect themselves from the other educated nations. Given an army, what will you do with it? What else but wage war? There is nothing else you can do with it. Isn't civilization wonderful?
Education has produced this monstrous thing of nuclear weaponry. Who knows what to do with it? Nobody. Even if everyone agreed to do away with it (which they will never do) there is no way to safely dispose of it. What, then, is the inevitable consequence? Annihilation. Isn't government wonderful?
"Cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from the Lord." Jeremiah 17:5.
Where is any hope but in God? The secret of the world is the non-existence of its gods. It is truly remarkable how men cling to their myths, worship their idols and die in the chains of a slavery which they have themselves instituted, chains forged by their own hands. Sweet freedom! Where has it gone? Are our non-existent gods not wonderful?
I was extremely gratified at the results of the March 25 school bond election and particularly pleased at the large turnout of voters, as I am sure all the thinking people of our city are. However, I also believe that it is now time for our school administration and our school board to take a long hard look at the quality of our teaching personnel.
As an ex-school teacher and a graduate of Pampa High School, I am most concerned at the number of teachers we have employed who seem to have little, if any, interest, in the children they teach. At one time our school system was far above the other schools in the state of Texas (in my estimation.) From my personal viewpoint I can point to the fact that my freshman year in college was extremely easy for me due to the excellent background I received at Pampa High School. I do not believe this is so now. Discipline in many classrooms is also poor, I find.
Perhaps we have weighted down our teachers with too many extra-curricular activities, involved them in too many political maneuvers — I do not know. But I do know that no longer is there much effort made to help individual students. As a working mother (from necessity), I find that it is next to impossible to have a personal conference with my son's teacher. All I know about his attitudes in class and his progress is the record of grades at the end of each six weeks, and perhaps a short impersonal note on the back of his report card.
I find that each elementary school is composed of a separate little dynasty headed by the principal. He is lord of all he surveys and resents any infringement upon his authority. This was brought sharply to my attention through activities with a local civic club some years ago — but the condition still exists, I am told.
I should like to see Pampa students again recognized as far above average when they enroll in college. Can't we make an extra effort to secure dedicated teachers who believe in a strong teacher-student relationship? Please, Mr. Superintendent and Board of Education members, do some research and investigation into this matter. Good educational facilities will do little good if we do not educate our children.

Rowan And Martin Can Handle Exploding Stardom Graciously

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Stardom like a rodeo bronc is virtually impossible to handle gracefully—the star becomes an instant pain in the neck.
A happy exception: Dan Rowan and Dick Martin.

The comedy team, which exploded to stardom with television's "Rowan and Martin Laugh-In" after 16 years of muted success in night clubs and video guest appearances, is now as hot a property as show business has to offer.

Thanks to the instant electronic medium, the partners weren't forced to achieve stardom by stages as in the old Broadway way-to-radio-to-movies route followed by Durante, Hope and other comedians.

Instead their No. 1 rated comedy hour elevated them from middling well-known to super stardom—seen by more persons every Monday night than ever saw W. C. Field in his entire career.

Busy Co-Starring
Now Dan and Dick are busy co-starring in "The Maltese Bippy" at MGM, their first movie since a disastrous comedy, "Once Upon A Horse" at Universal, a dozen years ago.

Rowan and Martin are sought after for appearances at every benefit across the country. Spurious awards are given them just in the hope the boys will show up and provide an hour's free entertainment.

The phalanx of Hollywood hand-holders and parasites flock around them like insects around a summer lantern.

Through it all both men have maintained their cool. They know where it's at. If the show folded tomorrow the "Humanitarian Award of the Year" from a dozen dim-witted organizations would evaporate. The Hollywood sycophants would retire to the woodwork.

To keep their lives and careers in perspective, Dan and Dick have made it their policy to refuse, with thanks, "awards" banquets and other personal appearances where they are expected to perform gratis.

Rowan and Martin as individuals are as different as former partners Jerry Lewis and Dean Martin. In private life they go their separate ways. Dan is happily married. Dick is happily single.

Rowan probably would object, but he is best described as an intellectual. Although raised in an orphanage, he is an omnivorous reader and facile at communicating his ideas. His wife, an Australian beauty named Adriana, makes them one of the handsomest couples in town.

Dan is well aware "The Maltese Bippy" will not make the world forget "Ben-Hur."

But it is a case of striking while the iron is hot. Rowan and Martin are running a shoestring movie outfit. Dan said during a shooting break. "We've changed our images. In the picture I'm more dumb than Dick. Our whole relationship is different. I'm working at my role like an actor, not a comedian. And I don't think there's a sense of team' in the story. Dick and I don't even have many scenes together."

NEW YORK (UPI) — The live broadcast of ceremonies involving the annual Emmy awards of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences will come from Carnegie Hall in New York and the Civic Auditorium in Santa Monica, Calif. CBS carries the show June 8.
Garry Moore returns to television as a regular in September although he will be in a syndicated rather than a network show. He will be host of a revived version of the "To Tell the Truth" game program, which ran for 12 seasons as a network attraction.
NBC and Walt Disney Productions will co-produce this year a spectacular entertainment for touring the country's largest arenas and auditoriums to be called "Cavalcade of Disney." It will consist of a combination of actors in person and segments from Disney films, drawing for material on the huge bank of Disney theater and television entertainments over the years.
