

Six-Foot Chain-Link Fence Divides Fort Worth

FORT WORTH (UPI) — A 6-foot chain-link fence stretches light eleven blocks along the western edge of a dusty yellow limestone street in Fort Worth.

The fence, until recently topped with three strands of barbed wire, stands between two distinct communities in the southwestern section of Texas' fourth largest city — one black, one white.

On one side is Como, an 11-by-20-block neighborhood of middle and lower class Negroes. Small brick and stone homes with well cared for lawns dot the area, but most dwellings are of wood, often with littered yards and paint-peeled walls.

Farther south where a field of broom sage and bushes slopes half a mile to the Texas and Pacific Railway tracks, a rooster crows and the dwellings are rural shanties.

On the other side of the 6-foot fence are neat apartments and homes where white housewives hang laundry and sunbathe. Farther still are the manicured greens and rolling fairways of Ridglea Country Club.

"You know, when people put up a fence they usually are trying to keep somebody out," said Mrs. Floyd Hudson, a Negro resident of Como. "All our doctors and dentists and shops are over there in Ridglea and it does inconvenience us."

The fence was raised in the late 1940s or early 1950s when the apartments were built on the northern side of the dusty road.

"Some of us feel it is a wall of segregation built during the years of extreme segregation to segregate black from white," said Mrs. Lawrence Alaman, a Como ivic leader.

"It is a known fact that Como is the only thing that keeps the west side of Fort Worth from being lily white," Mrs. Alaman said.

On one side of the fence, pig-tailed black children make playgrounds of their streets. Men in undershirts push lawn mowers across sparse grass. Heavy women sweep front walks and young men in Afro haircuts gather in the shade to talk of things to come.

On a hot summer morning, the black community is quiet and some of its residents feel fear.

"Some of us feel they are trying to do away with Como," Mrs. Alaman said. "It would be much nicer to have streets through Ridglea."

"We feel like we are sitting in a pocket completely apart from the city of Fort Worth, down in this little hole and only two streets to get out," she said.

Mrs. Alaman contends that some land dealers want to get control of lake and riverfront land in Como, upgrade it and sell it to more affluent families at higher price.

Como is bounded on the east by Lake Como and a stream that runs from it southward into the winding Clear Fork of the Trinity. Beyond that lie the green lawns and large homes surrounding Colonial Country Club. Further to the south stands Amon Carter Stadium, where Texas- Christian University plays football.

Any child who climbs the log barrier at the end of a dead-end street in eastern Como and looks out to the east, can see all these. Ten feet beyond the barrier the land drops off into a steeply sloped mile-wide valley.

To the north automobiles rear back and forth along Camp Bowie Boulevard 24 hours a day carrying people to and from the city. A minimum of streets open out of Como into the thoroughfare.

To the west is Guilford Road and a 6-foot iron fence. It is to this western boundary, an 11-block stretch through which no streets run, that the latest feelings of Negro frustration have concentrated.

The brick walls and clotheslined back yards of two large apartment complexes, owned by the Federal Housing Administration and the Teamsters Union, stand just west of the fence.

The rear of most of the apartments and their backyards face Guilford and the fence, and on a hot summer morning white children play in swings and swimming pools. Mothers keep close watch.

"They all want it left up for their children," said a white apartment manager of the fence. "That street is on their backyards and there are over 40 children back there."

"They say, well, this is private property and they have a right to a fence just like anybody," the Negro woman said.

"We're not concerned whether it is a backyard fence. We're concerned about what it does to our frontyards."

She said some Como residents objected to the fence when it was built about 20 years ago. But she said that was "back when Negroes didn't go before the City Council too much."

Fort Worth City Manager Howard McMahan said the fence affects the people on both its sides.

"For many persons, white and black, the fence or wall behind the apartment complexes facing Westridge Avenue not only physically but also symbolically separates one community from another," McMahan said.

The first steps toward modifying the fence were made, ironically, by two white men who complained about having to drive around Como. On the basis of those complaints, the city called a community meeting in Como.

"We initiated this," said David Farrington, assistant city manager. "This was the first time any colored people had expressed opinions one way or the other. We had a vote and some didn't care to see the fence removed, some did."

Farrington said the majority voting favored some streets and walkways through the fence.

As a result, "One street will be opened through the middle of the area and a contract has been let to open one at the far end," he said.

Both Negroes and whites seemed at least partially to approve the new streets, but a walkway, one yard wide and fenced on both sides, has pleased neither group.

"If they want to put streets through, I don't see why they shouldn't have them," said Mike

Demato, a white architect living in West Ridge Villa. "But letting them walk through the backyard and look in the windows, well...it's like private property. You can't leave your kids out there to get kidnaped, and if they (Negroes) walk a dog through there they (children) could get bit," he said. "My wife and her girlfriends don't like to sunbathe out there anymore."

The walk runs between the two complexes and from its steps the backdoors and windows of more than 100 apartments are visible.

"I don't think much of it, they still put a fence all along it," Mrs. Alaman said.

Farrington said any more openings in the fence would require tearing down expensive buildings. He defended the fence on grounds of new planning policy.

"Nowadays on present planning standards we have residential blocks 1,600 feet long and they are not considered bad," he said. "We try to discourage through traffic in residential neighborhoods."

With only one outlet to the north and one to the south, traffic through Como is definitely discouraged.

Sometime this summer two holes will be cut in the fence and Negroes will have access to the west.

"We want to leave it that way, and see how everybody feels about it — if it seems to satisfy the problems," Farrington said.

Rioting Breaks Out In Southern California City

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Sniping, arson and looting broke out in the mostly Negro Logan Heights district after police attempted to arrest a man for throwing rocks in a city park.

One man was killed when he attempted to hold up a grocery store in the troubled Southeast section of the city and the owner shot him in the chest with a shotgun. The victim was Willard Tracy Bryan, 27.

Sporadic looting and sniping continued until about 2 a.m. today following the initial outbreak in Mountain View Park just before dark. Police used tear gas to break up the crowd. Small groups then roamed the area, throwing rocks and bottles at police.

At least 64 persons were arrested, including 23 juveniles, and five were booked on suspicion of attempted murder. Three civilians were wounded by gunfire, including 5-year-old Sidney Cisneros of Phoenix, Ariz., who was treated for a graze wound in the head.

Firemen battled three major fires and 70 lesser blazes believed deliberately set in buildings and grassy areas. A department store was robbed of two rifles, 13 pistols and almost all the ammunition in stock.

Looters broke into a men's clothing store in the College Grove Shopping Center.

GOURMET THIEF

FOLKESTONE, England (UPI) — Britain's first international snail race, scheduled Thursday, was in doubt today.

Somebody stole two dozen participating snails.

"I can't possibly think who could have taken them or what use they could be to anyone other than a Frenchman," race organizer Connie Lythgoe said.

Dear Abby

By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently moved into a very nice, one-bedroom apartment which we furnished ourselves.

Last evening some neighbors we hardly know stopped by for a drink, and the woman says, "You said you were going away on a two-week vacation in September, so would you mind if we used your apartment for some friends who will be visiting us at that time?"

Before I could open my mouth, my husband said yes (after two martinis). I could have brained him.

After they left I told my husband I didn't want strangers using our apartment, and I feel I owed our neighbors that kind of favor.

My husband says he thinks I'm right, and now he's sorry he said yes, but he hasn't the guts to tell them we've changed our minds. Well, I haven't got the guts to tell them either, but I don't want to turn this apartment over to strangers, so what do you suggest?

office manager say a few words to job hunters?

For the past week I have been interviewing girls for the job of "typist" in an office, and I am absolutely amazed at what I have seen and heard.

One girl applied for the job in capri pants, sneakers, and carrying her poodle. Another came in faded jeans with her hair in great big rollers! One even came in a see-through blouse. And she had a cigarette in her mouth the whole time.

Some women have the attitude that they are doing you a favor just offering themselves for employment. Others don't seem to care whether they get the job or not.

The help wanted ad in the newspaper stated the hours, typing speed, and all the details of the job, and you'd be surprised at the number of girls who didn't want to work "those hours," and so help me, some said they couldn't type! Now, why did they bother to apply?

DEAR AMAZED: Because, believe it or not, some people apply for a job hoping they won't get it.

DEAR ABBY: To "HER MOM," who was heartsick because her daughter confessed that she was pregnant, and all the elaborate plans for a lovely church wedding had to be canceled.

Our daughter had the same problem, but she solved it another way. She went ahead and had the big church wedding as scheduled, and after 10 years of a childless marriage, we learned the truth.

Not wishing to disappoint their parents and cause a scandal, she and the boy she loved decided on an illegal abortion.

Mom, be glad your daughter had enough faith in you to confide. I know how heartsick you were to have to cancel all those wedding plans. I can also imagine how embarrassed you felt before your friends and relatives. But please, don't hold it against your child. Forgive her. You'll be glad you did.

DEAR OAK: No, it's not customary, but it's good insurance against losing a valued employe. And she probably mentioned it to you because she hoped you'd take the hint.

DEAR ABBY: May a tired

Your Horoscope

JEANE DIXON

THURSDAY, JULY 17

Your birthday Thursday: This year is going to engender a little too much in many respects. It is up to you to determine the direction and the extent of excess, and even more important, the conversion of chaotic pressures into positive results. Thursday's natives are usually patients, interested in occult experience, and possess theatrical talent.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Thursday nobody seems willing to hear from you; make allowances. You will be happy if you force no issue, sad if you do.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cooperation is upset Thursday by emotional strain. Learn to accept the annoyances until you work things out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Squabbles can spread into full-scale quarrels if you pursue them. Use great care with sharp tools or anything which is hot.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Unsettled conditions may include some effort to exploit you. Your wariness will protect you, but some of your most careful plans may suffer.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Pride and impatience can get you into a losing transaction Thursday; back out or stay away from it. Tensions with associates turn out to be reflections of your own insecurity and are better not projected into spoken demands.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Temperamental behavior gets you nowhere Thursday. A fair request yields a fair answer. Much better results are obtained if you focus your mind on positive thoughts rather than letting matters drift.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Close relatives or people who share the roads with you are all apt to be difficult. Diplomacy has its rewards, just as careful driving does.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be sure you know all conditions before you enter a new situation now. Strong unseen forces at work Thursday add a qualifying factor to all dealings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You tend to get into everybody's way Thursday and to resent being told. Maintain a calm surface and express your tensions privately.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Advice of friends could lead to complicated situations which would take you a long time to unravel. Group money should be left untouched. The conservative approach is the only feasible path.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): It is easy to irritate people Thursday. Seek a mild or neutral approach until somebody becomes troublesome, then simply confront him with his own aggressions.

The oldest American-made clock still standing is in Guilford, Conn., where it was installed in the town meeting house by Ebenezer Parmelee in 1728. So reports "The Complete Encyclopedia of Antiques."

Accidents killed nearly 30,000 people over 65 years of age last year, reports the National Safety Council. In addition, accidents are the first cause of crippling for older Americans.

Get Rid Of Silver Fish By Using Plain Borax

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — We had the same problem with silver fish as Beatrice. Sprinkle plain borax in corners, under shelf paper, on the floor under built-in drawers (as in kitchen and bathrooms) that you have pulled out. If chests have dust bottoms, sprinkle borax under those drawers, too. If the infestation is very bad, put borax about five inches back under the edges of rugs. After the silver fish have disappeared it can be vacuumed away. This was most successful for me.

—ELIZABETH

DEAR READERS — Some professionals feel this treatment is more of a repellent than a cure. Another powder that can be sprinkled around to eliminate these pests who thrive in warm, damp places and who love books, paper and starched fabrics is sodium fluoride. Do remember that it is POISON and would not be recommended where there were children and pets who might get to it.

—POLLY

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY — I have several pretty stones that were picked up on the beach and would like to use them as paper weights, door stops, etc. Do you know how fairly large beach stones can be ground and polished with home equipment?

—JEAN

DEAR POLLY — When putting pennies into a wrapper from the bank, insert a round-headed clothespin in one end. Start pennies in the other and draw the pin back as you put more pennies in the wrapper. Seal end with tape; remove clothespin and the remaining pennies go in very easily.

—MRS. E.M.B.

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. B. V. K. wanted to know how to protect the white wool embroidery on her wall hanging. The best protection, of course, is to put it under glare-proof glass which is a bit more expensive than ordinary glass. If left uncovered, the more beautiful way to display this work is to use a water-repellent spray such as directed for a similar type of fabric. This would greatly reduce the penetration of dust and simplify dusting with a very soft brush. These sprays come in pressurized cans under various trade names.

Gardening Specialists Offer Suggestions To Solve Mid-Season Planting Problems

CLEVELAND, Ohio — By mid season, gardening problems become all too apparent. Often the solution is easier than you think. Nature hates bare spots in lawns or gardens. When you don't plant grass or other plants, nature provides you with weeds. Check lawns for bare spots now. But don't expect to throw seeds on and get good grass. Rake away weeds, thatch, debris. Spade or fork under the soil a few inches. Add a handful of fertilizer and rake it in. Sprinkle good seed on the area, farm it down and water. A right mulch helps hold moisture until the barren spot is green with permanent, deep-rooted grass again. Heavy shades gives us all problems. Try shade tolerant grasses, such as red fescue, poa trivialis or roughstalk bluegrass. Fertilize grass more frequently at twice the normal rate. Remember that trees need food, too. Punch holes at 2-foot intervals in concentric circles starting 2 feet from the trunk outward.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — During the past fortnight, it fell lot to make a cross-country drive in company with a middle-aged woman, a teen-age girl, a 7-year-old boy and a 1-year-old baby.

You might think that the stomachs, kidneys and somnolent habits of a group as diverse as this would be wildly uncoordinated. But such was not the case.

It all blended into a rhythmic pattern which worked out something like this:

8 a.m.—Begin journey.

8:11 a.m.—Baby becomes fretful.

8:15 a.m.—Woman starts trying to get baby to sleep.

9 a.m.—Baby goes to sleep.

9:04 a.m.—Boy announces he needs to go to bathroom.

9:05 a.m.—Driver berates boy for not going to bathroom before trip started. Boy claims he was prevented from doing so by driver's insistence that everyone be in car by 8 a.m. Woman verifies boy's claim.

9:08 a.m.—Stop at service station to let boy go to bathroom. Stopping of car causes baby to wake up.

9:13 a.m.—Resume journey.

9:14 a.m.—Baby becomes fretful.

9:15 a.m.—Woman begins trying to get baby to sleep again.

10 a.m.—Baby goes back to sleep.

10:04 a.m.—Teen-age girl announces she is starving.

10:05 a.m.—Driver berates girl for not eating breakfast before trip began. Girl claims she was prevented from doing this by driver's insistence that everyone be in car by 8 a.m. Woman verifies girl's claim.

10:08 a.m.—Stop at drive-in restaurant to let girl get cheeseburger for breakfast. Stopping of car causes baby to wake up.

10:23 a.m.—Resume journey.

10:24 a.m.—Baby becomes fretful.

10:25 a.m.—Woman begins trying to get baby to sleep.

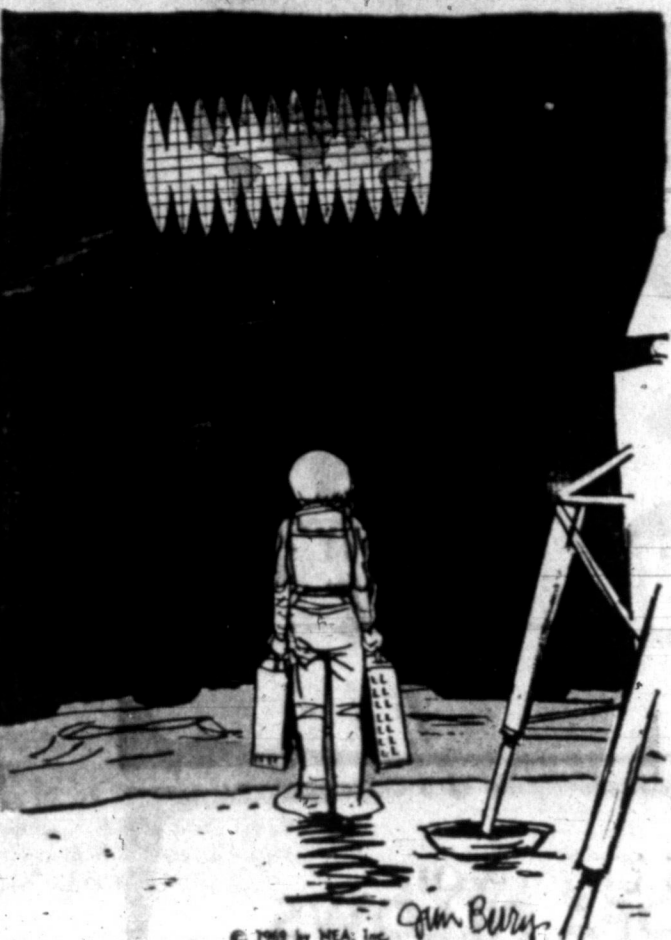

11 a.m.—Baby goes to sleep.

11:04 a.m.—Boy announces he is dying of thirst.

11:08 a.m.—Stop car at service station to let boy get drink of water. Stopping of car causes baby to wake up.

11:11 a.m.—Finally reach city limits and begin cross-country drive.

NEW YORK (UPI)—A selling confusion and uncertainty, the climax would put a definite period to this intermediate decline, which gives no sign of any rally at the moment, said Bache & Co.

The firm advised investors to utilize an attitude of selectivity and not to "ignore value when it presents itself, despite the condition of the overall market."

Low volume during the early July advance reinforced the view that it was a purely technical rebound from a deeply oversold condition, said Glorie Forgan, Wm. R. Staats Inc. Over the near term, the firm said, periods of weakness will be considered buying opportunities.

The early July rally "bombed out, rather than fizzled out," said W. E. Hutton & Co. "The constant bickering in Congress, the inability to compromise quickly, and the lack of confidence that the policies being pursued or proposed are the right ones to correct economic ills add up to "The confusion caused by the administration's commitment to a lower level of stock prices is by no means limited to yesterday's limping swingers. An experienced cross-section of responsible opinion is accustomed to working on the assumption that the market is a leading indicator for the economy—just because money conditions are a leading indicator for the market," said the Janeway Service.

Back in 1955, the West German government instituted what became known as the Hallstein Doctrine. It held that any country recognizing East Germany had committed an unfriendly act toward the West German Federal Republic.

The implied threat was that West Germany then would break off its own relations with the offending country.

The only exception was to be the Soviet Union.

So well did it work that until this year only 13 Communist countries recognized the East German regime headed by chief of state Walter Ulbricht.

It worked for two reasons, the goodwill of West Germany's partners in the Atlantic alliance and West Germany's enormous economic strength as compared to the East.

It began falling apart as East Germany emerged as an economic power in its own right and as nations not directly involved in the East-West struggle lost their fear of West German retaliation.

On May 7, Iraq became the first of the Arab states to break the line, even though West Germany is its second biggest trading partner.

Cambodia followed less than a week later, first of the Asian states.

Then came the Sudan, Syria, South Yemen and finally the United Arab Republic.

The story is one of tangled logic and tangled international politics in which the United States played a role.

Among the Arab states it began in February, 1965, when West Germany bowed to threats of UAR President Gamal Abdel Nasser. He declared he would recognize East Germany if the remainder of an $80 million deal to deliver 200 M-48 Patton tanks to Israel were not cancelled. The German had made the deal at the suggestion of the United States.

Member nations of the Arab league also warned they would break relations with West Germany if it should extend diplomatic recognition to Israel.

Two of them did when on May 13, 1965, Bonn and Israel established formal diplomatic relations. It was the Hallstein policy in reverse.

The latest moves are an undeniable victory for Ulbricht but it was not cheap. Loans and credits to Iraq will amount to around $60 million. Egypt has received about the same in credits and technical aid.

That Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller found out on his recent Latin American tours was that a great many of the more than 220 million people living south of the border dislike us more than we had thought.

Six persons died during the governor's violence-studded visit to 20 nations—a youth in Tegucigalpa, Honduras; a labor leader in Buenos Aires, Argentina and four in Santo Domingo, the Dominican Republic, the victims of trigger-happy guards.

Two nations, Venezuela and Chile, cancelled the Rockefeller visit out of fear of violence.

Peru, involved with the United States in a dispute over expropriation of American property and fishing rights, also cancelled, finding the visit not timely.

In the United States the question rose whether the Rockefeller learn-and-listen tour ever should have been undertaken at all.

A Caracas, Venezuela, radio station demanded to know how the governor and his score of aides could learn anything not already know in a few hours.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The greatest show on earth—namely, the televised arrival of man on the moon this weekend—is getting all the trimmings from the video networks.

NBC-TV, in prime time Sunday night, will broadcast a four-hour program "from across the nation and around the world" during the rest period of the astronauts on the luna surface, before they step out on the moon.

Danny Kaye, John Chancellor and Aline Saarinen will be hosts of the program, which will include dramatic readings, music, an examination of man's romance with the moon through the centuries and a perspective on the pursuit into space.

Participating will be performers Van Heflin, Julie Harris, Orbach and Beverly Sills. Others invited to take part include poet Rod McKuen; writer-critic Marya Mannes; Michael O'Riordan, author of "The Andromeda Strain"; John R. Pierce and Frederik student James Simon Kunen.

who wrote "The Strawberry Statement" and Thomas P. F. Hoving, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City.

The international switching around will include live satellite feeds from London and Hawaii as well as segments from the Newport, R.I., Folk Music Festival where Pete Seeger will entertain, and from Los Angeles' Hollywood Bowl where singer Lou Rawls will perform.

CBS-TV, meanwhile, with Walter Cronkite as anchorman, will offer instant broadcasting from 31 locations in 13 nations, including "The first live television from Black Africa (Uganda) and coverage from behind the Iron Curtain (Yugoslavia)."

ABC-TV, in its latest announcement, says it will offer a panel discussion moderated by Rod Serling ("The Twilight Zone"), and featuring three noted writers of science and science-fiction: Isaac Asimov, John R. Pierce and Frederik student James Simon Kunen.

Backstairs At White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon is demonstrating a curious aspect of the nation's highest office that has affected other chief executives before him.

Here is the curiosity: No matter how big and luxurious the White House may be, it comes to have a certain stifling effect on the chief executive.

One president after another has complained that if it is known he will be working in his big oval office, he then has to see more visitors than he would prefer; take more telephone calls and literally, get less work done.

One President Lyndon B. Johnson had a tiny room off the oval office to which he would retreat when he wanted to get away from the burdens and annoyances of sitting behind the big desk. President John F. Kennedy had a similar set-up into which he would duck and dial his own telephone calls.

Nixon now has started to use a three-room suite set up across the street from the White House in the Executive Office Building (EOB). He uses this suite primarily for smaller staff conferences, and also, it places him periodically closer to a large part of his executive establishment that is not housed in the White House proper (such as the National Security Council staff, the Council of Economic Advisers and the budget bureau).

"There is a little less activity here," he says of his new office suite. "It is almost like being at Camp David. It isn't that I cannot keep people out of the oval office if I have to, but they always feel they have to come in."

The so-called branch office is considerably more personalized than his formal office, thanks largely to decor supervised by Mrs. Nixon, including a couch, coffee table, easy chairs for more informal conversations, plus a desk once used by President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Thus, status-happy Washington has a new symbol, being asked to confer with the President in his EOB hideaway. Thus far, he has not called in many, if any outsiders. And that, in fact, is the whole idea of the branch office.

More concessions? North Vietnamese and Viet Cong officials are denying so insistently American claims that they have lowered significantly their military activity in the South that some observers are asking whether the sudden calm will not be followed by a storm of new Communist attacks. Hanoi and Viet Cong diplomats say they expect their leadership to offer no concession at the Paris peace talks.

They are backing their contention with new warnings they will go on fighting until final victory—thus indicating the 23-week-old peace talks will remain deadlocked unless the Allies make the next concessionary move.

until next spring at the earliest. Even then the price will be high.

Money back: Those acquainted with the chaotic Mideastern situation are wondering whether Israel will demand reimbursement of the $60 million paid for the $9 Mirage jet fighter-bombers ordered from the Marcel Dassault Aircraft Company following the new French government's refusal to lift its embargo on them. President Pompidou has said all his government eventually would consider was a resumption of the shipment of light military equipment and spare parts to the Middle East—if the situation warrants it.

Not good for Britain: Common Market diplomats say a great deal of water will flow under the Seine River bridges before France's new government agrees to open new negotiations with Britain on her bid for entry. The diplomats said President Georges Pompidou's July 10 news conference demand that the six first must complete and then strengthen their community before considering Britain's entry had put off negotiations with London.

Highlights And Sidelights From The State Capitol

By-VERN SANFORD

Texas Press Association
ADJUSTERS—Stiff resistance is forming to a proposed 11.4 per cent average private auto insurance rate hike.
 Gov. Preston Smith promised a "full scale" investigation of soaring rates after State Insurance Board rate experts recommended the new increase.
 Smith said the proposal "borders on catastrophe" and the "car insurance situation" has become intolerable for many of our citizens. Governor announced an early meeting with insurance company executives and said he is considering appointment of a select panel of citizens outside the industry to make a thorough study and recommendations.
 Board rate authorities blamed the increase on the number and cost of auto accidents. Labor cost for repairs, in particular, was emphasized.
 Recommendations and testimony at the public hearing will be reviewed by the board before August 1. New rates will take effect with policies written or renewed on or after September 1.
 Liability rates, under staff recommendation, would go up 5.5 per cent. (Bodily injury coverage actually would be reduced 3.7 per cent, but property damage would increase 21.4 per cent).
 Collision insurance would increase 17.5 per cent.
 Comprehensive coverage for physical damage would climb 24.9 per cent.
 Commercial vehicles, with better safety records, would get lower rates. Figuring all classes of vehicles, the statewide average increase would be 9.2 per cent under staff recommendations.
 Insurance company spokesmen urged even higher increases, but AFL-CIO spokesmen argued for reduction, rather than raise.
 "An automobile is an absolute necessity in our current society, and, I, for one, do not intend to sit idly by and see it priced into a position of being a luxury," said Smith.
TREASURE HUNT CAUSES RUCKUS—A story which began in 1533 still is one of the state's headline items.
 Lawsuits, sharp exchanges between state officials and threatened impeachment proceedings raged over what should be done with the treasure recovered from a Spanish galleon which sank in a storm off Padre Island more than 400 years ago.

 Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler incurred the ire of a legislative committee earlier when he declined to cooperate with members probing his agreement with the Gary, Ind., firm of Platoro, Inc. Sadler's proposal was to salvage artifacts from the sunken ship and divide the loot 50-50 with the state.
 Sadler announced that he had recovered all the articles taken from the galleon by Platoro and has them in his custody. He got a court order temporarily restraining Platoro from further salvage operations which firm, according to Secretary of State Martin Dies, engaged in the Padre treasure hunt without the proper state permit.
 District judge at Corpus Christi postponed a hearing on disposition of the treasure until after the special legislative session. Meanwhile, he named a committee to determine if the Gary salvage firm still has some of the treasure and, if so, how to get it back. Serving on the committee are Col. Wilson E. Speir, director of the Department of Public Safety, Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin, and Ed Harie, Corpus Christi publisher.
 State Rep. Jake Johnson of San Antonio threatened impeachment of Sadler over his contract with Platoro.
DEER HUNTING LONGER—Longest deer hunting season yet has been set by the Parks and Wildlife Commission.
 Season will open on the morning of November 8 and continue until sunset on January 1, 1970.
 Commission agreed to reduce the white wing dove season drastically. Shooting will be permitted only on one weekend in September, since experts reported the dove population down 20 per cent from last year.
ELECTION FILINGS COMPLETE—Nine candidates filed for the House of Representatives in District 73 in the July 22 special election to pick a successor to Rep. R. G. (Randy) Pendleton of Andrews. Candidates for the Andrews, Dawson, Gaines, Lynn, Martin and Yoakum counties spot are: Raymond G. Burton, Jim Clack, Jack R. Cook, and Jerry D. Mitchell, all of Andrews; E. L. Short of Tahoka; Ray Trent of Denver City; Delbert R. Warren of Seminole and S. W. Wheeler of Stanton. Applications of two others, who did not file within the deadline, were rejected.

COURTS SPEAK—A patient can still collect on a hospital insurance policy, even if most of his expenses are paid by Medicare, says the State Supreme Court in agreeing with the appellate court in an Abilene case.
 A serum company is liable for damages in the death of 25 registered calves in Ochiltree County, says the Supreme Court in backing a trial court. Court found that antibiotic given the calves for respiratory ailment was unfit for use.
 A Waco seed company's failure to protest its tax assessment before the board of equalization did not deprive it of the right to challenge the valuation in court, the High Court said in a decision upholding the Waco Court of Civil Appeals but reversing the trial court.
 Supreme Court has agreed to hear an application by the El Paso Times on a libel case by a former UT-El Paso professor. Dr. Richard Trexler claims he was libeled by a letter published in the Times. Trial court found no actual malice or damages, but the appeals court said the jury got the wrong definition of actual malice and ordered a retrial, which the Times appealed.
 Court upheld an appeals decision that Deaf Smith County landowner Vada White and others would have to start over in a land condemnation suit involving Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America.
 Dallas man, convicted of slaying a school girl, got a new trial by order of the Court of Criminal Appeals, because his lawyers were not given an advance list of prospective jurors.
 Court of Criminal Appeals reversed conviction of a Galveston man for possessing narcotics paraphernalia because the trial court permitted testimony on information given the police by a drug buyer.

proceedings raged over what should be done with the treasure recovered from a Spanish galleon which sank in a storm off Padre Island more than 400 years ago.
 Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler incurred the ire of a legislative committee earlier when he declined to cooperate with members probing his agreement with the Gary, Ind., firm of Platoro, Inc. Sadler's proposal was to salvage artifacts from the sunken ship and divide the loot 50-50 with the state.
 Sadler announced that he had recovered all the articles taken from the galleon by Platoro and has them in his custody. He got a court order temporarily restraining Platoro from further salvage operations which firm, according to Secretary of State Martin Dies, engaged in the Padre treasure hunt without the proper state permit.
 District judge at Corpus Christi postponed a hearing on disposition of the treasure until after the special legislative session. Meanwhile, he named a committee to determine if the Gary salvage firm still has some of the treasure and, if so, how to get it back. Serving on the committee are Col. Wilson E. Speir, director of the Department of Public Safety, Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin, and Ed Harie, Corpus Christi publisher.
 State Rep. Jake Johnson of San Antonio threatened impeachment of Sadler over his contract with Platoro.

Indian Chief Works As Saw-Log Cutter

(Editors Note: There is only one Indian reservation in Texas, the home of the Alabama-Coushattas in the Big Thicket of East Texas. They have straddled two cultures — the Stone Age to the 20th Century. In 1965 they built a small museum in a sandy clearing and went into the tourist business. This is the last of a three-part series tracing the Texas tribe.)

(UPI) — Fulton Battise makes a living as a saw-log cutter for a timber company. On the side he is an Indian chief.

He is stocky, with a pudgy face and the leathery skin of his people — the Alabama-Coushattas, who live on the only reservation in Texas, about 70 miles northeast of Houston.

Battise lives in an old four-room frame house off a dirt road far from the part of the reservation tourists see. His people call him Chief.

Around 4:30 in the afternoon he comes home from work and flops into an old rocking chair in front of a television set. There he sits, in heavy work clothes, while his wife dishes up a bowl of store-bought ice cream.

Considering the background of the tribe that often has stayed, but a step ahead of disease and starvation in its 180 years in the East Texas, Fulton is a success.

"I only went through about the seventh grade," he said. "When I first started school I didn't even know how to say 'yes' in English."

Now he has a regular job and his daughter is one of only two Alabama-Coushattas ever to graduate from college. She teaches music in Albuquerque, N. M.

Fulton spends more time as a saw-log cutter than as an Indian chief. His tribe went into the tourist business four years ago, building a museum in a sandy clearing and a "Living Indian Village."

Their chief dons his feathered headdress for publicity pictures or on ceremonial occasions. He said he neither knows nor cares why his tribe elected him chief.

"It doesn't make any difference to me," he said, arching eyebrows aged to an ashen color. In the old days the chief was to be the one who knew where the good hunting grounds were and how to look after the tribe.

"But things have changed. The only thing that matters now is education. Being chief doesn't mean anything anymore."

Former chiefs used to rule like absolute monarchs. The last one with such power was Chief Erson Cooper Sylestine. But when he died earlier this year, he was only a figurehead.

Tribal Council Rules
In 1957, the state transferred Sylestine's authority to a seven-member Tribal Council because the Texas Commission on Indian Affairs thought they could deal with seven men easier than one.

"In the old days the tribe used to sit around and listen to the chief talk," Fulton said. "But now you've got seven men on the Tribal Council and you've got the government."

Pampa BR Stars Top Muleshoe, Play Tonight
MULESHOE — Pampa took advantage of the stout pitching of ace hurler Doug Thompson and a shoddy fielding by Muleshoe, here Tuesday night, to hit the quarterfinals of the Babe Ruth District Baseball tournament.

Pampa struck for only seven hits off two Muleshoe hurlers but combined with the host team's 11 errors scored an 8-1 victory.

The Stars meet either Dumas or Plainview at 6 p.m. this evening and a victory would pit them in a second contest at 8:30 p.m. Two victories tonight would put them in Thursday night's championship contest.

Thompson allowed Muleshoe only four hits and his teammates backed him with errorless ball. The only run off Thompson came on a first inning home run by George Clydefeifer with two out.

Thompson struck out nine, walked two and hit two batters in earning his second playoff victory.

Pampa had ample opportunity to score even more runs but left 13 runners stranded in seven innings.

The Pampa stars took a 2-1 lead in the second on one hit then added three more runs in the fourth, two in the third and one more in the sixth.

Pampa left the bases loaded in the first and appeared about to do the same thing in the second.

After loading the bases in the second Muleshoe pulled off a short to home to third doubleplay.

But Al Ferguson's two out single plated two runs to give Pampa the only run it needed.

Pampa lost 8-4 Monday night to Dumas in a first round game.

Mike Edgar started on the mound for Pampa Monday night and had not allowed a run and had fanned nine batters when he pulled a muscle in his arm in the fifth inning.

The Crazy World That Is Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic National Chairman Fred Harris is leading another charge against barriers to voting.

Actually the relatively low election day turnout in the United States seems more due to apathy than legal or administrative requirements for voting.

Harris has appointed a 20-member subcommittee, headed by former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, to promote greater participation in elections.

A rundown on the 1968 presidential election shows that only 60.8 per cent of the voting age population and only 80.8 per cent of the registered voters cast ballots. A Gallup Poll indicated that 15 million citizens who were registered failed to vote because they were disinterested or didn't like the candidates.

"Because of restrictive state laws," Harris said, "some voters have to go to a certain place on a certain date and register each and every year in order to vote. . . present registration laws make it seem we want to discourage voting rather than encourage it."

He said the Clark task force would take a look at state registration and residence requirements, proposals to lower the voting age and "continuing racial barriers" to voting.

Harris favors some kind of automatic registration to permit voting in presidential elections for citizens who moved too recently to meet state residence requirements.

The Nixon Administration's voting rights bill contains a similar provision. It would require states to permit voting in a presidential election for citizens who moved into a state by Sept. 1 before that election. Those who moved in the final two months would be allowed to vote in the state of their former residence.

Subject to some restraints in federal law and the Constitution, voter eligibility is determined by the laws of the 50 states.

Fifteen states now permit a vote for president by new residents with no more than 30 days in the state. The residence requirement is 60 days or less in 28 states.

'Invisible' Drug User Evades Statistics

NEW YORK (NEA) — A report by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration indicated that approximately one-third of our fellow citizens at one time or another take drugs that were not prescribed for them. Add these 75 million to the millions of social drinkers and the estimated million problem drinkers. And for dessert, let's add the overweight and the obese. Have we left out anyone you know?

Not so long ago parents stayed up late at night waiting for their children to return home from dates. Now the concern is: Does he or she or doesn't he or she? And it's not sex that we are concerned about.

The under-30 generation is misusing a variety of drugs. The over-30 generation seems to prefer alcohol, although they aren't averse to misusing tranquilizers, aspirins and sleeping pills.

But we don't really know how many youngsters or adults are misusing drugs. The statistics we have only account for the visible drug abuser who comes to the attention of the court, the jail, the federal, state or municipal treatment center.

This is a selective group—generally of the lower socioeconomic groups. The person treated for misuses of tranquilizers or pep pills by his family doctor is not included in the statistics and, of course, many people never seek treatment. They feel they have no problem.

We know about the teenaged middle-class child who is picked up at a pot party by the police, who promise that their child will never do this again. There is no arrest and no increase in statistics.

We are also becoming concerned about the young girl who is misusing aspirins. She works at a sewing machine in a factory. She has a sensitive employer. He has bottles of 1,000 aspirins in different parts of the plant, to ease the problems associated with "that time of the month."

The misuse of aspirins causes serious medical problems lasting longer than those few days; "that time of the month." There is no arrest, and no increase in statistics of drug misuse.

Some adults may take comfort in thinking that their children will grow out of the drug phase. It is a false comfort. Should we hope that our marijuana smoker will be better off by turning to alcohol after 30? The younger generation, in turn, should take little comfort in its argument about the apparent medical safety of marijuana compared to alcohol misuse, or by pointing to their parents' daily drinking. This problem is too serious on a personal level and a national one for us to get involved in euphemism. We should remember simply that drugs make sick people healthy and healthy people sick.

Often we are asked to believe that the increase in drug misuse is a result of the generation gap. This is a cop-out. Generation gaps have existed since Adam didn't understand why Cain killed Abel. And drugs have been with us since the first grape fermented: since the first cactus was eaten: since tobacco was smoked.

Adolescence is a period of upheaval "if" which "a" person begins to find himself and come to terms with himself. He often needs support and acceptance from his friends. Today his friends may be using drugs — and he may follow suit. A sensitive parent may best help his maturing child by pointing out that the misuse of drugs may indeed be a sign of lack of independence.
