School Bond Election for Ward Buildings Is Called for May 31

PETITION ACTED ON AT CALLED BOARD MEETING

Former Mayor Hobart Heads List of Tax-payers

PROPOSITION IS FOR $125,000

Congestion at Central Plant Is Factor in Proposal

Notices have been posted calling an election May 31 in the Pampa Independent school district for the purpose of voting $125,000 in bonds to build and equip "free school buildings of brick, stone, or concrete" and to purchase necessary sites.

The principal use to which the money voted would be put would be for the erection of 8-room ward schools in the western and eastern portions of the city, respectively. Crowded conditions at the Central campus and the distances the smaller children have to walk to the main plant make the additional ward buildings necessary. An inexpensive but adequate gymnasium also would be placed on the Central campus.

The election was called on petition of property taxpayers.

Those signing the petition are: E. D. Hobart, De Lea Vicars, B. E. Finley, Chas. C. Cook, Lynn Boyd, L. N. McCullough, Bonnie Rose, T. B. Hughey, B. R. White, Dave Pope, J. M. Saunders, Louis Behrends, L. M. Gaston, T. E. Rose, L. Blanton, E. E. Reynolds, O. C. Rice, B. C. Priest, Jno. M. Poe, W. C. Archer, E. S. Graves, W. E. Davis, R. E. Johnson, Lee Banks, J. A. Purvis, Bert Isbell, W. H. Doyle, C. S. Barrett, F. P. Reid, and P. O. Sanders.

Empire Daurer in Wildcat Territory Is Real Sensation

Interest in the Panhandle, and especially in Gray county, continues to center around the Empire Gas and Fuel company's No. 1 Daurer in the northwest corner of the southeast quarter of section 236, block B-2, in rank wildcat territory. This morning the well was reported to be making 60 barrels a day though 18 feet of casing.

First show of oil was picked up a 3,010 feet with a slight spray at 3,028 feet. The well is bottomed at 3,126 feet in granite wash.

This new producer will open up a territory before believed to be unproductive. It is the first test on the south side of the granite ridge thought to be the edge of development. It is thirteen miles from production north, 8 miles from production in the McCie pool, with no production south and west.

The well is five miles southeast of White Deer and if brought in a large producer will mean much to that town as it will to Kingsmill, six miles north. The well is on the north edge of the granite ridge with the same existing conditions many miles to the south.

The Edwards et al's No. 1 Case in section 180, block B-2, five miles west of production in the McCie pool, has been completed for a 70,000,000-foot gasser. The rig will be skidded this week and drilling commenced immediately on the new location.

The Southend Oil company has the rig on the ground and will spud in tomorrow on the Case lease in section 180, block B-2.

MEXICO CITY, May 10.—(P)—Fears were entertained today for the safety of Theodore Hull, president of the California Air Race association, who was long overdue on an airplane flight to Tampico.

Youth Confesses Killing Seven

Because his father would not let him have the family car, Owen Oberst, 17, of near El Dorado, Kas., killed his father and mother his two brothers and three sisters and fired the house, burning the bodies, according to his confession to police. Before leaving the house, he took $40. Then he drove to town and attended a movie. Above are the slayer's brothers and sisters, whom he killed and (inset) Oberst.

SANITATION TO BE REGULATED

T. H. Lane Is Appointed Inspector—Work Under Way

T. H. Lane, for several months supervisor of street work, has been appointed sanitary inspector and will give a major portion of his time to this new work. He has begun a survey and is making recommendations to property owners as he proceeds.

According to City Manager F. M. Gwin, it is desired to clean up vacant lots, alleys, and private and business property before hot weather arrives.

Regular inspections will be made in order that sanitary conditions, once achieved, may be maintained.

Both state laws and city ordinances govern sanitary work. The new activity will be similar to a clean-up campaign lasting the year through.

Declare Carol Had Intended to Join Peasant Revolt

BUCHAREST, Rumania, May 10.—(P)—The government intends to try for treason all those involved in an alleged attempt of former crown Prince Carol to fly from London to Alba Julia during the peasant's meeting Sunday to demand a change of government.

The Rumanian police claimed that Carol intended to fly to Vienna secretly and wait for word that the time was ripe for him to return to Rumania. Meantime a second plane was to carry his accomplices to Alba Julia with a manifesto to the peasants.

The police said that, learning of this plot, they tipped Scotland yard, which led to the planes being prevented from leaving England.

CAROL IS VERY ILL

GODSTONE, Surrey, England, May 10.—(P)—It was announced at the home of M. Jones, who former Crown Prince Carol of Rumania is the guest, that Carol was confined to his bed today with chills and fever. His temperature was said to be high.

COL. STEWART SILENT ABOUT RESIGNATION

Flatly Refuses to Talk When Interviewed on Train

REPORTER USES HIS INGENUITY

District Attorney Seeks Indictment of Oil Executive

CHICAGO, May 10.—(P)—Colonel Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, today issued the following statement.

"Replying to the statement of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., appearing in newspapers under date of May 9, 1928; any communication from any stockholder of the company is entitled to, and shall receive from me the most careful consideration.

"The proceedings now pending at Washington make it unwise for me to make any statement to the public at this time, much as I might desire to."

On board westbound twentieth century limited, near Elkhart, Ind., May 10.—(P)—Speeding westward from New York City to Chicago, Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, today flatly refused to comment on a statement by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., that he had asked Col. Stewart to resign.

Mr. Rockefeller issued his statement yesterday, but Colonel Stewart had left New York before the statement was released.

Col. Stewart branded as a "lie" a report credited to his Chicago office that he would "talk today."

"That is a lie, sir, I know more about it than they do, and I refuse to discuss it with you in any way," he told a representative of the Associated Press.

The Associated Press representative found him at breakfast in the dining car sitting alone at a table. At the sound of his name Colonel Stewart pushed back his chair suddenly and demanded "who are you?"

"I am a reporter," the Colonel's wrath burst.

"Then get away from me," he roared.

"But, Colonel, I have been trying all night to get in touch with you to ask you about . . ."

Colonel Stewart's face became pallid, as he shouted in a voice which caused other diners to look up: "I don't care. I won't talk to you. I won't talk to you. I won't have anything to do with you. Get away, I tell you."

The Stewart interferred abruptly. Colonel Stewart continued his meal, but a moment later was heard to order one Chicago and two New York newspapers to be brought to him.

Ruth Dewey Groves Writes Next Serial for Daily News

"When a Girl Loves" Is Title of Story of New York Society Girl and Greenwich Village Man

Ruth Dewey Groves, author of "Marye and Mom" letters and other features, is the author of the Pampa Daily News' next serial, "When a Girl Loves," which will begin next week.

This romance of a New York society girl and a Greenwich Village artist marks the high point in the author's notable career as a writer of highly successful serials. And when she writes of Greenwich Village, Ruth Dewey Groves' writing is especially true to life because that art colony has been her home for years.

Rome Governor Returns Walker's Visit

"When in New York, do as New Yorkers do in Rome," was sound advice for Ludovico Spada Poterani, Governor of Rome, when he landed in Gotham to return the visit paid by Mayor and Mrs. Jimmy Walker. The Governor straightway proceeded to demonstrate that he dressed as well and was as quick as repartee as the dapper Jimmy. Pictured above are the Governor and his pretty daughter, Princess Miriam, who accompanied him. Below he is shown riding with New York's mayor in the welcome parade.

ENGLISH VICAR GIVES TIPS TO BRIDEGROOMS

Good Pronunciation Would be Welcome—Alcoholic Breath Is Deplored

LONDON, May 10.—(P)—The vicar of St. Phillip's church is not altogether satisfied with the deportment and responses of bridegrooms in his battensea district.

In his magazine he gives the following tips to prospective bridegrooms: "Don't rush at the blushing bride when she joins you at the chancel steps and shake hands with her. One bridegroom did this at a recent wedding and exclaimed 'ow are yer, mate.'"

"When the priest tells you to say after him God's holy ordinance, don't say 'God's holy aurence.' Some of the audiences we have seen at recent weddings here could never by any stretch of imagination be called holy."

"It is always best to refrain from drinking anything stronger than tea before the ceremony. The smell of alcohol is highly objectionable and especially in church."

"When the clergyman asks you to say 'troth' please don't say 'trought.' The former means faith, fidelity, truth; the latter anything hollowed and open longitudinally on the upper side."

The vicar's words were well received by the bridegrooms, who were told to be more careful in the future.

"But, Colonel, I have been trying all night to get in touch with you to ask you about . . ."

Colonel Stewart's face became pallid, as he shouted in a voice which caused other diners to look up: "I don't care. I won't talk to you. I won't have anything to do with you. Get away, I tell you."

The Stewart interferred abruptly. Colonel Stewart continued his meal, but a moment later was heard to order one Chicago and two New York newspapers to be brought to him.

Goodnight; one tool brand, JA; one ox coupling; fifty of more years old; papers concerning the JA Ranch; eight JA branding irons, one Half Circle branding iron, two pair of bride bits, and a large number of pictures.

The two guns included in the collection are a 44 Winchester and a Sharps .50 buffalo gun which was found by J. P. Wilson nearly thirty years ago.

MASKED TRIO GETS $4,000 IN EARLY LOOTING

Overpower Watchman and Capture Three Officials

MAKE ESCAPE IN SMALL CAR

Posses Are Guarding all Roads Leading to Oklahoma

GREENVILLE, May 10.—(P)—Three masked men today escaped with about $4,000 in cash after they had captured three officials of the Leonard National bank at Leonard, about 20 miles north of here, forced one of them to unlock the outer door of the vault and took money from the vault when the time lock opened the inner door at 8:03 a. m.

Three men overpowered the night-watchman, whose name was not learned, at 3 a. m., trussed him up and then awaited the other officials, Charles Bland, who arrived at 6 a. m., and C. T. Ferguson, who appeared at 7, both assistant cashiers, were stopped at the point of guns as they entered the bank and held at bay until Homer Collins, cashier, arrived at 7:30.

Then the robbers, apparently in no hurry, forced Ferguson to unlock the outer door of the vault, and waited until the time lock opened the inner door at 8:03 a. m. Then they dashed into the vault, scooped up the cash, put the bank officials in the vault and slammed the door.

They left Leonard in an automobile which had been parked nearby. In a few minutes, the bank officials, who had discovered the door had not been locked, spread the alarm and officers started pursuing the robbers. It was first reported that they had headed to the south, but later information was that they turned toward the Texas-Oklahoma line.

All three of the men were armed.

SAN ANTONIO, May 10.—(P)—Texas bankers in session here agreed unanimously today to continue for another year their offer of an award of $5,000 for dead bank robbers and nothing for bandits taken alive.

SHERMAN, May 10.—(P)—Officers in Sherman, Denison, and other North-east Texas towns today were guarding at highways leading into Oklahoma in an effort to capture three men who robbed the National bank at Leonard, about 20 miles north of Greenville.

The robbers were reported to be riding in a light automobile and were thought to be heading toward Oklahoma after a false start toward the south from Leonard.

The Pampa Shrine club will attend the Khiva ceremonial to be held in Amarillo May 25, in a body to support "Al" Johnson in the diamond ring contest. The local man is a favorite in the novice race for the ring.

Peasanees arm bands and other distinguishable regalia will be worn by the Pampa delegation to the ceremonial. They will go 150 strong and will probably be the largest delegation at the gathering.

THOUGH IT MAY turn out to be "just another campaign", the "Save-a-Life" drive to be conducted from May 19 to June 9 will have the added impulse of a gubernatorial proclamation.

Dan Moody has called all municipal authorities, motor organizations, and civic bodies to cooperate. The plan has considerable to recommend it. Free mechanical inspection of all motor vehicles will be made possible through designation of service stations and garages as inspection points for the period.

It is said that 59 per cent of deaths due to automobile accidents in this country are traceable to defects in the machinery. Lately speed has become axiomatic with new model cars, and safety at the faster clips means mechanical perfection.

If official action can be obtained in connection with the campaign, success may be worthwhile. But cooperation of public officials is very difficult to obtain. Those who are very busy cannot drop their work for the drive, and those who do not have many duties seem loathe to assume added ones.

Still, campaigns serve a purpose, even if often an almost negligible one. A drive is one of the most typical kinds of American endeavor.

Our Rural Schools

It is regrettable that the commendable consolidated school district plan has solved the school finance problem for rural sections immediately surrounding the towns, but has left more isolated rural schools in the same "Little Red Schoolhouse" classification as before.

While this is not exactly the case in Gray county, the last school census shows the lack of 3,000 scholastics—by a small margin—necessary to have a county superintendent. Doubtless this margin will be more than passed by next year. Establishment of the county superintendent plan, in the place of supervision by the county judge, is mandatory when 3,000 scholastics are found in a county.

But the rural school problem is as much one of parents as of pupils. Rural parents in the past have failed largely to see the needs of their schools until pointed out by others. Attendance on the one hand and appropriate plants and salaries for teachers on the other have been major problems. At last the rural school has found a solid place in American education, and preparation for teaching service in rural districts is a definite study, not a stepping stone for experiencing those ambitions to go to the larger city schools.

Indelible Skywriting

Gray County's Oil Fields

Hardly a week passes that some development does not take place giving impetus to oil field activity in Gray county, and gradually indicating that this county soon is to lead the entire Panhandle in crude oil production. Most significant, when viewed from the possible dimensions of the producing area in Gray county, is a showing in the Empire company's test south of White Deer. Commercial production in this test will open an immense territory to the south of the present so-called proven area.

And such has been the history of the Gray county territory for months, or since the famous Bowers pool south of Pampa was opened. There has been a steady widening of the producing area, with a mounting production almost every week. The low price of crude has held down development, but new wells have been drilled in sufficient number of different areas of Gray county to leave no doubt as to the potential output of the county. A few months ago little thought was given to Gray as a heavy producing district, but today its daily output is almost half that of Hutchinson.

The proving up of new areas by such important wells as that of the Empire company may not give any noticeable stimulus to Panhandle activity just at this time, but they remind us of the wide boundaries of an oil field that some day will be producing many times its present output. Another reminder, too, is that Pampa, while having doubled in population in the past year, has had but just a taste of what is to come in city growth and industrial expansion.—Amarillo News.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The principal issue in controversy in connection with flood control legislation is whether the United States government shall require the local interests in the Mississippi valley to contribute to the cost of the work of preventing the destructive floods of this vast interstate river.

My position, and that of the proponents of the bill just passed by the House of Representatives, is that the protection of life and property and the safe conduct of interstate commerce, as well as the protection of the mails, are the solemn obligation and duty of the government of the United States, and that there should be no provision for local contribution in the bill if Congress really intended to protect the lives and property of its citizens from these destructive floods.

If anyone asks why the federal government should be urged to take hold of this problem on a national scale and assume full responsibility for the time, labor and great cost involved in obtaining complete control of the Mississippi river, surely it is sufficient to remind him that the drainage basin of this great river covers 41 per cent of the total area of the United States, and the river pours down into the lower valley the drainage from 31 states.

The elemental weakness of the present system, as disclosed by all the investigations and reports, is that the dependence upon local participation has resulted in a weak unfinished system of levees. No levee system can be effective unless it is unified, co-ordinated, and complete, and should any levee district fail to pay its contribution, the whole plan would fail.

It is contended that benefits will result and those receiving the benefits should pay part of the cost of the work. Of course benefits will ensue, but not the kind upon which a special tax upon adjacent property is warranted. The benefits may be listed as follows:

- Human life will be saved.
Sickness and disease will be prevented.
People will not be driven from their homes and made objects of charity.
Suffering and misery will be prevented.
Land will not be washed away.
Property will not be destroyed.
People will be able to follow their occupations.
Industry will continue.
Interstate commerce and the United States mails will not be interfered with.

There will be a feeling of security that will restore confidence.

No court or law of the land ever levied a special tax on land based on these elements and to require a payment for these benefits would be levying a tax on saving of human life, on occupation, on industry, on opportunity, on progress, and on prosperity.

These benefits are some of those for which our national government is organized, are properly paid out of the general treasury, and are given freely and without price in order that that general welfare may be furthered.

clear. The states asked to pay have no part in producing the destructive flood waters. Floods know no state boundaries and can not be controlled by fiat. The states as such cannot legislate regarding the control or use of the navigable waters of the Mississippi.

GIRL ALONE

COPYRIGHT 1928 BY NEA SERVICE

ANNE AUSTIN AUTHOR OF "SAINT AND SINNER"

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Ward of the state orphanage since she was four, Sally Ford is "famed out" to Clem Carson the summer she is 16, and meets David Nash, athlete and student who is working on the Carson farm during his vacation. David hits Carson when the farmer makes insulting remarks about his friendship for Sally. David and Sally run away and join a carnival, David as Cook's helper and Sally disguised as "Princess Lalla," crystal gazer.

In Capital City, location of the orphanage, Sally is recognized by one of a crowd of little orphans, chaperoned by a beautiful woman. Quick work on the part of the Barker saves Sally. She learns from Arthur Van Horne, an asterner, who annoys her with his attentions, that the beautiful chaperone is Enid Barr, wealthy New York matron.

In another state Sally and David believe danger of police detection is over. One day Sally finds herself confronted with Mrs. Stone, matron of the orphanage, who has followed Sally to the distant state. David and Sally run away from the carnival and are "half-married" when Mrs. Stone and Enid Barr rush in and stop the ceremony.

Enid confesses she is Sally's mother and that she believes until recently her child was dead. In Kansas City Sally meets Courtney Barr, the judicially-mannered husband of Enid, and he tells her that to protect Enid's reputation she must not enter their home for two years. These two years she spends in a fashionable southern finishing school and at a mountain camp learning all that a prospective debutante should know. Her heart yearns for David, and though she keeps her promise not to write to him, she does not forget her mother's agreement that David is to be invited to her coming-out party.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLVI

"Please don't go, David!" Sally implored, but he mistook her distress, occasioned by Arthur Van Horne's entirely unexperienced appearance, for a plea for a longer interview which he knew would only cause them both pain.

He shook his head dumbly and strode to the door. He paused there a moment to bow jerkily first toward Sally, then toward Van Horne, who was watching the scene with amused cynical eyes.

Pride mercifully came to Sally's aid when she closed her lips firmly over the question she had been about to fling at David with desperate urgency. She even managed to wave her hand with what she hoped was air indifference as David opened the door.

"So!" Van Horne chuckled when the door had closed softly. "It's still Sally and David, isn't it? I'm glad I was vouchsafed a glimpse of the paragon. Astonishingly good-looking in a Norse Viking sort of way, but rather a bull in a China shop here, isn't he? But I presume that is why Enid fondly hoped when she allowed him to come together that she did invite him? A very clever woman, Enid. I've always said so."

Sally's teeth closed hurtfully over her lower lip, but she said nothing. The pain and horror of David's uncompromising rebuff were still too great to permit room in her heart for fear of Van Horne. Of course he had recognized her at once, had undoubtedly recognized her from her pictures in the papers, but what did it matter now? David was gone—gone—He had not even kissed her—

"Still afraid of me, Sally?" Van Horne laughed as her eyes remained fixed on his face in a blind, unseeing stare.

"Afraid of you?" Sally echoed, her voice struggling strangely through pain. "Oh, you mean—?" She tried to collect her wits, to push aside the incredible fact of David's desertion, so that she could concentrate on Van Horne and the frightening significance of his presence here coupled with his knowledge of her past.

"Dear little Sally!" Van Horne said tenderly, and Sally clenched her fist to strike him for using the words which had been heavenly sweet when David had uttered them so long ago. "I told you the last time I saw you that you had not seen the last of Arthur Van Horne. I meant it, but I give you my word I hardly expected to find you here! I spent the deuce of a lot of time and money trying to trace you after you left the carnival. Old Bybee finally told me that you'd run away and had probably married you David. So I took my broken heart to China, Japan, Egypt and God knows where. And now like the chap who sought for the Holy Grail, I find you at home waiting for me."

"I wasn't waiting for you," Sally contradicted him indignantly. "I was waiting for David and he's just told me that he doesn't want me. I hope I'd never see you again!"

"Why, Sally, Sally!" Van Horne chided her, his black eyes full of mocking humor. "Don't you realize that I'm the oldest friend you have in this new life of yours? I really haven't got used to the idea yet of your being Enid Barr's daughter. Of course I knew there was something mysterious about her overweening interest in Princess Lalla, but this thick old head of mine wasn't functioning very well in those days. My heart was too full of that same lovely little crystal-gazer. But when I read the rather masterly bit of fiction in the papers, the story which good old asinine Courtney Barr gave out as to your parentage and his wardship which he had supplanted by a legal adoption, the old bear began to creak again, and I can assure you I got a great deal of quiet enjoyment out of the thing. Fancy the impeccable Enid Barr's having—"

"Oh, stop!" Sally commanded him, flaming with anger. "Don't dare say a word against my mother—I mean against Enid!"

"Against your mother, Van Horne corrected her serenely. "Of course I haven't told anyone, Sally, and I don't really see why I should. If—Listen, child: don't you think we ought to have a long, comfortable talk about—old time? We're likely to be interrupted here any minute by a chaperone—or by your mother or by a couple of young idiots seeking a quiet place to neck in. Slip out of the house when she shows over—the servants' entrance will be better—and we'll go for a drive through the park."

"I shall do no such thing!" Sally epudiated the suggestion hotly. "I'm going back to the ballroom now. Please don't come with me."

When she arrived, breathless at the door of the ballroom, she bumped into Enid, whose face was white and anxious and suddenly almost old.

"Darling, where have you been?" her mother whispered fiercely. "I've had Courtney and Randall and two of the footmen looking for you. This is your party, you know. You have other guests besides David Nash. I knew it was a mistake to ask him—"

"Where is he, Mother?" Sally interrupted rudely. "I've been with someone else most of the time. She could not bring herself yet to mention Van Horne's name to her mother, for fear Enid would notice that something was amiss.

"I haven't seen him," Enid protested. "But run along now and dance. It's the last dance before supper. Remember that Grant Proctor is taking you down. Do be sweet to him Sally."

"She would like for me to marry Grant Proctor," Sally reflected dully, as she obediently let herself be drawn into the dance by an ardent-eyed young man whose name she could not remember. "She wants me to marry Grant Proctor, when I'm already half-married to David. But David doesn't want me! Oh, David!"

Just before supper was announced she slipped away to her own rooms. To cry the hot tears that were pressing against her eyeballs. And on her dressing table she found a note, undoubtedly placed there by her own maid. Her cold, shaking fingers had difficulty in opening it, for she knew at once that it was from David.

"Dear little Sally," she read, and her tears gushed then. "Forgive me for writing like this, but I couldn't stand it any longer. You know I love you, that I'll be loving you always," but you must also know that Sally Barr cannot marry David Nash, and that anything less would be too terrible for both of us. You must be wondering why I came. I wanted to see for myself that you are happy, that your mother is good to you. And, of course, I wanted to see you again, wanted to see if there was anything of my Sally in this beautiful Sally Barr that the papers are making so much of."

"I think it has made it harder for me to find that underneath the new surface you are still Sally Ford. But they'll change the core of you almost as rapidly as they have remade the surface of you into a society beauty.

And after you're changed all through you'll be glad I went away. I'll carry my own Sally in my heart always and the new Sally Barr will fall in love with the splendid young son of some old family, marry him and make her mother very happy. She would never forgive us, Sally, if I took you away and made you live on what I can earn as a farmer, and she would be right not to forgive. I would not forgive myself, and after awhile you'd be unhappy too, remembering all that you had lost including a mother who adores you Goody, Sally, David."

She was so quiet, so white at supper that Grant Proctor, who was already in love with her, begged her to let him give her a drink from his pocket flask, but she refused, scarcely knowing what he had said to her. Once she caught her mother's eyes and shivered at the anxiety and reproach in them.

Suddenly a fierce resentment against Enid Barr rose and beat sickeningly in her blood. If she had not interfered, she and David would have been married long ago. They would have been happy in poverty, would have struggled side by side to banish poverty, might even have had a tiny David or Sally of their own by this time. And now David was irrevocably gone so that Enid Barr might keep her daughter. Sally wanted to nurse her anger against her mother, but it was impossible to do so, for she loved her.

When the jazz orchestra was hilariously summoning the debutantes to the dance floor again Arthur Van Horne claimed Sally over the protests of the half dozen younger men who were good good-naturedly wrangling for the honor.

"You're going to meet me after this foolish, delightful show is over, aren't you? Of course you are!" he smiled down upon her as he led her out upon the floor.

Sally looked up at him wearily and saw that there was more than amusement and gallantry in his narrowed smiling black eyes. There was menace, which he did not try to conceal, wanted her to see—

"All right," she nodded.

"You do love your mother, don't you?" he smiled significantly. "Maybe you'll learn to love Van a little, too. It would be very wise."

It was half past four o'clock when the tireless debutantes were willing to call it a night. Sally braved the thing out, but her face was as she listened to the last compliments on the success of the party which had officially launched her into the circles of society to which her mother belonged by the divine right of inheritance and immense wealth.

"We'll talk it all over tomorrow, sweetheart," Enid said pityingly. "You run along to bed now. I've got to give a few instructions to Randall. And you'd better stay in bed all day, or until tea time anyway. You were marvelous tonight, darling. So beautiful, so sweet. These wild young flappers—but run along, daughter beloved. You look as if you might faint with fatigue. Have Ernestine bring you some hot milk."

It was ridiculously easy for Sally to slip out of the house, using the servants' entrance, as Van Horne had suggested. She found him waiting for her and submitted wearily to being led to where his car was parked, a block away.

"What do you want, Van?" she asked abruptly, when the car turned into Central Park from Fifth Avenue at Eighty-fourth street, the wheels crunching the glazed crust of new snow.

"To talk with you and hold your hand and possibly kiss you—oh, very possibly!" Van Horne laughed at her, reaching for her hand.

"What did you mean when you said it would be 'very wise' for me to love to be diplomatic. But of course she knew. He held her mother's security and happiness in the hollow of his hand. That he could destroy her own social career if he wished did not occur to her, for she had not yet learned to care about it, to prize it. But Enid must be protected at all cost.

"I think you know," Van Horne shrugged. "But why put it into words? Some things are much nicer unsaid, if they are distinctly understood. Now—will you kiss me, Sally? I've waited a long time, sweet child, and I'm naturally not a patient man."

"Not tonight," Sally said in a low, flat voice, shrinking into her own corner of the seat. "Please turn at One Hundred and Tenth street and take me back home, Van. I'm utterly tired."

Van obeyed cheerfully, exultant over her indirect promise. When Sally was creeping exhaustedly up the stairs to her room, her mother, still dressed in her formal ball gown, came hurrying frantically down to meet her.

"Darling, where have you been? I've been crazy with worry! How could you go out and meet that Nash boy so brazenly? Tonight of all nights!"

"It wasn't David, Mother," Sally said in a dead-tired voice. "It was Arthur Van Horne. He knows all about me. He's known all along."

In the next installment Sally learns something new about the startling Van Horne.

Down Escape Harm In Nicaragua

PUERTO CABEZAS, Nicaragua, May 10.—Two American fliers had a narrow escape from injury when their plane made a forced landing near La Luz mine, which was recently destroyed by Rebels.

The aviators, Captain E. D. Howard and Corporal Cole, were in an amphibian plane scouting over the mining district when forced down yesterday. Howard was regarded as having displayed unusual skill in making a landing among the trees at an extremely difficult spot without injury to himself or his companion. The plane was damaged but the engine and parts will be salvaged.

An accompanying plane in charge of Lieutenant William Conway with Major Utley aboard flew as close as possible to the damaged machine and saw that both men were unhurt. They notified the marine patrol at La Luz mine under lieutenant Rose and the Marines went at once to the scene.

It will take ten days for the airmen to reach Puerto Cabezas since they will have to travel 200 miles down the Prinzapolka river in Indian canoes.

Captain Edson reported to headquarters that he had defeated a band of rebels on Sunday and that they were heading west.

Tom Bullock of Clarendon was a business visitor here yesterday.

T. D. Hobart is transacting business at the J. A. Ranch this week.

Jack Danciger, drilling operator in the West Texas field, is here visiting with his brother, M. O. Danciger.

CALL 655—A. S. CLARK

When she arrived, breathless at the door of the ballroom, she bumped into Enid, whose face was white and anxious and suddenly almost old.

"Darling, where have you been?" her mother whispered fiercely. "I've had Courtney and Randall and two of the footmen looking for you. This is your party, you know. You have other guests besides David Nash. I knew it was a mistake to ask him—"

"Where is he, Mother?" Sally interrupted rudely. "I've been with someone else most of the time. She could not bring herself yet to mention Van Horne's name to her mother, for fear Enid would notice that something was amiss.

"I haven't seen him," Enid protested. "But run along now and dance. It's the last dance before supper. Remember that Grant Proctor is taking you down. Do be sweet to him Sally."

"She would like for me to marry Grant Proctor," Sally reflected dully, as she obediently let herself be drawn into the dance by an ardent-eyed young man whose name she could not remember. "She wants me to marry Grant Proctor, when I'm already half-married to David. But David doesn't want me! Oh, David!"

Just before supper was announced she slipped away to her own rooms. To cry the hot tears that were pressing against her eyeballs. And on her dressing table she found a note, undoubtedly placed there by her own maid. Her cold, shaking fingers had difficulty in opening it, for she knew at once that it was from David.

"Dear little Sally," she read, and her tears gushed then. "Forgive me for writing like this, but I couldn't stand it any longer. You know I love you, that I'll be loving you always," but you must also know that Sally Barr cannot marry David Nash, and that anything less would be too terrible for both of us. You must be wondering why I came. I wanted to see for myself that you are happy, that your mother is good to you. And, of course, I wanted to see you again, wanted to see if there was anything of my Sally in this beautiful Sally Barr that the papers are making so much of."

"I think it has made it harder for me to find that underneath the new surface you are still Sally Ford. But they'll change the core of you almost as rapidly as they have remade the surface of you into a society beauty.

BUILDERS OF PAMPA

The progress and development of any city is the result of the energy and effort of the business men and firms who make it up. The businesses listed on this page are permanent institutions and have contributed in many ways to the upbuilding of Pampa.

This page will appear in the Daily News once each week and will contain something new and interesting each day. A study of its stories will give a new knowledge of the reasons for the individual successes.

The Agents of White Deer Lands Are Progressive

T. D. HOBART, C. P. BUCKLER, AND M. K. BROWN PAVED THE WAY FOR THE CITY OF PAMPA TODAY

BUSINESS POLICY HAS ALWAYS BEEN FOR PERMANENT SETTLEMENT OF THIS TERRITORY

A firm foundation for the present Pampa was made years ago by representatives of the White Deer Lands. When the word "Pampa" designated merely a certain location in Texas three men were looking far ahead and paving the way for the city of Pampa today.

These three men, C. P. Buckler, T. D. Hobart and M. K. Brown, are now residents of Pampa and have realized their early ambitions—to help build a city that would gain recognition throughout West Texas.

The White Deer Lands was originally composed of 631,000 acres. This acreage was opened for sale in 1903, and was sold only to actual settlers for the primary reason of marketing the lands to build up the country with people who wanted to stay. The tracts were limited to 640 acres each. Sales were made with a small amount of cash down and the balance divided into small payments covering a period of years. Probably the reason that this part of the country was settled first is due to the selling of acreage only to home-seekers.

The company built the first school buildings and made all the additions as they were necessary. All of the grounds for the Central school here were donated by the company. Albert square was donated to the city in 1912. Ten acres was given to the city in 1915 for a dumpground. The Fairview cemetery site north of the city was donated a few years later.

All of the original church sites were given as the various churches were organized here.

At the time of the panic many people who were buying acreage from the company were unable to make payments, but the land was never taken from them. They were carried from year to year until the effect of the panic was over and they were able to again make payments.

For a number of years the company furnished all the water for the city. When something was needed to build the town the representatives of the White Deer Lands have always taken the lead.

T. D. Hobart

C. P. Buckler

M. K. Brown

Undoubtedly there could be no three men who could have done more for Pampa than T. D. Hobart, M. K. Brown and

C. P. Buckler. With Pampa a thriving little city these men are still building. Without their efforts of 25 years ago, Pampa probably would not have the solid foundation today.

Be With Me

Through every minute of this day,
Be with me, Lord!
Through every day of all this week,
Be with me, Lord!
Through every week of all this year,
Be with me, Lord!
Through all the years of all this life,
Be with me, Lord!
So shall the days and weeks and years
Be threaded on a golden cord,
And all draw on with sweet accord
Unto thy kingdom, Lord.
That so, when time is past,
By grace, I may at last,
Be with thee, Lord!

Senior Cast Gives Three-Act Comedy

"Come Out of the Kitchen," a lengthy comedy in three acts, was presented in matinee and evening performances at the Rex theatre yesterday.

It was a commendable effort by the senior class of Central high, with the cast directed by Miss Velora Reed. The cast included the following:

Olivia Dangerfield, Lucille Mowmy, Elizabeth Dangerfield, Angela Talbot.

Mrs. Paulkner, Mildred Fahy, Cora Paulkner, Thelma Qualls, Amanda, Lottie Schafer.

Burton Crane, Thomas Clayton, Randy Weeks, Sammie Henton, Solon Tucker, Floyd Coffin.

Paul Dangerfield, Harvey Anderson.

Charles Dangerfield, Harold Wake-man.

Thomas Lefferts, John Lester.

Miss Schafer was stage manager. Alph Hickman was property manager, and Edward Herlacher was business manager. Members of the class acting as ushers included DeVere Abernold, Elizabeth Cravey, Marjorie Jewell, Edna Beard Mary Maness, Ed Ballard, Susie Bell Smaling, and Lillian Keahy.

Specialties much enjoyed were vocal duets by Mrs. A. H. Doucette and Prof. R. B. Fisher, whistling by Lula Hutchins, and vocal solos by Martna Bradford.

Former Pampa Woman Now in Texas Politics

Mrs. Chas. S. Riley, formerly of Pampa, writes The News of her conferences with Leonard Withington, Republican committee chairman, and work for Hoover as a presidential candidate and for R. B. Creager as Texas Republican leader.

Her organization won in Dallas and Tarrant counties after a hard fight.

Mrs. Riley is a daughter of J. T. Crawford of Pampa.

"I am proud of Pampa and never miss a chance to sing her praises sincerely," Mrs. Riley said in her telegram.

RED HAIR HELPS

"Red Hair! How fortunate you are. It is the usual compliment every young girl receives upon meeting new friends," says Clara Bow, star of "Red Star," which comes to the Rex theatre tomorrow.

"Red hair can be a girl's fortune, or it can be her great misfortune, depending entirely on the individual taste of each red head.

"If one is endowed with hair that can be placed in the first classification from auburn to carot shades, one must repress all desires for bright color or combinations and not risk the wearing of much jewelry.

"Red hair should be the highlight around which one builds a background. Soft, pastel shades, black brown, beige, deep blue are the safe colors for the brilliant haired sisters-hood to wear.

BLACK IS BEST

"Avoid ruffles, such as too much lace. Stick to the simple tailored thing for street wear and the pastel shades in dainty design for evening.

"Black is the forte of red heads. It lightens the skin, brings out the color of the eyes and lends remarkable contrast to the hair.

"Every red head can make her hair her fortune, cash in on it—with just a little care."

Clara Bow had to fight her way up but she feels her red hair has helped her.

In a recent story of the robbery of the White Deer office of the Central States Power and Light company, it was reported here that the keys to the office were stolen from Ed Gootson, the manager. It has since been learned that the keys were taken from H. E. Luty at his hotel room. Mr. Luty is an employe of the company.

Famous Matsuda Arrives for Tilt With Easterner

Besides seeing Matty Matsuda, wrestling champion of the world, and Jack Smith, after the crown, in action at the Pla-Mor auditorium tonight, fans will see boxer and a wrestler mix.

Matsuda arrived this morning with his diamond studded belt and says he is in the best of condition for his battle with Smith tonight. He declares that Smith is a mighty good boy and will give him lots of trouble, but that he will continue to hold the belt after the affair.

Jack Smith, fresh from defeating all comers in Milwaukee and other cities of the north, is out after the famous belt that Matsuda has held for so many years. He is a fast, tricky wrestler who has many battles in his day and it will take all the tricks of the Jap to throw him.

The interesting event of the evening will be between Joe Kopecky and any number of boxers up to ten. He says he will take them on one at a time and throw them before they can drop him. Wernie Smith says he can do it alone and plans to be present to show the hard-boiled Bohemian that he knows his wrestlers as well as his boxers.

The bout will commence at 8:30 o'clock.

Strong-Jawed Man to Pull Two Cars With His Teeth

Capt. Charles Russell, billed as "the Iron Jawed" man, one of the feature attractions with the J. Geo. Loos circus side show, made arrangements to give a free exhibition of his extraordinary strength Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock on West Foster street, when he will attempt to pull two regular stock automobiles one block by the grip of his teeth. Captain Russell will at that time attempt to break his own record in weight pulled and distance.

Only a few more installments remain of "Girl Alone," the Pampa Daily News serial which, unheralded, has become a serial second in appeal only to "The Flapper Wife." Other fiction equally interesting will be furnished readers of the Daily News.
