Pampa, Texas

50¢ DAILY/SUNDAY $1

Low tonight in mid 50s, high tomorrow in mid 70s. See Page 2 for weather details.

PAMPA — Pampa High School will host its annual College Night Wednesday, Oct. 4, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the M.K. Brown Auditorium's Heritage Room.

The evening will be conducted in cooperation with the Texas Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers. High school juniors and seniors, as well as their parents, are invited to attend the come-and-go event. Representatives from colleges, universities, the armed forces and vocational and technical schools will be available to answer questions.

PHS Counselor Karla Howell says College Night provides an opportunity for students and parents to meet with many representatives and gather valuable information in a short period of time.

Texas Tech, University of Texas at Austin, Texas A&M and West Texas A&M are a few of the schools scheduled to be on hand.

For more information, contact Howell at 669-4806.

PAMPA - A 22-year-old Pampa man was held overnight for observation at Coronado Hospital after suffering a stab wound near midnight Saturday.

Pampa police are continuing to investigate the stabbing of Jessie Hernandez, 1197 Prairie Dr., at 1025 W. Wilks late Saturday.

According to reports, Hernandez was stabbed in the back with a six- to eight-inch fixed blade knife. He was taken by private vehicle to Coronado Hospital, where he was admitted. He was released Sunday.

PAMPA — The kick off luncheon for the 1995 United Way campaign is set for 11:45 a.m. Tuesday at Pampa Country Club.

Marilyn Morris, president of United Way of Texas, is guest speaker for the luncheon.

"Paint a Brighter Tomorrow" is the year's theme.

AUSTIN (AP) — One ticket bought in Weatherford correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot was worth $35 million.

The numbers drawn from a field of 50 were: 13, 14, 19, 24, 28 and 48.

There were 214 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $1,917. There were 13,158 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $112.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Wednesday night's game will be $4 million.

Bosnian peace negotiations to begin Tuesday

By SRECKO LATAL
Associated Press Writer

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — U.S. negotiators managed today to salvage high-level Bosnian peace negotiations, wresting a last-minute promise from Bosnian government leaders that they would attend talks in New York.

The government had threatened to boycott the meeting Tuesday unless rebel Serbs in Bosnia pledged not to try to join with Serbia proper. But Prime Minister Haris Silajdzic told reporters after emerging from a meeting with two U.S. envoys that his side would attend after all.

"I think we have had a successful meeting and that we have clarified some things ... so Bosnia-Herzegovina continues its legal existence," Silajdzic said. "Now we can attend the meeting in New York."

U.S. envoys Roberts P. Owen and Christopher Hill had arrived from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, where they had met with Serbian leaders on the planned peace talks at the United Nations. Their trip to Sarajevo was unscheduled, underlining the urgency of their mission.

Hill called the meetings with Silajdzic and President Alija Izetbegovic "very important," and added that "we've made some progress."

A U.N. spokesman had warned today that collapse of the talks could lead to heavy fighting, particularly in the Serb corridor in northeastern Bosnia linking rebel holdings to Serbia proper.

The Croatian army to the north, and allied Bosnian Croat and Bosnian government forces to the south, shelled the corridor on Sunday and could be preparing to cut the heavily defended corridor, said Lt. Col. Chris Vernon.

"They would have a very big fight on their hands, but we believe that they will certainly wait out to see how the political process develops ... in New York," said Vernon.

Plans to boycott the talks, a follow-up to a meeting in Geneva on Sept. 8 among the foreign ministers of Bosnia, Croatia and Serb-led Yugoslavia, were announced Sunday by Izetbegovic.

In Geneva, the warring parties agreed to divide Bosnia almost equally between the Muslim-Croat federation and a Bosnian Serb republic, while retaining Bosnian statehood within the republic's internationally recognized borders.

However, the document, while allowing the two entities to have special relations with their neighboring states — Croatia and Serbia — rules out secession from Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Silajdzic said Sunday his government backed out because the last meeting between Richard Holbrooke, the U.S. assistant secretary of state, and Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic failed to provide clear guarantees that Bosnia would remain a sovereign state within its borders and that the Bosnian Serb state would not be allowed to separate and join Serbia.

The Muslim-led Sarajevo government previously had demanded that the Serb military leadership in Banja Luka be removed and dialogue opened with moderate Serbs in the northern Bosnian Serb stronghold.

The government also demanded that Sarajevo's siege be lifted, including free movement for all civilians and full restoration of utilities. It further demanded a secure corridor linking the Bosnian capital with Gorazde, the government's only remaining eastern enclave.

Government soldiers today were beginning to exhume corpses from mass graves the government said were discovered during the weekend on territory recently retaken from the Serbs in northwest Bosnia.

Silajdzic said during the weekend that 540 bodies were in three graves in the Krasulje area near Kljuc, and they were believed to be Muslims and Croats killed by Bosnian Serbs.

U.N. monitors visited the site, but spokesmen said a final assessment would be made only after excavations were completed.

Violence against civilians has been one of the hallmarks of the war, but has grown more intense in recent months as sharp battlefield shifts have sent Muslims, Croats and Serbs alike fleeing for safety.

Fighting continued Sunday in parts of Bosnia, but limited access by reporters and restrictions on U.N. peacekeepers made it difficult to assess front-line developments.

Oklahoma City man killed in plane crash near Groom

GROOM (AP) — The pilot and lone occupant of a single-engine plane has died in a fiery crash just north of Interstate 40 in the Texas Panhandle.

Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman L.D. Snider said the dead man was Howard Don Chumley, 47, of Oklahoma City.

Motorists on I-40 called authorities after seeing the Cessna 210 crash in a maize field about 7:45 p.m. Sunday. The site is seven miles west of Groom, or about 35 miles east of Amarillo.

Carson County Sheriff Loren Brand said authorities arrived to find the wreckage in flames. Searchers recovered a body that was burned beyond recognition, Brand said.

"There was gasoline burning when we got there, but there's no indication of an explosion that we can see," Brand said.

"There's no charring," Brand said officials were able to piece together enough of the fuselage to recover the plane's identification number, but authorities did not release the plane's charted course.

An autopsy was scheduled today in Lubbock, said Justice of the Peace Phyllis Tyler.

Federal Aviation Administration investigators from Dallas and the National Transportation Safety Board will investigate the accident, Brand said.

"We're not sure how it crashed," Brand said. "With the way the wreckage is spread for such a distance, there had to be quite an impact."

The plane was flying through overcast skies and fog before the crash, Snider said.

More than 1,000 people attend the dedication and blessing of the 190-foot tall cross in Groom Saturday evening. The cross was lit at dusk. The cross is the second largest cross in the world and the largest in the United States.

Large crowd attends dedication of the Cross of the High Plains

GROOM — They all came and gathered at the Cross of the High Plains in Groom, some just to see a piece of Panhandle history and others to see a symbol of one man's faith in God and Jesus Christ had come to life for all.

A dedication and blessing was held Saturday evening for the Cross of the High Plains in which more than 1,000 people attended, some staying for the ceremony and others just to look and leave.

"Wonderful," was the way Steve Thomas described his feeling about seeing the 190-foot cross reach completion after a year in the making.

"We've got to give thanks to our creator," said Thomas about why he decided to build the cross, which is the second largest cross in the world. "I didn't know what else to do."

The cross was completed in a year though some delays came that set the completion back.

"It didn't come in my time," Thomas said. He explained that it came in "God's time."

"It warms my heart to know it was done in His time, not mine," he said.

The idea for building the cross came "through prayer," Thomas said.

The cross was completed last July, which Thomas pointed out is the seventh month of the year.

"The number seven is holy in God's eyes," Thomas said.

"It's a special night for the diocese, for Amarillo and for the Panhandle," said Chris Albracht of the West Texas Catholic, a newspaper for the Catholic faith.

"It's awesome," said Dwight Brown of Pampa, who was taking pictures of the cross. "It's awesome."

Pampa city commissioners to meet Tuesday

Pampa city commissioners are to meet in work session at 4 p.m. and regular session at 6 p.m. Tuesday in City Hall to consider a 16-item agenda dealing with everything from taxes to water to Woody Guthrie.

During the work session, which meets in the third floor conference room of City Hall, the commission will hear an update on the Lake Meredith desalination project from John Williams of Canadian River Municipal Water Authority; an update on Pampa Economic Development Corporation from its executive director, Jack Ippel; and an update on the street

Steve Thomas, center, who built a 190-foot tall cross in Groom, stands with two admirers who shared in his joy of the cross. "Wonderful," is how Thomas described his feeling at the completion of the cross.

He said he attended the ceremony because he wanted to be a "part of it."

Bishop Leroy T. Matthiesen of the Diocese of Amarillo blessed the cross with holy water during the ceremony and Father Ray Crosier, pastor of the Immaculate Heart of Mary in Groom, gave a sermon.

During the four-hour event, musical entertainment was provided by local entertainers as well as Dana, an international spiritual singer, who invited people to join her on stage and sing as the cross was lit at dusk.

The cross is visible to all who travel along Interstate 40. The cross was built along the interstate on purpose to let all the people who travel on it know there is hope in God, Thomas said.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Britten of Groom donated the land where the cross now stands. Local welders helped put the cross together.

"It was the Lord's idea," said Thomas about the cross. "I was only a servant."

"I did his work," continued Thomas. "That's what it boils down to."

• Authorization to contract for administrative services for the disaster relief fund grant.

• Authorization to renew the current Plexar-Custom Service arrangement with Southwestern Bell.

• Bid award for sale used radio transmitting equipment and electronic components.

• Adoption of resolution providing water to the Soccer Association.

• Consideration of the PEDC budget.

An executive session is planned to discuss appointments to the PEDC and the Board of Adjustments.

Both meetings are open to the public.

Pampa High School students Edith M. Osborne, left, and Katherine McKandles are presented with a letter of commendation from PHS and the National Merit Scholarship Corporation by PHS Principal John Kendall. Osborne and McKandles were recently named National Merit Commended Students.

Two Pampa High School students gain National Merit commendation status

Pampa High School students Edith M. Osborne and Katherine McKandles were recently named commended students in the 1996 National Merit Scholarship Program.

A letter of commendation from the school and National Merit Scholarship Corporation, which conducts the program, were presented to the students by Principal John Kendall.

About 35,000 commended students throughout the nation are being honored for their exceptional academic promise. They placed among the top five percent of more than a million students who entered the 1996 merit program by taking the 1994 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

Although the qualifying test scores of commended students are outstanding, they are slightly below the level required to continue in the competition for merit scholarship awards to be offered in 1996, officials said.

"Recognition of academical-ly promising students and of the key role played by schools in their development is essential to the pursuit of educational excellence in our nation. Our hope is that this recognition will encourage these able young people to develop their abilities to the fullest and also will enhance their opportunities and stimulate support for their higher education," a merit program spokesperson said.

Accident scene

This 1995 Ford Explorer was overturned Saturday evening following a two-vehicle collision at Russell and Randy Matson Avenue. A passenger in the Explorer, Lindzi Schaible, 7, was taken to Coronado Hospital by ambulance, then rushed to Northwest Texas Hospital, according to a Coronado Hospital spokesman. She was treated and released from Northwest, according to a hospital spokesman. Other occupants of the Explorer and the 1987 Ford pickup with which it collided were uninjured.

West Texas A&M University sets Education X-travaganza Oct. 3

AMARILLO - Students interested in attending college can talk with personnel representing more than 75 colleges and universities from 5 to 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 3, in the Amarillo Civic Center.

The Education X-travaganza is sponsored by West Texas A&M University, Amarillo College and Amarillo Technical College.

"This is a great opportunity for students to talk with colleges and find information out about them," Lila Vars, WTAMU director of admissions, said.

According to Vars, the event is expected to attract 500 to 800 students from Amarillo, Canyon and the Texas Panhandle.

Recruiters will provide information about academic programs, tuition and fees, housing and scholarships at their respective institutions. Students will be able to obtain college catalogs and brochures. There will also be financial aid officers who will be able to assist students with their questions and filling out their financial aid applications. Confirmations have been received from many Texas universities, as well as universities in Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico.

The X-travaganza is open to the public free of charge. Parents are encouraged to attend with their student.

For more information or to ask about specific schools attending, contact Lois Shuman at 1-800-99-WTAMU or (806) 656-2020.

Court to Selena fans: Stay away from trial

HOUSTON (AP) - Janet Warner has two words for Selena fans hoping to attend the trial of the Tejano singer's accused killer next month: Stay away.

Ms. Warner, chief court security coordinator during the Houston trial of Yolanda Saldivar, is responsible for ensuring there are no fights over the 30 or so courtroom seats available to the public each day.

She also must accommodate 74 news agencies and make sure the families of Ms. Saldivar and Selena are seated far apart. All that while guaranteeing that no one tries to harm the defendant.

The best way to avoid problems and confusion, Ms. Warner says, is "To get the word out: Don't come!"

"You are going to get better news coverage staying at home," she told the Houston Chronicle in Sunday editions.

Warner said "rumors abound" about what to expect as the Oct. 9 trial date nears.

Despite the change of venue to Harris County, interest in the case apparently has not waned since Selena's March 31 murder in a Corpus Christi motel room. Saldivar, Selena's fan club president, is charged with the shooting death.

Anyone hoping to see a part of the murder trial had better be exceptionally lucky.

Jury selection is closed to the public. When the 182-seat courtroom is opened for testimony, only between 25 and 50 seats will be available.

Prospective spectators must arrive at the downtown courthouse each day by 7:30 a.m., when tickets will be issued to each person for a drawing.

The lucky winners will get one-day spectator passes. They will share benches with 10 representatives of the Saldivar family, 10 of Selena's relatives and the media. Undercover officers will provide additional security in the courtroom.

Corpus Christi state District Judge Mike Westergren, who will preside in the courtroom of state District Judge Ted Poe, will fill the remaining seats at his discretion.

Anyone without proof of business on the fifth floor of the courthouse will be turned away, Ms. Warner said.

Israel trades land seized in war for chance at peace

TABA, Egypt (AP) — PLO chief Yasser Arafat was on the defensive today, trying to sell a peace plan he forged with Israel to skeptical Palestinians and members of his Cabinet.

The pact allows for Palestinian self-rule in 30 percent of the West Bank — containing most of its Arab population — after a step-by-step Israeli troop pull-out from lands it has occupied since the 1967 Mideast War.

The Israeli troop withdrawal will clear the way for Palestinians to elect a 82-member self-rule council with legislative and executive branches.

Arafat was to present the massive document — 460 pages in all — to his Cabinet later today.

"We should always seek the best, but we don't have to be perfect," Arafat said after meeting with Jordanian leaders in Amman. Critics have complained the agreement falls short of the goal of Palestinian independence.

Hebron Mayor Mustafa Natche was disappointed because the 450 Jewish settlers living in his town of 120,000 Palestinians would be allowed to stay.

"The symbols of occupation might disappear, such as the military headquarters from which the orders of occupation were issued," Natche told The Associated Press. "But the main problem, the settlers, will remain."

Jordan's Crown Prince Hassan was positive after meeting Arafat today, saying he hoped the pact would help "reconstruct and rehabilitate the Middle East."

But other Arab reaction was harsh. Syria, whose own peace talks with Israel are deadlocked, called the agreement slanted.

Iranian radio, monitored by the British Broadcasting Corp., accused Arafat of selling out the Palestinians. "Arafat has moved another step away from the Palestinian people and their aspirations," the radio said.

Libyan state television, also monitored by the BBC, called the accord a "big lie" and said it had squandered Palestinians' rights.

Militant Jewish settlers vowed to scuttle the agreement, but settler reaction was likely to be delayed until sundown Tuesday, the end of the Jewish New Year holiday.

The accord was initiated in Taba, an Egyptian resort on the Red Sea, by the chief negotiators, Ahmed Qureia of the Palestine Liberation Organization and Israel's Uri Savir. The signing in Washington is set for Thursday.

Israel's Channel Two TV said a pullout would begin within 10 days of the White House signing. But Israeli officials said it might be weeks before the first troops start withdrawing.

The agreement capped more than 80 hours of tense negotiations, including a shouting match Sunday between Arafat and Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres that caused the PLO leader stormed out.

Arafat was angry that Israel refused to expand the borders of the self-rule enclave in Jericho. There were also reports he wanted a more specific timetable for the release of about 5,000 Palestinians in Israeli jails.

But Arafat relented after Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin promised to discuss the prisoner issue in Washington before Thursday's signing, Palestinian sources said.

Other officials said talks got back on track after intervention by U.S. Mideast coordinator Dennis Ross and Egyptian officials.

Peres called the accord "history in the real meaning of the word."

"It is a tremendous attempt to bring people that were born in the same cradle, who were fighting on the same fronts, to agree on a new future," he said. President Clinton called the agreement "a big step on the road to a just and lasting peace in the Middle East."

Clinton telephoned five Israeli and Arab leaders — Rabin, Arafat, King Hussein of Jordan, President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt and King Hassan of Morocco — to invite each of them to the signing at the White House.

White House spokeswoman Ginny Terzano said all accepted except Hassan, who cited a scheduling conflict.

The agreement detailed security measures aimed at preventing conflict between radicals among the 140,000 Jewish settlers and the 1 million Arabs in the West Bank.

Rabin said Palestinians would get control over 30 percent of the 2,270-square-mile West Bank, which is about the size of Delaware.

The accord distinguishes between the seven cities where there will be full autonomy — Jenin, Nablus, Tulkarm, Qalqilya, Ramallah, Bethlehem and most of Hebron — and rural areas where overriding security authority will remain in Israeli hands.

President combines roles of godfather and candidate

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — President Clinton arrived as the Godfather, but he looked more like the Candidate, shaking every hand within reach and nearly kissing a lot of babies.

Clinton and first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton were in Scranton for the christening Sunday of 3-month-old Zachary Boxer Rodham, son of brother-in-law Tony Rodham and his wife, Nicole. The Clintons served as godparents, and the president scheduled no public or campaign activity during this trip.

Yet Clinton was all over Scranton. He shook hands at the airport, and outside the Rodham family home in Lake Winola, in front of the rustic Lakeview Market and the Court Street United Methodist Church, and along a street near a post-christening family gathering.

He seized a chance to point out, to the star-struck crowd that greeted him, how his administration is doing everything it can "to try to lift up the values of work and family and freedom and responsibility... to move the economy forward."

"I am gratified that, with all of our difficulties, we see the unemployment rate dropping, more jobs being created," Clinton said. "The crime rate, believe it or not, now is going down in all 50 states. We seem to be coming together again as a country, and looking to the future again."

Of course, as he worked the crowds with pledges of restoring "economic opportunity where it was taken away in the 1980s," Clinton also remained presidential. He congratulated Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization on their latest step toward peace, and telephoned five Middle East leaders to invite them to a formal signing ceremony this week at the White House.

The political undercurrent of Clinton's visit was not lost on the residents of Scranton. They lined every street of his travel route, and many mothers positioned themselves at the front of the crowds, holding their babies and toddlers up for the president to see.

Outside the church, the crowd chanted, "We Want Bill!" to lure him to them — and he complied, stepping from his limousine at least once to shake hands. Others chanted "Four More Years!" as Clinton glided by, and one man clutched a Clinton/Gore campaign poster.

'State of the Arts' tags available for Texas motorists to purchase

Texas Commission on the Arts has developed a new "Texas - State of the Arts" license plate, the sales of which will support the arts in Texas.

The license plate resembles a Texas flag with the words "State of the Arts" across the bottom of the plate. It is the first three-color plate that the Texas Department of Transportation has ever issued for official use by Texas motorists.

The cost of a "Texas - State of the Arts" plate is $25 per year in addition to the regular vehicle registration fee. Personalized plates are also available for $65 ($25 for the "State of the Arts" plate and $40 for personalized lettering) in addition to the regular registration fee.

Texas Cultural Endowment Fund will receive $20 from each set of plates. The fund, created in 1993 during the 73rd legislative session with an initial $2.2 million appropriation, is the nation's first state-created endowment for the arts. The goal of the commission is to build the fund to $200 million by the year 2005.

Applications for the new plates available from each county's tax assessor-collector office or by contacting the Texas Commission on the Arts at 1-800-252-9415.

TCA has also partnered with Alamo Rent a Car in developing a landmark program to generate dollars for the Texas Cultural Endowment Fund.

"The arts are a source of human insight and understanding about the world and ourselves. They connect us to the past and help us imagine new possibilities for the future," said John Paul Batiste.

"When you are 56th of 56 U.S. states and territories in per capita government funding of the arts, you need to look for creative approaches to strengthen the arts and their impact in communities of all sizes and locations," said Eduardo Diaz, director of arts and cultural affairs for the city of San Antonio.

Benny Kirksey, left, co-chairman of the Country Fair admission ticket sales, persuades Royce Jordan into purchasing a ticket to the 11th Annual Country Fair scheduled for Oct. 21 by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Country Fair admission, drawing tickets on sale

Tickets for $8,000 in cash prizes at the annual Country Fair are now on sale from Chamber of Commerce members.

Four winning stubs will be drawn for prizes of $5,000, $1,500, $1,000 and $500 at the Oct. 21 fair.

Drawing tickets may be purchased for $100 at the Chamber office, 200 N. Ballard, or from any Chamber board member, said Seleta Chance, publicity chair.

The drawing tickets may be purchased individually or by groups.

The drawing will take place during the evening's live auction, which begins at 8 p.m.

Other events during the fair will include:

- Silent auction — 5 to 8 p.m.
  - Bingo — 9 - 11 p.m.
  - Dance — 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.
- Admission to the fair is $15 per person. Tickets may be purchased at the Chamber of Commerce office, Malcolm-Hinkle Inc., Boatmen's First - Pampa Banking Center, First American Bank, FirstBank Southwest, National Bank of Commerce and Amarillo Federal Credit Union - Pampa Branch.

Admission and drawing tickets can be purchased by MasterCard, Visa, American Express or Discover cards at the Chamber office only.

Congressman takes up besieged doctor's case

HOUSTON (AP) — Dr. Stanislaw Burzynski needs every friend he can get, and he apparently has found one in a Texas congressman.

U.S. Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, is demanding an investigation into what he claims is malicious prosecution of the Houston doctor by federal prosecutors and the Food and Drug Administration.

For the past 12 years, Burzynski has been subject to a string of attempts by federal and state health officials to stop him from treating advanced cancer patients with an unconventional antineoplastic drug.

Burzynski and some of his patients claim the anti-tumor drug, first derived from human urine but now synthetically produced, has proven effective, but the FDA says a clinical trial is needed.

The doctor's southwest Houston office has been raided several times, with federal agents seizing drugs and records. The most recent raid was in March, hours after the doctor appeared on a national television show. Several federal grand juries have refused to indict Burzynski since 1985. He voluntarily testified before another panel in April, and that probe continues.

In a Sept. 7 letter to U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno, Barton asked the Justice Department for "a full investigation of very disturbing charges" against the U.S. Attorney's office in Houston.

"It indicates to me there's some sort of vendetta against Dr. Burzynski," Barton said, citing the repeated grand jury investigations.

"It is extraordinarily rare for a grand jury to fail to indict at the request of the U.S. Attorney," Barton wrote. "As far as I know, a grand jury failing to indict some three to four times on essentially the same base of facts is virtually unprecedented."

"It would appear that the FDA and the Justice Department are abusing the grand jury process to harass and punish Dr. Burzynski for persuading a federal judge that he is not violating the law by practicing medicine in the state of Texas."

Barton said his call for an inquiry was prompted by hearings this summer on the FDA conducted by his subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations. The doctor's case was brought before the panel to illustrate an alleged pattern of overzealous enforcement.

Barton gave Reno until the close of business Thursday to respond to his request but received no response. A spokesman for the U.S. Attorney's office in Houston refused comment on Burzynski.

The congressman has written a similar letter to U.S. Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala, whose department oversees the FDA.

In the latest state attack on Burzynski, the Texas Board of Medical Examiners last year placed his license on probation for 10 years, citing numerous violations of state law.

A state district judge in Austin overturned the board's action, prompting an appeal by the board to the Third Court of Appeals.

World briefs

Nobel strives to keep prize clean from lobbying

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The Nobel prizes have often been accused of being outdated, biased toward men, secretive.

But among all the criticisms hurled over the years, the one heard most rarely has been "corrupt."

Until this year. A leading Swedish newspaper, Dagens Nyheter, charged last month that the 1986 medicine prize for an Italian researcher was "bought" by the firm where she worked. The allegation became the hot topic in Sweden's scientific community and even spread to international discussions on the Internet.

While vehemently denied by Nobel officials and the prize-winner, the report nonetheless spotlighted an activity as old as the 94-year-old prizes: lobbying for a Nobel.

Prize officials insist they are never moved by promotion efforts. They acknowledge plenty of attempts have been made — from the wacky to the sophisticated — ever since the first award was given in 1901.

Influence attempts have ranged from outright offers of money or donations in return for a prize to coordinated nominations and letter-writing campaigns, officials say.

Chinese leaders hold meeting amid usual secrecy

BEIJING (AP) — Without a single mention in the state-run media, China's 220 most powerful Communist Party officials met today to plan the nation's economic strategy and to punish one of their number for alleged corruption.

Important as the meeting is, the government is keeping silent about it, illustrating how secretive the ruling party remains despite an increasing openness of the economy and of society as a whole.

Glimpses of the party's workings come mostly through backdoor channels: informed Chinese who don't want to be quoted by name and the Beijing-connected Hong Kong media.

According to those sources, the party's policy-setting Central Committee began its annual fall conclave today at a hotel on the capital's west side.

Police shut off the street outside the Jingxi Hotel's dull concrete edifice. Four soldiers guarded the main gate, above which a sign read: "Long live the great, glorious and correct Communist Party."

Dozens of black Mercedes-Benzes and Audis, the cars favored by party bosses, and a couple of ambulances took up part of the vast parking lot. A public restaurant run by the hotel was closed for a five-day "rest," according to a sign on the door.

Hindus flock to see possible miracle

FORT WORTH (AP) — The idea of a brass statue in Irving drinking milk might sound far-fetched, but it's been worth at least a look by thousands of North Texas Hindus over the weekend.

Some of the estimated 10,000 to 15,000 Hindus in the Dallas-Fort Worth area have visited the D-FW Hindu Temple since last Thursday once word that the image of the deity Shri Ganesji will sip spoon-fed milk offered by worshippers.

They were responding to reports from India that a devotee did exactly that to a statue of Shri Ganesji — Lord Ganesha — after being ordered to do it in a vision.

"I try to rationalize. But when I do not have an explanation, I give religion the benefit of the doubt," Rohit Kunjappa of Dallas said Sunday.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Congress must face challenge

The old saying used to be: "Nobody's life and property are safe so long as the Legislature is in session." With the advent and growth over the last several decades of the independent regulatory and rule-making agencies of the administrative state, however, the assault on our freedom and pocketbooks seems to go on continuously, regardless of whether the Legislature is officially deliberating.

Indeed, the 104th Congress has encouraged some Americans to believe once again in the possibility that it just might rein in or eliminate some of the more intrusive federal agencies who wage a quiet, persistent war of attrition on American liberties. But a great deal more needs to be accomplished before most Americans will believe the great ship of statism is being turned around or redirected.

The House of Representatives did pass most of the items in the House Republicans' "Contract with America," but the Senate has been more - well, deliberate. Only two of the contract's ten legislative proposals have become law. With those promises still twisting slowly in the wind, some leaders made more promises - extensive reforms of the Medicare system, a tax cut and a budget that will put the U.S. government on the road to a balanced budget by the year 2002.

It is fascinating that news stories describe the goal of a balanced budget fully seven years from now as radical and ambitious. Judging from what most Americans seemed to expect from the "revolutionary" 104th Congress, a balanced budget - perhaps achieved more quickly - could be seen as simply the opening bid in an effort to scale back the size and cost of the national government across the board.

Many House freshmen are ready not only to cut agency budgets but to eliminate agencies. But the Republican majorities in Congress are slim; the GOP leadership needs to get at least some Democratic votes to protect their agenda from presidential vetoes, which Mr. Clinton has shown himself willing to issue. And the longer a person stays in Congress, the more comfortable that person tends to become with existing arrangements.

Given those political realities, it is unlikely this current Congress will get radical reforms enacted into law. But Republican leaders should be willing to propose bold reforms such as eliminating the income tax, changing the welfare system drastically by giving states more authority, and eliminating entire departments or agencies.

Even if such plans are not enacted into law, they will become part of the continuing debate on the future of the United States and issues in next year's election campaigns. If the voters give the Republicans a bigger majority and control of the White House, after an election in which smaller government is acknowledged as a key issue, the new government will have a real mandate come 1997.

Congressional Republicans can earn such a mandate by making serious, bold proposals eliminating departments such as commerce, energy, education, eliminating government funding for the arts, reducing federal control of education, making the tax system less onerous to productive Americans, reforming welfare whether such proposals get passed this year or not.

Our system deliberately makes it difficult to make fundamental changes in the way we are governed quickly or precipitately. But fundamental changes will never be made unless serious proposals are introduced, debated, and made part of mainstream discourse. Getting that process well started is the challenge facing the Republican Congress in the next few months.

Bad idea in adoption overhaul

Certain "reforms," like bad pennies, keep turning up.

The state of Ohio is currently considering a complete overhaul of its adoption laws - ostensibly to remove barriers to adoption. But a great many of the features of the proposed law may have the opposite effect.

Half of the bills 130 pages deal with the "open records" issue. This is a hot ticket among anti-adoption and "search" groups, which managed to exert pressure on the task force appointed by Gov. George Voinovich. But advocates of adoption should cast a wary eye on the agenda of these groups. What they are seeking is an end to the decades-old practice of guaranteeing confidentiality in adoptions and thus to the security and permanence of adoptive families.

If you ask the average person whether secrecy in adoption should be maintained, he'll probably say no. It sounds un-American. But confidentiality serves important functions in this most sensitive area of human life.

One useful reform Ohio is proposing is to provide better information on medical and social histories of babies to their adoptive parents as well as a mechanism for updating such information should that become necessary (for example, when someone in the birth family comes down with a disease with a genetic link).

But opening all records is like capsizing a boat to put out a fire. In fact, the answer to adoptees wanting contact with birth parents (and vice versa) already exists under Ohio law. Ohio currently maintains a mutual consent registry for birth parents and adoptees. If, when an adoptee has reached the age of 21, he wants to contact his birth parents, he can register with the state. If his birth parent or parents have done the same, a meeting can be arranged easily.

The proposed reform would require that the birth mother, at the time of birth, sign something saying whether she would like her information released to the child when the child reaches the age of 18. Further, unless the adoptee registers with the state by the age of 25 that he does not wish contact with his birth family, his information will be released to his birth parents and/or birth siblings upon request.

How many birth mothers, at the highly emotional time of birth, will say that they do not wish the babies they are giving up to know them? Probably not very many, particularly if the state seems to be pushing them toward contact.

But many women who give up children for adoption do indeed want to keep their identities secret. How is a young woman to know what her circumstances will be in 18 years? Perhaps she will have a completely new family that knows nothing of this child. Perhaps she will be married to a less than understanding husband.

But more than that, the idea of requiring birth mothers to decide whether they want contact or not forwards the damaging idea that adoption can be seen as a temporary matter. Adoption, instead of being the permanent, inviolable formation of a new family, is subtly transformed in the hands of the open-records movement into something different - a temporary arrangement until the birth mother and adoptee are ready to resume their relationship.

Because I have written about adoption frequently (my older son is adopted), I receive a great deal of mail from adoptees and others involved in adoption. Many, many adoptees write of the pain they've experienced when sought after by birth parents they have no wish to see. And birth parents are often put in embarrassing, and sometimes extremely painful, situations by the unexpected and undesired arrival of an adoptee.

Nationally, only about 6% of adopted children ever search for their biological parents. According to data from the Search Institute, adopted children have higher levels of self-esteem than the population at large, are as deeply attached to their parents as are their non-adopted siblings, and tend to be happy.

Finally, consider this: In Great Britain and Australia, open-records laws led to 67% and 70% drops respectively in the number of adoptions annually. Ohio should tread carefully.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Sept. 25, the 268th day of 1995. There are 97 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On Sept. 25, 1493, Christopher Columbus set sail from Cadiz, Spain, with a flotilla of 17 ships on his second voyage to the Western Hemisphere.

On this date:

In 1513, Spanish explorer Vasco Nunez de Balboa crossed the Isthmus of Panama to reach the Pacific Ocean.

In 1789, the first U.S. Congress, meeting in New York, adopted 12 amendments to the Constitution and sent them to the states for ratification. Ten of the amendments became the Bill of Rights.

In 1890, Mormon president Wilford Woodruff issued a manifesto formally renouncing the practice of polygamy.

In 1904, a New York City police officer ordered a female automobile passenger on Fifth Avenue to stop smoking a cigarette. A male companion was arrested and later fined $2 for abusing the officer.

Reasons I miss the moral majority

Do you ever stop today and think about what things will be twanging your nostalgia strings tomorrow? About the things in contemporary life that you will really be missing down the road?

No? Well, that's why we have the Spear Foundation, a quirky little tank that never stops thinking. We have thought this matter through, and we can give you a pretty good idea of what tomorrow's nostalgia will look like.

Let us begin with an example: Rotary telephones. You know, the old dial kind. You weren't even aware you were missing them, were you? Well, consider this: If they hadn't invented touch-tone, there would be no faxes and no modems and no pagers and, most importantly, no stupid cellular telephones.

Now, how much do you miss rotary?
We at the SF believe studies would show that a third of all the pretentious people who walk down the street talking on their stupid cellular phones are not really talking on cellular phones. They are like the showoffs who, years ago, would drive around with their car windows closed to make people think they had air conditioning. Facts and figures would show, we believe, that many cellular phone users are talking to dead phones.

Of the real cellular users, how many have you seen that you would like to have as a friend? The woman who sits at a cafe table within eyesight of a coin phone and calls the au pair? The man who surveys the Blockbuster shelves as he tells his significant other what videos are still available? The real estate agent who stands in the espresso line and screams at some poor secretary back at the office who transposed a phone number?

We say they're a shallow, theatrical lot. We miss rotary.

Here are some other things you are going to miss:

- Cowboys. The kind Burl Ives sang about: "As I walked out in the streets of Laredo/As I walked out in Laredo one day..." The solitary guys who laid under the stars beside a heap of glowing cinders warming a coffee pot. The guys who were given a choice between the girl and the horse and picked the horse.

Today's cowboys ride pickups and carry portable computers. And on their little disks are records of every cow, their birth dates, their bloodlines, their diets, the projected dates when they will be large and tender enough to sell for slaughter.

If Burl were alive today, he might be finishing the verse like this: "I spied a young cowboy/A carryin' his laptop/For to do some calculatin'/And to order the hay."

- The Moral Majority. Yes, I know, I once said it would be a cold day in hell when I missed the MM, and pardon me while I put on my parka. Falwell and Friends were positively libertine compared to the Comstocks coming down the pike these days.

A group called the American Life League, which claims to have 300,000 members, has complained that the Disney people are using split-second imagery to send sexually oriented messages to young folks. There's a scene in The Lion King, the wowsers say, in which Simba plops on the ground and sends up a cloud of dust which swirls around and spells out the word "SEX."

Now I saw the same thing and, as a Baltimore Orioles fan, was highly offended to see the Disney cloud spell "SOX." A friend of mine who plays a clarinet got irritated when he saw the word "SAX." What ignorant and glibble fools we must be.

- Potheads and glue sniffers. Oh yes, you will miss them. When you start seeing young hooligans with purple hair and "Kurt lives!" carved into the sides of their heads pulling out toads and licking them, you will miss dopers.

Ah, friends, you haven't heard about this trend? The Colorado River toad secretes a milky fluid that is a mixture of psychoactive drugs, and this amphibian sap can make a person high. Agents of the Arizona Department of Fish and Game have been collaring people carrying toads for licking purposes.

You're going to miss the weed smokers, let me tell you.

Marching to the beat of little tin gods

One reason modern liberalism is washing out to sea, like silt, is - the insufferability of so many modern liberals. Who, having all the answers, don't need to hear your stupid, pathetic answers, thanks.

Exhibit A in North Texas: the Dallas Housing Authority's ongoing attempt to shoehorn a low-income housing project into a neighborhood of $200,000-plus homes.

Theoretically, this is to comply with an order from, who else, a federal judge, who hopes to disperse low-income residents throughout the community rather than leave them concentrated in particular areas. The judge, Democratic holdover Jerry Buchmeyer, has ordered DHA to "develop, through construction or acquisition, an additional 3,205 public housing family units in predominantly white areas."

The neighbors, you might say, are not charmed. They are making mortgage payments that average $2,000 a month. They see their futures threatened by the potential degradation of their neighborhood.

True, the housing units, costing as much as $45,000 each to build, would be anything but rinky-dink. Nor would criminals and other bad apples be allowed to live there, according to DHA Director Alphonso Jackson. Earlier, Jackson told me: "Our creed is: Living in public housing is a privilege, not a right. When you violate that privilege, you must go."

Good. Fine. On the other hand, who guarantees the continuance of such a policy? Suppose Jackson's successor falls asleep on the job and the drug dealers and rapists take over? There goes the neighborhood, $2,000-a-month mortgage payments and all.

William Murchison

We were speaking of modern liberalism's insufferability. Take a good look. It can be defined as the insufferability of unelected judges and bureaucrats who tell ordinary folk what's good for them, refusing to take back-talk, dismissing complaints as so much racist babble.

The spectacle of social engineers conceiving, then enforcing, a personal vision of who lives where is difficult to digest. Nothing like this was part of the founding vision of 1787. James Madison and Alexander Hamilton would stare with drooping jaws at the Buchmeyer-DHA machinations.

Buchmeyer, a liberal's liberal, will unquestionably give final approval to the DHA's war of aggression, probably lashing out, as he does so, at imaginary Klansmen encamped across the community.

And would that be the end of it? I wouldn't count on it. The proposed project and the jeopardized neighborhood are located in the district of the House majority leader, Dick Armev himself.

What liberal social engineers can dream, conservative political leaders can undo.

However, the matter is bigger than the politics of appropriation. The insufferability of modern liberalism resides in its distrustfulness of ordinary people. The social engineers view themselves as little tin gods. Boy, have they got the truth! Boy, should the rest of us be grateful when their exalted majesties share it with us!

Phooey! Rather than regard all 270 million Americans as clients dependent to one extent or another on federal beneficence - the liberal vision - we might think of trusting them.

Maybe we don't even need a Housing and Urban Affairs Department to decide where people live. We just might not if the social engineers got off our backs and made it more profitable to work than to live on government charity.

"To end poverty, reduce out-of-wedlock births, and give poor children hope for the future," writes Armev in his new book, The Freedom Revolution, "we must scrap today's failed welfare system and replace dependency with work, marriage, and personal responsibility (as was the case) in America from the founding right up through the fourth decade of this century."

As they used to say in the '60s: Right on, brother! I don't know of many political-economic-social vexations that can't be cured or ameliorated by exorcising the social engineers - the very task we've been working on since '94. There's clearly more work to be done.

Columbia set to take off on 16-day mission

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The countdown began today for this week's launch of space shuttle Columbia on a 16-day laboratory research mission.

NASA's countdown clocks started ticking at 4 a.m. EDT.

Columbia is due to blast off at 9:35 a.m. Thursday with seven astronauts who will split 12-hour work shifts in orbit to accomplish a variety of fluid, crystal and plant experiments.

NASA last week cleared Columbia for flight after examining O-rings in the solid-fuel rocket boosters used to launch Endeavour earlier this month. The O-rings in Endeavour's nozzle joints were unscathed due to a new method used to inject thermal insulation. Columbia underwent similar nozzle repairs.

It will be NASA's sixth shuttle flight this year.

Aftershocks jostle Southern California regions

RIDGECREST, Calif. (AP) — A series of aftershocks to a powerful earthquake jostled Southern California's Mojave Desert, but no damage or injuries were reported.

At least six aftershocks — the largest with a magnitude of 4.9 — rattled this Kern County town 100 miles north of Los Angeles on Sunday.

The quakes were among more than 400 aftershocks since a magnitude-5.8 quake struck last Wednesday. A magnitude-5.4 quake centered in the area hit on Aug. 17.

Report: Sentencing in drug convictions unfair to blacks

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Sentencing in drug convictions — especially crack cocaine — has had an unfair impact on blacks, a computer analysis concluded.

A computer analysis by The Tennessean found blacks get prison sentences about 10 percent longer than whites for similar federal crimes.

Whites convicted in 1992-93 received an average sentence of 33 months, while blacks got 36 months, The Tennessean reported Sunday. The computer study examined all 80,000 federal court convictions during the two years, comparing cases where the seriousness of the crime and criminal histories were equal.

Richard Conaboy, chairman of the U.S. Sentencing Commission, says the disparity likely could be explained by the differing aspects of each individual case.

But he and others agreed drug sentencing has been unfair to blacks.

American pilots unhappy with shoot-down policy for smugglers hauling contraband over Peru jungle

By JOSH LEMIEUX
Associated Press Writer

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The radar detects a plane hauling coca leaf over the Peruvian jungle. The technology runs cleanly, precisely. That's not what bothers some American government employees. It's what happens next.

Using radar data from the U.S. Customs Service and the U.S. Air Force, Colombian and Peruvian fighters are intercepting and, in some cases, shooting down airborne drug smugglers.

At least 27 flights have been forced to land, seized or destroyed on the ground, or shot out of the sky since the Air Force resumed its radar-sharing program in March, said Lt. Col. Byron Conover, spokesman for the U.S. Southern Command in Panama. He said he could not break out the number of planes fired upon.

Pentagon officials say Operation Constant Vigil makes it harder for Colombian drug chiefs to airlift raw coca from Peru to cocaine processing labs in Colombia. Peru is the source of at least 60 percent of the world's coca leaf.

Supporters say disrupting air routes pressures the Cali cocaine cartel, which has seen six of its top leaders fall into the hands of Colombian police since June.

But some Customs agents believe the operation strays beyond their duty to enforce smuggling laws and arrest offenders.

"I don't think we should be doing it," said John Fowler, a Corpus Christi-based radar operator who flies aboard the Lockheed P-3 during the surveillance flights over South America. "I'm a Christian man. I am a believer. How can I as a believer

Lovett Library sponsors annual TLA District II meeting to discuss legislation and meetings

The Lovett Memorial Library hosted the Texas Library Association District II annual meeting this weekend as 58 area librarians gathered together to discuss the upcoming legislative meetings and programs.

"We always meet in an area library," said Dan

Snider, head librarian of the Lovett Memorial Library.

"And this year we offered to have everybody here." Snider continued by saying that "this is an opportunity to have librarians gather together" and discuss "anything that would be of interest to librarians."

Farmers everywhere open operations to sightseers

ROMULUS, N.Y. (AP) — A 400-pound sow is stretched out in utter repose, one bleary eyed piglet pulling at a teat, the other 10 sleeping in the hay. They're just 4 days old.

"She gave birth in front of 50 to 60 people," hog farmer Fred Sepe says during a guided tour of his Misty Meadow Farm. "She performed very well."

Sightseers are getting unusual access to that most venerable of American institutions — the working farm.

More than a dozen farms around New York state, and hundreds nationwide, have opened their gates to visitors over the last decade or two, oftentimes to help keep from going out of business.

For 10 weeks each summer, Fred and Anne Sepe invite people to ramble around their 150-acre spread, and the couple somehow balances the daily toil of farm work with educating and amusing thousands of guests.

"I think that everybody's infatuated with the farm," Sepe said. "People are really looking for a simpler way of life. When they see farming, they kind of just want to touch it. And this is a heaven for kids."

In the barn, boys are taking turns jumping in the hay. Outside, two 6-year-old girls have cornered a flock of ducklings, hoping to grab a cuddle. The tractor-drawn hay wagon is pulling out again, laden with families, for a ride into fields of sunflowers, soybeans and hay.

Once they get used to the country smells — one child got a chorus going on the hay wagon with her "Eeee-uuu!" declaration — youngsters are usually busy feeding the turkeys, chickens, woolly sheep, geese, ducks, miniature goat and the least sleepy of the 1,400 hogs.

It's an urban dweller's dream-cape, as the Sepes can attest. The fiftysomething couple, who grew up in New York City, tried out a 13-acre "hobby farm" in New Jersey before moving their five children to upstate New York in 1976.

Misty Meadow is one of 11 veal, dairy and hog farms, nearly all run by Amish families, that stretch along a country road east of this village in the heart of the Finger Lakes. It was such a big hit with local schoolchildren on field trips and passersby asking to take a gander that the Sepes opened it to tourists in 1982.

"We had to increase revenue somehow, and being from the city, I know what it is to ride around the roads and ask, 'What is this farm doing, what is that farm doing?'" Sepe said.

It hasn't all been easy going. The profit-per-hog has shrunk, forcing many hog farmers to expand or sell out.

"When we came here, there were about 40 hog farmers in Seneca County," Sepe said. "There are probably 15 now."

Hurt by U.S. embargoes that sent cash-crop buyers elsewhere in the 1980s, the couple eventually had to file for bankruptcy. Business has since picked up again, helped by the day-tripper trade — $4.50 a head for adults, $2 for children.

According to the New York Farm Bureau, bringing in extra money is the major reason for the tourist farms in the state and the hundreds it estimates operate around the country.

Chemical company accused of using political persuasion

FORT WORTH (AP) — Political influence by a farm chemicals company might have been used to thwart investigations and lawsuits over its suspected arsenic contamination of two North Texas sites, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported in a copy-right story.

A problem that began with dead cattle and dying vegetation discovered on a plot of land around the Voluntary Purchasing Group Inc.'s plant between Bonham and Ector is still being litigated.

Allegations of political involvement by luminaries such as Bob Slagle, the state Democratic Party chairman have been made by those who want to see VPG in court, the Star-Telegram reported Sunday.

State soil tests on grounds surrounding the farm chemicals plant about three miles west of Bonham, the Fannin County seat, showed arsenic levels more than 50 times higher than those deemed safe by federal standards. The case involves more than 1,000 plaintiffs against VPG and other companies because of a similar problem in nearby Commerce, where the company operated an arsenic acid plant between 1961 and 1971. State water officials had forced the closure of that facility, but the company opened their Bonham plant four months later.

"This was a case, just on the face of it, that was so blatant and ugly that I was enthusiastic about making an example out of them," former state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower told the newspaper in a recent interview.

The state's probe into the matter includes hundreds of pages of reports, sworn statements, inspections and test results.

No one living in Bonham, a city of about 6,800 residents, including the woman whose 1988 report of dead cattle sparked the investigation, would speak on the record to the Star-Telegram because of fear of retaliation.

About two dozen Bonham residents recently sued the company, alleging contamination. The company has denied all charges related to arsenic pollution.

After the company barred state inspectors in 1990, the case stalled for five years. Finally, VPG disavowed liability while agreeing to pay a $25,000 settlement over the alleged sales of unregistered fertilizers.

The pollution case has been transferred to the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, spokesman Patrick Shaughnessy said.

The 13 dead cattle found in 1988 belonged to Gaylen Murray, a 40-year VPG veteran who said he didn't ask how arsenic got onto the land the company had subleased to him.

Current Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry, a Republican, has suggested the case against VPG be brought to trial. He blames VPG counsel Slagle, the Texas Democratic boss, for providing the political barriers that has kept VPG out of the courtroom.

"I think there may have been a time when politics poked its ugly little head into this," Perry said.

Slagle agreed, but with a different angle.

DENTON — Andrew Berzanskis and Debra Smith of Pampa have been named semifinalists in the 1995-96 National Merit Scholarship Competition.

Berzanskis, the son of Cheryl and Peter Berzanskis, and Smith, the daughter of Kay and Melvin Smith, are second year students at the Texas Academy of Mathematics and Science at the University of North Texas.

The two year early admissions program offers gifted students a chance to complete their freshman and sophomore years of college while earning their high school diplomas. Academy students enroll after their Sophomore year of high school, live in a UNT residence hall and attend UNT classes with college students.

Berzanskis and Smith attended Pampa High School before entering the academy in August 1994. They are among 15,000 high school students in the nation selected as National Merit semifinalists for scoring in the top 5% on the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test. More than a million high school juniors took the exam, which was administered by the College Board in October 1994.

About 90% of National Merit semifinalists will be selected as finalists in February and become eligible for one of 6,500 National Merit Scholarships, which range in value from $500 to $2,000 per year. The National Merit Scholarship Corporation will begin mailing scholarship offers in March.

Army Pvt. Devin G. King, a 1994 Pampa High School graduate, has completed the cannon fire direction specialist course at Fort Sill, Lawton, Okla.

Students were instructed how to operate and maintain a digital automated computer for field artillery and a cannon fire direction center with the purpose of compiling target lists.

King is the son of Dennis W. and Doris M. King of Pampa.

GREAT LAKES, Ill. — Navy Seaman Recruit Trevor J. Scruggs, son of Kristy J. Daniels McLean and Navy Airman Recruit Toby J. Smith, son of Fred N. and Vesta C. Smith both of McLean, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command at Great Lakes.

During the eight-week program, Scruggs and Smith completed a variety of training which included classroom study, practical hands-on instruction, and an emphasis on physical fitness. In particular, these men learned naval customs, first aid, fire fighting, water safety and survival, and a variety of safety-skills required for working around ships and aircraft.

Scruggs and other recruits also received instruction on the Navy's core values — honor, courage and commitment, and what the words mean in guiding personal and professional conduct. Scruggs joins 55,000 men and women who will enter the Navy this year from all over the country.

People overcome by carpet fumes

BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) — Officials blame fumes from a carpet glue for overcoming more than two dozen people at a mall.

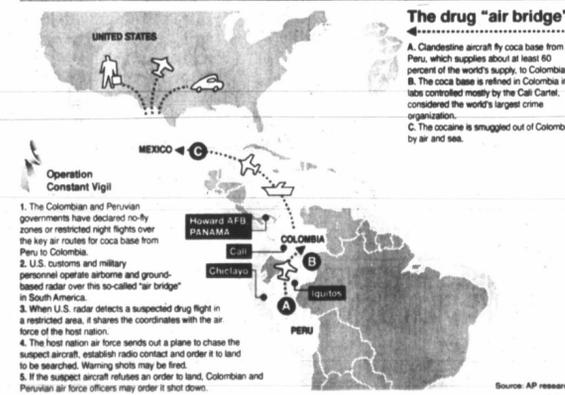

About 30 people were taken to Baytown hospitals — none with serious injuries — Saturday after being overcome at a San Jacinto Mall department store.

James Destefano, nursing supervisor at San Jacinto Methodist Hospital, said adhesive being used to install new carpet in the store caused the problem.

Misty Buchanan, a pet store clerk, said the stench drifted down the mall corridor from the department store.

"It stunk like bad! And then people came in here, and they were coughing, and they said it burnt their nose and hurt their chest, and it was strong, and it like knocked the air out of them," Ms. Buchanan said.

ranking air force officer of Peru or Colombia can give a "kill order."

"They don't simply fly up to it and shoot it down," said a Pentagon official who supports the program. "We think it is a rigorous process and drug traffickers go into these areas at their own peril."

Others are less certain. Critics cite two midair interventions with tragic consequences.

On April 14, 1994, a pair of U.S. fighter jets enforcing the no-fly zone over northern Iraq shot down two U.S. Army Black Hawk helicopters they had mistaken for Iraqi craft. All 26 people aboard were killed.

An investigation found that a radar plane failed to warn the fighters of the choppers' presence.

On July 3, 1988, the USS Vincennes shot down an Air Iran plane carrying 290 people. The Vincennes believed the airliner was an attacking fighter jet.

"We cannot take the chance of having such a tragedy repeated in the tension-loaded Andean drug-smuggling environment," said J. Randolph Babbitt, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, in opposing the plan in Congress last year. Babbitt's organization represents 42,000 civilian pilots.

"Our members and their passengers would be at risk." But it's the question of due process that nags at some crew members.

"How can you justify this situation when our Constitution says innocent until proven guilty?" asked Fowler, who was suspended for five days in 1993 for refusing to participate in a similar operation in Ecuador.

"This definitely doesn't jibe with our version of democracy and our version of human rights," complained another radar operator, who spoke on condition of anonymity to protect his job.

"Probable cause doesn't warrant the death penalty. Mistakes can happen."

Wife of Alzheimer's Sufferer Must Also Care for Herself

DEAR ABBY: In 1980, at the age of 50, my husband, Gary, was diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease. Initially I cared for him alone. Then, in order to make ends meet, I took a job as a waitress. Gary's parents, both in their 80s at the time, stepped in to help with his care because Gary tended to wander, no longer wanted to bathe or change his clothes, and had become incontinent.

Caring for someone with Alzheimer's is lonely and difficult. I've watched Gary deteriorate over the last 14 years. My responsibilities have increased and our roles have completely reversed. I've become the breadwinner and must make all the decisions now. Our friends have deserted us.

These changes took such a toll on me that I became very depressed. In 1992 my doctor told me the stress of caregiving had elevated my blood pressure, which aggravated my arthritis. The pain eventually became so severe I was forced to quit my job, which made me even more depressed.

I then became involved with the local chapter of the Alzheimer's Association. I had formerly resisted joining the support group because I thought it would mean sitting around with a bunch of crybabies. How wrong I was! The members were caregivers, too; they knew firsthand exactly what I was going through. We help each other.

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

They're like family. I can phone one of them at any hour if Gary's illness becomes too much for me to bear.

Caregivers for people with Alzheimer's must give themselves permission to reach out for help. The Alzheimer's Association offers support groups, education sessions, free literature and a helpline.

Thanks, Abby, for the opportunity to tell my story. I hope other caregivers who see this letter will make use of the resources available in their communities.

ERMA ZIMMERMAN, SIOUX CITY, IOWA

DEAR MRS. ZIMMERMAN: So do I. An estimated 70 percent of the 4 million Americans with Alzheimer's are cared for at home. Since nearly 80 percent of the caregivers report high levels of stress-induced psychological and physical ailments, family support is crucial in Alzheimer's care to reduce stress and help families maintain a high level of patient care. This keeps families together longer, delaying costly placement in nursing homes.

Too many caregivers have no support. They must attend to their own needs in order to care for their loved ones.

The Alzheimer's Association has a network of more than 200 chapters in 50 states providing programs and services to assist families. People can call their local chapter for referral to these programs and services in their communities, or the national toll-free number is (800) 272-3900.

The 1995 Alzheimer's Association Memory Walk is the only national fund-raiser for Alzheimer's disease. It will be held Oct. 7 and 8. To register or to learn more about the Memory Walk, contact your local chapter. Those who can't walk may participate by sponsoring someone who is walking, or by making a small donation.

CROSS COUNTRY

AMARILLO — Jenny Fatheree of Pampa ran a 12:53 to place second in the girls' Division Two at the Amarillo Invitational held Saturday at Thompson Park.

In the boys' Division Two, Trent Davis of Pampa was 17th (18.25) and teammate John Resendiz was 22nd (18.34).

Pampa placed 7th in the girls' division and 8th in the boys' division.

TENNIS

MOSCOW (AP)

Magdalena Maleeva overcame a slow start in a rare morning final to defeat Russia's Yelena Makarova, 6-4, 6-2, and win the indoor Moscow Ladies Open for the second straight year.

BASEBALL

ATLANTA (AP) — Pitcher Carlos Perez of the Montreal Expos remained in police custody, more than 24 hours after being arrested on charges of rape and aggravated sodomy.

Perez, 24, was being held at the Atlanta City Jail, accused of raping a 20-year-old woman he met for a blind date at a bar. He was arrested at the team hotel Saturday morning.

A preliminary hearing was scheduled for today. At that time, Perez will seek to be freed on bond.

BOXING

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Manuel Medina won a 12-round split decision over Alejandro Gonzalez to take his WBC featherweight title.

Gonzalez, 22, was defending his title for the fourth time. He dropped to 37-3. Medina improved to 51-6.

TRACK AND FIELD

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Algerian Noureddine Morceli won the 1,500 meters by 40 meters at the inaugural All African International Invitation track and field meet.

Morceli, the three-time world 1,500-meter champion and holder of four world records, was timed in 3 minutes, 39.01 seconds.

Britain's Linford Christie became the first sprinter to break 10 seconds for 100 meters in Africa, blazing to victory in 9.97 at the inaugural All African International Invitational.

BERLIN (AP) — Kenya's Sammy Lelei came within 12 seconds of running the fastest marathon ever, clocking 2 hours, 7 minutes, 2 seconds, in winning the Berlin Marathon.

Lelei's time fell just short of the world record of 2:06:50 by Ethiopia's Belayneh Densimo in 1988.

CYCLING

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Laurent Jalabert of France won the 50th Tour of Spain, completing the 21-stage race in 95 hours, 30 minutes, 33 seconds.

Jalabert's victory was all but assured midway in the race when the Frenchman put more than five minutes between himself and his closest challenger, Abraham Olano of Spain, who was riding for the Mapei-GB team.

AUTO RACING

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt has been around long enough to know the enormity of the task he faces in trying to catch streaking Jeff Gordon.

But the seven-time Winston Cup champion also knows his only chance is to run at the front of the pack and hope.

"The points battle is a tough deal right now, being so far behind," Earnhardt said Sunday after winning the Goody's 500 at Martinsville Speedway and cutting Gordon's Winston Cup lead to 275 points with five races remaining.

Hurricanes drop out of Top 25 football poll

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — A 1-2 record has landed Miami in some very unfamiliar territory: out of the Associated Press college football poll.

The Hurricanes, No. 17 last week, ended a decade-long run in the Top 25 after losing to Virginia Tech 13-7 Saturday. It was Miami's first loss to an unranked opponent since 1984.

Miami has toppled from the poll for the first time since Oct. 14, 1985, ending a 160-week run. Miami received just 17 votes, 13 more than Miami of Ohio.

"I don't care if we're rated No. 3 or 53," Miami coach Butch Davis said Sunday. "It doesn't have an effect on anything."

"Our players know results will come as a result of their efforts. Polls mean more at the end of the year, not after the second or third week."

The Hurricanes may have lost more than a spot in the poll. Starting quarterback Ryan Collins suffered a separated right shoulder in the second quarter of Saturday's game and could be out for up to five weeks.

That means Miami will face No. 1 Florida State in two weeks with little-tested sophomore Ryan Clement handling quarterbacking duties.

But Davis says it isn't time to write off the season.

"I still believe we got a football team that could win every game on its schedule," Davis said.

Colorado rose three spots in the poll to No. 4 after beating then-No. 3 Texas A&M 29-21. But the victory could prove costly for the Buffaloes because star quarterback Koy Detmer injured his right knee and may be out for the season.

Florida State and Nebraska, who have been ranked 1-2 all season, remained that way following easy victories over outmanned opponents.

Florida State received 42 first-place votes and 1,528 points after beating Central Florida 46-14, while Nebraska got 18 firsts and 1,498 points after defeating Pacific 49-7.

Florida, which didn't play Saturday, moved up one place to No. 3 with two first-place votes and 1,399 points.

Southern Cal remained fifth in the media poll following a 31-10 victory over Arizona. Rounding out the Top 10 were Penn State, Ohio State, Michigan, Texas A&M and Oklahoma.

Penn State beat Rutgers 59-34, Ohio State downed Pittsburgh 54-14, Michigan was idle and Oklahoma defeated North Texas 51-10.

Virginia was 11th, followed by Tennessee, Auburn, LSU, Notre Dame, Kansas State, Maryland, Washington, Oregon, Alabama, Texas, Stanford, Arkansas, Texas Tech and Kansas.

Notre Dame jumped six spots after beating Texas 55-27. The Longhorns fell eight notches.

Maryland rose seven places after defeating Duke 41-28, while Oregon dropped seven spots after losing to Stanford 28-21.

Stanford, Arkansas, Texas Tech and Kansas moved into the Top 25 for the first time this season. Arkansas beat Memphis 27-20, Texas Tech was idle and Kansas defeated Houston 20-13.

Dropping out of the rankings were UCLA, Georgia and Arizona.

UCLA lost to Washington State 24-15 and Georgia was beaten by Mississippi 18-10.

Cowboys down Cardinals to extend record to 4-0

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING (AP) — Nothing shakes the soul of the Dallas Cowboys like an injury to Emmitt Smith, who is taking dead aim on Eric Dickerson's NFL season rushing record.

The Cowboys have proved they can win without Troy Aikman but not Smith. Two years ago, the Cowboys lost both games that Smith missed during a contract dispute.

Smith has led the Cowboys to their first unbeaten September in 12 years, but an elbow injury had him sweating in the locker room after a 34-20 win over the Arizona Cardinals.

"Emmitt's our touchdown man," said wide receiver Michael Irvin. "We have to have him leading us."

Smith scored two touchdowns, rushed for a 116 yards and had 53 yards receiving.

Smith fell hard on his left elbow late in the game and said, "I lost the feeling in my fingers. For a while there, I couldn't move them. I was scared because I must have hit a nerve or something but I think I'll be back running fine. Everything will be OK."

Smith was to be examined again today after the swelling goes down. He is leading the NFL in rushing with 543 yards. Dickerson set the NFL rushing record with 2,277 yards in one season.

"I think I'm more focused and more determined than I've ever been," Smith said. "The offensive line is on a huge role."

Smith was hampered with hamstring problems last year and two seasons ago had shoulder injuries.

Dallas (4-0) hasn't started out this well since 1983, when the Cowboys started 7-0.

Arizona (1-3), which had yielded an NFL-worst 196 yards per game rushing, watched Smith beat them on the ground and through the air.

"It's just a pleasure to watch Emmitt, whether he's running or receiving," said fullback Daryl Johnston, who clears a path for Smith with his crunching blocks. "It's great to start 4-0 but we still have things to work on. We haven't played great Cowboys football in two weeks."

Quarterback Troy Aikman said he's having fun just feeding the ball to Smith. "Emmitt played just a sensational game," Aikman said.

"He really ran hard."

Smith went over 100 yards for the fourth consecutive game. He scored a touchdown for the 11th consecutive game to tie Lenny Moore of the old Baltimore Colts for the third longest streak in NFL history.

Smith scored on runs of 6 and 1-yard in the first half but made his most spectacular moves on a 40-yard reception from Aikman for the third Dallas touchdown, breaking five tackles.

Dave Krieg threw two touchdown passes. He hit Larry Centers with a 13-yard touchdown pass in the first half and found Rob Moore with a 25-yarder against a prevent defense with 46 seconds left.

Cardinals coach Buddy Ryan said his team had trouble tackling the elusive Smith.

"It's hard to win when you don't tackle well," said Ryan. "Emmitt, Aikman and Irvin hurt us bad. Those three guys are great players. Everybody knows that."

Irvin said the Cowboys feel an unbeaten season is possible.

"Nothing is unrealistic," Irvin said. "We're keeping our dream alive."

Chandler leads Oilers over Bengals

CINCINNATI (AP) — It was the finest moment of Chris Chandler's eight-year career, and that's probably why he wasn't very excited about it.

Chandler has been through a lot of disappointment with a lot of teams — five in all — during his unremarkable career. A near-miss with an NFL completion record doesn't make up for the rough times.

The quarterback showed little emotion after coming one incompletion short of an NFL record Sunday while leading the Houston Oilers to a 38-28 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals. Chandler figured that's as it should be.

"If I was a younger guy that hadn't seen a lot of things, it would probably be more exciting," he said. "I'm just excited to get the win."

While Chandler calmly completed 23 of 26 for 352 yards and a career-high four touchdowns, those around him marveled.

"You never expect a quarterback to be able to go out and do that to you," said Bengals cornerback Mike Brim, burned for three of the four first-half touchdowns.

Franks sparks Lefors past Vernon Northside

VERNON — Senior quarterback Keith Franks had the Lefors offense cranked up.

Franks threw three touchdown passes and ran for two more as Lefors walloped Northside, 51-6, in 6-man action Friday night.

Franks

Franks tossed two TD passes to Jeremy Howard and one to Josh Atkins. Howard and Junior Woodard each ran for one touchdown.

Lefors' big quarter was the second in which the Pirates scored 38 points. One of Franks' touchdowns was a 45-yard punt return in that quarter.

Lefors totaled 413 yards while its defense held Vernon to 155. The Pirates' defense forced Northside into six turnovers.

Vernon's only score came in the second quarter on a 3-yard run by Daniel Shugart.

Lefors is now 2-1 on the season while Northside falls to 1-2.

The Pirates visit Follett for their next game Friday night. After opening the season with a 43-12 loss to Silvertown, the Pirates came back to defeat Higgins, 43-12.

PHS tennis team notches upset over Borger High

BORGER — The Pampa High School varsity team scored a major upset by defeating two-time defending District 1-4A champion Borger this past Saturday.

Pampa won, 11-7, in gaining their first district win of the fall season. The win improved the Harvesters to 6-4 on the year.

"The team gave a much-improved effort from our previous two district matches and the results were significant. We must continue to show such improvement and determination in the next three weeks," said PHS coach Larry Wheeler.

Players of the week are senior Brooks Gentry and junior Cami Stone. The team next plays this Saturday at home against Canyon. Gentry has an 8-2 singles record while Stone is 4-4.

Pampa 8th graders take second at Borger tourney

BORGER — The Pampa Middle School team won two of three matches to place second at the Borger 8th grade Volleyball Tournament over the weekend.

Pampa won over Borger, 15-11, 15-6, in the opening match with Tandy Morton and Schuyler leading the way for the local 8th graders with 9 and 6 service points, respectively.

Pampa lost to Hereford, 6-15, 10-15, in the second match. Emily Waters scored 5 points for Pampa.

Pampa defeated Canyon, 15-8, 15-2, for second place. Candace Cathey and Morton had 11 points each for Pampa.

In the B team division, Pampa lost to Dumas, 12-15, 1-15, in the championship match. Emily Curtis led Pampa with 4 service points.

In the first match, Pampa beat Hereford, 15-5, 15-12. Becky Aderholt led Pampa with 10 points while Mary Grace Fields added 6.

In the second match, Pampa downed Borger, 15-10, 15-8. Aderholt scored 11 points and Haley Rex had 6.

VOLLEYBALL

The Pampa Middle School girls host Valleyview at 5:30 p.m. Monday.

FRITCH — Fort Elliott boosted its record to 11-5 over the weekend with dual wins at Fritch.

Fort Elliott defeated Dalhart, 15-10, 15-10, and Fritch, 15-11, 15-7.

In one match, Fort Elliott's Dana Trimble served 11 of the 15 points. Misty Morgan and April Purcell were also impressive for the Lady Cougars while Misty Walker came off the bench to spark the team.

Fort Elliott hosts Fritch Saturday.

PAMPA — The Pampa Lady Harvesters travel to Caprock on Tuesday for a District 1-4A match with the Caprock Lady Longhorns. Pampa is 1-3 in district play and 7-9 overall. Caprock is 0-3 in district and 6-11 for the season.

United States tops Sweden to clinch berth in Davis Cup finals

By TIM DAHLBERG
 AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The glitter and glamour of Las Vegas will be nothing but a fond memory the next time the U.S. Davis Cup team gets together in the icy cold of Moscow. The chance for the United States to win the Davis Cup title for the first time since 1992, however, has hometown hero Andre Agassi looking forward to the trip. "I have never been to Moscow, so hopefully it will be a great week," Agassi said after the U.S. team clinched a berth in the finals Sunday with a 4-1 win over Sweden.

Agassi and Pete Sampras, the world's top two players, will be part of the team that meets Russia, a surprise semifinal winner of Germany in Moscow beginning Dec. 1. Todd Martin figures to be, too, after making the most of his last-minute substitution for the injured Agassi to beat Sweden's Thomas Enqvist in straight sets and clinch the semifinal win for the United States on the outdoor court at Caesars Palace. "This is my best moment in tennis," said Martin, who had lost in doubles the day before. "The support they gave me even after finding out their home boy couldn't play was really tremendous. I was just glad that I could perform well for him."

Agassi, who had hoped to clinch the Davis Cup semifinal against Sweden before his hometown fans, found himself joining them at court-side instead after a muscle pull forced him to pull out of his match with Enqvist. While the shirtless, bandaged Agassi watched, Martin stepped in and beat Enqvist 7-5, 7-5, 7-6 (7-2) to give the United States the clinching match before a noisy crowd of 11,503. Martin tossed his racket high in the air, hugged Agassi and U.S. coach Tom Gullikson and then cried tears of joy after putting the U.S. team into the finals against Russia. Sampras, playing after Martin in a match that meant nothing, came back to beat Mats Wilander 2-6, 7-6 (7-4), 6-3. U.S. players won all four singles matches, losing only Saturday's doubles to Sweden. Agassi, who had been emotional about playing his first major competition in the city where he grew up and still lives, sat at court-side, cheering his teammates on. Agassi pulled the muscle in Friday's match against Mats Wilander, but it was not until he woke up Sunday morning that he finally decided it was serious enough that he couldn't play. "It was a tough decision on one hand, but easy on the other," Agassi said. "It is difficult because you want to play. You want to go out there for a lot of reasons. But it was easy in the sense that there is no question that Todd was going to bring more to the table today than myself."

Agassi, with girlfriend Brooke Shields providing comforting hugs, watched as Martin took advantage of some early tentative play and crucial mistakes by Enqvist to take the deciding win. Martin knew Agassi was hurt but did not know until 90 minutes before Sunday's match that he would play. He spent part of the night before in the Caesars Palace casino, not sure whether he would be needed. "I was in limbo," Martin said. "After I took a fair beating at the casino tables, I figured I'd better get prepared for it in case I played. Of course, I didn't have any money left."

Martin, the world's 19th-ranked player, took advantage of some crucial mistakes by Enqvist late in the first and second sets to turn the day's second match between Sampras and Wilander into nothing more than an exhibition. Down 5-4 in the first set, Martin fought off two set points, one on a disputed call, to pull even. He broke Enqvist in the second game, then captured the set when the Swede netted a return of serve. The scenario nearly repeated itself in the second set, as Martin took advantage of a double-fault by Enqvist with the two tied 5-5 before serving up a backhand winner to break his serve. "A lot of good things happened at the right time early," Martin said.

Russia dropped the first-day singles on Friday, then began its comeback when Yevgeny Kafelnikov and Andrei Olholovskiy won Saturday's doubles. Kafelnikov then pulled Russia even with a 6-1, 7-6 (7-5), 6-2 victory Sunday over Bernd Karbacher, a last-minute replacement for Boris Becker, who was sidelined by a back injury. When Stich's double-fault gave Russia the victory, Chesnokov fell to his knees and grabbed his head. Then his teammates picked him up and tossed him in the air as the indoor Olympic Stadium crowd of over 10,000 went into a frenzy. "Andre showed that he's a real player, a real fighter and a real Russian," Kafelnikov said. It marked only the fifth time a team had won in Davis Cup world group play after trailing 2-0. Sweden accomplished the same feat against the United States in last year's semifinals.

Packers' Favre ties NFL passing record

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — With a pair of touchdown passes, Brett Favre joined some select company Sunday night. Favre tied an NFL record held by Dan Marino, Johnny Unitas and Don Meredith when he threw for at least two TDs in his 12th straight game, and the Green Bay defense stymied Jacksonville for a 24-14 victory. Green Bay (3-1), off to its best since a 4-1 beginning to the strike-shortened 1982 season, could have beaten the expansion Jaguars (0-4) even worse, but the Packers had a pass intercepted near the goal line, missed a field goal, failed to cover an on-sides kick and gave up a long punt return which led to a Jacksonville touchdown. Still, the Jaguar offense, rated last in the NFL, couldn't take advantage of its chances — even with the return of left tackle Tony Boselli, the No. 2 overall selection in the April draft who missed all of the preseason and the first three games with an injured left knee.

State briefs

Implant maker accused of using call girl

HOUSTON (AP) — A breast implant manufacturer has been accused in a lawsuit of using a former prostitute to gather personal information from a husband whose wife is a plaintiff in legal action against the implant maker.

The lawsuit filed last week accuses attorneys for Baxter Healthcare Inc. of using a private investigator and a former prostitute to pry into the personal lives of at least eight implant recipients who are now suing Baxter.

The eight are among 11 plaintiffs awaiting trial in Houston in November on their lawsuits alleging that Baxter implants seriously impaired their health.

In documents filed with the lawsuit attorney Richard Mithoff accused the company's attorneys of going to improper and illegal extremes to try to cast doubts on the illnesses alleged in the lawsuits.

Defense investigators have resorted to surveillance photographs and videotapes of the women, their spouses and minor children, according to the lawsuit.

Cocaine prices rise in some parts of Texas

FORT WORTH (AP) — Price-gouging and successful drug interdiction programs have caused the wholesale price of cocaine to skyrocket here and in other cities, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today.

The newspaper surveyed 10 cities across the country to get an approximation of prices for the illegal drug. The same $14,000 kilogram in Los Angeles could run $35,000 in Chicago.

In Fort Worth, prices have risen about 10 percent recently to nearly $24,000 "if you can find it," said Lt. Mark Krey, a member of the Fort Worth police special operations division.

He attributes the hike in Tarrant County prices to a summer raid in the Diamond Hill area that netted 500 pounds of cocaine.

"We hear the problem is unavailability," Krey said.

Racing official's family still causing controversy

HOUSTON (AP) — Recently opened files in the 1990 shooting deaths of a Texas Racing Commission financial officer and his family are stirring new interest in the case, according to a Houston Chronicle report.

The records, concerning the deaths of David Joost, his wife and two children, reveal several problems with the way state investigators looked into the now-closed case, the newspaper reported Sunday.

The bodies of four Joost family members were found in their Buda home near Austin just as David Joost, chief financial officer for the racing commission, was preparing to confront the panel with possible corruption.

The Texas Rangers believe Joost killed his family before turning the gun on himself. But relatives and some officials have questioned the competence of investigators, and some even hint at the possibility of a cover-up.

FAA to limit air traffic controllers

FORT WORTH (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration is moving toward easing air traffic controllers out of the picture and allowing airlines and pilots to set their routes, The Dallas Morning News reported.

Under the plan, air traffic controllers would cease to be lords of the skies and become more like angels, intervening only when necessary to prevent collisions, the News reported Sunday.

Called Free Flight, the proposal would use computers and satellites to enable pilots to abandon the crowded, one-lane airways that now serve as the nation's airborne arteries.

Proponents say aviation would be safer and delays could virtually disappear, saving airlines an estimated $3.5 billion a year.

Opponents, including the nation's leading pilots' and air traffic controllers' unions, argue that skies already are chaotic and could get worse if controllers are no longer in charge.

But with air traffic predicted to jump by 60 percent in the next decade to 800 million passengers a year, scarcely anyone in the industry questions the need for changes.

During the past 12 months, outdated radar and computer equipment used to guide jetliners cruising at high altitudes has faltered or failed a dozen times.

Medicare rally

Senior citizens from around the country hold "stop" signs during a recent Medicare rally on Capitol Hill. Democrats released a video attacking GOP plans for Medicare as a threat to senior citizens.

French village in shock after teenager embarks on shooting spree, suicide

TOULON, France (AP) — Fresh from murdering three relatives at home, a teenager walked to the next village Sunday and calmly opened fire on a quiet town square, killing nine more people before turning the gun on himself.

The murder-suicide in southern France was the country's worst multiple killing since 1989.

"It was like he was hunting birds," said Guy Sintès, the owner of a cafe on the square in Cuers, a sunny village near the Mediterranean port of Toulon.

Eight other people were wounded in the half-hour morning shooting rampage, three of them seriously, police said on customary anonymity. The victims' ages ranged from 17 to 75.

Television footage from the scene showed sidewalks and a car spattered with blood and a bullet hole through a shop window.

"The people are devastated, totally traumatized. The village is in shock," said Cuers Mayor Guy Gigou.

The boy was identified as Eric Borel, 16, but the impetus for the killings was unclear. His father died recently of cancer.

Neighbors of his family, interviewed on French television, described him as taciturn and said his room was plastered with posters of Hitler and neo-Nazi themes.

Estefan and husband involved in fatal boat crash with daredevil wake jumper who dies

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A man who investigators say may have been jumping boat wakes on his personal watercraft died after colliding with a pleasure boat carrying singer Gloria Estefan and her producer-husband Emilio.

The Estefans, who were the only people aboard the 33-foot vessel, weren't injured in Sunday's accident about a quarter-mile off trendy South Beach.

Killed was Howard Clark, a 29-year-old law student at Howard University in Washington, D.C. Passenger Tisha Greene, 22, also a Howard law student, was in stable condition early today with head bruises.

Capt. Mike Lamphear of the Florida Marine Patrol said the accident apparently was not the fault of Emilio Estefan, who was piloting the boat and traveling less than 20 mph.

Tall tale of political correctness

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Imagine being lost in the Adirondack Mountains, forced to eat squirrels cooked with an eye-glass lens to survive.

Then imagine being prosecuted, under pressure from animal rights activists, for chowing down on too many squirrels.

Outrageous? Well, yes. The story about a lost mechanic named Jake Landon was a purely fictionalized, satirical account in a newsletter that pokes fun of political correctness. But some people didn't get the joke.

It drew a mention on an episode ABC's This Week with David Brinkley.

Shocked letters to the editor were sent to upstate New York papers. Phone calls flooded the state Department of Environmental Conservation.

And Paul Harvey read it on the radio.

It all happened last month following the story that originated in the May issue of Heterodoxy, a publication of the Center for the Villagers with eyes red from crying sat on the ground, shaking their heads as they recalled traumatic scenes: An old woman shot as she walked her dog, an elderly man gunned down on his way to the cafe.

Two victims were killed while withdrawing money from a cash machine and another while playing boules, the Provencal bowling game, on the village square.

Sintès said he watched the killer retrace his steps toward a man he had wounded in the stomach to shoot him again in the head, killing him.

"He was very calm, very poised. He put the gun to his shoulder, held his gun steady, adjusted his aim and fired," Sintès said.

The killings began in the village of Solliès-Pont, about six miles north of Toulon. There, the 16-year-old boy used a hammer and baseball bat to kill his mother, stepfather and half-brother, according to police, who had initially identified two of the dead as the boy's father and brother.

The boy then walked to Cuers, about three miles north, where he began shooting at random in a parking lot, outside a bank and in the town square where villagers shopped.

"He was shooting at anything that moved. He was firing everywhere," a woman living in Cuers told France-Info radio.

Another witness from the village said the boy did not appear agitated.

"I saw him go past my shop with his rifle, at around 8 this morning. He was walking calmly, he wasn't in a hurry," said Frédéric Bares, who runs a newsstand in the village.

"At first I thought he was a hunter. He was about 25 meters from my place when I saw him shoot a passerby, a shopkeeper who I think was hit in the head," Bares said on French radio.

As he ran to call the police, he heard other shots, he said.

Police found the seven bodies of the victims scattered in streets throughout the village.

Rescue teams prepared a morgue in the village gymnasium and an emergency medical post in the soccer stadium, and three helicopters flew to the town to transport the wounded to Toulon's hospital.

France has tight gun control laws for handguns, but not for hunting rifles, which can be purchased by anyone with a hunting license. Minors require parental permission.

Sunday's massacre was France's worst multiple killing since 1989, when a man shot 14 people, including his mother and sister. He was later acquitted due to insanity.

Such incidents are rare in France. In all but one of the 13 multiple killings since 1989, the victims were family members of the killers.

Black women leaders see good side of Islam march

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some prominent black women leaders see a positive side to the "Million Man March on Washington" Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan plans for mid-October.

"Everything is right about a million men marching to assert their manhood and responsibility for their families," Coretta Scott King, widow of the slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., told The Associated Press Sunday. She took no position on issues such as the emphasis on men or the sponsorship of the march.

"The concept of the march is one that the NAACP understands," even though its executive board has voted to withhold formal endorsement, said Myrlie Evers-Williams, chairwoman of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, America's oldest civil rights organization.

Farrakhan and ousted NAACP chief Benjamin Chavis have joined in organizing the Oct. 16 demonstration to encourage African-American men to dedicate themselves to reversing the erosion of family, church and community values that is forcing black women to raise children on their own.

The coming men's march was barely mentioned at emotional ceremonies Sunday honoring three women widowed by assassinations of civil rights leaders — Mrs. King, Mrs. Evers-Williams and Dr. Betty Shabazz. They were introduced by their daughters, Yolanda King, Rena Evers and Ilyssa Shabazz — who called them "super moms."

"My father said he led my mother down the path of activism," Yolanda King said.

Lawsuit claims daughter taken to prevent abortion

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A couple claims in a federal lawsuit that local authorities took their daughter from their home in an early morning raid last year to prevent her from having an abortion.

Connie and Carl Scott filed the action Friday against a prosecutor, police, a doctor and the family of their daughter's former boyfriend. The Scotts said the boyfriend's family attacked them and a deputy handed out anti-abortion literature before taking their 15-year-old daughter away last Sept. 29.

A prosecutor then interrogated her without a lawyer and got a judge's order releasing her from foster care only on the condition she promised not to have the second-trimester abortion, the lawsuit said.

The couple said they were forced to leave town after the boyfriend's family posted fliers throughout Blair, population 6,800, describing the Scotts as "murderers."

The Scotts' attorney, Jeanelle Kleveland, said Saturday that the girl, who was 23 weeks pregnant at

"The fact is, she led him."

Medgar Evers, slain in 1963, was a NAACP director in Mississippi. Shabazz, the widow of Malcolm X, is an official of Medgar Evers College of the City University of New York.

Many of the goals of the March on Washington are in areas in which the NAACP has worked through its 96-year history. Evers-Williams told a reporter. "I believe support is expanding" for the march, and many NAACP members will participate as individuals, she said. She noted that the NAACP is in litigation with Chavis over finances related to a sexual harassment case.

Shabazz recently attended the 4th U.N. Women's Conference in China. There she said she confirmed that so many women in the world "do not even have food, so many are so oppressed, so many are forced to do things against their will."

Men and women "have to march in the new millennium together," she said. "We are interdependent."

"I was not talking about the Million Man march," she said later.

Rosa Parks, who in December will mark the 50th anniversary of her arrest in Alabama for resisting racial segregation, presented the honorees with ceramic figurines of herself seated in a Montgomery city bus.

Parks, 81, who works with disadvantaged people in Detroit, said she supports the March on Washington.

Daylong speeches honoring the leaders and two "Good Brothers" — comedian Dick Gregory and talk show host Joe Madison — were sponsored by the National Political Congress of Black Women. About 1,000 attended.

at the time, eventually gave birth in December and is raising the baby and living with her family in Iowa.

"She was court-ordered not to have an abortion," Ms. Kleveland said Saturday. "The only way she could be returned to her family was by abiding by that order."

The American Civil Liberties Union agreed to sponsor the lawsuit after the Scott family asked them for help last year.

"This poor family was trying to do what we want them to do — talk among themselves about whether to have an abortion — and they got harassed," said Andre Collins, interim director of the ACLU's Nebraska chapter.

Under Nebraska law, the state can't restrict abortions until the fetus becomes viable, and that must be determined by a doctor, Ms. Kleveland said.

The Scott girl, whose name has not been released, had made an appointment for an abortion after her parents had her examined by a doctor who said abortion was still an option, Ms. Kleveland said.

Software engineer held on theft charges

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A software engineer was jailed on charges he stole millions of dollars worth of Intel Corp.'s Pentium chip production secrets and gave them to a rival computer company.

William Gaede, 43, was arrested Saturday by the FBI at his home in Mesa, Ariz. He was being held at the Maricopa County Jail in Phoenix pending a hearing before a federal magistrate.

Gaede, an Argentine national who worked for Intel in Chandler, Ariz. in 1993-94, was charged with mail fraud and interstate transportation of stolen property.

An FBI complaint alleged Gaede sent videotapes with instructions for making Intel's Pentium microprocessor to Sunnyvale, Calif.-based Advanced Micro Devices Inc. The microprocessor is the brain of personal computers.
