THE PAMPA NEWS

VOL: 88 NO: 133

Pampa, Texas

50c DAILY/SUNDAY $1

Low tonight in upper 50s, high tomorrow in low 80s. See Page 2 for weather details.

PAMPA — Friday is the last day to register to vote in the Nov. 7 constitutional amendment election, said County Clerk Wanda Carter.

Ballots may be obtained by mail from Carter's office by writing a letter stating the reason for requesting a ballot by mail, which election (in this case, constitutional amendment election), the voter's mailing address and the voter's residence address.

The voters must sign the request themselves, Carter said.

A husband and wife may write a single letter but both must sign it, Carter explained.

Ballot requests must be mailed to County Clerk Wanda Carter, Box 1902, Pampa, Texas 79065.

She noted the signature on the application for a ballot must match the signature on the carrier envelope when the voted ballot is returned or the ballot will not be counted.

PAMPA — The Pampa Alzheimer Support Group will meet at 7 p.m. Friday at Shepard's Crook Nursing Agency, 2225 Perryton Parkway.

Guest speaker will be Lisa Payne, activity coordinator at the Jan Werner Adult Day Care Center of Amarillo. Payne has been with the center for six years. She is a registered music therapist.

For more information, contact Chrys Smith or Dee Barker at 665-0356. Those planning to attend are asked to make reservations.

PAMPA — Gray County Commissioners met for over four hours Wednesday afternoon, going over the proposed county budget line-by-line.

Commissioners were given the opportunity to make any further cuts they deemed necessary.

The budget is expected to be adopted at the court's Sept. 15 meeting.

AUSTIN (AP) — Two tickets, sold in Seminole and Corpus Christi, correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot was worth $10 million.

The numbers drawn from a field of 50 were: 9, 30, 33, 40, 41 and 45.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Saturday night's game will be $4 million.

Packwood says he won't resign seat

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Ethics Committee chairman today accused Sen. Bob Packwood of "offensive, degrading" and illegal conduct and said he should immediately resign or face expulsion. Packwood said he was assessing the chances of saving his seat.

In a blunt detailing of the charges against the Oregon Republican, Ethics Committee Chairman Mitch McConnell accused Packwood of a pattern of aggressive sexual misconduct and abuse of his power.

McConnell also said the committee had referred Packwood's tampering with evidence in the case to the Justice Department. He said it was the committee's view that Packwood's tampering could land him in jail in a criminal case.

"I think the evidence is compelling and it seems to me the appropriate response would be resignation," McConnell said. If Packwood refuses to step down, a vote to expel him could come as early as next week.

"This is the atomic bomb — we can do no more" against a fellow senator, committee Vice Chairman Richard Bryan said of the recommendation to expel Packwood, the Senate Finance Committee chairman. "This conduct was unconscionable, unwanted, offensive, repugnant."

Both McConnell and Bryan called the recommendation severe but justified and strongly rejected Packwood's assertion that he was denied fair proceedings. "The committee has heard enough. The Senate has heard enough. The public has heard enough," McConnell said. "Now is the time for justice to be done."

McConnell said the committee's evidence would be released later today.

The detailing of the charges came a day after a dramatic turnaround in the 33-month-old scandal involving the veteran lawmaker, voting 6-0 to recommend expulsion, the harshest penalty Congress can impose on one of its own.

A defiant Packwood appeared on the network talk shows this morning to press his case. "I don't think it's fair to me or anyone else to take away their lifetime job and say you're never going to get a chance to face your accusers, you'll never get a chance to tell the public your side of the story..." he said.

"I have no intention of resigning," he added.

In later interview with The Associated Press, Packwood was less defiant, and said he wanted to meet with Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole to get a sense of whether he could win a floor fight. He also discussed the prospect of life as an ex-senator.

"If I had my druthers, would I like to stay here? Sure," Packwood said. But he also said, "I realize that somehow you don't wither, dry up, blow away if you leave here."

Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said today he expected Democrats to follow the committee recommendation. He said the process has been "an extraordinary education for the Senate. It will be some time before you get a case as egregious as this again."

Gov. Bush honors Pampa meteorologist Darrell Sehorn for warnings on tornado

By CHIP CHANDLER
Staff Writer

"To me, at the time I was doing it, I felt it was part of my job," Darrell Sehorn modestly remembers.

To others, though, what Sehorn did was above and beyond the call of duty.

Sehorn, KGRO/KOMX meteorologist, was in the station's mobile unit June 8 covering thunderstorms in the Pampa area when the tornado that would eventually cause millions of dollars in damage began developing.

Sehorn was on the air within seconds of seeing the formation of a funnel cloud, broadcasting warnings that would send people to shelter.

In the aftermath of the storm, people began crediting Sehorn with saving their lives.

Jennifer Scroggin said in a letter to the editor in the June 18 Pampa News: "I am certain that [Sehorn's] warning about yesterday's approaching tornado saved many lives while he in turn was risking his own."

Thelma Bray concurred in another letter in that issue: "Thank you, Darrell Sehorn, with much gratitude and appreciation."

Sehorn said today that following the tornado, there was "an outpouring of expressions of appreciation for the warning we did of the storm."

He added that he thought "things had kind of died down."

He was wrong, though. Monday morning, before a large crowd of Chautauqua celebrators who turned out to see Gov. George W. Bush, Sehorn was recognized by the governor for his "dedication, quick thinking and bravery."

The governor's certificate read: "Greetings to Darrell Sehorn. I recently learned about the courageous assistance you rendered in June to the people of Pampa, Texas, and I wanted to congratulate you. True heroes reach out to help people in times of crisis. I commend your dedication, quick thinking and bravery. Sincerely, George W. Bush."

Sehorn says he was overwhelmed by the recognition and credits Rep. Warren Chisum for the honor.

Chisum said today that he requested the governor's recognition because several people had told him after the storm that Sehorn had likely saved their lives.

"Darrell really deserves some recognition for his actions," Chisum added.

Sehorn says he appreciates the governor's recognition, but what makes his efforts worthwhile is the thought that he may have saved some lives.

"If I saved one life or more, I feel good about that. This is the only time in my [30-year] career that I can say the work I've enjoyed so much might have [done that]."

Panhandle GWCD adopts higher tax rate

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
News Editor

WHITE DEER — Members of the Panhandle Ground Water District adopted a 1996 tax rate which is expected to fund a $267,000 budget and includes money to fight a lawsuit in state court against the district.

Board member Phillip Smith of Panhandle made the motion to adopt 1.4 cents per $100 valuation "with the full intention of having a tax rollback as soon as possible."

Voting aye were Smith, Jerry Greene, Clarendon; Frank Simms, Panhandle; Robert

Clark, Miami; Jim Thompson, Claude; and board president John Spearman, Pampa. Charles Bowers, Pampa, was absent during that portion of the meeting.

"I think if we're gonna play the game, we got to have the cash," Smith said.

Smith was referring to a lawsuit pressed by Quixx Corp., Amarillo, against the district over the issue of the district's right to regulate the transportation of water from the district. Quixx maintains the district has no right to regulate water transported out of the district. The conservation district holds they have the right to regulate the method of transportation and production of water.

In other action:

- The board left tabled a request from Southwestern Public Service for permitting of water rights in Potter and Carson counties.

- authorized district manager C.E. Williams to write a letter to the Railroad Commissioner expressing concern about a proposed salt water disposal well and potential contamination on Clarence Anderson's property.

Charles Bowers volunteered to attend the Sept. 14 meeting of the Ogallala Regional Water Management Plan in Lubbock.

Thornberry introduces reform legislation on endangered species

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Saying it was time for a return to "common sense" in environmental decision-making, U.S. Rep. Mac Thornberry (R-Clarendon) joined today with Chairman of the House Resources Committee Don Young (R-Ark.) in introducing bipartisan legislation to comprehensively reform the Endangered Species Act.

Thornberry serves on the Resources Committee and is a member of the Endangered Species Act Task Force. He is the only majority member from Texas involved in reauthorizing the act.

"The Endangered Species Act is a classic example of good intentions gone astray," Thornberry said in a press release today.

"Since its enactment nearly 30 years ago, the law has been expanded and abused in ways never dreamed of when it was drafted. We now have a situation where the needs of blue-eyed salamanders and blind spiders take precedent over the needs of American families. That is unacceptable policy and needs to be changed. The legislation we are introducing today will make this change."

Formally titled "The Endangered Species Conservation and Management Act of 1995," today's legislation is designed to protect the rights of property owners while also promoting conservation.

For example, to protect private property rights, the bill includes a provision that would not only compensate private property owners when the restrictions imposed by the Environmental Protection Agency diminishes their property's value by 20 percent or more, but also require the government to buy the property, with the owner's consent, if the value is diminished by 50 percent or more.

To promote conservation, the legislation provides for voluntary incentives designed to better protect species. These measures include cooperative management agreements, habitat reserve grants, land exchanges, habitat conservation planning and both technical and financial assistance in developing management strategies that protect or help recover listed species.

The bill also gives states a greater role in decision-making by mandating that the Secretary of the Interior must consult with the affected state before listing a species. If the state disagrees with the listing, the Secretary bears the burden of proof for showing why a species must be listed.

According to Thornberry, the legislation is reflective of the types of change the new Congress is bringing to Washington.

"We were elected on the promise to not only make government smaller but to make government smarter as well," he said.

"The Endangered Species Conservation and Management Act of 1995 takes a step in this direction by not only returning common sense to the environmental decision-making process, but also reducing the power of the federal government and returning power back to states and local communities."

Endeavour blasts off — after month's delay

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — After more than a month's delay, space shuttle Endeavour beat approaching storms and rocketed into orbit today with five astronauts on a double satellite delivery mission.

The 4.5 million-pound spaceship roared from its pad into a cloudy sky at 11:09 a.m., leaving behind a thick trail of white vapor.

In recent weeks, NASA has had to contend with worries about critical shuttle seals and an overheated power generator. Finally, everything seemed to come together, including the weather. It was close, though.

Clouds and rain advanced from the southwest this morning, making it "a bit of a race with the weather and with our countdown clocks," said launch commentator Lisa Malone.

"The dogs are in space," shuttle commander David Walker said moments after reaching orbit. The astronauts jokingly call themselves "The Dog Crew." Also in NASA's favor was Hurricane Luis, which seemed to be headed away from the U.S. mainland after battering the Caribbean.

Shuttle managers had considered moving Endeavour from its launch pad into the hangar for protection against Luis' damaging wind. That would have delayed liftoff by about a week.

Endeavour's mission — No. 71 for the shuttle program — was supposed to begin on Aug. 5. But shuttle managers put the flight on hold until repairs could be made to the nozzles of both solid-fuel rocket boosters.

O-ring seals in the booster nozzle joints of Atlantis and Discovery were singed by hot rocket gas earlier this summer. Managers feared Endeavour might experience the same problem and had the thermal insulation surrounding those O-rings replaced.

NATO pressures rebel Serbs with new round of airstrikes

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) - NATO turned up the pressure on recalcitrant Bosnian Serbs today with a new round of airstrikes intended to force the rebels to pull back heavy weapons menacing Sarajevo.

Maj. Buster Hows, a spokesman for the U.N. rapid reaction force in Kiseljak, said the warplanes hit their first targets after 8 a.m. (1 a.m. CDT). He suggested a major series of attacks was underway.
"They're in the air constantly, poised on targets, and when there's a window of opportunity they engage," he said on the telephone. "When the visibility is such that they cannot engage, they go back to a tanker and get another fuel supply. That way they are optimizing opportunities to engage targets."
In the Adriatic off Croatia, U.S. Adm. Bill Fallon told reporters aboard the USS Theodore Roosevelt that the weather "is looking cooperative, so the plan today is to continue all day."

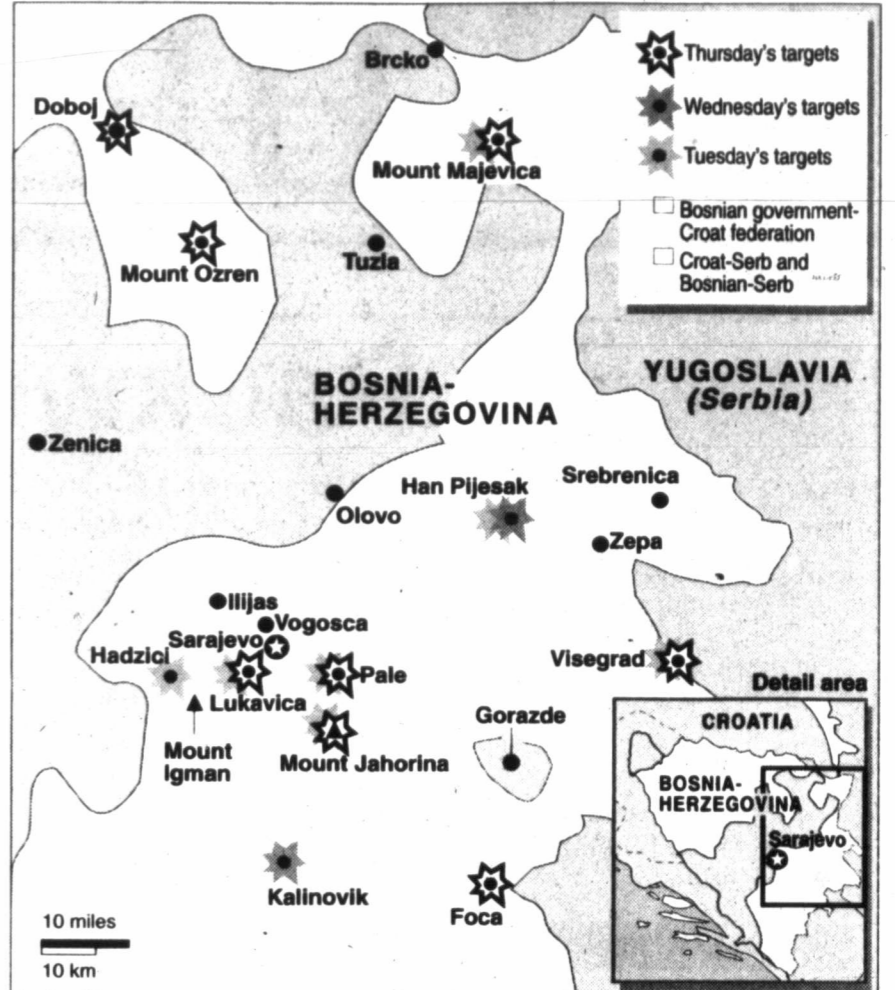

Pale, the Bosnian Serb stronghold southeast of Sarajevo, resounded with what appeared to be a very strong detonation at 9 a.m. (3 a.m. EDT). Windows shook, but there was no immediate way of establishing whether the noise was caused by a sonic boom of NATO jets or an actual hit.

At least four huge explosions were heard in the area of Lukavica, a Bosnian Serb stronghold southwest of Sarajevo, after NATO jets swooped over the area shortly before noon. The last explosion rattled windows in Sarajevo.

The Bosnian Serb news agency SRNA said warplanes hit the region of Mount Jahorina, near Pale, with 32 missiles just before daybreak. Other targets Wednesday and overnight were around Dobo and Mount Ozren in northern Bosnia, Visegrad in the east, and the northeast Mount Majevica region, it said.
Yugoslavia's Tanjug news agency, citing rebel military sources, said bridges and communications targets were hit around Foca in the south. There was no independent confirmation.

In Zagreb, Croatian Gen. Anton

NATO continues airstrikes

Tus said the NATO airstrikes on radar installations on Mount Jahorina had crippled Bosnian Serb and Yugoslav communications and air defense systems.

The Bosnian Serbs now only had one working radar relay system, on Mount Kozara near Banja Luka, he told the weekly Globus. He also said the rebels had tried to stymie the attacks by setting up fake missile batteries.

Fallon, the U.S. admiral, said the targets remained the same: command and control sites, relay stations, radar sites and communications points, storage areas and ammunition dumps.

The continuation of airstrikes after similar bombing runs Tuesday and Wednesday reflects a new international resolve to hold the Bosnian Serbs' feet to the fire even with preliminary peace talks coming up Friday.

The New York Times, citing unnamed senior U.S. officials, reported today that NATO has decided to intensify its air attacks and double its targets, but was unable to do so earlier because of poor weather.

"Every day of NATO airstrikes means his army is being clobbered, and clobbered and clobbered," U.N. spokesman Alexander Ivanko said Wednesday of the Bosnian Serb commander, Gen. Ratko Mladic. "For this clobbering to stop, he has to remove the heavy weapons from around Sarajevo."

Radovan Karadzic, the Bosnian Serb leader, told reporters in Pale, "We have withdrawn as much as we could. But we can't withdraw (all that) we possess in order to protect ourselves."
Ivanko disagreed with Karadzic, saying no weapons had been withdrawn as of early today.

Other U.N. and NATO demands of the Serbs include an end to all attacks on the capital and three other "safe areas," and guarantees of free movement for the United Nations and aid workers.

Packwood

Daschle said Packwood had aggravated members and his problems with zigzag stands on open hearings and other issues in the case. Given his erratic past positions, he said, "I wouldn't be surprised if he changed his mind" and decided to resign.
The problems have churned around Packwood since days after he was elected to a fifth six-year term in 1992. The Washington Post reported that he had made unwanted sexual advances to numerous women over two decades. The lawmaker, who turns 63 on Monday, was married for most of the period.
The charges against him gradually expanded, and he said that heavy drinking contributed to his problem.
On May 16, the committee found "substantial credible evidence" that Packwood made unwanted sexual advances to 17 women on 18 occasions from 1969 to 1990. The panel also found that he tried to get jobs for his estranged wife from lobbyists and businessmen with legislative interests, and altered his diaries when he learned the committee might subpoena them.

The investigation of Packwood took an uncertain turn after he reversed himself Aug. 25 and sought public hearings, which he previously had opposed. A number of Republicans were known to be upset with Packwood over that reversal.
The three Republicans on the six-member committee had earlier voted against hearings and most Republicans in the Senate upheld the committee in a Senate vote.

It would take the votes of 67 senators to make Packwood the first senator expelled since the Civil War.

Should Packwood resign, he would be entitled to his retirement pay, health benefits and the privileges of being a senator, including access to the floor and to his party caucus, a Senate staff aide said. He would lose those benefits if he were expelled.

The panel said Packwood should be ejected from the Senate because:

— He tried to obstruct the committee's inquiry by "withholding, altering and destroying" his diaries. The committee described the alterations as "illegal... reprehensible and contemptuous of the Senate's constitutional self-disciplinary process."

— He abused his position "by repeatedly committing sexual misconduct" between 1969 and 1990.

— He tried to improve his personal financial position by trying to get his estranged wife a job from people with interest in legislation.

Packwood said he altered only copies of the diary tapes to protect himself against leaks, but gave the originals unchanged to his lawyers. A Senate source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said there was evidence Packwood was not so forthcoming and had changed the tapes before giving them to his attorneys.

On the sexual misconduct allegations, Packwood said most of the incidents he could remember occurred years ago.

Packwood denied any wrongdoing in seeking a job for his wife, from who he was getting divorced.

County reviews boot camp contract concerns

Members of the Public Facilities Finance Corporation met Wednesday morning with officials from boot camp developing firm Corplan to hash out concerns of the Gray County Commissioners Court.

PFFC was established by the commissioners to enable the issuance of bonds or certificates of participation to fund building the facility.

Foremost among commissioners' concerns was the county's actual involvement in the facility.

The county is mentioned in the leasing section of a possible contract with Corplan that is based on a contract with another county.

Gray County commissioners were concerned if the county were denoted in the contract, it could leave the county vulnerable to lawsuits against the proposed boot camp.

PFFC member Phil Vanderpool said after the meeting the county had to be involved because other counties cannot contract with private individuals.

In this case, counties across the state would contract with Gray County to send juvenile females to the proposed boot camp near Pampa rather than contracting with Corplan, he explained.

Labor Day holiday deaths less than estimated

Holiday fatality estimates were slightly high this year, according to official Labor Day Motorcade numbers released Tuesday.

Though the Texas Department of Public Safety predicted 31 deaths during the 78-hour counting period from 6 p.m. Friday to 12 a.m. Monday, 27 people actually lost their lives on the highways of the state.

DPS Trooper L.B. Snider says that none of those fatalities were in the Panhandle area. This is the second year in a row that zero fatalities were recorded in the area.

Snider said that twice as many of the fatalities occurred at night rather than in daylight hours.

The most frequent type of accident was a car running off the road, followed closely behind by cars striking pedestrians.

Seven pedestrians were killed in all, including one young child and six adults.

Also, eight people were killed when they were ejected from their vehicles - a sign that they were not wearing safety belts.

September is the 10th anniversary of the safety belt law in Texas.

Snider said that the last DPS survey of Texas drivers showed a 77 percent compliance rate with the law.

Almanac offers cure for waits in doctors' offices

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — The Farmers' Almanac says it's time for doctors to go on a wait-loss program.

The almanac, which pads its popular weather predictions with an annual effort to end some of life's annoyances, is offering a remedy for an affliction it finds common among physicians — Continual Late Syndrome.

The prescription: A Patients' Bill of Rights that says a patient will be called if the doctor is running more than 20 minutes behind schedule.

"This Bill of Rights will help show doctors, dentists and other healthcare providers that we mean business and are tired of wasting valuable time in their waiting room," says the almanac's 179th edition, just off the presses.

The almanac, not to be confused with the 203-year-old Old Farmer's Almanac, contains a mixture of calendar data, one-line jokes, recipes, quizzes and inspirational messages. Other causes embraced by the almanac in recent years include colored money, hugging and chivalry.

Report: Sony stops sales of satellite dishes

NEW YORK (AP) — Sony Corp. has stopped selling its 18-inch digital satellite system because of consumers' complaints about poor TV reception, The Wall Street Journal reported today.

A spokesman for Sony Electronics Inc. in Park Ridge, N.J., told the newspaper that the company stopped shipments in late August. Complaints included horizontal green lines and images freezing on the screen.

"We estimate that only 2.5 percent of our consumers have experienced the problems, but we're taking this matter seriously," the spokesman, whose name was not given, told the Journal.

He would not say how many satellite dishes the electronics giant has sold since the system was introduced in June. He said Sony expected to resolve the problem quickly.

Digital satellite systems, known for providing crisp pictures and many channels, are popular with viewers in suburban and rural areas not served by cable. Industry experts estimate that nearly a million such systems have been sold, the Journal reported.

Sony's basic satellite system sold for $750.

The Pampa Citizens Police Academy Association recently elected officers. Posing for their photo at Monday's Chautauqua are, from left, Rocky Bynum, president; Debra Stubblefield, vice president; Dreama Burroughs, treasurer; and Marilyn Powers, secretary. The association is for graduates of the Pampa Police Citizens Academy. (The academy starts another 13-week session on Tuesday, Sept. 12, at 7 p.m. Those wanting to attend should go by the Pampa Police Department for an application.) The association, which meets monthly, will have its next meeting at 7 p.m. Sept. 21 in the Red Cross building.

Susie Luchsinger to be in concert Saturday

The Top O' Texas Chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Cowboys Inc. will be presenting Christian country singer Susie Luchsinger, sister of country star Reba McEntire, in a free concert in Pampa on Saturday, Sept. 9.

Appearing with her will be her husband, Paul Luchsinger, a five time National Finals Rodeo steer wrestler.

The two will be providing an evening of music and testimonies for the 6 p.m. concert at the Clyde Carruth Pavilion, east of Pampa on Highway 60.

One of America's premier country gospel singers, Susie Luchsinger is a frequent guest on both the Trinity Broadcasting and Nashville networks.

In her solo career, Luchsinger has released eight gospel albums, with at least four singles hitting the No. 1 spot on the Positive Country playlists. She also has received honors for her music from the Dove Awards and Christian Country Music Association, as well as other organizations and publications, including International Christian Gospel Music Association, Gospel Voice Magazine, Cashbox Magazine, Christian Country Research Bulletin and Music City News.

Her television appearances have included Music City News Awards, Crook & Chase, Country News, Nashville Now, Music City Tonight, Hee Haw, Grand Ol Opry Live, Hot Hip & Country and Hour of Power with Dr. Schuller, along with guest appearances on Family Channel 700 Club, Trinity Broadcast Network and Inspirational Network.

New grazing regulations have ranchers in uproar

PHOENIX (AP) — With the future of federal grazing legislation still blurry, ranchers are calling Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt's forging ahead with his grazing reform plan a sign of arrogance.

Babbitt has pushed ahead with new regulations, assembling 24 community groups throughout the West to oversee the plan. Arizona's Resource Advisory Council will meet for the first time Sept. 21.

But a federal lawsuit opposing the regulations and pending grazing legislation may make the new rules irrelevant. The regulations officially took affect Aug. 21.

Whatever the future of Babbitt's grazing plan, the more than 2,000 Arizona ranchers leasing federal land in 40 percent of the state find the control it exerts maddening.

"It struck us as being very arrogant on the secretary's part," said C.B. Lane, a director of the Arizona Cattlemen's Association.

Lane and others involved in the issue said Wednesday they had not seen the list of people appointed to the council, which was announced Sept. 1. The 15-member groups are made up of ranchers, environmentalists and other community leaders.

The regulations, the latest step in a long and national debate over control of 270 million acres of public land, could be reversed by a package of grazing legislation pending in Congress.

Additionally, a federal lawsuit challenges the rules, and Senate has passed a bill banning use of federal money to implement them beyond this fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30.

The fact that Babbitt ignored the many legislators still working out a compromise on grazing laws shows particular pomposity, said Lane.

"The Senate and the House say, 'Why don't you hold off,' but he goes ahead anyway; that to me is the height of arrogance," he said.

"The last time I checked, Congress as well as the president ran this country and not the bureaucrats, but I guess I was wrong."

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Restricting 'gifts' from lobbyists

It is the U.S. House of Representatives' turn to tighten up rules governing the receipt of gifts from lobbyists.

After months of resistance, the Senate enacted such restrictions late in July. The new rules, which take effect Jan. 1, strengthen requirements forcing lobbyists to register, saying whom they work for and how much they spend.

Under the old rules, the great majority got away without registering at all. And it was nearly impossible to gauge from senators' financial disclosure statements the number and nature of perks distributed: The law exempted innumerable restaurant meals, entertainment events and other items from ever being reported.

The new rules bar senators from accepting any gift worth more than $50. Included are travel, lodging and entertainment, even that associated with the charity events that have become such popular draws for members of Congress. Exempted are events such as banquets that could be considered connected with official duties.

There are also new restrictions on contributions to charities or legal defense funds in lieu of outright gifts.

Certainly, the new rules are all to the good; even modest gifts can help curry favor with politicians, who are, after all, people, and appreciate a thoughtful gesture.

Moreover, Congress knows it has a serious credibility problem these days. Free trips to Las Vegas and tickets to the Super Bowl are exactly the kinds of things frustrated voters can easily grasp, and powerfully resent.

Nevertheless, when it comes to buying influence, such gifts are mere appetizers. Campaign contributions are still the main course, and the worst problem plaguing the political system. With Senate races costing a minimum of a few million dollars, front-row seats to "Damn Yankees" scarcely seem worth quibbling over.

Gift restrictions are good ethical hygiene, and we welcome them. But they are not the primary means by which special interests affect policy decisions - and leave the public so dismayed.

President Clinton has stated that the White House will now abide by the same lobbyist-disclosure rules as the Senate. That's wonderful. The president also shook hands not long ago with House Speaker Newt Gingrich over a pledge to work out proposals for campaign finance reform. More wonderful still.

But there's foot-dragging. The speaker recently muttered something about getting around to campaign-finance rules in the autumn. He could get a start by exhorting his colleagues, with the help of Rep. Bill Richardson of New Mexico, to approve gift restrictions similar to the Senate's. After that, Richardson maybe even could help to begin the debate on barring big campaign contributions from lobbyists and special interest groups. Could that have been a leaf curl and fall?

What is government's mission?

President Clinton is threatening to shut down the federal government if Congress doesn't back away from some of the Republican spending cuts he sees as radical and unfair.

Let's take him up on it. He may just have something there.

Not in the sense of who-needs-the-government-anyway; that's too glib. We know we have to have government of some kind, inasmuch as - borrowing from James Madison - men are not angels.

The Clintonites, who enjoy asserting that you can't love your country and hate your government, characterize the Republican budget cuts as libertarian frenzy.

Ah, but that ole dog won't hunt. The Clintonites are the frenzied ones. They know the Republicans really, truly have a plan to balance the budget three years earlier than the Clintonites would do it. This necessitates grand gestures like the president's threat to veto Every Republican Attempt to Throw Poor People on the Streets, Starve Undernourished Babies and Reincarnate the Governing Style of Attila the Hun.

Let 'em rave. There's no time like the present to initiate a discussion of the federal government's size, structure and mission.

The conversation we need to be having concerns what we really, truly want government to do for us - as well as what government is suited to do.

The Founding Fathers envisioned a government of strictly limited powers - one that would regulate interstate commerce, make war and peace and so forth. The government of the

William Murchison

Founding Fathers had no social-welfare component. Its job was to maintain the conditions under which citizens could pursue their own private visions of "social welfare."

Such a government is cheap and barely noticeable. A social-welfare government, by contrast - the kind we have been building since 1933 - is expensive and omnipresent. Probably we didn't set out, with malice aforethought, to establish this second kind. But over time, we got it.

What should government do for us? What is its rightful job? The founders, I would suggest, were a lot closer to the mark than the White House speech writing team.

The great delusion of the past 60 years is that the united power of the people - as focused through the taxing and spending power of Congress - makes life better for us all.

The facts don't support such a proposition. Welfare hasn't strengthened and preserved families; the evidence is strong that reliance on government munificence has sapped individual responsibility and torn families apart. Payments to farmers haven't kept the proportion of farm families from dwindling to near invisibility. Social Security - intended originally as a supplement to savings - is going broke; the high rate of taxation necessary to support it discourages savings. Medicare - as the system's own trustees acknowledge - likewise faces bankruptcy; the promises made in its name can't be sustained.

How are we better for all this? Did the founders know something we don't know - or refuse to admit - namely, that government doesn't so much supplement as replace private endeavor, to the disparagement of liberty and even economic growth?

Let us think on these things, Mr. Clinton, because we haven't thought on them, really. Our framework for discussion has been budgetary battles, like the ongoing one: so many programs, so many dollars to finance those programs.

This is hardly an invalid way to think about such matters. But we can't duck the essential questions: What is government good at, and what is it bad at? What do we want it for - and what should it stay away from?

So the government - on Clinton's behest - shuts down, save for vital services. It will be for a few days at most. We can go on living. The urgent thing is that we should start talking - forcefully, clearly, with history in our heads and our eyes fixed on the future. Where we are now is untenable: economically, politically, morally.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Sept. 7, the 250th day of 1995. There are 115 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 7, 1892, James J. Corbett knocked out John L. Sullivan to win the world heavyweight crown in New Orleans in the first major prize fight conducted under the Marquis of Queensberry rules.

In this date:
In 1533, England's Queen Elizabeth I was born in Greenwich.
In 1936, rock legend Buddy Holly was born Charles Hardin Holley in Lubbock, Texas.

In 1940, Nazi Germany began its initial blitz on London during World War II.

In 1963, the National Professional Football Hall of Fame was dedicated in Canton, Ohio.

In 1977, convicted Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy was released from prison after more than four years.

In 1979, the Entertainment and Sports Programming Network - ESPN - made its cable TV debut.

In 1986, Desmond Tutu was installed as the first black to lead the Anglican Church in southern Africa.

AND WHO SAID THE GOP IS A STUFFY PARTY.....

Faulkner: Feminism's unwitting dupe

Charley Reese

I don't know which has been sadder - watching young Shannon Faulkner decide that, after all, she really didn't want to be a Citadel cadet or the fire hosing of venom on both Faulkner and The Citadel by feminists and male feminist panders.

Actually, both Shannon Faulkner and The Citadel are simply victims of feminist ideology that is based on a false premise - namely, that differences between men and women are a result of social conditioning.

There is a ton of medical studies which disprove that idiotic notion. Male and female differences, physical, emotional and mental, are biological, not environmental.

Men have greater size and strength, a greater capacity for short term energy output; women have lesser size and strength but a greater capacity for endurance. Mentally, men are better at spatial and mathematical skills and logic; women are better at verbal and social skills and empathy.

Temperamentally, men are inclined toward dominance, rank related aggression (competitiveness), independence, psychopathy and sensation seeking. Women are inclined toward submission, defensive aggression, attachment and nurturance, anxiety and security seeking.

These characteristics are taken from studies by Symons, 1979; Seward and Seward, 1980; and Ellis, 1986. All are quoted in the 1989 book The Great Sex

Divide, by Dr. Glenn Wilson, senior lecturer in psychology at the Institute of Psychiatry, University of London. Scott-Townsend is the publisher.

The point is that Faulkner was used as a pawn by feminists to make an ideological Brownie point, but in the end, she listened to her inherent nature and quit an environment to which she is not suited. No one should blame her or find fault with her. In leaving, she did the right thing.

As much as an affront to our dignity as it may be, we are all at the mercy of genes and hormones to a much larger extent than social determinists are willing to admit, though by now, social determinism is pretty much a flat earth theory held only by intellectual reactionaries.

To head off those who always cite the exceptions, I will remind you that the characteristic of nature is profusion, not uniformity. There are certainly some women who can keep up with the boys - but they will have narrow pelvises and greater amounts of male hormones than the average.

Conversely, there are men with wider pelvises and more female hormones who tend to exhibit certain female characteristics, such as passiveness.

Actually, radical feminists are doing the same thing homophobes do: They beat up on and bully women for something they can't help - being women. Nature doesn't give a flea's hind leg for our social theories, fads, fashions, political ideologies and other nutty ideas with which people preoccupy themselves. Nature just is. And all of us are part of it whether we like it or not.

A source of much of the 20th century's madness, cruelty and bloodshed has been the result of the refusal to live in accordance with nature or to even recognize its reality. Any time we are out of sync with nature, we, not nature, will be the loser and the sufferer.

We must adapt to reality; reality will not adapt to us or allow us to shape it. That's what Shannon Faulkner discovered when she met the reality, as opposed to the theory, of being a cadet at The Citadel.

Feminism in the United States is a current mania. The combination of mediocre minds and cowardice is a fertile field in which to grow all kinds of manias, cockamamie theories and ideologies.

Nevertheless, feminism needs to be dragged and dropped into the ash can of crackpot ideas. It has nothing what so ever to do with real people and nothing to offer people except miserable carping and undeserved guilt trips.

Neither Shannon Faulkner or The Citadel deserve any criticism.

Setting an electoral avalanche in motion

Suppose you wanted to be president. Was there ever a better time to try? Only one key piece is missing, but when it falls into place we may well see presidential candidates swarming at us like fire ants.

The public opinion surveys reveal agitated voters fed up with the two major parties, dissatisfied with President Clinton, and unmoved by any announced Republican, including front-runner Bob Dole. For the first time, a plurality of voters describe themselves as independents. Confidence in government has declined. The strength of the parties has diminished. The 1992 Perot candidacy proved that independents can score heavily.

In the coming weeks, as the threat of the government running out of money is highlighted, we will witness the so-called "train wreck" scenario emerge in Washington.

Fulsome fulminators will use the budget and debt situation to scare voters and each other. Voter agitation may turn to voter regurgitation.

The one rule in this speculation is that a serious presidential candidate must have a chance to win a plurality of the popular vote in the 1996 presidential election. In a straight two-party race one candidate must get 50.1% of the vote, a difficult threshold without the organized help of a national party. Probably only the two major parties can easily dream such dreams:

- Clinton-Gore
- Dole-Wilson (Gov. Pete Wilson of California is pro choice in a party where that position can hurt in the primaries but help in a general election.)

Ben Wattenberg

Now, a third-party candidate need only think, "If the vote splits fairly evenly I can win with only 33.4% of the vote." What ticket might do that?

- Perot-Boren. Perot was running close to 40% in some 1992 polls before he dropped out, and is now running in the mid-20s. Former Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., is now the president of the University of Oklahoma and gave the keynote speech at the Perot extravaganza in Dallas in early August.

The task gets easier. The next ticket in the race would be serious if it can credibly claim 25.1%:

- Powell-Bradley ("The General and the Jock"). General Colin Powell is already running above 25% in three-way polls with Clinton and Dole. Former basketball star Bradley seems to have cut ideological ties with his Democratic Party, and would like to be president.

It gets even easier. The next ticket need only claim a shot at a 20.1% vote to gain credibility:

- Jackson-Nader. Jesse Jackson and Ralph

Nader each have constituencies on the left and high visibility. Jackson ran for president twice, knows how it's done, and can get public attention without a huge campaign war chest.

A sixth team gains credibility with a projected 16.7% plurality:

- Buchanan-Keyes. Conservatives Pat Buchanan and Alan Keyes are both making waves. If the Republicans put a pro choice candidate on their ticket, these pro life fellows could carve out a niche - if they can find some common ground beyond anti-abortion. Alan Keyes is not an isolationist, protectionist or nativist.

Who would win? That depends largely on whether the plurality choice wins by a solid, nationally distributed margin (like Clinton's 43% in 1992), or if the tickets bunch up near the average. If, in a multi-candidate/multi-party race for the presidency, no candidate gets a majority of the winner-take-all electoral votes of the states, the new House of Representatives will choose the new president. The next House is likely to be Republican.

This will not be a six candidate race. Do not bet on a five candidate race. Do not bet against four candidates. A race with at least three candidates is a likelihood.

All it takes to set the electoral avalanche in motion is one non-major party candidate, which reduces the threshold for a plurality popular winner from 50% to 34% in one swoop.

Do you want to be president? Now's your time. In a seven candidate race you can win a plurality with 14.3% of the vote.

LUBBOCK - Gamma Phi Chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta Fraternity at Texas Tech University has announced the addition of three new members, joining the fraternity Aug. 26 following a sorority rush. The new members are Jill Brokenbek, Christie Jones and Misty Scribner, all Pampa High School graduates.

Jill Brokenbek is the daughter of Art and Marilyn Brokenbek. She is a freshman at the University studying premedical technology.

Christie Jones is the daughter of Mrs. JoAnn Jones. She is a junior at the University and is studying exercise and sport science.

Misty Scribner is the daughter of Billy and Cathy Scribner. She is a freshman at the University studying pre-optometry.

The fraternity was founded in 1870 at Ashbury University at Greencastle, Ind., and is the oldest Greek-letter organization for women. The chapter at Texas Tech was established in 1953 and is one of 122 Theta chapters in the United States and Canada.

AMARILLO - Texas State Technical College of Amarillo has announced Pampa residents who have graduated or made the President's or Dean of Instruction's honor rolls.

Zachary Cambern and Benny Cooper graduated the summer quarter with associate of applied science degrees in instrumentation technology.

Jay Furnish and Steven Keyes were named to the President's Honor Roll, earning a 4.0 grade point average for the summer quarter.

Christopher Grusendorf, Angelica Gutierrez and Danny Stokes were named to the Dean of Instruction's Honor Roll, earning a 3.5 or better grade point average for the summer quarter.

Sickness around school, but is the goo responsible?

BAYTOWN (AP) — For years, Dianne Branan and her family of two daughters and four grandchildren have put up with nausea, vomiting, headaches and diarrhea.

Then, about two weeks ago she started noticing a pungent black goo appearing in a hole in her backyard.

"All summer people have asked me if I had a gas leak because it smelled so," Mrs. Branan says as she waits with her neighbors for the latest word on a similar goo found across the street and on the playground of G.W. Carver Elementary.

It is long forgotten, if known at all by current residents, that Carver Elementary, originally an all-black high school, was built atop a former oil storage pit in 1946 on land donated by Exxon's original incarnation, Humble Oil Co.

Residents on Mrs. Branan's street recall intestinal problems and miscarriages, cancers and cysts.

Wilson fined by Federal Election Commission

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Congressman Charlie Wilson has been slapped with the largest fine ever assessed by the Federal Election Commission against a House member for 15 violations of federal election law.

The campaign committee of the Lufkin Democrat, who is serving his 12th term in Congress, has paid $90,000 in fines, the FEC said Wednesday. The fines were paid by The Wilson Committee in three $30,000 installments.

Wilson said any violations made by his campaign were honest mistakes.

"Based on the commission's conclusion that no intentional wrongdoing occurred, the committee decided to accept the settlement rather than expend the resources that further FEC proceedings would have required," he said in a written statement Wednesday evening.

In fact, a 10-page conciliation agreement signed by attorneys for Wilson's committee and the FEC states on the first page: "The commission found reason to believe The Wilson Committee ... and its treasurer knowingly and willfully violated" federal election law. "The Wilson Committee has responded that it disagrees that there were any knowing and willful violations of the Federal Election Campaign Act."

Fuhrman pleads Fifth for the world, but not the jury, to see

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After months of defense claims that O.J. Simpson was framed by a racist detective, Mark Fuhrman returned to the witness stand, sitting ramrod straight with his head held high.

The man who six months earlier testified he found a bloody glove behind Simpson's house was asked a question for all the world — but not the jury — to hear.

"Detective Fuhrman," defense lawyer Gerald Uelmen asked, "did you plant or manufacture any evidence in this case?" Fuhrman paused. His attorney, Darryl Mounger, whispered something to him. Fuhrman finally replied: "I assert my Fifth Amendment privilege."

As the detective was led out of court, Simpson appeared overcome with emotion. Tears welled in his eyes and he buried his face in his hands.

"Today you saw an unprecedented event," defense lawyer Robert Shapiro said outside court Wednesday. "You saw a lead detective, who is the person responsible for obtaining a majority of evidence in this case, refuse to answer questions on the grounds that it may incriminate him. It is unprecedented in the history of jurisprudence."

In court, prosecutor Marcia Clark complained that the question was asked merely for headlines and had very little to do with the business at hand: a hearing outside the jury's presence on whether the judge should suppress evidence in light of the Fuhrman tapes.

The questioning of Fuhrman was the climax of the Simpson defense, now in its ninth week, and his lawyers are expected to rest their case this week, perhaps as early as today. A hearing and two witnesses are on today's agenda.

In all, Fuhrman invoked his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination on four questions and said he would refuse to answer any questions.

Legal analysts said Fuhrman probably won't have to take the Fifth in front of the jurors, who have listened for two days as witnesses described their encounters with Fuhrman and his use of a racial slur against blacks.

Loyola University law professor Stan Goldman said the judge probably will instruct the jury that Fuhrman took the Fifth Amendment rather than testify. But Superior Court Judge Lance Ito probably will not tell them what specific questions Fuhrman refused to answer, Goldman said.

"This jury, I believe, will not know," Goldman said. "But members of the second jury, if this case hangs, will."

The defense contends Fuhrman is a racist who planted the bloody glove to frame Simpson in the June 12, 1994, knife slayings of Simpson's ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman.

Before Fuhrman took the stand, Uelmen used Fuhrman's recently disclosed racist comments that were captured on tape to renew one of the first motions ever made in the Simpson case — a bid to suppress all evidence seized at Simpson's estate.

Anti-Semitism Is Sickness, But Bigots Ignore the Cure

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing an item from your column. Please run it again. People need to be reminded.

E.D. BAUM, HOUSTON

DEAR E.D.: I'm glad to oblige — it's one of my favorites:

SAM LEVENSON'S ANSWER TO AN ANTI-SEMITE

"It's a free world; you don't have to like Jews, but if you don't, I suggest that you boycott certain Jewish products, like the Wasserman test for syphilis; digitalis, discovered by Dr. Minofsky; chloral hydrate for convulsions, discovered by Dr. Lifreich; the Schick test for diphtheria; vitamins, discovered by Dr. Funk; streptomycin, discovered by Dr. Z. Woronan; the polio pill by Dr. A. Sabin and the polio vaccine by Dr. Jonas Salk.

"Go on, boycott! Humanitarian consistency requires that my people offer all these gifts to all people of the world. Fanatic consistency requires that all bigots accept syphilis, diabetes, convulsions, malnutrition, infantile paralysis and tuberculosis as a matter of principle.

"You want to be mad? Be mad! But I'm telling you, you ain't going to feel so good!"

READERS: Shortly after that item ran, I received this letter, which I also published:

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

DEAR ABBY: Your recent column, in which you quoted the late, beloved Sam Levenson, contained an error.

In listing some outstanding contributions to medical science made by Jews, Levenson credited a Dr. Z. Woronan with the discovery of streptomycin.

Abby, I hope the Nobel Committee in Sweden doesn't hear about this, because in 1952, they awarded the Nobel Prize for medicine to Dr. Selman Abraham Waksman of Rutgers University for discovering streptomycin.

However, Dr. Waksman belongs on that list because he, too, was Jewish.

ARTHUR ISBIT, PH.D., CHULA VISTA, CALIF.

she dies, she wants to be cremated with absolutely no funeral service. She is a non-believer and never went to church.

My husband and I believe that a funeral service would help bring closure, but we promised that we would respect her wishes.

Abby, would it be terribly wrong if we had a simple graveside service when it is time for her to meet her maker?

WONDERING IN TEXAS

DEAR WONDERING: Since she clearly stated that she wants to be cremated with absolutely no funeral service — and you promised to respect her wishes — that is precisely what you should do.

DEAR ABBY: I found this in a fortune cookie at Trader Vic's: "It is much wiser to take advice than to give it."

Since the fortune applies directly to what you do, I thought I'd ask what you think of it.

LONGTIME READER IN SILVER LAKE, CALIF.

DEAR LONGTIME READER: The philosophy may be true — but it's not nearly as rewarding. (At least in my case!)

Horoscope

Friday, Sept. 8, 1995

In the year ahead, you might fall back upon loyal, old friends who will play important roles in your affairs. However, make sure you thoroughly investigate the credentials of strangers before forming any new alliances.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In competitive developments today, size up your opposition realistically. They may hold more trump cards than you do. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that govern you in the year ahead. Send your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10150. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There is a chance that you might have to take care of certain responsibilities today that are not of your making. Clean them up instead of letting them fester.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Do not take gambles or financial risks today on hearsay, even if it is passed on to you by a reliable, old pal. Your friend's facts might be faulty.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Remain honest with yourself today regarding your motives when doing things that could affect others. Suppress your selfish desires.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Negative thinkers could turn out to be very poor companions today. They might implant doubts in your mind and cause you to worry about things needlessly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In a joint endeavor today, you or the person with whom you're involved might expect more from the other than is reasonable or than was agreed upon.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Carefully weigh and analyze decisions today. Try not to make judgments in haste.

because what you agree to today might not be to your advantage tomorrow.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A responsibility you recently brushed aside might create complications for you today. It could also leave an associate disappointed, even angry, with you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be very selective regarding social contacts today. Avoid an individual who has a talent for pitting people against each other.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you might find your household isn't large enough for two strong-willed chiefs. You may be the one who has to remove a few feathers from your war bonnet.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In discussions with others today, you may be able to make your points, but this doesn't mean they will be received or accepted. Do not force your views on friends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you don't keep your guard up in your financial affairs today, you might suffer some form of loss through an associate. Keep your own records.

RODEO

With $111,597 in 1995 earnings, Sherry Potter-Cervi has officially claimed the record for single event, regular-season earnings. Potter-Cervi surpassed 1994 World Calf Roping Champion Herbert Theriot for the record. Theriot earned $110,745 during the regular season last year.

In addition, Potter-Cervi also has earned more money than defending world barrel racing champion Kristie Peterson captured en route to her world title. Last year, Peterson earned $110,341.

Seven-time world champion team ropers Jake Barnes and Clay O'Brien Cooper have parted - at least temporarily. Barnes, a header, is roping with Kyon Sayer of Phoenix, and will rope with him at least through the New Mexico State Fair in Albuquerque, N.M., Sept. 8-9 and Sept. 11-23.

O'Brien Cooper, meanwhile, has paired with Walt Rodman for rodeos in Albuquerque; Ellensburg, Wash.; and Walla Walla, Wash.

Over the past decade, Barnes and O'Brien Cooper have crafted the PRC's team roping record book in their own image. Last year, for instance, Barnes and O'Brien Cooper set a new National Finals Rodeo team roping average record by roping 10 steers in 59.1 seconds. It obliterated the old record of 77.2 seconds held by the teams of Bob Harris/Tee Woolman and Jake Milton/Walt Woodard. Both teams set the old record in 1987.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska football coach Tom Osborne rescinded his decision to ban reporters from the student newspaper from practice because of two critical cartoons, vowing instead to decline interviews with the paper.

Osborne declared the ban Tuesday for Daily Nebraskan reporters after the cartoons were published last week. Under the new rules, reporters, including those from the Daily Nebraskan, will be allowed to attend the first 15 minutes of practice.

Osborne said the Daily Nebraskan is welcome at his weekly news conference.

FOOTBALL

MIAMI (AP) — Seattle Seahawks receiver Brian Blades was formally charged with manslaughter by state prosecutors in the shooting death of his cousin.

The 29-year-old former University of Miami player had been charged by police with the death of Charles Blades, 34, fatally shot in the head with Brian's .38-caliber semiautomatic handgun at the player's home in Plantation July 5.

After further investigation by the Broward County state attorney's office and police, a formal charge of manslaughter with a firearm was filed.

Blades, free on $10,000 bond, planned to file a written plea of not guilty within two days.

A conviction on the manslaughter charge carries a maximum 30-year prison sentence. But under sentencing guidelines, Blades would probably face 7-9 years.

NEW YORK (AP) — Emmitt Smith of the Dallas Cowboys, who ran 60 yards for a touchdown the first time he carried the ball this season, is among six players honored by the NFL the first week of the season.

Smith, who finished with 163 yards and four touchdowns in Dallas' 35-0 shutout of the Giants, earned NFC player of the week honors.

Steve Bono of Kansas City was designated AFC offensive player of the week with 278 yards and three touchdown passes.

Others recognized were Chris Slade of New England, Chris Doleman of Atlanta, Isaac Bruce of St. Louis and Doug Pfeiffer of Cincinnati.

Red Raiders prepare for Penn State

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK (AP) — Texas Tech will take on fourth-ranked Penn State believing that good things happen to those who prepare.

Football coach Spike Dykes said that attitude could help the underdog Red Raiders break the Nittany Lions' 17-game winning streak, the longest in Division I-A.

"Every Saturday, teams win that aren't supposed to," Dykes said Tuesday in response to the 17-15 upset Northwestern pulled last weekend over No. 9 Notre Dame.

"And every Saturday, teams lose that are supposed to win," he said. "You've got to be ready, and if you are, I think anything can happen."

A crowd of 95,000 is expected Saturday for the 11 a.m. kickoff in State College, Pa. It is the debut meeting between the teams and the season-opener for both.

"It gets your attention in a hurry," Dykes said. "I think that's the fun of the game. Competition is what we all strive for."

The game offers a chance to prove road skills for Tech, a Southwest Conference team that failed to win a game in an opponent's stadium last season.

Penn State, winners of the Big Ten championship, returns four senior starters to an offensive unit that led the nation in scoring with 47.8 points per game.

The Lions last year rolled over Southern Cal 38-14. Tech, meanwhile, lost 55-14 to Southern Cal in the Cotton Bowl.

"But Dykes said his team has shown steady improvement since then. He reserved special praise for tailback Byron Hanspard, a 6-0, 190-pound sophomore who averaged 99 yards rushing in the last five regular-season games.

Hanspard got tougher, stronger and quicker over the summer, Dykes said.

Saturday's matchup against Penn State, he said, moves Texas Tech toward its goal of improving via an upgraded schedule. Last year saw the Red Raiders play — and lose to — Nebraska (42-16) and Oklahoma (17-11) during the preseason.

"We've played some awful good teams in the last few years and we haven't won many of those games," Dykes said. "We've played teams in the Top 5 and it's been hard, it's been really hard."

"You know the beautiful thing about it is our standing in the conference has risen."

Penn State coach Joe Paterno on Tuesday was sounding concerned about injuries that have thinned his team.

"We're not very good," Paterno said. "The last two or three practices, we have been terrible. We haven't executed well. We've made a lot of mistakes. We haven't been able to concentrate."

Sloppiness aside, the Lions are ready to play.

"It's been a long preseason," linebacker Terry Killens said. "We're ready to go out there and hit somebody else besides each other."

Cal Ripken Jr. poses recently with the two Rawlings commemorative baseballs that were used to tie and break Lou Gehrig's consecutive games record.

Ripken takes Iron Man title

By SHAWN DONNAN
Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — They cheered loud and long.

For more than 22 minutes, more than 46,000 fans stood on their feet and recognized Cal Ripken Jr., baseball's most self-effacing hero, as he added the title of Iron Man to his resume on a night when the score was just something destined to become a trivia answer.

When it was official that Ripken had passed Lou Gehrig, the Iron Horse, and his 2,131st consecutive game was in the books, the sellout crowd at Camden Yards stood and roared.

For 22 minutes, 15 seconds they didn't sit, their unremitting cheers finally convincing Ripken to take a lap around the warning track and shake hands and slap high fives with elated fans as he passed them.

It was enough to make Marlene Rodman teary as she sat in her left field seat.

"It's very emotional," she said. "I'm very proud, being a Baltimorean, and Cal being a hometown Marylander."

Despite Ripken's humble manner, Wednesday's game was pure glitz.

Long before the Orioles or the California Angels had taken the field, fans were bombarded with inspiring music and film clips that continued after each half-inning.

In the stands sat sports stars ranging from Joe DiMaggio, who played with Gehrig, to tennis star Pam Shriver, a part owner of the Orioles, to Hollywood stars Tom Selleck and Corbin Bernsen.

When the game became official in the fifth inning, fireworks exploded, orange and black balloons were sent skyward, and silver streamers drifted into right field.

But even without all the glitz and glamour it was very clear from early on that Wednesday's game was more than a game.

"This is history. You'll never see this happen ever again," Pete London, a 47-year-old fan trying to find a ticket, said even before the game had started.

"The American people are in love with a guy who gets up and goes to work every day."

That love was almost continuously on show as the kid from rural Aberdeen entered the record books.

When Ripken's children threw out the ceremonial first pitch, the crowd laughed and smiled along with the proud father. When he hit a solo homer in the fourth, they stood and roared. And when it was all over, they stood and cheered and grinned as the All-Star shortstop was honored by teammates new and old.

They listened respectfully when teammate Brady Anderson spoke during the post-game ceremony.

"Cal, you have inspired many teammates; you have delighted millions of fans; you have given the nation uncountable memories. Your pride in and love for the game are at a level few others will reach," Anderson told Ripken.

And again the crowd hushed when Joe DiMaggio, a star from another time, stepped to the microphone.

"There's a beautiful monument to Lou Gehrig at Yankee Stadium that says 'A man, a gentleman, and a great ball player whose amazing record of 2,130 games should stand for all time,'" DiMaggio told Ripken.

"Well, that goes to prove even the greatest records are made to be broken, and wherever my former teammate, Lou Gehrig, is today, I'm sure he's tipping his cap to you, Cal Ripken," DiMaggio said.

Wherever they were in Camden Yards, it seemed, fans couldn't escape feeling warm and fuzzy.

"It's nice to see an honest hard-working person being honored this way," said Dennis Flowers of Baltimore. "I just feel like a good person wins."

"In this day of high-priced players and attitudes, he's still a player from the old school," said Jerry Thomas, who flew up from Cartersville, Ga., on Wednesday morning and paid a scalper $275 for a ticket get into the game.

The superlatives were also flying from fans in love with the hometown star known for nothing less wholesome than his milk mustache.

"It's absolutely incredible to be here tonight to see him break the record," Debbie Hoskinson said. "Amazing. Overwhelming."

"It's almost as if he's a part of the family. My family."

Sanders Sweepstakes could be resolved by Friday

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers could be playing a game of catch-up with the Dallas Cowboys in the race to sign Pro Bowl cornerback Deion Sanders.

Carmen Policy said Wednesday he expects Sanders to choose between Dallas and San Francisco, and the 49ers' president rated the Cowboys a favorite in the bidding for Sanders despite the two-sport star's current association with the San Francisco Giants.

"I honestly believe this is going to be resolved by Friday," Policy said. "I have reason to believe there's going to be a meeting of the minds with either us or Dallas."

At least two other teams, reportedly Denver and Miami, also have been mentioned as contenders for the football free agent. Policy, without naming the other teams, said they have very little chance in the Sanders Sweepstakes.

"I don't mean this to be disparaging, but I think they're practice squad at this point, and I think Dallas and I are on the active roster," Policy said.

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones reportedly is dangling a five-year offer that would include up to a $10 million signing bonus for Sanders, who played for San Francisco last season and helped the 49ers beat Dallas en route to their fifth Super Bowl title.

Policy said he spoke with Sanders' agent, Eugene Parker, a couple of times by telephone on Wednesday and expects to submit San Francisco's offer within the next 24 hours.

Sanders, contacted prior to the Giants' baseball game Wednesday night, declined to comment on the negotiations.

Jones has said he would be shocked if Sanders didn't sign with Dallas and Policy conceded he regards the 49ers as underdogs to Dallas in the pursuit of Sanders.

Lefors loses Green for 1995 season

LEFORS — The Lefors football team has lost a lot of its speed and strength.

Tommy Green, an all-district player and an all-everything athlete, sustained a season-ending knee injury during last Friday's scrimmage with McLean.

"It hurts him and it hurts us," said Pirates' coach Ronny Miller. "This is his senior year and to have something like this happen. It's really tough."

Green was running for a touchdown in the scrimmage when he made a move on the McLean safety in the open field and "blew his knee out," Miller said.

Green, a 6-2, 160-pound senior, was all-district linebacker, punter and running back. Jerimey Howard, a 150-pound senior, will take over Green's positions at both running back and middle linebacker.

"We've got 14 players left and some of them have got to step up and play hard," Miller said. There's good news in that senior quarterback Keith Franks, another key starter, is back in the lineup after being injured. Together, Franks and Green combined for 53.8 points and 392.7 yards per game in leading the Pirates to a 7-3 record last season.

Lefors opens the 6-man season at 7:30 Friday night at home against Silverton.

"Silverton is big and strong, but they're not real quick. They've got a real tough defense and their offense runs the ball right at you. Silverton has a good, solid team," Miller added.

Lefors starting lineup will be determined by how Silverton lines up.

Should Lefors operate out of a spread offense, the lineup will probably have Matt Green at center, Brian Bockman and Jerimey Howard at ends; Josh Atkins at wingback; Justin Howard at quarterback and Franks at deep back. Defensively, Bockman and Craig Seely will be at ends; Jerimey Howard at middle line-backer; Franks and Craig Gifford at cornerbacks; Justin Howard at safety.

GROOM — Coach Steve Lott and his Groom Tigers are ready to get the football season under way.

"It's that time of year to get started," Lott said. "We've had our scrimmages and we know what we have to do. It's been a long stretch, starting with two-a-days."

After close to a month of workouts under the hot sun, the season opener is here for the Tigers, who travel to Valley Friday night for the first game.

Groom's running attack will be its main weapon with strong blocking up front from big linemen Brandon Crump (267-pound senior) and Nick Ashford (200-pound senior).

"Our right side of the line has a lot of experience with Crump and Ashford there," Lott added. "They do a fine job together."

Harold Cave, a 180-pound fullback, and Justin Ritter, a 150-pound tailback, are expected to be Groom's 1-2 punch out of an I-formation.

"Harold is a tremendous blocker and he runs the ball well. Justin has exceeded all of our expectations," Lott said. "He's got good speed and a lot of natural instincts."

Groom and Valley both had 6-man programs before moving to 11-man last season.

"Valley is quick both on offense and defense, but they have a real young ballclub," Lott said. "Their biggest asset is probably their defense. They've got a couple of good linebackers who can get to the ball real quick."

New Spartans' coach faces rugged debut

By RICK WARNER
AP Football Writer

With Nick Saban as defensive coordinator, the Cleveland Browns gave up the fewest points in the NFL last season. Saban will need another great defensive effort Saturday, when he makes his debut as Michigan State's head coach against second-ranked Nebraska.

The Cornhuskers opened defense of their national championship last Thursday with a 64-21 victory over Oklahoma State. They probably could have scored 100 if coach Tom Osborne hadn't pulled his regulars in the second half.

Saban's Spartans will have their hands full trying to contain quarterback Tommie Frazier and tailback Lawrence Phillips, who were involved in six touchdowns against Oklahoma State. Phillips rushed for 153 yards and three TDs, while Frazier ran for one score and passed for two.

Tony Banks, who completed 61 percent of his passes last year, gives the Spartans experienced leadership at quarterback. But that won't be enough against the visiting Cornhuskers, who are 18-point favorites. ... NEBRASKA 35-14.

World briefs

Mind your own business

BEIJING (AP) — After two days of tough talk from the United States on human rights at an international women's conference, China today in effect replied: Mind your own business.

Until now, the Beijing government had maintained a stony silence on Hillary Rodham Clinton's strongly worded remarks Tuesday to conferees at the Fourth World Conference on Women.

China also refrained from reacting to even more pointed human rights comments the next day from the U.S. delegation chief, Madeleine Albright.

Today, though — hours after Mrs. Clinton had left for Mongolia — a Foreign Ministry spokesman was asked point-blank about what she had said.

"Some people from some countries have made unwarranted remarks or criticism of other countries," said spokesman Chen Jian, adding that such criticism was not in the spirit of the U.N. gathering.

Luis heads back to sea

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Hurricane Luis roared into open seas today, leaving at least 13 people dead, thousands of properties decimated and roads littered with the debris of interrupted lives: refrigerators, cooking pots and a family photo album.

Stirring the seas to anger and winds to destruction, Luis tore up streets and brought down so many telephone lines that it was impossible to confirm unofficial reports that the 700-mile-wide storm had killed dozens more elsewhere in the Caribbean.

Communications to many islands were cut after Luis powered through the eastern Caribbean with 125 mph, as was electricity and water. Today, the storm has strengthened to 140 mph in the Atlantic as it moves northwest at about 9 mph.

There's skiing fun for everyone!

(AP Photo/San Antonio Express-News)

William Stefanozica, 20, of San Antonio, is inflicted with cerebral palsy. He enjoys water skiing with a specially designed ski at Sea World of Texas as part of the ALLCANSKI fourth annual event held recently with help from skier Chris Anderson. With the help of Texas Adaptive Aquatics of Houston, a non-profit organization, skiers of all ages have the chance to learn to ski on specially adapted water skis designed to accommodate skiing in a seated position.

State railroad agency undertakes restructuring

DALLAS (AP) — The 104-year-old Texas Railroad Commission has started a restructuring intended to make it more efficient and ready for a changing role.

The oil-regulating Railroad Commission once was one of the most powerful institutions in the state, but the Texas economy has diversified in recent years. Earlier this year, deregulation of the intrastate trucking industry moved the commission's transportation functions to the Texas Department of Transportation and the Department of Public Safety.

The agency is streamlining and rethinking its mission in the wake of these and other changes, including last fall's unprecedented

Republican sweep of the three-person panel, Commissioner Charles Matthews said Wednesday.

"You have three conservative, business-minded commissioners who are looking at the Railroad Commission," he said.

"It's exactly the kind of thing that business and industry in the United States has been going through for the last number of years, and it's now time for government to do the same thing," Matthews said.

The commissioners want to hire a chief administrative officer to handle the day-to-day operations at the agency, while they travel, give speeches and focus on policy issues, Matthews said. The job will pay up to $72,500 a year.

Since the nation now imports more than half the oil it uses, the commissioners particularly want to find ways to boost production in Texas, the source of more than one-third of the nation's oil and a quarter of its gas, Matthews said.

"Texas has the ability, I believe, to do a little better job of increasing the amount of production of both gas and oil, and we need to make sure that we spend our time coming up with policies and procedures that stimulate development in the oil and gas fields," he said.

The commission began the restructuring in mid-July, after a two-day management retreat at Southwestern University in Georgetown — itself a novelty for the agency.

Report says kids becoming violent, prone to be victims

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's children are turning to crime at such an alarming rate that juvenile arrests may double by 2010, the Justice Department said today.

They're also more likely to be victims of crime, especially at the hands of their peers and with guns, according to the report, "Juvenile Offenders and Victims: A National Report."

A noted criminologist who tracks juvenile homicides called today's violence-wracked generation "the young and the ruthless." And Attorney General Janet Reno worried that if government doesn't increase its efforts to fight youth crime, citizens will face an increasingly lawless society.

"This report is a road map to the next generation of crime — unless we do something now," Reno said in remarks accompanying the report.

The 188-page document is the first comprehensive compilation of data on juvenile crime and victimization from more than 50 sources, according to the Justice Department.

Howard Snyder, one of the Philadelphia-based authors at the National Center for Juvenile Justice, said two things are pushing the juvenile crime rate up: a growing number of children and a growing intensity of violence as teenagers use more weapons, especially handguns.

"The Baby Boomers' kids are moving into the years when they're doing crime," Snyder said in a telephone interview.

"The children are poorer. There are more minorities. And they have more guns. ... It's dangerous to be a kid," Snyder said.

James Alan Fox, a criminal justice professor at Northeastern University in Boston, attributes the increasing lawlessness to children who aren't supervised, especially after school. Statistics show that crime by and against juveniles peaks at 3 p.m. and again at 6 p.m., he said, and the Justice Department report confirms that.

"This generation is the young and the ruthless," Fox said in a telephone interview. "This generation has more deadly weapons in their hands, more dangerous drugs in their bodies and a much more casual attitude about violence. In addition, too many kids are under-socialized and undersupervised."

The report estimates that if the juvenile population increases by 20 percent over the 1990 Census, and arrest rates continue to climb as they have in the past decade, the number of juveniles arrested for violent crimes will double by 2010 — to more than 260,000.

The report also says: —Between 1983 and 1992, the rate of juvenile arrests for violent crime increased by 100 percent, compared with a 60 percent increase for young adults.

—Juveniles are now responsible for one in five violent crimes.

—Between 1983 and 1992, the juvenile weapons laws violations more than doubled for each racial group — an increase of 167 percent for blacks, 129 percent for other races and 106 percent for whites.

—40 percent of juvenile crime occurs after school, whereas for adults the crime rate is highest before and after midnight.

—Only 22 percent of the attackers of juveniles were strangers, compared with 42 percent for adults.

—Between 1984 and 1993, the number of gun-related murders of juveniles increased fivefold.

—Guns were used in eight of 10 homicides committed by juveniles.

—One-quarter of juvenile victims are killed by other children.

—In 1992 alone, 2,595 children were murdered, seven every day.

—One of every five child fatalities was attributed to homicide, the No. 2 cause of death behind motor vehicle accidents.
